Japan Declares War on U.S., Bombs Hawaii, Philippines, Guam; Congress to Act Today; Tokio Troops Invade Malaya and Thailand

DEC 8 1941

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP).—Japan declared war on the United States today. An electrified nation immediately united for a terrific struggle ahead. President Roosevelt was expected to ask Congress for a declaration of war tomorrow. During the day, Japanese planes bombed Honolulu, Pearl Harbor, and Hickam, Field, Hawaii, without warning. In a broadcast from Honolulu, some 350 soldiers were reported dead at Hicham Field, with numerous casualties at the other points of attack.

Manila Reported Quiet

At first the White House announced that Manila also had been bombed. But the Associated Press correspondent there reported at 4:25 p. m., Eastern Standard time, that Manila was quiet.

Then, the Tokio government announced that Japan had entered a state of war with the United States and Great Britain as of 6 a. m., tomorrow (Monday).

As day broke over the Far Pacific, the White House announced that Japanese planes had also attacked the American-owned island naval base at Guam. Just previously the Navy had told of an unidentified squadron of planes appearing over the island. No further details were available immediately.

With the question of a joint session of Congress tomorrow still indefinite, Speaker Rayburn advised all members of the House "to be on hand" at noon tomorrow.

But President Roosevelt hardly waited for the Japanese declaration. As soon as he heard of the bombing he ordered the Army and Navy to carry out previously prepared and highly secret plans for the defense of the country.

Army airmen engaged Japanese fighting planes over Honolulu. In the city below them ,the White House said, a heavy loss of life had been inflicted, together with extensive damage to property.

At the same time, the Chief Executive called his Cabinet into extraordinary session for 8:30 p. m., and invited Congressional leaders to join the group a half hour later. Prior to this meeting, Roosevelt began the draft of a special message to Congress and if the general sentiment in official Washington quarters was any indication, Japan's declaration of war would be met in like terms by the Commander-in-Chief.

From a high Congressional source, it was learned the President had mentioned the possibility of a joint session of Congress tomorrow. This naturally led to speculation that the Chief Executive would address it and ask in person, as did Woodrow Wilson in 1917, that it declare war.

Full War Basis

Regardless of this, there was no doubt that the country was at war. The capital went onto a full wartime basis within an hour after the attacks were reported. In addition to the President's orders to the Army and Navy, Secretary Stimson ordered the mobilization of all military personnel. All officvers were ordered to report in uniform.

Provost marshall guards, wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles were put on duty about the War Department and other important centers.

And, from the War Department came an announcement to the press that all information regarding the "strength, location, designation, composition and movement of U. S. troops or Army transports outside the continental limits of the United States are designated by the War Department as secret and will be so considered under the law."

The meaning was plain: Any publication of such information would be followed by prosecution.

The capital was amazed and surprised at the day's tragically dramatic developments. At most a Japanese attack on Thailand had been foreseen. That the Japs had attacked the distant Pearl Harbor stronghold and Honolulu seemed incredible.

But the capital was calm about it, too. A small, subdued crowd gathered in front of the White House, looking for all the world like any Sunday accumulation of sightseers. To all outward appearances, that was the only indication that war finally had engulfed the nation.

Apparently at almost the exact time of the Pacific bombings, the Japanese Embassy called the State Department for an appointment which carrier the futile peace negotiations of the last few months to a fitful and flickering conclusion.

Tokio's two Ambassadors here, Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, were seeking an appointment. They arrived 20 minutes late for it and Secretary Hull kept them waiting for 15 more before receiving them.

Tight-Lipped

Gone was the blithe breezy aplomb, which had characterized their numerous previous visits to the Department. There was a tight-lipped, almost embarrassed smile for newsmen, and an absolute refusal to answer questions. Kurusu paced the diplomatic reception room. Nomura sat stolidly upon a leather divan, only a frequently tapping foot betraying his perturbation.

Finally they were admitted to the Secretary's office. To him Nomura handed Japan's reply to this country's formula for peace in the Pacific. Gravely, Hull read it. Then the Secretary of State turned toward the Japanese Ambassador and in a "tone of the greatest indignation," as the Department later described it, told him he had never seen a document so "crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions." Wordlessly the Japanese left.

It was apparent immediately that the nation was uniting for the struggle ahead, forgetting the bitter battle of words between those who had opposed the Administration's foreign policy and its supporters.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) a leader of the Senate bloc opposed to the President's foreign policy, promptly made this statement:

Lick Hell Out of 'Em

"The only thing now is to do our best to lick hell out of them."

After calling tonight's Cabinet meeting, President Roosevelt went into consultation with his Secretaries of War and Navy, an the Army's Chief of State, General George C. Marshall.

Stephen Early, the President's Secretary said tonight's conference would concern itself more with international relations than with military and naval strategy. He noted that the group did not include the chairmen of the military and naval committees.

Those invited from Congress were Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Rep. McCormack (.-Mass.), the Democratic floor leader; Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; Rep. Martin (R.-Mass.), the Republican floor leader; Rep. Eaton (R.-N. J.), a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Senator McNary (R.-Ore.), the Republican leader; Senator Austin (R.-Vt.), the assistant Republican leader; Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Barkley (D.-Ky.), the majority floor leader. In the event of Barkley's inability to attend, Senator Hill (D.-Ala.), the assistant leader, was designated to take his place.

Announcing the President's action for the protection of American territory. Early declared that so far as is known now the attacks were "made wholly without warning—when both nations were at peacea—nd were delivered within an hour or so of the time that the Japanese Ambassadors had gone to the State Department to hand to the Secretary of State Japan's reply to the Secretary's memorandum of the 26th.

Promptly, Navy officers said that long prepared counter-measures against Japanese surprise attacks had been ordered into operation and were "working smoothly." And within a few minutes, the War Department ordered all military personnel in this country into uniform.

Army Ship Hit

A little later, the White House reported an Army transport loaded with lumber had been torpedoed 1,300 miles west of San Francisco. This is well east of Hawaii.

The first announcement did not say whether the ship was sunk or whether there was loss of life. Ten minutes later a freighter was reported in distress 700 miles west of California.

In London Prime Minister Churchill immediately met with U. S. Ambassador Winant. It was expected the British would immediately join America as Churchill had promised.

Little information was immediately available regarding the strength of the Japanese air attacks. CBS said one Jap attack on Honolulu numbered 150 planes.

General Order

The Army's order affected not only the thousands of officers on duty in Washington, who have thus far performed their functions in civilian clothes to avoid a "militaristic" appearance, but all officers in every Corps Area, the United States' possessions and outlying bases.

Washington was expected to blossom tomorrow as a city of uniforms, because huge numbers of officers have been pouring in to the city for months to perform the Army's "overhead" functions.

At the Navy Department, officials said that all inquiries as to operations were being referred to the White House, but officers informally reported that for several months all American warships in the Pacific had been in constant readiness for battle and that vigorous counter-measures had long been planned for such incidents as the Japanese surprise attacks on Manila and Pearl Harbor.

7 KILLED, MANY INJURED BY BOMBS IN HONOLULU; FIRES SET IN CITY AREA

Japanese Planes Strafe Streets Of Wahiawa, Two Shot Down—Fifty Raiders Counted—M-Day Defense Measures Put Into Effect

DEC 8 1941

By EUGENE BURNS
Associated Press Correspondent

Honolulu, Dec. 7—Japanese bombs killed at least seven persons and injured many others, three seriously, in a surprise morning aerial attack on Honolulu today.

Army officials announced that two Japanese planes had been shot down in the Honolulu area.

The dead, not immediately identified, included three Caucasians, two Japanese and a 10-year-old Portuguese girl.

Several fires were started in the city area, but all were immediately controlled.

M-Day Decree Issued

Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter proclaimed M-day emergency defense measures immediately in effect. He appointed Eduard Doty in charge of the major disaster council.

The M-day proclamation establishes civilian-military control of traffic and roads, and permits the Governor to issue food-ration regulations.

First reports said ten or more persons were injured when enemy planes sprayed bullets on the streets of Wahiawa, a town of around 3,000 population, about twenty miles northwest of Honolulu.

Attack Also Aimed At Oahu

This report indicated the aerial attack was aimed at points on the Island of Oahu, other than Honolulu and the heavily fortified Pearl Harbor naval base.

The attack ended at about 9.25 A. M. (2.55 P. M., E.S.T.), lasting for approximately an hour and fifteen minutes.

Witnesses said they counted at least fifty planes in the initial attack, which the army said started at 8.10 A. M. (1.40 P. M., E.S.T.).

The attack seemed to center against Hickam Field, huge army airport, and Pearl Harbor, where the islands' heaviest naval fortifications are located.

DEC 8 1941

Wave After Wave Span Sky

Wave after wave of bombers streamed through the cloudy sky from the southwest, shattering the morning calm.

Perhaps the first to die was Bob Tyce, owner of a civilian airport near Honolulu, who had started to spin the propeller of a plane. When the enemy came over one plane swooped down, machine guns blazing, and Tyce fell dead.

Roy J. Titousek, Honolulu attorney, was piloting his own plane in an early morning sky ride when the attackers came over. Several enemy craft chased him, but he got away safely.

Most Attackers Fly High

Most of the attackers flew high, but a few came low. Five came down to under a hundred feet elevation to attack Pearl Harbor. An oil tank there was seen blazing and smoking. Others apparently headed directly for Hickam Field to drop bombs.

There was no immediate statement by military officials as to whether any service men were killed or injured, or as to property damage at military and naval posts.

Spectators said they saw the Japanese rising sun emblem on the low-flying planes.

Blames U. S. Planes

Japanese Consul General Sajao Kita said he believed the bombing was "by United States Army planes on maneuver."

When told there were dead and wounded as the result of the attack, Kito still expressed doubt that they were caused by Japanese planes.

Unconfirmed reports said the attackers came from two carriers.

United States destroyers were seen streaming full speed from Pearl Harbor, and spectators' reports of seeing shell splashes in the ocean indicated there had been an engagement between United States and Japanese ships.

One of the bombs that started Honolulu fires fell near Governor Poindexter's residence, but he was not injured.

Fire Chief Wallace Blaisdell reported the fires were under control because of a radio call that brought all firemen to duty. The fires, he said, "were not as bad as I expected."

Some streets were pocked with big holes, and several citizens were wounded by bomb fragments.

Farrington High School was converted into a hospital to care for the wounded and injured.

DEC 8 1941

Service Men Summoned

When the attack started, radio calls ordered all sailors, marines and soldiers to report instantly to their posts.

Soon, the sky was filled with puffs of smoke showing anti-aircraft batteries had gone into action. Their shells were stabbing for the high-flying bombers.

United States planes took to the air, and spectators on hills back of the city could see dogfights over the area.

There was a report from persons who came past Pearl Harbor that one ship there was lying on its side in the water and four others were on fire. This could not be confirmed immediately. The sky was filled with puffs of smoke from exploding shells fired by American army and navy anti-aircraft units.

Naval Action Indicated

Whether surface vessels of the United States fleet were in action against the enemy could not be learned at once, but columns of water rising from the sea as shells hit the water indicated a naval action.

Viewed from the hills back of Honolulu, where many city folk went to view the fight, columns of heavy black smoke went skyward from Pearl Harbor.

The citizens of Honolulu have been cleared from the streets by military and naval units, assisted by civilian volunteers, all carrying arms.

But a lot of citizens have left the city for hills, to watch the planes and anti-aircraft and get a general view of the excitement.

Eyewitness Report Of Air Raid

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 7—Japanese warplanes killed 350 men at Hickam Field and set fire to the United States battleship Oklahoma today in a sudden raid on Pearl Harbor and Honolulu, an NBC observer radioed direct from the scene today.

Two other ships in the harbor also were attacked, he reported.

The first news of the attack came about 8 A. M. Honolulu Time (1.30 P. M., E.S.T.), he said.

This was when a private plane owner reported he was given a salute of machine-gun bullets by the Japanese planes. His craft was damaged but he managed to land.

Planes Come From South

The private flyer was Ray Budwick, an attorney, the announcer said.

The attacking planes seemed to come from the south, the observer said.

He reported that two radio stations announced the attack but that residents still were skeptical until bombs began falling in various parts of Honolulu and at air force and naval bases.

Heavy anti-aircraft gunfire greeted the attackers, the NBC man said.

Ford Island Attacked

The first Japanese planes, he said, attacked Ford Island at Pearl Harbor, the United States Navy's mighty fortress of the Pacific.

Several squadrons swept in from the south over famous Diamond Head and dropped explosives and incendiary bombs in the city.

One man was killed by a bomb which fell in front of the Governor's mansion in Washington Place, the observer continued, and another dropped near the Advertiser building.

Home Areas Bombed

There was heavy bombing of Pacific Heights and other residential districts, he said. One woman was killed.

The Governor proclaimed a state of emergency and traffic came to a standstill in parts of Honolulu.

However, he added, traffic to and from Waikiki seemed to be still normal.

The hit on Hickam Field was on a barracks or derricks (the word was not clearly heard in New York), the announcer said, and another field on the other side of the island also was heavily bombed.

The observer, standing on the roof of a building in Honolulu, said the planes, undoubtedly Japanese, made the raid unexpectedly. His report was suddenly broken off.

Before its interruption, his report said:

"We have witnessed this morning the attack of Pearl Harbor and a severe bombing of Pearl Harbor by army planes, undoubtedly Japanese.

"The city of Honolulu has also been attacked and considerable damage done.

"This battle has been going on for nearly three hours.

"One of the bombs dropped within fifty feet of the KGU tower.

"It is no joke; it is a real war.

Advice To Public

"The public of Honolulu have been advised to keep in their homes and away from the army and navy. There has been severe fighting going on in the air and on the sea."

At this point the broadcast was interrupted.

The speaker continued a few minutes later.

"We have no statement as to how much damage has been done, but it has been a very severe attack.

"The army and navy, it appears, now have the air and sea under control."

Here the broadcast again was cut off

The 29,000-ton battleship Oklahoma was laid down March 23, 1914, and is a sister ship of the U. S. S. Nevada. It carries a normal crew of 1,301 men and has ten 14-inch guns, twenty 5-inch guns. Its signaling station is protected by sixteen-inch armor behind the conning tower.

The Oklahoma and the Nevada marked the first ships in naval construction, being the first to embody the "everything-or-nothing" principle of protection.

Hickam Field Target Of Attack, Three Miles Northwest Of Honolulu

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Hickam Field, the objective of a savage Japanese attack on Hawaii, is situated about three miles northwest of Honolulu, approximately halfway between the city and the Pearl Harbor Naval Base.

The field in recent years has been developed into one of the largest and most complete of all army air force posts.

Ford Island, another Japanese objective, is within landlocked Pearl Harbor itself. Formerly the army's Luke Field, it was surrendered to the navy when Hickam Field was selected as the principal army air installation.

Wheeler Field, another objective, is near Schofield Barracks, headquarters for most of the army ground forces on Oahu. The field and Schofield Barracks are almost in the center of the island.

Pacific, as of dawn.

Shortly afterward Domei announced that "naval operations are progressing off Hawaii, with at least one Japanese aircraft carrier in action against Pearl Harbor," the American naval base in the island.

DEC 8 1941

Japanese bombers were declared to have raided Honolulu at 7.35 A. M. Hawaii time (1.05 P. M. Sunday, E.S.T.).

Premier-War Minister General Hideki Tojo held a twenty-minute Cabinet session at his official residence at 7 A. M., and shortly afterward it was announced that both the United States Ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, and the British Ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, had been summoned by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo.

The Foreign Minister, Domei said, handed to Grew the Japanese Government's formal reply to the note sent to Japan by United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull on November 26.

[In the course of the diplomatic negotiations leading up to Sunday's events the Domei agency had stated that Japan could not accept the premises of Hull's note.]

Craigie was summoned by the Foreign Minister fifteen minutes after Grew was called.

At the brief Cabinet session, Premier Tojo reported on the progress of war plans against the British and American forces, according to Domei, and outlined the Japanese Government's policy.

Washington Lacks Word On Hawaii Casualties

War And Navy Departments Say Relatives Will Be Notified Promptly

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—The War and Navy Departments issued the following announcement tonight:

"The War and Navy Departments tonight announced they are receiving many inquiries regarding personnel stationed in the Hawaiian island area.

"No information has been received about casualties.

"Families will be notified promptly as soon as definite word regarding casualties becomes available.

"Both departments request individual inquiries be not sent at this time."

Japan Strikes First, Then Declares War

Japanese Attacked To Avert Blockade, Strategists Say

U. S. Expected To Counter By Striking Foe's Supply Lines And Bombing Power Plants

DEC 8 1941

JOHN HIGHTOWER

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—Strategists here suggested today that one of the prime purposes of the initial air attacks on the American insular outposts in Manila and the Philippines was to break an attempted blockade of Nippon before it could be well organized.

They said a general conflict in the Far East, fought over vast areas of land and ocean simultaneously, would be primarily a war of blockade.

The initial objective of the United States, with whatever aid comes from other powers, would be to cut off Japanese sources of supply from the outside world and at the same time undertake an air offensive designed to destroy transportation facilities, power plants, munitions factories and other sources of military power in Japan.

Size Of Jap Air Force

Estimates of the Japanese air force, made before today, varied widely, ranging from 2,500 to 3,600 planes. Military experts said the Japanese had been so preoccupied with keeping their armies going in China that they had not been able to keep their planes up to the high competitive levels of speed and fire power reached by Western nations.

They likewise were said to have neither the resources nor mass production methods engaged in the building of British and American air forces.

Islands Reinforced

Recent months have brought many evidences of reinforcements of American air bases in the Philippines. Numerous Japanese military objectives are within easy bombing distance of long-range planes operating from the Philippines, and bombing-patrol operations can be carried out from new army and navy bases in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska.

The Japanese, according to the best available information, have a first-rate navy, probably comparable in size to that of the United States.

They are reported to have ten battleships of World War vintage compared with fifteen of comparable age and strength in the United States Navy.

Building New Ships

Several months ago the Japanese were reported building eight new ships, and American experts estimated that two of those have now been completed. Two new American capital ships, the Washington and North Carolina, also have been recently completed.

In addition to the battleships the Japanese navy is said to contain at least eight airplane carriers (United States 7); 46 cruisers (United States 37), 125 destroyers (United States 170) and 71 submarines (United States 113). Those figures give a grand Japanese total of at least 262 ships compared with a total of 344 American warships.

The United States is building 345 ships, including 15 battleships; the Japanese, 38, including 6 battleships.

Japan's Air Force Declared Inferior

Weakest Of Any Of Those Of Great Powers, Briton Asserts

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Japanese air force was described today as the weakest of any of the great world powers by the British Press Association's air correspondent.

Press Association added, however, that the addition of a dozen destroyers in the last eighteen months had made the Japanese navy the world's third strongest, those of Britain and the United States being first.

The air correspondent said London air experts believed Japan had not more than 3,000 airplanes of all types, and quoted an authority as estimating her fighter strength at not more than 1,000 planes, the fastest of which would not make more than 310 miles an hour.

Tokyo Case Against U.S. Is Set Forth

Japs Charge Attempt to 'Frustrate Aspiration to Ideal of Common Prosperity' in Asia

DEC 8 1941

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Why did Japan declare war against us today? Here is Tokyo's case against us as set forth in the memorandum which the Japanese ambassadors handed to Secretary of State Hull this afternoon:

We "attempted to frustrate Japan's aspiration to the ideal of common prosperity" in Asia.

"The American government, obsessed with its own views and opinions, may be said to be scheming for the extension of the war. While it seeks, on the one hand, to secure its rear by stabilizing the Pacific area, it is engaged, on the other hand, in aiding Great Britain and preparing to attack, in the name of self-defense, Germany and Italy."

"The American government desires to maintain and strengthen, in coalition with Great Britain and other powers, its dominant position it has hitherto occupied not only in China but in other areas of East Asia."

The demand that Japan withdrew from China "ignores Japan's sacrifices in the four years of the China affair, menaces the empire's existence itself and disparages its honour and prestige.

"Obviously it is the intention of the American Government to conspire with Great Britain and other countries to obstruct Japan's efforts toward the establishment of peace through the creation of a new order in East Asia, and especially to preserve Anglo-American rights and interests by keeping Japan and China at war."

TALKS STILL ON AS WAR OPENED, SECRETARY SAYS

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—Following are the texts of a statement by Secretary of State Hull, the American note of November 26 to Japan, and Japan's reply:

Hull's Statement

Japan has made a treacherous and utterly unprovoked attack on the United States.

At the very moment when representatives of the Japanese Government were discussing with representatives of this Government, at the request of the former, principles and courses of peace, the armed forces of Japan were preparing and assembling at various strategic points to launch new attacks and new aggressions upon nations and peoples with which Japan was professedly at peace, including the United States.

I am releasing the text of a Japanese reply which was handed to me by the Japanese Ambassador today.

Suddenness Of Attack

Before the Japanese Ambassador delivered this final statement from his Government, the treacherous attack upon the United States ha taken place.

This Government has stood for al the principles that underlie fair dealing, peace, law and order, and justice between nations and has steadfastly striven to promote and maintain that state of relations between itself and all other nations.

It is now apparent to the whole world that Japan in its recent professions of a desire for peace has been infamously false and fraudulent.

law and order and fair dealing among nations.

These principles include the principle of inviolability of territorial integrity and sovereignty of each and all nations; the principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries; the principle of equality, including equality of commercial opportunity and treatment; and the principle of reliance upon international cooperation and conciliation for the prevention and pacific settlement of controversies and for improvement of international conditions by peaceful methods and processes.

It is believed that in our discussions some progress has been made in reference to the general principles which constitute the basis of a peaceful settlement covering the entire Pacific area.

Quotes Japanese Envoy

Recently, the Japanese Ambassador has stated that the Japanese Government is desirous of continuing the conversations directed toward a comprehensive and peaceful settlement in the Pacific area; that it would be helpful toward creating an atmosphere favorable to the successful outcome of the conversations if a temporary modus vivendi could be agreed upon to be in effect while the conversations looking to a peaceful settlement in the Pacific were continuing.

On November 20 the Japanese Ambassador communicated to the Secretary of State proposals in regard to

The text of the American note handed the Japanese on November 26 was in two parts—an oral statement and an outline of a proposed basis for agreement between the United States and Japan. It follows:

Oral Statement

The representatives of the Government of the United States and of the Government of Japan have been carrying on during the last several months informal and exploratory conversations for the purpose of arriving at a settlement, if possible, of questions relating to the entire Pacific area based upon the principles of peace, temporary measures to be taken respectively by the Government of Japan and by the Government of the United States, which measures are understood to have been designed to accomplish the purposes above indicated.

The Government of the United States most earnestly desires to contribute to the promotion and maintenance of peace and stability in the Pacific area, and to afford every opportunity for the continuance of discussions with the Japanese Government directed toward working out a broad-gauge program of peace throughout the Pacific area.

The proposals which were presented by the Japanese Ambassador on November 20 contain some features which, in the opinion of this Government, conflict with the fundamental principles which form a part of the general settlement under consideration and to which each Government has declared that it is committed.

Suggestion By U. S.

The Government of the United States believes that the adoption of such proposals would not be likely to contribute to the ultimate objectives of ensuring peace under law, order and justice in the Pacific area, and it suggests that further effort be made to resolve our divergences of views in regard to the practical application of the fundamental principles already mentioned.

With this object in view, the Government of the United States offers for the consideration of the Japanese Government a plan of a broad but simple settlement covering the entire Pacific area as one practical exemplification of a program which this Government envisages as something to be worked out during our further conversations.

The plan therein suggested represents an effort to bridge the gap between our draft of June 21, 1941, and the Japanese draft of September 25 by making a new approach to the essential problems underlying a comprehensive Pacific settlement.

This plan contains provisions dealing with the practical application of the fundamental principles which we have agreed in our conversations constitute the only sound basis for worthwhile international relations.

We hope that in this way progress toward reaching a meeting of minds between our two governments may be expedited.

"Outline of proposed basis for agreement between the United States and Japan":

DEC 8 1941

DECLARATION OF POLICY

The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan both being solicitous for the peace of the Pacific, affirm that their national policies are directed toward lasting and extensive peace throughout the Pacific area, that they have no territorial designs in that area, that they have no intention of threatening other countries or of using military force aggressively against any neighboring nation, and that, accordingly, in their national policies they will actively support and give practical application to the following fundamental principles upon which their relations with each other and with all other governments are based:

1. The principle of inviolability of territorial integrity and sovereignty of each and all nations.
2. The principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries.
3. The principle of equality, including equality of commercial opportunity and treatment.
4. The principle of reliance upon international cooperation and conciliation for the prevention and pacific settlement of controversies and for improvement of international conditions by peaceful methods and processes.

Economic Principles

The Government of Japan and the Government of the United States have agreed that toward eliminating chronic political instability, preventing recurrent economic collapse, and providing a basis for peace, they will actively support and practically apply the following principles in their economic relations with each other and with other nations and peoples:

1. The principle of non-discrimination in International commercial relations.
2. The principle of International economic cooperation and abolition of extreme Nationalism as expressed in excessive trade restrictions.
3. The principle of non-discriminatory access by all nations to raw material supplies.
4. The principle of full protection of the interests of consuming countries and populations as regards the operation of International commodity agreements.
5. The principle o festablishment of such institutions and arrangements of International finance as may lend aid to the essential enterprises and the continuous development of all countries and may permit payments through processes of trade consonant with the welfare of all countries.

PROPOSED U. S.-JAPAN STEPS

The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan propose to take steps as follows:

1. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan will endeavor to conclude a multilateral nonaggression pact among the British Empire, China, Japan, the Netherlands, the Soviet Union, Thailand and the United States.

2. Both Governments will endeavor to conclude among the American, British, Chinese, Japanese, the Netherland and Thai Governments an agreement whereunder each of the Governments would pledge itself to respect the territorial integrity of French Indo-China and, in the event that there should develop a threat to the territorial integrity of Indo-China, to enter into immediate consultation with a view to taking such measures as may be deemed necessary and advisable to meet the threat in question.

Such agreement would provide also that each of the Governments party to the agreement would not seek or accept preferential treatment in its trade or economic relations with Indo-China and would use its influence to obtain for each of the signatories equality of treatment in trade and commerce with French Indo-China.

Withdrawal Of Forces

3. The Government of Japan will withdraw all military, naval, air and police forces from China and from Indo-China.

4. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan will not support—militarily, politically, economically—any government or regime in China other than the national government of the Republic of China with capital temporarily at Chungking.

5. Both governments will give up all extraterritorial rights in China, including rights and interests in and with regard to international settlements and concessions, and rights under the Boxer Protocol of 1901.

Both governments will endeavor to obtain the agreement of the British and other governments to give up extra-territorial rights in China, including rights in international settlements and in concessions and under the Boxer Protocol of 1901.

Trade Accord

6. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan will enter into negotiations for the conclusion between the United States and Japan of a trade agreement, based upon reciprocal most-favored-nation treatment and reduction of trade barriers by both countries, including an undertaking by the United States to bind raw silk on the free list.

7. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan will, respectively, remove the freezing restrictions on Japanese funds in the United States and on American funds in Japan.

8. Both Governments will agree upon a plan for the stabilization of the dollar-yen rate, with the allocation of funds adequate for this purpose, half to be supplied by Japan and half by the United States.

9. Both Governments will agree that no agreement which either has concluded with any third power or powers shall be interpreted by it in such a way as to conflict with the fundamental purpose of this agreement, the establishment and preservation of peace throughout the Pacific area.

Use Of Influence

10. Both Governments will use their influence to cause other Governments to adhere to and to give practical application to the basic political and economic principles set forth in this agreement.

Following is the text of the reply to the United States note of November 26 which the Japanese Ambassador handed today to Secretary Hull:

1. The Government of Japan, prompted by a genuine desire to come to an amicable understanding with the Government of the United States in order that the two countries by their joint efforts may secure the peace of the Pacific area and thereby contribute toward the realization of world peace, has continued negotiations with the utmost sincerity since April last with the Government of the United States regarding the adjustment and advancement of Japanese-American relations and the stabilization of the Pacific area.

The Japanese Government has the honor to state frankly its views concerning the claims the American Government has persistently maintained as well as the measures the United States and Great Britain have taken toward Japan during these eight months.

2. It is the immutable policy of the Japanese Government to insure the stability of East Asia and to promote world peace and thereby to enable all nations to find each its proper place in the world.

China Affair Cited

Ever since the China affair broke out owing to the fainure on the part of China to comprehend Japan's true intentions, the Japanese Government has striven for the restoration of peace and it has consistently exerted its best efforts to prevent the extention of war-like disturbances. It was also to that end that in September last year Japan concluded the tripartite pact with Germany and Italy.

However, both the United States and Great Britain have resorted to every measure possible to assist the Chungking regime so as to obstruct the establishment of a general peace between Japan and China, interfering with Japan's constructive endeavors toward the stabilization of East Asia.

Exerting pressure on the Netherlands East Indies, or menacing French Indo-China, they have attempted to frustrate Japan's aspiration to the ideal of common prosperity in cooperation with these regions.

Furthermore, when Japan, in accordance with its protocol with France, took measures of joint defense of French Indo-China, both American and British governments, wilfully misinterpreting it as a threat to their own possessions, and inducing the Netherlands Government to follow suit, they enforced the assets-freezing order, thus severing economic relations with Japan.

Military Preparations

While manifesting thus an obviously hostile attitude, these countries have strengthened their military preparations, perfecting an encirclement of Japan, and have brought about a situation which endangers the very existence of the empire.

Nevertheless, to facilitate a speedy settlement, the Premier of Japan proposed, in August last, to meet the President of the United States for a discussion of important problems between the two countries covering the entire Pacific area.

However, the American Government, while accepting in principle the Japanese proposal, insisted that the meeting should take place after an agreement of view had been reached on fundamental and essential questions.

3. Subsequently, on September 25, the Japanese Government submitted a proposal based on the formula proposed by the American Government, taking fully into ronsideration past American claims and also incorporating Japanese views.

Repeated discussions proved of no avail in producing readily an agreement of view.

Revised Proposal

The present Cabinet, therefore, submitted a revised proposal, moderating still further the Japanese claims regarding the principal points of difficulty in the negotiation, and endeavoring strenuously to reach a settlement.

But the American Government, adhering stadfastly to its original assertions, failed to display in the slightest degree a spirit of concilation. The negotiations made no progress.

Therefore, the Japanese Government, with a view to doing its utmost for averting a crisis in Japanese-American relations, submitted on November 20 still another proposal in order to arrive at an equitable solution of the more essential and urgent questions which, simplifying its previous proposal, stipulated the following points:

(1) The governments of Japan and the United States undertake not to dispatch armed forces into any of the regions, excepting French Indo-China, in the southeastern Asia and the southern Pacific area.

Trade Cooperation

(2) Both governments shall cooperate with the view to securing the acquisition in the Netherlands East Indies of theose goods and commodities of which the two countries are in need.

(3) Both governments mutually undertake to restore commercial relations to those prevailing prior to the freezing of assets.

The Government of the United States shall supply Japan the required quantity of oil.

(4) The Government of the United States undertakes not to resort to measures and actions prejudicial to the endeavors for the restoration of general peace between Japan and China.

(5) The Japanese Government undertakes to withdraw troops now stationed in French Indo-China upon either the restoration of peace between Japan and China or the establishment of an equitable peace in the Pacific area; and it is prepared to remove the Japanese troops in the southern part of French Indo-China to the northern part upon the conclusion of the present agreement.

Attitude On China

As regards China, the Japanese Government, while expressing its readiness to accept the offer of the President of the United States to act as "introducer" of peace between Japan and China as was previously suggested, asked for an undertaking on the part of the United States to do nothing prejudicial to the restoration of Sino-Japanese peace when the two parties have commenced direct negotiations.

The American Government not only rejected the above-mentioned new proposal, but made known its intention to continue its aid to Chiang Kai-shek; and in spite of its suggestion mentioned above, withdrew the offer of the President to act as so-called "introducer" of peace between Japan and China, pleading that time was not yet ripe for it.

Finally, on November 26, in an attitude to impose upon the Japanese Government those principles it has persistently maintained, the American Government made a proposal totally ignoring Japanese claims, which is a source of profound regret to the Japanese Government.

Claims Stress On Peace

4. From the beginning of the present negotiation the Japanese Government has always maintained an attitude of fairness and moderation, and did its best to reach a settlement for which it made all possible concessions, often in spite of great difficulties.

As for the China question, which constitutes an important subject of the negotiation, the Japanese Government showed a most conciliatory attitude.

As for the principle of non-discrimination in international commerce, advocated by the American Government, the Japanese Government expressed its desire to see the said principle applied throughout the world, and declared that along with the actual practice of this principle in the world, the Japanese Government would endeavor to apply the same in the Pacific area, including China, and made it clear that Japan had no intention of excluding from China enonomic activities of third powers pursued on an equitable basis.

Furthermore, as regards the question of withdrawing troops from French Indo-China, the Japanese Government even volunteered, as mentioned above, to carry out an immediate evacuation of troops from southern French Indo-China as a measure of easing the situation.

Stresses Tokyo Spirit

It is presumed that the spirit of conciliation exhibited to the utmost degree by the Japanese Government in all these matters is fully appreciated by the American Government.

On the other hand, the American Government, always holding fast to theories in disregard of realities, and refusing to yield an inch on its impractical principals, caused undue delay in the negotiations.

It is difficult to understand this attitude of the American Government, and the Japanese Government desires to call the attention of the American Government especially to the following points:

1. The American Government advocates in the name of world peace those principles favorable to it, and urges upon the Japanese Government the acceptance thereof.

The peace of the world may be brought about only by discovering a mutually acceptable formula through recognitio nof the reality of the situation and mutual appreciation of one another's position.

Attack On Attitude

An attitude such as ignores realities and imposes one's selfish views upon others will scarcely serve the purpose of facilitating the consummation of negotiations.

Of the various principles put forward by the American Government as a basis of the Japanese-American agreement, there are some which the Japanese Government is ready to accept in principle, but in view of the world's actual condition it seems only a utopian ideal on the part of the American Government to attempt to force their immediate adoption.

Again, the proposal to conclude a multilateral non-aggreesion pact between Japan, United States, Great Britain, China, the Soviet Union, the Netherlands and Thailand, which is patterned after the old concept of collective security, is far removed from the realities of East Asia.

American Stipulation

2. The American proposal contained a stipulation which states—"both governments will agree that no agreement, which either has concludeu with any third power or powers, shall be interpreted by it in such a way as to conflict with the fundamental purpose of this agreement, the establishment and preservation of peace throughout the Pacific area."

It is presumed that the above provision has been proposed with a view to restrain Japan from fulfilling its obligations under the tripartite pact when the United States participates in the war in Europe, and, as such, it cannot be accepted by the Japanese Government.

The American Government, obsessed with its own views and opinions, may be said to be scheming for the extension of the war. While it seeks, on the one hand, to secure its rear by stabilizing the Pacific area, it is engaged, on the other hand, in aiding Great Britain and preparing to attack, in the name of self defense, Germany and Italy, two powers that are striving to establish a new order in Europe.

Such a policy is totally at variance with the many principles upon which the American Government proposes to found the stability of the Pacific area through peaceful means.

Charges Economic Pressure

3. Whereas the American Government, under the principles it rigidly upholds, objects to settle international issues throug military pressure, it is exercising in conjunction with Great Britain and other nations pressure by economic power. Recourse to such pressure as a means of dealing with international relations should be condemned as it is at times more inhumane than military pressure.

4. It is impossible not to reach the conclusion that th eAmerican Government desires to maintain and strengthen, in coalition with Great Britain and other powers, its dominant position it has hitherto occupied noto only in China but in other areas of East Asia.

It is a fact of history that the countries of East Asia for the past hundred years or more have been compelled to observe the status quo under the Anexploitation and to sacrifice themselves to the prosperity of two nations.

The Japanese Government cannot tolerate the perpetuation of such a situation, since it directly runs counter to Japan's fundamental policy to enable all nations to enjoy each its proper place in the world.

Indo-China Discussed

"The stipulation proposed by the American Government relative to French Indo-China is a good exemplification of the above-mentioned American policy.

Thus, the six countries—Japan, the United States, Great Britain, the Netherlands, China and Thailand—excepting France, should undertake among themselves to respect the territorial integrity and sovereignty of French Indo-China, and equality of treatment in trade and commerce would be tantamount to placing that territory unde rthe joint guarantee of the governments of those six countries.

Apart from the fact that such a proposal totally ignores the position of France, it is unacceptable to the Japanese Government in that such an arrangement cannot but be considered as an extension to French Indo-China of a system similar to the Nine-Power Treaty structure which is the chief factor responsible for the present predicament of East Asia.

5. All the items demanded of Japan by the American Government regarding China, such as wholesale evacuation of troops or unconditional application of the principal of non-discrimination in international commerce, ignored the actual conditions of China, and are calculated to destroy Japan's position as the stabilizing factor of East Asia.

The attitude of the American Government in demanding Japan not to support militarily, politically or economically any regime other than the regime at Chungking, disregarding thereby the existence of the Nanking Government, shatters the very basis of the present negotiation.

Feeling Toward U. S.

This demand of the American Government falling, as it does, in line with its above-mentioned refusal to cease from aiding the Chungking regime, demonstrates clearly the intention of the American Government to obstruct the restoration of normal relations between Japan and China and the return of peace to East Asia.

5. In brief, the American proposal contains certain acceptable items, such as those concerning commerce, including the conclusion of a trade agreement, mutual removal of the freezing restrictions and stabilization of yen and dollar exchange, or the abolition of extra-territorial rights in China.

On the other hand, however, the proposal in question ignores Japan's sacrifices in the four years of the China affair, menaces the empire's existence itself and disparages its honor and prestige.

Therefore, viewed in its entirety, the Japanese Government regrets that it cannot accept the proposal as a basis of negoiat.on.

Another Proposal

6. The Japanese Government, in its desire for an early conclusion of the negotiation, proposed simultaneously with the conclusion of the Japanese-American negotiation agreements to be signed with Great Britain and other interested countries.

The proposal was accepted by the American Government.

However, since the American Government has made the proposal of November 26 as a result of frequent consultation with Great Britain, Australia, the Netherlands and Chungking, and presumably by catering to the wishes of the Chungking regime in the questions of China, it must be concluded that all these countries are at one with the United States in ignoring Japan's position.

7. Obviously, it is the intention of the American Government to conspire with Great Britain and other countries to obstruct Japan's efforts toward the establishment of peace through the creation of a new order in East Asia, and especially to preserve Anglo-American rights and interests by keeping Japan and China at war.

This intention has been revealed clearly during the course of the present negotiation.

Thus, the earnest hope of the Japanese Government to adjust Japanese-American relations and to preserve and promote the peace of the Pacific through cooperation with the American Government has finally been lost.

The Japanese Government regrets to have to notify hereby the Amer. Government that in view of the attitude of the American Government it cannot but consider that it is impossible to reach an agreement through further negotiations.

believing in peace and the right of nations to live and let live, have eagerly watched the conversations between our two governments during these past months.

We have hoped for a termination of the present conflict between Japan and China. We have hoped that a peace of the Pacific could be consummated in such a way that nationalities of many diverse peoples could exist side by side without fear of invasion; the unbearable burdens of armaments could be lifted for them all, and that all peoples would resume commerce without discrimination against or in favor of any nation.

I am certain that it will be clear to your Majesty, as it is to me, that in seeking these great objectives both Japan and the United States should agree to eliminate any form of military threat. This seemed essential to the attainment of the high objectives.

Accord With Vichy

More than a year ago, your Majesty's Government concluded an agreement with the Vichy Govern-

Roosevelt's Message To Japan's Emperor

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—The White House made public tonight the following text of the message President Roosevelt sent yesterday to the Emperor of Japan:

Almost a century ago, the President of the United States addressed to the Emperor of Japan a message extending an offer of friendship of the people of the United States to the people of Japan.

That offer was accepted, and in the long period of unbroken peace and friendship which has followed, our respective nations, through the virtues of their peoples and the wisdom of their rulers, have prospered and have substantially helped humanity.

Only in situations of extraordinary importance to our two countries need I express to your Majesty messages on matters of state. I feel I should now so address you, because of the deep and far-reaching emergency which appears to be in formation.

Developments In Pacific

Developments are occurring in the Pacific area which threaten to deprive each of our nations and all humanity of the beneficial influence of the long peace between our two countries. Those developments contain tragic possibilities.

The people of the United States, ment by which five or six thousand Japanese troops were permitted to enter into northern French Indo-China for the protection of Japanese troops which were operating against China farther north.

And this spring and summer the Vichy Government permitted further Japanese military forces to enter into French southern Indo-China for the common defense of French Indo-China.

I think I am correct in saying that no attack has been made upon Indo-China, nor that any has been contemplated.

During the past few weeks it has become clear to the world that the Japanese military, naval and air forces have been sent to southern Indo-China in such large numbers as to create a reasonable doubt on the part of other nations that this continuing concentration in Indo-China is not defensive in its character.

Fear In Pacific

Because these continuing concentrations in Indo-China have reached such large proportions and because they extend now to the southeast and the southwest corners of that peninsula, it is only reasonable that the people of the Philippines, of the hundreds of islands of the East Indies, of Malaya and of Thailand itself are asking themselves whether these forces of Japan are preparing or intending to make attack in one or more of these many directions.

I am sure that your Majesty will understand that the fear of all these peoples is a legitimate fear, inasmuch as it involves their peace and their national existence. I am sure that your Majesty will understand why the people of the United States, in such large numbers, look askance at the establishment of military, naval and air bases manned and equipped so greatly as to constitute armed forces capable of measures of offense.

It is clear that a continuance of such a situation is unthinkable.

None of the peoples whom I have spoken of above can sit either indefinitely or permanently on a keg of dynamite.

Attitude Of U. S.

There is absolutely no thought on the part of the United States of invading Indo-China if every Japanese soldier or sailor were to be withdrawn therefrom.

I think we can obtain the same assurance from the governments of the East Indies, the governments of Malaya and the Government of Thailand.

I would even undertake to ask for the same assurance on the part of the Government of China.

Thus, a withdrawal of the Japanese forces from Indo-China would result in the assurance of peace throughout the whole of the South Pacific area.

I address myself to your Majesty at this moment in the fervent hope that your Majesty may, as I am doing, give thought in this definite emergency to ways of dispelling the dark clouds.

I am confident that both of us, for the sake of the peoples not only of our own great countries, but in the sake of humanity in neighboring territories, have a sacred duty to restore traditional amity and prevent further death and destruction in the world.

Japan Seen Sacrificing Planes in Hawaii Raid

4-Motored Bombers Unable to Take Off From Carrier

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP).—Japan's use of four-motored bombers in the raid on Pearl Harbor caused speculation here tonight that planes and possibly men may have been deliberately sacrificed in order to gain the element of surprise coupled with terrific striking power.

So far as is known, the ponderous four-engine craft cannot be launched from carriers.

The nearest Japanese islands to Honolulu are the Marshall Islands, a little more than 2,000 miles south and east of Hawaii. The planes could have flown from there to Pearl Harbor, but could hardly return to Marshall Islands.

The usual accepted practice is not to assign bombers to objectives as far away as half their total range. For instance, a 4,000-mile plane would not be used to bomb targets more than 1,000 or at the outside 1,500 miles away.

The reserve of one to two thousand miles is considered necessary to protect against adverse winds, deflections from course because of attack, or getting lost.

To many observers, the Japanese attack appeared to have been one of extraordinary audacity and characterized by apparent willingness to lose very valuable material in order to deliver a powerful blow at American defenses when they were taken completely by surprise.

Thus, experts reasoned, the Japanese probably were willing to risk several squadrons of long-range, four-motored bombers on the attack, knowing beforehand that while they could reach Honolulu, probably not many of them could hope to get back to the Marshall Islands. To take care of the personnel in the bombers, the Japanese may have arranged to have some of their aircraft carriers or warships somewhere beyond Honolulu, where a plane could make a crash landing at sea and the personnel could be rescued.

As to the lighter bombers and how the Japanese were able to bring airplane carriers within striking range of so powerful a fortress as Pearl Harbor, sea-war experts declared that the Japanese had the whole Pacific Ocean in which to approach the island.

Pro-Axis Radio in Shanghai Says Philippines Damaged

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—A broadcast by the pro-Axis station in Shanghai said tonight that great damage had been caused in the Philippines by a Japanese air attack. The broadcast was heard by CBS.

The broadcast said:

"Manila army and navy bases were heavily attacked by dive-bombers and bombers of the heaviest type last (Sunday) night and early this morning.

"America and Japan are now at war. Great Britain will, it is beleived, also declare war with Japan some time early today. Hawaii has already been heavily attacked by wave after wave of Japanese airplanes.

"Super dive-bombers came in at terrific speed and, before anyone could realize what was happening, bombs were dropped and heavy damage was caused. Panic immediately followed. It was feared that many were killed.

"Heavy casualties in the Philippines also were caused last night and early this morning. Manila army and navy bases were heavily attacked by dive-bombers and bombers of the heaviest type. Terrific destruction followed."

MANILA, Dec. 8 (Monday) (AP).—United States Army bombers and pursuit planes roared into the air and headed northward at dawn today soon after word reached Manila of the outbeak of hostilities between Japan and the United States.

This was the only sign of war here at 5:25 a. m. (4:25 p. m., EST ,Sunday

On being advised of the attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the U. S. forces in the Far East, placed his entire command on the alert.

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Asiatic Fleet, declared that all steps had been taken to meet the situation.

For the past 10 days Admiral Hart has kept the fleet out of Manila Bay, patrolling the Philippines from the north near the Japanese island of Formosa to Burma on the south.

Britain's deefnse forces at Hongkong and Singapore and Dutch forces at Batavia also have been at battle stations in anticipation of Japanese attack.

Gen. MacArthur appealed to the populace to maintain self control. His statement was aimed at preventing panic and a general rush to the countryside over the narrow roads needed for defense forces.

Invaders Meet Vigorous Anti-Aircraft Fire—British Forces Engage Nipponese In Battle

By C. Yates McDaniel

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Monday, Dec. 8—The Japanese landed in northern Malaya, 300 miles north of Singapore, today and bombed this great British naval stronghold, causing small loss of life among civilians and property damage.

The Singapore raiders met a vigorous anti-aircraft fire when the attack came at 4.10 A. M.

The landing in the North was made shortly after 1 A. M., a first attempt having been repulsed with small arms fire. British forces were engaged.

Latest reports said the Japanese were filtering inland toward the Kotabahru airdrome.

The first landing attempt was made at Kotabahru, on the northern tip of Malaya near the Thailand border.

After being repulsed, Japanese were successful at Sabak, thirteen miles southward.

They then proceeded overland toward Kotabahru, fighting with British air and land forces as they went.

DEC 8 1941

Two bombs fell in the center of Singapore and a number of others were heard in various parts of the island.

Gunfire was reported heard off Mersing, ninety miles northeast of Singapore on the east coast of Malaya.

A brief official announcement said the Japanese had landed in north Malaya and that "the invaders are being engaged."

The attack upon Singapore came as a mighty British force of men, guns, ships and planes stood ready for Prime Minister Churchill's anticipated declaration of war against Japan today.

Japanese Seize U. S. Gunboat In Sea-Land Shanghai Attack

Invaders Also Shell British Naval Vessel And Sink It Off International Settlement

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Shanghai, Monday, Dec. 8—The Japanese army and navy surrounded the International Settlement at 4 A. M. today and served notice on the commander of the United States gunboat Wake that war had been declared.

At about the same time the British gunboat Peterel exploded oif the Settlement waterfront and drew Japanese artillery fire, after which the vessel burned furiously and sank.

[Editor's Note—A New York Times dispatch reports that chaos reigns in Shanghai.]

Americans Cautioned

The United States consulate urged Americans to observe law and order and not to move about the city. The Japanese consulate requested the settlement administration to carry on.

The Japanse army and navy proclaimed occupation of the settlement with aminimum of restrictions upon civil life and upon Americans and Britons as long as they preserved order.

Banks were reiquested to close for the time being. The settlement was open to outsiders at certain barriers.

The United States gunboat Wake, lying not far from the Peterel, suffered no immediate harm. (A pro-Axis radio broadcast from Shanghai said she was captured by the Japanese.

Japanese Cross Creek

Japanese naval and army patrols surged across the Soochew creek bridges into the main section of the international area, from which they had been held in recent years by United States and British defense forces. The British army units were withdrawn early in the European war.

All hands are believed to have gone down with the 316-ton Petrel, whose normal complement was fifty-five men. Furious artillery and machine-gun fire marked her last fight before she disappeared under the muddy currents of the Whangpoo.

The American-owned Shanghai Power and Light Company, in the down-river area, which the Japanese have held since 1931, was seized.

Leaflets Dropped

Japanese planes dropped leaflets announcing seizure of the settlement but urging the people to go about their business and remain calm.

Many members of the diminished American community, although shocked, prepared to go to their offices and await developments.

Shortly after seizure of the entire water front of the settlement a portion of the Japanese army and navy patrols were withdrawn and something approaching normal traffic was resumed.

The Japanese have held the northern part of the International Settlement, the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo districts, since 1937. They have dominated the French concession since soon after the fall of France.

Of the International Settlement only that portion south of Soochow creek, patrolled by American marines, remained outside their control, which included the purely Chinese areas of greater Shanghai surrounding the international core.

HONG KONG ATTACKED.

Los Angeles, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A Tokyo radio station, in a broadcast picked up by NBC's listening post tonight, stated that Japan had attacked Hong Kong, China and the Malay States. No details were announced.

Says 63 American Soldiers Disarmed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7 (AP) — A broadcast from Tokyo said tonight that 63 American soldiers had been disarmed at the International Settlement in Tientsin, China.

The broadcast, picked up by the NBC listening post here, declared that Japanese expeditionary forces had been landed at strategic points in the Malay states. No details were given.

Hong Kong has been bombed for a second time, it said.

Arrest By Japanese Of Briton Protested

Employe Of Tobacco Firm Taken In Custody To Peiping

Peiping, Dec. 7 (AP)—British consular officials protested to Japanese authorities today against the arrest of L. E. Tipton, a British subject employed by a British-American tobacco company in Tientsin.

The reason for the arrest of Tipton, who was brought to Peiping late yesterday, was not disclosed.

DECLARATION BY BRITAIN IS EXPECTED SOON

Parliament Called Into Special Session At 3 P. M. Today

Immediate Action Against Japan Likely To Be Decided On

DEC 8 1941

By William Humphreys

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Dec. 8—The British Parliament was called into special session for 3 P. M. today (9 A. M., E.S.T.) to hear a Government statement which everyone agreed would be a declaration of war against Japan, and which was expected to coincide with similar action by the United States.

Japan already had declared war on Great Britain and the United States last night as Prime Minister Churchill conferred with United States Ambassador John G. Winant, and as London awaited fulfillment of Churchill's now unneeded pledge to declare war on Japan "within the hour" if Japan attacked the United States.

Belief was expressed in British quarters here that the Japanese already had attacked "some British possessions" as well as the Pacific bastions of the United States.

Japs Ready To Leave

The Japanese Embassy, which had been inaccessible by telephone for hours, late last night completed arrangements to quit Britain immediately, including the burning of its secret documents.

Japanese Ambassador Kamimura was expected to be called to the Foreign Office today to receive his passports. The Tokyo Government previously had ordered the Ambassador home for consultation.

The Ambassador said he expected all the 500-odd Japanese in Britain to be interned immediately "at least in principle."

Japanese Third Secretary Matsui said the news of war "comes as a surprise, but not as a shock."

Statement Today

The only documents from Prime Minister Churchill's official residence said both the House of Commons and the House of Lords would meet at 3 P. M. and a statement will be made in both houses."

This, it was expected on every hand, would be Britain's declaration of war as a partner of the United States.

Churchill and Winant were closeted in conference quickly after President Roosevelt's announcement that Japanese planes had attacked Hawaii and the Philippines.

The Prime Minister and Ambassador were said reliably to be out of London, but it was assumed that both were in closest communication with Washington.

Excitement swept this capital. In a strained voice, a British Broadcasting Corporation announcer broke into a Sunday evening program to tell the news.

Amazement Expressed

Officials of the Ministry of Information said their first knowledge of the Washington announcement came from Washington. They expressed amazement.

There was an instant flurry as spokesmen made contact with their departments, but all official sources declined to make any immediate comment.

Hotel lobbies filled quickly with amazed people asking, "Is it really true?"

They crowded around chattering news tickers but learned no details to fill in the bare announcements.

Homeowners with radios became neighborhood hosts, their parlors thronged with excited men, women and children waiting for further word.

"All Necessary Preparation"

The BBC announcer told them:

"The British Empire, the United States, China, Russia, the Netherlands East Indies and the other peoples in the Far East do not make the mistake of underestimating Japan's strength, but they are aware of Japan. Achilles' heel.

"In every way these peoples have made all necessary preparation."

The gravity with which Britain views the announcements was shown immediately in stories which started flowing over British news agency tickers.

"U. S. Now In It"

"Everyone now realizes that the United States is in the war, which becomes a worldwide conflict," declared Reuters under a Washington date line.

The press association's diplomatic correspondent started off a survey story:

"The close alliance-in-arms which existed between Britain and Japan in the last war makes it difficult to realize that the Far Eastern empire is now a potential enemy."

NEW ZEALAND DECLARES WAR

India Follows Suit Against Finland, Hungary And Rumania

Wellington, N. Z., Dec. 7 (AP)—New Zealand, joining Britain and other members of the empire, formally declared war today on Finland, Hungary and Rumania.

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—Reuters reported from New Delhi today that the Governor General issued a proclamation declaring India at war with Finland, Hungary and Rumania following the lead of Britain and other parts of her empire.

Canadian Air Force Flyers Told to Report

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The Western Air Command sent out a call today to all Royal Canadian Air Force personnel attached to that command to report immediately. It was announced at the same time that all leave for airmen under its jurisdiction had been cancelled.

CANADA AT WAR WITH JAPAN

Ottawa, Dec. 7 (AP).—Canada declared war on Japan tonight. Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King made the announcement after a long emergency meeting of the Cabinet.

The declaration has been drawn up for formal submission to the King, to take effect as from today.

(Columbia Broadcasting Systems correspondent in Sydney reported early Monday morning that Australia had declared war on Japan. "Carefully elaborated plans for many months were immediately put into operation," he said. "The average Australian is now facing the present situation with relief and enthusiasm.")

American Authorities Report They Are "Ready For Anything"

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Balboa, Canal Zone, Dec. 7—The Panama Canal Zone, all-important link for United States naval operations in the Atlantic and the Pacific, was placed on a 'wartime footing tonight for all-out protection.

The army and navy were placed on full alert, the zone was blacked out and Japanese were rounded up by police in neighboring Panama.

United States naval and military authorities said they were "ready for anything."

Aircraft Patrol Skies

Aircraft steadily patrolled the skies over the canal. All sailors and officers were understood to have returned to their ships, and soldiers who were on week-end leaves in Panama rushed back to their posts.

The Panama Cabinet met in emergency session, and Panama police, in addition to beginning a round-up of Japanese, guarded the Japanese, German and Italian legations.

The Cabinet was considering interment of all A is elements.

Streets Almost Deserted

The streets of Panama, usually gay over the week-end, were dark and almost deserted. Army posts canceled Sunday night movies.

Heavy patrols of military police were on duty.

Caribbean defense headquarters had an increased guard, and all civilians were barred.

Panama police announced they already had detained about one hundred Japanese residents of the republic.

It was understood the Japanese would be turned over to the United State Quarantine Station. United States Army trucks and personnel

Solidarity With U. S. Declared In Mexico

Mexico City, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Foreign Office declared Mexico's solidarity with the United States tonight in the conflict against Japan.

The Government immediately took defense precautions, directing the military commanders of Lower California and the Pacific naval commander to establish a twenty-four-hour patrol of the coast.

Costa Rica Declares War Upon Japanese

DEC 8 1941

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 7 (AP).—Costa Rica declared war on Japan tonight.

Before the declaration the government ordered the arrest of Japanese engaged in cotton and rice growing along the coast near Punta Arenas. The Japanese fishing boat Amano was seized on suspicion of espionage.

Foreign Minister Alberto Echandi declared that this Central American neighbor of Panama would follow the United States "all along the line."

Declares Cuba Is Ready To Cooperate With U. S.

President Batista Says Republic Will Help This Country In Every Way Possible

Havana, Dec. 7 (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista declared today in connection with Pacific hostilities that Cuba was ready to cooperate with the United States "in every way possible."

"Cuba's position," Batista said upon being informed of the Japanese attacks, "already has been well wefined.

"This means that we are ready to cooperate with the United States in every way possible."

The President announced recently that Cuba would be the first nation to go to war at the side of the United States.

Reached by telephone at his plantation at Geiba del Agua, Batista said:

"This aggression has been no surprise to me. The official position of Cuba in this case already has been defined, just as the people of Cuba by their manifestations and statements have expressed themselves. This sentiment is visible and hearable.

"All this means that we are ready to cooperate with the United States in every way possible."

The President's words were generally interpreted to mean that Cuba would be quick to follow the United States if it declared war on Japan.

Dutch Indies Declare War on Japan, Mobilize

Raid Precautions Ordered; Declaration Also Issued by Government in Exile

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Dec. 8 (Monday) (AP).—The Netherlands East Indies declared war on Japan today and immediately proclaimed a state of "danger of air attack."

The declaration called upon people of the islands for an all-out war against the Japanese empire. The Aneta (Dutch) news agency said all Japanese living in the Netherlands East Indies had been interned.

The Governor General of the East Indies, A. W. L. Tjarda van Starkenborgh Stachouwer, told the population that Japan had attacked the United States and Great Britain while diplomatic negotiations were still in progress, and declared the Netherlands government "accepts the challenge and takes up arms against the Japanese empire."

Following this declaration, Lieutenant General H. Ter Poorten, Commander in Chief of the N. E. I. Army, ordered mobilization of the army and sent forces into the outer possessions to guard against attacs. The army air force was mobilized last week.

Air-raid precautions, prepared long in advance, were put into effect. There was no sign of nervousness observable in the islands, Aneta said. Official circles said the population accepted the war with calm and determination.

Declares State of War Exists

LONDON, Dec. 8 (Monday) (AP).—The Dutch government in exile considers itself in a state of war with Japan, according to an authorized statement issued early today.

The Dutch statement said: "In view of Japan's aggression against two powers with whom the Netherlands maintain particularly close relations, aggression directly threatening vital Netherlands interests, the government of the kingdom considers a state of war exists between the Netherlands and the Japanese empire."

BERLIN SCORES FDR.

Berlin, Monday, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Germany's first official reaction to the war in the Pacific was given early this morning in a statement saying "the warmonger Roosevelt has reached his aim."

The statement referred to what was described as President Roosevelt's "blind hatred against the Reich of Adolf Hitler."

The second part of the communique, devoted to comment, said:

"The war-incendiarist Roosevelt finally has reached his aim by also setting afire the Far East."

Say U. S. Battleship Sunk

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP) — The Berlin radio tonight broadcast a Tokyo announcement that the U. S. battleship West Virginia had been sunk and the battleship Oklahoma set afire in an engagement between the Japanese and the U. S. and British navies. The broadcast was heard by CBS.

The Berlin broadcast said that the battle was "still going on" and that altogether three U. S. ships were hit. The third was not named.

The broadcast said, in part:

"From British reports just received it can be learned that the Japanese forces already have bombed with great success the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippine and the Island of Wake. Great material damage was caused.

"Near Honolulu oil tankers were set afire. One transport of unknown nationality was sunk at the Philippines. According to report from Manila dispatch as received in New York Japanese forces have also attacked Singapore.

"The imperial headquarters at Tokyo reports just now that a naval battle between Japanese, British and North American naval forces is going on in the Western Pacific.

"During this naval battle, which is still going on, between the Japanese navy and the British and American naval forces three American ships have been hit, according to a U.S.A. report. The U.S.A. battleship West Virginia has been sunk and the U.S.A. battleship Oklahoma has been set afire by shelling."

Tatuta Maru Believed Midway Between Yokohamr And Los Angeles

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Japanese liner Tatuta Maru, with several hundred Americans aboard bound for southern California, was believed to be midway between Yokohama and Los Angeles today.

This would place her about north of the Hawaiian Islands, unless the Japanese secretly changed her course.

The big liner was en route to the United States to exchange American citizens, evacuated from the Orient, for Japanese nationals in this country.

Anzac Clipper Safe In Hawaii Following Flight From Frisco

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Anzac Clipper, with twenty-eight persons aboard, landed safely at an unnamed airport in the Hawaiian Islands this afternoon. It left San Francisco last night.

Pan American Airways said that at the present time it was unable to announce the position of the ship, which was carrying a crew of eleven and a passenger list of seventeen, including the Burmese Premier U Saw, and his aide, U Tin Tut. Word of its landing, however, came from reliable sources.

The clipper was more than halfway to Honolulu when news arrived that the islands were under attack, and it was deemed too late to turn back.

The ship's radio was kept silent in the danger zone.

So far it was learned the landing was without incident.

Japanese Consulate Staffs Burn Papers

New Orleans Crowd Held Back By Police—San Francisco Firemen Summoned

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (AP)—Within sight of an angry crowd of 2,000 persons held back by police, Japanese attaches of the Japanese consulate here today hastily burned papers and books in the backyard until police stopped the action and confiscated some partially burned material.

The crowd booed and hissed as the Japanese appeared, but it was held in check by fifty policemen. Walter Saulsbury, consulate chauffeur, later said the consulate attaches had been burning papers for several days.

Papers Set Wall Afire

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP)—The burning of papers and documents brought the Fire Department to the Japanese consulate today. Fire Captain L. J. Dwyer said consular attaches put too much paper into a fireplace at one time, and that intense heat caused a wall to break out in flames.

Text of Announcement

The text of the White House announcement said:

"At 8:30 p. m., the Cabinet met with the President in the White House. Shortly after 9 legislative leaders from both branches of the Congress, and both parties, arrived and participated in a joint meeting with the President and the Cabinet.

"The President reviewed for them all information received up to that time and gave them also other information not yet verified and which at the time had to be classified as rumor. The President told them of doubtless very heavy losses sustained by the navy and also large losses sustained by the army in the Island of Oahu.

Request Approved

"The Legislative leaders approved the request of the President to address a joint session of the House and Senate on Monday at 12:30 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. It should be emphasized that the message to the Congress has not yet been written and its tenor will of course, depend on further information received between 11 o'clock tonight and noon tomorrow. Further news is coming in all the time.

"During the conference the President received a report from General MacArthur that enemy planes were over Central Luzon in the Philippines about 8 p. m., Washington time; that a bombing attack has been made on Davao at the southern end of the southern island of Mindanoa, and that another attack has been made on Camp John Hayes at Baguio in the northern mountains of Luzon. So far no essential damage had been reported."

Connally Reveals Action

Emerging from the front door of the White House as a meeting of the President's Cabinet ended, Senator Connally, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee said:

"The President will address a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p. m., tomorrow. That is all I can say."

As he made the statement to newspapermen, Secretary of War Stimson left the White House and Senator Hiram Johnson (R-Calif) departed a moment later.

Cabinet members and congressional leaders had met with Mr. Roosevelt to discuss the ominous implications of Japan's declaration of war upon the United States and Great Britain.

Covered Situation

Speaker Sam Rayburn said that the President did not tell the conference what he was going to say in tomorrow's message. And when he was asked whether the Chief Executive would propose a declaration of war he replied solemnly:

"I don't know."

Rayburn said that the Chief Executive, cabinet and congressional leaders went over the entire situation and that the President had remarked that some rumors were going about which were unconfirmed.

What those rumors were, the speaker did not say. A declaration of war, Rayburn asserted, would be one thing on which there would be congressional unity.

PRESIDENT MAPS ACTION WITH LEADERS

Message to be Delivered at 12:30 P. M. As War Fervor Grows; Context To Depend on Developments; Nation Placed on Full Wartime Basis

DEC 8 1941

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—President Roosevelt will address a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p. m. today.

This was announced by the White House and by Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex), late tonight following a momentous conference of Cabinet members and congressional leaders in the President's study.

The announcement, following Japan's war moves, came amid predictions that Congress would formally declare war at once and that America would stand united.

(Mr. Roosevelt's address to Congress will be broadcast over WILM and WDEL, the radio stations' programs starting at 12 o'clock noon, a half hour before the President is scheduled to

Republican Leader Joseph Martin remarked:

"This is a serious moment. We were not talking about politics. Of course there will be none."

The Senate Republican Leader Charles McNary of Oregon declined to speculate whether the President would request a declaration of war but told reporters:

"The Republicans will all go along with what is done, in my opinion."

Atty.-Gen. Francis Biddle made the first mention of a congressional resolution, but carefully refrained from hinting whether it might be a war resolution. A resolution is the parliamentary title for certain forms of legislative action.

Besieged by reporters as he left the White House conference, Biddle was asked if there was any advantage in having Congress recognize the existence of a state of war. He replied:

"I would rather not discuss that because it gets into the resolution tomorrow."

Will Get More Powers

In response to other questions, Biddle said that "vital powers" would be conferred upon the President by a congressional declaration of war which he would not otherwise have, but the Justice Department head declined to enumerate them.

Biddle told newsmen no action had been taken with reference to Japanese nationals or other aliens in this country but he indicated that that question might be discussed at a later conference which he planned to attend immediately at the Justice Department.

Although Biddle did not say who would be involved at the meeting immediately at the Justice Department, he told Vice-President Wallace, as the latter entered his car, that he would follow him immediately. Wallace heads the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board which has had jurisdiction over the economic blockade of Japan.

Crowds Around White House

The glistening black limousines of the Cabinet officers had trouble negotiating a traffic snarl and entering the White House gate. Cars were driving bumper to bumper in Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the Executive Mansion and crowds of spectators pressed their noses up to the iron fence around the grounds.

Secret service men in augmented numbers and extra police from the Washington force were on duty at the White House.

But President Roosevelt hardly waited for the Japanese declaration. As soon as he heard of the bombing he ordered the Army and Navy to carry out previously prepared and highly secret plans for the defense of the country.

Army airmen engaged Japanese fighting planes over Honolulu. In the city below them, the White House said, a heavy loss of life had been inflicted, together with extensive damage to property. .

DEC 8 1941

On Wartime Basis

Regardless of this, there was no doubt that the country was at war. The capital went onto a full wartime basis within an hour after the attacks were reported. In addition to the President's order to the Army and Navy, Secretary Stimson ordered the mobilization of all military personnel. All officers were ordered to report in uniform.

Provost marshal guards, wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles were put on duty about the War Department and other important centers.

And, from the War Department came an announcement to the press that all information regarding the "strength, location, designation, composition and movement of U. S. troops or army transports outside the continental limits of the United States are designated by the War Department as secret and will be so considered under the law."

The meaning was plain: Any publication of such information would be followed by prosecution.

The capital was amazed and surprised at the day's tragically dramatic developments. At most a Japanese attack on Thailand had been foreseen. That the Japs had attacked the distant Pearl Harbor stronghold and Honolulu as well, seemed incredible.

But the capital was calm about it, too. A small, subdued crowd gathered in front of the White House, looking for all the world like any Sunday accumulation of sightseers. To all outward appearances, that was the only indication that war finally had engulfed the nation.

Apparently at almost the exact time of the Pacific bombings, the Japanese embassy called the State Department for an appointment which carried the futile peace negotiations of the last few months to a fitful and flickering conclusion.

Tokyo's two ambassadors here, Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, were seeking an appointment. They arrived 20 minutes late for it and Secretary of State Hull kept them waiting for 15 more before receiving them.

Envoys Mum

Gone was the blithe, breezy aplomb, which had characterized Their numerous previous visits to the department. There was a tight-lipped, almost embarrased smile for newsmen, and an absolute refusal to answer questions. Kurusu paced the diplomatic reception room, Nomura sat stolidly upon a leather divan, only a frequently tapping foot betraying his perturbation.

Finally they were admitted to the secretary's office. To him Nomura handed Japan's reply to this country's formula for peace in the Pacific. Gravely, Hull read it. Then the Secretary of State turned toward the Japanese ambassador and in a "tone of the greatest indignation," as the department later described it, told him he had never seen a document so "crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions." Wordlessly the Japanese left.

It was apparent immediately that the nation was uniting for the struggle ahead, forgetting the bitter battle of words between those who had opposed the administration's foreign policy and its supporters.

After calling tonight's Cabinet meeting, President Roosevelt went into consultation with his secretaries of War and Navy, and the Army's chief of staff, General George C. Marshall.

Those invited from Congress were Vice-President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Representative McCormack (D-Mass), the Democratic floor leader, Chairman Bloom of the House foreign affairs committee, Representative Martin (R-Mass), the Republican floor leader; Representative Eaton (R-NJ), a member of the foreign affairs committee; Senator McNary (R-Ore), the Republican leader, Senator Austin (R-Vt), the assistant Republican leader; Chairman Connally (D-Tex), of the Senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Barkley (D-Ky), the majority floor leader. In the event of Barkley's inability to attend, Senator Hill (D-Ala) the assistant leader, was designated to take his place.

Declaration Of War Favored By Wheeler

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Billings, Mont., Dec. 7—Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) tonight advocated an immediate declaration of war against Japan and united support of the Administration in Washington.

"In view of the vicious and uncalled-for attack upon the United States by the Japanese Government, Congress must declare war upon that Government," said the isolationist-bloc leader in an interview.

"The Japanese have chosen war. We must now exert our every energy not only to win but to give the Japanese such a whipping that they will not want war again. I had sincerely hoped that we could avoid war both in the Atlantic and the Pacific. War seldom, if ever, settles anything and it is inconceivable to me that the Japanese Government would be foolish enough to want war with this country.

"Everyone, regardless of party affiliations must back up the Administration to the end that we win. This applies to labor, capital and all other classes."

Wheeler, cutting short a Montana visit, will return at once to Washington by train.

"The only thing now is to do our best to lick hell out of them," Senator Wheeler said.

"They must have gone crazy," he said, referring to Japanese military leaders.

He said the attack was a complete surprise, and that so far as he knew no one in Washington had expected it.

Most Congressmen Seem To Favor A Declaration

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Japan's attack on American outposts today brought immediate expressions of indignation from members of Congress, and most Congressmen freely predicted that Congress would adopt a declaration of war without hesitation if President Roosevelt asked for one.

Senator Nye (Rep., N. D.), prominent isolationist, addressing an America First Committee meeting at Pittsburgh, said:

"If Congress were to declare war, I'm sure that every America Firster would be cooperating and supporting the Government in the winning of that war in every way possible."

Such vigorous critics and opponents of the Administration's foreign policy as Representative Fish (Rep., N. Y.) called for unity.

Fish said he would make an address in the House tomorrow asking the American people "to present a united front in support of the President of the United States, the commander in chief of the armed forces."

George Urges Declaration

Senator George (Dem., Ga.), member and former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said an open declaration of war "will give us greater freedom of action."

He said the attack might draw the United States directly into the European war, "but not necessarily." Russian collaboration with the United States in fighting Japan, he said, was a possible means of entry by this country into the European conflict.

He called attention to the "vast distances in the Pacific" and warned that "it may take two or three years to fight this war to the end."

Senator Walsh (Dem., Mass.) issued the following statement:

"The unexpected and unprovoked attacks upon United States territory and ships and the formal declaration of Japan leaves Congress no choice but to take speedy and decisive measures to defend our country. We must promptly meet the challenge with all our resources and all our courage and place our faith in God to protect us in this hour of national peril.

"It is too late now to ponder whether a different international policy would have averted war."

May Joins In Appeal

Chairman May (Dem., Ky.), of the House Military Affairs Committee, said he favored immediate declaration of war, and described the attack as "treachey personified."

There were calls, too, for the nation to keep calm.

Reperesentative McCormack (Dem., Mass.), the House majority leader, said all Americans must unite against the attack but should "remain calm but determined and follow the leadership of President Roosevelt."

Senator Van Nuys (Dem., Ind.) called the situation "distressing and crucial" and added: 'Now is the time to keep our heads."

Chairman Reynolds (Dem., N. C.), of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, said: "I am one hundred per cent. against war. I want to know all about what has happened before I say anything about declaring war."

Puts Some Blame On Britain

He added that he blamed the attack both on Japan's Axis commitments and the desire of Great Britain to "get us to protect their $3,000,000,000 investments in China and to relieve forces that can be sent elsewhere to fight."

Senator Thomas (Dem, Utah), commented: "It (the Japanese attack) is an act of desperate men and will result as such acts generally do—in those men's own destruction. The Japanese Government has plainly gone mad."

Other comments:

Senator Guffey (Dem., Pa.): "I am disappointed, but not surprised, and I favor an immediate declaration of war."

DEC 8 1941

Representative Eberharter (Dem., Pa.). "This country cannot permit any nation to attack our possessions or threaten our sovereignty. There is only one thing for us to do and that is to go all out and try to destroy Japan's navy completely as quickly as possible."

Glass Reserves Comment

Senator Glass (Dem., Va.): "I have no comment. I'll communicate my own position when the Senate meets."

Chairman Bloom (Dem., N. Y.): of the House Foreign Affairs Committee: "We are now facing facts rather than possibilities and the United States has never flinched in the face of facts. . . . The army and navy will take over the situation with a united people behind them under their commander in chief."

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.): "It seems that the Japanese have called the play, and now they'll have to take it. The decision is out of our hands. The Japanese are committing hari-kari."

Senator Johnson (Dem., Col.): "If the report is true, and there is no satisfactory explanation for this dastardly act, war is inevitable."

Byrd Wants Action

Senator Byrd (Dem., Va.)—"The only action America can take now is to declare war on Japan which I hope will be by unanimous vote of Congress. All our resources can then be mobilized to wipe Japan off the map."

Senator Lodge (Rep., Mass.) said: "The time for united action has come. The time for words has passed." Discussing the Japanese situation, he said that nation "had committed an utterly unapproved and intolerable act of aggression."

Senator Capper (Rep., Kan.), at his home in Topeka, said it appeared to him "Japanese militarists have gone crazy. I will vote for a declaration of war if President Roosevelt asks for it."

Representative Thomason (Dem., Texas), member of the Military Affairs Committee, said he favored an immediate declaration of war on Japan. Thomason, in Gainesville, Texas, said he would fly to Washington tonight.

America First Group For All-Out Hostilities Against The Japanese

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP)—The national headquarters of the America First Committee tonight issued the following statement:

"Today the military forces of Japan have without warning attacked this nation and the Japanese Government has formally declared war upon us. This must be followed by a similar declaration on the part of the United States and by all-out hostilities.

"The America First committee urges all those who have subscribed to its principles to give their support to the war effort of this country until the conflict with Japan is brought to a succesful conclusion. In this war the America First Committee pledges its aid to the President as commander in chief of the armed forces of the United States."

A committee spokesman said the statement was issued after consultation with Gen. Robert E. Wood national chairman who was in New York.

America First Group Will Back Congress In War Declaration

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The America First Committee "of course will support the war," if Congress declares a state of war, Gen. Robert Wood, of Chica, chairman of the committee, said tonight.

He was en route to Boston and said he would call a meeting of the executive committee of the America First group when he returns to Chicago Tuesday.

'NO CHOICE' SAYS LANDON

Wires Roosevelt to Command His Services for Victory

DEC 8 1941

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 7 (AP)—Alf M. Landon, 1936 opponent of President Roosevelt, telegraphed the President tonight "there is imperative need for courageous, unified action by the American people.

"The Japanese attack leaves no choice. Nothing must be permitted to interrupt our victory over the foreign foe. Please command me in any way I can be of service."

"Japs attack United States; Hawaii, Philippines bombed by airmen."

Hundreds cheered and comments heard were:

"We're into it, boys."

"We didn't start it."

In newsreel theaters programs were interrupted and after a hush cheering broke out.

Meanwhile attaches in the Japanese Consulate on Fifth Avenue worked feverishly piling records into suitcases and began carting them away. A smell of burning papers indicated that some records had been destroyed.

All Foreign Shipping Canceled In New York

Coast Guard Doubles Patrols Around Docks And Navy Yard Against Sabotage

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—All foreign shipping in this harbor was canceled tonight as the Coast Guard doubled its patrols against possible sabotage.

Coast Guard patrols were thrown around the navy yard and around docks containing planes and war material.

An order from Washington canceled customs clearance for ships bound to foreign ports but this was considered temporary.

Communists Give Pledge Of Devoted Loyalty

National Committee Declares "Unprovoked Act Of War" Is By Entire Axis

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The national committee of the Communist party today issued a statement declaring that the party "pledges its loyalty, its devoted labor and last drop of blood in support of our country in this greatest of all the crises that ever threatened its existence."

Stating that "this is an unprovoked act of war, not of Japan alone, but of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis war alliance," the committee added:

"In all the factories and work shops of America the voice of freedom must be heard in the quickened pace of machines producing implements of war to save our nation and to increase our aid to the Soviet Union, Great Britain, China and all nations who are resisting the Hitler-Japanese aggression. All disputes in industry must now even more urgently than before be solved without interruptions of production."

News of Attack Draws Throngs To Times Square

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—News of the Japanese attack on outlying United States possessions caused crowds to gather in Times Square today and at 4 p. m. the crowd was rapidly increasing.

A newspaper rushed into the district said in screaming headlines:

Warning Given By LaGuardia

He Tells N. Y. Not to Feel Entirely Secure

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—Declaring the activities of the Japanese government were being "masterminded by the thugs and gangsters who control the Nazi government," Mayor F. H. La Guardia tonight warned New Yorkers "not to feel entirely secure because they happen to be on the Atlantic coast."

La Guardia, national director of civilian defense, went on the air over station WNYC after news of the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor. He called on the residents of the metropolitan area to remain calm and to be assured that their government had taken all precautions for their safety.

He ordered all Japanese subjects to remain in their homes until their status had been determined by the federal government.

After an emergency meeting in city hall, the mayor also announced that defense plans, previously formulated, had been put into effect by the police and fire departments. "Personally," he remarked, "The attack is not surprising. I have been anticipating it for a long time.

"I want to assure those who smeared and cheered and placed obstacles in the way of necessary defense preparations that we will protect them now. I expect cooperation and there will be no fooling.

"As U. S. director of civilian defense, I have notified all regional directors to communicate with governors and see that all necessary measures are taken."

Added Draft Call Viewed As Certain

Summoning Enlisted Reserves Seen First Step; Registered Men 28-35 Liable For Duty

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Immediate and vast expansion of the nation's armed forces, now that hostilities have been thrust upon the United States, was regarded in military circles tonight as certain.

It was believed that one of the first steps would be to call all enlisted reserves to active duty. This would mean a return to Army posts for those Selective Service trainees who recently were discharged from active duty because of being past the age of 28 or for other reasons.

Army officials at Fort Lewis, Wash., were reported already to have issued calls to such men.

Officials at the War Department here said, however, that no general order calling in enlisted reserves had been issued. They understood such a call would have to come from the War Department.

With a declaration of war by the United States, men in the age bracket between 28 and 35 and registered under the draft act would be liable for immediate call to training.

These men were given a deferred classification by congressional act a few months ago. The legislation, however, specified that this deferment would cease automatically if the nation went to war.

Leaves Still Question.

Before the Japanese attack, plans were to release more than a third of the Army's 1,600,000 officers and men for the Christmas holidays. They were to be given leave periods ranging from 10 days to a month.

Many of these men may be given their scheduled Christmas holdiay leaves, the War Department indicated tonight, regardless of the sudden emergency.

Brigadier General Alexander D. Surles, chief of the public relations branch, told reporters that "as far as is known Christmas leaves will not be cancelled, except in the case of certain designated units" which he did not identify.

Other officials said that in the meantime local commanders who had granted holiday leaves were authorized to rescind them without reference to the War Department. Dispatches indicated such action was taken promptly at various posts.

Local commanders were said to have authority also to withhold leaves not yet granted.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, said it would take the House Military Committee "only an hour or two" tomorrow to approve legislation to remove the present prohibition against use of the Army's National Guard and selectees outside the Western Hemisphere.

Army News Chief Warns U. S. Press

'We Are at War, All Irresponsibility Stops,' Says Gen. Surles, But Will 'Do My Best'

Washington, Dec. 7. — (AP.) — Brigadier General Alexander D. Surles, director of public relations for the War Department, told reporters tonight that "now we are at war," and, as far as publication of military information is concerned, "all irresponsibility stops."

The Army's news chief said he would "do my best to get the news out as rapidly as I can."

"When I cannot it will be due to the fact that publication would be harmful to the country and might destroy the lives of many people and much property."

DEC 8 1941

Surles appealed to the press representatives to cooperate with an order of Secretary of War Stimson issued a few hours earlier which read:

"All information relative to the strength, location, designation, composition, and movement of U. S. troops or Army transports outside the continental limits of the United States are designated by the War Department as secret and will be so considered under the law."

Espionage Act Cited.

General Surles told questioners that the law refererd to was paragraph 32 of the 1917 Espionage Act. That section reads as follows:

"Subsequent A—Unlawfully disclosing information affecting national defense. Whoever, with intent or reason to believe that it is to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation, communicates, delivers or transmits, or attempts to, or aids, or induces another to, communicate, deliver, or transmit, to any foreign government, or to any faction or party or military or naval force within a foreign country, whether recognized or unrecognized by the United States, or to any representative, officer, agent, employee, subject, or citizen thereof, either directly or indirectly, any document, writing, code book, signal book, sketch, photograph, photograph negative, blueprint, plan, map, model, note, instrument, appliance, or information relating to the national defense, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than 20 years.

"Provided, that whoever shall violate the provisions of sub-section (A) of this section in time of war shall be punished by death or imprisonment for not more than 30 years; and (B) whoever, in time of war, with intent that the same shall be communicated to the enemy, shall collect, record, publish, or communicate, or attempt to elicit any information with respect to the movement, numbers, description, condition, or disposition of any of the armed forces, ships, aircraft, or water materials of the United States, or with respect to the plans or conduct or supposed plans or conduct of any naval or military operations, or with respect to any works or measures undertaken for or connected with, or intended for the fortification or defense of any place, or any other information relating to the public defense, which might be useful to the enemy, shall be punished by death or by imprisonment for not more than 30 years."

Sees It up to Court.

Surles was asked whether the first penalties applying to peace time or the second applying to war time would be invoked and he replied he could not say but assumed that determination would be up to the court trying the person.

To a question, he said he believed persons responsible for publication of information designated as secret would be liable to the legal penalties.

The Navy Department meanwhile announced a censorship had been placed on all outgoing cablegrams and radio messages from the United States and its outlying possessions.

Navy Leaps at Japanese With Crushing Censorship

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Navy Department announced tonight that a censorship had been placed on all outgoing cablegrams and radio messages from the United States and its outlying possessions.

DEC 8 1941

No other information was disclosed about the censorship. The three-line announcement said:

"The Navy Department announced tonight that censorship on all outgoing cablegrams and radio messages from the United States and its outlying possessions had been placed in effect."

Shortly before, the War Department had issued this memorandum to the press:

"All information relative to strength, location, designation, composition and movement of U. S. troops or army transports outside the continental limits of the United States is designated by the War Department as secret and will be so considered under the law."

Presumably the reference to "the law" meant that any violators would be subject to the punitive provisions of the espionage act.

(At New York the Associated Press was advised by communications agencies that the navy had invoked a censorship on Manila and Honolulu, prohibiting messages "outbound" from both Pacific points.)

NAVY'S PACIFIC CHIEF TOUGH CUSTOMER

DEC 8 1941

Admiral Kimmel Described As "Two-Fisted Naval Officer"

Hand-Picked With Hart For Present Service By Roosevelt

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—The American fleet in the Pacific is under command of a two-fisted naval officer with the reputation o fbeing one of the toughest in the service.

He is Admiral Husband Edward Kimmel, a native of Henderson, Ky., who assumed duty as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet and also of the entire United States Fleet last February 1. He is 59 years old.

Ranking with Admiral Kimmel but subject to his direction in naval operations is Admiral Thomas C. Hart, who became commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet on July 25, 1939. Hart, 64, is a native of Genesee county, Michigan, and presently makes his home at Sharon, Conn.

In European Waters

Both men saw service in European waters during the World War and were hand-picked for their present assignments by President Roosevelt with full knowledge that the day might come when the safety and sucess of United States naval warfare would depend on their leadership.

Kimmel's appointment to the top fleet assignment was concurrent with the reorganization of the United States Navy last February 1 to supply three independent striking forces, one in the Atlantic and two in the Pacific. Admiral Ernest J. King was given the Atlantic command under the general directio nof Admiral Kimmel.

American And Japanese Armed Forces Compared

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—By generally accepted gauges, the United States possesses a navy a third stronger than Japan's, a far greater air force and a comparable army.

United States

Disregarding immensely superior American resources, manpower and wealth, the lineup by the latest available data is:

SEAPOWER—344 warships in commission, including 17 battleships, seven aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 170 destroyers and 113 submarines.

AIR—Army and navy each credited with more than 4,000 planes, the army's force including 2,500 first-line combat craft.

LAND—Approximately 1,600,000 officers and men under arms, including 33 divisions.

Japan

Sea Power—Two hundred and sixty-two warships, including 12 battleships, 8 carriers, 46 cruisers, 125 destroyers and 71 submarines.

Air—About 3,600 planes of all types, including naval, comprising what American military men have termed the "1939 model air force."

Land—Three million or more trained men, but rated incapable of arming more than 1,800,000 and 66 divisions with modern weapons.

Hawaiian Defenses

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

The Hawaiian Islands stand at the crossroads of the Pacific, approximately one third of the way across the vast ocean separating the United States and Japan.

In these islands the United States has constructed a great naval fortress, centered in the naval base and drydock at Pearl Harbor on the picturesque island of Oahu. This harbor, sixty feet deep and some ten square miles in area, can accommodate the entire United States fleet.

Major Key To East

The strategic location of Hawaii and the great defense works centered there make the Territory a major key to war in the Far East.

Honolulu, the principal city of Hawaii, lies a dot in the ocean approximately 2,000 nautical miles from California, 3,500 from Japan, almost 5,000 from the Philippines and the naval base at Hongkong.

To the average American Hawaii may mean hula dancers, ukuleles and pineapples; to the army and navy and air force it is one of their major outposts, dotted with guns, sinewed with the most modern machinery for all types of warfare.

In combined area the islands, although only slightly larger than Connecticut, are the only major group in the North Pacific. Most of the population of 423,000 are Orientals, slightly more than a third of them of Japanese stock. One seventh are Polynesian, one eighth Filipinos, one fifteenth Chinese.

Pearl Harbor lies on the southern shore of Oahu. A narrow channel provides the only entrance from the sea and makes it one of the world's best natural havens. Ships in the harbor cannot be seen from the open water.

Army Strength

Thousands of soldiers, their numbers increasing steadily recently, are housed in the Schofield barracks on the center of Oahu. There also is on the island a big army air field to which a mass flight of twenty-one bombing planes was made secretly from California earlier this year.

The Hawaiian Islands politically are a Territory of the United States, ceded to the United States by the Republic of Hawaii in 1898 and made a Territory by the Congress of 1900.

Guam On Main Line

By the Associated Press

Midway, Wake and Guam are little island stepping stones across the western Pacific between Hawaii and the Philippines, in peacetime an air mail and passenger route and in war a strategic communications line for the U. S. Navy.

Just a month ago persons reaching Honolulu from the three islands disclosed that all American women and children were being removed from the defense outposts because of the critical Far Eastern situation. Most were members of families of employees of communications companies.

Their Rediscovery

Wake and Midway assumed new importance with their "rediscovery" in 1935 and their use as landing stages for transpacific air travel, and the Navy's development of them has been since then. Guam, on the other hand, has been a naval station for a number of years.

First out of Hawaii lies Midway, 1,323 miles west and slightly north of Honolulu, a small group of about 28 square miles and with a population of only a few score people. Here a $1,000,000 project was undertaken to prepare the lagoon for surface craft of tonnage under cruiser-size, making it a secondary base.

Wake, a tiny spot of only one square mile land area, lies 1,191 miles farther west and slightly south—or 2,200 miles airline west of Hawaii. This group of islands altogether is about 4½ miles long and 1½ miles wide. Here, as on Midway, the only population is the operation personnel.

Heavy Fortifications

About 1,500 miles farther west lies Guam, exactly half way between Wake and the Philippines. Guam is the largest of the Mariana Islands, having an area of 225 square miles.

For several years there was a clamor for heavy fortification of Guam, which lies close to the Japanese empire, only 1,500 miles south of Tokio. Some opponents of the move held the island was indefensible. Finally this spring Congress passed and the President signed a bill providing for a vast expansion of naval establishments on the island.

Guam was ceded to the U. S. by Spain in the treaty of Paris in 1898. Wake was annexed by American forces on their way to Manila in that year. Midway was claimed for the United States by a U. S. naval officer, Lieut. J. M. Brooke, in 1859.

Break in U. S.-Japanese Friendship, Half Century Old, Dates Back to 1931

Drive Into Manchuria Pictured as Turning Point; Relations Between Nations for Last 10 Years Only Coldly Polite

By Glenn Babb

Associated Press Cable Staff

Japanese-American friendship lasted a half century and began to break up in 1931.

Took Pride in Rise

Eighty-eight years ago America introduced Japan to the family of nations; in the decades that followed Americans encouraged, fostered, took an almost paternal pride in Japan's spectacular rise to world power. In the main, two or three generations of Japanese responded with gratitude, admiration and efforts to emulate the American way of life.

But in Japan's very advance were elements of discord; she became a great power and embarked on a vast imperial program which made even the wide Pacific Ocean too small to contain both Japanese ambitions and America's conception of her own safety.

Small frictions which arose some 35 years ago developed slowly until 1931, when Japan plunged into Manchuria and embarked on a program of expansion and conquest. Seen in retrospect it seems clear now that that was the turning point in American-Japanese relations, that clash in faraway Mukden the night of September 18, 1931; even the turning point of modern history. From there Japan went on to the first successful defiance of the existing world order, showing the way to Mussolini and Hitler.

For 10 years there have been only coldly polite relations between Washington and Tokyo. Formal diplomatic ties barely concealed growing hostility. The pace of the movement toward collision has steadily increased: in the past year it has become an avalanche.

One Phase in Crisis

Japanese-American troubles have become one phase in civilization's greatest crisis. Today the two nations find themselves in opposing camps in the alignment of two world orders which no less an authority than Adolf Hitler says cannot exist side by side.

Japan has aligned herself with Germany and Italy and proclaimed a new order for Europe, Africa and Asia. The United States has decided that her interests lie with the nations fighting to prevent establishment of that order, to which Japan's contributions have been the conquest of Manchuria, the overrunning of Eastern China, the subjection of French Indo-China, the declaration of her purpose to dominate all "greater East Asia."

So the United States has taken her place alongside Britain, China, Russia, the Netherlands and the other Governments, mostly in exile, which are fighting the Axis. Of these China has been fighting Japan more than four years and Britain, Russia and the Netherlands all have built up formidable Far Eastern forces for the sole purpose of meeting the Japanese threat. To all of these the United States has been giving aid for months or years, in steadily increasing measure.

What are the issues over which this country and the great empire of the Orient have come to a parting of the ways? The United States wants Japan to abandon her expansion program, which, at least in its southward extension toward the East Indies, endangers the safety of the Philippines and threatens the sources of materials vital to the defense and well-being of the United States and the routes by which they reach America. She wants Japan to withdraw her troops from Indo-China and China, where American interests and citizens have suffered hurt for nearly a decade at Japanese hands. She wants Japan to give pledges and sureties against further aggression. She wants the markets of the East kept open.

Obstructs Destiny

From Japan's point of view the United States obstructs the fulfillment of what many Japanese consider their country's rightful destiny, to be the dominant power of all the East, to control far-flung sources of the materials needed for her industries and dominate the hundreds of millions of Orientals who make up perhaps the greatest potential markets in the world. Control in East Asia, the Japanese say, is a matter of life and death to them, while to Americans it can be only a matter of national prestige or minor economic interest.

More specifically in the later phases of this crisis the Japanese have demanded an end to the economic strangulation and military encirclement which they say the United States and her associates have invoked against Japan and noninterference with the settlement she hopes to impose on China.

Washington has held that the economic and military measures taken to curb Japan cannot be lifted until Japan mends her ways and has said that there can be no compromise which would leave China at Japan's mercy. And in the existing crisis, with the United States pledged to the defeat of the Hitler world order, Americans have held there could be no real accord with Japan as long as she remained a member of the Axis.

Thus events moved to a point where a break could be avoided only if one party changed utterly its fundamental policies. Two opposed conceptions of what should constitute the basis of international relations, of the world order, were at stake.

Racial pride and national prestige are elements not to be ignored; they are as important at the cold facts of economics or strategy involved, perhaps more so. The Japanese are a proud people, jealous of their dignity, quick to resent racial slurs, holding to an ancient code which rated death in battle or by suicide preferable to dishonor.

No Bar to Japanese

Men experienced in Far Eastern matters say that a realization that they cannot win a war with the United States is not enough to keep the Japanese from going to war. It will not stop them to point out that this course would be national suicide. They, or at least the stiff-necked soldiers who seem to dominate their national courses, are quite capable of facing that.

The Japanese belief that their national prestige and pride of race has received affronts from America is indisputably a factor in this crisis. They resent bitterly our exclusion laws, which they say class them with other races they consider their inferiors. Many Japanese contend that the whole course of history since the World War might have been different had the white nations admitted them as full equals.

Here is the road Japan and America have traveled to their present collision:

In 1853 Japan, by her own choice, had been shut off from the world for 2½ centuries. Her seclusion was ended then by a flotilla of warships from the young and growing United States, which, having spanned the continent, was looking out from her newly won Pacific Coast for new markets in the Orient. Commodore Matthew Perry, U.S.N., reopened Japan to the world.

Japan's first treaty with a modern western power was concluded with United States Consul Townsend Harris in 1858. For half a century thereafter American advisers, teachers and missionaries aided Japan's heroic effort to come abreast of the western world.

Japan subscribed in 1899 to the doctrine of the open door in China, enunciated by John Hay, United States Secretary of State. A year later Japanese and American troops (along with British, German, Russian and others) fought side by side in the rescue of the legations at Peking, besieged by the Chinese Boxers. The great majority of Americans gave their sympathy to Japan when in 1904 she challenged the Russian colossus. Japanese war loans were floated in the United States and in 1905 the intervention of President Theodore Roosevelt brought about an advantageous peace for Japanese at Portsmouth, N. H.

Brought on Friction

But the migration of tens of thousands of Japanese to America's Pacific Coast brought on a period of friction, marked by anti-Japanese agitation and legislation in the Western States. In 1911 a gentlemen's agreement whereby Japan undertook to halt the tide of immigration provided a temporary remedy.

The World War brought new frictions, although at the end the United States and Japan were associated together against the central powers. But Europe's preoccupations encouraged Japanese efforts to tighten her control on China. Her famous 21 demands of May, 1915, brought sharp condemnation from Washington. In 1918 Japan and the United States (with Britain and France) sent expeditions into Siberia but Japan went farther than her allies approved and more trouble arose.

One result of the World War was to embark the United States on a vast warship building program. Japan sought to match it. A naval race followed which endangered the peace of the Pacific. The Harding administration summoned the naval powers to Washington and a truce was effected in 1922 in the treaties of Washington which restricted capital ship construction and pledged the powers to keep hands off China.

This was the high water mark of Japan's co-operation with the United States and with the western powers' efforts to establish collective security. But only two years later the United States Congress passed, over the veto of President Coolidge and the protest of Secretary of State Hughes, a law barring the immigration of Japanese as aliens ineligible for citizenship. This ended the "gentlemen's agreement." The Japanese were bitterly resentful.

But this came midway in a decade of liberal government in Japan and as late as 1930 the Japanese still were ready to co-operate in keeping the peace. They signed the new naval treaty of London, although not without a bitter struggle at home. It was their last act of support for the post Versailles peace structure.

Fired First Shot

The agitation in Japan against co-operation with the Western World took on the proportions of a revolution of which the army fired the first shot the night of September 18, 1931, at Mukden.

The military campaign that followed ended Chinese rule in Manchuria but it also ended liberal, civilian rule in Japan. It was a military-Fascist rising against the existing order not only in Japan but in the entire world. The United States government, especially Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, was quick to grasp its significance. Other powers were not. American efforts to stem the tide then set in flow came to nothing more substantial than the Stimson doctrine of nonrecognition of Japan's military gains.

Now, 10 years later, Japan, flushed with conquests extending nearly to the equator and the mid-Asian plateau, confronts a determined United States still standing on that doctrine of nonrecognition. Events have thrown Japan into the arms of the Axis, ranged the United States with the other half of the world.

Japan went on to complete conquest of Manchuria, moved into North China, launched a real war against China proper in 1937 and overran nearly all her eastern provinces, joined the Axis, took advantage of Hitler's triumphs to march into Indo-China and reach out for the Dutch East Indies. In the course of all this she harmed American citizens and their interests in hundreds of instances, most spectacular of which was the sinking of the gunboat Panay on the Yangtze River above Nanking December 13, 1937.

She allied herself with Germany and Italy in the treaty of Berlin, September 27, 1940, especially aimed at the United States. She reaffirmed this tie by renewing her signature of the anti-Comintern pact at Berlin November 25, 1941.

The American government, for its part, denounced on July 26, 1939, its treaty of friendship and commerce with Japan. In the summer of 1941, when Japan was strengthening her grasp on French Indo-China, Washington went a step further. President Roosevelt froze all Japanese credits in this country.

Trade Halted

Britain and her dominions and the Dutch Indies followed suit. The result was almost an entire cessation of Japanese foreign trade. The flow of oil and scrap metal from the United States and oil from the Indies which had fed her war machine was shut off. Economically she was isolated, with her Axis allies unable to help. The economic measures were supplemented by military moves of vast scope which in effect ringed Japan on all sides with hostile forces—in China, Russia, British Malaya, the Dutch Indies and the Philippines and Hawaii.

Russia's entry into the war presented Tokyo with a new threat. While Hitler was plowing through the Russian armies this looked more like an opportunity than a menace, but as winter closed down with Russia still unbeaten the Japanese hopes which rode on Hitler's banners faded.

The economic pinch, the steadily growing power of the military forces gathering in the East, caused her to cry out against "strangulation." A civilian government, headed by Prince Fumimaro Konoye, resigned in September, admitting its inability to cope with the vast forces loosed by the world cataclysm. Specifically, it was unable to improve relations with the United States. A military government, headed by Gen. Hideki Tojo, took over.

As a "final effort" to prevent a clash the Tojo government sent a veteran diplomat, Saburo Kurusu, by plane to Washington. Kurusu found the abyss between the nations too wide to be bridged by any concessions either would make. The negotiations failed.

Eighty-eight years of peaceful United States-Japanese relations were at an end.

U. S.-Japanese Relations Over 88-Year Period

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

The following outstanding events mark the eighty-eight years' history of United States-Japanese relations:

1853—Commodore Perry, U. S. N., opens Japan to foreign intercourse.

1858—United States Consul Townsend Harris concludes Western World's first treaty of amity and commerce with Japan.

1894-5—Japan conquers China, seized Formosa, begins building an overseas empire.

1898—United States defeats Spain, acquires the Philippines, annexes Hawaii, becomes a Pacific Ocean power.

1899—Japan subscribes to the American doctrine of the open door in China.

1900—United States and Japan cooperate (with other powers) in ending Boxer rising in China.

1904-5—Americans generally sympathize with Japan in her war against Russia; Japanese war loans floated in United States; President Roosevelt brings about the peace treaty of Portsmouth.

1905-1911—Japanese immigration becomes a friction point; exclusion agitation arises on the Pacific Coast; Japan in "gentlemen's agreement" undertakes to keep her people out of the United States.

1914—Japan enters war on Allied side; seizes Tsingtao in China and German Pacific islands.

1915—United States condemns Japan's twenty-one demands on China.

1917-19—United States becomes associate of Japan in the World War; both powers send expeditions to Siberia, where friction arises.

1918-1922—United States and Japan engage in great naval race.

1919—At Versailles peace conference Japan wins over United States on Shantung issue; loses on racial equality.

1922—Naval race ended by treaties of Washington, in which powers also pledge hands off China.

1924—United States Congress passes Asiatic Exclusion Act; Japan deeply offended.

1930—Japan, adhering to London naval treaty, agrees to extend naval truce, but this proves her last major act of cooperation in keeping the peace.

1931-32—Japan invades Manchuria; United States proclaims nonrecognition of fruits of conquest; this proves turning point of United States-Japanese relations, even of modern history.

1933—Japan quits League of Nations; turns back on Occident's peace-keeping efforts.

1935—Japan denounces the Washington naval treaty. Naval race resumed with its termination at end of 1936.

1936—Japan forms her first Axis tie, the anti-Comintern pact with Nazi Germany.

1937—Japan makes war on China; United States interests harmed; the Panay sunk.

1939—European war begins, opens new fields for Japanese expansion; United States denounces commerce treaty with Japan.

1940—Hitler crushes France; Japan moves into French Indo-China, proclaims her "greater East Asia" program. Japan becomes ally of the Axis with the treaty of Berlin, aimed at the United States.

1941—United States extends lend-lease aid to China and Russia; Japan tightens grip on Indo-China; United States, with Britain and Netherlands, freezes Japanese credits, halts war exports to Japan; Japan feels pinch, cries out against economic strangulation and military encirclement, sends Saburo Kurusu to Washington in an ostensible "final effort" to prevent a break; negotiations cloak widespread preparations for war on United States.

December 4, 1941—The Japanese navy strikes.

REDS CLAIM BREAK IN GERMAN FRONT

Report Having Pierced Line In Moscow Area In Two Places

Menace To Capital From South, However, Said To Remain Serious

By Alfred Wall

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 7—The Moscow radio asserted tonight that the Russians had broken the German line at two points on the Moscow front.

In one break-through, north of Moscow, two German divisions were said to have been completely wiped out.

In the other, near Kalinin, ninety miles northwest of the Russian capital, a village was said to have been recaptured.

At some places on the front, a Kuibyshev military spokesman was quoted as saying, tank-led German advance forces broke into Russian lines, gaining six to eight miles.

Enemy Frustrated

A statement that "all the enemy's attempts to develop an offensive on the central front were frustrated" was taken, however, to indicate that no such gains were made by the Germans at approaches to the Soviet capital.

The menace to Moscow from the south admittedly remained serious, nevertheless, and the Russians said this was the situation there:

"The enemy now is thrusting to the northeast (past Tula) in an attempt to cut off Moscow by a vast outflanking movement from the south. At the same time he is launching attacks north of Tula with the aim of encircling the town—but here, too, the Germans are unsuccessful. . . ."

Tula Holds Out

A Russian broadcast asserted that "in spite of large concentrations of tanks and infantry the Germans failed to capture Tula and advance to any considerable extent to the northeast."

Red army men who, the Germans themselves admitted, will die but not surrender not only were holding Moscow today against the worst artillery beating the Germans could muster but were also counter-attacking.

In the south, the Soviets continued to push the Germans back along the Sea of Azov from the approaches to the Caucasus oil deposits.

Russians Unshaken

The toughness of the Russians' defense of their capital was best described by the Berlin radio itself which said the most frightful artillery pounding the Germans could bring to bear on the Russians left men and positions unshaken.

A German broadcast heard here said:

"Our artillery aimed tons of steel for days (at the Russian). Yet no artillery can possibly smash the numerous systems of trenches and many dug-in tanks, which form powerful pillbox posts from every one of which the Russians maintain a terrific fire.

"Only the utmost brutality and no consideration whatever for human life can enable us to attack. We can only attack and attack again and take every trench and every position by fierce man-to-man fighting.

Russians Praised By Foe

"It is unbelievable what our men are enduring. These Russians do not surrender."

Except for Russian-held Tula, one hundred miles south of Moscow, which was in danger of being surrounded, war dispatches here gave the Soviets the upper hand here on virtually every active sector of the almost completely snowbound Russian front.

The Kuibyshev radio commentator said the Russians had advanced from fifty to seventy-five miles since opening the offensive which rooted the Germans out of Rostov, gateway city of the Caucasus.

Other Soviet dispatches told of Russian cavalrymen cutting down Germans seeking to escape westward from Taganrog, forty miles west of Rostov, while Red dive bombers were making the most of traffic-jammed conditions along the roads by which the Germans were seeking to move the bulk of their advance troops back to a new line along the Mins river.

Von Brauchitsch At Front

One report, broadcast from Kuibyshev, said Field Marshal General Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army, had flown to the southern front to help Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist pull his broken army together for a stand against the Red Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's steadily advancing forces.

Some reports said forces under General Remizov had broken through the defenses of Taganrog itself and hard-riding Don, Kuban and Terek Cossacks were outflanking Nazi troopers retreating to Mariupol, more than sixty miles west of Taganrog.

BBC said the Russian air force had brought down 82 German planes, destroyed 147 German tanks and killed thousands of Nazi soldiers on this front during the last twelve days.

Mozhaisk Hard Hit

From various reports on the German offensive against Moscow the Germans appeared to be hitting hardest around Mozhaisk, fifty-seven miles west of the capital, and at Tula. A Kuibyshev report broadcast by the BBC, however, said the Russians had stopped the Germans along the Mozhaisk highway and driven back a big German thrust, killing thousands of retreating Nazis. The same report said the Russian attacks also were driving the Germans back on the northwest sector of the Moscow front.

At Tula, the Germans were acknowledged by BBC to be driving ahead on the road leading to Moscow despite the deep snow and bad weather. The British radio quoted Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, as saying the German drive in this region "may have been slowed down somewhat but it has not yet been stopped."

Nazis Hard Pressed

In the sector around Klin, fifty miles northwest of Moscow, Russian dispatches said the Germans were trying to advance along the Leningrad-Moscow road upon the capital, but reported they were hard pressed at various points by the Russians.

Constant fighting was reported in Volokolamsk area, sixty-five miles northwest of Moscow.

On the frozen Leningrad front British sources reported Russian counter-attacks continuing without mention of gains for either side.

Around Tikhavin, 110 miles southeast of Leningrad, however, the British radio said the Russians in counter-attacks almost had succeeded in encircling the German defenders of that city.

some Russian attacks at undesignated points were thrown back.

Food Moved Up

Dispatches pictured the Germans moving hundreds of tons of foodstuffs along the upper Volga river to feed the Moscow attackers, 150,000 strong in one sector alone. One report told of a group of engineers fighting for four days against ice floes and snowstorms to bring supply-laden barges through to waiting troops.

The high command said Russian smashes against entrenched Leningrad besiegers had been thrown back, while German siege guns rained shells on the city, particularly the north docks and machine tool factories.

On the southern tip of the long fighting line three Soviet attempts to land troops on the Crimean coast near captured Kerch were reported in German dispatches. These said three Russian speedboats approached German positions last night, but were driven off. Two later attempts to effect landings similarly were frustrated, it was said.

Driven To Cover

Central front dispatches described the German soldiers taking refuge from the icy winds in "intermediate camps" constructed between the advance lines and rear quarters. One such camp was said to cover a square mile of forest, with dugouts sunk into the earth, each dugout equipped to shelter four men. The snow blanket gave them natural protection against sky patrols.

The purpose of these intermediate camps is to back up the front, keeping reserve troops in readiness for quick action where they may be needed.

Thus, it was explained, every soldier will spend some of the winter encamped and the rest of the time either at the front or at a rear base.

War At Sea

At sea the high command reported a British motor torpedo boat sunk and another damaged in an English Channel fight with German mine sweepers.

A German submarine was credited with hits on a destroyer, tanker and freighter when it attacked a British Mediterranean convoy laden with reinforcements and supplies to besieged Tobruk.

Battle For Moscow Halted By Weather, Nazis Indicate

Both Sides Virtually Paralyzed By Cold, Berlin Dispatches Hint—Troops Forced To Take Shelter

Berlin, Dec. 7—Sub-zero weather virtually paralyzed both armies on the Moscow front today, German war reports indicated.

Extremely reticent, the German high command passed in silence both the Moscow front, where the heaviest Nazi push was reported under way yesterday, and the Rostov front, where the Russians were on the offensive.

The Germans claimed local successes in the Donets river basin, and said

Moscow, Leningrad, Rostov In Two Weeks, Reported Nazis' Goal

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Reports received by the Associated Press from Europe tonight said the German army was preparing an effort to take both Moscow and Leningrad and recapture Rostov within two weeks in a move linked with the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

These reports said that the Germans would try to take the two big Russian cities, long invested, "at any price."

The reports seemed substantiated by comment in the Axis-aligned Hungarian press in July that Japan would enter the war when the fall of Moscow either was accomplished or definitely in sight.

SOVIET ARMY WILL FIGHT ON, LITVINOFF SAYS

To Continue Stout Resistance Against Nazis, New Envoy Asserts

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—Maxim Litvinoff, the new Russian Ambassador, arrived in Washington today to assume an important part in troubled world affairs, and assured the American people that the Red army would continue its stout resistance against the Nazi invasion.

Looking worn after a month of travel, but affable as always, the diplomat landed at the Washington National Airport with his English-born wife at his side, to be greeted by officials of the embassy, their wives and dtheir children and a group attired in Russian military uniforms.

Bring Huge Bouquets

The embassy wives and children bore huge bouquets of roses, snapdragons and chrysanthemums, which they thrust upon Mr. and Mrs. Litvinoff as they stood smiling on the plane ramp.

Then the Ambassador, wearing a battered felt hat and a rusty dark blue overcoat, made a brief statement.

"I am very happy to be once more in the Capital of the remarkable country the United States of America," he said. "My first visit here was of great importance. But still more important is my arrival now at a moment when the destiny of all mankind is being settled.

Assures American People

"I know of the great interest and sympathy with which the American people are following the battle lines on the Eastern front, and I assure the American people that the Red army will continue the fight through fortune and misfortune with the same tenacity and firmness they have already shown."

The State Department sent George T. Summerlin, chief of its division of protocol, to the airport to greet the Ambassador.

Sir Anthony Rumbold, second secretary, represented the British Embassy. Joseph T. Davies, the former American Ambassador to Russia, also was present. The Litvinoffs lunched later at the Davies home.

Negotiated For Recognition

The Ambassador's statement recalled his first visit here in 1933 for negotiations which led to the American recognition of Soviet Russia. He was then, and for years thereafter, Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union. In that post he was a foremost advocate of collective security under the League of Nations.

He was ousted shortly before the Russo-German pact which preceded the outbreak of the war, and was recalled from political obscurity a month ago to assume his diplomatic task here. He succeeds Constantine Oumansky as the Soviet representative here.

Army of Poles In Russia Will Be Ready Soon

Sikorski Says Big Force Will Be Created for Part in Offensive After Jan. 1

DEC 8 1941

KUYBYSHEV, Dec. 6 (Delayed) (AP).—General Wladislaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish government in exile, declared today that Polish soldiers, equipped by Russia, Great Britain and the United States, would be ready to take part in an offensive after Jan. 1.

Sikorski came here after two talks in Moscow with Premier Josef V. Stalin, which resulted in the signing of a mutual aid pact between the Polish and Russian governments, the first accord of its type in Russian-Polish history. He said that Poland and Russia had agreed to create a Polish Army in Russia "several times" larger than the present two divisions.

Polish civilians and soldiers wil be moved to camps in the south, Sikorski said. The care of the sick, the aged and children also was discussed and the Premier said that unity of views prevailed on all points.

The Russian-Polish pact, Sikorski quoted Stalin as saying, will be broadcast in forty languages. The Polish Premier saw Stalin twice—for a two-and-one-half-hour talk on the first visit and a four-and-one-half-hour reception and dinner on the second.

Italians Reported Slain by Greeks

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Soviet Information Bureau, in a supplement to the regular communique broadcast, today reported "numerous" Italians were killed in fighting Greek guerillas near the Italian-occupied Grecian cities of Monitsa and Phlorina.

Twelve Italian soldiers and two officers were reported killed when the guerillas attacked Konitsa.

The communique also said Italians suffered heavy losses in other large engagements near Phlorina.

A small Italian ship was said to have been captured and sunk by guerillas who killed the crew.

Posters Plague Berlin

[By the Associated Press]

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 6 (Delayed)—A traveler of semi-diplomatic standing who just arrived in Turkey from Germany said today that Berlin each night was plastered with anti-Nazi posters which the police always tore down before daybreak.

He brought along a copy of a newspaper, Roto Fahne, which he said was being published and circulated secretly by Communists, presumably in Berlin.

CZECHS' SILENCE SPEAKS VOLUMES

Summary Executions Have Their Effect — Political Discussions Forbidden

People Apparently Fitting Themselves Into Reich's Wartime Economy

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

[Special Dispatch to The Sun]

Prague, Dec. 7—A curtain of silence has fallen on the German protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

Gestapo Leader Heydrich's summary executions of rebels have had their effect; the Czech people have relapsed into silence so far as discussion of their political status is concerned.

Here's a sign which caught my eye in a restaurant in the small town of Caslaw, where a party of foreign correspondents stopped:

"Political discussions are forbidden by police."

Everything Rationed

Those few words speak volumes.

The Czechs have been demilitarized and stripped of the right to conduct any foreign policy whatever. They seem to have settled down to attending their business and fitting themselves into Germany's wartime economy.

As in the Reich, everything is rationed, and every Czech has his food, textile, gasoline, soap and other ration cards. German ration cards are accepted in hotels and restaurants here but not in the stores.

Jews Wear Star Of David

Here Jews wear the Star of David with the word "Jude."

Occasionally before Czech barracks—and they're few and far between—one sees a soldier on guard. But he's armed.

The Czechs are polite to the Germans, and the people as a whole seem to accept German rule as inevitable and try to make the best of it.

Rumanian Chief Replies To British Declaration

War Action "Has No Basis," Marshal Antonescu Asserts

DEC 8 1941

Bucharest, Dec. 7 (AP)—Marshal Ion Antonescu declared in a mesage to his people today that Britain's declaration of war on Rumania "has no basis," and added that Rumania accepted the challenge "in the firm belief that she is serving not only national self-preservation in her fight against Communism, but also civilization."

"For centuries," the chief of state asserted, "Britain has not experienced the tragedy and humiliation of foreign occupation.

"For 2,000 years, not only in the course of centuries, but in the course of one and the same century, we have stepped from battle to battle, from occupation to occupation, from humiliation to humiliation, from tragedy to tragedy.

"For centuries Britain has fought to conquer. We fought to defend ourselves."

Finland's Note to Britain

By The Associated Press.

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 7—The Finnish Foreign Office last night made public the text of its note to Britain, transmitted through the United States, as follows:

The Finnish Government has received on Nov. 28, 1941, through the Minister of the United States in Helsinki a communication to the effect that unless by Dec. 5 the Finnish Government cease military operations and withdraw from all active participation in hostilities His Britannic Majesty's Government will have no choice but to declare the existence of a state of war between the two countries.

In reply to the previous communication of the British Government received Aug. 22 the Finnish Government showed that Finland's military operations are defensive warfare dictated by a vital consideration of her own relating to her existence and security. With reference to this definition of their attitude and to the memorandum they handed the Government of the United States Nov. 11, with which the British Government is doubtless acquainted, the Finnish Government repeat their statement that the struggle Finland is waging has no other aim than safeguarding the existence and security of the Finnish nation which have been threatened with total destruction.

The Finnish people possess a sense of reality and are aware of their limitations and do not strive any further in their pursuit of the war than is essentially demanded by their own aims.

On this basis there is a cause in the present situation to establish that the Finnish Army is not far from the achievement of its strategic aims, namely: the liberation of parts of Finland's State territory lost under terms of the Peace of Moscow and rendering harmless areas from where the enemy has been preparing to destroy Finland.

The Finnish Government find it difficult to conceive that there is anything in their attitude which could give the British Government cause to declare and extend a state of war between the two countries. It would be to Finland's deep regret if that were to happen.

Britain Rounds Up Enemies

Manchester Bomber Called Best Of All

British Craft Declared Better Than Any Of U. S. Or German

DEC 8 1941

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—Britain's Manchester bomber is better than anything produced in the United States or Germany, Lieut. Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, Minister of Aircraft Production, told R. A. F. cadets today.

He had praise, too, for the Spitfire fighter, which, he said, is so good it will continue in production until the end of the war.

Britain's newest fighters, he added, travel at better than 400 miles an hour.

Hamburg Paper Publishes Casualty List For Attack Of Last Month

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Hamburger Fremdenblatt published today the names of sixty-three persons it said were killed in a British air raid on Hamburg the night of November 30.

The British announced on December 1 they had dropped 150 tons of bombs on Hamburg during the preceding night, and the German high command acknowledged that there had been a number of casualties, but gave no figures.

Nazis Report British Boat Sunk

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (AP).—The high command reported today that one British motor torpedo boat had been sunk and another damaged in an English Channel fight with German mine-sweepers. A German submarine was credited with hits on a destroyer, tanker and freighter when it attacked a British Mediterranean convoy laden with reinforcements and supplies for besieged Tobruk.

TANK BATTLE TEST RENEWED IN LIBYA

Pitched Fight May Be Make-Or-Break Point In African War

Empire Forces Believed To Be Meeting With "Some Success"

By Edward Kennedy

DEC 8 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 7—The bulk of Germany's remaining tank forces in Libya have been standing face to face in a pitched battle with British tanks since noon Saturday, perhaps the make-or-break test in the desert war of armored armies, the British reported today.

A communique from British general headquarters said the outcome still was in the balance but that advices from the battle scene north of Bir El Gobi "indicated that our armored forces have met with some success."

Despite this battle, which some British observers regarded as potentially decisive in the campaign, there was no indication that Britain's stalled westward drive again was in high gear and the communique once more dealt largely with mopping-up operations which are said to be steadily grinding down Axis strength in eastern Libya.

Fierce Battle Waged

The tank battle was the hub of a fiercely contended battlefield and a series of satellite clashes swirled around its edges.

Forty-eight tanks, mostly Italian machines of the Fascist Ariete—Battering Ram—Division, were said to have been destroyed in the last three days apart from the heavy fighting in the main battle.

The arena now has shifted due south of Tobruk, in the area between El Adem and Bir El Gobi, and British headquarters said unopposed patrols southeast of the fortress had penetrated several miles south of Ed Duda.

British sources said this evidently meant that the corridor which joined the main imperial armies with the Tobruk garrison had been cleared of Axis forces. They forecast that contact would be reestablished soon.

Withdrawal Tactics

German Gen. Erwin Rommel, they said, apparently sliced off that connection to draw his own armored forces west of the line from Rezegh to Bir El Gobi which is believed to be held by the British.

Four miles east of Bir El Gobi, the communique said, South African troops forced an Axis column to withdraw, scattered its one hundred vehicles and knocked out one of the two escort tanks of the land convoy.

An R. A. F. communique said British, South African and Free French air forces had lost twelve planes in widespread actions in support of ground troops, independent raids on Axis positions, attacks on Mediterranean shipping and another bombardment of Naples.

It said direct hits were scored on one group of tanks and other bombs fell among tank carriers onto which tanks were being loaded, causing considerable damage.

Tank carriers are big, ramp-equipped trucks used to hurry disabled tanks to rear repair shops or rush them forward for action, saving them time and gasoline.

Rome Reports British Throwing In Reserves

Rome, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Italian high command reported today that the British were throwing strong new forces into the fighting between El Adem and El Gobi in the Libyan desert, but declared that Axis troops were beating off repeated attacks and were holding firm.

The daily communique also disclosed that the British Mediterranean fleet had gone into action off the North African coast, bombarding Axis positions west of Tobruk.

The Italians asserted, however, that their torpedo-carrying planes had attacked the warships and had scored hits on two—one of which was believed to have sunk.

No change was reported in the Salum battle sector on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

Twenty-two British planes were reported shot down over the North African battlefront yesterday—fourteen by Italian fighters and eight by the Germans. The Italians acknowledged that six of their own planes were missing.

VOICE LOST FIGHTING FOR FREE FRENCH

DEC 8 1941

Bridgewater Youth Veteran of War; Father to Send Funds for Return

JERUSALEM, Dec. 7 (AP) — Ask Lt. John Freeman Hasey, 25, of Bridgewater, Mass., and the Free French Legion, what he wants for Christmas and he will take pencil and write:

"Trip home, new jaw, new voice." He cannot speak.

Hit by Bullet

Hasey, one of the few Americans in the De Gaullist forces which took Syria and Lebanon out of the Axis camp, stopped a machine-gun bullet with his chin and larynx in the fighting that preceded the capture of Damascus.

If the delicate operations he needs can be arranged in the United States along with passage homeward by plane within two weeks he can have his Christmas wishes. The military hospital here where he has been under treatment lacks the facilities for the operations.

The young soldier himself lacks the money either to fly home or pay the surgical attention and unless he can catch the direct plane within two weeks he will not be able to return until spring.

Hasey has asked friends to see that his father, Fred Hasey of Bridgewater, as well as the Free French organization, France Forever, are informed of his plight.

Won Decorations

A veteran of the European war almost from the outset, Hasey now holds the Free French Order of Liberation as well as the Croix de Guerre with palm for service in the Syrian campaign.

He was one of the Americans in Paris who formed a volunteer ambulance corps on Oct. 18, 1939, and in December of that year left in a two-ambulance unit for Finland, to help the Finns in their earlier war with Russia. He suffered a broken arm from flying wreckage in an air raid on the Lake Ladoga front.

Later he participated in the French campaign at Narvik, Norway, and after the fall of France, joined the Free French in Africa, taking part in the unsuccessful De Gaullist attempt to take Dakar.

Will Cable Help, Elder Hasey Says

BRIDGEWATER, Dec. 7 (AP)—Fred Hasey said tonight he would start "right away" to give his soldier-son the trip home he wants for Christmas.

Informed that Lt. John Freeman Hasey, 25 of the Free French Legion needs money to fly home from Jerusalem for Christmas and surgical attention for his wounded jaw and larynx, the boy's father said:

"I'll cable him whatever he needs. I'll do it right away, tonight."

Hasey is in charge of the retail stores of the George E. Keith Shoe Co. of Brockton.

Children's Aid Center Is Opened In France

Role Of United States On Relief Work Lauded During Ceremony

Vichy, Dec. 7 (AP)—An aid center for refugee Lorraine children was opened yesterday in the little Ain department village of Saint Maurice de Remes by the Quaker Society of Friends and the France-American Society of New York in a ceremony at which the Stars and Stripes flew side by side with the tricolor.

The official French information office described the ceremony as a "manifestation of French-American friendship" and reported that the speakers, the Mayor of Lyon and G. L. Jaray, president of the France-American Committee, praised President Roosevelt for having obtained navicerts for transportation of "precious food supplies" for French children.

War Communiques

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (AP).—A Soviet Information Bureau communique broadcast by the Moscow radio:

During the night of Dec. 6-7 our troops engaged the enemy on all fronts.

Red Air Force pilots operating on the southern front in twelve days brought down eighty-two German planes, destroyed 143 enemy tanks, twenty-three mortars, twenty-four anti-aircraft installations, over 2,600 trucks with infantry and military equipment, and killed over 8,000 soldiers and officers.

Units commanded by Comrade Govarov, during two days of fighting on one sector of the western front, captured thirteen tanks, twelve guns, fourteen trench mortars, twenty-seven machine-guns, and wiped out 1,500 enemy soldiers and officers.

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (AP).—A German high command communique:

Despite bitter cold, German and Italian troops have won local offensive successes in the Donetz Basin. At numerous places on the eastern front, Soviet attacks were repulsed. A Russian attempt to break out at Leningrad, supported by armored units and strafing airplanes, was unsuccessful. Shelling of military objectives in the region of the city was continued.

Along the entire eastern front the German air force supported land operations by attacks on enemy positions, troop concentrations and railroads. Southeast of Lake Lagoda, Soviet air bases were bombed.

On the west coast of Lake Onega, combat planes scored direct hits with heavy bombs on an industrial plant.

In the channel region, there was an engagement between German mine sweepers and numerous British speedboats. One enemy boat was sunk and another heavily damaged. Our boats suffered neither losses nor damage.

In North Africa, fighting continues.

Off the coast of Cyrenaica, a German submarine attacked a British convoy laden with supplies for Tobruk and scored hits on a destroyer, a tanker and a fighter. Sinking of the ships could not be observed because of strong defense measures.

German planes carried out night attacks on British airdromes in Malta. Direct hits were observed on barracks and hangars.

From Nov. 29 to Dec. 5 the Soviet air force lost 228 airplanes, of which 136 were shot down in aerial combat and sixty-seven by anti-aircraft action. The remainder were destroyed on the ground. Twenty-one of our planes were lost on the Eastern front during the same period.

Finnish

HELSINKI, Dec. 7 (AP).—A Finnish communique:

KARELIAN ISTHMUS: The enemy was active along the whole front, sending out patrols and launching attacks with small forces under cover of artillery and trench mortar fire. All attempts to advance were repulsed, some while still in the troop concentration stage, some in the territory between the lines. Our artillery and trench mortars scored direct hits on enemy log bunkers and artillery stations.

SVIR RIVER FRONT: Artillery and trench mortar fire on both sides. Our own artillery dispersed numerous minor troop concentrations and scored hits on artillery stations and trenches.

EAST FRONT: On the north enemy attacks were repulsed. On the south after fierce fighting our troops captured the town of Karhumaeki.

SEA: Between Seivasto and Ino our coast guns engaged in battle with an enemy fleet unit headed toward Kronstadt. An enemy battery at Yhinmaki participated. One enemy destroyer was hit. A snowstorm interrupted the battle.

AIR: Our own air force yesterday severely bombed military objectives in the city of Poventsa. In East Karelia direct hits were scored on an enemy barracks area and an auto column.

British

CAIRO, Dec. 7 (AP).—A British Middle East Headquarters communique:

During the last twenty-four hours, there has been considerable activity in the area between El Adem and Bir el-Gobi, which is due south of Tobruk.

In an action some four miles east of Bir el-Gobi, an enemy column of about 100 vehicles and two tanks was engaged by South African troops, one tank being knocked out, the transport dispersed and the column forced to withdraw.

Two other actions in this general area were still in progress when the latest reports reached Cairo. In one of them, enemy infantry had attacked British and Indian troops north of Bir el-Gobi and we had counter-attacked. Fighting had continued into the moonlight. Farther north, forces of both sides were reported to have joined battle about midday of the sixth. Reports of the progress of this engagement are not yet to hand, although there are some indications that our armored forces have met with some success.

Southwest of Bir el-Gobi yesterday evening, an enemy column with some tanks attacked British troops but met with no success.

During these engagements, in the el-Gobi area our air forces bombed enemy forces while they were refuelling, obtaining many direct hits.

Southeast of Tobruk, British patrols penetrated several miles south of Ed Duda without encountering any opposition. These patrols destroyed fifteen enemy vehicles and two field guns and captured three German anti-tank guns and twenty-five German prisoners.

A little farther east in the Rezegh area, South African troops engaged in mopping up operations captured supplies and petrol dumps, removed or destroyed petrol and burned sixty-two enemy motor vehicles and two aircraft.

In the frontier area, operations against the isolated enemy frontier garrisons are proceeding satisfactorily. The vigorous offensive operations of our mobile columns and of all arms continued throughout the whole area.

As a result, apart from a few isolated pockets, very few of the enemy remain between Tobruk and the frontier. In particular, numerous casualties have been reported among enemy vehicles and troops on the Trigh Capuzzo, where a few Germans were captured.

Mopping up operations north of the coastal road of Tobruk resulted in the surrender of twenty-seven Italians and a little further west in the Rezegh-el Adem area the enemy is being subjected to continued harassing.

Among the losses inflicted by a mobile column during Dec. 6 are the destruction of twenty-three Italian tanks and a complete Italian battery.

Our air forces have again continued their heavy attacks against enemy concentrations and enemy motor vehicle columns in addition to affording direct support for our ground troops.

Particularly effective results were obtained in the el Adem area, where enemy motor vehicle concentrations repeatedly were attacked and where bombs fell among a group of tank transporters which were being loaded with enemy tanks.

The Axis air forces aided operations, repeatedly attacking enemy armored troops and infantry.

They also fought numerous air combats during which twenty-two enemy planes were shot down in flames, fourteen by our aircraft and eight by the Germans. Several enemy crews were captured. Six Italian planes are missing.

British warships bombarded our positions west of Tobruk. Three Italian torpedo-carrying planes commanded by pilots Captain Massimiliano Erasi, Lieutenant Guglielmo Ranieri and Sub-Lieutenant Alfredo Pubzetti, repeatedly hit two enemy cruisers between Tobruk and Ras Azzaz, from which high flames arose. One cruiser is to be considered sunk.

During an air raid on Bengasi cited in a bulletin Dec. 2, local Italian and German anti-aircraft defenses shot down two enemy planes into the sea.

The British air force last night again attacked Naples in successive waves, dropping explosive and incendiary bombs. Several buildings and a church were hit. Two were killed and one injured among the population.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 7 (AP).—An Italian High Command communique:

Fighting in the Marmarica desert continued on the Tobruk front and in the terrain south of that stronghold between El Adem and El Gobi, where repeated strong attacks launched by the enemy with new forces were effectively held back and repulsed by Axis troops.

In those actions detachments of young Fascists also fought with exemplary tenacity and gallantry.

On the Salum (Sollum) front the situation remained unchanged.

SINGAPORE, DEC. 7--CRUISER-GUARDED JAPANESE CONVOYS, POSSIBLY LADEN WITH WAR-TOUGHENED TROOPS OF THE RISING SUN, HEADED ACROSS THE GULF OF SIAM TODAY TOWARD ANXIOUS THAILAND WHILE THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN WATCHED FOR THE SPARK THAT MIGHT TOUCH OFF NEW WAR IN THE EAST.

GENERAL MOBILIZATION WAS ORDERED IN HONGKONG, BRITAIN'S CROWN COLONY NEAREST TO JAPAN, AND THE ALREADY POWERFUL STRIKING FORCE MASSED AT SINGAPORE WAS STRENGTHENED BY NEW SQUADRONS OF BRISTOL AND BEAUFORT BOMBERS BUILT IN AUSTRALIA. THE GOVERNMENT OF BRITISH BURMA WAS EMPOWERED TO CONSCRIPT MANPOWER FOR WAR WORK.

WITH RELATIONS STRAINED ADMITTEDLY CLOSE TO BREAKING, ATTENTION WAS FOCUSED ON TOKYO IN PERSISTENT HOPE THAT A MESSAGE SENT TO EMPEROR HIROHITO LAST NIGHT BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MIGHT YET STAY JAPAN'S COURSE.

DEC 8 1941

THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE DISCLOSURE OF THE CONTENTS OF THE MESSAGE; NO SIGN AT ALL WHAT RESULTS IT WOULD BRING.

THE BRITISH RADIO, WHICH SAID THE SITUATION WAS REGARDED IN AUSTRALIA AS "FURTHER WORSENED" AND THAT THE AUSTRALIAN WAR CABINET

WAS STANDING BY FOR ACTION, FORESAW A POSSIBLE CLARIFICATION OF JAPAN'S MOVES TOMORROW BY PREMIER GEN. HIDEKI TOJO.

DOMEI REPORTED THAT THE PREMIER, FOREIGN MINISTER SHIGENORI TOGO, AND VICE ADMIRAL SHIGETARO SHIMADA, NAVY MINISTER, WOULD "SPEAK THE WHOLE TRUTH" ABOUT JAPAN'S DISCUSSIONS WITH WASHINGTON AT A MONDAY MEETING WITH THE COUNCIL OF THE IMPERIAL RULE ASSISTANCE ASSOCIATION.

DEC 8 - 1941

THE OMINOUS MOVEMENT OF SHIPPING AROUND THE SOUTHERNMOST TIP OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA AND INTO THE GULF OF SIAM WAS REPORTED IN A SINGAPORE NAVAL COMMUNIQUE.

T "AIR RECONNAISSANCE IN THE SOUTH CHINA SEA WHICH HAS BEEN IN PROGRESS FOR SEVERAL DAYS," IT SAID, "HAS CONFIRMED PREVIOUS REPORTS OF CONSIDERABLE SHIPPING ACTIVITY AND THE MOVEMENT OF NAVAL VESSELS INCLUDING CRUISERS.

"THIS MOVEMENT NOW HAS ROUNDED CAMBODIA POINT AND THEN IN A NORTHWESTERLY DIRECTION.

"OUR RECONNAISSANCE WAS WELL CARRIED OUT BY CATALINA FLYING BOATS OF THE RAF AND HUDSONS OF THE RAAF. IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT CONTACT BY THE AIRCRAFT FROM MALAYA WAS MADE AT A DISTANCE OF MORE THAN 300 MILES."

(ALTHOUGH THE SINGAPORE COMMUNIQUE DID NOT IDENTIFY THE SHIPPING SPECIFICALLY AS JAPANESE, RELIABLE INFORMATION REACHING WASHINGTON SAID THE SHIPPING CONSISTED OF TWO JAPANESE CONVOYS, LARGE AND HEAVILY ESCORTED. IT WAS INDICATED THAT THEY CAME FROM THE DIRECTION OF THE JAPANESE-USED BASE AT CAMRANH BAY ON THE EAST COAST OF INDO-CHINA WHERE WASHINGTON HAS HEARD THE JAPANESE HAD 18,000 TROOPS HELD READY FOR MOVEMENT ON 21 TRANSPORTS.

ARE AS OF SUNDAY, DEC. 7.

"THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT'S DECISION TO ASSOCIATE CANADA WITH BRITAIN IN A DECLARATION OF WAR SIMILAR TO THAT OF THE UNITED KINGDOM WAS TAKEN AT A MEETING OF THE CABINET HELD AT OTTAWA AT NOON TODAY.

"THE GOVERNMENT'S DECISION WAS MADE IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE AUTHORITY OF THE PARLIAMENT OF CANADA FOR EFFECTIVE CO-OPERATION BY CANADA AT THE SIDE OF BRITAIN TO RESIST AGGRESSION.

"IT WAS ALSO RECOGNIZED THAT HUNGARY, RUMANIA AND FINLAND IN FIGHTING ON THE SIDE OF GERMANY AND AGAINST COUNTRIES ALLIED WITH BRITAIN IN THE PRESENT WAR, WERE HELPING TO PLACE IN JEOPARDY THE DEFENSE OF ALL THE NATIONS OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AND FREEDOM OF ALL COUNTRIES.

DEC 8 1941

"DURING THE AFTERNOON, THE NECESSARY SUBMISSION WAS MADE TO THE KING. THE ROYAL APPROVAL WAS GIVEN BY HIS MAJESTY AT 10 O'CLOCK TONIGHT, BRITISH TIME.

"THE KING'S PROCLAMATION WILL BE ISSUED FORTHWITH AND WILL BE PUBLISHED IN A SPECIAL ISSUE OF THE CANADA GAZETTE.

"SIMILAR ACTION WITH RESPECT TO A DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST HUNGARY, RUMANIA AND FINLAND IS BEING TAKEN BY THE GOVERNMENTS OF AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND AND SOUTH AFRICA. IN AS FEW WORDS AS POSSIBLE I SHALL REVIEW THE COURSE OF EVENTS WHICH HAS DETERMINED OUR GOVERNMENT'S ACTION.

"WHEN GERMANY WANTONLY ATTACKED RUSSIA IN JUNE LAST, THE HUNGARIAN AND RUMANIAN GOVERNMENTS JOINED IN THAT ATTACK. SO ALSO DID THE GOVERNMENT OF FINLAND.

"THE GOVERNMENTS OF HUNGARY AND RUMANIA HAVE BEEN STEADILY PURSUING AGGRESSIVE MILITARY OPERATIONS AGAINST THE PEOPLE AND TERRITORY OF RUSSIA. IN CLOSE COLLABORATION WITH NAZI GERMANY, THEY HAVE WIDENED THE SPHERE OF HOSTILITIES.

DEC 8 1941

"THE COLLABORATION OF RUMANIA AND HUNGARY BEGAN WITH ATTACKS UPON YUGOSLAVIA AND GREECE. THIS WAS BEFORE THE NAZI ATTACK ON RUSSIA.

"AS EARLY AS FEB. 15 OF THIS YEAR OUR GOVERNMENT AS A CONSEQUENCE OF RUMANIA'S ACTIONS, REQUIRED THE RUMANIAN CONSULATE GENERAL TO BE CLOSED. RUMANIA WAS DECLARED TO BE PROSCRIBED TERRITORY UNDER THE MEANING OF THE TRADING WITH THE ENEMY REGULATIONS.

"SIMILAR ACTION FOR SIMILAR REASONS WAS TAKEN WITH RESPECT TO THE HUNGARIAN CONSULATES IN CANADA. THEY WERE ORDERED CLOSED ON APRIL 8.

"THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT HAVE FOLLOWED A COURSE WHICH HAS COMPELLED BRITAIN AND OTHER OF THE NATIONS OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH TO TREAT FINLAND ALSO AS AN ENEMY. FINISH TROOPS HAVE BEEN FIGHTING ALONGSIDE THE NAZI ENEMY ON RUSSIAN SOIL, AND THE TERRITORY OF FINLAND HAS BEEN USED INCREASINGLY AS A BASE FOR GERMANY NAVAL, MILITARY AND AIR OPERATIONS.

DEC 8 1941

"WHEN IN AUGUST LAST THE BRITISH LEGATION WAS EXPELLED FROM HELSINKI, THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ORDERED THE CLOSING OF THE FINNISH CONSULATE-GENERAL OFFICE IN MONTREAL. THE DANGER OF THE POLICY IT WAS PURSUING WAS POINTED OUT TO THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT MORE THAN ONCE

BY GOVERNMENTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM, THE UNITED STATES AND NORWAY. REPEATED WARNINGS WERE IN FACT GIVEN THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT THAT IF IT PERSISTED IN THE INVASION OF PURELY RUSSIAN TERRITORY, A SITUATION WOULD ARISE IN WHICH A DECLARATION OF WAR WOULD BECOME INEVITABLE.

"IT WAS MADE EQUALLY CLEAR THAT IF FINLAND SHOULD END HER WAR AGAINST RUSSIA AND WITHDRAW TO HER 1939 FRONTIERS---NOT THOSE OF 1941---EVERY CONSIDERATION WOULD BE GIVEN TO PROPOSALS FOR GUARANTEEING HER PRESENT AND FUTURE SECURITY, AND TO MEASURES FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION.

DEC 8 1941

"IN SPITE OF THESE WARNINGS, HOWEVER, AND, INDEED, IN SPITE OF THE REPEATED PROTESTS OF LARGE SECTIONS OF THE FINNISH PEOPLE, BOTH IN THEIR HOMELAND AND ABROAD, THE PRESENT FINNISH REGIME HAS PERSISTED IN ITS ARMED SUPPORT OF THE NAZIS--HAS BECOME, INDEED, AND AXIS ALLY IN A GENERAL WAR.

"IN VIEW OF THE UNMISTAKABLE EVIDENCE THAT THE ACTIONS OF THE GOVERNMENTS OF HUNGARY, RUMANIA AND FINLAND HAD BECOME COMPLETELY SUBORDINATED TO THE POLICIES OF NAZI GERMANY, THE UNITED KINGDOM GOVERNMENT FINALLY INFORMED THESE GOVERNMENTS THAT UNLESS THEY IMMEDIATELY CEASED MILITARY OPERATIONS AGAINST RUSSIA, A DECLARATION OF WAR WOULD FOLLOW.

"THE DECLARATION BY CANADA OF THE EXISTENCE OF A STATE OF WAR WITH FINLAND, HUNGARY AND RUMANIA HAS NOT BEEN MADE WITHOUT THE MOST CAREFUL CONSIDERATION OF ITS EFFECTS ON THE POSITION IN CANADA OF FINNISH, HUNGARIAN AND RUMANIAN NATIONALS, OR OF RECENTLY NATURALIZED CANADIANS FORMERLY OF FINNISH, HUNGARIAN OR RUMANIAN NATIONALITY.

"THE GOVERNMENT IS FULLY CONVINCED OF THE LOYALTY OF THE OVERWHELMING MAJORITY OF THESE PEOPLE, A LOYALTY WHICH EXTENDS BOTH TO CANADA AND TO THE GREAT CAUSE TO WHICH THE ALLIED NATIONS ARE COMMITTED. FOR THIS REASON MEASURES SUCH AS A STATE OF WAR ORDINARILY DEMAND, HAVE NOT BEEN TAKEN TO PLACE SUCH PERSONS AUTOMATICALLY IN THE CLASS OF "ENEMY ALIENS."

"ALL NECESSARY SECURITY MEASURES WILL OF COURSE, CONTINUE TO BE TAKEN BY THE CANADIAN AUTHORITIES AGAINST INDIVIDUALS OF ANY RACE OR NATIONALITY, WHOSE ACTIVITIES ARE PREJUDICIAL TO THE WELFARE AND SECURITY OF THE STATE.

DEC 8 1941

"WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT THE FINNISH, HUNGARIAN AND RUMANIAN RESIDENTS OF CANADA WILL CONTINUE TO PLAY THEIR FULL PART IN THE PRESENT STRUGGLE.

"FREEMEN EVERYWHERE HAVE HAD TO CHOOSE BETWEEN SUBSERVIENCE AND OPPOSITION TO THE TOTALITARIAN CHALLENGE. THE PEOPLES NOW LIVING IN FINLAND, HUNGARY AND RUMANIA ARE CLEARLY UNDER NAZI CONTROL.

"THEY CAN RESIST ONLY PASSIVELY AT THE PRESENT TIME, SINCE THEIR ACTIONS ARE CIRCUMSCRIBED BY THE FIRING SQUAD AND THE CONCENTRATION CAMP.

"IN CANADA THE MAINTENANCE OF FREEDOM OF THOUGHT AND ACTION REPRESENTS ONE OF THE CHIEF MORAL ISSUES, FOR WHICH WE ARE FIGHTING.

"THERE ARE THE STRONGEST OF REASONS WHY, A LOYAL RESIDENTS OF CANADA, CITIZENS OF FINNISH, HUNGARIAN AND RUMANIA PEOPLES SHOULD CONTINUE TO CONTRIBUTE IN FULLEST MEASURE TO THE WAR EFFORT OF OUR COUNTRY."

U.S. DECLARES WAR, PACIFIC BATTLE WIDENS; MANILA AREA BOMBED; 1,500 DEAD IN HAWAII; HOSTILE PLANES SIGHTED AT SAN FRANCISCO

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP).—To a declaration of war on Japan, which President Roosevelt signed at 4:10 this afternoon, the United States tonight added an accusation that Germany "did all it could to push" the Tokio Government into the conflict with the hope of ending the program of lend-lease aid to England. But, a White House statement said, the program of American help to the British "will continue in full operation."

DEC 9 1941

"Obviously Germany did all it could to push Japan into the war," the White House said. "It was the German hope that if the United States and Japan could be pushed into war that such a conflict would put an end to the lend-lease program.

"As usual the wish is father to the thought behind the broadcasts and public announcements from Germany with relation to the war and the lend-lease program.

"That such German broadcasts are continuously and completely 100 per cent inaccurate is shown by the fact that the lease-lend program is, and will continue, in full operation.

The statement was issued soon after President Roosevelt had signed the declaration of war in a short and solemn ceremony attended by leaders of both parties from the House and Senate.

Earlier, a grim-visaged Congress, united by the shock of battle and aroused by startling losses to the American forces in the Pacific, approved the declaration by an all but unanimous vote and did so in record time.

The measuse is known as Joint Senate Resolution 116. It declares "A State of War exists between the Imperial Government of Japan and the Government and People of the United States."

President Roosevelt, forecasting "an inevitable triumph," requested the action in a brief, pointed speech solemny delivered before a memorable joint session of House and Senate. Thirty-three minutes later his request was granted.

"As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense," he slowly said.

"Always will our whole nation remember the character of the onslaught against us.

"No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory."

Straining for action, the House and Senate acted immediately, and almost simultaneously. The Senate voted 82 to 0 for the declaration of war, the House 388 to 1.

Signed at 4:10 p. m.

Then, during the afternoon, the formalities necessary to prepare the resolution for Roosevelt's signature were swiftly completed, and at 4:10 p. m., EST, he signed it at the executive mansion, with Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress looking on.

DEC 9 1941

The solitary negative ballot was cast by Miss Jeannette Rankin (R.-Mont.). She was roundly hissed by some of her colleagues. Others gathered about her imploring her to change her vote so that the action might be unanimous. Miss Rankin, who in 1917 burst into tears as she voted against the declaration of war on Germany, was obdurate.

Roosevelt request for action followed soon after an official White House estimate of the losses and damage caused by Japan's swift and savage raids on America's Pacific outposts. Two warships were sunk—a battleship and a destroyer — numerous smaller craft were destroyed, a relatively large number of planes were destroyed or damaged and —at least 1,500 were killed and as many wounded. America's score was the destruction of an unspecified number of Japanese submarines and aircraft.

Congress Ready

Congress was ready for the task before it when it assembled at noon. All the past embittered debates over foreign policy were forgotten in presenting a united front to the enemy.

Then President Roosevelt, his face lined and drawn, revealing the fatiguing effect of the previous 24 hours, entered the Chamber. Everyone arose. There was an outburst of applause which began with an uproar in handclapping, was sustained and swelled in volume until finally it reached a tumult of shouts, cheers, and rebel yells.

DEC 9 1941

Planned Weeks Ago

Speaker Rayburn stilled the demonstration and presented the President. The latter swung at once into his speech, speaking slowly, distinctly, and giving every word its emphasis.

"Yesterday, Dec. 7, 1941—a date which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan," he said.

With rising voice, he went on to say that while the two nations were at peace and negotiating for a continuance of peace the Japanese struck. The distances which their forces had to traverse made it obvious, he charged, that "the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks" ago.

"During the intervening time the Japanese Government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace."

The President's pace slackened, his tone grew dark as he brought the Congress bad news.

"The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. I regret to tell you that very many American lives have been lost. In addition, American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu."

"I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire."

The greatest ovation of all, a tumult of handclapping, cheering and shouting, welled up from the floor, to diminish only when the President ad withdrawn. Then it was mixed with repeated shouts from all sections of the floor, calling: "Vote....Vote...Vote."

Senate Withdraws

The Senate withdrew and went to work on the war resolution, previously prepared by Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Quietly and quickly it was proposed, put to a vote, and the "ayes" were heard in unbroken succession as the roll was called.

In the House, meanwhile, the vote was preceded by a short series of one and two-minute speeches, each followed by a storm of applause, and by impatient calls for a vote.

Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, announced his "unqualified support," and expressed the hope that the vote would be unanimous.

DEC 9 1941

"There can be no peace," he said, "until the enemy is made to pay in a full way for his dastardly deed. Let us show the world that we are a united nation."

Mr. Roosevelt made no mention of Germany or Italy, but previously Speaker Rayburn had told newsmen that "if, as has been flashed around, Germany and Italy have declared war on us, we will recognize that in the same resolution" declaring war on Japan.

At intervals between speeches Miss Rankin clamored for recognition. Speaker Rayburn steadfastly looked the other way. Even after the roll call had begun she was endeavoring to make herself heard. Rayburn stopped her with a reminder that a House roll call could not be interrupted for speeches.

Earlier, a grim-visaged Congress, united by the shock of battle and aroused by startling losses to the American forces in the Pacific, approved the declaration by an all but unanimous vote and did so in record time.

The measuse is known as Joint Senate Resolution 116. It declares "A State of War exists between the Imperial Government of Japan and the Government and People of the United States."

President Roosevelt, forecasting "an inevitable triumph," requested the action in a brief, pointed speech solemny delivered before a memorable joint session of House and Senate. Thirty-three minutes later his request was granted.

"As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense," he slowly said.

"Always will our whole nation remember the character of the onslaught against us.

"No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory."

Straining for action, the House and Senate acted immediately, and almost simultaneously. The Senate voted 82 to 0 for the declaration of war, the House 388 to 1.

Signed at 4:10 p. m.

Then, during the afternoon, the formalities necessary to prepare the resolution for Roosevelt's signature were swiftly completed, and at 4:10 p. m., EST, he signed it at the executive mansion, with Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress looking on.

DEC 9 1941

The solitary negative ballot was cast by Miss Jeannette Rankin (R.-Mont.). She was roundly hissed by some of her colleagues. Others gathered about her imploring her to change her vote so that the action might be unanimous. Miss Rankin, who in 1917 burst into tears as she voted against the declaration of war on Germany, was obdurate.

Roosevelt request for action followed soon after an official White House estimate of the losses and damage caused by Japan's swift and savage raids on America's Pacific outposts. Two warships were sunk—a battleship and a destroyer — numerous smaller craft were destroyed, a relatively large number of planes were destroyed or damaged and —at least 1,500 were killed and as many wounded. America's score was the destruction of an unspecified number of Japanese submarines and aircraft.

Congress Ready

Congress was ready for the task before it when it assembled at noon. All the past embittered debates over foreign policy were forgotten in presenting a united front to the enemy.

Then President Roosevelt, his face lined and drawn, revealing the fatiguing effect of the previous 24 hours, entered the Chamber. Everyone arose. There was an outburst of applause which began with an outroar of handclapping, was sustained and swelled in volume until finally it reached a tumult of shouts, cheers, and rebel yells.

Planned Weeks Ago

Speaker Rayburn stilled the demonstration and presented the President. The latter swung at once into his speech, speaking slowly, distinctly, and giving every word its emphasis.

"Yesterday, Dec. 7, 1941—a date which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan," he said.

With rising voice, he went on to say that while the two nations were at peace and negotiating for a continuance of peace the Japanese struck. The distances which their forces had to traverse made it obvious, he charged, that "the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks" ago.

"During the intervening time the Japanese Government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace."

The President's pace slackened, his tone grew dark as he brought the Congress bad news.

"The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. I regret to tell you that very many American lives have been lost. In addition, American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu."

"I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire."

The greatest ovation of all, a tumult of handclapping, cheering and shouting, welled up from the floor, to diminish only when the President ad withdrawn. Then it was mixed with repeated shouts from all sections of the floor, calling: "Vote....Vote...Vote."

Senate Withdraws

The Senate withdrew and went to work on the war resolution, previously prepared by Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Quietly and quickly it was proposed, put to a vote, and the "ayes" were heard in unbroken succession as the roll was called.

In the House, meanwhile, the vote was preceded by a short series of one and two-minute speeches, each followed by a storm of applause, and by impatient calls for a vote.

Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, announced his "unqualified support," and expressed the hope that the vote would be unanimous.

DEC 9 1941

"There can be no peace," he said, "until the enemy is made to pay in a full way for his dastardly deed. Let us show the world that we are a united nation."

Mr. Roosevelt made no mention of Germany or Italy, but previously Speaker Rayburn had told newsmen that "if, as has been flashed around, Germany and Italy have declared war on us, we will recognize that in the same resolution" declaring war on Japan.

At intervals between speeches Miss Rankin clamored for recognition. Speaker Rayburn steadfastly looked the other way. Even after the roll call had begun she was endeavoring to make herself heard. Rayburn stopped her with a reminder that a House roll call could not be interrupted for speeches.

President Roosevelt's Message To Congress

DEC 9 1941

The full text of President Roosevelt's message follows:

"To the Congress of the United States:

"Yesterday, December 7, 1941—a date which will live in infamy—the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan.

"The United States was at peace with that nation and, at the solicitation of Japan, was still in conversation with its Government and its Emperor looking toward the maintenance of peace in the Pacific.

Parleys Still On

"Indeed, one hour after Japanese air squadron had commenced bombing in Oahu, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States and his colleagues delivered to the Secretary of State a formal reply to a recent American message. While this reply stated that it seemed useless to continue the existing diplomatic negotiations, it contained no threat or hint of war or armed attack.

"It will be recorded that the distance of Hawaii from Japar makes it obvious that the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks ago. During the intervening time, the Japanese Government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace.

Attack On Malaya

"The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. Very many American lives have been lost. In addition, American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu.

"Yesterday the Japanese Government also launched an attack against Malaya.

"Last night Japanese forces attacked Hongkong.

"Last night Japanese forces attacked Guam.

"Last night Japanese forces attacked the Philippine Islands.

"Last night the Japanese attacked Wake Island.

"This morning the Japanese attacked Midway Island.

"Japan has, therefore, undertaken a surprise offensive extending throughout the Pacific area. The facts of yesterday speak for themselves. The people of the United States have already formed their opinions and well understand the implications to the very life and safety of our nation.

"As commander in chief of the army and navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense.

"Always will we remember the character of the onslaught against us.

"No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory.

For End Of Treachery

"I believe I interpret the will of the Congress and of the people when I assert that we will not only defend ourselves to the uttermost, but will make very certain that this form of treachery shall never endanger us again.

"Hostilities exist. There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory and our interests are in grave danger.

"With confidence in our armed forces—with the unbounding determination of our people—we will gain the inevitable triumph—so help us God.

"I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

"The White House,
"December 8, 1941."

The Text Of The Joint Resolution

The text of the joint resolution Congress adopted, declaring war, follows:

DEC 9 1941

"Declaring that a state of war exists between the Imperial Government of Japan and the Government and the people of the United States and making provisions to prosecute the same

"Whereas, the Imperial Government of Japan has committed repeated acts of war against the Government and the people of the United States of America therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled that the state of war between the United States and the Imperial Government of Japan which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the President be and he is hereby authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the Government to carry on war against the Imperial Government of Japan; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the Congress of the United States."

Speedy Procedure Followed

Immediately after the House roll call was finished, that chamber was notified of the Senate's passage of the resolution and Majority Leader John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts moved to vacate the House proceedings on its own resolution and adopt the Senate's, which was done, thus completing Congressional action on the issue.

Now the resolution goes to the White House for the President's signature, following the signatures of Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem., Texas) and Vice-President Henry A. Wallace.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts the Republican leader, won thunderous applause as he pledged "unqualified support" to the President. "There can be no peace," Martin shouted, "until the enemy is made to pay in a full way for his dastardly deed."

Representative Luther Johnson (Dem., Texas) called the Japanese attacks "dastardly treachery characteristic of the totalitarian outlaws who talk peace when they have already drawn the dagger to strike."

JAPANESE CLAIM BIG EARLY GAINS

Reports Destruction Of Two U. S. Battleships And About 100 Planes

Domei Says Successes Give Japan Naval Mastery In Pacific

DEC 9 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (Official Radio Pickup) — Japanese imperial headquarters announced last night the sinking of two United States battleships and a minesweeper, severe damage to four other American capital ships and four cruisers and the destruction of about one hundred American planes in Japan's surprise blows at Hawaii, the Philippines and Guam.

The official news agency, Domei, quickly interpreted "these magnificent early gains" as giving Japan naval mastery over the United States in the Pacific, and said that any force which the United States could muster now "would be regarded as utterly inadequate to accomplish any successful outcome in an encounter with the thus-far-intact Japanese fleet."

Merchant Ships Claimed

In addition "many enemy merchant ships were captured" in the Pacific, it was announced, and the communique listed an unconfirmed report that a Japanese submarine had sunk an American aircraft carrier off Honolulu.

"No Japanese ships were lost during the fighting," it added.

Japanese newspapers identified the two American battleships declared sunk Sunday at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as the 31,800-ton West Virginia and the 29,000-ton Oklahoma.

[An Italian broadcast, however, quoted Domei as listing the Oklahoma and the 33,100-ton Pennsylvania as lost. In Berlin, DNB said in a Tokyo dispatch an American transport ship carrying 350 men had been sunk off Manila.]

Planes Reported Shot Down

Imperial headquarters itself did not identify the sunken or damaged ships save for the 840-ton United States minesweeper Penguin, which it said was sunk in an air attack at dawn Monday on Guam, United States naval island station.

Japanese army headquarters announced that fifty or sixty American planes were shot down in air combats over Clark Field in the Philippines and forty more over Iba, eighty miles northeast of Manila, Domei said in a broadcast.

Japanese planes were reported to have again attacked the Philippines and British Hongkong Monday, inflicting "heavy damage," in the follow-up of the raids launched Sunday. "Twelve out of fourteen enemy planes on the ground were destroyed" at Hongkong, an army communique said.

Hongkong Blockaded

Hongkong was declared under Japanese blockade by Vice-Admiral Minechi Koga and neutral ships were asked to withdraw within thirty-six hours.

Japanese troops were reported fighting British forces in Thailand and the Tokyo Board of Information declared the Thailand Government had granted permission for the Japanese to march in from their bases in French Indo-China after Japanese bluejackets landed at strategic points near the Malayan border.

The Japanese asserted the British troops invaded Thailand from Malaya to meet the oncoming Japanese.

Approximately one hundred American and British nationals and other foreigners were rounded up in Tokyo yesterday morning and a blackout was instituted in the capital last night.

Hawaii Raids Cited

Domei broadcast this commentary on the Japanese raids on Hawaii:

"Observers stressed the magnificent early Japanese success, and pointed out that it was reliably reported that the United States naval strength stationed in Hawaiian waters prior to the Japanese attack comprised approximately sixty per cent. of the United States' entire naval power.

"Early losses have reduced the American navy at Hawaii by two more capital ships, plus a single aircraft carrier, and six cruisers. (This capitulation varied with that of imperial headquarters, which said four battleships and four cruisers were "severely damaged").

Refers To U. S. Fleet

"Even the addition of the remainder of the United States fleet to the Hawaiian forces—which is impossible in view of the Atlantic situation—would bring the total strength of the United States naval power in the Pacific to eleven capital ships, fourteen 'A' class cruisers, and six aircraft carriers.

"This force would be regarded as utterly inadequate to accomplish any successful outcome in an encounter with the thus far intact Japanese fleet."

Emperor Hirohito, in an imperial rescript broadcast by Domei, called on "the hallowed spirits of our imperial ancestors" and "the loyalty and courage of our subjects" to achieve victory. He repeated Japan's argument that the United States and Britain prolonged the war in China by aiding Chungking, leaving Japan "no other recourse but to appeal to arms."

DEC 9 1941

"It has been truly unavoidable and far from our wishes that our empire has now been brought to cross swords with America and Britain," the rescript said.

Smashing Victories, Pacific Supremacy Claimed by Japan

Sinking of Two American Battleships and Plane Carrier Is Reported

Tokio, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (official radio picked up by A. P.).—The Japanese asserted today they had won naval supremacy over the United States in the Pacific, claiming by official or unofficial reports the destruction of two American battleships and an aircraft carrier and the damaging of four battleships and six cruisers.

DEC 9 1941

These, declared the Japanese, were the principal results of the irst shock of their air-naval offensive.

The claim to supremacy appeared in a communique resume broadcast by Domei which said that any force the United States now could muster "would be regarded as utterly inadequate to accomplish any successful outcome in an encounter with the thus far intact Japanese fleet."

Imperial headquarters, in an announcement broadcast by Domei, said that two battleships and a minesweeper had been sunk, four battleships damaged, many merchant ships seized and scores of planes destroyed on the ground and the the air in Hawaii and the Philippines.

The communique said also that a United States aircraft carrier had been sunk by submarine off Honolulu, although this was said not to have been confirmed.

So far as naval losses went, the Japanese said that they had escaped unscathed and they acknowledged the loss of only two planes in Philippine actions.

The Japanese said that the minesweeper, the 840-ton Penguin, was sunk in an air attack early yesterday over the United States naval station at Guam.

(An Italian broadcast quoted Domei as listing the 33,100-ton Pennsylvania and the 29,000-ton Oklahoma as lost. Domei also was reported to have said that two United States destroyers and two oil tankers had been destroyed.)

Two Battleships Named.

Imperial headquarters identified none of the warships claimed sunk except the Penguin, but early editions of Tuesday morning papers carried unofficial identification of the two battleships as the Oklahoma and the 31,800-ton West Virginia.

"Observers stressed the magnificent early Japanese success and point out that it was reliably reported that the United States naval strength stationed in Hawaiian waters prior to the Japanese attack comprised approximately 60 per cent of the United States' entire naval power," a Domei broadcast said.

"Early losses have reduced the American Navy at Hawaai by two more capital ships, plus a single aircraft carrier, six cruisers (sic).

"Even the addition of the remainder of the United States fleet to the Hawaiian forces—which is impossible in view of the Atlantic situation—would bring the total strength of the United States naval power in the Pacific to 11 capital ships, 14 "A" class cruisers and 6 aircraft carriers.

"This force would be regarded as utterly inadequate to accomplish any successful outcome in an encounter with the thus far intact Japanese fleet."

The Japanese spoke little of the first air assaults yesterday on Pearl Harbor and other Hawaiian objectives but said that 50 or 60 American planes had been shot down in combat over Clark Field and 40 over Iba, in the Philippines.

Japan semed also to have won a military - diplomatic victory by gaining Thailand's consent to passage of Japanese troops to meet British Malayan forces.

Thailand Bows to Japan

The Tokyo Board of Information announced such an agreement by radio following an earlier statement from the Japanese embassy at Bangkok that Japanese troops were sweeping from Thailand British forces which had crossed into that country early today "by pre-arranged plan."

The Bangkok statement, relayed by Domei, said that Japan, in order to maintain peace in the Southern Pacific and to save Thailand's independence, began negotiations with the Thai government while Japanese forces were engaging the British in Thailand.

The Japanese Board of Information announced that about 100 British and American nationals and other foreigners had been rounded up this morning throughout the empire.

For the first time in history Japanese cities were under wartime blackout orders. Tonight found Tokyo black under "gorgeously starlit skies," a Domei broadcast said and "most of the Tokyo populace seemed to remain indoors.

Streets Deserted

"Streets are deserted save for downtown districts but dimly lighted shapes go to and fro and traffic is functioning almost as usual."

(The German radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch saying navy Minister Admiral Shigetaro Shimada laid a report on hostilities thus far before the Japanese cabinet council, with Premier General Hideki Tojo presiding.

("It is announced," the German broadcast said, "that the cabinet decided what further measures should be taken. Previous to the meeting of the cabinet, Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo was received in audience by the emperor.")

Imperial headquarters announced that airmen attached to Japanese expeditionary forces in South China raided northern Hongkong. Twelve grounded British planes were destroyed and heavy damage inflicted, the news agency said.

The navy declared a complete blockade of the British crown colony. It was understood that all neutral ships had been asked to withdraw from Hongkong waters within 24 hours.

Sudden Japanese attacks on American military and naval and island strongholds in the Pacific and on the British bastion of Singapore were announced today by Imperial headquarters.

The announcement, broadcast by the Tokyo radio, said the Japanese carried out the swift attack on American naval, military and air forces in Hawaii.

U. S. Gunboat Captured

Far to the west of that action, the Japanese added, their forces captured the U. S. gunboat Wake and sank the British gunboat Peterel. Both were stationed at Shanghai.

Bombing of military objectives at Singapore, Britain's great Far Eastern naval base, was said to have been executed successfully.

Japanese attacks on the small American islands of Wake and Guam, in the Pacific, also were reported in the announcement.

Domei broadcast an Imperial declaring war on the United States rescript in which the emperor, and Britain, called on "the hallowed spirits of our imperial ancestors" and "the loyalty and courage of our subjects" to achieve victory so that "enduring peace will be immutably established in East Asia preserving thereby the glory of our empire."

The rescript contended that Japan waited patiently, hoping the situation might be saved, but Britain and United States left her "no other recourse but to appeal to arms."

"It has been truly unavoidable and far from our wishes that our empire has now been brought to cross swords with America and Britain," it said.

China 'Disturbing'

The emperor repeated Japan's arguments—that China "disturbed Asia's peace" to start the struggle on continental Asia, that Britain and the United States, by aiding Chungking, prolonged it, that they have induced other powers to join them and, by economic and military measures, "also endangered the very existence" of Japan.

Tomokazu Hori deputy spokesman of the information board, in a special press conference also broadcast by Domei, gave Japan's assurances for the well-being of American and British nationals in Japan.

He disclosed that special messages had been dispatched to the British and American embassies and the Australian legation advising them of the war declaration and requesting them to cease the functions of their diplomatic and consular missions.

The first official news that Japan finally had come to grips with the two western powers came in an Imperial headquarters announcement at 6 a. m. (4 p. m., est Sunday) that a state of war existed with them as of dawn today.

Then Domei followed with a brief statement that naval operations already were in progress off Hawaii, nearly 3,500 miles away, with at least one Japanese aircraft carrier in action against the big American naval base at Pearl Harbor.

Japanese bombers, taking off from undisclosed bases, were declared to have blasted Honolulu at 7:35 a. m., Hawaii time (1:05 p. m. est Sunday).

An hour after the war declaration General Hideki Tojo, premier and war minister, held a 20-minute cabinet session and then the privy council met.

Domei said the premier told of the progress of war plans and outlined government policy, at both sessions.

In quick succession, U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie were summoned to the Foreign Office, Domei related.

Tokyo Announced Accord With Thais

Tokyo, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Japanese Board of Information announced today over the Hokyo radio an agreement between Japan and Thailand for passage of Japanese troops through Thailand.

Domei quoted an earlier Japanese embassy announcement from Bangkok that Japanese forces were engaged in sweeping from Thailand British forces which it said had crossed the Malaya border into that country early this morning.

The statement declared that Japan had received conclusive evidence that British forces, carrying out pre-arranged plans, had crossed the Malaya border soon after dawn.

It added that Japan, in order to maintain peace in the Southern Pacific and save Thailand's independence, began negotiations with the Thai government while Japanese forces were engaging the British on Thai soil.

There are about 200 United States citizens in Thailand. Those in the north were advised to remain temporarily where they are and try soon to leave by way of Burma.

United States citizens have been invited to go to the American legation.

Bangkok Negotiates for Terms After Japanese Troops Move In British Force From Malaya Fights Advance of Enemy in Southern Siam—Singapore Bombed.

Bangkok, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Thailand, after brief resistance to Japanese invasion from the sea and across the French Indo-China border, ceased firing today and opened negotiations with the invaders.

The results of the negotiations were expected to be announced shortly.

Japanese forces poured into Thailand from three coastal points, Prachuapgirikhand, Singora and Patani, which are on the southernmost part of Thailand's Gulf of Siam coast, close to British Malaya, and across the land frontier from their southern Indo-China base at Siempear.

[Domei broadcast from Tokio that British forces crossed Malaya to Thailand this morning and were being swept back by the Japanese. Japan, it said, was acting to save Thailand's independence and peace.

[Although Tokio has officially announced that an agreement has been reached between Japan and Thailand, granting passage through the country to Japanese troops, the Thai Cabinet was reported in session this afternoon considering the Japanese peace proposals, according to a broadcast heard here by NBC. The Japanese claim has not been confirmed in Bangkok and nothing is known of it in London, the British broadcast said.]

Text of Mikado's Declaration

Emperor Assures Japanese People War With U. S. Was Unavoidable.

Tokio, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Domei, the Japanese news agency, today broadcast the following imperial rescript proclaiming Japan at war with the United States and the British Empire:

"We, by the grace of Heaven, Emperor of Japan, seated on the throne of a line unbroken for ages eternal, enjoin upon ye, our loyal and brave subjects:

"We hereby declare war on the United States of America and the British Empire.

"Men and officers of our army and navy shall do their utmost in prosecuting the war, our public servants of various departments shall perform faithfully and diligently their appointed tasks and all other subjects of ours shall puruse their respective duties; the entire nation with united will shall mobilize their total strength so that nothing will miscarry in the attainment of our war aims.

'Truly Unavoidable.'

"To assure the stability of East Asia and to contribute to world peace is a far-sighted policy which was formulated by our great, illustrious, imperial grandsire and our great imperial sire succeeding him and which we lay constantly to heart. To cultivate friendship among and to enjoy prosperity in common with all nations has always been a guiding principle our our empire's foreign policy.

"It has been truly unavoidable and far from our wishes that our empire has now been brought to cross swords with America and Britain. More than four years have passed since China, failing to comprehend the true intentions of our empire and recklessly courting trouble, disturbed the peace of East Asia, although there has been re-established a national government of China with which Japan has effected neighborly intercourse and cooperation. The Government which has survived at Chungking, relying upon American and British protection, still continues fratricidal opposition.

"Eager for the realization of their inordinate ambition to dominate the Orient, both America and Britain are giving support to the Chungking regime and have aggravated the disturbance in East Asia. Moreover, these two Powers, inducing other countries to follow suit, increased military preparations on all sides of our empire to challenge us.

"They have obstructed by every means our peaceful commerce and finally resorted to direct severance of economic relations, menacing gravely the existence of our empire. Patiently have we waited and long have we endured in hope that our Government might retrieve the situation in peace. But, our adversaries, showing not the least spirit of conciliation, have unduly delayed a settlement, and, in the meantime, they have intensified economic and political pressure to compel thereby our empire to submission.

"This trend of affairs would, if left unchecked, not only nullify our empire's efforts of many years for the sake of stabilization of East Asia but also endanger the very existence of our nation. The situation being such as it is, our empire, for its existence and self-defense, has no other recourse but to appeal to arms and to crush every obstacle in its path.

"The hallowed spirits of our imperial ancestors guarding us from any defeat and the courage of our subjects give us confidence that the task bequeathed by our forefather will be carried forward and that sources of the enemy will be speedily eradicated and enduring peace immutably established in East Asia, preserving thereby the glory of our empire."

Tokyo, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (Picked up from Official Radio by A.P.)—Domei said today it was "understood" Japanese forces have destroyed more than 300 American planes, including 200 in dogfights and on the ground in Hawaii.

The remainder, it said, were "believed" destroyed in the Philippines.

TROOPS BELIEVED ASHORE ON KEY ISLE OF LUBANG; AID OF 'FISHERMEN' SEEN

Islands Hard Hit By Nazi Air Raids — Capital Attacked Again — U. S. Camps And Bases Blasted — Casualties Put At 350

By R.P. Cronin, Jr.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Tuesday, Dec. 9—The Nazi press today emblazoned Japanese accounts of initial successes in the Pacific, and asked exultantly: "How's that for a starter?"

The commentary Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz wrote the American destiny off as already in the same category with Axis-conquered peoples.

"Today," trumpeted Korrespondenz, "people of the United States tread the same painful way which yesterday was taken by the Polish, Norwegian, French, Belgian, Netherlands, Yugoslav, Greek and Russian peoples."

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Tuesday, Dec. 9—Japanese troops were reported today to have landed with the probable help of "fishermen" fifth columnists on Lubang island, near the entrance to Manila Bay, as Japanese planes carried out widespread raids on military objectives throughout the Philippines, including moonlit assaults on Manila itself.

The report of the landing on Lubang, some sixty miles southwest of the big American naval base of Cavite, was not confirmed officially, but enough credence was placed in it that defense officers were trying urgently to communicate with the provincial governor.

Fifth Columnists Feared

Japanese fifth-column activity also was reported unofficially from Davao, on the big southern island of Mindanao, where 25,000 Japanese present a vital threat to Philippine security. One report said 3,000 armed Japanese already were resisting.

The United States aircraft carrier Langley was reported attacked in Malalag Bay, near Davao, in a series of daylight raids culminating in the raids early this morning on Manila. Other daylight objectives included Clark Field, a military airdrome forty miles north of Manila, where 200 casualties were reported unofficially.

350 Casualties Reported

At least 150 other casualties were reported outside the Manila area for a total of 350.

[An NBC report said it was officially stated than ten Japanese bombers attacked Nichols Field, at Manila, killing one soldier and wounding twelve, all Americans. One United States hangar was damaged and an officer's quarters burned.

[Other points were bombed with 100 dead and 100 wounded, half of the casualties being civilians, the army statement said, as quoted by NBC.

3 Night Alarms At Manila

[CBS and NBC reports indicated there were three night alarms at Manila, with the third lasting from about 3 A. M. today (2 P. M. Monday, E.S.T.) until 7.15 A. M.

[At Fort McKinley a stray bomb injured two American soldiers, NBC said, and CBS announced that two Japanese attacks on Clark Field "produced sanguinary results on both sides." Eighty Japanese planes apparently based in Formosa took part in the high-altitude raids, dogged by American interceptors.

["Manila was a bad dream throughout yesterday and last night," the CBS reporter said.]

Enemy Control Reported

A reliable source said the Japanese were in full control of Lubang Island and the main city of the same name. The island controls waterways between the middle Philippine archipelago and the China Sea.

Before the surprise Japanese onslaught on the United States possessions Japanese fishermen were known to have entered the Philippines illegally and established themselves on Lubang and other smaller islands to the south.

The island is mountainous, affording easy hideouts for fifth-columnists.

Air Attacks Beaten Off

Meanwhile, belated dispatches told how American pursuit planes beat off three separate Japanese air attacks on the northern and western Philippine coasts after the raiders caused minor damage to air fields, bridges and buildings.

The Japanese also dropped propaganda leaflets.

The Iba area on the Luzon coast, thirty-five miles northwest of Olongapo naval station and seventy miles northwest of Manila, also was reported under heavy attack with casualties totaling one hundred dead, many injured.

The airfield at Davao was blasted at the same time the Langley was attacked. Twenty-four Japanese raiders struck at this field, hitting hangars and ruining runways. Fifty persons were reported killed.

Other points raided in the Philippines were Baguio, summer mountain capital in mid-Luzon, where slight damage was caused to the near-by army camp, Fort John Hay; Camp Stotsenberg, where a number of buildings were set afire and United States Army phone connections to Manila cut; the Batan Islands, northernmost of the Philippines, and Aparri, northernmost port on Luzon.

The Langley was attacked twice while lying in Malalag Bay, an undeveloped United States naval base. One other United States warship at the scene was reported to have fired on the planes, bringing one down. A shoreside radio station also was bombed.

Wake Island Smashed

Aside from the attacks on the Philippines, Pan American Airways reported that Wake Island had been "smashed" by Japanese planes and the Japanese radio on Formosa said all big buildings on Guam were afire and that the island was ringed with Japanese warships.

The same broadcast said the Japanese South China fleet had bombarded Hongkong Monday morning, destroying twelve of the fourteen planes grounded at the Kowloon military airport. The Pan American Hongkong Clipper was damaged while tied up near by, an independent report said.

Manila Blacked Out

Last night Manila and all ports were blacked out and the latter closed to shipping. Schools were closed and police and firemen were on twenty-four-hour duty. The Government was rushing plans to move all primary school children from Manila.

There are no public air-raid shelters here.

MANILA IS HEAVILY BOMBED BY RAIDERS

Terrific Damage Reported in Smashing Assault on City Without Shelters—350 Casualties Outside City.

Manila, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—A fleet of Japanese warplanes assaulted Manila in the bright moonlight early this morning after a day of almost continuous blasting at United States military camps, bases and ports throughout the islands and an air attack on the United States aircraft tender Langley in Malalag Bay, near Davao.

There were unconfirmed reports of at least 350 casualties at half a dozen points outside Manila.

The city itself was heavily attacked.

Yesterday the city was reported to have been saved from air attack when interceptor planes from Clark Field met the Japanese over Pampagna province, forty miles to the north, shattered their formations and forced them to turn back.

[An NBC reporter, broadcasting in the midst of the early Tuesday morning air attack on Manila said that terrific damage had been caused, including the apparent destruction of the gasoline supply at Nichols Air Field.

[The German radio tonight broadcast a report, credited to Domei, the Japanese news agency, saying that Japanese air raiders had blown up a number of oil tanks at the United States naval headquarters in the Philippines and that the population of Manila was trying to flee the city in panic.]

150 Reported Killed

A series of attacks was made against Clark Field, military airdrome forty miles north of Manila, which adjoins Camp Stotsenburg. Unofficial reports said that there were 200 casualties.

Still another heavy raid was made on the area of Iba, on the Luzon coast, thirty-five miles northwest of Olongapo naval station and seventy miles northwest of Manila. Here there were reports of 100 dead, many injured.

The airfield at Davao was blasted the same time the Langley was attacked. Twenty-four Japanese raiders struck at this field, hitting hangars and ruining runways. Fifty per sons were reported killed in unconfirmed advices.

Other points raided in the Philippines were Baguio, summer mountain capital in mid-Luzon, where slight damage was caused to the nearby army camp, Fort John Hay; Camp Stotsenburg, where a number of buildings were set afire and United States Army telephone connections to Manila cut; the Batan Islands, northernmost of the Philippines, and Aparri, northernmost port on Luzon.

Japanese Residents Armed.

Unconfirmed reports said that 10,000 of the 25,000 Japanese who inhabit the Davao region at the southern end of the Philippines were armed and ready for action, and it was feared thta they would attempt to defend their holdings. It also was feared that the attacks on Davao might be a prelude to a more serious Japanese attempt to seize control of the sea lanes leading southward to Borneo.

The Langley was attacked twice while lying in Malalag Bay, an undeveloped United States naval base. One other United States warship at the scene was reported to have fired on the planes, bringing one down. A shoreside radio station also was bombed.

Wake Reported Smashed.

Aside from the attacks on the Philippines, Pan-American Airways reported that Wake Island has been smashed by Japanese planes, and the Japanese radio on Formosa said all big buildings on Guam were afire and that the island was ringed with Japanese warships. The same broadcast said the Japanese South China fleet had bombarded Hongkong on Monday morning, destroying twelve of the fourteen planes grounded at the Kowloon military airport.

Ships at sea between Manila and southeastern Asia were ordered to race for the nearest friendly port. About sixty Americans and Britons from Shanghai reached Manila safely on a French steamship.

Thousands of people in Manila at first were unable to believe that the war had come. Crowds milled in the streets until the blackout hour, while policemen, soldiers and constabulary rounded up the city's Japanese population of about 5,000. They were taken in trucks to various detention areas. No incidents were reported.

Tonight the Japanese women and children were released and returned to their homes, which were placed under military guard.

One Japanese was arrested in the Manila Bay port area where he was caught cutting telephone wires. Another was caught using a radio transmitter.

The attacks on Davao and Baguio were carried out by daylight. Army officials said they were investigating reports that Tarlac, on the island of Luzon, also had been bombed.

[Davao, a city of 13,000 at the mouth of the Davao River about 100 miles from Manila, is the center of the most populous Japanese settlement in the Philippines. It has been estimated that about 25,000 Japanese reside in the surrounding area, and that authorities have long kept a close watch on the district as a possible danger point.]

Francis B. Sayre, American High Commissioner in the Philippines, meanwhile declared that the situation was "well in hand."

"Japan without warning attacked America," Mr. Sayre declared. "The constituted authorities have the situation well in hand. There is no need for anxiety. With quiet determination and courage the Philippine American pople will show the stuff that's in them."

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, announced that a small contingent of American marines stationed at Peiping had been forced to surrender to the Japanese and that the American gunboat Wake at Shanghai likewise had been compelled to surrender.

"There was nothing else they could do," Admiral Hart said, emphasizing the futility of resistance against overwhelmingly superior forces.

U. S. Planes Head Northward.

United States Army bombers and pursuit planes roared into the air and headed northward at dawn today soon after word reached Manila of the outbreak of hostilities between Japan and the United States.

On being advised of the attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Lt. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the United States forces in the Far East, placed his entire command on the alert.

Admiral Hart declared all steps had been taken to meet the situation.

For the last 10 days Admiral Hart has kept the fleet out of Manila Bay, patrolling the Philippines from the north near the Japanese Island of Formosa to Burma on the south.

Britain's defense forces at Hong Kong and Singapore and Dutch forces at Batavia also have been at battle stations in anticipation of Japanese attack.

Appeals to Populace.

Gen. MacArthur appealed to the populace to maintain self-control. His statement was aimed at preventing panic and a general rush to the countryside over the narrow roads needed for defense forces.

"Nothing," he said, "can help our military effort more than a continuation of the calmness and self-restraint which have been observed during the past weeks of uncertainty and anxiety.

"Each individual should continue with fortitude his usual routine and prepare to carry out with promptitude the authorities' directions.

"These orders will be for the security and well-being of the people.

"The military is on the alert and every possible defense measure is being undertaken. My message is one of serenity and confidence."

Ships at sea between Manila and southeastern Asia were ordered to race for the nearest friendly port. About sixty Americans and Britons from Shanghai reached Manila safely on a French steamer.

Soldiers Rounded Up

Soldiers in Manila rounded up about 5,000 Japanese, and with a few exceptions their stores and banks were closing. Japanese women and children were released and returned to their homes in Japanese districts, which were placed under military guard.

One Japanese was arrested by a Filipino army squad while he was cutting telephone lines in the port area.

Many civilians were going to the country from Manila, but the city generally was calm, and in most cases normal pursuits were being followed. The streets were crowded until the blackout hour.

"No Need For Anxiety"

The American High Commissioner in the Philippines, Francis P. Sayre, asserted the situation was in hand and "there is no need for anxiety."

"With quiet determination and courage," he said, "the Philippine American people will show the stuff that's in them."

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, announced the surrender of a small contingent of United States marines at Peiping and of the gunboat Wake at Shanghai.

"There was nothing else they could do," he said.

Nichols Field Gas Supply Reported Destroyed

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 8.—An N. B. C. reporter, broadcasting in the midst of an early Tuesday morning air attack on Manila, said that "terrific damage" had been left by the Japanese attackers, including the apparent destruction of the gasoline supply at Nichols air field.

There was a lull in the action some time after 3 a. m., Manila time, but at 3:41 a. m., the antiaircraft fire reopened, said the radio reporter, Don Bell. He added that the fire had died down at Nichols field, in the southern part of Manila. He continued:

"From what we can see from the top of this building, the whole sky is a brilliant red."

A few minutes after the renewed antiaircraft firing, the all-clear was sounded.

The raiders had smashed at Fort William McKinley, and the Radio Corporation of America short-wave transmitter as well as Nichols Field.

Fire Reported Raging

Bert Silliman, colleague of Bell's, had said earlier that "the fire is simply raging out there."

Bell, standing above a bombproof shelter, said that the antiaircraft fire, in progress for 15 minutes before he spoke, had quited down.

A large fire was left burning in the vicinity of Fort McKinley and Nichols Field, Bell said, and gasoline dumps appeared to be afire. He added that the action was "concluded for the present time."

But at 2:32 p. m., E. S. T. (3:32 a. m., Tuesday, Manila time), Bell casually remarked that "perhaps, ladies and gentlemen, you can hear the sound of those Japanese bombers again. Apparently the raid is not over yet."

Then Bell went on, saying that Corregidor, Army base guarding Manila, had been bombed but "nothing very serious happened."

200 Reported Wounded North of Manila

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Bert Silen, N. B. C. correspondent in Manila, said today that 200 persons had been wounded in Japanese bombing of Clark Field, 150 miles from the Philippine capital.

Propaganda leaflets were dropped urging Filipinos to assist Japanese to "liberate you from the tyrannical hands of the United States."

Royal Arch Gunnison, in a broadcast to WOR, Mutual from Manila, reported that Japanese parachute troops had landed in the Philippines.

He said native Japanese had seized control of some communities where they are thickly concentrated, but said that in other sections Filipino police were rounding up Japanese nationals and taking them to concentration camps.

Mr. Gunnison also reported, without detail, that "in the naval war the A. B. C. D. fleets under American command appeared to be successful against Japanese air and sea invasions," WOR announced.

Manila Not Raided.

Mr. Silen in his report emphasized that Manila itself had not been raided, contrary to reports abroad, but said camp Ord, 100 miles north of the city and not far from Clark Field, had been attacked.

Mr. Silen also said he had received confirmation of reports that the Pan-American Airways base at Guam had been attacked by Japanese air raiders who set large fires in gasoline stores.

Thirteen Japanese planes participated in the raid on Davao, which took place at 8 a.m. (7 p.m. E. S. T. Sunday), Mr. Silen said. He reported that a Japanese aircraft carrier had been sighted off Davao Bay.

The correspondent said reports were circulating in Manila that an American transport had been sunk 1,600 miles from Manila but that the reports had not been confirmed by Army and Navy officials.

BRITISH LOCKED IN BATTLE WITH FOE IN MALAYA

Fighting Fiercely To Shatter Spearhead Of Japanese Invasion

R. A. F. Blasts Nipponese Transports—Invaders Bombing Penang

DEC 9 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Tuesday, Dec. 9—Bombs started dropping on Singapore at 4 A. M. today. Searchlights and anti-aircraft guns went into action immediately.

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 8—In heavy and confused fighting, British Imperial troops struggled tonight to break the spearhead of the Japanese invasion of northern Malaya, British Far Eastern headquarters announced.

Earlier, it had been stated that the surviving Japanese invasion ships were in flight and that Japanese troops were being mopped up.

But tonight the fighting on land continued and the British said they were heavily attacking Japanese transports, newly-established Japanese footholds and troops who still were attempting to land.

British Positions Bombed

For their part, the Japanese were bombing British positions 20 miles northeast of Penang on the main line of Malaya's north-south railroad.

Military authorities here were unable to confirm a Manila report that the Japanese had tried unsuccessfully to land in British north Borneo.

The core of action was about the town and airdrome of Kota Bharu, near the northern terminus of a railway connecting with Singapore and standing at the frontier with Thailand, in which Japanese landings had been acknowledged.

The invaders had landed about Kota Bharu under covering naval fire from five transports. (The probability also was seen that other Japanese forces were attacking from across that frontier.)

Troopships Attacked

Ten more troopships some ten miles to the south were put under long British bombing attack and at least two of them were declared set aflame as additional bomber and torpedo squadrons joined the attack.

"By 8 A. M.," said a mid-day communique, "all remaining enemy ships appeared to be retiring northward, leaving some landing craft and troops ashore who were being mopped up by our land forces." Still earlier, a communique had told of Japanese warships being put to flight under heavy British fire.

In southern Thailand, the Japanese were observed to be landing in the Patani and Singora areas.

Sixty-three Die In Singapore

Aerial activity was heavy, 63 persons being killed and 133 injured in violent bombing assaults on Singapore itself. No damage was done to the military installations of this mighty base, however, it was stated.

Three airdromes in northern Malaya were bombed, it was added, but apparently with little damage.

Thailand's capitulation to the invaders, who struck there both from the sea and across the border of French Indo-China, was announced in Bangkok. Dispatches stated that negotiations were now under way with the Japanese.

Japanese Invade Siam

Japanese troops, these dispatches added, poured into Thailand from the coastal points of Singora, Patani and Prachuapgirikhand in areas close to Malaya.

The vast pattern of the Japanese assault was reflected also in the announcement of military headquarters here that air attacks had been made against British positions in the Hongkong area.

The British commander-in-chief in the Far East, Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, and Vice Admiral Sir Geoffrey Layton declared in an order of their day their confidence in ultimate victory.

"We Are Ready"

"We were ready," they said. "We had plenty of warning and our preparations are made and tested. . . .

"We do not forget the years of patience and forbearance with which we have borne with dignity and discipline petty insults inflicted upon us by the Japanese in the Far East.

"We know those things were done only because the Japanese thought they could take advantage of our supposed weakness.

"Now, when Japan herself has decided to put matters to a sterner test she will find she has made a grievous mistake."

63 Dead, 133 Injured In Singapore; Fight Continues to North

Routing of Two Forces After Malaya Landing Reported by British

DEC 9 1941

By the Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 8.—The Singapore command issued a communique at 5:30 p.m. (5:30 a.m., E. S. T.) today acknowledging that "confused fighting continues in the Kota Bahru airdrome area." Kota Bahru is 300 miles north of Singapore, an immediate target of Japanese invasion.

Earlier, Japanese units attempting to penetrate Malaya from the north were reported being "mopped up." Singapore itself had been under air attack today, with the casualties counted at 63 dead and 133 injured.

Japanese warcraft which had landed troops at two places in northern Malaya near the Thailand border were put to flight and forces remaining on the beaches were heavily machine-gunned, the British announced.

2 Landings in Thailand.

A later communique tonight said that there also had been two Japanese landings in Southern Thailand, but that mopping up operations were continuing near Kota Bahru, on the Gulf of Siam just inside Northern Malaya from the Thailand border.

Three British airplanes were acknowledged to be missing.

The British Island of Penang, off the west coast of the Malay Peninsula near the Thailand border, was raided early today by eight planes. An airfield was machine-gunned but there were no casualties.

Japanese planes also were reported to have bombed the mainland opposite Penang, causing several casualties.

About 1:30 a.m. today (1:30 p.m. Sunday, E. S. T.), the British Far East command said, a warship-guarded convoy of five merchantmen approached the mouth of the Kelantan River, north of Kota Barhu and landings began under the cover of naval fire.

"Fire at once was opened by our troops and later severe fighting developed on the shore, particularly in the neighborhood of the Kota Bahru airdrome," it said.

Units Distinguish Themselves.

"In this confused and difficult fighting some famous Indian units are reported to have distinguished themselves."

Later, it said, 10 merchant vessels were sighted 10 miles further south (on the British Malaya side of the boundary) and the R. A. F. set at least two large ones afire in attacks by night and day.

Several British bomber and torpedo plane squadrons took off at daybreak to continue the attack.

The British said results so far were not known, but all the remaining Japanese ships appeared to be withdrawing northward "leaving some landing craft and troops ashore who were being mopped up by our land forces."

British flyers reported that Japanese troops also had been landed from transports and destroyers at Patani, on the Thai section of the Malay peninsula 60 miles from the border of British Malaya.

Announcement of the flight of the Japanese naval units followed by some hours a communique acknowledging Japanese landings at Sabak and Kemassin, a few miles farther north.

The first communique said the troops which had landed at Kemassin were filtering through toward Kota Bahru, which is the site of an airdrome and is near the northern terminus of a railway leading to Singapore.

Sabak, where British aircraft were reported to have given the Japanese landing forces a heavy pounding as they disembarked, is about 13 miles south of Kota Bahru.

The British said one attacking Hudson bomber had scored a direct hit on a barge laden with Japanese troops.

(It was not immediately clear from the second British communique whether the Japanese force which was pushing toward Kota Bahru had been driven back to the shore or whether it referred only to the action at Sabak.)

Waves of Bombers Hit Singapore.

Three hours before the landings in the north, which took place about 1 a.m. (1 p.m. Eastern standard time), two waves of Japanese bombers attacked this great naval stronghold.

Casualties on Singapore Island outside the naval base were estimated at from 50 to 100.

A communique said 11 planes in all took part in the assault, but that they failed to drop any bombs on the naval base itself and that they caused no casualties. A few buildings were reported damaged, however.

The attackers were said to have come in at an altitude of about 17,000 feet.

There were no American nor British casualties in the morning raid. Windows of a building housing the United Press Singapore office were shattered and automatic printers were put out of order.

The Japanese air raiders struck before an alarm could be sounded, but disappeared when British fighter planes took to the air.

(Dutch planes from the Netherlands East Indies participated in the air action over Singapore, the BBC today quoted dispatches from Batavia as saying. The broadcast, heard by NBC, said British planes had been invited to use East Indies bases.

During the aerial attack gunfire was heard off Mersing, ninety miles east of Singapore on the east coast of Malaya, but the significance of the action was not immediately clear.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander in chief in the Far East, and Vice Admiral Sir Geoffrey Layton meanwhile issued an order of the day expressing confidence in the outcome of the struggle with Japan.

"We are ready," their statement said. "We had plenty of warning and our preparations are made and tested . . .

Japan's Mistake

"We do not forget the years of patience and forebearance with which we have borne with dignity and discipline petty insults inflicted upon us by the Japanese in the Far East. We know those things were only done because the Japanese thought they could take advantage of our supposed weakness.

"Now, when Japan herself has decided to put matters to a sterner test, she will find she has made a grievous mistake."

Islands Attacked, Australia Brought Into Spreading War

Formal Declaration Slated Tomorrow; Japs Rounded Up

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 8.—Australia was brought into Japan's spreading war in the Pacific today when Japanese forces attacked tiny Nauru Island and the Australian cabinet decided to declare war.

The Japanese also attacked Ocean Island, administrative headquarters for Britain's Gilbert and Ellice Islands colony, and a rich source of phosphates.

These attacks, presumably by air, were announced to Australia by Prime Minister John Curtin in a broadcast.

He said no formal declaration of war had been received from Japan and informed the dominion that its war declaration would be issued formally tomorrow.

Former Nazi Possession.

Nauru, only 12 miles around and 26 miles south of the Equator, is a former German possession whose mandate is shared by Australia, New Zealand and Britain.

The commonwealth swiftly went on a war footing. Air raid and defense measures already are under way.

Detectives have begun rounding up Japanese nationals, of whom there are believed to be about 200 left. They will be interned.

Regulations to restrict gasoline consumption and control transport will be issued tomorrow.

Mr. Curtin, who called this the gravest hour in Australia's history and held an emergency meeting of his cabinet, said more men would be transferred to war factories from civilian work and announced that air and military officers had gone to war stations in accordance with long-arranged plans with Britain, the United States and the Netherlands Indies.

Christmas Leaves Canceled.

All Christmas leaves of the fighting forces have been canceled.

Mr. Curtin called on the people of Australia "to give the best they can in service to their country."

Announcing that Japan had begun the war of the Pacific, Mr. Curtin said in a statement:

"The fighting forces (of Australia) are at their battle stations and every other man and woman should be at some place of usefulness. The Australian government has taken immediate steps according to a plan to defend Australian, British and United States interests."

Pacific Conflict Sweeps Into Australia's Sphere

Japanese Bomb Ocean And Nauru Islands—Commonwealth Expected To Declare War Today

[By the Associated Press.]

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 8—The war in the Pacific swept into Australia's sphere today with Japanese attacks reported on the mandated island of Nauru and Ocean Island, administrative headquarters for Britain's Gilbert and Ellice Island's colony, a rich source of phosphates.

The assaults, presumably delivered by air from Japanese-held territory in the welter of South Pacific islands, were announced over the air by Prime Minister-Defense Minister John Curtin who said Australia's declaration of war would be issued formally tomorrow.

Dominion On War Footing

The Australian Commonwealth had gone swiftly on a war footing and Curtin said all necessary steps had been taken to defend Australian, British and American interests.

Detectives were rounding up Japanese subjects for internment. It was believed that only about 200 Japanese were still in Australia.

"The fighting forces are at their battle stations and every other man and woman should be at some place of usefulness," Curtin said.

Australia's plans, before the outbreak, included any assistance necessary or possible for the Netherlands East Indies, whose Government had been the first to declare war against Japan.

Batavia Asks Planes

In Batavia the Dutch Colonial Government asked Australia to send planes to assist in defense.

The Dutch also were rounding up Japanees, having trucked 2,000 of them to internment camps.

Colonial Minister Hubertus J. Van Mook said the Japanese offensive "found us ready to join in the general defense" and Queen Wilhelmina, in London, declared that "the (Dutch) kingdom considers itself at war with Japan because aggression which aims at destroying peace-loving nations one after the other can, must and will be resisted in firm alliance."

NETHERLAND ARMY AT PEAK IN INDIES

Mobilization Is Completed, Blackout and Food Control Are Put Into Effect

NAVY REQUISITIONS SHIPS

BATAVIA, Netherlands Indies, Dec. 8 (AP)—The government completed mobilization tonight of the army of these islands, took measures to avoid any food shortage and requisitioned a large part of the merchant marine for the navy.

Dr. Hubertus J. van Mook, head of the Economics Department, announced severe penalties for food hoarding.

A blackout was in effect throughout the Indies.

The Netherlands Indies called on the armed forces today to fight "until death if need be" and disclosed that Australia had been asked to send planes to assist in defense.

In the early morning, police and army forces quietly rounded up about 2,000 Japanese subjects and took them in army trucks to an internment camp.

Batavia, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Netherlands East Indies, first Government to declare war on Japan, called on the armed forces today to fight "until death, if need be" and disclosed that Australia had been asked to send planes to assist in defense. General mobilization was proclaimed in the outer provinces but was not ordered immediately in Java, it was announced by Aneta, Netherlands Indies news agency.

Vice-Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich ordered a large part of the merchant marine fleet requisitioned temporarily by the navy. In the early morning, police and army forces quietly rounded up about 2,000 Japanese and took them in army trucks to an internment camp.

The Colonial Minister Hubertus J. van Mook, said that the Japanese war declaration had "found us ready to join in the general defense." Aneta reported that the public had reacted calmly to the spread of the war. Shares held an even level on the stock exchange. Air-raid precautions services were mobilized.

Warned of Parachutists

BATAVIA, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (AP)—A warning against possible fifth-column action and attempts by the Japanese to land air-borne troops in the Netherlands Indies was issued to the populace today by General H. ter Poorten, Commander in Chief of the Army.

The commander's order warned inhabitants not to leave their homes without identification cards.

At the same time the naval commander asked inhabitants to report any persons attempting to conceal Japanese nationals.

[The Free French radio at Brazzaville, West Africa, heard last night by the Columbia Broadcasting System here, said General Charles de Gaulle's Free French National Committee had offered the New Hebrides, New Caledonia, Tahiti and the Society Islands in the Pacific to the United States for use as bases.]

Hongkong Sees Land Assaults Due After Raids

Japan Seizes International Settlement at Shanghai; Closes U. S. Consulate

HONGKONG, Dec. 8 (AP).—This little British crown colony on the south China coast, facing Japanese forces just across the border in Kwangtung Province, was attacked from the air twice today, but ineffectively, according to official announcements.

Troop formations of 300 to 400 Japanese were observed on the other side of the frontier, but the only attacks were delivered by comparatively small numbers of planes. At least one was shot down. Assaults by land were believed to be imminent.

A communique issued after the second raid declared: "The defense plan continues to develop satisfactorily. . . . In a raid this afternoon, a few bombs were dropped, but the raiders scattered as soon as they were fired on, and damage and casualties were not extensive." In the morning attack nine planes bombed Kowloon, mainland sector of the colony.

[The German radio was heard at London giving a Shanghai dispatch which said the Japanese had taken over the small British concession on Kowloon Island, near Canton, south China. At Berlin, the official news agency, D. N. B., said Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported the Japanese had seized the British concession of Tientsin, in the north of China.]

Shanghai Consulate Closed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Department of State announced tonight that the American Consulate General in the International Settlement at Shanghai had been closed at the demand of Japanese authorities. The American consular officers, the judge of the United States Court for China and the American District Attorney for China are, at the request of the Japanese, living in the Metropole Hotel, but other members of the consular staff have been permitted to remain in their homes. There are twenty-four American consular officers in Shanghai.

Japanese Attack Hongkong.

Hongkong, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Japanese planes struck twice at this closely-guarded British colony today, running into heavy fire which the British said brought one of the raiders down and scattered the others.

A communique after the second raid declared "the defense plan continues to develop satisfactorily. . . . In a raid this afternoon a few bombs were dropped but the raiders scattered as soon as they were fired on and damage and casualties were not extensive."

In the morning attack nine planes bombed Kowloon, mainland sector of the colony.

Formation of 300 to 400 Japanese were observed on the Japanese held side of the frontier and they were expected imminently to try to cross it. British battle posts were said to have been manned since dawn this morning.

Wave After Wave Of Japanese Planes Attack Hawaii

DEC 9 1941

Quick Air Blows Deal Death and Destruction To Vacation Paradise

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Dec. 8.—Japanese bombers, striking lightning-like aerial blows from off the Pacific, brought death and destruction yesterday morning to this mid-Pacific island fortress and vacation paradise.

Scores of men in United States uniform, as well as civilians, died under the savage blows which shattered the Sabbath morning peace and spread the European war to the vast expanse of the Pacific Ocean.

At sea the United States Fleet apparently had engaged the enemy. Destroyers steamed full speed from Pearl Harbor, and spectators reported seeing shell splashes in the ocean. Unconfirmed reports said the attacking planes came from two enemy aircraft carriers and probably these and other enemy ships were being fought by the American ships.

(Unconfirmed reports from Panama and London said a Japanese aircraft carrier operating off Hawaii had been sunk by United States Navy ships.)

At Least 50 Planes Counted.

Wave after wave of enemy planes steamed over Oahu Island for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Witnesses said they counted at least 50 planes in the initial attack, which the Army said started at 8:10 a.m. Honolulu time (1:40 p.m. Eastern standard time). The attack ended at 9:25 a.m.

A censorship was clamped down on outgoing reports soon after the first telephoned reports.

(The White House, in the first official American resume of losses, said this morning that "one old battleship" had capsized in Pearl Harbor, that a destroyer had been sunk, several small boats damaged and that Oahu Island casualties numbered 3,000. Half of the 3,000 were killed and the others wounded, Secretary Stephen Early at the White House said.)

An N. B. C. observer radioed direct from the scene to New York that the United States battleship Oklahoma had been set afire.)

Enemy Planes Felled.

Bursts of anti-aircraft shells filled the sky. Two enemy planes fell in the Honolulu area.

The attack seemed to center at Hickam Field and at Pearl Harbor, heavily fortified naval base.

The planes came in from the southwest, most of them flying high, a few flying low. Five dropped to within 100 feet of Pearl Harbor to launch their attack. An oil tank was set ablaze and unconfirmed reports said one ship in the harbor was on its side and four others were set afire.

While some planes were attacking Pearl Harbor others headed for Hickam Field to drop bombs.

The attack was not confined to fortified areas. Wahiawa, town of 3,000 population 20 miles northwest of Honolulu, reported that 10 or more persons were injured when enemy bullets sprayed the streets.

Several fires started in the Honolulu area were immediately controlled. Fire Chief Wallace Blaisdell said the fires "were not as bad as I expected."

Big Holes in Some Streets.

Some streets were pocked with big holes, and citizens were wounded by the bomb fragments.

One of the bombs that started Honolulu fires fell near Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter's residence. He escaped injury and soon afterward proclaimed M-day emergency defense measures.

Perhaps the first to die was Bob Tyce, owner of a civilian airport near Honolulu. One plane swooped low and machine-gunned him as he was attempting to spin the propeller of a plane.

Spectators on the hills back of Honolulu could see dogfights all over the area as United States Navy and Army planes took to the sky after the first surprise. Anti-aircraft guns mingled their noise with the roar of motors and the explosion of bombs.

Japanese Take Over International Zone At Shanghai

Minimum of Curbs Put on Americans and Britons in Area

DEC 9 1941

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8.—Japanese army and navy forces swarmed throughout the main section of the century-old International Settlement today, but their officers proclaimed a minimum of restrictions on Americans and Britons in the area as long as they preserved law and order.

The Japanese Consulate asked the Settlement administration to carry on.

The newly-occupied section was the one from which United States marines and British soldiers have kept the Japanese for years. It was only a week ago that the marines withdrew.

As the world war came to this city, the British gunboat Peterel, a 310-ton craft which normally carried 25 men, was sunk. She appeared to blow up at her anchorage. The Japanese bombarded her with artillery and machine-gun fire and she blazed furiously and sank. The crew was believed lost.

(In Tokio, the Japanese broadcast an announcement that they had sunk the boat.)

The Japanese served notice on the commander of the United States gunboat Wake that the war had begun.

The Wake, left here for communications among Americans after the Marines withdrew, was forced to surrender to the Japanese, Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the Asiatic Fleet, announced in Manila. At the time of capture the Wake was anchored not far from the Peterel.

The Japanese seized the American-owned Shanghai Power & Light Co., in the down-river area which the Japanese have held since 1931.

Banks were asked to close for the time being.

Singapore, Dec. 8 (AP)—An official report from the Northern Malaya front said today that all Japanese surface craft led at high speed under British fire after leaving a few troops on the beaches. The troops were heavily machine-gunned, the report said.

London Admits Truce.

London, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Reuters said that it was announced officially today in Bangkok that Thailand had ceased resisting a Japanese invasion temporarily and that negotiations were under way.

Japanese troops were reported to have landed at two points on the Gulf of Siam, Singora and Pattani, far down the Thai coast near British Malaya. They were said also to have crossed Thailand's frontier from their base at Siemreap in southern French Indo-China.

Berlin Hears of Fight.

Long War Is Ahead, Premier Reported Warning Japan

Tojo Said to Have Told People Fate of Empire Hangs in Balance

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—D. N. B. reported today that Japanese Prime Minister Gen. Tideki Tojo had broadcast a message to his people warning them that they must be prepared for a long war with the United States and that the fate of the Japanese Empire hung in the balance.

DEC 9 1941

Gen. Tojo placed responsibility for the conflict on the United States, according to Domei, accusing Washington of making wholly unacceptable demands on Japan.

"In order to destroy her opponents and establish a new order in East Asia, the Japanese people must count on a long war," Gen. Tojo was quoted as saying. "The rise or decline of the Japanese Empire and all of East Asia is dependent upon the outcome."

He asserted he was convinced Japan eventually would prove victorious because "history shows that she never has suffered defeat."

Gen. Tojo was said to have expressed satisfaction with Japan's alliance with Germany and Italy and said her bonds with those nations were growing ever stronger.

The Premier was quoted as saying the United States demands on Tokio included unconditional and total withdrawal of Japanese forces from China, withdrawal of recognition from the Japanese-sponsored Nanking government of Wang Ching-wei and renunciation of the three-power pact.

He declared Japan had showed "unbelievable patience in trying to avert war, "solely because of her desire to spare mankind tremendous suffering."

D.N.B. also reported that Emperor Hirohito had summoned the Japanese Diet (Parliament) to a special session December 15 to approve emergency war measures.

NAZIS PUT BLAME UPON ROOSEVELT

Spokesman Calls President "Father Of War," Says World Will Curse Him

Official German Reaction "Won't Be Long," One Newspaper Predicts

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Dec. 8—Adolf Hitler and a small group of his official advisers alone knew tonight how Germany would identify herself with Japan's war on the United States, but official spokesmen and the press were intent on trying to fix the blame on President Roosevelt for the outbreak of hostilities.

"We are not in a hurry to make our decisions," one authorized spokesman said. "Suffice it to say that Japan and we are allies."

The authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, said, however, that "it won't be long before the official German reaction to the new events in the Far East is made public," and that German political circles were impressed by the speed and proportions of the Japanese attack on "the United States' land bridge to the Far East."

"The Father Of War"

The Wilhelmstrasse official spokesman was the first to break into a diatribe against the United States President, calling him "the father of war" and declaring the curse of the world would fall upon him.

"Now Roosevelt has the war he wanted," the sopkesman said at the regular daily press conference, without waiting for foreign correspondents to ask him questions.

"Now American boys will be plowed under. The Shylock in the White House first tried to bluff Japan, then encircled her every way to prevent her from realizing her national principles and territorial needs."

DEC 9 1941

The spokesman admitted that the tripartite pact and its implications (which bind Germany and Italy to go to the aid of Japan if Japan is "attacked") were under discussion, and he said that Tokyo and Berlin were in the closest contact.

The organ of the Foreign Office, Deutsche Diplomatisch und Politische Korrespondenz, appeared with the declaration that "Roosevelt and Churchill . . . have wanted war against Japan at any price." This inspired commentary went on to say that the Japanese diplomats in Washington "wrestled in behalf of peace" and the Japanese press "showed almost superhuman patience."

Roosevelt Assailed

"Roosevelt thought he could play the same tactical game against Japan as Stalin tried vainly to play against Germany."

Dienst aus Deutschland said the German press was registering military reports objectively, but expressing admiration at the lightning-like character of Japan's first attacks and paying tribute to the Japanese army and navy "for their traditional bravery and military strength."

Germany's Axis partner, Italy, refrained from saying what aid, if any, would be given to Japan under the tripartite pact. Observers assumed Rome would do whatever Berlin did. The Rome radio, as heard in New York, said Japan's declaration of war involves "the existence of a state of war between the Axis powers and the United States."

Quick Nazi Decision on War In Pacific Forecast in Berlin

Reaction to Japanese Attack on U.S. Is Hitler's Secret as Rome Denies Saying Axis Is Now Fighting America.

DEC 9 1941

By Louis Lochner

Berlin, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The well-posted German commentary Dienst aus Deutschland predicted tonight that "it will not be long before official German reaction to the new events in the Far East are made public." Meanwhile, however, Adolf Hitler and a small group of his official advisers alone knew how Germany would identify herself in regard to Japan's war on the United States.

Earlier today Dienst, which has close connections with the Foreign Office, said in a special issue that the American people and President Roosevelt may be assumed to be the only persons surprised at the expansion of the war to the Far East.

The news service said it could be assumed undoubtedly that Tokio kept Berlin and Rome informed of all phases and therefore informed quarters were less surprised than the German public.

A Wilhelmstrasse spokesman said today the curse of the entire world would rest upon President Roosevelt, whom he called "the father of war," as he commented on the Far Eastern war.

The spokesman gave his comment in the daily press conference without waiting for questions from foreign correspondents.

He said he was not authorized to expound on the international angle as to who was the aggressor. However, he stated: "But from my commentary there should be little doubt about that."

As seen from a historical point of view, he asserted, it was unimportant whether war would be declared between Germany and the United States as a result of Far Eastern events.

"Now Roosevelt has the war he has wanted," the spokesman said.

"Now American boys will be plowed under.

"The shylock in the White House first tried to bluff Japan, then encircled her every way to prevent her from realizing her national principles and territorial needs."

"Who of us hasn't held his breath as news came that the cannons have begun to speak in the Pacific?

"Who wouldn't shudder at the knowledge that the entire earth is now dominated by one thought—war; that mothers and children carry in their hearts only one conception—war; that tears and blood have become the coat of arms of the world?"

The spokesman then tried to trace the recent history of Japanese-American relations, putting the entire blame for their worsening on the United States Government.

Opposing Forces Now Clear

"The opposing fronts are now clear," he said. "Decisions have started. Whole peoples are entering the arena. We know the good will triumph. With veneration we listened to the words of the Japanese Prime Minister."

All attempts by foreign correspondents to elicit an indication of Germany's next official step failed.

The spokesman admitted that the tripartite pact and its implications were under discussion, but would not say what conclusion had been drawn from this relationship.

[The pact binds the signatories to come to the aid of an allied Power if it is attacked by a nation which was not in the war when it was signed in September, 1940.]

He said that Tokio and Berlin were in the closest contact. They are allies, he said, but he would not state whether that meant military co-operation. He declared Germany never was in a hurry about its decisions.

"As a result of constantly increasing warmongering of the American President Roosevelt in recent weeks, the first clashes between Japanese and United States armed forces occurred today," said the first of a special communique, which was divided into two sections.

"The war-incendiarist Roosevelt finally has reached his aim by also setting afire the Far East," said the second part. "Alongside Churchill he is one of those chiefly responsible for inciting this war."

DNB, the official news agency, reported today that the Japanese Foreign Office had handed the United States and British embassies and the legations of Canada and Australia the formal declaration of war and requested that their diplomatic functions cease immediately.

They were assured that, in accord with international law, all measures for the well-being of their nationals would be taken, DNB said.

Rome Denies War Statement.

Rome, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Rome radio denied broadcasting today any statement that the Japanese declaration of war on the United States put into operation Italy's and Germany alliance with Japan in the three-power pact.

The Rome radio did say: "Although Japan was bound by the three-power pact to make war should the United States wage war against Germany and Italy, she did not wait for this."

Reliable persons described the Italian attitude as one of solidarity and sympathy with Japan.

The Italian people were following events with great attention, although most of them were unable to read of Japan's declaration of war until noon. There are no Monday morning newspapers in Italy.

When the newspapers appeared, they refrained from comment except to say in headlines that Japan's attack was the "inevitable consequence of Roosevelt's provocative policy."

The impression here today was that neither Italy nor Germany would move against the United States immediately under the three-power pact as a result of hostilities in the Pacific.

Authoritative political persons were silent, but in Italian and German circles it was said unofficially that the attitude of Rome and Berlin for the present would be one of watchful waiting.

DEC 9 1941

The CBS listening station at New York quoted the Rome station as saying "the declaration of war was made some time before actual operations had taken place, and it involves, in accordance with the three-power pact, the existence of a state of war between the two Axis powers and the United States."

GREAT BRITAIN DECLARES WAR AHEAD OF U. S.

NationMovingFasterThan Engagements, Churchill Declares

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 8—Britain sprang proudly today to the aid of her kinsman and ancient friends, declaring war upon Japan even before the United States itself had taken formal action.

Winston Churchill rose before an impressively united and cheering Parliament to make good without reserve the pledge that he had solemnly delivered a month ago—the pledge that the outbreak of Japanese-American hostilities would put the British instantly at the side of the United States.

Arranges Timing With U. S.

He had spoken during the night with President Roosevelt over transatlantic telephone, he said, to arrange "the time of our respective declarations," and, he went on:

"The President told me he would this morning send a message to Congress which, as is well known, can alone make a declaration of war on behalf of the United States.

I then answered him that we would follow immediately. However, it soon appeared that British territory in Malaya had also been the object of Japanese attack and later on it was announced from Tokio that the Japanese high command—a curious form, not the imperial Japanese government, but the Japanese high command—had declared that a state of war existed between them and Great Britain and the United States.

No Time Lost in U. S.

"That being so, there was no need to wait for the declaration of Congress. In any case, American time is nearly six hours behind ours. The cabinet, which met at 12.30 today, therefore authorized an immediate declaration of war upon Japan. Instructions to this effect were sent to His Majesty's ambassador in Tokyo."

Thus he told the great story of the joining again of two great nations who together have never lost a war. And in flat and almost deprecatory terms he informed the world that Britain was ready and moving without loss of time.

"The house will see," he remarked, "that no time has been lost and that we actually are ahead of our engagements."

Recalls Roosevelt Appeal

He recalled Mr. Roosevelt's personal appeal to Emperor Hirohito—and how that appeal had been answered.

"Now that the issue is joined, and in the most direct manner," he went on, "it only remains for two great democracies to face their task with whatever strength God may give them.

"We may hold ourselves very fortunate, and I think we may rate our affairs not wholly ill-guided, that we were not attacked alone by Japan in our period of weakness after Dunkirk."

Recalling that China and the Dutch East Indies had instantly entered the mighty alliance, he nevertheless proclaimed that a great struggle was ahead.

Stresses Gravity

"It is of the highest importance," he told Parliament, "that there should be no underrating of the gravity of the new dangers we have to meet, either here or in the United States. . . .

"We have at least four fifths of the population of the world on our side We are responsible for their safety and for their future.

"In the past we have had a ligh which flickered. In the present w have a light which flames. In the future there will be a light which shines over all the land and seas."

"More United Than Ever"

Hardly had the Prime Minister taken his seat than the Laborite Lee Smith leaped up to declare: "The country is more united than ever and must redouble its efforts." Said the Liberal, Sir Percy Harris: "The Government has behind it a united nation."

Former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, often a critic in the past, congratulated the Government for its foresight in having a fleet in the Pacific.

Labor's executive committee resolved that it was proud to "stand alongside the United States and determined to give everything in its power toward attainment of complete victory."

Later Churchill, in a world broadcast, declared that "we are fighting for the maintenance of the parliamentary system," and stressed again what he had said in the House of Commons—that the Japanese attacks on Britain and the United States preceded a notification of a state of war, announced not by the Japanese Government, but by the Japanese high command.

Blames Secret Societies

Churchill blamed the attacks on Japan's militant "secret societies."

"There has been for a long time in Japan," he said, "a number of military societies, secret societies which have asserted their views on what policy Japan should take by murdering the ministers who might not suit the ginger to their taste, and it is to those bodies that most of the violent action of Japan, so fateful for her future must be ascribed."

The Prime Minister appealed to aircraft workers to redouble their efforts, pointing out that Britain had diverted supplies to Russia and that United States aid could not be counted upon at present because of the America's own needs.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Britain, like the United States, under Japanese attack, today declared war on the Tokio government, without waiting for Washington first to formulate an American declaration.

Prime Minister Churchill said:

"It only remains now for the two great democracies to face their tasks with whatever strength God may give them."

At the same time Britain made allies of Thailand and Free China.

DEC 9 1941

(Thailand has ceased fighting, however, and is negotiating with the Japanese.)

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that instructions had been forwarded to the British Embassy at Tokio and that at 1 p.m. (7 a.m., E. S. T.) a note was handed to the Japanese Charge d'Affaires here "stating that in view of Japan's wanton acts of unprovoked aggression the British government informed them that a state of war existed between the two countries."

Tonight, in a radio address to the world, Mr. Churchill said that "we are fighting for maintenance of the parliamentary system" and that, therefore, his first thought after hearing of Japan's attacks in the Pacific had been to call the House of Commons together.

The Prime Minister's radio address followed the same general lines as his afternoon speech to the House.

He specially emphasized, however, that the outbreak of war with Japan meant that some American aid to Britain would cease coming for the moment, and called on aircraft workers to redouble their production. Pointing out that supplies which Britain had counted upon for herself had been diverted to Russia, while others from America could not just now be counted upon, he said that the British would have to fill the gap themselves.

Britain Declares War On Japs, Allying Herself With U. S.

Pronouncement Issued By Churchill Before Session of Commons

By the Associated Press.

Mr. Churchill recalled that "with the full approval of the nation and of the empire I pledged the word of Great Britain about a month ago that should the United States be involved in war with Japan a British declaration would follow within the hour."

Mr. Churchill declared that Britain had assured Thailand "that an attack on her will be regarded as an attack on us" and that he had messaged Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of Free China, "assuring him that henceforward we would face a common foe together."

Mr. Churchill disclosed that he consulted President Roosevelt in a trans-Atlantic telephone call last night "with a view to arranging the timing of our respective declarations." He explained that the President informed him only the Congress could declare the United States at war.

"I then answered him we would follow immediately. However, it soon appeared that British territory in Malaya had also been the object of Japanese attack and later on it was announced from Tokio that the Japanese high command—a curious form—not the Imperial Japanese government but the Japanese high command—had declared that a state of war existed between them and Great Britain and the United States."

House Stands and Cheers.

That situation, Mr. Churchill went on, left no need to wait for a congressional declaration at Washington.

The House stood and cheered.

He spoke of recent reinforcement of Britain's Far Eastern naval power with "some of the finest ships of the Royal Navy," which he has said was made possible by United States naval help in the battle of the Atlantic.

Summing up, he said:

"We can only feel that Hitler's madness has infected the Japanese mind. The root of evil and its branch must be extirpated together. * * *

"We have no need to doubt the justice of our cause or that our strength and will power will be sufficient to sustain it. We have four-fifths of the population of the world on our side.

"In the past our light has flickered. Today it flames.

"In the future there will be a light that shines over all lands and seas."

Parallel Statement to Lords.

Colonial Secretary Lord Moyne made a parallel statement in the House of Lords.

Mr. Churchill told Commons that the war declaration against Japan was authorized at a noon session of his cabinet.

Mr. Churchill said the Japanese began landing in British territory in Northern Malaya at 8 a.m. yesterday (6 p.m., Saturday, E. S. T.) and were engaged immediately by British forces "which were ready."

He said home office measures against Japanese nationals were begun at 10:45 p.m. (4:45 p.m., E. S. T.) Sunday and told the House it could see, therefore, "that no time has been lost and we are actually ahead of our engagements."

Immense Patience.

Mr. Churchill charged that Japanese envoys were ordered to prolong their mission in the United States "in order to keep conversations going while a surprise attack was being prepared and before a declaration of war could be delivered.

DEC 9 1941

"No one can doubt that every effort to bring about a peaceful solution has been made by the Government of the United States and that immense patience has been shown in the face of a growing Japanese menace," he told Commons.

The government of the Netherlands, Mr. Churchill announced, "marked their solidarity with Great Britain and the United States at 3 a.m. (9 p.m., E. S. T., Sunday) by stating that as a consequence of Japan's action a state of war now exists between the kingdom of The Netherlands and Japan."

Then he added:

"It only remains now for the two great democracies to face their tasks with whatever strength God may give them."

Mr. Churchill declared Britain must hold herself "very fortunate, and I think we may rate our affairs not wholly ill-guided, that we were not attacked alone by Japan in our period of weakness after Dunkerque or at any time in 1940 before the United States fully realized the dangers which threatened the whole world and made large advances in military preparations."

The House cheered enthusiastically as the Prime Minister informed it:

"Every preparation in our power has been made and we shall give a good account of ourselves. * * *

"There is the closest accord with the powerful American naval and air forces and with the strong, efficient forces of the Netherlands East Indies.

"We shall do our best."

Japs Plan to Leave.

Long before the meeting of Parliament, Japanese Ambassador Kamimura and his aides completed preparations to depart for Tokio. Secret documents were burned in a great bonfire at the Japanese Embassy last night.

Police simultaneously began a roundup of certain Japanese, and among the first taken into custody were representatives of Domei, Japanese news agency.

The home office announcement said:

"In view of the existence of a state of war between Japan and this country, Japanese nationals in the United Kingdom now are subject to special regulations applicable to aliens of enemy nationality.

"Accordingly, all Japanese nationals over the age of 16 should report as soon as possible to the nearest police station and produce their registration certificates for necessary endorsement to be made upon them."

The text of Mr. Churchill's speech follows:

As soon as I heard last night that Japan had attacked the United States I felt it necessary that Parliament should be immediately summoned.

DEC 9 1941

It is indispensable to our system of government that Parliament should play a full part in all the important acts of state, and at all crucial moments in conduct of the war, and I am glad to see so many members have been able to be in their places in spite of the shortness of notice.

With the full approval of the nation and of the empire, I pledged the word of Great Britain about a month ago that should the United States be involved in war with Japan, a British declaration of war would follow within the hour.

Talks With Roosevelt.

Therefore I spoke to President Roosevelt on the Atlantic telephone last night with a view to arranging the timing of our respective declarations.

The President told me he would this morning send a message to Congress, which, as is well known, can alone make a declaration of war on behalf of the United States.

I then answered him we would follow immediately. However, it soon appeared that British territory in Malaya had also been the object of Japanese attack and later on it was announced from Tokio that the Japanese high command—a curious form—not the imperial Japanese government, but the Japanese high command—had declared that a state of war existed between them and Great Britain and the United States.

That being so there was no need to wait for the declaration of Congress. In any case, American time is nearly six hours behind ours. The cabinet, which met at 12:30 today, therefore authorized an immediate declaration of war upon Japan. Instructions to this effect were sent to His Majesty's ambassador in Tokio and a communication was dispatched to the Japanese charge d'affaires at 1 o'clock today to this effect:

"Sir:

"On the evening of December 7 His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom learned that the Japanese forces, without a previous warning either in the form of a declaration of war or of an ultimatum with a conditional declaration of war, had attempted a landing on the coast of Malaya and had bombed Singapore and Hong Kong.

"In view of these wanton acts of unprovoked aggression, committed in flagrant violation of international law and particularly of article 1 of the Third Hague Convention relative to the opening of hostilities, to which both Japan and the United Kingdom are parties, His Majesty's Ambassador in Tokio has been instructed to inform the Imperial Government in the name of His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom, that a state of war exists between the two countries.

"I have the honor to be, with high consideration, your obedient servant."

Landed 1[illegible] A.M.

Meanwhile, hostilities had already begun. The Japanese began a landing on British territory in Northern Malaya at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and they were immediately engaged by our forces, which were in readiness.

Home office measures against Japanese nationals were set in motion at 10:45 last night. The House will see that no time has been lost and that we actually are ahead of our engagements. The Royal Netherlands government at once marked their solidarity with Great Britain and the United States.

At 3 a.m. the Netherlands Minister informed the Foreign Office his government was telling the Japanese government that in view of hostile acts perpetrated by Japanese forces against two powers with whom the Netherlands maintained particularly close relations, they considered as a consequence that a state of war now exists between the Kingdom of the Netherlands and Japan.

I do not know yet what part Thailand will be called upon to play in this fresh war, but a report has reached us that Japan has landed troops at Singora in Siamese territory not far from the landing they have made on the British side of the frontier.

Meanwhile, just before Japan had gone to war with Siam, I had sent the Prime Minister of Siam the following message. It was sent off on Sunday:

"There is a possibility of imminent Japanese invasion of your country. If you are attacked defend yourself. The preservation of the full independence and sovereignty of Thailand is the British interest and we shall regard an attack on you as an attack on ourselves."

It is worth while looking for a moment at the manner in which the Japanese have begun their assault upon the English-speaking world. Every circumstance of calculated and characteristic Japanese treachery was employed against the United States.

Japanese Envoys Nomura and Kurusu were ordered to prolong their missions in the United States in order to keep conversations going while the surprise attack was being prepared to be made before the declaration of war could be delivered.

Immense Patience Shown.

The President's appeal to the Emperor, which I have no doubt many members have read, reminded him of ancient friendship and of the importance of preserving the peace of the Pacific. This message has received only this base and brutal reply. No one can doubt that every effort to bring about a peaceful solution had been made by the Government of the United States and that an immense patience and composure had been shown in the face of the growing Japanese menace.

Now that the issue is joined in the most direct manner, it only remains for two great democracies to face their task with whatever strength God may give them.

We may hold ourselves very fortunate, and I think we may rate our affairs not wholly ill-guided, that we were not attacked alone by Japan in our period of weakness after Dunkirk—or at any time in 1940 before the United States had fully realized the dangers which threatened the whole world and had made large advances in its military preparations.

So precarious and narrow was the margin upon which we then lived that we did not dare to express the sympathy we have all along felt for the heroic people of China. We were even forced for a short time in the summer of 1940 to agree to closing the Burma Road, but later on at beginning of this year, as soon as we could regather our strength, we reversed that policy, and the House will remember that both I and the foreign secretary have felt able to make increasingly outspoken declaratoins of friendship for the Chinese people and their great leader, Chiang Kai-shek.

We have always been friends. Last night I cabled to the Generalissimo assuring him that henceforward we would face the common foe together, although imperative demands of the war in Europe and Africa have strained our resources, vast and growing though they are.

The house and the Empire will notice that some of the finest ships in the Royal Navy have reached their stations in the Far East at a very convenient moment.

Every preparation on our part has been made, and I do not doubt we shall give a good account of ourselves.

Close Accord Established.

The closest accord has been established with powerful American forces, both naval and air, and also with strong and efficient forces belonging to the Royal Netherlands government in the Netherlands East Indies. We shall all do our best.

When we think of the insane ambition and insatiable appetite which have caused this vast and melancholy extension of the war, we can only feel that Hitler's madness has infected Japanese minds, and that the root of the evil and its branch must be extirpated together.

It is of the highest importance that there should be no underrating of the gravity of the new dangers we have to meet, either here or in the United States.

The enemy has attacked with an audacity which may spring from resklessness, but which also spring from a conviction of strength. The ordeal to which the English-speaking world and our heroic Russian allies are being exposed will certainly be hard, especially at the outset, and will probably be long; yet when we look round us upon the somber panorama of the world we have no reason to doubt the justice of our course or that our strength and willpower will be sufficient to sustain it.

We have at least four-fifths of the population of the world on our side. We are responsible for their safety and for their future.

In the past we have had a light which flickered. In the present we have a light which flames. In the future there will be a light which shines over all the land and sea.

BRITAIN ROUNDS UP JAPANESE VISITORS

Domei Men Are Arrested—Others Ordered to Report.

London, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Home Office, declaring "the existence of a state of war" between Japan and Britain, today ordered all Japanese nationals in the United Kingdom to report at police stations. The police simultaneously began a roundup of certain Japanese, and among the first taken into custody were representatives of Domei, the Japanese News Agency.

The Home Office announcement said:

"In view of the existence of a state of war between Japan and this country, Japanese nationals in the United Kingdom are now subject to special regulations applicable to aliens of enemy nationality. Accordingly, all Japanese nationals over the age of 16 should report as soon as possible to the nearest police station and produce their registration certificates for necessary endorsement to be made upon them."

DUTCH QUEEN DECLARES WAR

Free French and Poles Also Retort to Japan.

DEC 9 1941

London, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands issued a 500-word proclamation to her people tonight saying that "the kingdom of the Netherlands considers itself at war with Japan."

Observing that Japanese sea and air forces, "without a preceding declaration of war, have made surprise attacks on American and British territory," the proclamation went on to say:

"Thus war has been forced upon the Republic of the United States and on the British Empire. . . . Neither the safety of the territory of our empire in the East nor the bond which ties us to our British allies nor the specific associations between the Netherlands and the United States allow the Government of the Kingdom to remain quiescent. The Kingdom considers itself at war with Japan, because aggression which aims at destroying peace-loving nations one after the other can, must and will be resisted only in firm alliance."

Meanwhile today the Free French National Committee, meeting under the leadership of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, declared that a state of war exists between all Free French territories and Japan.

The Belgian Government-in-exile instructed its Ambassador in Tokio today to leave Japan with British and American diplomats.

[NBC in New York heard a British radio announcement that the Belgian Government had definitely decided to break with Japan.]

Stanislaw Stronski, the Polish Minister of Information, esserted that "Poland stands united with all the other Allies against Japan, just as she has always been united with all the Allies against all countries co-operating with Germany in this war." He said that the Japanese attack which brought the United States into the war gave the defenders of freedom a "mighty ally . . . a guaranty of victory."

The exile Greek government severed relations with Japan, instructed its minister in Tokyo to ask for his passport and cabled to Washington an expression of "complete solidarity" with the United States.

Canada's Declaration Follows Cabinet Meeting

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 (AP).—Canada declared war on Japan late last night after a four-hour cabinet meeting and thus added within a 24-hour period four Axis-aligned nations to her list of enemies.

The declaration of war, effective as of Sunday, was drawn up at the cabinet meeting for submission to King George VI. The British monarch already had approved a declaration again Finland, Hungary and Rumania, which took effect one minute past Saturday midnight.

The arrest of persons of Japanese origin was begun almost immediately in British Columbia, but it was said at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters that the arrests were being confined to persons whose loyalty to Canada had been in doubt for some time.

British Columbia has about 10,000 Japanese nationals, more than the rest of Canada combined.

Egypt Breaks With Japan

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 8 (AP)—The government of Egypt, Britain's ally, today severed diplomatic relations with Japan. Almost all Japanese residents left Egypt some weeks ago and the legation staff was reduced to the Minister and one secretary.

Manchukuo in War

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—The German radio announced today that Manchukuo had declared war on the United States and Great Britain, N. B. C. heard the broadcast.

New Zealand Declares War on Japan

Wellington, New Zealand, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (AP).—New Zealand declared war on Japan today.

Melbourne, Tuesday, Dec. 9—Australia declared war on Japan today.

The Government beat the Japanese to the draw since Tokyo's declaration had not been received here at the time the Australian action was taken.

Vichy Reported Neutral In U. S.-Japanese War

Position Of French Government Declared To Be "Very Reserved"

Vichy, Dec. 8 (AP)—Informed Vichy sources today said the French Government was remaining neutral in the war of the United States and Britain against Japan.

Authoritative sources declared they could neither confirm nor deny reports that Japanese troops which passed through Thailand came from French Indo-China bases ceded by France to Japan.

The French position, they added, was "very reserved." The French possession of Indo-China is one of the salient areas of the new conflict.

The Japanese Ambassador to France, Sotomatsu Kato, called on Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan to explain the Japanese point of view.

Russia Silent on U. S. War

Temporary Capital Gets News at Dawn; Embassies Light Up

KUYBYSHEV, Dec. 8 (AP).—Official Russia kept silence today on receipt of the news of the Japanese-American conflict. Some official comment was expected later.

The news reached this temporary capital before dawn, and its course could be traced by the flashing on of lights in embassies and legations.

Vichy, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The French press printed under heavy headlines today the news that Japan had declared war on the United States and Britain and already had moved to the attack, but comment was lacking in official quarters.

Manila Called a Part 'Of the Heart of Spain'

MADRID, Dec. 8 (AP).—"Informaciones," the only Spanish newspaper to comment on the Pacific war, said today it hoped Manila would be "preserved for Christianity."

It called the city "a fragment of the heart of Spain."

Mexico Breaks Diplomatic Relations With Japanese

DEC 9 1941

Chile Suggests Anti-Nipponese Rally By Whole Hemisphere—Latin America Rallies To Side Of U. S.

[By the Associated Press]

Mexico City, Dec. 8—Mexico broke off diplomatic relations with Japan tonight.

Japanese Minister Yoshiaki Miura made the announcement upon leaving a conference with Ezequiel Padilla, Mexican Foreign Minister.

Tonight the Japanese legation staff was reported burning its secret documents.

Mexican newspapers said Mexico would adopt conscription, appoint a general staff and renforce its Pacific coastline defenses immediately.

Naval Patrol Started

Miura said he asked if the move implied a declaration of war and that the foreign minister said "no."

The break came as this second largest Latin American country established a twenty-four-hour patrol over her Pacific coast as a guard against possible invasion.

Miura said that he, like the Mexican minister in Tokyo, was without means of getting home now and that Padilla assured him he could continue residence in Mexico, but without diplomatic privileges.

Latin-American Nations To Band Against Japan

Buenos Aires, Dec. 8 (AP)—Chile announced tonight that the United States had accepted her suggestion for a conference of all twenty-one American Foreign Ministers to adopt a common policy against Japan, and Latin American nations rallied quickly to the side of the United States.

Seven Latin American republics already have declared war on Japan Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala, El Salvador, Haiti, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic.

Argentina, Uruguay, Colombia and apparently Brazil were ready to allow United States warships the use of their ports for the war. Uruguay announced that privilege also would be extended to the British, "any other nation, American or European," that accompanies the United States in "the defense against aggression."

Brazil Seizes Ships

Brazil took over eight of twelve Italian ships in her ports; Mexico and Colombia broke off diplomatic relations with Japan; Venezuela and Bolivia announced their firm support of the United States and bitter anti-Japanese demonstrations broke out in many parts of Latin-America.

Brazil seconded Chile's suggestion for the Pan-American conference, but Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister, said his country did not at present plan a declaration of war against Japan.

Many messages from South American political leaders were sent to President Roosevelt, including one from Argentina's ailing President Roberto Ortiz, who said Japan's "aggression disgusts the sensibility of all America."

Argentina To Act

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu of Argentina said the Cabinet would consider a non-belligerency resolution tomorrow, and abstain from the "customary declaration of neutrality" in this war.

"Argentina," he said, "is ready to support the United States in reciprocal defensive cooperation."

Chile ordered naval measures to protect her coast and the Magellan Straits, and notified the United States that her action was in line with hemisphere defense. Julio Allard, chief of Chile's naval staff, was given extraordinary powers.

Peru promptly froze Japanese funds, and President Jorge Prado Ugarteche met his cabinet and declared Peru's solidarity with the United States, "an absolute, frank and unflinching solidarity," the President said. The Peruvians cheered his words.

Colombia Takes Tankers

Colombia also seized two Italian tankers at Cartagena, the Rapallo, 5,812 tons, and the Anteo, 6,972 tons. They had been in the post since Italy entered the war.

The Bogota afternoon newspaper, El Spectator, headlined Colombia's preparations: "Technically Colombia is at war."

In Ecuador military authorities assigned troops to guard American and British properties, including oil fields, mines, airports, and electrical power plants.

President Batista of Cuba and his Capinet both asked the National Congress to declare war on Japan and both houses will act on the proposals at 4 P. M. tomorrow.

President Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia of Costa Rica, the first nation to act against Japan, sent a message to President Roosevelt in which he hermed the Japanese attack on Hawaii "criminal," and said that Costa Rica "will go with you until the end—which will be the triumph of justice and right."

Mexico Takes Steps to Guard Pacific Coast From Invasion Threat

DEC 9 1941

Havana, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Latin America gravely met Japan's explosive challenge to the United States and Great Britain today with three of its republics already formally at war against the Japanese and with others manifesting their urgent will to follow suit.

Costa Rica, the northerly neighbor of Panama, was the first of the twenty-one American republics to declare war on the Nipponese, jumping in ahead of both the Anglo-American Powers most vitally concerned.

Costa Rica's entry by declaration came almost simultaneously with the formal declaration by the Netherlands East Indies, first of the ABCD Powers—American, British, Chinese, Dutch.

Later Honduras declared war on Japan and the Government established martial law throughout the republic. Haiti also joined the Latin American nations which have declared war on Japan and pledged the United States its full assistance.

President Jorge Ubico of Guatemala sent a message to President Roosevelt to express Guatemala's solidarity with the United States against Japan, and a declaration of war by Guatemala was expected later this afternoon.

Meanwhile the Cuban Cabinet asked the Congress in Havana to declare war on Japan.

The Havana agreement of July 29, 1940, was the rallying cry for the Americas to unite against the aggressor.

DEC 9 1941

To Invoke Agreement.

In Argentina, Brazil and elsewhere high quarters said the Japanese attacks would justify invocation of the agreement reached here under which the American republics would consult and devise means to aid each other whenever any was attacked by a non-American Power.

President Getulio Vargas and his Brazilian Cabinet agreed at a meeting today to give absolute solidarity to the United States.

Among the United States's closest neighbors, Canada formally declared war Sunday, ahead of Great Britain herself.

President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba, already seeking emergency powers before Japan attacked in the Pacific, indicated he would ask for a declaration of war.

President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico made known that his country was solidly in line with the United States.

Mexico took precaution to guard her Pacific coast line with a naval patrol and land batteries and Panama rounded up Japanese nationals lest they sabotage the Canal link.

Havana, Dec. 8 (AP)—The liberal leader in the Cuban House of Representatives, Gustavo Gutierrez, told a rally of 50,000 persons tonight that Congress will declare war on Japan tomorrow and against Italy and Germany as well within forty-eight hours.

Mexico City, Dec. 8 (AP)—A Japanese merchant ship has arrived at Manzanillo on Mexico's west coast to embark Japanese nationals who wish to return home, it was announced tonight.

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 8 (AP).—Chile announced tonight the United States had accepted her suggestion for a conference of the foreign ministers of the 21 American republics to confront the grave new challenge of Japan in the Pacific.

CANAL ZONE ROUNDS UP AXIS NATIONALS

Police Act As U. S. Clamps Tight Wartime Guard Over Vital Area

Declaration Of War By Panama Assembly Is Expected Today

DEC 9 1941

Panama, Dec. 8 (AP)—The National Assembly began a five-day extraordinary session tonight, the chief order of which will be a declaration of war against Japan.

[By the Associated Press]

Balboa, Canal Zone, Dec. 8—Canal Zone police, with close cooperation from Panamanian authorities, began rounding up Axis nationals today as the United States clamped a tight wartime guard over the vital area.

Neighboring Panama already had affirmed her intention to side with the United States and her National Assembly was gathering for an extraordinary session in which the government was expected to ask for a declaration of war against Japan.

Diplomatic sources said the declaration was assured and that the Assembly was waiting only for the arrival of some members from districts in the interior. If enough gather in time, they said, Panama may declare war before tomorrow.

Japanese Funds Frozen

All Japanese credits and funds in Panama were frozen by decree of that government late today.

The roundup of Germans and Italians in the Canal Zone paralleled a search of Colon which still was being made by Panamanian police there.

With eleven prominent Germans already held, authorities were making a city-wide cleanup and a move was expected also against Italians.

Some of those detained already were enroute across the isthmus from Colon to Balboa for internment in the quarantine station here.

57 Japanese Detained

Fifty-seven Japanese, taken into custody in Colon yesterday, already had been delivered to United States authorities and placed in the quarantine station. Another 114 Japanese, rounded up in Panama City, also were expected and construction of a tent city to house the sudden influx was proceeding rapidly.

Hundreds of Panamanians offered themselves to Gov. Carlos J. Quintero, of Colon, for any service, military or civil, in the event that Panama declares war or merely to collaborate with Canal Zone authorities for defense of the Panama Canal.

To Get Blackout Orders

Outlying villages beyond usual communications were to get blackout instructions from nearest United States battery positions in the interior and civilian auxiliary services were being organized at Cristobal.

United States officers said they were "ready for anything" that might threaten the key link between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Lieut. Gen. Frank Andrews, commanding the United States Army's Caribbean defense area, was piloting Maj. Gen. Dawson Olmstead, chief of the Signal Corps, on an aerial inspection flight Sunday over Panama's defenses when news of the Japanese attack was radioed to the plane.

They returned immediately to supervise United States defenses which already had been put on the alert by the army and navy.

Canal Zone Guarded, Panama to Intern All Japanese Residents

Government Affirms Plan to Co-Operate Fully With U. S.

By the Associated Press.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Dec. 8.—With the United States maintaining a war-time guard over the vital Panama Canal Zone, the Panama Government decided today to intern all Japanese residents on the Isthmus and affirmed its intention to co-operate fully with the United States.

The roundup by Panama of Japanese aliens, begun soon after word was received yesterday of the Japanese attack on American outposts in the Pacific, proceeded smoothly during the night while the United States Army rushed construction of an interment tent city.

Panama police reported that 130 of the 300 Japanese residents in the city of Panama had been taken in custody by early morning. Others were picked up at other cities and villages of the republic.

The Panamanians, who will turn the Japanese over to the United States authorities, flatly rejected two demands by the Japanese Minister that they be released.

After a night-long meeting, President Dr. Ricardo Adolfo de La Guardia and the cabinet issued a proclamation "to co-operate with the Government of the United States energetically in this grave emergency" which "imminently threatens" the security of the Panama Canal and the republic.

The government also forbade exportation of gold or other funds belonging to the Japanese government or subjects in Panama.

United States officers said they were "ready for anything" which might threaten the security of the key waterway between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

The Pacific Lineup

Republic Reported Planning to Seize Japanese Ships

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 8 (AP).—Strong infantry and cavalry forces were ordered tonight to strategic points on the Pacific and Gulf of Mexico coasts. No explanation was given of the latter movement. All naval leaves were canceled.

Other troop concentrations were taking positions in northern states along the United States border for the purpose, the government said, of establishing a guard against passage of enemy agents across the frontier.

War Brought Close To India

AP WIRE HONOLULU

[By the Associated Press]

New Delhi, India, Dec. 8—Japan's entry into the war brought her forces within striking distance of India and Burma for the first time in history.

Calcutta and other eastern cities within range of Japanese bombers based in French Indo-China rushed air-raid precautions and the Indian navy watched for submarines in Indian waters.

DEC 9 1941

That India will declare war on Japan was regarded as certain.

Observers here said the Pacific conflict undoubtedly would bring closer to Indian nationalists the potential menace to their safety and their hopes and that this might bring them into the war effort.

NEEDED A WAR TO HOLD GRIP

Japanese Officer Told His Views to Correspondent.

(Editor's Note: This account is by a recently-returned Associated Press correspondent who covered the arrival of Japanese troops in Indo-China last summer and was in daily contact with the Japanese military.)

By FRANK L. MARTIN.

NEW YORK—Dec. 8 (AP)—

DEC 9 1941

Japanese officers who came to southern French Indo-China with the occupation army in August told me they believed their land and sea forces were not strong enough to defeat the United States but that "does not mean Japan would not enter into a war with the United States."

In Saigon, headquarters for the Japanese Army in Indo-China, Col. Jiro Saito, chief of the Japanese mission in southern Indo-China, described the Japanese Army's position as having advanced too far toward the new order to East Asia to turn back and succumb to the demands of the United States and Britain.

British and American business men residing in Indo-China and who had talked with Saito, believed he felt that the army would lose its grip on the Tokio Government and people if it reversed its often-announced program.

These observers declared that the Japanese Army felt that the Japanese business men, who have suffered the most during the past ten years of military adventure, would rise to a position stronger than the army and gain control of the Government.

Other Officers Agree.

I have talked with several other Japanese officers who accompanied the occupation armies to the French colony and they, too, in general, agreed with Col. Saito, who was born in Japan and reared in Honolulu.

"You Americans would want us to demobilize our army—yet what would Japan do now with nearly 2,000,000 unemployed men suddenly turned loose in our country?" they asked. "There would be a revolution or they would starve."

DEC 9 1941

From Hanoi I saw Japanese pursuit planes and bombers take off to attack Chinese positions. From Chungking, capital of China, I saw the effect of their raids on that mountain city.

The Japanese have had more than ten years of bombing practice and during the past four years bombing operations against Chinese objectives have become almost a daily maneuver.

Their usual procedure is to send four flights of twenty-seven planes each to bomb an objective, the groups attacking at intervals of fifteen minutes. I have seen the Japanese attack Chungking, and know they can bomb accurately.

Many Bombs Duds.

During the attacks on Chungking the Japanese were being harassed by the Chinese, both on the ground and in the air. Huge German-made guns in the city kept the Japanese raiders above 12,000 feet and at least twelve Chinese planes would dive on the Japanese bombers as they approached the city. The Chinese only got one crack at the Japanese bombers, however, because their pursuit planes were slower than the Japanese bombers.

The most astonishing fact about the Japanese raids was the number of bombs they dropped that failed to explode. In three weeks we had sixteen unexploded bombs in the compound of the press hotel at Chungking.

At the commercial airport in Saigon, before the Japanese closed it to foreigners as well as French, I saw a sample of their latest military planes. This was a light bomber converted into a transport plane for the Japanese Army officers. It seemed to take off and handle smoothly, but a French pilot, who had flown one, told me it was not a safe plane to fly.

Formosa is the most fortified Japanese stronghold south of their main islands. Travelers reaching Indo-China say the Japanese have built huge naval bases at both ends of the island and large air bases inland from the naval bases. They said the island had been fortified heavily during the last two years. The naval bases are to be used mainly for supplying submarines, it is believed. The island is described as Japan's naval and military supply center for Japanese in southern China and the southern Pacific.

Tokio Followed Usual Course

UNDATED JAPANESE INTERPRETIVE

Attacked Russia in 1904 Without Warning—Ruled by a Desperate Military Clique.

BY GLENN BABB

By Associated Press.

DEC 9 1941

Japan launched this war just as she has begun nearly all her wars of the twentieth century, swiftly and without warning, delivering the first smash ahead of a declaration or omitting that formality altogether.

In 1904 her navy slashed at the Russian fleet at Port Arthur before war was declared. In 1931 she struck in Manchuria, in 1932 at Shanghai and in 1937 at Peiping without warning. In the last three cases she never bothered to declare war.

In these three instances there was much evidence to support the view that the army or navy acted without the prior knowledge or consent of the Cabinet—as distinguished from the military command—in Tokio.

Historians may come to the conclusion that the desperate gamble of war against the world's two mightiest naval Powers also was a purely military decision.

Tokio Cabinets, even those headed by generals or admirals, have had little influence on the decisions of the military clique, directing the course of the empire through the Army and Navy General Staffs, now combined in the all-powerful Imperial Headquarters, in which they have drafted for their own purposes the awe-inspiring influence of the Emperor himself, the divine ruler, father of the race, descended in the "line unbroken for ages eternal" from the sun goddess, Amaterasu.

For ten years neither the Japanese people, their formally-constituted governments nor the Emperor as an individual has had much to say about the major decisions of the Japanese Empire.

Ruled by Military.

The real rulers of Japan have been a clique of army and navy officers whose thought processes, fanatical, mystical, belong to another age. They are a direct throwback to the Shoguns, Daimyos and Samurai who ruled in ancient and medieval times.

They have imposed on the Japanese people an intellectual, spiritual, moral seclusion as complete as the physical seclusion Japan maintained for the 250 years before an American commodore opened her to foreign intercourse in 1853.

Nearly all authorities who have known Japan well in the past ten years agree that the Japanese people have had no chance to know the truth about their nation's role in the events which have rushed them into this terrific gamble. By control of information, by intensive propaganda, by the suppression—through assassination, intimidation or other means—of every Japanese voice that might have been raised against them, members of the military clique have conditioned their people for yesterday's terrible climax.

Many authorities will agree that the Japanese people as a whole believe sincerely what the militarists have dinned at them for ten years: That their wars in China have been holy wars, to carry civilization and peace to a benighted neighbor, that Japan is the victim of the inability or sinful unwillingness of the great Western Powers to understand her true purposes and finally the victim of a cruel conspiracy to keep her from her rightful destiny—mistress of a "Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere," giver of the "new order"—in cooperation with Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

These slogans sound fantastic silly to Westerners. The ominous, tragic fact is that the Japanese people believe in them, that even most of the militarists who coined them believe they form a holy cause, in which every Japanese should be glad to die for the Emperor.

DEC 9 1941

In Saddle Ten Years.

The Japanese Army's assault on Mukden the night of September 18, 1931, was the first blow of a program of conquest, but it was also the opening gun of a revolution within Japan which has had tragic meaning for the entire world.

It was then that the Japanese Army ended all vestiges of civilian, liberal, internationally-minded government in Japan.

The revolution in Japan has been less spectacular than those in Germany and Italy, but no less thorough, perhaps, because through many centuries the Japanese had been made a docile, disciplined race. They were Fascist before Mussolini, National Socialist long before Hitler.

The Japanese Cabinet in September, 1931, was one of the most liberal in the empire's history. The Premier was Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, the Foreign Minister Baron Kijuro Shidehara, whose name was a synonym for conciliation toward China and the Western Powers.

The army committed the nation to a great military enterprise, flouted the Cabinet's authority, made the assurances and pledges of the Foreign Minister worthless, seemed even to take delight in making liars of the diplomats who tried to explain things in Washington, London and Geneva.

This story was repeated at Shanghai early in 1932, at Marco Polo Bridge, near Peiping, the night of July 7, 1937. There is good reason to believe that the Inukai and Konoye civilian cabinets of those days had no desire to embark on the adventures into which the navy and army pushed them.

What part the current Tokio Government had in yesterday's war decision probably will not be known until the archives are open to historians, but many who know Japan will be ready to believe that it was a purely military decision, in which the officials in nominal charge of foreign relations were not consulted, perhaps not even told in advance.

Imperial headquarters makes the decisions, such men as Gen. Gen Sugiyama, Chief of the Army General Staff; Admiral Osami Nagano, Chief of the Naval General Staff; a dozen generals and admirals on the supreme war council or in active commands; scores of other officers of lesser ranks down to younger men more aggressive, more fanatical than their seniors.

In the militarists' eyes, for Japan to turn back to 1931 or to make even any considerable compromise in that direction was unthinkable. Their own hold on the nation, their prestige, their power, their careers, their whole code of standards and living, their reason for existence were at stake.

For them it was all or nothing; a new world, ruled by the Samurai sword, a world of plenty, vast power, prestige and honor—or destruction for their whole order, and destruction of the Japanese nation with them.

The inexorable pressure of time which ran against them, the steadily accelerating progress of the great American industrial machine, the summons of cataclysmic events in Europe demanded a decision. Never again it must have seemed to Tokio would world conditions be so favorable. If they struck swiftly enough, desperately enough, the generals and admirals must have thought, they might win.

SEC. HULL BERATES JAPS' TREACHERY

Pours Out Wrath on 'Peace' Envoys; Calls Reply 'Damned Lies'

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP) — Cordell Hull, a patient man, came to the end of his patience yesterday at 2:35 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

And when he said so in a spontaneous burst of cold and biting words, Japan's envoys knew precisely what the United States government thought of the Japanese government.

The secretary of state, a benign man, reached the limit of his endurance when he saw the few all-revealing words of that incredible dispatch rushed to him from the White House.

Japanese planes had bombed Hawaii . . . American blood had been spilled on the good earth of those islands . . . In a swift panorama he could see the thousands more that would die . . . see the pain and terror and destruction that must sweep the wide expanse of the blue Pacific before the world came back to its senses.

This—and he had an official engagement to keep.

In apparent ignorance of the explosion about to rock the Pacific and the world, Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, the special envoy, had requested an appointment at 1:45 o'clock on that quiet, sunshiny Sunday afternoon.

DEC 9 1941

Secretary Hull knew they were bringing Japan's reply to an American note setting forth his peace formula for the Pacific, and he waited with Joseph W. Ballantine, assistant chief of the Far Eastern division, who has spent more than 20 years in Japan.

The Japanese envoys were tardy, arriving at 2:05 p. m.

In those intervening minutes the message rushed from the White House had given Hull the first news of the Japanese attack.

Hull read and reread the message. It was almost too much to believe. He kept the Japanese envoys waiting for 15 minutes.

They entered the secretary's office at 2:20 p. m., smiling and bowing, and after the formalities handed Hull the Japanese government's note.

Bombs were plastering Pearl Harbor—but the Japanese diplomats said not a word of war.

Hull read the Japanese note slowly line by line, without a betraying twitch of his muscles . . . "The immutable policy of Japan is to promote world peace" . . . The United States and Great Britain are doing "everything possible to obstruct peace between Japan and China . . . Japan has "consistently exerted its best efforts to prevent the extension of warlike disturbances" . . . The United States disregarded realities . . . The United States was insincere . . . "The American government, obsessed with its own views and opinions, may be said to be scheming for the extension of the war" . . . The United States was conspiring with other nations to prevent Japan establishing a "new order" in Asia and thereby bless the Pacific with peace.

Secretary Hull well remembered how Japan's bayonets took China's Manchurian provinces . . . How Japan invaded China and loosed four years of an unended bloody war . . . how Japan, with Hitler's blessing, moved in on helpless French Indo-China . . . How Japan had poured thousands of troops into Southern Asia, threatening new conquests, even as Tokyo's envoys talked to him in polite diplomatic phrases of "peace."

And now this bloody Sunday. Bombers raining death without warning on the people of Hawaii who wanted peace as fervently as Cordell Hull wanted peace.

The secretary of state is a man slow to wrath.

But, in the blunt, unmistakable language of Tennessee, he told Admiral Nomura and Kurusu their government's note was the damndest bunch of lies he'd ever heard.

They he stood up, shook hands coldly and formally, and dismissed them.

DEC 9 1941

A tragic page in history walked with them.

On an April day in the spring Secretary Hull, seeking every honorable means to avert the war he feared, met Admiral Nomura at the Hull apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel overlooking the budding trees of Rock Creek Park.

Night after night Nomura returned while they explored every possible means of discovering a basic formula by which the spectre of war might be banished from the Pacific.

In the midst of their talks Japanese troops suddenly landed in Indo-China and systematically began seizing military, political and economic control of that war-orphaned French colony.

Hull abruptly ended the talks, frankly asserting that Japan was two-faced, talking "peace" here and preparing a new path of conquest in East Asia.

Prince Konoye, then premier, then sent a personal message to President Roosevelt, explaining, promising, seeking America's understanding. The talks were resumed. Again Hull worked hours overtime at the State Department, and afterward on into the nights talking, talking, talking with Nomura.

Then Kurusu, who as ambassador in Berlin, had signed the pact that put Japan in Hitler's axis, flew across the Pacific to add his voice to Japan's unctuous pleas.

As the fruit of those long months of talk Hull finally drafted the formula which he offered to Japan as the basis for enduring peace in the Pacific.

Japan's answer was the damnedest bunch of lies Cordell Hull had ever heard . . . and bombs were falling on Hawaii, Guam, the Philippines . . .

And when he went home at midnight, Secretary Hull's dream of peace was dust in his hand.

Japan's Attack on Hawaii Held an Attempt To Drive U. S. Fleet Out of Central Pacific

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—A staggeringly audacious attempt to drive the United States fleet entirely out of the central Pacific by wrecking its principal base west of San Diego with a single lightning blow may well be the grand strategy behind Japan's surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

DEC 9 1941

This was the opinion expressed by many naval experts today as they unbelievingly pieced together the fragments of information coming in from the world's newest battle area. Admittedly based on inconclusive evidence, this view, nevertheless, was advanced as the one which most nearly fitted the known facts to date.

In official quarters there was no evident disposition to minimize the difficulties in the months ahead. American strategy, as disclosed in recent weeks, has been developed on the theory that the best way to defeat the Japanese was by blockade of their commerce and aerial bombardment of their military-industrial centers, in other words, a probably long war of attrition.

Japanese May Risk Fleet.

This strategy envisioned the likelihood that only as a last desperate resort would the Japanese risk their fleet in an engagement with the American fleet. To the extent that fleet units such as airplane carriers participated in the attack on Pearl Harbor this theory, naval men say, was badly shaken.

The picture, blurred as it was, seemed to hold one bright spot, however; if the Japanese dared try such an action as they did against Pearl Harbor to cripple the fleet and force it to retire to San Diego they probably were prompted by desperation—by the feeling that unless the United States Navy could be quickly eliminated as a force in the Far East, Japan in the long run was doomed.

One question which had naval experts franly baffled was this: How could the Japanese expect to knock out so powerful a fortress as Pearl Harbor with aerial bombardment alone? This led to speculation that either they misjudged the strength of the defenses, staged a much more extensive attack than has yet been reported, or assualted Pearl Harbor merely as a diversion.

Diversion Theory Discounted.

The diversion theory was widely discounted, however, in the absence of immediate reports of a major Japanese attack in some other potential theater of action—Burma with its vital supply route to China, the Dutch East Indies with their rich oil resources badly needed by the Japanese, or Malaya where Singapore stands grim guard over Japan's most direct route for southern expansion.

Reports of both Japanese and American warship losses were slow to come in. That there were some was a foregone conclusion among the experts. Pearl Harbor is about 3,400 miles from Japan and the nearest Japanese outlying bases, the Marshall Islands, are more than 2,000 miles from the American fleet base.

The Japanese, therefore, had to use some of their eight airplane carriers (one more than the United States has in service in both oceans combined) to get their medium bombers within striking distance of Hawaii. In this maneuver they were protected by the vastness of the Pacific and that great military advantage—complete surprise in attack.

But once the attack was made, it was surmised here, American warships immediately went after the carriers. Losses of long-range four-motored Japanese bombers were also believed to be considerable. Those ground-based planes must have operated from the Marshall Islands. Assuming they have a maximum range of three to four thousand miles, few of their pilots could have hopen to bomb Pearl Harbor and return.

May Have Lost Big Bomber.

Perhaps they went out as suicide squadrons, or possibly by prearrangement with Japanese warships they pancaked their big planes into the ocean somewhere beyond the Hawaiian islands and were picked up.

In the long view, the Japanese attack raised up around the bellicose island nation a circle of enemies whose strength in man power, equipment and resources far outnumbers her own.

The ring of anti-Japanese bases runs from Alaska and the Aleutian Islands in the northern Pacific around the Asiatic coast, through Russia, China and the Malay Peninsula, to the South Seas, the Philippines, Netherlands East Indies(and Australia, and thence northeastward to Guam and the other island outposts connecting with Hawaii.

The Japanese Air Force has been estimated at 2,500 to 3,600 planes, most of which are rated obsolete according to European and American standards. The American and Allied Powers, on the other hand, are reported to have untold hundreds of modern long-range bombers and some of the world's fastest, most powerful pursuit planes.

Fleet Rated Excellent.

The Japanese fleet has been rated by many American experts as an excellent fighting force, but probably inferior in total numbers to combined British and American strength in the Far East—despite the fact that the latter two must operate in the Atlantic as well as the Pacific.

The Japanese fleet is believed in informed quarters here to number twelve battleships, including two modern 40,000-ton vessels with nine 16-inch guns each. The American Navy, with little use for capital vessels in the Atlantic, numbers seventeen battleships, including two new 35,000-ton vessels, the Washington and North Carolina, which are armed with nine 16-inch guns.

The British recently added to their naval force at Singapore two battleships—one of them the Prince of Wales—plus supporting smaller units.

Strategists say the United States' weakest points in the Far East are her small outposts, such as Guam, which are relatively near Japan. Should initial Japanese air attacs on Guam be followed up by an amphibious attack in sufficient force they conceded that Guam might have great difficulty in resisting capture.

Biddle Says Only Known Aliens Are Taken in Drive Extending to Hawaii—Warns Local Officials Against Action.

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Federal agents arrested 736 Japanese aliens during the night in the United States and Hawaii, Attorney-General Biddle announced today. The Japanese are being placed in the custody of immigration officials by special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Attorney-General said that hearing boards would be set up to pass on evidence gathered by the FBI and determine the "future status" of the aliens.

"While it is contemplated that some additional Japanese will be taken into custody," Mr Biddle said, "the arrests made up to the present time cover the majority anticipated. The FBI has for some time conducted a careful and detailed investigation into the activities of Japanese in the United States, and the detention of the persons now in custody represents the results of these investigations."

The Attorney-General said: "There are in the United States many persons of Japanese extraction whose loyalty to this country, even in the present emergency, is unquestioned. It would therefore be a serious mistake to take any action against these people.

"State and local authorities are urged to take no direct action against Japanese in their communities but should consult with representatives of the Department of Justice."

News Writer Arested.

Kiyoshi K. Kawakami, a well-known Japanese newspaper writer and a resident of Washington for nearly forty years, was one of the first Japanese subjects arrested by the FBI in a round-up of Japanese nationals in the capital.

Kawakami was taken from his home last night and, by telephone from the railway station, told his family that he was being taken "to the country" for questioning.

After serving for many years as correspondent here for Nichi Nichi, a leading Japanses newspaper, Kawakami resigned in August because of his opposition to that paper's policies. He also has written articles on Japanese affairs for the North American Newspaper Alliance and is the author of a number of books.

Justice Department officials said today that the arrest of Japanese aliens under a presidential proclamation was "proceeding in line with the program laid down months ago.

Alien registration records list around 50,000 Japanese nationals in the continental United States and 41,000 in Hawaii, with a few scattered in other outlying possessions.

TOKYO BUSINESSES IN U. S. ARE SEIZED

DEC 9 1941

All Banks And Concerns Here And In Hawaii Taken Over By Government

Between 700 And 1,000 Nipponese Nationals Are Also Placed In Custody

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 8—All Japanese banks and businesses in the United States were seized today, from 700 to 1,000 Japanese nationals taken into custody, and the country's borders were sealed against the departure of any person of Japanese extraction.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that agents under his orders had taken custody of the banks and business enterprises. The agents, he said, caught Japanese trying to remove $40,000 worth of securities from one San Francisco concern affected by the order.

$130,000,000 Assets Here

He gave no estimate of the total property seized, but it was known that Japanese assets in this country, including business, governmental and private, amounted to about $130,000,000.

Morgenthau warned that anyone hiding or destroying, or helping anybody else to hide or destroy, any of the Japanese property ordered seized would be risking ten years in prison.

Disclosure that 736 Japanese aliens—391 in Hawaii and 345 in the United States—were seized within a few hours after the first bombing attacks in the Pacific was made by Attorney General Francis Biddle, who said that the Federal Bureau of Investigation was continuing its program. It was estimated that fewer than 1,000 Japanese, approximately one in a hundred within United States jurisdiction, were marked for detention.

Detention Stations Set Up

Those taken into custody were being turned over to the Immigration Service, which immediately established temporary detention stations, principally on the West Coast. Some officials felt that later those held as "enemy aliens" would be turned over to the army for safe keeping, as was done in the last war with German nationals.

As the department disclosed its drastic barriers at the border, approximately 2,000 immigration border patrolmen and special inspectors were ordered to constant duty. At the same time, all offices of United States attorneys were put on a twenty-four-hour basis to provide instant availability for legal action.

United States attorneys were instructed to advise State and local authorities that all complaints against Japanese nationals were to be handled only through the F. B. I.

Message To U. S. Attorneys

Wendell Berge, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the criminal division, said in a telegram to the Federal attorneys:

"If necessary to secure compliance with this procedure, you are authorized to appeal to the Governor of your State for his cooperation."

Berge expressed Biddle's "deep concern" over reports that "State and local authorities in many parts of the country have apprehended Japanese aliens last night and this morning."

Arresting Aliens

The F. B. I. is acting under a Presidential proclamation calling for the arrest of Japanese aliens "who are dangerous to the peace and security dents in the city of Panama had been taken in custody by early morning. Others were picked up at other cities and villages of the republic.

The Panamanians, who will turn the Japanese over to the United States authorities, flatly rejected two demands by the Japanese Minister that they be released.

After a night-long meeting, President Dr. Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia and the Cabinet issued a proclamation that Panama would continue "to co-operate with the Government of the United States energetically in this grave emergency." The Government also forbade the exportation of gold or other funds belonging to the Japanese Government or subjects in Panama.

of the country." The army is handling the arrests in the Canal Zone, Hawaii and the Philippines, with cooperation from the F. B. I.

Meanwhile, over the country, and particularly in Washington, wartime safeguards against sabotage and espionage were put into effect. Some buildings which had been open to any and all persons during normal working hours were closed except to those carrying credentials. Armed guards were thrown about a few buildings, power plants, bridges and airports.

In the Panama Canal Zone and in Panama police began rounding up German and Italian nationals.

50,853 Japanese In Continental U. S.

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Department of Justice alien registration showed 50,853 Japanese non-citizens living in continental United States, 40,000 in Hawaii, and "a few" in Alaska.

Italy topped the list with 694,971 followed by Canada with 449,022, Poland 442,551, Mexico 416,892, Austria-Hungary 402,827, Russia, 366,834, Germany 315,004, Great Britain 291,451, Irish Free State 158,202, Sweden 102,178.

U. S. DIPLOMATS STILL IN JAPAN

State Department Lists 45 in Tokio's Empire.

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—State Department officials said today that there was no accurate census of Americans in Japan, but that developments in Japanese-American relations in recent weeks had caused all but a few American citizens to leave that country.

The largest contingent of Americans still in Japan are forty-five American diplomatic and consular officers.

In addition to Joseph C. Grew, the American Ambassador, the latest American foreign service list gives the following diplomatic and consular officers assigned to Japan:

Embassy at Tokio: Eugene H. Dooman, counselor, New York city; Frank S. Williams, commercial attache, Fannin, Miss.; George A. Makinson, first secretary, San Francisco; Edward S. Crocker, first secretary, Fitchburg, Mass.; Charles E. Bohlen, second secretary, Clayton, N. Y.; H. Merrell Benninghoff, second secretary, Chicago and Rochester; William T. Turner, second secretary, Atlanta; Carl Boehringer, third secretary, Bay City, Mich.; Frank A. Schuler, third secretary, Muskegon, Mich.; John K. Emmerson, third secretary, Canon City, Col.; Charles A. Cooper, third secretary, Humboldt, Neb.; James Espy, third secretary, Cincinnati; David T. Ray, language officer, New York city and Berkeley, Cal.

The army and navy attaches at the embassy are listed as Lieut.-Col. Harry I. T. Creswell, military attache; Lieut.-Col. Henri H. Smith-Hutton, naval attache; Major C. Stanton Babcock, Capt. Karl T. Gould, Capt. Dana W. Johnston and Capt. Archibald Stuart, assistant military attaches; Lieut. Everett L. Phares and Lieut. Martin R. Stone, assistant naval attaches. No home addresses of the military and naval officers were immediately available.

The Consul-General at Tokio is Ralph J. Blake of Portland, Ore., and with him are two vice-consuls, David A. Thomasson of Henderson, Ky., and Donald W. Lamm of Washington.

Other consular officers on duty in Japan or Japanese territory are listed as:

Dairen, Manchuria: Augustus S. Chase, consul, Waterbury, Conn.; W. Garland Richardson, vice-consul, Fries, Va.

Kijo, Chosen (Korea): Harold B. Quarton, Consul-General, Algona, Iowa; Arthur B. Emmons, vice-consul, Boston.

Return Of U. S. Citizens From Japan Is Studied

Problem Of Removing American Diplomats And Nationals Is Now Before State Department

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—The problem of removing American diplomats and nationals from Japan is being studied by the State Department but a solution has not yet been reached.

Secretary Hull said at a press conference today that he hoped it would be possible to work out some arrangement whereby the personnel of the United State embassy in Tokyo and other Americans could be evacuated simultaneously with the departure of Japanese embassy officials and other Japanese nationals from the United States. However, he added, it was not yet possible to say anything definite on the matter.

There are forty-five United States diplomatic and consular officers in Japan and Japanese occupied territory. The Japanese embassy staff here consists of twenty-five persons and there are Japanese consulates general in San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Honolulu and Manila, and consulates in Seattle, Mobile, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Portland, Ore.; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Galveston, Texas, and Davao, in the Philippines.

Report Hitler Pledges French Ships to Japs

Washington, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (AP).—Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) said today he had learned from a usually reliable source that Hitler had promised Japan he could obtain control of the French fleet next month and would be able to give the Japanese active military aid by February.

Gillette said the information came from persons who had reported on Oct. 28 that Japan planned to attack the United States in December, 1941, or in February, 1942.

Gillette said this information was transmitted to the State Department, along with a report from the same source on Nov. 16 that Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy, had been sent at Hitler's instance to gain time for attack preparations.

Most legislators thought that the extent of any Hitler military aid to Japan would depend largely on whether the Russian armies were able to continue resistance.

But any move to make French warships available to the Japanese was regarded with extreme concern in Congressional circles, already shocked by disquieting reports of losses in the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

Nazi Pilots In Jap Blitz?

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Speculation spread in Congressional circles today that German pilots carried out the damaging Blitzkreig on the navy's great Pearl Harbor base.

Some well-informed legislators said they had heard "reports" that some of the planes involved in the attacks bore the Nazi swastika as well as the Japanese rising sun insignia.

Biggest Loss To Navy

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 (U.P.).—The loss of a U. S. battleship at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, officially announced as "capsized", marked the first time in history that the American Navy has suffered such a blow.

No dreadnaught class ship had been lost previously as the U. S. S. Maine, blown up in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1898, was an "ironclad" of only 6,682 tons.

The largest warship lost during the World War was the cruiser San Diego, 15,400 tons.

Attack On Pearl Harbor's Defenses Described As 'Fearfully Punishing'

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 8—Representative Dingell (Dem., Mich.) declared today he would demand the court-martial of the commandant of the Pacific fleet and of the Hawaiian department of the army.

"No one can tell me that we weren't sound asleep," he said. "The army and navy in Hawaii obviously were caught off guard if they were not sound asleep in the same bed."

When Chairman Connally (Dem., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee left the White House after watching President Roosevelt sign the declaration of war, a reporter told him there were reports he had given Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, "hell" at last night's meeting of Cabinet and Congressional leaders.

At first, Connally said he could neither deny nor confirm that he had criticized the navy for apparently being taken by surprise. But later he said he just sat still and "didn't give anybody hell."

LANDON BACKS THE PRESIDENT

DEC 9 1941

Loyalty Pledges Pour In—Partisan Lines Vanish.

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Americans accepted Japan's war on their country today with an outpouring of pledges of unity and loyalty.

The sudden attack virtually wiped out the lines between Congressional supporters and opponents of the administration's foreign policy. And to the White House came message after message, from persons high and low, offering to do what they could.

ALF M. LANDON, former Governor of Kansas and Republican presidential nominee in 1936, wired the President:

"The Japanese attack leaves no choice. Nothing must be permitted to interrupt our victory over a foreign foe."

Messages pledging loyalty and support, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said, were sent by Governors, Mayors, civic leaders, ordinary men and women, labor leaders, women's clubs, editors, clergymen of all denominations, radio stations and broadcasters. Many offered their services personally.

DEC 9 1941

Vandenberg Excoriates Japan.

SENATOR VANDENBERG, Republican, of Michigan, issued this statement:

"I have fought every trend which leads America to needless war, but when war comes to us, I stand for the swiftest and most invincible answer. The unprovoked Japanese attack on American territory is the brutal disclosure of a purpose which violates every element of civilized society. I would answer it with every power at our disposal."

SENATOR BROWN, Democrat, of Michigan, said: "The first day of the war was Japan's. The last day will be ours. I favor the immediate prosecution of war with all the vigor and power we can command."

Lawmakers such as Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, and Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, who had been outspoken critics of the administration foreign policy, asserted that the situation called for unified action by the nation. Senator Wheeler said at Billings, Mont.:

"The only thing now is to do our best to lick hell out of them."

Mr. Fish declared that the American people should "present a united front in support of the President of the United States, the Commander in Chief of the armed forces."

Other congressional comment:

REPRESENTATIVE MAY of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee—"The most treacherous act of any Government I know, since we were in the midst of negotiations for peace."

SENATOR GEORGE, Democrat, of Georgia, member of the Foreign Relations Committee—"It may take two or three years of war in the Pacific to fight this war to the end."

REPRESENTATIVE McCORMACK, Democrat, of Massachusetts, House majority leader—"Remain calm but determined and follow the leadership of President Roosevelt."

SENATOR REYNOLDS, Democrat, of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee—"I am 100 per cent against war. I want to know all about what has happened before I say anything about declaring war."

SENATOR McNARY, Republican, of Oregon, Senate minority leader—"The Republicans will all go along with what is done, in my opinion," (referring to the question of whether the President would ask for a war declaration.)

REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN, Republican, of Massachusetts, House minority leader—"This is a serious moment. We were not talking about politics. Of course there will be none." (After a meeting of cabinet members, congressional leaders and President Roosevelt.)

SENATOR THOMAS, Democrat, of Utah, member of the Foreign Relations Committee—"It is an act of desperate men and will result as such acts generally do—in those men's own destruction. The Japanese Government has plainly gone mad."

SENATOR GUFFEY, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, member of the Foreign Relations Committee—"I am disappointed, but not surprised, and I favor an immediate declaration of war."

REPRESENTATIVE EBERHARTER, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee—"There is only one thing for us to do and that is to go all out and try to destroy Japan's navy completely as quickly as possible."

Lays Blame on Hitler.

REPRESENTATIVE BLOOM, Democrat, of New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—"The army and navy will take over the situation with a united people behind them under their Commander-in-Chief."

SENATOR PEPPER, Democrat, of Florida, member of the Foreign Relations Committee—"We must declare war, not only upon Japan, but upon the whole Axis federation; for Hitler has unmistakably urged Japan to this attack."

SENATOR SHIPSTEAD, Republican, of Minnesota—"Twenty-seven years of American foreign policy has ended in failure. The American people must now accept the consequences and no argument now can alter the tragic facts."

SENATOR BALL, Republican, of Minnesota—"The United States is at war with Japan and let's realize that we also are at war with Germany and Italy."

REPRESENTATIVE DIES, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the House Committee to Investigate Unamerican Activities—"It's just a question of fighting from now on."

SENATOR McKELLAR, Democrat, of Tennessee—"While Japan's representatives were pretending to talk peace her Government was planning this war. She was double crossing the United States."

SENATOR CONNALLY, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee—"Let the Japanese Ambassador go back to his masters and tell them that the United States answers Japan's challenge with steel throated cannon and a sharp sword of retribution. We shall repay her dastardly treachery with multiplied bombs in the air and the heaviest shells from the sea."

SENATOR CLARK, Democrat, of Missouri, frequent critic of administration foreign policy, at St. Louis—"The result of Japan's action will be the practical destruction of the Japanese nation."

REPRESENTATIVE BENDER, Republican, of Ohio—"We have no alternative except to defend oudselves. If a declaration of war is asked, I will vote for it."

REPRESENTATIVE FRANCES P. BOLTON, Republican, of Ohio—"The Japanese action makes our course clear. A united and determined country will be our answer."

SENATOR TRUMAN, Democrat, of Missouri, as he boarded a plane at St. Louis for Washington: "It's for the welfare of the country that we must declare war and put Japan in its place."

Calls U. S. Invincible.

SENATOR MURDOCK, Democrat, of Utah, at Salt Lake City, said: "I am now willing and ready to vote for a declaration of war on the whole Axis—Japan, Germany and Italy. The Japanese attack will unify the greatest wealth of resources in the world and a determined manhood and womanhood into a power that is absolutely invincible."

SENATOR THOMAS, Republican, of Idaho, said, at Twin Falls: "The administration will have my steadfast support in any effort to avenge the dastardly and unprovoked attack on Hawaii."

Senator Brooks, Republican of Illinois, before boarding a plane at Chicago for Washington—"Our country has now been attacked by another country and war has been declared upon us. Now it becomes the duty of all Americans to unite to aid in every possible manner with all our resources, with our lives, in the defense of our country and our American liberty."

Senator Chandler, Democrat of Kentucky, at Winchester, Ky.—"I will vote for war," if Congress is asked for a declaration of war against Japan.

Roll Call of Congress

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Here are the names of the eighty-two Senators who voted today for war against Japan:

PRESIDENT'S POWER GREATLY ENLARGED

State of War 'All but Lifts the Limit,' Legal Advisers in the Capital Say

HAMILTON'S VIEWS QUOTED

'Direction of Common Strength' Rests With the Executive—Summary of New Powers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP)—A state of war all but lifts the limit from Presidential powers.

Statutes which operate in such periods authorize the President to take over transportation systems, industrial plants, radio stations, power facilities and ships, and place some controls on communication systems.

Many of these powers have been available to the President under his emergency proclamations and as Commander in Chief of the armed forces.

One highly placed Administration legal adviser says that in wartime the government has the power "to take what it needs to meet the emergency."

The same thought was expressed by Alexander Hamilton more than a century ago when he wrote:

"The direction of war implies the direction of common strength; and the power of directing and employing the common strength forms a usual and essential part in the definition of the executive authority."

Here, in brief, are some of the other powers given to the President in times of war or great emergency:

Temporary conections of power lines may be required.

Parts of the 1930 Tariff Act may be suspended to permit free entry of needed commodities.

Additional Army officers may be commissioned and their rank may be raised. Retired officers and nurses may be recalled to active service.

The Coast Guard operates as part of the Navy (already ordered).

The Army may take over lands for certain purposes.

The Secretary of War may rent any building in the District of Columbia.

Use may be made of strategic materials purchased for stock piles.

Securities Exchanges (there are nineteen in eighteen cities) may be closed, or trading in any selected securities may be suspended.

Restrictions may be placed against imports from countries found to be discriminating against United States products.

Labor laws providing for an eight-hour working day may be suspended in connection with work on government contracts.

Some of the formalities in making purchases, such as advertising for bids, may be omitted.

The monthly apportionments of funds for governmental departments and agencies may be disregarded.

Wartime Bans On Disclosure Of Information Invoked By Army And Navy

Troop And Ship Movements Made Matter For Secrecy By Two Departments

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 8—Wartime bans on disclosure of information deemed of possible value to the enemy were invoked today by the navy and army.

The navy disclosed it would enforce the Espionage Act of 1918 providing heavy penalties for wilful disclosure of such information.

The War Department extended its ban on military information to include information relating to the routes, schedules and destinations of troop movements within or without the continental United States.

Department's Position

In a memorandum, the department said:

"Information tending to disclose the number of troops, designation of units and disposition of forces overseas is restricted.

"Information as to movements of transports within or without territorial waters is restricted.

"Casualty lists will, if possible, include home addresses, but will not include designation of units."

Defense Plant Secrecy

Jesse Jones, administrator, said today the Federal Loan Agency would discontinue releasing information on all defense subjects, including contracts for new defense plants in this country.

Such information, he said, might be useful to enemies.

The United States Maritime Commission asked that nothing be published or disseminated "concerning the movement, position, cargo or destination of any merchant vessel in any waters."

DEC 9 1941

Navy Program

In describing how the navy expected to restrict war news, Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, chief of the Bureau of Public Relations, said news coverage would proceed on the voluntary censorship basis adopted after the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, but would be backed up with enforcement under the espionage law.

All outgoing cables, he said, were under censorship and cables from Hawaii and the Philippines were being censored at the source.

He attributed delay in delivery of cable news dispatches from Honolulu and Manila to the heavy movement of messages and to new personnel handling such messages. Hepburn said, however, this situation would be straightened out in a short time by increasing the personnel in the Office of Navy Intelligence.

Outgoing Censorship

Outgoing short-wave broadcasts, he said, were under the supervision of William Donovan, coordinator of the Office of Intelligence.

As for casualties in Hawaii, estimated by President Roosevelt to total 3,000, Hepburn said it probably would be several days before the navy could announce the names.

He said the navy would not release any list until relatives had been notified and names had been carefully checked and certified by the Bureau of Navigation.

Crews' Stores

The press relations chief also requested American newspapers to refrain from publishing, without clearance by the navy, stories from members of crews or their families. He said the navy would ask that the use of the names of ships for naval units be withheld because they would identify naval movements.

Furthermore, he said stories from relatives of crew members naming ships should not be used until the Navy Department had announced the name of the ship involved.

Navy Halts News Stories To Four Axis Countries

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Naval censors today formally prohibited sending of news to Germany, Italy, Finland and Japan. This confirmed an emergency order to all communication companies yesterday afternoon which halted all wireless and telephone traffic with Berlin and Rome except press association messages to their correspondents.

Both Domei and DNB ceased sending news to their countries yesterday afternoon as soon as censors could act after the Government announced Japan had attacked Hawaii.

Police Take Over Domei

The Domei office was closed last night and police took possession of it this morning.

The DNB office remained open, expecting that the interruption of its news service to Germany would be temporary.

Announcement of the ban on news to Germany, Italy, Japan and Finland was made by R. C. A. which handles most of the traffic to those countries. R. C. A. officials said their instructions were formal and ordered cancellations of news dispatches previously accepted and awaiting the censors' approval for transmission.

News Arrives Normally

News continued to come normally today from Berlin, Rome and Helsinki to the Associated Press and there was no indication that there would be any restrictions on that news. The Associated Press could send messages freely to its correspondents in those capitals.

From Tokyo there have come only official Japanese broadcasts picked up here by the Associated Press radio listening post. The Associated Press correspondents in Tokyo apparently have not been allowed to file dispatches since some time before Japan began the war.

World-Wide Control

Imposition of the United States naval censorship on all news and messages coming into the United States or going out completed a network of official control that covers the world.

Germany remains the principal country where there is no physical censorship, where a correspondent may send what he wishes, but is held strictly responsible for it.

In nearly every other country a censor watches dispatches to see that no military information is sent out. In Switzerland and at Vichy the censor looks chiefly for news which might cause trouble with Germany.

Hawaii Calm Since Blitzkrieg, Governor Says; Food Control Planned to Conserve Supplies

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—Hawaii has been calm since Sunday's Japanese aerial Blitzkrieg, Governor Joseph B. Poindexter told Delegate Samuel King by transpacific telephone tonight.

Mr. King said the Governor told him there had been no recurrence of the Japanese onslaught and that Hawaii was counting its dead and injured.

The White House earlier today said at least 1,500 persons—civilians and members of the armed forces—were killed and an equal number injured in the Sunday attack.

Mr. King said Governor Poindexter told him that thirty-seven civilians were known to have been killed and between eighty and 100 seriously injured.

Most of these casualties were from bombs that fell in the city of Honolulu. The victims were said to be residents of Japanese and Chinese areas.

Mr. King said he was warned by telephone censors to refrain from any discussion of military information because of the possibility of Japanese eavesdropping.

Governor Poindexter told him that Hawaii's chief worry was its food supply. He asked the delegate to seek immediate Federal aid to build up a reserve.

He said Hawaiian retail outlets would all be closed by government edict tomorrow to permit a careful inventory of food on hand.

Governor Poindexter said he was fearful that the diversion of ships for military purposes might cut the island off from food.

Mr. King quoted Governor Poindexter as saying that the civilian population "is quiet and in complete order." There had been apprehensions over the conduct of Hawaii's 37,000 Japanese aliens and 100,000 American-born Japanese.

300-YEAR DEFEAT SEEN FOR JAPAN

LaGuardia Says Everyone Must Do His Part To Inflict It, However

DEC 9 1941

Civilian Defense Director Calls All Citizens To Volunteer For Home Guarding

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 8 — Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, National Director of Civilian Defense, said tonight "We are going to beat the Japs so badly that they will never attempt such a dastardly attack as yesterday's for the next 300 years."

The Mayor appealed to all citizens in a broadcast over the NBC blue network to volunteer to do their part in home defense, adding:

"We can lick the Japs if everybody does his part."

Distance No Protection

LaGuardia cautioned that "distance is no protection" against possible air raids, commenting that "we who live on the Atlantic Coast are just as much in danger as our countrymen who were bombed in Honolulu."

He called upon residents to obey air-raid wardens and follow minutely instructions given by civilian defense leaders.

"I do not want to unduly alarm my fellow-citizens, but I want to be realistic," La Guardia said. "The situation is serious. We must not underestimate what happened twenty-four hours ago. It is going to be a difficult task, it may take time, but we are not afraid and we are confident."

Air-Raid Do's And Don't's

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 8—F. H. LaGuardia, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, is issuing a set of six instructions for the guidance of civilians in areas subject to possible aerial bombing. The first set of rules follows and the second will be published tomorrow:

Keep cool.

Above all, keep cool. Don't lose your head.

Do not crowd the streets; avoid chaos, prevent disorder and havoc.

Don't Scream

You can fool the enemy. It is easy. If planes come over, stay where you are. Don't phone unnecessarily. Do not run—do not scream. The chance you will be hit is small. It is part of the risk we must take to win this war.

Until an alarm, go about your usual business and recreation in the ordinary way.

Think twice before you do anything. Don't believe rumors—spreading false rumors is part of the enemy's technique. Don't let him take you in.

Know Your Warning

Know your air-raid warning. In general, it is short blasts or rising and falling pitch, or whistles or horns. The all clear is a steady tone for two minutes. Watch this paper for description of the local signal. (This is subject to change.)

Await official information before taking any action. Wh the air-raid warden comes to your home, do what he tells you. He is for protection. He is your friend.

He will help you do your part to whip the enemy.

We can do it. We will do it, if we stay calm and cool and strong and alert.

U. S. Pacific Outposts, Equator to Arctic, Run 10,000 Miles

Congress Refused Forts For Guam to Avoid Offending Japan

WASH.

By the Associated Press.

Japan's sudden attack on Hawaii immediately thrust into the Pacific war's front line a chain of American outposts strung along a 10,000-mile irregular arc from the Arctic Circle almost to the Equator.

As war clouds lowered in recent months, defense of Alaska and the Philippines, which anchor the north and south flanks of the line, have been urgently reinforced. Hawaii, vital naval and air base in the center, for years has been in process of conversion into a mid-ocean Gibraltar.

A dozen or more small islands in the South Pacific likewise have been transformed into naval air patrol stations with an eye to the peril of the explosion that came without warning.

DEC 9 1941

The Japanese attack on the bastion of the entire defense line dramatized the peril faced by all as frontier outposts of continental defense, their safety and military value hinging on co-operation with the fleet.

Guam and Wake Exposed.

As the war storm broke, most exposed of all were Guam and Wake Islands, stepping stones on the trans-Pacific air route in use since 1935. They were, as anticipated, initial objectives of an attack aimed at severing the route of commercial air clipper planes linking the United States with the Far East, and of the Army bombers which sped in recent months to bolster Hawaii, the Philippines, British Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies.

It is no military secret that both Guam and Wake lacked defenses capable of coping with a determined attack in force. To avoid giving offense to Tokio, Congress several times has rejected naval requests for funds to fortify Guam, closest to Tokio of all American possessions. Wake is a mere island stopping place for planes.

Surrounded by Japanese islands, Guam is but 1,500 miles from Manila by air, and 5,000 miles from San Francisco. Wake is 1,300 miles nearer California.

It is no secret likewise that their loss would fail to sever the trans-Pacific air route. Other islands make it possible to reach the Philippines and other parts of the Far East by way of Australia.

Alaskan Bases Worked On.

The Navy has sped work for more than two years on air and warship bases in Alaska.

Hawaii's aerial defense were reinforced quickly last spring when a Japanese attack was feared. Hickam Field, between Honolulu and the Pearl Harbor naval base on the principal Island of Oahu, which was bombed yesterday, has been developed into one of the greatest of all Army air posts.

As a part of an air patrol undertaken in the last three years, a number of islets within 1,000 or so air miles of Honolulu, have been provided with air facilities.

Some 1,200 miles to the northwest, Midway Island has been converted into an important aerial outpost.

Far to the south of Honolulu, on the route to the Philippines, another frontier post is American Samoa, where additional naval and air facilities have been created.

Only a little more than 2,000 bomber miles from Tokio, the Philippines have been converted in a few months from a defensive liability into a base for possible hard air blows on Japan.

From one of their admirals, the Japanese heard only last week that America had massed a score of long-range four-motor bombers in the Philippines, but he voiced assurance that they were early models incapable of flying with bombs to Tokio.

Morgenthau's Order Bans Communication With Japan or 'Allies'

Portion of Trading With Enemy Act Is Invoked By Treasury Secretary

WASH.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau invoked last night a portion of the trading with the Enemy Act, which bars transportation or communications with Japan or her allies, no matter how indirectly.

The section invoked by the Treasury chief does not require action by the President, except that actions prohibited by the law can be made exceptions with the license of the President.

Secretary Morgenthau earlier had closed the Nation's borders to Japanese nationals and imposed a strict ban on any financial transactions by Japanese aliens.

Section 3 of the Trading With the Enemy Act provides that it shall be unlawful:

(A.) For any person in the United States, except with the license of the President, to trade or attempt to trade, directly or indirectly, with or on behalf of any person who he has reason to believe is an enemy or an ally of an enemy.

Japanese Subjects Held Here.

(B.) For any person to transport or attempt to transport into or out of the United States any subject or citizen of an enemy or ally of an enemy.

DEC 9 1941

(C.) For any person [illegible] than one in the service of the United States or a friendly government) to send or take out or attempt to send or take out any tangible form of communication, except in the regular mail, or any wireless message or other form of communication intended directly or indirectly for an enemy or ally of an enemy, except that such communications may be transmitted after approval by the President or an officer designated by the President.

Words Are Defined.

Mr. Morgenthau's order defines the words "enemy" and "ally of enemy" as:

(A) Any individual, partnership, or other body of individuals, of any nationality, resident within the territory (including that occupied by the military and naval forces) of Japan or of any nation which is an ally of Japan or resident outside the United States, and doing business within such territory, and any corporation incorporated within any country other than the United States and doing business within such territory; (b) the government of Japan or any nation which is an ally of Japan, or any political or municipal subdivision thereof, or any officer, official, agent or agency thereof."

Patterson Requests Munition Production On 24-Hour Basis

Undersecretary of War Calls for Overtime Work For All Employes

WASH.

By the Associated Press.

Undersecretary of War Patterson called today for production of all war munitions on a 24-hour basis.

Mr. Patterson issued instructions to chiefs of the War Department procurement agency that "all steps must be taken to increase the speed with which contracts are let and to speed up maximum production."

The undersecretary is in charge of Army procurement.

Mr. Patterson also directed that all officers and civilian employes of the War Department agencies under his control "be required to work as many additional hours each day as is necessary to get the day's work done." His memorandum follows:

"It is essential that our procurement be put into highest gear at once. All steps must be taken to increase the speed with which contracts are let, and to speed up maximum production of munitions.

"All officers and civilian employes to be required to work as many additional hours each day as is necessary to get the day's work done.

"It is suggested that you address a communication to all officers and employes in your branch or service exhorting them to make their maximum effort regardless of the long hours or hardship which may be involved.

"You are directed to take all necessary steps to boost munitions manufacture to the highest possible level. Additional overtime work and second and third shifts must be arranged. Our production must be put on a 24-hour-a-day basis. You are directed to take such steps as will achieve this as quickly as possible."

Litvinoff Discusses War With Roosevelt

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Maxim Litvinoff presented his credentials as the Soviet Union's Ambassador to President Roosevelt today and discussed the whole war situation with the President. He said afterward that he could not make any statement about the chances of Russia going to war with Japan.

First Lady And LaGuardia Flying To Los Angeles

Waashington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt with Civilian Defense Director F. H. LaGuardia, and two assistants left by plane tonight for Los Angeles to begin the coordination and stimulation of civilian defense along the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Roosevelt, as Assistant Civilian Defense Director, expects to remain several days in Los Angeles while LaGuardia goes on to San Francisco and other cities for a quick survey. He said he would confer tomorrow with Governor Olson.

LaGuardia said immediate attention would be given to protective defense, which means that an urgent call will be made for volunteer air-raid wardens and for the fire services.

Aroused and United America Girds for All-Out War Effort

DEC 8 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—An aroused United States, attacked without warning by Japan, grimly prepared today for total war.

Swift moves were afoot to take the wraps off American armed forces, to wage full economic warfare, to prevent activities by enemy agents and to guard the nation's industries against sabotage.

TROOPS SOON AVAILABLE OUTSIDE HEMISPHERE

Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee predicted it would take "only an hour or two" for his group to recommend deletion of a clause in the selective service act which forbids use of draftees and National Guardsmen outside the Western Hemisphere.

No congressional action was needed to make available for selective service men in the 28 to 35 year old age bracket. The act as originally drawn fixed the ceiling as 35, but Congress subsequently deferred those 28 or older. The amended act, however, specified that deferment would be wiped out automatically if the United States went to war.

The Navy said that commandants of naval districts, under conditions such as these, automatically would cancel leaves after the president moved to put all units of the armed forces on the alert.

Christmas Leaves Stand

Brigadier General Alexander D. Surles, chief of the Army's public relations branch, said that only in the case of certain units, which he did not name, would soldiers' Christmas leaves be cancelled. He added, though, that post commanders had the power to withhold leave without reference to the War Department and dispatches indicated many had done so.

Quick to warn against the danger of enemy-inspired damage to defense plants, the War Department requested all radio stations last evening to broadcast an order that "all firms and manufacturing plants who have defense contracts or are working on defense orders will at once institute proper measures against sabotage."

General Allen Gullion, provost marshal, directed the Army to round up all "previously known suspicious aliens" in the Fourth Army Area, which embraces the West Coast, Alaska, the Hawaiian Department and the Canal Zone. In many cities local authorities proceeded on their own responsibility to order the arrest of all Japanese nationals.

Treasury Erects Barriers

On the economic front Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau made effective a law which bars trading with the enemy, thus cutting off transportation and communication with the Nipponese. Earlier, he had closed the nation's borders to Japanese nationals and forbidden financial transactions with aliens of the island empire. Unofficial estimates place Japanese assets in the United States at $130,000,000. By executive order, these have been frozen—that is, immobilized except for transactions licensed by the Treasury—since July 25.

Attorney-General Biddle announced early today that President Roosevelt had authorized arrest of Japanese nationals "dangerous to the peace and security of the United States." Biddle estimated that fewer than 1,000 would be affected. He added that all those picked up would receive "a fair hearing."

91,000 Japs Registered

Approximately 91,000 Japanese nationals registered under the alien registration act of last year, including 40,000 in Hawaii. Some left after Japanese-United States relations became tense, but most of them stayed.

Without waiting for federal action, Colonel Charles B. Borland, director of public safety at Norfolk, Va., ordered the arrest of all Japanese nationals. Norfolk is a huge Navy base.

To protect official Japanese against any mob hysteria guards were established at the Washington embassy and at consulates throughout the nation. Said the State Department:

"Immediately upon receiving news of the Japanese attack upon Hawaii the American government took steps to see that absolute protection was accorded the Japanese official establishments and official personnel within the jurisdiction of the United States." Police officials in various cities followed suit.

Censorship Effective

The Navy and War Departments put sharp censorship into effect. The Navy announcement said simply that "censorship on all outgoing cablegrams and radio messages from the United States and its outlying possessions" had been ordered.

Earlier the War Department had stated that certain information was secret and "will be so considered under the law," including data relating to "strength, location, designation, composition and movement of U. S. troops or Army transports outside the continental limits of the United States."

"The law" was presumed to mean the espionage act.

The America First Committee, from its Chicago headquarters, issued a statement saying in part:

"The America First Commitee urges all those who have subscribed to its principles to give their support to the war effort of this country until the conflict with Japan is brought to a successful conclusion. In this war the America First Committee pledges its aid to the president and commander in chief of the armed forces of the United States."

HOW U. S. MOVED IN WORLD CRISIS

Dealings With Other Powers Since 1935 Recorded.

Delivers Declaration Of War To President; Typed The One Of '17

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—The man who delivered the declaration of war against Japan to the White House today for President Roosevelt's signature was the same man who typed the declaration of war against Germany in 1917.

Garrett Whiteside, now clerk of the Committee on Enrolled Bills of the Senate, was employed in the office of the House bill clerk in 1917. He said the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the British Ambassador stepped across the hall from the committee room and asked him if he could use a typewriter.

They then dictated, he said, the original draft of the 1917 war declaration.

SUPREME COURT FREES BRIDGES OF CONTEMPT

Washington, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Supreme Court reversed today contempt of court convictions against the Los Angeles Times and Harry Bridges, West Coast C. I. O. labor leader.

Justice Black, who delivered the majority decision, asserted that the First Amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibits "any law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press" and "must be taken as a command of the broadest scope that explicit language, read in the context of a liberty-loving society, will allow."

The new spaper was convicted on charges growing out of the publication of editorials about court cases prior to a final settlement.

Bridges was convicted of sending to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins a telegram, subsequently published, criticizing a decision by the Los Angeles Superior Court.

Senator Chandler Offers To Fight

DEC 9 1941

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—Senator Chandler (Dem., Ky.) said today that he had called the War Department to volunteer for active service in the hostilities with Japan. Chandler is a captain in the Reserve Corps, but as a member of Congress would not be called unless he desired to go.

2 Jap Troopships Reported Hit

Washington, Dec. 8—NBC interrupted its report of the President's message to Congress to announce that Singapore authorities had reported that two Hudson bombers had scored direct hits on two Japanese troopships near Malaya and that another had sunk a barge loaded with troops.

Green Calls For End To Strikes

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor called today for an end to strikes in defense industries.

He added in a statement that Japanese "treachery and aggression had aroused in American workers an unconquerable determination to see this fight through to a victorious finish at any cost."

Air Fleet of 60 Reported Repelled at Golden Gate

San Francisco Blacks Out, Relights, Is Darkened Again as Army Officer Reports 'This Is Actual Attack'

DEC 9 1941

Navy Sends Ships Out to Find Where Invaders Came From

Anti-Aircraft Guns Rushed Into Place; Other West Coast Areas Darkened; Broadcasting Stations Silenced

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—Brigadier General William Ord Ryan, of the 4th Interceptor Command, said that a large number of unidentified planes had approached the Golden Gate tonight, but were sighted and driven back to sea.

"They came from the sea, were turned back, and the Navy has sent out three vessels to find where they came from," General Ryan said. "I don't know how many planes there were, but there were a large number. They got up to the Golden Gate and then turned about and headed southwest."

General Ryan was asked whether he thought they were Japanese bombers. "Well, they weren't Army planes, they weren't Navy planes, and you can be sure they weren't civilian planes," he answered. The general was asked if he was willing to be quoted directly. "Certainly," he said.

DEC 9 1941

The general's statement came at the end of three-and-a-half hours in which this city of 630,000 population —4,700 miles from Yokohama—alternately believed that it was in peril of immediate air assault and that the blackout ordered by air-raid wardens was merely practice.

Alarm Lasts Seventy Minutes

Police, who ordered the blackout at 6:20 p. m., announced at 7:30 p. m. that lights could be turned on again, but before many were relighted a second blackout was decreed. The interceptor command said it had not lifted the blackout.

Residents along Marina Boulevard, fronting the bay near the Golden Gate, said sixty Army trucks rushed anti-aircraft guns to the water's edge during the blackout.

[The United Press said that the air alarm, which started out as the "real thing," was later explained as simply a test for San Francisco, which had never held an air-raid practice, and finally was described by General Ryan as having been the result of the actual approach of "hostile planes." The planes, he said, approached the California coast between Fort Bragg and Fort Ord but were turned "off to the southwest," resulting in the blackout orders in the threatened area, which includes many other centers that had held no test before. "This was an actual attack," General Ryan said.

["Two strong squadrons were picked up by detectors approaching the Golden Gate. They moved north to Eureka, then south toward Monterey There were about sixty planes. At one time, they were within twenty miles of San Francisco, all the time flying at very great height. The alarm lasted almost two and one-half hours before the planes turned off to sea, flying toward the southwest, General Ryan said.

["The emergency is over now, and the all-clear signal has been given. The Navy is attempting to locate and give battle to the hostile planes."]

Blackout At Many Points

The scream of air-raid sirens in San Francisco and blackout of lights and radio at many points along the Pacific Coast gave startled Californians a taste of the grim realities of war with Japan.

Official sources on the Coast and in Washington were not in entire agreement, however, on whether the whole performance was a series of surprise tests or terrible truth. Washington authorities stated the two alarms were only tests, but General Ryan insisted that planes which were not United States craft had actually approached the Golden Gate and been driven back to sea.

Sirens wailed continuously, air wardens rushed from door to door darkening lights in their areas, and in the downtown area there were numerous crashes as automobiles piled against each other.

Police said a woman was shot and wounded by a California State Guardsman near the bay bridge.

The reported repulse of the planes was not explained in detail by General Ryan, who said no night fighting planes were sent aloft.

Meanwhile, in Victoria, British Columbia, a complete nightly blackout of coastal British Columbia and the lower Canadian mainland was ordered tonight because "the war situation is such that an attack by Japanese forces on the Pacific northwest coast is imminent."

All motor traffic on Victoria Streets was halted at 6 p. m. by naval policemen. Drivers were told to go home.

British Columbia Blackout

The blackout order was announced by Canadian Western air command headquarters at Victoria and followed shortly a similar order for the states of Oregon and Washington. The order read: "Attention all citizens of British Columbia. The war situation is such that an attack by Japanese forces on the Pacific northwest coast is imminent and therefore, on advice of military authorities, the Premier of British Columbia has issued instructions for a complete blackout of lights and communications on Vancouver Island and the whole coast of British Columbia and the lower mainland from dusk to dawn until further notice."

All Alberta and Saskatchewan radio stations shut down tonight at 10 p. m. on orders from the Canadian Western Air Command.

San Diego Ready to Black Out

In San Diego the commandant of the 11th Naval District announced tonight that it might be advisable as a precautionary measure to black out San Diego "at any minute."

The Navy announcement urged citizens to stay at home and remain calm and to tune in to police broadcasts during the blackout for additional information.

DEC 9 1941

In Los Angeles an air-raid warning service bulletin ordered a blackout all night with a fifteen-mile radius of the harbor until daylight, and all radio stations were ordered off the air at 7:10 p. m. Programs originating in Los Angeles were sent to eastern stations by wire as usual.

At Sacramento, McClellan field officers broadcast an order for complete blackout in the city of Sacramento.

In Spokane, Wash., all radio stations went off the air tonight at 7 p. m., and the signal corps headquarters of the 2d Air Force announced they would not return until 8 a. m. tomorrow. The stations first went off at 5 p. m. but in a few minutes returned for an additional two hours.

At Fort Wright, in Washington, it was said the radio blackout was at the order of the commanding general, Major General Millard Harmon, on instruction from Washington.

A heavy fog which settled over the eastern Washington-Idaho area made actual blackout of the Spokane area unnecessary, the signal headquarters explained.

All stations in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, west of Boise, were ordered closed except Boise and Medford, Ore. No reason was given why the Medford station was excepted.

Air raid warnings began to sound throughout San Francisco at 6:50 p. m. as fire trucks were backed from their stalls, under a prearranged system, and sounded their sirens.

Along Marina Boulevard, a fashionable thoroughfare near the Presidio on the north side of San Francisco, soldiers caused householders to turn out their house lights.

Wilbur Sanders, Associated Press editor living in the Sunset district in the southwestern part of the city, said at 6:55 p. m. he heard the sound of many airplane engines.

The planes appeared to be heading seaward, Mr. Sanders said, indicating they might be interceptors from nearby military airports.

Coast Marshals Forces

The entire west coast marshaled its forces of war today—proudly, grimly and with the utmost speed—in the face of day-long reports of new dangers off its shores.

Thousands flocked to volunteer for civilian deefnse; Army and Navy enlistments boomed to new records; bridges, tunnels, utilities, vital defense centers and eevn schools went under heavy guard.

News of the fast-developing hostilities in the Pacific was followed almost immediately by declarations of emergency, the closing of schools in Oakland across San Francisco Bay, and emergency sessions of city and civilian defense councils in many sectors.

Orders were prepared for instant blackouts; firemen and policemen went on long-hour duty, and the general roundups of suspected Japanese aliens went on apace.

Military bases, particularly those in Alaska, where a far-northward swing of invading craft might bring new dangers, were settled into a war-time alert status.

Army and Navy headquarters all up and down the coast were beehives of activity, the nature of which for good reason was not for public eyes, and most official comment came in the cryptic form of "we're ready."

The day brought many wild reports—one that Los Angeles was under air attack, another that Japanese planes weer seven minutes off the Golden Gate.

Five Japanese banks in California were taken over by the state.

The great Boulder Dam, on the Colorado River between Nevada and Arizona, was under heavy guard, and nightly blackouts were ordered. United States Highway 93, which crosses it, was closed to automobile traffic.

In Long Beach complete blackout of the harbor area, including San Pedro, Wilmington and a major part of Long Beach, was ordered early today by Captain Richard B. Coffman, 11th Naval District assistant commandant.

Air Attacks Imminent, Los Angeles Is Warned

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (AP)—The police department reported tonight receipt of a communication from the air-raid warning service declaring "air-raid attacks from enemy planes, surface vessels and submarines are imminent tonight."

The air-raid warning service bulletin as made public by the police continued:

"All precautions will be taken to avoid surprise. Naval authorities have ordered a blackout within a fifteen-mile radius of the harbor until daylight."

All radio stations were ordered off the air at 7.10 P. M. The air-raid warning service is an instrumentality of the United States Army.

Blackout Is Ordered In British Columbia

DEC 9 1941

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 8 (AP)—A complete blackout of coastal British Columbia and the lower mainland was ordered tonight because "the war situation is such that an attack by Japanese forces on the Pacific Northwest coast is imminent."

All motor traffic on Victoria streets was halted at 6 P. M. by naval policemen. Drivers were told to go home.

The blackout order was announced by Western Air Command Headquarters here and followed shortly a similar order for the States of Oregon and Washington.

JAPANESE ON COAST CALL WAR 'HARA-KIRI'

Residents of Los Angeles Assert Nippon Is Sure to Lose

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8 (AP)—Almost every one in Little Tokyo, largest Japanese settlement in the United States, expected war between America and Japan.

None express the view that Japan can win. Most believe that the military government of Nippon is committing national hara-kiri.

Little Tokyo, near Los Angeles' towering City Hall, is the home of 40,000 members of the Japanese race. Twenty thousand more, out of the Pacific Coast's total of 150,000, reside elsewhere in Los Angeles County.

Two-thirds of all these are Japanese only in an ethnological sense. They are the Nisei, or second-generation, American-born. Their parents, the first generation Issei, are denied citizenship but have lived here twenty, thirty or more years.

"This is an unprecedented crisis for us," says Katsumas Mukaeda, president of the Japanese Cultural Society, "but we shall acquit ourselves proudly. America is our home, our permanent residence."

Togo Tanaka, editor of Rafu Shimpo, Los Angeles Japanese newspaper, pointed out that the Japanese-American Citizens League, 15,000 strong on the Pacific Coast, has been working closely with the F. B. I. and naval intelligence for several years.

"We think the Japanese Government is stupid and has embarked on a campaign it has absolutely no chance of winning," said Tanaka. "We have not been in sympathy with Japan's expansion program. This may well be the end of Japan as a power."

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Radio Tokio, as heard by the NBC listening post, reported that Japanese bombers had attacked the island of Palawan in the Philippines.

DEC 9 1941

TOJO PREDICTS TOKIO VICTORY

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Premier Hideki Tojo told the Japanese people in a broadcast from Tokio last night: "I hereby promise you that Japan will win final victory."

He said Japan was declaring war on the United States for "self-protection and self-existence."

The broadcast was picked up by the NBC listening post. Tojo appealed to all Japanese to co-operate in the struggle, and declared that in 2,600 years of history Japan never had lost a war.

The rise or fall of east Asia depends on the outcome of this fight, said Tojo, adding:

"We have nothing to fear in this war."

West Virginia Youth Reported On Wake Island

Former Charleston Athlete Working On Airport Project For Last Two Weeks, Parents Say

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP)—At least one West Virginian was believed today to be on Wake Island, reported smashed by Japanese naval forces.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hastie, of Charleston, said their son Frank, former Charleston high school football player and amateur boxer, had been working for the Government on airport construction at the Pacific base for several weeks.

DEC 9 1941

Hastie left Charleston more than a year ago to work in California defense industries and several months ago was employed to work on the island, lying in the Far Pacific between Honolulu and Manila.

Eighteen Sentenced For Plot Against U. S.

All Defendants Remain At Liberty Under Bond Pending Appeal

Minneapolis, Dec. 8 (AP)—Federal Judge M. M. Joyce today sentenced twelve of eighteen members af the Socialist Workers' party convicted of advocating overthrow of the Government by force ond violence to serve sixteen months in prison. The other six received terms of a year and a day. The defendants remain at liberty on bond pending appeal.

Sentenced to sixteen months, to be served in an institution selected by the United States Attorney General, were: Vincent R. Dunne, Adbert Goldman, James P. Cannon, Grace Carlson, Farrell Dobbs, Felix Morrow, Oscar Coover, Max Geldman, Carlos Hudson, Carl Skoglund, Jake Cooper and Emil Hansen.

Given a year and a day were Edward Palmquist, Clarence Hamel, Harry Deboer, Oscar Schonfeld, Karl Kuehn and Alfred Russell.

Alaska Prepares Against Possible Attack By Japanese Fleet in Swing Northward

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 8 (AP)—Alaska prepared today for the possibility that Japanese warships might swing northward from Hawaii.

All over the far-flung territory the Alaska Defense Command made ready its new bases for possible attack. The Navy put its entire territorial establishment on a ready-for-action basis.

Army officers, declining to permit quotation, conceded that Japanese warships might come this way in a northward circle on their route back toward Japan from Hawaii.

Street lights and commercial signs were darkened in Anchorage to make attack more difficult and to conserve power for military uses. Mayor William Stolt ordered the partial blackout on the suggestion of Major Gen. Simon Buckner, heading the Alaska Defense Command, who asked that it be continued at least a week.

General Buckner summoned all service men back from leaves and furloughs and declared all defense positions were fully manned. Army guards were stationed at offices of the Alaska Communications System, Army-operated radio link between territorial points and the United States proper. Red Cross units and home guards were assigned stations.

At Ketchikan all soldiers were recalled to Annette Island Field, multimillion-dollar airport under construction there, and civilian home guard units took places at all strategic points.

At Sitka a few aliens were rounded up by officers yesterday and civilian defense forces took over guarding of the city last night. Civilian squads were also on duty at Fairbanks, while Army units concentrated their preparations on the nation's farthest-north military airfield.

News of the outbreak of the Pacific war was sent by Army officials and through privately operated radio stations to the most remote points in the Territory.

Lindbergh Backs War on Japan

America First Committee Also Pledges Its Loyal Support to Government.

DEC 9 - 1941

Chicago, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Charles A. Lindbergh issued the following statement through the America First Committee today:

"We have been stepping closer to war for many months. Now it has come nad we must meet it as united Americans regardless of our attitude in the past toward the policy our Government has followed. Whether or not that policy has been wise, our country has been attacked by force of arms, and by force of arms we must retaliate.

"Our own defenses and our own military position have already been neglected too long. We must now turn every effort to building the greatest and most efficient army, navy and air force in the world. When American soldiers go to war it must be with the best equipment that modern skill can design and that Committee Supports War.

The New York chapter of the America First Committee, through its chairman, John T. Flynn, pledged loyal support to the Government today and declared the time was past for discussing its opposition to involvement in European or Asiatic wars Major-Gen. Robert E. Wood, national chairman of the organization, speaking for himself, said when he arrived here last night by plane from Chicago:

"If Congress declares war, we'll support the war," and the committee, from its Chicago headquarters, issued a statement later urging all who subscribed to its principles to give their support to the war effort "until the conflict with Japan is brought to a successful conclusion."

Meanwhile, the much-advertised "mammoth anti-war rally," scheduled for tonight in the Westchester County Center, White Plains, was called off.

Text of Statement.

Mr. Flynn's statement was given out at committee offices, 515 Madison avenue, shortly after 1 P. M. today. It began:

"The New York chapter of the America First Committee accepts completely the statement of our national chairman, Gen. R. F. Wood, pledging loyal support to the Government by the members of American First.

"This committee was organized to oppose America's involvement in European or Asiatic wars. Its counsels and advice were rejected at each step by the Government, but the time for discussing that is past. We are now at war. It is the duty of the Govrenment to prosecute that war with all the energy of the nation. It is equally the duty of every citizen to stand behind the Government to the uttermost in that task."

The statement said that the committee's chief reason for opposing war was fear that it might end in the destruction of American liberties, forms of government and industry. It expressed the hope that the war would be carried through as an American war, in the interest of American aims and ideals; that the rights of citizens would be respected and that the long-range policies of the nation would be determined by the people, through the Congress.

Cobb Quits Committee.

"Finally," it concluded, "we hope that secret treaties committing America to imperialistic aims or vast burdens in other parts of the world shall be scrupulously avoided to the end that this nation shall become the champion of a just and lasting peace."

In Los Angeles, Irvin S. Cobb, the writer, was reported to have resigned from the executive board of the America First Committee with a plea for an unbroken front to America's enemies.

"Until this war is won, and completely won, I think it is the sacred duty of every American to uphold the hands of our Government and support it in every wory," he wired the committee headquarters in Chicago.

10 Years' Bombing Practice Helps Japanese Accuracy

DEC 9 1941

By Frank L. Martin
By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 8.—Japanese officers who came to southern French Indo-China with the occupation army in August told me they believed their land and sea forces were not strong enough to defeat the United States but that "does not mean Japan would not enter into a war with the United States."

In Saigon, hearquarters for the Japanese army in Indo-China, Col. Jiro Saito, chief of the Japanese mission in southern Indo-China, described the Japanese army's position as having advanced too far toward the "New order to East Asia" to turn back and succumb to the demands of the United States and Britain.

British and American businessmen residing in Indo-China and who had talked with Saito believed he felt that the army would lose its grip on the Tokyo government and people if it reversed its often-announced program.

Feared Loss of Power

These observers declared that the Japanese army felt that the Japanese businessmen, who have suffered the most during the past ten years of military adventure, would rise to a position stronger than the army and gain control of the government.

I have talked with several other Japanese officers who accompanied the occupation armies to the French colony and they too, in general, agreed with Col. Saito, who was born in Japan and reared in Honolulu.

"You Americans would want us to demobilize our army — yet what would Japan do now with nearly two million unemployed men suddenly turned loose in our country?" they asked. "There would be a revolution or they would starve."

From Hanoi I saw Japanese pursuit planes and bombers take off to attack Chinese positions. From Chugking, Capital of China, I saw the effect of their raids on that mountain city.

The Japanese have had more than ten years of bombing practice, and during the past four years bombing operations against Chinese objectives have become almost a daily maneuver.

"Their usual procedure is to send four flights of 27 planes each to bomb an objective, the groups attacking at intervals of 15 minutes. I have seen the Japanese attack Chungking, and know they can bomb accurately.

The most astonishing fact about the Japanese raids was the number of bombs they dropped that failed to explode. In three weeks we had 16 unexploded bombs in the compound of the Press Hotel at Chungking.

Formosa Fortified

At the commercial airport in Saigon, before the Japanese closed it to foreigners as well as French, I saw a sample of their latest military planes. This plane was a light bomber converted into a transport plane for the Japanese army officers. It seemed to take off and handle smoothly, but a French pilot, who had flown one, told me it was not a safe plane to fly.

Japanese raids on the Philippines probably were made from Formosa—the most fortified Japanese stronghold south of their main islands. Travelers reaching Indo-China say the Japanese have built huge naval bases at both ends of the island and large air bases inland from the naval bases. They said the island had been fortified heavily during the past two years.

The naval bases are to be used mainly for supplying submarines, it is believed. The island is described as Japan's naval and military supply center for Japanese in southern China and the southern Pacific.

COURT REJECTS GERMANS

Italians Also Fail to Gain Citizenship at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8 (AP)—Judge William C. Coleman today denied citizenship "until further notice" to Germans and Italians because he said the United States is "in effect, at war with those countries."

DEC 9 1941

"Japan is not merely an avowed ally of Germany and Italy," he said. "It is apparent, even to a little child, that Japan is only a puppet of those countries."

He postponed naturalization proceedings including seventeen Germans, twelve Italians, one Finn and four women who lost American citizenship by marrying foreign-born men. Persons of other nationalities were permitted to take the oath of allegiance.

U. S. Threat To Nazis Seen As War Cause

Louisville Editor Declares That Center Of Far East Conflict Really Is In Berlin

Boston, Dec. 8 (AP)—Japan declared war because the United States had become "a sufficient nuisance to Berlin," Herbert S. Agar, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, said today.

"The center of this war is in Berlin and not in Japan," Agar told a group of 1,300 women at a luncheon of the Boston chapter of the Hadassah.

20 U. S. Pictures Seized From Jap Consular Aide

Negatives Were Of Scenes In Washington And New York, Where They Were Gotten

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—Police today seized twenty film negatives of New York city and Washington scenes from an aide to Mamoru Morishima, Japanese consul general here.

Detectives said the batch included views of the Washington Monument and a bridge in the Capitol and New York bridges and skyscrapers. None was of a vital defense area, preliminary examination showed.

The negatives were turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Morishima refused to comment on the seizure.

Knox Article Asserts Navy Now Has 4,000 Airplanes In Service

DEC 9 1941

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, writing in the January issue of "Flying and Popular Aviation," out tomorrow, says the navy now has 4,000 airplanes in service and will have an additional 4,000 by next July in an expansion program designed to give the navy a total of 15,000 aircraft.

Knox emphasized that the estimates under which the navy sought and received in July, 1940, authorization for a 15,000-plane fleet were not "haphazard guesses as to what our air strength at any given date should be, but were carefully weighed estimates of the requirements of our expanding navy, for naval aviation is primarily sea-going and bears an almost constant ratio to naval surface tonnage."

"The projected two-ocean navy," he added, "will be a balanced force of ships and aircraft and our advanced bases in the Atlantic and Pacific, on completion, will each have its complement of vitally necessary aircraft for scouting, attack and defense."

U. S. Again To Allow Clearance For Ships

Emergency Cancellation Of Sailings Rescinded By Treasury Department

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—American shiping, paralyzed by a Treasury Department order cancelling customs permits to ships bound for foreign ports, crept toward normal today when officials announced that clearance would be granted.

Officials said the order stopping sailings was precautionary and that it was induced by the shock of Japan's sudden attack on United States possessions.

They said ships would be cleared upon reapplication.

Shipments of supplies to England and Russia were curtailed by yesterday's order.

Hoover Calls For Fight With All Resources To Assure Japan's Defeat

DEC 9 1941

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover issued the following statement tonight regarding the war situation:

"American soil has been treacherously attacked by Japan. Our decision is clear. It is forced upon us. We must fight with everything we have. I have opposed the foreign policies of our Government. I have believed alternative policies would have been better. But whatever our differences of view may be as to the causes which lead to this situation, those are matters to be threshed out by history.

"Today there is just one job before the American people. We must defeat this invasion by Japan and we must fight it in any place that will defeat it. Upon this job we must have and will have unity in America. We must have and will have support for the President of the United States in this war to defend America. We will have victory."

Atlantic Clipper Off To Lisbon On Schedule

All 48 Passengers Leave As Booked—Military And Naval Men Aboard

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Atlantic Clipper left for Lisbon today with all of its scheduled forty-eight passengers on board, including eight representatives of United States armed forces.

Expected cancellations as a result of the war in the Pacific failed to materialize.

Among the military and naval men were Col. John Reynolds, going to Dublin to serve as military attache; Lieut. Col. Aaron Bradshaw, Lieut. Harold Broudy, Sergt. William Finney and Private Harold Mc Intire, on an observation mission; Naval Lieuts. Jonus D. Hardy and Charles Frazer, couriers for the State Department, and John Wehle, an attache of the Marine Corps.

Missionaries Safe In Malayan Raids

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Bishop Edwin F. Lee, of Singapore, today notified the board of missions and church extension of the Methodist Church that all missionaries in the Malay Peninsula were safe after going through a Japanese air raid.

The board said it had 50 active missionaries in the peninsula.

First American Casualties

[By the Associated Press]

Following is the list of members of United States armed forces killed in the war in the East, as disclosed by official advices to the next of kin:

First Lieutenant Hans Christensen, 21, Woodland, Cal. marine aviator, at Pearl Harbor.

First Lieutenant James Derthick, 22, Ravenna, Ohio, Army Air Corps, at Honolulu.

First Lieutenant Robert M. Richer, Infantry, in Hawaii.

Second Lieutenant Forge A. Whiteman, Sedalia, Mo., Air Corps, at Pearl Harbor.

Sergt. James Guthrie, Republican Grove, Va., Air Corps engineer, in Hawaii.

Sergt. George R. Schmersahl, 22, Bloomfield, N. J., Air Corps, at Hawaii.

Sergt. Vincent M. Horan, Stamford, Conn., at Honolulu.

Corporal Malachi J. Cashen, Lamont, Iowa, at Pearl Harbor.

Theo F. Byrd, 20, Tampa, Fla., private, first class, Air Corps, at Wheeler Field, Hawaii.

Private Robert Shattuck, 21, Blue River, Wis., at Hickman Field, Hawaii.

Private Dean W. Cebert, Galesburg, Ill., at Honolulu.

Private Donald Plant, 22, of Wausau, Wis., Air Corps, at Wheeler Field, Hawaii.

Private George G. Leslie, 20, Arnold, Pa., Army Air Corps, at Hawaii.

Robert Niedziwecki, 22, Grand Rapids, Mich., at Hawaii.

Gordon Mitchell, Hoisington, Kan., Air Corps, at Hawaii.

John Fletcher, 32, of Janesville, Wis., Air Corps, at Wheeler Field, Hawaii.

William H. Manley, 23, Hapeville, Ga., aviation mechanic, at Wheeler Field, Pearl Harbor.

How Navies Compare

In the war of the Pacific naval strength probably will decide victory. The table below, based on data in Jane's Fighting Ships, compares the strength of the American and Japanese navies.

The United States is re-enforced by the detailing to the Pacific of some vessels in the British, Australian and Dutch navies. British ships now undergoing repair in Pacific Coast harbors will be fit soon for Pacific fighting, although they were damaged in the Atlantic and Mediterranean. The American Navy, on the other hand, is divided between Pacific and Atlantic.

There is speculation here whether the Japanese fleet is re-enforced by some ships from the German navy, chiefly the huge battleship Von Tirpitz and the 26,000-ton Gneisenau.

The American-Japanese comparison in capital ships follows:

Too Cold To Fight At Moscow, Nazis Tell Folks At Home

Military Spokesman Refers To Difficulty With Temperatures Encountered Outside Soviet Capital

DEC 9 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 8—Winter has stopped the Germans short of Moscow and the capture of the Soviet capital is not expected this year, a military spokesman declared tonight.

It seemed likely from the spokesman's statement that until spring there could be no further major German offensive except along the extreme southern front.

This word reduced the Russian campaign to secondary interest for the Germans for the first time, and attention focused instead on Japan's war with the United States in the Pacific.

Red Losses Put At 10,000,000

DNB asserted that nearly 10,000,000 Russian troops had "been put out of action" since Germany invaded Russia last June.

Explaining a statement by the high command that the conduct of the war in Russia "now is dictated by the setting in of winter," the spokesman

...e cold is so terrific that even the oil freezes in motorized vehicles Soldiers and officers trying to take cover simply freeze to the ground.

Fighting "Impossible"

"Fighting under these conditions is practically impossible. This does not mean, however, that the front will become stagnant or fixed. There will be local operations, local air attacks and local straightening out of our front in such a manner as either to shorten it advantageously or, as in the space between Taganrog and Rostov, to fix the front line so as to be most advantageous to us."

[The Russians have reported that their offensive past Rostov has driven the Germans west of Taganrog.]

Military sources said a Soviet attempt to land forces on the west coast of the Crimea failed utterly, but gave no exact information where the attempt was made.

The situation in North Africa still was hazy to the German public. The high command said only that heavy fighting continued.

The fighting took place in temperatures ranging down to 17 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, and Russians commented wryly:

"Wait, this is nothing."

A correspondent of the newspaper Pravda said the Soviet gains were registered in the Kalinin sector, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, and along the highway leading to Tula, 100 miles south of the capital.

An official communique declared

Nazis Say They Don't Expect To Capture Moscow This Year

Russians Are Reported Wiping Out Two German Divisions West of Capital—Berlin Claims Gain in Donets

DEC 9 1941

Berlin, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The German Army does not expect to capture Moscow this year, a military spokesman said tonight in explanation of a reference to the coming of winter in today's communique of the German High Command.

He declared the cold, which set in early this year, "is so terrific that even the oil freezes in motorized vehicles," and "soldiers and officers trying to take cover simply freeze to the ground."

The High Command reported that an attack by German and Italian troops in the Donets basin was making progress.

The High Command's communique said that winter from now on would dictate the continuation of operations and the manner of the war's conduct on the eastern front. It said that only local operations were taking place.

The Germans declared that a Russian attempt to land on the western coast of the Crimea was frustrated.

counterattacking Red troops inflicted enormous losses upon the Nazis. It reported destruction of 44 German planes yesterday against 41 Soviet losses.

Reds Continue Advance.

Moscow, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio quoted a Pravda dispatch today as saying that Russian troops had recaptured several more villages on the Moscow front and were continuing to advance with the support of tanks. Remnants of one German armored division were driven back for a considerable distance, abandoning large quantities of equipment, Pravda said.

In the Kalinin sector, ninety-five miles northwest of Moscow, Russian forces were said to have ousted the Germans from several villages and repulsed counter-attacks launched in a desperate effort to recover lost ground.

South of Moscow, Pravda declared, the Germans were driven from positions astride the Serpukhov-Tula road. The highway is clear of Nazi forces from Moscow to Tula, 100 miles from the capital, the dispatch asserted.

Russians Recapture Many More Villages

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Dec. 8.—Tank-led armies have thrown the Germans out of many additional villages on both ends of the Moscow front and pursuit of the backtracking Nazis continues, the Moscow radio announced tonight in dispatches from the front.

New German Drive Likely

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Dec. 7 (Delayed) (AP)—With Field Marshal General Walther von Brauchitsch, Commander in Chief of the German Army, reported taking personal charge of operations on the southern front, military circles here forecast today a new German offensive aimed at Rostov in an attempt to offset serious reverses suffered in that sector at the hands of the Red Army.

Advices from the front indicated that the Russions had driven the Germans back fifty to seventy-five miles on the Rostov front, and reported a violent battle under way along the Mius river.

The Russians said they had learned that the Germans' plans called originally for a push on Nov. 27 across the Don River into the Caucasus. The Red Army counter-offensive that foiled this plan proved the ability of the Soviet generals to beat the Germans at their own pincer movements, the Russians added.

Estimating that the Germans had only sufficient fuel to carry on large-scale military operations for eight months, Soviet military circles predicted that the invaders soon would feel the pinch of a gasoline and oil shortage. Frustration of the German drive on the Caucasus therefore is particularly important, these circles declared.

They said it was virtually imperative from the German viewpoint that the Nazis re-form their forces and attempt a new push toward Rostov and the Caucasus regardless of the cost.

On the Moscow front heavy fighting was reported continuing, but the defenders think that three weeks is about the maximum length of time which the Germans can maintain a sustained drive without pausing to reorganize their forces. The current offensive thus would have about run its course.

Ski Troops Claim 2,000

The Russians acknowledged that the Germans had made a slight advance in the Solnechnogorsk sector north of Moscow. German frontal assaults in the directions of Mozhaisk and Maloyaroslavetz, southwest of the capital, were said to have been checked after the Germans had wedged through for four to seven miles.

Russian ski troops were said to have registered a major success in this area, killing 2,000 Germans, capturing forty-six tanks and throwing the Nazi push into reverse.

Finns Claim Success.

Helsinki, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The Finnish High Command announced today that its forces had captured Povenets, at the Lake Onega mouth of the Stalin Canal, Russia's waterway connecting with the White Sea.

30,000 Germans Crushed, Drive Halted, Reds Say

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 8—Soviet troops attacking in subzero cold were reported today to have crushed German positions at two points above Moscow and wiped out two divisions of the invaders (30,000 men) during the process.

(Reports received by the Associated Press from Europe Sunday night said that Adolf Hitler's troops, in a move linked with the outbreak of war in the Pacific, were girding for offensives intended to take both Moscow and Leningrad and recapture Rostov, "at any price," within two weeks.)

The Moscow radio said the Germans were beaten bloodily north of the capital (perhaps in the Klin or Dmitrov areas) and in the Kalinin sector, ninety-five miles to the northwest, on the ice-bound Upper Volga. A village was reported recaptured in the Kalinin combat.

Paralyzed By Cold

Russians acknowledged the continuance of heavy German pressure in the Tula zone, south of Moscow.

German war dispatches implied that the intense cold had virtually paralyzed both armies on the central front. Local successes were claimed in the Donets basin.

Kuibyshev dispatches declared the Russians had advanced from fifty to seventy-five miles in the Rostov-Mariupol counter-offensive, now three months old. Cossack cavalrymen were said to be slashing down Germans seeking to escape across the Mius river near Taganrog, while the Red army planes bombed their clogged routes of retreat.

The Soviet Information Bureau declared Russian air squadrons alone had accounted for 82 German planes, 143 tanks and 2,600 trucks, and killed more than 8,000 men in these operations.

Run Mine Gantlet

An indication that some of the Russian garrison which vacated the Hango naval base last week might have run the gauntlet of German-Finnish mines and guns in the Gulf of Finland came from the Finnish high command.

"Between Seivasto and Ino," said a Helsinki communique, "our coast guns engaged in battle with an enemy fleet unit headed toward Kronstadt (the Soviet island naval base near Leningrad). An enemy battery at Yhinmaki participated. A snowstorm interrupted the battle."

Germans Lost Third of Tanks Near Tobruk, British Claim

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Dec. 8.—Small, fast armored British columns were said by a spokesman today to have destroyed a third of the German tanks engaged in battle since Saturday between Tobruk and El Gobi.

The German finally pulled their bested fighters westward to end the battle, a British spokesman said. The German general, Edwin Rommel, entered the fight with 30 tanks and 500 motor vehicles, the spokesman said.

Other Axis forces were said to remain caught in pockets along the frontier line south of Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass, completely cut off from Rommel's main force.

The outcome of the battle was said to have left the British in control of much of the territory around Tobruk and the whole desert east to the Egyptian border.

Fighting Around El Gobi

Rome, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Italian high command announced today that sharp fighting had continued all day yesterday around El Gobi, Libyan desert oasis 40 miles south of Tobruk.

German and Italian troops were said to have counterattacked effectively at several places in this sector and forced the British to retreat with losses.

British pressure on Axis troops in the new Libyan battle zone is increasing steadily, the Middle East headquarters declared today.

Axis Tanks Destroyed.

The communique said that British armored forces met and heavily shelled an Axis force of about thirty tanks and 500 motor vehicles about noon on Saturday west of Bir el-Gobi. Seven Axis tanks were destroyed and three more and some other vehicles were damaged, it said, before the Axis column retreated westward, harassed by British pursuers. About forty German stragglers were picked up.

Vigorous British attacks were reported south of Tobruk and toward El-Adem. It said that Italian and German forces around Rezegh and El-Hamed appeared to have been entirely cleared away.

British border patrols reported finding eighteen modern German tanks and much equipment, including a wireless outfit, abandoned at Rezegh.

The battle was joined with two German columns in the area of Bir El Gobi after the R. A. F. attacked one of the Nazi columns in one of the biggest air raids of the current Libyan campaign.

Massed Tanks Fight in Libya

Battle Resumed in Desert South of Tobruk —Decisive Struggle Seen.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—A massive new tank battle raged across the Libyan sands south of Tobruk today in what military observers here considered a potentially decisive struggle of German Gen. Erwin Rommel's remaining forces against British Imperial units.

The battle has been in progress since noon Saturday and a British spokesman here said that Imperial forces had met with some success.

This column was retreating when the British airmen sprang their assault and many of the Axis vehicles were blown sky high, front line dispatches said.

Aside from the clash of steel behemoths in the main battle, numerous minor fights developed with British patrols reported further isolating the German force in the region of Salum and Halfaya Pass near the Egyptian-Libyan border.

The Imperial forces were heavily reinforced by a continuous stream of armored forces pouring into the battle area.

British air raiders attacked several localities in Sicily during the week end, but caused only slight damage and only one civilian casualty, the Italian high command announced today.

A communique also reported that German bombers had attacked a British naval formation in the central Mediterranean and had scored a direct hit on a cruiser.

gaining the initiative unless they were able to wring a victory out of the new test of men and tanks southeast of Tobruk.

It was explained that the battle had moved to a new theater, deeper into the desert.

This source said the original battlefield, between Tobruk and the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, had been virtually cleared of Axis troops during the shift to new positions.

It was reported, meanwhile, that patrols striking out from Tobruk had joined an armored car patrol from the desert to the south last Saturday, seizing a first-aid station near Rezegh and releasing a number of New Zealand soldiers who had been held prisoner.

The Germans, it was said, apparently abandoned the Rezegh area—key to earlier fighting—in a concentration of their forces for the new phase of the battle.

The British said the new German-Italian armored stand to the south was being attacked from the southeast, southwest and northeast.

Nazis Report Heavy Fighting.

Berlin, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—The German High Command reported today that heavy fighting was continuing on the Libyan front and said that Nazi bombers were keeping the besieged British-held port of Tobruk under contsant attack night and day.

Rome, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—British air raiders attacked several localities in Sicily during the week end but caused only slight damage and only one civilian casualty, the Italian High Command announced today.

A communique also reported that German bombers had attacked a British naval formation in the central Mediterranean and had scored a direct hit on a cruiser.

British Forces Attack Germans in Libya From 3 Directions

London Says Rommel's Units Are 'Definitely On the Defensive'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A British authority declared today that empire troops were attacking from three directions against major Axis armored forces between El Gobi and El Adem and said Gen. Erwin Rommel's Nazi African division swere "definitely on the defensive."

He added that the Germans and Italians could have no hope of regaining the initiative unless they were able to wring a victory out of the new test of men and tanks southeast of Tobruk.

R. A. F. SQUADRONS IN DAYLIGHT RAIDS

Batter Factories and Air Bases in France.

London, Dec. 8 (A. P.).—Following up overnight forays into western Germany, British bombers and fighter planes swept over northern France in a daylight attack today, blasting at factories and airfields. The Air Ministry said that ten British fighters were missing and reported five German planes shot down and others damaged on the ground.

Last night the Royal Air Force attacked the West German railway center of Aachen and ports of German-occupied France.

The Ministry said Aachen, the principal objective, was heavily bombed.

Docks at Ostend, Calais, Boulogne, Dunkerque and Brest were also attacked, it was said.

The Ministry said British fighter planes shot down [illegible] bomber in attacks on airdromes but admitted the night's raiding cost the British four bombers.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 9 (AP)—An anti-aircraft barrage equal in volume and noise to anything witnessed since the war started was thrown up along the northeast coast last night at German raiding planes.

Bombs fell in two towns and there were some casualties but for the most part the Nazi explosives fell harmlessly in open fields.

Three Downed, Germans Say

Berlin, Dec. 8 (AP)—Three British planes were shot down last night over western Germany, where several places were bombed without great results, the German high command announced today.

Petain Tells Hitler He's Sorry For Horrid Attacks on Nazis

Vichy, Dec. 8 (AP).—Marshal Petain sent Adolf Hitler a personal telegram today expressing his own and the French government's condolences "for hateful attacks which have been renewed against members of the army of occupation."

The telegram, prompted by recent attacks on German officers in Paris, said "all of us censure such acts and will try with all the mean in our power to discover and arrest the authors of these crimes, whose cowardice has filled all Frenchmen with horror."

BRIDE OF LEOPOLD BECOMES PRINCESS

Waives Rights of Succession for Any Offspring.

DEC 9 1941

Berlin, Dec. 8 (AP).—The news that King Leopold III of the Belgians has been married for three months to a commoner was broken to his subjects in Sunday announcements from pulpits throughout the German-occupied country.

The King's bride is the former Mary Lilian Baels, daughter of a former Belgian Cabinet Minister, Hendrik Baels. She has waived the title of Queen and rights of succession for any offspring. Her title is Princess of Rethy.

The King is 40 years old, the Princess about 30. They were married on September 11 in the chapel of his Laeken Castle, at Brussels. Leopold's Swedish-born Queen Astrid died in an automobile accident in Switzerland on August 29, 1935.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 8 (AP).—One man was killed, five were missing and five injured today in the crash of a Royal Canadian Air Force flying boat into the sea off Halifax.

Japanese

BERLIN, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Berlin radio today broadcast this Japanese communiqué:

North American naval and air bases on Hawaii have been successfully attacked.

In Shanghai Japanese forces captured one American gunboat and sank one British.

Also, air attacks on Singapore were carried out with success.

Further raids were directed on Davao, on the Philippine Island of Mindanao, in the Northern Pacific, as well as Guam, east of the Philippines. Both American bases were successfully attacked.

Japanese Army and naval forces carried out surprise landing operations on British Malaya this morning. The operation developed successfully.

The attack against Hong Kong also was started.

Shanghai was occupied.

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 8 (AP)—A British communiqué said tonight:

Mopping-up operations are continuing in Northern Malaya near Kota Bharu.

Two landings have been effected by the Japanese in Southern Thailand.

Three British aircraft failed to return from today's operations. Casualties in this morning's air raid on Singapore were sixty-three dead and 133 injured and hospitalized.

At about 1:30 A. M., Dec. 8, some five merchant vessels escorted by warships approached the mouth of the Kelantan River to the north of Kota Bharu. The landings from these began to be carried out, supported by covering fire from the warships.

Fire at once was opened by our troops and later severe fighting developed on the shore, particularly in the neighborhood of the Kota Bharu airdrome. In this confused and difficult fighting some famous Indian units are reported to have distinguished themselves.

Later ten more merchant vessels were located some ten miles farther south. Bombers of the R. A. F. carried out moonlight attacks on the vessels offshore and by daylight at least two large enemy ships had been hit and set on fire.

At dawn several bomber and torpedo squadrons took off to continue the attack with results which are not yet known. So far, three of our aircraft have not returned from these operations.

By 8 A. M. all remaining enemy ships appeared to be retiring northward, leaving some landing craft and troops ashore, who were being mopped up by our land forces.

Air reconnaissance by a Beaufort bomber this morning disclosed that landings were taking place in the Patani and Singora areas of Southern Thailand. This aircraft was engaged by six enemy fighters, but returned to its base.

Air raids were carried out by Japanese aircraft as follows:

About 4:15 A. M. a formation of Japanese aircraft attacked targets in the Singapore area, but no damage was done to military installations.

Some casualties and damage to property were reported from bombs which were dropped in Singapore town.

After daylight attacks were made against three airdromes in Northern Malaya, but reports so far indicate that little damage was done.

It was reported from Hong Kong this morning that enemy air attacks had been made against military installations in the Hong Kong area.

HONG KONG, Dec. 8 (AP)—British headquarters in Hong Kong issued the following tonight:

The defense plan continues to develop satisfactorily. Further demolitions are being made.

In a raid this afternoon a few bombs were dropped, but the raiders scattered as soon as they were fired on, and damage and casualties were not extensive.

One Japanese plane was reported shot down over Green Island, off the western entrance to Hong Kong harbor.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 8 (AP)—The British Middle East Command today issued this communiqué:

Throughout the whole battle area our pressure is steadily increasing.

West of Bir el-Gobi an enemy force of about thirty tanks and 500 motor vehicles was heavily shelled and attacked by our armored forces about midday Dec. 6, as reported in yesterday's communiqué. In this action seven enemy tanks were destroyed and three enemy tanks and a number of mechanical transports were damaged. The enemy column withdrew to the west, still harassed by our air forces.

During the withdrawal armored car patrols of the King's Dragoon Guards picked up about forty German stragglers.

South of Tobruk and toward El Adem centers of enemy resistance are being vigorously attacked. The area about Rezegh and Bir el-Hamed now appears to be entirely clear of the enemy.

Fighting patrols of a border regiment have been active throughout this area. At Rezegh they found eighteen modern German tanks and much equipment, including wireless, abandoned on the ground.

A New Zealand divisional dressing station, which had been overrun by the enemy during the attack in which they occupied Rezegh, was found, and the wounded there are being evacuated as speedily as possible. A number of guns overrun by the enemy in the same action have been recovered.

Armored car patrols of the Eleventh Hussars, working the same area, joined hands with patrols from the Tobruk garrison. Farther east mobile columns of all arms from the South African and New Zealand divisions have been actively scouring the area between Bardia and Tobruk north of Trigh Capuzzo.

A number of parties of hungry Germans have been rounded up. Large quantities of petrol, ammunition and food stores were located hidden in the Gambut area, where more enemy stragglers were found, and removed for our own use or destroyed.

Other parties of our troops working the same area brought in a number of enemy anti-tank guns and other weapons. Some miles west of Rezegh other small parties of starving Germans were found in some wadies. The total of these stragglers now captured is about 150.

In the frontier area, in addition to maintaining pressure on isolated enemy parties still holding out, an enemy detachment in Bardia was shelled. Throughout all the area our mobile columns of all arms have continued their offensive operations with utmost vigor.

In this connection it may be noted that in yesterday's communiqué there was reported the destruction by these columns of a complete Italian battery. We now learn that in fact it was a German battery and in the action the Germans lost many men killed, including the battery commander.

Our air forces continued their widespread activity in support of ground troops. In particular, Acroma and the roads between there and El Adem came in for attention, buildings and transport being hit. Ground forces again succeeded in destroying two enemy dive-bombers.

The R. A. F. Middle East communiqué said today:

DEC 9 1941

Enemy armored and motorized forces and other objectives in the El Adem and Acroma areas were effectively bombed by our aircraft Saturday night and in the course of operations yesterday.

Direct hits were obtained on many vehicles, some of which were left burning. Bombs also fell on buildings north of Acroma, where fires broke out. Motor transport on the Acroma-El Gazala Road was heavily attacked Sunday night. Considerable damage was caused.

Derna and Bengazi also were raided. In Tripolitania, our planes raided the aldrome at Castel Benito. Fires followed the attack on the previous day. During an attack on objectives at Homs, direct hits were scored on barrack blocks and sheds.

In fighter combats over the battle area in Libya yesterday, two JU-87s, two Macchi C-200s, one G-50 and one Macchi C-202 were shot down by our aircraft. Other Italian and German aircraft were severely damaged.

Objectives at Naples were again successfully attacked Saturday night. Explosions and fires were seen near the royal arsenal, railway marshaling yards and docks.

From these and other operations, eight of our aircraft are missing.

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP)—The British Air Ministry issued this communiqué today:

Strong forces of aircraft of the Bomber Command were over Western Germany last night. The railway town of Aachen, which was the principal objective, was heavily attacked. The docks at Ostend, Calais, Boulogne, Dunkerque and Brest were also attacked.

Fighter Command aircraft on offensive patrols over enemy airdromes destroyed an enemy bomber.

Four aircraft of the Bomber Command are missing.

The Air and Home Security Ministries issued the following:

Early last night a few enemy aircraft flew over coastal districts of Eastern and Southwest England. Bombs which were dropped at one place in Eastern England injured a small number of people and caused some damage.

Russian

DEC 9 1941

MOSCOW, Dec. 8 (Distributed by The Associated Press)—The Moscow radio today broadcast this communiqué by the Soviet Information Bureau:

During the night of Dec. 7-8 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

The Moscow radio broadcast the following tonight:

During Dec. 8 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

On several sectors of the Western Front our units in counter-attacks inflicted heavy losses on German man power and equipment and forced the enemy out of several localities.

On Dec. 8 we destroyed forty-four German planes. Our losses were eleven planes. On Dec. 7 near Moscow we brought down eleven German planes instead of five as previously reported.

Our ships in the Black sea sank an enemy transport of 4,000 tons.

On Dec. 7 our air force destroyed and damaged 128 German tanks, 940 trucks with supplies and troops, nineteen field and anti-aircraft guns, more than 200 carts and twelve fuel-tank lorries and dispersed and annihilated more than three regiments of infantry.

Our units operating on one sector of the Western Front during six days of fighting destroyed thirty-six tanks, 119 trucks with military supplies, 166 motor cycles, seventeen field guns, fifteen mortars, eight heavy machine guns, eight anti-tank guns and eight motor cars.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 8 (AP)—The High Command issued this communiqué today from "the Fuehrer's headquarters":

The continuation of operations and the manner of the war's conduct in the east from now on will be dictated by Winter. On the vast areas of the east front only local activities are taking place.

An enemy landing attempt on the western coast of Crimea was frustrated.

In the Donets basin, attacks by German and Italian troops resulted in further progress.

The air force, despite bad weather, made heavy attacks on Soviet troops, tank concentrations and field fortifications. The enemy again suffered high losses in men, heavy weapons and rolling stock. Rail lines leading to Moscow were destroyed by many planes in bomb attacks.

In the waters around England a medium-size merchantmen was damaged by a bomb northeast of Aberdeen during the day.

Night raids by the air force were directed against port facilities of the east coast and southwest of the isle.

Heavy fighting is continuing in North Africa. In Tobruk Harbor artillery positions of the enemy were bombed by bombs of the heaviest calibers day and night.

German combat planes so badly damaged a large British troop transport off the North African coast that its loss is apparent. A light British cruiser was hit by a bomb.

Three British bombers were downed in the course of ineffective air raids on several communities of Western Germany and occupied western areas last night.

DEC 10 1941

ROME, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Italian High Command issued this communiqué today:

In the Marmarica Desert fighting that flared up again Dec. 5 in the Bir el-Gobi zone continued yesterday. During it Italian and German forces, with effective counter-attacks, forced British troops to retreat with losses.

On the Tobruk front ineffective thrusts by enemy tanks against positions of the Brescia Division were reported. On the Solum front an attempted tank attack against strongholds of the Savona Division was repulsed, anti-aircraft defenses shooting down a British plane in flames.

Axis air formations attacked concentrations of enemy motor vehicles and mechanized detachments east and southeast of Bir el-Gobi, as well as the railroad terminus at Abu Feidan, south of Sidi Barrani. They also bombed port works and ships at anchor at Tobruk, seriously damaging a large steamer and causing fires among the docks.

German fighter craft shot down seven enemy planes. Our fighters sustained various air fight shooting down three planes, i cluding a Beau fighter, whose crew was taken prisoner, and machine-gunning other planes. One enemy plane was shot down by anti-aircraft defenses at Buerat el-Hsun and the crew members were captured.

British planes carried out raids on several places in Sicily with slight damage and only one person was injured. Several planes intercepted by our fighters were repeatedly hit and one fell.

German bombers attacked British naval units in the Central Mediterranean. A cruiser was hit squarely by a large bomb.

Japan's Entrance in War Is Gamble of Desperation Making World War II Real

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

DEC 9 1941

As I was making my way to the office in the early morning hours today my friend, the mild-mannered young policeman on point duty, informed me in no uncertain tones that he was damned-well going to join up to fight the Japs—and so, I take it, speaks the spirit of all America.

We no longer have to hunt a name for the conflict which was whelped in Eastern Europe just over two years ago—it's the Second World War at last.

All the great powers now are officially involved, and most of the smaller nations.

It may be that the Nipponese have done this thing on their own initiative, but ipso facto they come under the overlordship of the German Fuehrer as part of his fighting machine. The lines are clearly drawn. It's a world-wide battle to a finish between the Axis and the Allies, and the United States is one of the Allies.

The Japanese adventure looks like a very desperate gamble for a nation which not only is poorly equipped but is absolutely isolated from its Axis partners. Still, the line of reasoning which has impelled this onslaught is not hard to follow.

Acceptance of the American terms would mean that Japan must abandon her conquests, give up her cherished program for territorial expansion by force and abandon establishment of absolute hegemony over the Far East. She figures that she can't lose much more than that in material things by fighting it out, and if Hitler should win she also would have achieved her ambitions—provided she could handle the Fuehrer.

However, unless the signs are wrong, the Axis isn't likely to win the war. So while there may be some who wish that our own Commodore Perry hadn't dug the Japanese out of their primitive isolation 90 years ago, there can be few who doubt that we can put them back where they came from.

It is too early to estimate the exact nature of the war which we have on our hands. Much will depend on whether Russia comes in against her old enemy promptly. The Reds have a marvelous opportunity right now to unleash some terrific air-raids against Japan with their Vladivostok fleet, which is only 600 miles away.

An assault with incendiary bombs against the flimsily built cities of the island empire likely would be devastating. Japan has lived in terror of this for years, and now is Russia's chance. It isn't a particularly nice operation to contemplate, but the Japanese have been handing out this sort of thing to the Chinese for years—reportedly bombed and machine-gunned civilians in Hawaii yesterday, for that matter.

The Pacific war will create a fresh threat against the British Isles. If Hitler ever attempts his invasion it will be while big fleets of the American and British navies are engaged in the Far East and the defense of England has thus been weakened. The weather now over the Channel is bad, but four months will bring us to the spring again.

There is another danger spot, and that's the Middle East. The Japanese threat to Burma is calculated to force the British to defend it with troops withdrawn from the Middle East. That might give Hitler his chance to drive down through the Caucasus or Turkey.

This creates an additional reason to my mind why the British will be calling on us for an expeditionary land force for the Middle East before long.

What effect will America's engagement in war in the Orient have on the European conflict?

It may prove to be a blessing in disguise for the Allies, as previously remarked in this column. Preservation of Russia has become vital for the Allied cause and it may easily be that the United States could make no greater contribution than to keep the Japanese off the Soviet back. Anyway, the Japs have got to be dealt with.

One suspects that we have got to hear some harsh news before many hours. We already know that some of our fighting men and civilians have been killed, and the enemy is claiming heavy blows against our Navy. Still, that is war and we must steel ourselves to face it.

Roosevelt Says U. S. Will Win War And Peace

DEC 10 1941

Sees Seven-Day-Week Needed For Fullest Production Of Army-Navy Weapons

Warns About Rumors

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP) — President Roosevelt warned the nation tonight that it is in for a long, hard war, against "crafty and powerful bandits" with Germany and Italy as much the enemies of the United States as is Japan.

But he emphatically denied Japan's boast that she had gained naval supremacy in the Pacific by her lightning stroke at Hawaii and he declared confidently:

"We are going to win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows."

Making his first report to the nation on the past and future of the conflict that has suddenly engulfed the country, the Chief Executive starkly acknowledged that Japan's initial successes have been extensive.

"Many American soldiers and sailors have been killed by enemy action," he said, adding that the damage done at Pearl Harbor was "admittedly serious." And, he said, the people must be prepared at any time for an announcement that Guam, Wake and Midway Islands have been seized by the enemy.

But, on the other side of the war ledger he placed 18 months of preparation, assembly lines already producing a profusion of war materials, and of plans for doubling, and quadrupling that output. The latter included a seven-day week for the war industries, and the construction of new plants.

In addition, he balanced against the power and ruthlessness of the enemy, the determination of a united people, which, he said will be satisfied with nothing short of complete victory.

He spoke from the heavily guarded White House, his first talk with the nation since the Japanese attack of Sunday, with the exception of his terse request to Congress for a declaration of war.

Repeatedly, and with great emphasis, he spoke of Japan's relationships with Germany. The latter he accused of pushing Japan into the war with promises that she would become the master of the Pacific, and be given "a stranglehold on the West Coast of North, Central, and South America."

"Germany, Italy at War With U. S."

"Remember always," he solemnly warned, "that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia."

Repeatedly, the President asked the people not to accept wild rumors of successes or failures. To do that, he said, was to be deceived by the propaganda of the enemy. The government would give them all the facts that it could confirm provided that their revelation would not be of assistance to the enemy, he pledged.

"We are now in this war," he said. "We are all in it— all the way. Every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history. We must share together the bad news and the good news, the defeats and the victories— the changing fortunes of war.

News Bad So Far

"So far the news has all been bad. We have suffered a serious set-back in Hawaii. Our forces in the Philippines, which include the brave people of that Commonwealth, are taking punishment, but are defending themselves vigorously. The reports from Guam, and Wake and Midway Islands are still confused, but we must be prepared for the announcement that all these three outposts have been seized.

"The casualty lists of the first few days will undoubtedly be large. I deeply feel the anxiety of all families of the men in our armed forces and the relatives of people in cities which have been bombed. I can only give them my solemn promise that they will get news just as quickly as possible."

The Japanese claim to naval mastery in the Pacific was roundly denounced as a familiar Axis strategem.

DEC 10 1941

Wants Hide Facts

"This is an old trick of propaganda, which has been used innumerable times by the Nazis," the President said. "The purposes of such fantastic claims are, of course, to spread fear and confusion among us, and to goad us into revealing military information which our enemies are desperately anxious to obtain."

He promised that facts would not be hidden from the country if the facts were known and if the enemy would not be helped by their disclosure.

He warned the press and radio they have no right to "deal out unconfirmed reports" in such way as to make people believe they are the truth.

As he had suggested at a press conference earlier in the day, Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the vital need for greatly expanding America's industrial strength and capacity to meet the demands of modern warfare.

Seven-Day Week

This is to be done by stepping up the present production program, "by working on a seven-day week basis in every war industry, including the production of essential raw materials," and by building new plants, enlarging old ones and using many small ones for war needs.

Declaring he was about to say that sacrifices for all lay ahead, the Chief Executive said it was incorrect to use that word as the United States does not consider it a sacrifice to give one's best to the nation, fighting for existence and its future life.

It is a privilege rather than a sacrifice, he said, for the people to pay more taxes, buy more bonds, forego extra profits, and work longer or harder.

Mr. Roosevelt declared flatly that the government had known that for weeks Germany "has been telling Japan that if Japan did not attack the United States, Japan would not share in dividing the spoils with Germany when peace came."

Japan, he said, was promised perpetual and complete control of the whole Pacific area, including "a stranglehold on the West Coast of North, Central, and South America."

Germany and Japan, he declared, are conducting military and naval operations in accordance with a joint plan.

The President admonished his countrymen:

"Remember always that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia.

"And Germany puts all the other republics of the Americas into the category of enemies."

30.24 — 13419

America expects to eliminate the danger to the world from Japan, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, but "it would serve us ill if we accomplished that, and found that the rest of the world was dominated by Hitler and Mussolini."

DEC 10 1941

Powerful and resourceful gangsters have banded together to make war upon the whole human race, the President said.

Recalls Friendship

He spoke of long years of friendship which the United States had had with Japan and of patient efforts to achieve an honorable and fair peace in the Pacific.

But for the past 10 years, he said, Japan's course in Asia had paralleled that of Hitler and Mussolini in Europe and Africa.

"Today, it has become far more than a parallel. It is collaboration so well calculated that all the continents of the world and all the oceans are now considered by the Axis strategists as one gigantic battlefield."

He told how, without warning Japan invaded Manchukuo in 1931, Italy invaded Ethiopia four years later, and then described the Axis occupations and invasions one by one of other countries starting with Austria in 1938.

"And now Japan has attacked Malaya and Thailand — and the United States — without warning," he said.

"It is all of one pattern."

Casualties to Be Large

The President said casualty lists for the first few days of the war with Japan would be large and that the families of these people would be advised as quickly as possible.

He had insufficient information, he continued, to state the exact damage done to the nation's fighting ships in Sunday's bombing of Pearl Harbor, although admittedly "The damage is serious."

It can not be said how serious, he added, until it is known how much of the damage can be repaired and how quickly the repairs can be made.

Of necessity, the Chief Executive went on, there must be delays in officially confirming or denying reports of operations, but facts will not be concealed if they are known to be facts and revealing them will not aid the nation's foes.

No one has a right to spread unconfirmed reports, he emphasized.

The lives of fighting men and the nation's entire future depend on the manner in which "each and everyone of us fulfills his obligation to our country."

Going back to review events of the past year and a half, since the fall of France, the President contended that the country gained "precious months," to prepare against attack by sending huge quantities of war supplies to the nations able to resist Axis aggression.

"Our policy," he said, "rested on the fundamental truth that the defense of any country resisting Hitler or Japan was in the long run the defense of our own country. That policy has been justified. It has given us time, invaluable time, to build our American assembly lines of production.

"Assembly lines are now in operation. Others are being rushed to completion. A steady stream of tanks and planes, of guns and ships, of shells and equipment—that is what these 18 months have given us.

"But it is all only a beginning of what has to be done. We must be set to face a long war against crafty and powerful bandits.

"The attack at Pearl Harbor can be repeated at any one of many points in both oceans and along both our coast lines and aaginst all the rest of the hemisphere."

The nation was warned that it would be not only a long war but also a hard one, and on this basis the government was laying all its plans.

He said that "we shall need and demand," money, materials, doubled and quadrupled production.

Reemphasizing his view that the lend-lease program must continue, Mr. Roosevelt said production must not be for our own forces alone, but to reinforce other armies, navies, and sky fleets fighting Nazis and the war lords of Japan throughout the world.

Highlights Of F. D. R. Address

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP)—Highlights of President Roosevelt's broadcast tonight:

Powerful and resourceful gangsters have banded together to make war upon the whole human race. Their challenge has now been flung at the United States.

We are now in this war. We are all in it—all the way. Every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history.

We have suffered a serious set-back in Hawaii. Our forces in the Philippines are taking punishment, but are defending themselves vigorously.

DEC 10 1941

We must be set to face a long war against crafty and powerful bandits. The attack at Pearl Harbor can be repeated at any one of many points in both oceans and along both our coast lines and against all the rest of the hemisphere.

Your government has decided on two broad policies. The first is to speed up all existing production by working on a seven-day week basis in every war industry, including the production of essential raw materials. The second is to rush additions to the capacity of production by building more new plants, adding to old plants, and by using the many smaller plants for war needs.

At present we shall not have to curtail the normal articles of food.

There will be a clear and definite shortage of metals of many kinds for civilian use. We shall have to give up many things entirely.

The United States can accept no result save victory, final and complete.

Remember always that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia.

We are going to win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows.

I can say with utmost confidence that no Americans today or a thousand years hence need feel anything but pride in our patience and our efforts through all the years toward achieving a peace in the Pacific which would be fair and honorable to every nation, large or small. And no honest person, today or a thousand years hence, will be able to suppress a sense of indignation and horror at the treachery committed by the military dictators of Japan, under the very shadow of the flag of peace borne by their special envoys in our midst.

Parallel To Axis

DEC 10 1941

The course that Japan has followed for the past ten years in Asia has paralleled the course of Hitler and Mussolini in Europe and Africa. Today it has become far more than a parallel. It is collaboration so well calculated that all the continents of the world, and all the oceans, are now considered by the Axis strategists as one gigantic battlefield.

In 1931, Japan invaded Manchoukuo—without warning.

In 1935, Italy invaded Ethiopia—without warning.

In 1938, Hitler occupied Austria—without warning.

In 1939, Hitler invaded Czecho-Slovakia—without warning.

Later in 1939, Hitler invaded Poland—without warning.

In 1940, Hitler invaded Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—without warning.

In 1940, Italy attacked France and later Greece—without warning.

In 1941, the Axis powers attacked Yugoslavia and Greece and they dominated the Balkans—without warning.

In 1941, Hitler invaded Russia—without warning.

And now Japan has attacked Malaya and Thailand—and the United States—without warning.

It is all of one pattern.

"In All The Way"

We are now in this war. We are all in it—all the way. Every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history. We must share together the bad news and the good news, the defeats and the victories—the changing fortunes of war.

So far, the news has all been bad.

We have suffered a serious setback in Hawaii. Our forces in the Philippines, which include the brave people of the Commonwealth, are taking punishment, but are defending themselves vigorously. The reports from Guam and Wake and Midway islands are still confused, but we must be prepared for the announcement that all these three outposts have been seized.

The casualty lists of these first few days will undoubtedly be large. I deeply feel the anxiety of all families of the men in our armed forces and the relatives of people in cities which have been bombed. I can only give them my solemn promise that they will get news just as quickly as possible.

Trust In Stamina

DEC 10 1941

This Government will put its trust in the stamina of the American people, and will give the facts to the public as soon as two conditions have been fulfilled: First, that the information has been definitely and officially confirmed; and, second, that the release of the information at the time it is received will not prove valuable to the enemy directly or indirectly.

Most earnestly I urge my countrymen to reject all rumors. These ugly little hints of complete disaster fly thick and fast in wartime. They have to be examined and appraised.

As an example, I can tell you frankly that until further surveys are made, I have not sufficient information to state the exact damage which has been done to our naval vessels at Pearl Harbor. Admittedly the damage is serious. But no one can say how serious, until we know how much of this damage can be repaired and how quickly the necessary repairs can be made.

I cite as another example a statement made on Sunday night that a Japanese carrier had been located and sunk off the Canal Zone. And when you hear statements that are attributed to what they call "an authoritative source," you can be reasonably sure that under these war circumstances the "authoritative source" was not any person in authority.

Traced To Enemy

Many rumors and reports which we now hear originate with enemy sources. For instance, today the Japanese are claiming that as a result of their one action against Hawaii they have gained naval supremacy in the Pacific. This is an old trick of propaganda which has been used innumerable times by the Nazis.

The purposes of such fantastic claims are, of course, to spread fear and confusion among us, and to goad us into revealing military information which our enemies are desperately anxious to obtain.

Our Government will not be caught in this obvious trap—and neither will our people.

It must be remembered by each and every one of us that our free and rapid communication must be greatly restricted in wartime. It is not possible to receive full, speedy, accurate reports from distant areas of combat.

This is particularly true where naval operations are concerned. For in these days of the marvels of radio it is often impossible for the commanders of various units to report their activities by radio, for the very simple reason that this information would become available to the enemy, and would disclose their position and their plan of defense or attack.

Will Not Hide Facts

Of necessity there will be delays in officially confirming or denying reports of operations but we will not hide facts from the country if we know the facts and if the enemy will not be aided by their disclosure.

To all newspapers and radio stations—all those who reach the eyes and ears of the American people—I say this: You have a most grave responsibility to the nation now and for the duration of this war.

If you feel that your Government is not disclosing enough of the truth, you have every right to say so. But—in the absence of all the facts, as revealed by official sources—you have no right to deal out unconfirmed reports in such a way as to make people believe they are gospel truth.

Every citizen, in every walk of life, shares this same responsibility. The lives of our soldiers and sailors—the whole future of this nation—depend upon the manner in which each and every one of us fulfills his obligation

Text Of President's Address To The Nation

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—The text of President Roosevelt's radio address tonight follows:

The sudden criminal attacks perpetrated by the Japanese in the Pacific provide the climax of a decade of international immorality.

Powerful and resourceful gangsters have banded together to make war upon the whole human race. Their challenge has now been flung at the United States of America. The Japanese have treacherously violated the long-standing peace between us. Many American soldiers and sailors have been killed by enemy action. American ships have been sunk, American airplanes have been destroyed.

The Congress and the people of the United States have accepted that challenge.

Together with other free peoples, we are now fighting to maintain our right to live among our world neighbors in freedom and in common decency, without fear of assault.

Treachery Is Detailed

I have prepared the full record of our past relations with Japan, and it will be submitted to the Congress. It begins with the visit of Commodore Perry to Japan eighty-eight years ago. It ends with the visit of two Japanese emissaries to the Secretary of State last Sunday, an hour after Japanese forces had loosed their bombs and machine guns against our flag, our forces and our citizens.

to our country.

Now a word about the recent past—and the future.

A year and a half has elapsed since the fall of France, when the whole world first realized the mechanized might which the Axis nations had been building for so many years.

America has used that year and a half to great advantage. Knowing that the attack might reach us in all too short a time, we immediately began greatly to increase our industrial strength and our capacity to meet the demands of modern warfare.

DEC 10 1941

Time Gained Cited

Precious months were gained by sending vast quantities of our war material to the nations of the world still able to resist Axis aggression. Our policy rested on the fundamental truth that the defense of any country resisting Hitler or Japan was in the long run the defense of our own country.

That policy has been justified. It has given us time, invaluable time, to build our American assembly lines of production.

Assembly lines are now in operation. Others are being rushed to completion. A steady stream of tanks and planes, of guns and ships, of shells and equipment—that is what these eighteen months have given us.

But it is all only a beginning of what has to be done. We must be set to face a long war against crafty and powerful bandits. The attack at Pearl Harbor can be repeated at any one of many points in both oceans and along both our coast lines and against all the rest of the hemisphere.

It will not only be a long war, it will be a hard war. That is the basis on which we now lay all our plans. That is the yardstick by which we measure that we shall need the demand; money, materials, doubled and quadrupled production — ever increasing.

The production must be not only for our own army and navy and air forces. It must reinforce the other armies and navies and air forces fighting the Nazis and the war lords of Japan throughout the Americas and the world.

Two Broad Policies

I have been working today on the subject of production. Your Government has decided on two broad policies.

The first is to speed up all existing production by working on a seven-day week basis in every war industry, including the production of essential raw materials.

The second policy, now being put into form, is to rush additions to the capacity of production by building more new plants, by adding to old plants, and by using the many smaller plants for war needs.

Over the hard road of the past months, we have at times met obstacles and difficulties, divisions and disputes, indifference and callousness. That is now all past—and, I am sure, forgotten.

The fact is that the country now has an organization in Washington built around men and women who are recognized experts in their own fields. I think the country knows that the people who are actually responsible in each and every one of these many fields are pulling together with a teamwork that has never before been excelled.

On the road ahead there lies hard work—grueling work—day and night, every hour and every minute.

As To Sacrifice

I was about to add that ahead there lies sacrifice for all of us.

But it is not correct to use that word. The United States does not consider it a sacrifice to do all one can, to give one's best to our nation, when the nation is fighting for its existence and its future life.

It is not a sacrifice for any man, old or young, to be in the army or the navy of the United States. Rather is it a privilege.

It is not a sacrifice for the industrialist or the wage-earner, the farmer or the shopkeeper, the trainman or the doctor, to pay more taxes, to buy more bonds, to forego extra profits, to work longer or harder at the task for which he is best fitted. Rather it is a privilege.

It is not a sacrifice to do without many things to which we are accustomed if the national defense calls for doing without.

A review this morning leads me to the conclusion that at present we shall not have to curtail the normal articles of food. There is enough food for all of us and enough left over to send to those who are fighting on the same side with us.

There will be a clear and definite shortage of metals of many kinds for civilian use, for the very good reason that in our increased program we shall need for war purposes more than half of that portion of the principal metals which during the past year have gone into articles for civilian use. We shall have to give up many things entirely.

Confidence In People

I am sure that the people in every part of the nation are prepared in their individual living to win this war. I am sure they will cheerfully help to pay a large part of its financial cost while it goes on. I am sure they will cheerfully give up those material things they are asked to give up.

I am sure that they will retain all those great spiritual things without which we cannot win through.

I repeat that the United States can accept no result save victory, final and complete. Not only must the shame of Japanese treachery be wiped out, but the sources of international brutality, wherever they exist, must be absolutely and finally broken.

In my message to the Congress yesterday I said that we "will make very certain that this form of treachery shall never endanger us again." In order to achieve that certainty, we must begin the great task that is before us by abandoning once and for all the illusion that we can ever again isolate ourselves from the rest of humanity.

In these past few years—and, most violently, in the past few days—we have learned a terrible lesson.

It is our obligation to our dead—it is our sacred obligation to their children and our children—that we must never forget what we have learned.

And what we all have learned is this:

There is no such thing as security for any nation—or any individual—in a world ruled by the principles of gangsterism.

Ocean No Barrier

There is no such thing as impregnable defense against powerful aggressors who sneak up in the dark and strike without warning.

We have learned that our ocean-girt hemisphere is not immune from severe attack—that we cannot measure our safety in terms of miles on any map.

We may acknowledge that our enemies have performed a brilliant feat of deception, perfectly timed and executed with great skill. It was a thoroughly dishonorable deed, but we must face the fact that modern warfare as conducted in the Nazi manner is a dirty business. We don't like it—we didn't want to get in it—but we are in it and we're going to fight it with everything we've got.

I do not think any American has any doubt of our ability to administer proper punishment to the perpetrators of these crimes.

Your Government knows that for weeks Germany has been telling Japan that if Japan did not attack the United States, Japan would not share in dividing the spoils with Germany when peace came.

She was promised by Germany that if she came in she would receive the complete and perpetual control of the whole of the Pacific area—and that means not only the Far East, not only all of the islands in the Pacific, but also a stranglehold on the west coast of North, Central and South America.

Joint Axis Plan

We also know that Germany and Japan are conducting their military and naval operations in accordance with a joint plan. That plan considers all peoples and nations which are not helping the Axis powers as common enemies of each and every one of the Axis powers.

That is their simple and obvious grand strategy. That is why the American people must realize that it can be matched only with similar grand strategy.

We must realize, for example, that Japanese successes against the United States in the Pacific are helpful to German operations in Libya; that any German success against the Caucasus is inevitably an assistance to Japan in her operations against the Dutch East Indies; that a German attack against Algiers or Morocco opens the way to a German attack against South America.

On the other side of the picture, we must learn to know that guerrilla warfare against the Germans in Serbia helps us; that a successful Russian offensive against the Germans helps us, and that British successes on land or sea in any part of the world strengthen our hands.

Remember always that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia. And Germany puts all the other republics of the Americas into the category of enemies. The people of the hemisphere can be honored by that.

Destruction Not Aim

The true goal we seek is far above and beyond the ugly field of battle. When we resort to force, as now we must, we are determined that this force shall be directed toward ultimate good as well as against immediate evil. We Americans are not destroyers—we are builders.

We are now in the midst of a war, not for conquest, not for vengeance, but for a world in which this nation, and all that this nation represents, will be safe for our children. We expect to eliminate the danger from Japan, but it would serve us ill if we accomplished that and found that the rest of the world was dominated by Hitler and Mussolini.

We are going to win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows.

And in the dark hours of this day—and through dark days that may be yet to come—we will know that the vast majority of the members of the human race are on our side.

Many of them are fighting with us. All of them are praying for us. For, in representing our cause, we represent theirs as well—our hope and their hope for liberty under God.

Japanese Announce That Repulse and Prince of Wales Are Destroyed

200 Merchant Vessels, U. S. Army Transport Reported Seized

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 10—Reuters [British news agency] reported today that a Japanese communiqué issued in Tokyo claimed that the 35,000-ton British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse had been sunk.

The communiqué, Reuters said, reported that the warships were sunk off the east coast of the Malay Peninsula. It attributed the sinkings to the Japanese Air Force.

The battle cruiser Repulse is a vessel of 32,000 tons, completed in 1916. Her normal complement is between 1,181 and 1,205 men.

The battleship Prince of Wales, which was launched in 1939, is one of the Royal Navy's newest vessels and went to Singapore shortly before Japan declared war on Great Britain and the United States.

British sources, in accordance with their usual policy, refused comment immediately on the Japanese claims.

The text of the Japanese communiqué said:

"The British Far Eastern Fleet was sighted off the Eastern coast of the Malay Peninsula at 11:30 o'clock this morning and Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

"The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits at 14:29 [2:29 P. M.].

"The Prince of Wales was hit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits.

"She attempted to escape but at 14:50 [2:50 P. M.] she received additional hits and was sunk."

Destruction of Important Facilities at American Air Base Near Manila Claimed

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Wednesday, Dec. 10—(Official radio pickup)—The Navy section of imperial headquarters claimed today that a Japanese submarine had sunk an unidentified 15,000-ton American transport in Manila Bay and had seized a British armed merchantman south of Hong Kong.

At the same time, the Domei news agency reported that Japanese forces had succeeded in landing at certain points north of Manila despite resistance of Philippine forces.

Earlier, the Japanese claimed to have swept up and captured more than 200 merchant ships of "enemy nationalities" along the China coast and in the Whangpoo River—including the 10,509-ton American liner President Harrison—and at the same time reported an extension of the Pacific offensive.

(German dispatches attributed to the Japanese army spokesman at Shanghai a claim that Japanese troops had landed in the Philippines without losses to themselves and also had landed on Britain's Malay Peninsula and in nearby Thailand without casualties.

(Just where in the Philippines the landing was claimed was not stated. There had been previous reports, however, that the Japanese had seized Lubang Island, some 50 miles off the entrance to Manila Bay.)

Says Japan Now Superior

A spokesman for the Japanese navy ministry asserted that already the balance of American-Japanese sea power had been changed to favor Japan and that attacks thus far delivered had "completely shattered all naval strategy popularized by United States naval experts."

Speaking of alleged American plans for encirclement of Japan, he added that Washington had miscalculated Japan's strength, and "the fruit of this irresponsible estimate has been to deprive America of the very foundation—naval superiority—of its hopes of obstructing and frustrating the natural growth of the Japanese empire."

(In spite of all these generalities there had been up to Tuesday night, Japanese time, no claim to a specific victory over any American ship or squadron beyond those that had been made on Monday.)

Claim Air Base Blasted

Actions claimed by the Japanese naval and military authorities included these:

That Japanese bombers had delivered a mass attack on Nichol's Field, the United States air base near Manila, in which "important air facilities" had been destroyed.

That Japanese warships had shelled Midway Island, a U. S. possession about 1,400 miles west of Honolulu, and had set aflame certain hangars and oil stores.

That nine planes had been shot down by the Japanese in attacks on Wake Island.

That Japanese troops have occupied "an important strategic point" in North Malaya.

That Japanese air and land forces had begun this morning an attack upon what was described as the area of Singapore, and that many British planes had been destroyed at their Malaya bases.

(The expression "the area of Singapore" referred so far as could be learned simply to fighting in northern Malaya some 300 miles away from that great base. That fighting had been reported by the British as heavy and inconclusive.)

Bangkok Occupied

That two contingents of Japanese troops had accomplished the occupation of Bangkok, the capital of Thailand, under the new Japanese-Thailand agreement for holding that country "against the democracies."

(Scraps of information from other sources included these:

(A Berlin broadcast stated that the Japanese had arrived in central Thailand while from the northern section of that country they had opened an attack intended to cut the Burma Road.

(The Rome radio claimed that the Japanese had landed in North Borneo, site of a British naval base and a strategic area along the sea routes from the great American base at Manila to the allied Dutch East Indies.)

Of the Chinese front, the official Japanese news agency Domei reported that Chinese troops concentrated in southwestern Kwangtung province for an attack on Indo-China (where Japanese troops stand in force) had been dive-bombed.

Prize Courts Established

It was Domei also that reported seizure of more than 200 vessels along the China coast and in the Whangpoo River. Among those identified, aside from the President Harrison, were the 3,000-ton Panamanian ship Carrier and the 2,698-ton British ship Mary Moller.

The establishment of prize courts to consider the disposition of the captured ships was approved by the cabinet.

Apparently referring to Central and South American republics, the spokesman said the navy had no intention to act against "countries which understand our motives and are ready to refrain from hostile acts against us."

The United States and Britain, he added, were Japan's frontal enemies.

Shipping circles in New York said that the Panamanian ship reported captured by the Japanese in Chinese waters was the 3,365-ton Norse Carrier, a collier used to supply Shanghai with coal before the war.

A former American vessel, the ship was built at Quincy, Mass., in 1913 and was then named the Frieda.

U. S. Naval Strategy Smashed by Attacks, Japanese Claim

Widening Scope and Increasing Tempo of War Reported by Tokio

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO (Official Broadcast Relayed by Radio-up), Dec. 9.—Great initial successes and a widening scope and increasing tempo of Japan's air, land and sea war of the Pacific with the United States and Britain were reported by the Japanese today.

A Navy Ministry spokesman declared the Japanese Navy already had landed blows which had changed the old balance of American and Japanese sea power to such an extent as to nullify President Roosevelt's "high pressure Eastern policy."

The achievements of the Japanese Navy, he declared, had "completely shattered all naval strategy popularized by United States naval experts."

Mr. Roosevelt's program of encircling Japan had been based on a miscalculation of Japan's strength, he added. "The fruit of this irresponsible estimate has been to deprive America of the very foundation—naval superiority—of its hopes of obstructing and frustrating the natural growth of the Japanese Empire."

The army announced that its bombers had hammered Nichols Field, United States air base near Manila in the Philippines, in a mass attack which demolished "important air facilities."

(Domei said today it was "understood" Japanese forces have destroyed more than 300 American planes, including 200 in dogfights and on the ground, in Hawaii.

(The remainder, it said, were "believed" destroyed in the Philippines.

(Of the total the news agency said 30 were fortress planes and 30 long-range bombers.)

A ring of Japanese warships which shelled tiny Midway Island, a United States possession 1,400 miles west of Honolulu, set hangars and fuel stores ablaze in a bombardment yesterday, a communique said.

(A Tokio broadcast heard by C. B. S. declared that Guam and Wake, two other United States stepping stones across the Pacific from Pearl Harbor to Manila, were now under the Japanese flag. The broadcast was heard last night, and there was no subsequent elaboration.)

The Japanese said they shot down nine planes in their attacks on Wake Island yesterday.

Singapore Attacked.

At the same time imperial headquarters announced that Japan's air and land forces began an attack on the area of Singapore this morning.

The announcement said the attack opened at 10:20 a.m. (8:20 p.m., E. S. T., Monday) and that many Japanese warplanes sweeping the skies had destroyed many British fighter planes at their Malaya bases.

Two contingents were reported by Domei to have completed occupation of Bangkok, Thailand capital, under terms of the new Japanese-Thailand agreement of protecting that country "against the democracies."

Domei said it was understood most British and Americans in Thailand were now in their legations, and said more than 100 Thais, including 40 police, were killed last night in a British attack on the frontier.

(A Berlin broadcast, heard in London, said the Japanese also had arrived in Central Thailand, and from the northern part of the country already were launching an attack to cut the Burma Road, presumably by a drive through Burma.

(The Rome radio also reported a Japanese landing in North Borneo. A British communique from Hong Kong announced the Japanese yesterday launched an attack on that stronghold at two places on the land side yesterday. The British were hurriedly demolishing bridges and railways to hinder any advance.

(Both Hong Kong and Manila reported air raids. Hong Kong said the alarms there were almost continuous. The Manila radio announced a raid was on there at 8:55 a.m., E. S. T.).

200 Vessels Seized.

The seizure of more than 200 vessels of "enemy nationalities," including the 10,509-ton American President Lines liner President Harrison, the 3,000-ton Panamanian vessel Carrier and the 2,698-ton British vessel Mary Moller, on the Chinese coast and in the Whangpoo river, at Shanghai, was announced in a domei dispatch.

The Cabinet approved a measure for establishing prize courts in Tokyo, Yokosuka and Sasebo to consider disposition of captured ships.

It was announced that Gen. Prince Naruhiko Higashi Kuni, 54, head of one of the collateral branches of the imperial family, had been appointed commander-in-chief of the home defense forces.

Saw Action At Nanking

The Prince is a former commander of Japanese troops in China which took Nanking in 1937.

(This step was in keeping with the army's practice of enlisting the prestige of the imperial family by naming princes to high commands. During most of the Manchurian and China wars imperial princes were chiefs of the army and navy general staffs.)

The Prince's chief of staff is Lieut. Gen. Asazaburo Kobayashi.

Domei said Japanese air squadrons dive-bombed Chinese barracks at Yamhsien, in Southwestern Kwantung Province, where troops had been concentrated for the purpose of attacking Indo-China, and had inflicted severe damage on the air field.

The navy spokesman, referring to Central and South American republics, said the navy harbored no intention of taking action against "countries which understand our motives and are ready to refrain from hostile acts against us."

Japan's frontal enemies are the United States and Britain, he said.

Used for War Material.

The President Harrison, one of the best known ships in the old Dollar Lines' round - the - world service, had been used to rush important war materials from the Far East to the United States. She continued in the round-the-world service after the European conflict began and brought hundreds of war refugees to New York. Rubber and tin comprised her principal cargo.

Built in 1921 at Camden, N. J., the Harrison was 502 feet long and formerly was named the Wolverine State. Her passenger capacity was 140 but this was increased to more than 200 when refugees began leaving the Near East and Italy.

On her last visit to New York she was under the command of Capt. D. Ward, U. S. N. R.

U. S. Liner Reported Captured After Chase of Seven Hours

President Harrison Stopped by Sandbar in Attempt to Escape Japanese—On Way to Evacuate Mariners.

The American President liner President Harrison, steaming northward to Chinwangtao to evacuate United States marines from Peiping and Tientsin, was captured by a Japanese destroyer after being chased for seven hours by a speedy Japanese liner, the Nagasaki Maru, the German radio declared today in a report from Shanghai.

The broadcast said that the President Harrison struck a sandbar in the Yangtze Estuary. She was first sighted by a Japanese plane and stopped on signal 110 miles off the mouth of the Yangtze, the report said, but attempted to escape when the plane left. The Nagasaki Maru took up the chase, however, and kept the liner in sight until the destroyer arrived on the scene.

Ground Lights Used To Guide Raiders; Two Alarm Aides Are Arrested For False Warnings

By The Associated Press

MANILA, P. I., Wednesday, Dec. 10—Two Japanese landings on this Philippine Island of Luzon were reported today by the Filipino constabulary, and an army spokesman announced, "All indications point to a heavy enemy attack with land troops supported by naval contingents and aircraft."

The army spokesman said the attack was "on north Luzon Island" but declined amplification.

The first report, by the Filipino constabulary, stated the landings were said to have been made in northern and western Luzon.

Fifth Column Bared

The announcement came soon after authorities had uncovered a fifth-columnist plot that set off two false air-raid alarms and pointed the way to military targets with lights on the ground while Japanese planes first were attacking the Philippines.

Other reports that the Japanese landing efforts had been made on Batan Island, between Luzon and the Japanese island of Formosa, and that they had full control of Lubang Island were still unconfirmed.

The army spokesman's answer to the only question raised at the brief conference, said there was no confirmation of reports that the body of a German pilot had been found among the casualties in Monday's raid on Zambales Province.

Despite a bright almost-full moon, no Japanese air attacks on the Philippines were reported overnight.

A few anti-aircraft shots were heard, and American planes droned steadily overhead on patrol, but there were no bombs.

Army authorities had expected the Japanese to take advantage of the favorable attacking weather.

Newspapers reported a single Japanese plane appeared over Davao but dropped no bombs, and residents of Lucena Tayabas reported American planes drove off three Japanese planes.

Evacuation of civilians was continuing today. Davao's entire rice supply was commandeered to prevent hoarding.

Two Alarms

Before midnight Tuesday, blacked-out Manila had two alarms declared officially to have been fraudulently turned on.

In reporting the two alarms fraudulent, Alfredo Eugenio, Philippine national air raid precautions head, announced the arrest of two workers and said two others were under surveillance. Their nationality was not disclosed.

Signal Lights Used

Earlier a U. S. Army spokesmen had announced that "certain areas were marked out by light signals"—both flares and [illegible] the raids on Nichols Field, outside Manila, early Tuesday.

Early today U. S. Army night fighters were in the air, guarding the capital against direct assault.

Strict instructions were issued by Eugenio that no alarms be sounded unless the order came direct from the warden's office. He also said he would recommend that the Army take over the alarm system.

Last night, he said, the persons in charge of the sirens sounded the two false alarms upon receiving telephone calls from unidentified persons.

DEC 10 1941

Try to Spread Panic

He expressed the belief that fifth columnists hoped to cause panic among the uneducated masses by a multiplicity of alarms and to lull others into a feeling that the alarms were not worth heeding.

The first alarm Tuesday night sounded at 7:41 p. m. (6:41 a. m. EST) and the second occurred at 9:50 p. m. Each lasted about an hour, but no attacks followed.

American pilots and anti-aircraft crews were said to have stood up well under their first bombings and ground-strafing at Clark Field, 40 miles north of here.

"It was tough enough and we were glad when it ended," one gunner said, "but the next time we'll do better. Even when the bombs were raining down we kept noticing little things we were not doing right. These kinks are ironed out now.

"The next time we'll give 'em hell."

An American pilot expressed confidence that the U. S. flyers could take care of the Japanese fighter planes, which he said were heavily armed with 20 millimeter hub-firing cannon and numerous machine-guns.

German Aid Reported

The Japanese ground-strafing tactics, he said, indicated German tutelage if not actual German participation. Reports that a German flyer had been captured after parachuting out of a burning plane could not be confirmed.

An American aircraft gunner said rumors were afloat that some Germans had been shot down in Japanese planes, but, he asserted:

"The Japs we shot down were Japs."

Thus far the Japanese pilots were reported to have got decidely the worst of it in individual dog-fights over the islands.

The flyer who participated in yesterday's fighting said of the Japanese pilots:

"They got the first jump on us, but we're not over-impressed, and we certainly don't think they ar super men"

Nazi Material Found

Informed sources said today that the Japanese air force is using German equipment.

Participants in yesterday's air clash at Clark Field said they picked up and identified beyond question empty German-marked 20-millimeter shells fired by cannon-carrying Japanese pursuit planes.

American machine-gunners also shot a small spare gasoline tank bearing the name of a German manufacturer from the underside of a Japanese fighter.

Meanwhile an official Army announcement said material losses in planes as a result of Monday's air fighting over the Philippines were "heavy on both sides."

No figures were given.

It also was confirmed that a Japanese pilot shot down at Davao was killed while trying to escape.

25,000 Rounded

Still unverified was the report that Japanese troops now were in full control of Lubang Island southwest of Manila Bay, with the help of fifth columnists.

Thousands of Manila residents still were moving out of the capital to the countryside. Residents of the Paranaque area around Nichols Field especially were ordered to leave their homes since yesterday's Japanese attack which killed one American soldier and injured 12.

One Japanese civilian was shot in the shoulder when police said he sought to evade arrest. Some Japanese resistance also was reported in Davao, but the majority of the 25,000 Japanese already rounded up were said to have submitted peaceably. Some appeared voluntarily at concentration centers.

One thousand Japanese men were held up at Bilibid Prison in Manila, but their wives and children were released after questioning. Bankers, business men and newspaper correspondents were among those interned.

Japanese Consul Gen. Katsumi Nihro of Manila and Counsul Gen. Harukt Mori of Davao were allowed to remain at their homes under guard, but members of their staff were interned.

Treachery Feared in Manila.

Manila, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Manila underwent two false air raid alarms tonight and the National Air Raid Warden, Alfredo Eugenio, said he suspected a fifth-column conspiracy was the cause. Two air alarm workers were arrested and two others were under investigation.

DEC 10 1941

The warden said that the police were taking over the alarm system immediately, and he recommended that the United States take it over tomorrow.

An army spokesman said that Japanese flyers raiding the Manila area had been aided by light signals from the ground, marking out certain sections.

Military and civil officials are taking every precaution to arrest and punish those responsible for setting off flares, fireworks and other signals, the spokesman said.

At the same time an American flyer who participated in this morning's air battles said that the Japanese ground-strafing tactics indicated German instruction if not actual German participation in the fighting. The army said it could not verify a report that German flyers took part in the raids or that one German pilot who parachuted from a German plane had been captured.

25,000 Japanese Arrested.

Some resistance by Japanese residents in Manila and in the big Japanese community of Davao, on Mindanao Island, was reported as troops took some 25,000 Japanese into custody throughout the archipelago. One Japanese was shot in the shoulder while resisting arrest in Manila. The majority, however, submitted peacefully, some appearing voluntarily at concentration centers.

More than 1,000 men were held at the famous Bilibid prison in Manila.

During the radio blackout tonight the only programs heard, ironically were those of the Tokio and Formosa stations, blaring Japanese war songs and patriotic speeches.

Two villages adjacent to Nichols Field have been evacuated, all civilians being removed to an evacuation center in a nearby province.

The entire municipality of Paranque in which the airfield is located is to be evacuated by tomorrow. Scores of Americans and foreigners are leaving the fashionable suburb of Pasay, which is fairly close to the scene of last night's attack. A number of new fire stations were opened in thickly-settled parts of Manila. All firemen were equipped with gas masks and steel helmets.

The Philippines, target of repeated and widespread Japanese air raids, faced a new threat meanwhile as reports reached here that Japanese troops had seized Lubang Island about fifty miles off the entrance to Manila Bay.

Adding to the anxiety over this situation was the fear that the Japanese might effect a landing on the big island of Mindanao, where about 10,000 of the 25,000 Japanese settled in the Davao area were said to be armed and ready to co-operate with an invasion attempt.

One report said approximately 3,000 armed Japanese already were actively resisting Filipino authorities attempting to curb incipient fifth-column activities in Davao Province.

Reliable sources, authority for the reported seizure of Lubang, said the Japanese apparently had gained full control there with the aid of fifth columnists posing as fishermen.

Before the sudden Japanese onslaught Sunday morning against United States possessions in the Pacific, Japanese fishermen were known to have established themselves not only on Lubang, but on other islands farther south.

Lubang of Major Importance.

Control of Lubang would be of tremendous importance to the Japanese because of its dominating position southwest of Manila Bay and because it virtually controls waterways between the middle Philippine Archipelago and the China Sea.

Manila itself, which experienced three air-raid alarms during the night, was on the alert for a new thrust by Japanese air raiders against nearby strategic points.

(Globe Wireless in New York heard the Manila radio again reporting an air raid on Manila at 8:55 a.m., E. S. T., today.

(This apparently meant a second wave of Japanese raiders because the Manila radio had resumed its traffic after an earlier interruption because of air attack.

(Ford Wilkins, C. B. S. correspondent in Manila, said another air raid warning was in progress there at 8 a.m., E. S. T., when he broadcast. Just as he concluded he reported the all-clear had sounded, but he did not then know whether any bombs had been dropped and that Manila, up to then, "has not suffered greatly.")

DEC 10 1941

(A. C. B. S. reported said Manila was a "bad dream throughout yesterday and last night," with the final all clear sounding at 7 a.m.—6 p.m. E. S. T. Monday.)

Details Still Lacking.

Details still were lacking on the damage and casualties already caused by the Japanese raiders, but it was reported unofficially that there were at least 200 at Clark Field, military airdrome 40 miles north of the city. At least 150 other casualties were reported outside the immediate Manila area.

Japanese planes, which bombed Northern and Central Luzon yesterday, came in two waves, apparently from Southern Formosa. The first wave followed the eastward side of Luzon. Flying south, it bombed the Batan Islands off Northern Luzon, then Aparri, then an undisclosed point in Tarlac province, then Tuguegarao on the main highway from Manila to North Baguio, where nine were killed and 10 injured.

As the invaders neared Fort Stotsenburg and nearby Clark Field, American interceptors roared into the air and turned back the Japanese wave before it reached Manila.

The second wave of about 80 planes bombed Fort Stotsenburg and Clark Field after apparently coming down the China Sea coast from the north, probably from Formosa or the Island of Hainan. Two hundred soldiers were reported wounded and an undisclosed number were killed at Fort Stotsenburg.

One Soldier Killed.

The Army announced that one United States soldier was killed and 12 were injured today in a morning's pre-dawn raid on Nichols Field, near Manila.

The Army spokesman said 10 Japanese bombers raided Nichols Field, damaging one hangar and burning an officers' quarters.

The two soldiers wounded near Fort William McKinley were injured by a stray bomb, he declared.

Other sources also said that fort was not bombed but that some anti-aircraft guns had gone into action. Neither did bombs fall on the waterfront, they said, and reports that they had were the error of witnesses who mistook the attack on nearby Nichols Field for a bombardment of the breakwater sector.

Because Nichols Field is near crowded Panaque, that district will be evacuated, probably today, marking the first Army-sponsored exodus from Manila.

Alarm Lasts 4 Hours.

The Nichols Field air alarm lasted more than four hours—from 3:09 a.m. to 7:20 a.m. Because of the lapse of time, many Manilans, including some soldiers, thought the all-clear was a new alarm and there was a moment's flurry as the crews manned their guns. One anti-aircraft gun fired a single shot although no planes were visible.

Belated dispatches from the northern part of Luzon told how American pursuit planes had beaten off three separate daylight raids on western coastal areas yesterday after the Japanese had caused minor damage to air fields, bridges and buildings.

The Iba area on the Luzon coast, 35 miles northwest of Olongapo naval station and 70 miles northwest of Manila, also was reported heavily attacked yesterday, with casualties totaling 100 dead and many injured.

No Figures on Planes.

Army authorities did not give any figures on the number of Japanese raiders shot down or on American plane losses.

Unofficial reports, however, said four Japanese planes had been downed yesterday over Fort Stotsenburg, whose communications with Manila were cut off for a short time. Another raider was reported downed over Davao.

Observers feared the attacks on Davao might be a prelude to a more serious Japanese attempt to gain control of the sealanes leading southward to Borneo and the Netherlands Indies.

Heroism In Philippines

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Dec. 9 [illegible] at a Philippine airfield reported today that even in the excitement of battle with attacking Japanese planes they had time to note around them such acts of heroism as these, in the gunners' own words:

"One bird sat in the tail of a bomber on the ground and kept blazing away at those diving Japs. They shot the seat from under him and a wing off his plane, but he was still firing when they went away."

"A private in another grounded bomber kept his machine gun going until the gasoline tanks caught fire and got so hot he had to get out."

"A lieutenant in a pursuit plane got on a Jap's tail at 20,000 feet and rode him clear down into the ground."

These men said the Japanese planes were "plenty good and heavily armored," but that after the attack they had picked up several unexploded 20-mm. shells ejected from Japanese propeller-shaft cannon.

Langley Undamaged in Raid, Navy Announces in Manila

Manila, Dec. 9 (AP)—U. S. naval sources denied reports today that the seaplane tender Langley was bombed during a Japanese attack on Davao yesterday. They said the carrier was safe and carrying out routine duties.

Manila, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The office of Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, said today that eighteen light and medium Japanese bombers attacked Guam at 8:45 A. M. yesterday and that half a dozen planes made a second attack at 2:45 P. M.

FIGHT RAGES FOR CONTROL OF AIRDROME

R. A. F. Roars Out To Meet Convoy Of 25 Enemy Troopships

Transports Escorted By Warships, Dive Bombers And Pursuit Craft

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 9—Britain and Japan tonight hurled reinforcements into the jungle battle of northeastern Malaya where heavy fighting raged for control of the important airdrome of Kota Bharu, only 400 miles from Singapore.

British bombers and fighter planes roared out over the Gulf of Siam to meet a Japanese convoy of twenty-five troop transports speeding south along conquered Thailand's coast in an attempt to land additional Japanese troops at Kota Bharu and farther north in the Singora and Patani areas of southern Thailand.

DEC 10 1941

Planes Escort Ships

Japanese warships, dive-bombers and pursuit planes escorted this imposing array, British aerial scouts reported.

A communique said the situation at Kota Bharu "still is confused." British imperial forces by noon yesterday had almost gained control of the area when the Japanese succeeded in landing addition troops.

Bitter fighting continued throughout the night and today, the communique said, adding that "reinforcements should reach there during the day."

Imperial Units Scattered

Australians, British, Indian and Malayan troops are scattered throughout the jungles to combat the apparent Japanese effort to sever Malaya's land bridge with Burma along the narrow Kra Isthmus. Full Japanese control of Thailand, however, would automatically cut that link.

"It is yet too early to attempt to forecast what the Japanese main plan is," the communique said, "but there are indications that, following the collapse of resistance in Thailand and the heavy scale of Japanese air effort from bases in Indo-China, they are prepared to engage considerable forces in an attempt to obtain control of northern Malaya.

Jap Move Foreseen

"This move always has been foreseen as a likely one, and disposition of our forces before the outbreak of the war was designed to meet it."

Because of the lack of roads through the jungles, the British expressed confidence they could repel any Japanese drive down the isthmus from the Singora and Patani areas, which are, respectively, 110 and 60 miles north of the Malayan frontier.

Town Lies On River

Kota Bharu is a town of 15,000 on the right bank of the Kelantan river and its airdrome is a vital advance base which the Japanese could use for a spring at Singapore. It is about 300 air miles from the southern tip of Japanese-occupied French Indo China. A railway connects Kota Bharu with Singapore.

The town itself is about six miles from the coast, and the Japanese apparently had fought their way to its outskirts.

DEC 10 1941

Air-raid warnings were sounded here and at Kuala Lumpur, 200 miles to the north, yesterday morning and last night, but the British said no bombings had been reported. Japanese aerial activity apparently was confined to reconnaissance.

Japs Reported Trying New Troop Landings In Northern Malaya

Fresh Reinforcements Rushed by British As Ships Approach

By the Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 9.—British reinforcements were rushed into Northern Malaya today as 25 Japanese transports which steamed down the Thailand coast were reported attempting new landings in support of forces engaged in a bitter battle to gain control of Kota Bharu airdrome.

A communique acknowledged that the Japanese had succeeded in landing fresh troops in the Kota Bharu area yesterday afternoon and declared the situation there was confused after a night of heavy fighting.

It also asserted that the Japanese were bringing into action large numbers of aircraft "in an endeavor to gain a measure of air superiority in Northern Malaya to enable them to cover a landing in Southern Thailand."

The communique said it was still too early to analyze Japan's master plan of Pacific warfare, but that information received from the Philippines, Australia and the Netherlands East Indies "is that prearranged reinforcements of planes have been fully implemented."

"Full ABCD Cooperation"

"The fullest cooperation between the (ABCD) powers in the Far East has been manifested in these two days of conflict," it added.

The communique voiced the suspicion that with the fall of Thailand and the heavy scale of Japanese air activity from French Indo-China bases, Japan may be "prepared to engage considerable forces in an attempt to obtain control of northern Malaya."

DEC 10 1941

Jap Landing Plans

It declared, however, that such a tactic "always has been foreseen as a likely one and our forces before the outbreak of the war were designed to meet it."

Apparently, the British said, the Japanese planned an attempt to disembark troops at Singora and Patani, in southern Thailand, as well as at Kota Bharu.

Patani is about sixty miles north of the Malayan frontier and about seventy miles from Kota Bharu, which is near the northern terminus of a railway leading to Singapore. Singora is about fifty miles north of Patani.

Raid On Singapore Denied

The British command declared it was evident that, following the collapse of Thai resistance, the Japanese were prepared to "engage considerable forces in an attempt to gain control of northern Malaya." Such a move was foreseen long before the outbreak of hostilities, however, and British preparations were made to meet it, the communique said.

Japanese and German reports that the Japanese had effected landings in southern Malaya or had launched an assault on Singapore itself were officially denied.

The communique said that both Singapore and Kuala Lumpur, 200 miles north, were under air alarm yesterday and again during the night, but said there had been no reports of bombings at either place.

Another Landing Attempted

SINGAPORE, Wednesday, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Japanese are continuing their land and air attacks in Northern Malaya "without making much progress," said a communiqué issued here today.

The communiqué declared that the Japanese were reported to have attempted a landing early today on the east coast of Malaya just north of Kuantan, about halfway between Singapore and the Thai border, and were being engaged by defense forces.

U.S.-Made Bombers Hit Japs' Vessels Off North Malay

British Forces Entering Thailand To Meet Invaders

DEC 10 1941

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—American-made Hudson bombers scored hits on two transport ships and a troop-laden barge which landed Japanese forces in Northern Malaya, CBS' Singapore correspondent reported tonight.

A late announcement, he said, described the Japanese ships as beating a hasty retreat after depositing their troops on the Malayan beaches.

British forces were declared mowing down the Japanese with machine-gun fire on the beaches and engaging in hand-to-hand fighting with those who penetrated to the jungles.

Japanese Land Attack Repulsed At Singapore

Hongkong, Dec. 9 (AP)—Japanese land forces attempting to invade this crown colony were brought to a sudden halt tonight by artillery fire from the strongly manned mainland defenses, it was announced officially.

There was a brief afternoon air raid on Hongkong itself, causing slight damage and a few casualties.

"All defenses of the mainland are being successfully maintained," a communique stated.

The Japanese land assault, beginning at Monday dawn, encountered almost immediately heavy road and railway demolitions—completed within two hours—and then felt the blasts from the perimeter of heavily manned mainland defenses which have been under preparation since 1938.

Main City On Island

The larger part of the colony lies on the mainland, although the main city of some 2,000,000 is on an island just offshore.

The two main points of attack were near Taipo and along the Castle Peak road, on the western coast of the mainland. The Japanese moved cautiously, and up to tonight the land operations were in the nature of skirmishes.

One patrol ran into an ambush laid by a Bren gun-carrier patrol along the Castle Peak road and was wiped out.

"Canadian troops were in great fettle," said one unamplified headquarters report. There was no other reference to the Canadian force which landed at Hongkong last month.

Story Of Jap Scout

The Hongkong headquarters, with dry humor, related the story of a Japanese scout who was seen signaling from a mound on the edge of the British mainland defenses.

"In reality," the statement said, "it was one of our concealed mines, which was immediately touched off. The signaler vanished."

Air raids described officially as desultory went on throughout the day. There were no serious casualties, the night communique said.

British warships beat off Japanese bombers with anti-aircraft fire. None was hit.

All United States citizens were safe.

DEC 10 1941

Hongkong Beats Off Attack.

Hongkong, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Japanese land forces attempted today to invade this British Crown Colony on the mainland frontier but were halted quickly by artillery fire, a communique said tonight, adding that all defenses of the mainland were being successfully maintained.

Hongkong was kept on constant guard by air alarms during the morning but the communique said that the raids were feeble and that there were no serious casualties. At least one hostile plane was severely damaged and there were no afternoon raids. Air attacks were made on British warships also, but the communique said that none was hit.

Japanese Unit Smashed.

An earlier communique declared that a Bren gun-carrier had "engineered a highly successful ambush of a Japanese platoon which was practically annihilated on Castle Peak Road, on the western coast of the mainland."

(Although the larger part of Hong Kong is on the mainland, the main city is on an island just off shore. Hong Kong's perimeter defenses have been reinforced and strongly manned since 1938 when the Japanese landed a powerful army in Southern China and captured the great Chinese port of Canton.

(Next to Singapore, Hong Kong is the British Empire's chief citadel of defense in the Far East.)

News of the Japanese land assault was said to have been received at 5 a.m. yesterday and full defense machinery instantly was set in motion. Within a half-hour patrols were demolishing roads and railways of potential strategic value to the Japanese and had completed their assignments inside two hours.

"A Chinese company of sappers (engineers) has so far taken a leading part in operations and continues to perform its duties admirably," the communique said.

It cited one instance Monday when a Japanese scout was observed signaling from what he evidently thought was a rise in the ground.

Fifty Japanese Seized

"In reality," the communique wryly added, "it was one of our concealed mines, which was immediately touched off. The signaler vanished."

Fifty Japanese residents have been seized here.

United States nationals all are safe and Consul General Addison Southard has exhorted them to keep calm. There are 400 white and 1,000 Chinese-Americans here.

Britain Delays Siam Action

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 9—The Foreign Office announced today the British Government was awaiting information on circumstances of a reported Thai agreement with Japan "before taking a decision as to its future attitude to Thailand."

The office denied that British forces had crossed the frontier "when Thailand was invaded by Japan."

Statement Issued

The text of the Foreign Office statement:

"According to a report issued by the Japanese Domei agency, the Japanese Embassy at Bangkok has announced that Japan has received conclusive evidence that British forces, in accordance with previous plans, crossed the Thailand-Malayan frontier at early dawn on the morning of December 8—that is, on the evening of December 7, London time.

"The announcement continued that Japan then began negotiations with the Thailand Government and sent forces against the British."

DEC 10 1941

Allegation Denied

"This allegation that Japanese attacks on Thailand were consequent on a move by British troops into Thai territory is wholly untrue. In no place had any British forces crossed the frontier when Thailand was invaded by Japan.

"Reports have been received in London that negotiations between Japan and Thailand have led to an agreement allowing passage of Japanese troops across Thailand.

"His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom is awaiting further information as to the exact circumstances in which this agreement was concluded before taking a decision as to its future attitude toward Thailand."

British Ultimatum to Siam.

Berlin, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Domei, the Japanese news agency, declared in a dispatch from Bangkok today that the British Minister had handed the Thai Government an ultimatum of undisclosed nature.

Landings in Philippines, Malaya, Siam Reported

Berlin, Dec. 9 (AP)—A DNB dispatch from Shanghai today quoted the Japanese army spokesman as saying Japanese troops had landed in the Philippines.

The spokesman asserted the landing was effected without losses, DNB said.

He also told of successful landings without casualties on Britain's Malay Peninsula and in Thailand. This was a cause for satisfaction, he said. Stubborn resistance had been expected because "British airplanes had sighted the Japanese convoy prematurely."

TOKYO AND KOBE REPORTED BOMBED

New York, Dec. 9 (AP) — Ford Wilkins, CBS correspondent in Manila, reported at 9:12 a. m. (est), today that there had been unverified reports of bombings of the Japanese island of Formosa and the cities of Tokyo and Kobe. The latest announcement of Japanese defense headquarters in Tokyo, as picked up by The Associated Press from a Domei broadcast, said there had been no air attack on Japanese territory up to this morning.

DEC 10 1941

Jap Troops In Thailand

BERLIN, (AP) — Japanese troops occupied Bangkok, capital of Thailand, shortly after 9 p. m. last night, DNB said today in a dispatch from Tokyo credited to Domei.

DNB also carried a Japanese imperial headquarters announcement that Midway Island, American possession in the Pacific, was shelled fiercely by Japanese warships yesterday afternoon.

Airplane hangars and fuel depots were set afire, it said.

The Japanese announced that no enemy planes had been reported over Japanese territory.

In the fight against the British, Japanese were reported attacking the Singapore area while their air force raided air bases elsewhere in Malaya.

At a cabinet meeting, DNB said, Navy Minister Admiral Shigetaro Shimada reported on Japan's initial sea successes against the United States and Britain, and Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo discussed the new agreement with Thailand.

The cabinet was said also to have approved new 1942 budget proposals amounting to 6,212,000,000 yen (nominally about $1,466,032,000).

Thais Asked to Join "New Order"

The Berlin radio said yesterday that Japan had called officially on Thailand to participate in establishing "the New Order" in East Asia, and at the same time had guaranteed Thailand's independence. Berlin quoted a radio report from Saigon, French Indo-China.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said tonight British forces had entered Thailand from Burma and were being engaged by Japanese troops, NBC reported.

Report Crippling British Destroyer

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—A Domei (Japanese news agency) broadcast heard here said Japanese naval planes bombed British destroyers at Hongkong this afternoon, seriously damaging one, and later destroyed hangars and other facilities in a raid on an airdrome.

Japs Take Important Point In Northern Malaya

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—The German wireless quoted a Japanese imperial headquarters announcement today that Japanese troops had occupied an important strategical point in Northern Malaya.

This point was not identified but it could be Kota Bharu, British air base just across the border from Thailand, where there has been sharp and apparently confused fighting between British defenders and reinforced Japanese landing parties.

Rome Reports Japanese Landing in North Borneo

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—"Japanese troops have landed in the northern part of Borneo," the Rome radio said today in a broadcast heard by NBC.

Earlier British reports said such a landing attempt had been beaten.

New York, Dec. 9—(AP)—A German radio despatch from Tokio today said a Government spokesman told foreign correspondents Japan would ignore Costa Rica's declaration of war, and presumably those of other Central American nations.

The spokesman was quoted as saying the only real state of war existed with the United States and the British Empire, and as expressing doubt that the South American nations would declare war on Japan without having "the least interest in the Far East."

Berlin, Wednesday, Dec. 10 (AP)—Berlin newspapers carried accounts today of the arrest of 400 German and Italian nationals in the United States.

Thus far there have been no reports of arrests of American nationals here.

Japs Reported Fighting In Borneo

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—The BBC reported today the Japanese had attempted "a new landing" in North Borneo and had been attacked heavily by British and Australian bombers.

British troops, it said, were engaged in fierce fighting with the Japanese there.

The broadcast was heard by CBS.

(Aneta, Netherlands news agency, earlier had reported that British forces had broken up a Japanese landing party in north Borneo).

Other Forces Battle British After Landings in Borneo and Malayan Coast— Foe Occupies Bangkok.

DEC 10 1941

London, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio quoted a Japanese communique today as saying that Japanese troops in northern Thailand are advancing toward the Burma Road. The radio said that the communique also reported that Japanese troops had reached the central area of Thailand.

Shanghai Consuls Meet

A German broadcast heard in New York said today that the Shanghai Municipal Council, governing body of the Japanese-occupied International Settlement, had offered the Japanese its assistance in maintaining law and order.

An extraordinary session of the council, it said, was attended by the Japanese Consul-General and several representatives of Japanese authorities as well as by British, American, Dutch, Swiss and German consuls.

The British and United States consulates were said to have been asked by the Japanese to close immediately.

MANILA REPORTS TWO MORE RAIDS

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—Globe Wireless here heard the Manila radio again reporting an air raid on the Philippine Island city today at 8:55 a. m., e.s.t.

This apparently meant a second wave of Japanese raiders because the Manila radio had resumed its traffic after an earlier interruption because of air attack.

Ford Wilkins, CBS correspondent in Manila, said another air raid warning was in progress there at 8 a. m., est, when he broadcast. Just as he concluded, he reported the all - clear had sounded, but he did not then know whether any bombs had been dropped and that Manila, up to then, "has not suffered greatly."

NAZI SILENCE ON PACIFIC WAR HELD OMINOUS

Hitler Believed On Verge Of Declaring Policy Toward U. S.

Reports Persist That Session Of Reichstag Will Take Place Today

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Wednesday, Dec. 10.—Ominous silence prevailed in the Wilhelmstrasse early today in anticipation of a declaration by Adolf Hitler during the day on Germany's policy toward Japan's war on the United States and Britain.

There were persistent reports, apparently supported by postponement of tonight's opera performance, that the Kroll Opera House would be the scene of a Reichstag session. It is here that the Reichstag meets to hear important pronouncements by Hitler.

Usually well-informed sources freely predicted that clarification of Germany's stand is imminent but commentators refrained from elaborating on just when and how it would be done.

Sign Of Things To Come

One sign of big things in the making was the absence of Wilhelmstrasse functionaries from their spare-time haunts early today.

An authorized spokesman said last night he could not tell whether there would be a change in German-American relations within twenty-four hours.

"I can't say," he remarked. "The situation has not changed."

Other well-informed sources said meanwhile that "a clarifying German statement" could be expected soon.

Early Action Expected

"In view of the far-reaching importance of this question, such a statement will not be long delayed," said the authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland.

Almost as though trying to hint at the tenor of the prospective official German statement concerning the Far East war, Dienst pointed out that emphasis in the press—which is carefully controlled and inspired by the Propaganda Ministry—had shifted from differences between the United States and Japan to extended articles on "the continuous efforts of Roosevelt to win access to the European war in some manner."

This seemed to speak volumes as to the slippery surface on which American-German relations are moving in Berlin.

Parallels Drawn

Authorized spokesmen sought to draw parallels between what they alleged were Mr. Roosevelt's aggressive actions against Germany and those by which it was asserted that he had attempted to throttle Japan economically.

"In Germany," said Dienst, "there is an impression of parallel policy which under the personal initiative of Roosevelt wanted to combat and sabotage the justified claims and objectives of the leading powers in the Far East as well as in the European area."

This agency added that the position of the Soviet in the Far East was not being touched in German discussions.

[The British radio quoted a Japanese Government spokesman as saying: "We naturally expected Germany to declare war upon the United States."] would declare war against the United States within a few hours was broadcast by N. B. C.'s Stockholm correspondent, who relayed reports that the American Embassy staff in Berlin already had been removed from the Reich capital.

(The British radio quoted a Japanese government spokesman as saying "we naturally expected Germany to declare war on the United States.")

There were unconfirmable reports that the Reichstag would meet tomorrow to receive a statement on Germany's official stand.

There was no hint of the form or contents of the "clarifying statement," said the Dienst aus Deutschland commentary, but "in view of the far-reaching importance of this question such a statement will not be long delayed."

Reports that the Reichstag was called coincided with sudden cancellation of an opera performance at the Kroll Opera House, where the Reichstag meets.

DEC 10 1941

The Kroll Opera is the place where the Reichstag meets but such few occasions as Reichsfuehrer Hitler calls the members together for a pronouncement of policy or notification of far-reaching action taken.

The state opera was bombed April 10 and has not yet been completely rebuilt.

Newspaper correspondents who had been invited either to this noon's dress rehearsal or tomorrow night's scheduled premiere of the Italian opera "Qarsa Amorosa" in the Kroll Opera were advised by telegraph that both performances had been postponed.

Reichstag May Meet Tomorrow to Hear Stand on New War

Kroll Opera House Performance Is Canceled Suddenly

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—An authorized spokesman said today he was unable to state whether German-American relations would change within the next 24 hours, but well-informed sources said a "clarifying statement" on the American-Japanese war was expected soon.

"The situation has not changed," the spokesman said.

REPORT GERMANY TO DECLARE WAR

DEC 10 1941

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—An NBC broadcast from Stockholm, Sweden, predicted today that Germany would declare war on the United States within two hours. The broadcast was by David Andersen, NBC correspondent.

Andersen said reports were that the American embassy staff in Berlin had been removed from the German capital. American correspondents were said to be ready for hasty departure.

The official German spokesmen in Sweden were quoted as saying that the aggressor nation in the Pacific was the United States and that the Tri-Partite Pact binding Germany and Italy to help Japan in case of attack thus goes into effect.

Only Roosevelt Guilty: Berlin

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 9—A White House statement placing upon Germany responsibility for developments in the Far East was described as "immaterial" today by authorized German sources, who declared:

"Nothing can change the fact that there is only one aggressor in the world—namely, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The sources also dismissed as inconsequential the addresses yesterday by President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill in the light of the tremendous events which preceded them.

Australia, New Zealand Declare War on Japan

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 9.—Both Australia and New Zealand declared war on Japan today.

The Australian cabinet immediately after the formal declaration decided to mobilize more man power for the Army, but kept secret the number.

Sixteen hundred women are to be called up for the army and 500 for the air force to be assigned to auxiliary service along the lines established in Great Britain.

Wellington, N. Z., Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Government of New Zealand was advised today that the British islands of Nauru and Ocean, which were bombed yesterday, were bombed again today.

Nauru and Ocean islands belong to the Gilbert group and are about midway between Hawaii and the Philippines.

Spanish Newspaper Backs Japanese Against U. S.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 9.—The newspaper Arriba, organ of the Falange party, today backed Japan against the United States, saying Japan had "reached the limit of its endurance" and could no longer permit the "interference and opposition" of the United States.

DEC 10 1941

Although the newspaper Informaciones said yesterday Manila was "a fragment of the heart of Spain" and hoped it would be "preserved for Christianity," Arriba praised Japan.

"The ancient and renowned culture of the great eastern empire, its exceptional military virtues and human values are manifest in the first days of the struggle by the most important victories which place Japanese courage in the foreground of world admiration," it said.

PANAMA, Dec. 8 (Delayed)—Panama tonight declared war on Japan.

Jap War Is Ours: Rome

Rome, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Italian press today called Japan's war with the United States "also ours."

"Japan is at our side," said Corriere Della Sera. "We are beside it with all our soul, all our forces."

The official Stefani news agency and the newspapers published the U. S. Senate's vote on the war declaration as 82 to 10. (The vote was unanimous—82 to 0.)

Japanese-Russ Showdown

[By the Associated Press]

Kuibyshev, Dec. 9—Expiration of the Russian-Japanese fishing pact at the end of this month may bring the first clarification of relations between these two powers engaged in war with each others' allies.

Japan, allied with Germany and at war with the United States and Germany's enemy, Britain, who in turn ies fighting alongside Russia, still maintains her embassy at Kuibyshev.

The Far Eastern fisheries pact, which gave the Japanese the right to fish in Russian waters, expires December 31. Diplomats are waching to see whether the deadline will bring a renewal prolonging anomalous relations between the two countries or a break.

7 More Nations Fight In Second World War

9/12/41

By The Associated Press

World War II has far outstripped World War I in the number of nations involved.

Thirty-four countries have been drawn into this war, either in actual conflict or to the extent of a war declaration. In the last World War, when the international amenities were more universally observed, 27 nations declared war.

Principal changes in the line-up, however, are only three, perhaps four.

1. Italy has switched from the British-United States side to Germany's.
2. Japan likewise.
3. Turkey, a German ally before, is neutral now.
4. France, defeated, appears on the brink of coming in again to some extent to aid Germany, in which case she would be a nation divided, since Free France has joined Germany's enemies.

Leahy Notifies Vichy Of U. S. War With Japan

No Answer Given To Question Of Nippon's Use Of Indo-Chinese Bases For Attack

Vichy, Dec. 9 (AP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, United States Ambassador, formally notified the Vichy Government today of the state of war existing between the United States and Japan and the consequent new situation in the Pacific.

Authorized French circles declared that the question of Japanese use of Indo-Chinese bases for an attack against a third power had not been foreseen by the French-Japanese treaty of last July 29 permitting "protective" Japanese occupation of the country.

In response to a further question on the attitude of the French Government should Japan so use the bases, although the treaty made no provision for such use, the authorized source replied: "I am unable to answer that question."

Gen. Magruder and Chiang Map Far East Action

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, Dec. 9.—Brig. Gen. John Magruder, head of the United States Army mission in China, held a long conference tonight with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and a representative of the British forces to map joint action by the three powers in the Far East.

DEC 10 1941

Observers predicted the appointment of an Allied commander in chief in South China and said indications pointed strongly to intensified Chinese action, with large-scale attacks in spheres where the Allied interests were threatened.

Yesterday Gen. Chiang and his Foreign Minister, Quo Tai-chi, handed messages to representatives of the United States, Britain, Australia and Russia for transmission to the heads of those governments and Quo said afterward that China had decided to declare war against Japan, Germany and Italy.

Clarence E. Gauss, United States Ambassador, and Alexander Panivushkin, Soviet Ambassador, saw Gen. Chiang.

Warns of Underrating Japan

London "Daily Mail" Cites Failure to Size Up Nazis and Italy

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—"The Daily Mail" warned Americans and British today against underrating Japan.

"We made two psychological mistakes in this war,' 'it said. "We underestimated Germany. We overestimated Italy.

"Let us now try to size up Japan at her proper worth."

Tokio Papers Depict Hong Kong Raids

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO (Official Radio Pickup) Dec. 9.—Evening newspapers carried large photographs today showing Japanese planes over the British crown colony of Hong Kong and explosions and large fires below.

Nichi Nichi said Hong Kong was heavily raided three times Monday.

BRITAIN REMINDS FOES ABOUT GAS

London, Dec. 9 (AP)—Britain has informed Japan she will abide strictly by the terms of the poison gas protocol of the 1925 Geneva convention and has asked Japan's assurrances that she intends to do the same, it was disclosed authoritatively today.

British sources said similar messages also had been sent to the governments of Finland, Hungary and Rumania through neutral representatives.

DEC 10 1941

The Washington conference of 1922, in which Japan as well as Britain, the United States and several other powers participated, provided in a treaty for abolition of poison gas in warfare. The Geneva protocol of July 17, 1925, further extended the prohibition to all "bacteriological methods of warfare."

The prohibition against poisonous substances first was embodied in International Law in the Hague convention of 1907.

Hitler Reported Told Six Days Ago War Was Near

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet, as quoted by Exchange Telegraph here, reported today that Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese Ambassador to Germany, told Adolf Hitler six days ago war in the Pacific was imminent.

With a German decision concerning the Pacific war apparently imminent, the report quoted Berlin diplomatic sources as expecting it to hasten French-German negotiations, particularly over French Indo-China and Dakar.

200 Japanese Seized in India

New Delhi, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—A roundup of seized Japanese in India netted fewer than 200 today, most of them having left after Britain's credit freezing.

One of those placed in a detention camp was a Japanese monk, Kesho Tenzaki, a disciple of Mohandas K. Gandhi, who had lived near Wardha for the last four years.

Pro-Japanese Parade in Rome

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP).—Several score schoolboys paraded in the streets with Italian flags today in a demonstration of friendship toward Japan in her war with the United States.

ARGENTINA OPENS PORTS TO U. S. SHIPS

War Vessel Bases Granted, But Nation Declares Neutrality Toward Japan

Several Other Latin-American Nations, However, Have Proclaimed War

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Dec. 9—Argentina tonight granted the use of port facilities to United States warships as her contribution to hemispheric solidarity against Japan but declared for neutrality toward both Japan and Great Britain and maintained diplomatic relations with Tokyo.

DEC 10 1941

While other Latin American republics rallied against Japan with declarations of war, by breaking off relations with Tokyo and by other manifestations of cooperation, Argentine decreed that the United States was a non-belligerent.

U. S. Warships Can Use Ports

This is the device by which American warships will be permitted to put into Argentine ports without time limit and for any purpose.

The maintenance of diplomatic relations with Japan would be carried out by a new Ambassador now trying to reach Tokyo across the Pacific.

The Argentine Ambassador also planned to represent Great Britain in Tokyo at the request of the London Government, a customary procedure in diplomacy during wartime.

Conforms To Accord

The classification of the United States as a non-belligerent conforms with Pan-American agreements for hemispheric cooperation in case of aggression against any of the twenty-one republics and the declaration of neutrality toward warring Britain and Japan is an extension of Acting President Ramon Castillo's oft-repeated: "Neutrality toward all."

Castillo telegraphed to President Roosevelt Argentina's pledge of "reciprocal assistance and defensive cooperation."

DEC 10 1941

Then he said:

"On communicating to you the official position of this Government thus assumes within the interest and sentiments common to all America in the face of unjustified and lamentable aggression, I am especially glad to present to your Excellency the friendly wishes of the Argentine Government and people."

Aid Short Of War

The tenor of the Argentine action and the indications elsewhere were that the larger republics were offering aid short of war for offensive action undertaken by the United States and pledging to defend themselves.

Both Chile and Uruguay notified the United States they would regard her as a non-belligerent, and Uruguay froze Japanese funds. Foreign Minister Alberto Guani of Uruguay expressed belief the conference of American Foreign Minister would probably be held in Rio de Janeiro late in December.

Several Declare War

Smaller nations—including Central America en bloc—have made forthright declarations of war on Japan, and such republics as Mexico and Colombia have broken off relations with Tokyo.

While the Argentine Cabinet was reaching its formal decision to cooperate, large numbers of Argentines called at the United States Embassy throughout the day requesting permision to enlist with the United States forces in the fight against Japan.

They were thanked but sent away with the explanation that only citizens of the United States were eligible for army service.

No Other Measures

Asked whether any other measures would be taken as a result of the United States' entry into war, Castillo replied in the negative.

"All questions linked in the Pan-American defense will be considered at the forthcoming meeting of the American Foreign Ministers as provided by the Havana accord," Castillo said.

The general picture of Latin America was this:

President Getulio Vargas of Brazil decreed a virtual freezing of Axis nationals' bank accounts. Although the decree gave the Bank of Brazil control of financial operations of citizens of all non-American warring countries, arrangements probably will be made to take care of powers associated with the United States.

DEC 10 1941

Caffrey Gives Importance

Jefferson Caffrey, United States Ambassador, said importance of the step "could not be overestimated."

Guatemala took similar steps, freezing Japanese bank deposits, after its assembly declared war on Japan to the accompaniment of many "vivas" for the United States and President Roosevelt. Peru already had frozen Japanese funds, and Bolivia was considering like action.

Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia and Uruguay joined in the Chilean proposal to call a conference of the foreign ministers of all twenty-one American republics to formulate a common policy toward Japan. The meeting is expected to be held within ten days at Santiago or Rio de Janeiro.

Uruguay Action Heard

A group of important deputies at Montevideo, Uruguay, prepared to submit a resolution to Congress declaring war on Japan, and thus go the full way of seven other Latin-American nations—Costa Rica, Haiti, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Guatemala and Panama.

Thousands of Cubans gathered outside the residence of George S. Messersmith, United States Ambassador in Havana, and cheered wildly as Cuban Congressmen prepared to vote on a war declaration. Jesus M. Marinas Pando, described by police as the Cuban "Hitler," was sentenced to prison for two years for activities against the Government.

In Mexico City 50,000 workers paraded in the streets carrying placards saying "the future of Mexico is with the United States and Latin America." The Mexican press published unconfirmed reports that the United States had offered Mexico several hundred planes.

Police Reserves

All police reserves in the Brazilian State of Sao Paulo, south of Rio de Janeiro, were ordered to duty. The State contains most of Brazil's 170,000 Japanese residents.

The Colombian Government was reliably reported to have posted guards over the Japanese agricultural settlements of Corinto and Santa Clara in the Cauca Valley near Cali. Road chains were placed outside every Colombian community, and all cars halted for examination.

Panama police, assisted by United States soldiers, rounded up Germans and Italians and crowded them into army trucks.

Tin And Tungsten Mines

The Bolivian Minister of Interior, declaring he had evidence that attempted strikes and sabotage in the country's tin and tungsten mines, vital to hemisphere defense, were linked with totalitarian agitators, asserted that the Government was determined to stamp out such activities.

Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, Argentine Foreign Minister, and Gen. Juan Tonazzi, War Minister, decided at a conference to enlarge the activities of the Argentine military and naval purchasing mission in the United States.

LATIN COUNTRIES ALIGNED WITH U. S.

Chile Proposes Confab of Hemisphere Nations to Draft Common Policy

Buenos Aires, Dec. 9 (AP)—Diplomatic, military and legislative activities among Pan American republics indicated a progressive alignment with the United States today in the war against Japan.

Chile announced the United States had accepted her suggestion for a conference of all 21 American foreign ministers to formulate a common policy toward Japan, and Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil seconded the idea.

Panama, through which runs the strategic Canal Zone, declared war upon Japan, following the lead of a half-dozen other nations in a movement started by Costa Rica.

The Dominican Republic's congress authorized such a declaration.

Cuban Congress Meets

The Cuban congress gathered today to authorize a declaration of war against Japan and consider the case of Germany and Italy, her allies.

Mexico and Colombia broke off diplomatic relations with Japan.

Moreover, Chile and Mexico ordered naval patrols to operate off their Pacific Coasts. The Chilean fleet also is to protect the straits of Magellan, where German raiders sheltered at intervals during the World War.

Neutral Argentina announced a resolution to declare the United States a non-belligerent would be considered by the cabinet today. Approval of this measure would permit United States ships to use Argentine ports in the war against Japan.

Uruguay, Colombia and apparently Brazil were ready to extend the same facilities and Uruguay announced that the privilege would be granted the fleets of "any other nation, American or European," joining the United States in "the defense against aggression."

Peru froze Japanese funds and proclaimed solidarity with the United States.

Brazil took over twelve Italian ships in her ports and Colombia two Italian tankers.

A Japanese merchant ship was reported in Mexico City to have arrived at Manzanillo, on Mexico's west coast, to embark Japanese nationals who wish to return home.

U. S. Envoy Confers in Ecuador.

Quito, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—President Carlos Arroyo del Rio was disclosed today to have held a long conference last night with the American Minister, Boaz Long. There was no announcement of the subject of the conversation in the presidential office.

The Japanese Minister was received by the Foreign Minister for a ten-minute interview today.

Ecuador is important in the scheme of hemisphere defense because her Galapagos Islands, 735 miles off Panama, are regarded as a strategic outpost for the Pacific defenses of the Panama Canal.

Call Pan-American Meeting

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay have joined in a Chilean proposal to call a conference of American foreign ministers to formulate a common policy toward Japan, it was announced today.

The meeting was expected to be held within the next ten days either here or at Rio de Janeiro.

Brazil Takes Precautions

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 9 (AP)—All police reserves were ordered to duty immediately today in Sao Paulo State, which contains the greater part of Brazil's 170,000 Japanese residents.

QUITS AS JAP CONSUL

MANAOS, Brazil, Dec. 9 (AP)—Almiro Pereira, Brazilian serving as honorary Japanese consul here, quit today "because my patriotism demands it."

Argentina Will Act For Britain in Japan

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 9.—Argentina today accepted a British request that the Argentine Embassy in Tokio take care of British interests in Japan.

DEC 10 1941

At the same time the Argentine government asked the United States to allow its new Ambassador to Tokio, Alberto Candioti, who now is in San Francisco, to accompany Japanese diplomats in the United States when they are repatriated.

Brazil Freezes Funds In Decree Aimed at Axis

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 9 (AP).—President Getulio Vargas issued a decree today placing the financial operations of citizens of all non-American warring countries under the control of the Bank of Brazil.

The measures are tantamount to freezing the bank accounts of all such nationals, it was explained.

Technically, Britain and other nations aligned with the United States are affected, but no secret was made of the fact that the decree was aimed at the axis powers, and an informed source said United States allies would "be taken care of later."

The decree was effective even before its publication and banks were jammed this morning by Axis nationals seeking vainly to withdraw their funds.

United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery said it was a political and economic step whose importance "could not be overestimated."

REDS DRIVE NAZIS OUT OF TIKHVIN

Important Rail Center East Of Leningrad Recaptured After Ten Days of Fighting

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Dec. 10 (AP)—Red armies have blasted the Germans out of Tikhvin, important rail center 110 miles east of Leningrad, in a 10-day battle that cost the Nazis 7,000 killed, the Moscow radio announced today in a special communique.

DEC 10 1941

The announcement said recapture of the town yesterday smashed a Nazi effort to cut the last rail communication to Leningrad.

"Our troops under command of General Merezkoff succeeded in beating decisively the troops of General Schmidt," it added.

The regular communique said 1,400 Germans were annihilated in fierce fighting on the Kalinin sector, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, where the Red army reoccupied seven villages.

In the Tula sector, 120 miles south of Moscow, Soviet forces also recaptured a number of villages, wiped out more than 600 Germans and captured 15 tanks, two armored cars, and 40 motor vehicles, it said.

FURIOUS FIGHTING

Tikhvin is on a spur railroad connecting with the line running to Archanger, far northern port of entry from United States lend-lease supplies.

The Soviet announcement said Red armies put to rout the German 12th Tank Division and the 18th and 61st Motorized Divisions, among others, inflicting enormous losses upon all of them. . . . . .

The Nazis, commanded by a Col. Schmidt, captured Tikhvin several weeks ago in a sweep past besieged Leningrad.

Elsewhere, the midnight communique said fighting raged on up and down the snow-encrusted Eastern Front.

Nazi Losses in War Put at 6,000,000 By Russians

15,000 Tanks, 13,000 Aircraft and 10,000 Guns Also Claimed

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Dec. 9.—Pravda, Communist Party organ, today estimated the Germans had lost approximately 6,000,000 men in killed, wounded and captured during the first five months of fighting in Russia.

Pravda, the Moscow radio said, also estimated that the Germans had lost more than 15,000 tanks, about 13,000 aircraft and 19,000 guns.

D.N.B., official German news agency, said last night that nearly 10,000,000 Soviet troops had been "put out of action" since Germany invaded Russia last June.)

DEC 10 1941

Red Army troops attacking in temperatures as low as 17 degrees below zero have forced the Germans from several localities before Moscow and cost them heavy casualties Soviet government agencies announced meanwhile.

Pravda said the Germans had been pressed back with heavy losses in sectors of the important Tula front, 100 miles south of Moscow.

The snow and biting air drew wry comment from Russians.

"Wait, this is nothing," a Moscow radio announcer said.

(A Berlin military spokesman said yesterday that winter conditions—including cold so intense that it froze motor oil—would limit further German operations in Russia until spring, including the two-month-old offensive against the capital.

(A sizable Axis force has been bottled up at Taganrog in the Soviet southern counter offensive, one Russian report to London declared, while the main retreat of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist swept on beyond Mariupol, 60 miles to the west.

(A fresh German unit which hurried into the Donets Basin to cover the withdrawal and attack the Russian right flank was said to have been forced to pull out also.

(The Russians, acclimatized, were reported to have maintained the initiative in the Baltic as well, severing German communication lines at Tikhvin, east of Leningrad.)

The Soviet Information Bureau announced that a 4,000-ton Axis transport had been sunk in the Black Sea.

Russian airmen were declared to have knocked 128 German tanks and 940 trucks out of action and dispersed or destroyed more than three regiments of infantry Sunday.

30. 24— 13427. 30. R4 — 13R27

Berlin, Wednesday, Dec. 10—Authorized Nazi sources who could be reached early today said nothing is known here of the Russian report of the recapture of Tikhvin, communications center 110 miles east of Leningrad.

Nazi News From Russian Front Hits New Low

By Edwin Shanke

Berlin, Dec. 9 (AP)—German news from the Russian front was the scarcest today since the Nazi armies marched into the Soviet Union almost six months ago.

DEC 10 1941

The high command dismissed the winter-bound front with the words, "Only local combat activity."

"This does not mean suspension of hostilities or trench warfare of the World War type," a German military spokesman said. "The battle goes on, but it is conditioned by the Russian winter."

However, the commentary service Dienst Aus Deutschland expressed the opinion that—insofar as Germans were concerned—there was little likelihood of large-scale combat during the winter. It foresaw "tactical fighting aimed at straightening front lines and obtaining more favorable local positions."

6 to 9 Inches of Snow Reported in Moscow

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—British sources, explaining in part what the Germans meant yesterday by oil-congealing cold on the Russian front, gave these statistics today:

In Moscow—six to nine inches of snow and a temperature of 4 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

At Pezza, between Moscow and Kuibyshev—minus 30 degrees.

'Only Local Fighting,' Germans Report

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (AP).—The German high command in its regular communique today said there was only local fighting on the Eastern front.

Finns Claim Lake Town

[By the Associated Press]

Helsinki, Finland, Dec. 9—Finnish headquarters today announced the capture of the village of Pigmatka on the northeast shore of Lake Onega, about twenty-five miles south of the city of Povenets.

The capture was reported effected by Finnish speedboats.

Povents, which the Finns announced yesterday that they had captured, was reported partly covered with water as a result of the opening of locks of the Stalin canal by the Russians.

BRITISH CAPTURE POINT 10 MILES FROM TOBRUK

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP)—British troops were reported today to have captured a point west of Ed Duda, freeing the Tobruk garrison from attacks on the eastern side of the defense perimeter.

DEC 10 1941

The exact location or name of the point was not given, but the British communique's general description would place it about 10 miles south of Tobruk. The Germans counter-attacked in an attempt to retake the position but were repelled, it was said.

British mobile columns struck at German communication lines leading westward from the Tobruk area but found the Germans reluctant to engage them, it was stated.

In the area between Tobruk and Bir el Gobi, there was some westward movement of German forces, a communique said, and added it was "possibly an endeavor by the enemy to gain some temporary respite from incessant attacks of our mobile columns."

The Germans were pictured as re-grouping their forces for a resumption of heavy fighting. British sources emphasized that their objective was to crush the Axis forces.

British Mop Up In Bardia Area

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 9—Gen. Erwin Rommel was reported to be regrouping his battered German forces today for a resumption of heavy fighting in Libya after withdrawing westward to a line extending South from Tobruk through El Adem and Bir el Gobi.

British mechanized forces and infantry were reported to be still cleaning up pockets of Germans resistance along the Libyan coast in the vicinity of Bardia.

About 4,000 Italian troops also were believed to be trapped along the coast.

New Phase of Battle.

London, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—British sources, emphasizing that the British objective in north Africa is destruction of Axis forces, declared today that the imperial army was getting to the end of the second phase of the battle of Libya.

"It is not possible to say the German armored forces have been entirely dealt with," this informant said, but he asserted that German tanks had been hammered heavily and had withdrawn.

Axis Smashes At Tobruk

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 9—The Italian high command announced today that violent fighting was taking place around the British-held Libyan port of Tobruk.

The daily war bulletin also reported bitter aerial exchanges, in which German planes were said to have damaged a British cruiser off the Libyan coast and British bombers attacked various Axis bases, including Bengasi.

In dogfights attending the aerial operations ten British planes were shot down by German and Italian fighters, said the communique, which also acknowledged the loss of five Italian aircraft.

BRITAIN AWAITS AERIAL ONSLAUGHT

London, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Britain was tightening her air raid defenses tonight on the theory that Germany, having announced a halt on the eastern front, may switch her air forces back to the west.

Some observers expected that large-scale German raids on Britain would be renewed before Christmas.

Nazis Claim Ship Sinkings

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 9—The German air force sank a destroyer and four merchant ships totalling 14,000 tons yesterday in an attack on a convoy east of Dundee, Scotland, the high command said today.

Night raiders, some of them at low altitude, pounded the British shipbuilding port of Newcastle and caused heavy explosions and widespread fires along the waterfront, the communique declared.

It said the British lost twelve planes on the channel front yesterday and six in air battles in North Africa.

Harbor facilities and air bases on Malta, Britain's Mediterranean island stronghold, also were said to have been attacked by air.

57 Casualties at Calais.

PARIS, Occupied France, Dec. 9. (AP).—R. A. F. raiders killed 37 persons and injured 20 at Calais early yesterday, it was announced here last night.

Americans Fighting for Britain Want to See Action in Pacific

First Eagle Squadron Retaliates for Jap Raids With Solid Smash Against Nazi Areas

DEC 10 1941

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Scores of young American pilots and other fighting men who joined the British forces to get action now want to fight Japan on the big battlefront on the other side of the world.

The first American Eagle Squadron retaliated for Japanese air bombing in the Pacific yesterday with a solid smash against Germany in occupied France.

"I never saw the Eagles so hopped up and full of fight in my life," one pilot said. "Every one was fighting mad and figured if he couldn't smack the Japs he'd do the next best thing and sock the Germans.

Ten planes were lost in R. A. F. sweeps yesterday, but none was an Eagle. The Eagle Squadron failed to encounter any German planes in the air, but wrecked two Messerschmitts on the ground.

Britain now seems like the sidelines to Americans fighting here, with the main show switched to the Pacific.

15,000 In British Isles.

It was estimated that 15,000 Americans are in British uniform in the British Isles while another 15,000 are in the British forces on the other fronts or training throughout the empire.

First Squadron Worried.

The first Eagle squadron was worried. Its members signed up for the duration and perfected their fighting technique as a unit.

They say no matter what happens they want to stay together and wondered if they could transfer to the United States as a group.

Pilot Officer Hubert Layton of Raleigh, N. C., declared that in any circumstances the Eagles won't split up, but "we'd sure like to do some fighting in the Middle East or the Far East where the weather is better and action is more frequent."

Squadron Leader Chesley Gordon Peterson commented that "my boys are in a fever since the Japanese fracas. They are champing at the bit to get a crack at the Japs."

EIRE NO BATTLEFIELD

DUBLIN, Dec. 9 (AP)—Frank Aiken, Eire's defense coordinator, declared in an appeal tonight for more enlistments, "the world is big enough for the war to be fought out without using Eire as a battleground."

The American Embassy was besieged from Americans eager to get back home and fight in an American uniform.

British and American officials made no announcement while they ironed out red tape, but it seemed likely many Americans will get their wish to transfer to their own country's forces. R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. officials were reported in consultation concerning it.

Many Americans who joined the civilian technical corps because they wanted excitement now feel they can get more excitement in United States uniforms.

Some men in the bomber ferry service are Reserve officers in the United States air force under stipulation to return to the United States service if called.

For instance, Bob Pierce of Dallas, Tex., said:

"Man, I want to get home and fight for Uncle Sam directly."

Italy Reports 2,708 November Casualties

Army Dead Given As 345 In Africa, 160 In Russia, 215 In Greece And Yugoslavia

Rome, Dec. 9 (AP)—Italian army, navy and air-force casualties in November totaled 2,708 in all fronts in November, an official announcement said tonight.

These were given as 866 killed, 946 wounded and 896 missing, divided as follows:

Army: 345 killed, 254 wounded and 273 missing in North Africa; 160 killed, 379 wounded and 27 missing in Russia, and 215 died of wounds sustained in Greece and Yugoslavia.

Navy: 89 killed, 178 wounded, 539 missing.

DEC 10 1941

Air force: 51 killed, 62 wounded, 39 missing.

VICHY PUTS BLAME ON PARACHUTISTS

Lays Some Attacks on Nazis to Foreign Agents.

Vichy, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Parachutists were blamed today for some of the attacks made on German officers in the occupied areas of France, and death was decreed for them in new sweeping measures designed to end such attacks.

The decrees, issued by Vice-Premier Darlan's office, also contained severe measures against Jews.

A statement issued by the Vice-Premier's office listed the authors of the growing attacks on German occupation authorities as "foreign parachutists, gangsters of the former Spanish Cheka (the erstwhile Loyalist secret police), Jews and communists."

[The parachutists presumably are foreign agents landed in occupied France in civilian clothes, and not uniformed parachute troopers.]

All Jews who arrived in France after January 1, 1936, and have no visible means of support, were ordered sent immediately to work camps. For the same category of Jews with means, the Government decided on immediate grouping in Government-controlled residence centers where they would contribute from their own resources on a pro-rata basis to the support of other Jews.

The statement said that 12,850 communists had been arrested within the past six weeks and that the round-ups were continuing. Among these were said to have been 1,850 seized since the start of a new campaign in the past few days.

Death Asked for Plot on Duce

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP).—The death penalty was demanded by the Fascist prosecutor today for twenty of the sixty alleged Communistic pro-Yugoslav separatist spies and terrorists on trial at Trieste, accused of attempting to assassinate Premier Mussolini and of responsibility for war industry sabotage that cost hundreds of Italian lives

GERMAN OFFICER STABBED

POPE LAMENTS SPREAD OF WAR

Vatican City, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII, addressing 8,000 Italians on a pilgrimage to Rome, declared today that "nobody can foresee the end of this terrible war, already long protracted and growing still more vast."

The pilgrims came here for the beatification of Marchessa Maddalena di Canossa yesterday.

King of Rumania Received by Pope

Vatican City, Dec. 9 (A. P.),—King Michael of Rumania and his mother, Queen Helen, visited the Vatican Museum today following a private audience with Pope Pius XII on their arrival from Florence on a sight-seeing trip yesterday.

Canada Plans New $500,000,000 Loan

Ottawa, Dec. 9 (AP)—Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley announced today the Canadian Government's decision to offer for public subscription a new war loan of about $500,000,000 in February. It will be Canada's third loan since war started.

The Finance Minister told a press conference that "the extension of the war to the Pacific must necessarily increase the difficulties of the situation confronting this country.

"With the opening up of the new war zone there comes a corresponding increase in our financial requirements."

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 9 (AP)—A British communiqué said today:

The Japanese have engaged considerable numbers of aircraft in an endeavor to gain a measure of air superiority in Northern Malaya to enable them to cover a landing in Southern Thailand.

They continue efforts to obtain control of Kota Bharu airdrome.

Air reconnaissance yesterday established that twenty-five enemy transports were proceeding down the coast of Southern Thailand, escorted by warships, apparently preparing to land additional troops in the Singora, Patani and Kota Bharu areas.

Thus all transports located during the reconnaissance Dec. 6-7 now apparently are engaged in these landings in the Kra Isthmus and Northeastern Malaya.

So far there is no information regarding further support for these forces, and the condition of the ground in the Singora area is such that advances, if attempted, probably will have to be restricted to the few roads which are available.

Fighting in the Kota Bharu area has been severe, and although by noon yesterday a large measure of control had been achieved by our forces in this area, further landings took place in the afternoon and heavy fighting for the control of the airdrome took place yesterday in the evening and continued throughout the night.

Thus the situation in this area still is confused, but reinforcements should reach there during the day.

Although air-raid warnings sounded at Singapore and Kuala Lumpur both yesterday morning and last night, activities were mainly by reconnaissance aircraft and at present there are no reports of bombs having been dropped.

Information received from the commanding general in the Philippines, from Australia and from the Netherlands East Indies is that prearranged reinforcement and reconnaissance plans have been fully implemented. The fullest cooperation between the powers in the Far East has been manifested in these two days of conflict.

It is yet too early to attempt to forecast what the Japanese main plan is, but there are indications that, following the collapse of resistance in Thailand and the heavy scale of Japanese air effort from bases in Indo-China, they are prepared to engage considerable forces in an attempt to obtain control of Northern Malaya.

This move always had been foreseen to be a likely one and dispositions of our forces before the outbreak of the war were designed to meet it.

HONG KONG, Dec. 9 (AP)—A British communiqué said today:

It has been a quiet night and there is nothing special to report.

In accordance with the defense plan, contact has been maintained with the enemy in the neighborhood of Taipo and along Castle Peak Road and there has been patrol activity on both sides.

A Chinese company of sappers has so far taken a leading part in operations and continues to perform its duties admirably.

By means of a Bren carrier patrol we engineered a highly successful ambush of a Japanese pla on, which was practically annihilated on Castle Peak Road on the western coast of the mainland.

On one occasion Monday a Japanese scout was observed to be signaling from what he apparently took to be a natural mound. In reality it was one of our concealed mines, which was immediately touched off. The signaler vanished.

The night communiqué of the Hong Kong defense forces said:

[illegible] of the [illegible]land are being successfully maintained. Artillery fire brought enemy parties to an abrupt halt.

Desultory air raids occurred during the day, but there were no serious casualties. At least one enemy plane was badly crippled.

Air attacks were made on British warships, which retaliated with gunfire, beating off the attackers. No ships were hit.

There were no raids in the afternoon and no significant hits registered during the morning. Many bombs fell harmlessly in the water.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP)—The following was issued today by British Middle East Headquarters:

Yesterday our mobile columns of all arms were particularly active, harassing and inflicting casualties on enemy bodies wherever found.

Their range of action continues to extend well to the west of Bir el-Gobi and even farther toward enemy lines of communication westward from Tobruk. This activity was reflected in the reluctance of the enemy to engage our forces yesterday.

In the main area between Tobruk and Bir el-Gobi there was some westerly movement of the enemy, but neither the scale nor degree of this movement seemed more than local and it was possibly an endeavor by the enemy to gain some temporary respite from the incessant attacks of our mobile columns.

At Tobruk itself operations against enemy centers of resistance referred to yesterday resulted in capture and consolidation of a point a few miles west of Ed Duda despite considerable opposition. An attempted advance in this area by about 2,000 enemy infantry and a few tanks was countered by our artillery.

In the frontier area there was no change of importance to report, our pressure on the isolated enemy there being maintained.

Yesterday we announced the destruction of seven enemy tanks and damaging of three others in action west of Bir el-Gobi. Later reports show that actual results of this action were that 27 enemy tanks received direct hits. Of these, 5 were completely destroyed and 8 will probably not come into action again.

Our air forces again attacked enemy ground forces over a wide area.

The R. A. F. Middle East Command issued the following communiqué:

Fighter aircraft made a series of low-flying attacks on traffic moving along the Barce-Derna, Agedabia-El Agheila and Maraua-Afaidia roads, damaging many lorries and other vehicles. Aircraft on the landing ground at Agedabia were hit by machine-gun fire. In combats over the battle area one Macchi-200 and one ME-109 were destroyed.

During the night of Dec. 7 the airdrome at Castel Benito and objectives at Tripoli were raided by our bombers. At Castel Benito a hangar was set on fire. From these and other operations three of our aircraft are missing.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—A joint communiqué of the Air and Home Security Ministries said today:

Last night a small number of enemy aircraft flew over coastal districts of Northeast England, where bombs were dropped at a number of places.

There were some casualties, and damage, which was nowhere extensive, was caused mainly to houses.

DEC 10 1941

A British Air Ministry communiqué today said:

Hudson and Beaufort aircraft of the Coastal Command this afternoon attacked a large enemy supply ship escorted by a patrol vessel off the Dutch coast. The [illegible] hit and left on fire.

Off the Norwegian coast another supply ship was bombed by Hudson aircraft.

Aircraft of the Fighter Command, on offensive patrol over Northern France, attacked and severely damaged a factory.

One aircraft of the Coastal Command is missing from these operations.

Japanese

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—A Japanese Imperial Headquarters communiqué, as reported to Reuter from Vichy, France, said today:

At dawn of Dec. 8 Japanese troops occupied the foreign concessions [in China] and seized the property of nationals belonging to countries hostile to Japan.

They entered the British concessions at Tientsin and Chinwangtao without meeting any resistance.

By midday occupation of the International Concession at Shanghai and all the British concessions in South China had been effected.

Russian

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Dec. 10 (Distributed by The Associated Press)—The Moscow radio broadcast this communiqué today:

During Dec. 9 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

Six German aircraft were destroyed yesterday. We lost three.

In a number of sectors on the central front our troops, in spite of stubborn resistance of the enemy, are advancing and have occupied several villages.

On a number of sectors of the western and southwestern fronts our units overcame stubborn enemy resistance, moved forward and occupied a number of inhabited points.

On Dec. 8 one of our air units damaged or destroyed four German tanks, two armored cars, seventy motor vehicles with ammunition and anti-aircraft guns, thirty wagons with other munitions and scattered or wiped out more than two companies of enemy infantry.

DEC 10 1941

Commander Zakharin's units, operating on one of the sectors in the Tula direction, drove the Germans out of a number of villages.

In the course of one day our men captured fifteen German tanks, two armored cars, forty motor vehicles and wiped out more than 600 officers and men.

One of our units operating on the Kalinin sector of the front, as a result of fierce fighting, drove the Germans out of seven villages and annihilated 1,400 enemy officers and men.

The Moscow radio broadcast the following special communiqué today:

Ten days ago German troops under command of General Schmidt occupied the town of Tikhvin and the surrounding district.

The Germans aimed at cutting communications between Leningrad and neighboring Volkovsk and thus to bring our troops in Leningrad to a critical position.

For ten days heavy fighting raged about Tikhvin with changing success.

Yesterday, Dec. 9, our troops under command of General Merezkoff succeeded in beating decisively the troops of General Schmidt and recapturing the town of Tikhvin.

In the fighting about Tikhvin the Twelfth Tank Division, the Eighteenth Motorized Division and the Sixty-first Infantry Division of the enemy were destroyed. The Germans left more than 7,000 killed on the battlefield.

The remainder of these divisions have put on peasant clothing and thrown away their equipment and are trying to escape through the woods.

Our booty is great and is being c[illegible]

German

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (AP)—The following communiqué was issued today:

On the East Front there were local combat activities only.

In the fight against British supply shipping the German Air Force yesterday sank one destroyer and four merchant ships totaling 14,000 tons in a convoy east of Dundee.

Combat planes last night bombed the important shipbuilding center of Newcastle.

Big explosions and spreading fires among docks, supply facilities and industries of the city gave evidence of the success of this attack, made in part from low altitudes.

German chasers downed ten enemy planes along the Channel coast yesterday. Naval artillery bagged two more.

Fighting continues in North Africa. German chasers downed six British planes in air fights.

The night before last port facilities and airports on Malta were bombed by German combat planes.

Finnish

DEC 10 1941

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Finnish High Command issued this communiqué today:

Karelian Isthmus — Scattered enemy trench mortar and artillery harassing fire. Enemy patrol and reconnaisance sallies repulsed. Infantry fire the other night at times rose to a fierce pitch with contributing artillery fire. Our artillery and trench mortars shelled mobile enemy units.

Svir River Front—Mild artillery and trench mortar fire along the whole front. Weak enemy attacks repulsed. Our artillery silenced one enemy battery, three trench motars and one anti-tank gun.

East Front—Attacking across the Great Bay our troops captured the village of Pigmatka on the northeast shore of Lake Onega. In the Povenets sector the enemy opened the locks of the Stalin Canal below Voljaervi and flooded the eastern part of the city of Povenets.

North Sectors—Situation unchanged.

At Sea—There were numerous mine explosions in the Eastern Gulf of Finland. Continuous, powerful explosions were heard in the area south of Ino and Seivasto and in the direction of Seiskeri.

Air—A snowstorm yesterday prevented activity. The weather having cleared later, our air force continued to bomb and machine-gun jammed enemy troops concentrations and columns retreating southeast from Povenets.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Italian High Command issued this communiqué today:

Fierce fighting is under way on the Tobruk front between Axis forces and enemy infantry supported by tanks.

In the encounters that took place yesterday in the Bir el-Gobi area several enemy tanks and motor trucks were destroyed by our mechanized units.

On the Solum front there has been intense British artillery against our strongholds.

Enemy concentrations of mechanized units in the Bir el-Gobi zone and port installations at Tobruk were repeatedly attacked with visible effect by the Italian and German air forces.

In air combats against numerically superior enemy formations 10 planes were shot down by Italian fighters and four by German fighters. Five Italian planes did not return.

The British air force carried out raids on several localities in Libya. At Bengazi the Arab quarter was hit and several houses were destroyed. Elsewhere the damage was not serious.

Off the Libyan coast to the north of Gambut German dive bombers attacked two enemy cruisers, one of which was seriously hit.

'PHONY' AIR RAID ALARMS PUT ALL EAST ON ALERT

DEC 10 1941

Tip Results In Scares To New York, Boston; Blackouts Spreading

Attack Still is Possible On West Coast, Says Army As Planes, Ships Hunt Enemy

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—The heavily-industrialized Eastern Seaboard from New York to Boston experienced its first air raid warnings of the war today and for more than two hours there were all the earmarks of a prelude of hostile attack, but later the alarms appeared to be the outgrowth of a misunderstanding.

Somehow a report gained cur-

30.24—13429

rency that an attacking force was swooping down the New England coast headed for the nation's largest city. The report reached Mitchel Field, Long Island, air base for the first Army air force, in such a manner as to seem "authentic and credible" to the commanding officer and an interception was ordered.

DEC 10 1941

The result was that the man in the street saw and heard plenty to make him believe it was the real thing. It resulted, too, in a test of warning and civilian defense organizations which high Army and Air Force officials later agreed was "a good thing."

The Stock Market, always quick to react to news of major importance, suffered its worst slump since the collapse of France in May, 1940, as a result of the alarms and the war.

Mitchel Field sent all its planes into the air. Navy patrols soared along the coast. Fire and police sirens screamed. Civilian defense volunteers and plane spotters manned their posts.

More than a million school children in New York city and thousands on Long Island and along the seaboard, were dismissed from their classes.

Boston was "alerted" for more than an hour. The huge military and naval establishments at New London, Conn., took precautions. Throughout the northeast tens of thousands of civilian employes were rushed out of vital defense factories and Army and Navy centers.

From available information, it appeared that this was what happened:

A man, who identified himself, telephoned first Army headquarters at Governor's Island, N. Y., to report hearing a Washington broadcast that bombers had been reported. He wanted to know if it was true. The Army asked the New York office of the Associated Press about it, but the report could not be verified there.

A War Department spokesman in Washington told the Associated Press that the planes had not been reported. In the meantime, a Governor's Island official telephoned the inquiry to Mitchel Field where it seemed to have been misunderstood as a War Department warning.

Mitchel Field took no chances and planes went into the air.

Maj. Gen. Herbert A. Dargue, commanding the first air force at Mitchel Field, said "definitely no planes" were detected and explained that what had looked authentic turned out to be a mere test.

General Dargue emphasized that should a similar set of circumstances develop again, the precautions would have to be repeated.

In Boston, however, Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, commanding the first corps area, suggested that United States planes, not identified as such, might have been reported, adding "that would have been a very probable source of the report."

"Whatever it was," General Wilby continued, "I don't think it did any harm. It did a lot of good so far as the Army is concerned. We took all the precautions we would have taken if it were an actual attack."

General Dargue declared: "It worked so well from a military standpoint that there was no confusion, everything was orderly, planes went aloft, all men were fully equipped and armed."

New York had two alarms, the first at 1:30 p. m. (E.S.T.) seventeen minutes later the all clear came. Then at 2:04 p. m., a second warning went off with an all-clear at 2:50 p. m.

The families of fliers and enlisted personnel at Mitchel Field were ordered to evacuate their homes bordering on the airport and soldiers donned full field equipment to man the field's protective defense. Anti-aircraft batteries at the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn were made ready.

In chilly, overcast weather—there was a slight snow flurry in New York for awhile—thousands in the densely populated area for the most part took the business calmly and in a manner which bespoke a feeling of incredulity.

The first sandbag protection appeared in East Fifty-second street where a restaurant proprietor barricaded the front of his place.

During both alarms radio stations continually warned persons to remain calm and to stay at home.

Tonight, the sprawling buildings of Bellevue Hospital on the East River were virtually blacked out.

At Washington, the capitol building's great flood-lights were ordered blacked out for the duration of the war. The lights have been used for years to illuminate the exterior of the big structure.

Clock Blacked Out

In Jersey City, the clock overlooking the Hudson River from atop the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company's plant, known as the Big Ben of the New York waterfront, was blacked out for the first time in 35 years.

At Key West, Fla., the nation's southernmost naval base and other federal reservations were blacked out, and a 24-hour watch was ordered over part of the overseas highway linking the islands with the Florida mainland.

In Montreal, Trans-Canada Airline officials tonight suspended all flights east of Montreal and from Toronto to New York "because of the necessity of using the radio beam which might be of possible use to the enemy."

Successes of Japanese Might Encourage Hitler To Add Blow of His Own

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

DEC 10 1941

"With war a momentary possibility for weeks why were U. S. defenses in Pacific caught flat-footed by Japanese? Did our forces await declaration of war before taking offensive action?"

The above message from the editor of a South Dakota newspaper was lying on my desk when I arrived at my office in Manhattan this morning. It is a burning question—one which must have been in all our minds—and so this column repeats it.

Honestly I don't know the answer to it—and wish to heaven I did. I woke up in the middle of last night and worried over it. But our naval and military authorities alone can tell us what happened.

Still, probably my South Dakota friend will agree that while the answer to his question is vital, it is far more important that we avoid a second shocking experience of this sort. One suspects, indeed, that the chief purpose of his query was to utter a warning.

Warning of what? The writing on the wall clearly indicates that if the early Japanese operations give sufficient encouragement Hitler may strike at us another lightning blow. Put an exclamation point after that.

Mayor LaGuardia has told New York that "we are not out of the danger zone by any means." There is little doubt of that, for the Atlantic daily is being spanned by air these times, and this country won't have forgotten the German submarines which prowled off our coasts in the last war. The astonishing reports of Japanese warplanes over San Francisco Bay, and off the Aleutians, emphasize this danger.

Hitler's chief aim at the moment must be to spike our war aid to Britain and the other Allies. In that direction lies his salvation, for it will be disastrous for him if Russia emerges powerful in the spring, and the other Allies are all set for action.

Thus far the Nazis haven't employed anything like the total fleet of submarines they reputedly have amassed. It wouldn't be surprising to see that armada come into action before long. Should Hitler also be able to force the French into giving him their navy, it would create a grave situation for America and the Allies.

Probably the grim experience through which we have passed since Sunday has removed the danger of over-confidence on our part. The tradition has grown up that Uncle Sam could whip Japan with one hand tied behind his back. Maybe he could, if he didn't have other commitents, but the only way to look at the thing now is that we have a man-size job cut out for us.

We shall indeed be lucky if the war with Japan doesn't run long. Moreover, we mustn't overlook that the Japanese conflict is part and parcel of the World War and that knocking Japan out won't end the bigger conflagration. I'm afraid we've got to get used to the idea that there's going to be a lot of blood shed.

It inspires confidence to see Washington jumping in to ensure a vast increase in our armament production. Perhaps our greatest single need is to see that home industry produces every single ounce of war material possible, both for our own uses and those of the Allies, who are leaning heavily on us.

The war with Japan is incidental to the main objective, which has been set down as destruction of Hitlerism. Therefore the United States would be doing itself a disservice if it allowed the Far Eastern war to divert its attention from serving the Allies. So much depends on Russia now that she cannot be allowed to fall out. If Hitler should get the vast potential resources of the Soviet, there's no telling how far he might go.

Stoppage of our war-aid is one of the big ideas of this latest Axis move. Washington has made it clear that this is recognized and that nothing will stand in the way of continuing the supplies for the Allies.

DEC 10 1941

But to return to the danger of another Axis blow at us, Japan hasn't struck without some sort of promise from Germany. Now is the time to watch out for trouble from Herr Hitler.

Radio Stations Resume

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9 (AP)—Pacific Coast radio stations ended nearly 12 hours of silence today during which army and navy planes and naval surface craft were reported to have searched off the coast for possible Japanese airplane carriers and submarines.

Normal radio broadcasting, and freedom from blackouts except in certain defense areas, was reported along the entire Pacific Coast during the early evening hours.

There were no wailing air raid warnings such as those that startled San Francisco last night, and life flowed normally in most communities.

San Pedro Blacked Out

The San Pedro harbor area, naval and shipping center of Southern California, was blacked out. San Diego reported lights were out in portions of the surrounding army and navy establishments.

At Mare Island, on an upper arm of San Francisco Bay, lights were turned off for 20 minutes at the government's huge naval yard.

The exact extent of the search was a military secret. Enemy airplane carriers have been variously reported off the Alaskan, North Pacific and California coast.

An alarm was sounded at noon today in the San Francisco Bay area, which underwent three blackouts last night after the army reported a fleet of 30 enemy planes had circled over the industrial area. Today's alarm, given as two naval planes returned to their base, was cancelled quickly.

Radios were silenced from the last of the early morning black-outs, around 2.30 A. M., to prevent guiding possible Japanese bombers to their objectives.

"The time has passed when we're trying to please the public with radio programs," commented Col. G. P. Tourtellot, of the Northwest Defense Command. "We're trying to save their lives."

Broadcasts were resumed in the early afternoon coincident with the return of two big naval bombers to their base on San Francisco Bay but arrangements were made for more blackouts all along the coast tonight and a possible resumption of radio silence.

DEC 10 1941

Seattle Rioting

Tentative plans were laid for a blackout of the entire Pacific northwest. Precautions were taken in Seattle to prevent resumption of rioting during which a blackout mob of 1,000 smashed store windows and looted displays. A 19-year-old woman who said, "We've got to show them they can't leave their lights burning," was arrested as the leader. She said her husband was at sea on a destroyer.

Walter B. Kirtley, assistant police chief at Seattle, identified the woman as Mrs. Ethel Chelsvig.

"This is war," she said. "They don't realize one light in the city might betray us. That's my patriotism."

Route Of Planes

Army informants, detailing the exact route followed by the Japanese planes, said they came over the southern tip of San Francisco Bay, just north of San Jose, and split into two groups, one flying north and the other south. American planes trailed the northern squadron, but lost track of it and were unable to pick up the southern flight at all.

No bombs were dropped, no anti-aircraft guns were fired. Army men said the planes evidently were on a reconnaissance flight.

Blackouts cost the lives of a taxi driver and a woman motorist whose unlighted machines collided at Alameda, Cal.

Rifle fire of California guards injured one woman and badly frightened four painters on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge. The woman was shot because her husband failed to halt his automobile during a blackout. Warning shots were fired by mistake at the painters who were working in fog on the bridge.

Angry Seattle Crowd Stones Stores to Enforce Blackout

Show Windows Smashed And Displays Looted In Defiance of Police

DEC 10 1941

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Dec. 9.—Smashing show windows and looting displays, a crowd of more than 1,000 persons enforced Seattle's first wartime blackout in defiance of police today.

The crowd, completely out of control of city police, milled through the center of the city's business district for an hour beginning at midnight. Approximately 30 show windows, ranging from tiny shoe shop panes to huge glass plates, were smashed.

Nearly all of the displays were looted, some of the merchandise being thrown in the streets and other more valuable pieces disappearing.

The demonstration began at Fourth avenue and Pike street, the city's busiest corner. A huge blue neon sign above an upstairs clothing store shed a ghastly glow over the entire intersection. Nearly all other lights in the area were turned off at 11 p.m.

Yells and Catcalls.

Yells and catcalls began almost immediately, and by midnight bottles, rocks, tin cans and old shoes were being heaved despite the efforts of a squad of police.

Eventually, an employe of a sign company broke out of a third-floor window from inside and inched along the top of the sign—amid a shower of missles—to a connection to extinguish the light.

Police cars pushing their way along the curbs started the crowd moving, while an officer with a loudspeaker urged all civilians to go home.

The crowd, urged on by shouting women, gathered at a small jewelry store across the street where a single light burned in an entry. A thrown rock smashed the plate glass door and a triumphant youngster rushed inside to grab the offending bulb.

Door Pane Cracked.

At Fifth and Pike, missiles showered against windows of another jewelry store where lighted Christmas trees had been left burning. One bottle cracked a door pane; a police officer knocked out the remainder of the glass and crawled inside to the light switch.

The next objective was two doors away, where two windows splintered under the impact of boots. The crowd waited only long enough to see lights inside blink out, then streamed across the street past a police cordon to smash the displays of an exclusive store. Most of the displayed footwear was gone after the crowd moved on.

In all, the main crowd covered six city blocks, leaving a wake of shattered glass and missing merchandise—but not a single remaining window illumination.

ANGRY GENERAL SEES NEED FOR REAL BOMBS

DeWitt Says It Might Have Been Good If They Had Fallen

DEC 10 1941

Wife, 19, Leads Seattle Blackout Mob, East's Alarm False

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Dec. 9—Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt, commanding general of the Fourth Army, bluntly told the San Francisco Civilian Defense emergency meeting today "it might have been a good thing if bombs had been dropped last night to wake this community up to the seriousness of the situation."

City and military officials hastily made arrangements for an improved blackout system.

Angered by persistent rumors that the impromptu blackout last night was "all a hoax," and by the attitude of skepticism on the part of some citizens, General DeWitt told the meeting:

"Japanese planes were over this community last night. They were tracked and followed to sea.

Reinforcements Coming

"I am not telling you I can prevent bombs or air raids on this city. Reinforcements are coming, and when they do arrive, we will be in better position to do so.

"It is inane to think that men of the standing in the community of Admiral John W. Greenslade and myself would call for a blackout unless there was a definite military need.

"The blackout last night was unsatisfactory. Unless active steps are taken to correct the deficiencies, a great deal of destruction will come to San Francisco.

"I never saw such complacency in my life. It's criminal! We're at war, but I don't think that means much to some of you. Apparently it won't until some of our loved ones are killed."

DEC 10 1941

Blackout Chief

The defense council, seeking to coordinate the volunteer services of some 20,000 citizens, reported future blackouts would be ordered only by Brig. Gen. William Ord Ryan, head of the Fourth Interceptor Command, if there were real danger.

The order would be transmitted over the police radio and sirens sounded.

The police department took over assignment of new air raid wardens today—looking for a responsible person in every one of the city's 5,500 blocks.

Permanent Blackouts

Mayor Rossi said all non-essential lights would be ordered out permanently for the duration—including theater marquees, neon advertising signs, billboards and store window displays. Gasoline stations and entrances of buildings will be darkened on order.

Jap Planes Reported Over Panama Coast

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—A Panamanian radio broadcast heard in New York by NBC said Japanese aircraft were reported flying over the Panama Coast this morning but no bombs were dropped.

Japanese Forces Off Aleutian Islands, Canadians Warned

Attack in Pacific Northwest Feared; Patrols Intensified

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, British Columbia, Dec. 9 (Canadian Press).—A warning the "Japanese are off the Aleutian Islands" came from Mayor Andrew McGavin last night shortly after Air Comdr. A. F. Godfrey said "there is every reason to believe there will be an attack in the Pacific Northwest."

"The Japanese are off the Aleutian Islands; we expect them here any time. The situation is very serious," Mayor McGavin said.

Commodore Godfrey said the Canadian air force was "standing by" and that instructions were issued to all cities for a complete blackout. He said air patrols were intensified.

All motor traffic on Victoria streets was halted at 6 p.m. by naval policemen. Drivers were told to go home.

The blackout order was announced by Western air command headquarters here and followed shortly a similar order for the States of Oregon and Washington.

The order read:

"Attention all citizens of British Columbia:

"The war situation is such that an attack by Japanese forces on the Pacific Northwest coast is imminent and therefore on advice of military authorities the Premier of British Columbia has issued instructions for a complete blackout of lights and communications on Vancouver Island and the whole coast of British Columbia and the lower mainland from dusk to dawn until further notice."

Trans-Canada Air Lines Operating Normally

Winnipeg, Dec. 9 (AP)—O. T. Larson, vice-president in charge of operations of Trans-Canada Air Lines, announced tonight that T. C. A. service "is proceeding in regular order, except for some minor interruption on account of local blackout regulations in the coast areas."

The statement was issued after T. C. A. officials in Toronto had reported that all flights east of Montreal and from Toronto to New York had been suspended because of the "national emergency."

Another T. C. A. official said the radio beam to the east had been shut off for one hour and then resumed.

How It Happened

Inquiry Developed Quickly Into N. Y. Air-Raid Alarm

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—An inquiry—which quickly mushroomed into an "official report"—that enemy bombers had been sighted two hours distant by air appeared responsible for New York's air-raid alarm today.

A preliminary official investigation here and in New York indicated:

A man, said to be fully identified, telephoned officials at First Army headquarters, Governors Island, N. Y., that he had heard in a Washington radio station broadcast that the bombers had been reported. He asked whether it was true.

The army inquired at the New York office of the Associated Press and failed to get verification A War Department spokesman at Washington told the Associated Press the War Department had not reported the enemy planes.

Meanwhile, however, an official at Governors Island had telephoned an inquiry to Mitchel Field, Long Island, which is the headquarters for the interceptor planes which safeguard the city.

This inquiry seemed to have been misunderstood as a warning "from Washington," and Washington, between officers, tends to mean the War Department.

Mitchel Field's command took no chances, the planes took to the air, and the press then was told that the alarm resulted from an official report from Washington of a raid threat.

Further confusion resulted when the War Department reiterated it had not originated the report, but that all air-force stations had been put on the alert because of the war emergency.

the guidance of the people in case of air raids:

2. Stay home.

The safest place in an air raid is at home.

If you are away from home, get under cover in the nearest shelter. Avoid crowded places. Stay off the streets.

The enemy wants you to run out into the streets, create a mob, start a panic. Don't do it!

Only Spray On Bomb

If incendiary bombs fall, play a spray from a garden hose (never a splash or stream!) of water on the bomb. Switch to a stream to put out any fire started by the bomb. Switch back to a spray for the bomb.

The bomb will burn for about fifteen minutes if left alone, only about two minutes under a fine water spray. A jet, splash, stream, or bucket of water will make it explode.

Under raid conditions, keept a bath-

Under raid conditions, keep a bath-use of fire department in case water mains are broken.

If you have a soda-and-acid extinguisher (the kind you turn upside down), use it with your finger over the nozzle to make a spray. Don't use the chemical kind (small cylinders of liquid) on bombs. It is all right for ordinary fires.

Choose One Home Warden

Should gas be used, go at once to the most "inside" room in your house (fewest doors and windows). Paste paper over glass. Stuff rags in window cracks and under doors.

But above all, keep cool, stay home. Choose one member of the family to be the home air-raid warden—who will remember all the rules and what to do. Mother makes the best.

Second Air-Raid Rule

DEC 10 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—Following is the second in a series of instructions issued by the Office of Civilian Defense for Mexico Authorized To Move Troops Across Part Of U. S.

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—The United States has authorized Mexico to move troops across United States territory to reinforce the defense of Lower California.

DEC 10 1941

These troops, a State Department announcement said tonight, will pass in transit from Nogales, Ariz., to Tia Juana, Lower California, via San Diego. It is expected they will begin to move tomorrow and officials said a considerable body of troops is involved.

Area Is Part Of Mexico

Lower California is part of Mexico and is not to be confused with southern California in the United States.

In disclosing the scheduled troop movement the State Department announcement said:

"This decision of the Mexican authorities affords a striking instance of cooperation in hemispheric defense by the nations of this hemisphere in the cause of liberty and democracy and against the forces of a treacherous aggressor.

Welcomes Opportunity

"The Government of the United States welcomes this opportunity of facilitating the journey of the troops of the sister republic and of extending o them every courtesy and assistance.'

Last night's reports of enemy air activities off the Pacific Coast of the United States extended from British Columbia to southern California.

Observers took today's announcement to mean that Mexico and the United States are taking no chances on any surprise attempt by the Japanese to land a force in Lower California sufficient to establish a temporary air base.

PRESS WARNED ON WAR STORIES

Army and Navy News Under Voluntary Censorship.

Washington, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Government agencies moved in unison today to prevent the publication of information which might help Japan in its headlong assault against United States outposts in the Pacific.

The press was advised that news coverage would go ahead under the voluntary censorship system invoked in connection with the war in Europe, but the navy warned that if necessary it would enforce the 1918 espionage act. This fixes severe penalties for willful disclosure of information which may aid the enemy.

Even the Federal loan agency had decided, Administrator Jesse Jones said yesterday, to keep secret its data on defense subjects, such as contracts for new defense plants.

The army extended its ban on military information to include information relating to the routes, schedules and destinations of troop movements within or without the continental United States.

Issues Memorandum.

The War Department issued this memorandum to the press:

"Information tending to disclose the number of troops, designation of units and disposition of forces overseas is restricted. Information as to the movements of transports within or without territorial waters is restricted Casualty lists will, if possible, include home addresses, but will not include designation of units.'

The navy began censoring all outgoing cables and those from Hawaii and the Philippines were censored at the source. The sending of news to Germany, Italy, Finland and Japan was formally prohibited. Dispatches continued to come in from Berlin, Rome and Helsinki, but not from Tokio, although radio broadcasts from Japan were heard.

Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Public Relations, conceded that cable news from Honolulu and Manila had been delayed, but attributed this to a heavy file of official and other messages and the inexperience of a vastly expanded personnel. He said the situation would improve with expansion of personnel in the Navy Intelligence office.

DEC 10 1941

To Make Public

Admiral Hepburn said that it probably would take several days for the navy to check carefully, notify relatives and make public the names of casualties in Hawaii, estimated by President Roosevelt at 3,000.

He asked the press to withhold from publication, until cleared by the navy, any stories which may be obtained from crew members or their families and remarked that in all cases the names of ships or naval units should be deleted.

The Maritime Commission requested that all cease publication of photographs or printed matter concerning the movement, position, cargo or destination of any merchant vessel in any waters. This did not immediately apply to Great Lakes waters, its memorandum explained. But if there should be extraordinary developments in that area, the commission suggested, the press would readily recognize this and put the request into effect.

Dingell Tells House He Will Demand Court-Martials Of Commanders to Uncover Truth; Vinson Flays Critics

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—Bitter criticism of the army and navy defenders of Hawaii, coupled with a threatened demand for court-martial proceedings against the top-ranking officers involved, flared in the House today but brought a storm of rebuke on the heads of the critics.

President Roosevelt joined in the controversy with an implied rebuke for the critics.

At his press conference, he declined to discuss or fix responsibility for the success of the Japanese raid. He said he knew nothing about that question nor, he added, did any member of Congress.

Representative Dingell (D-Mich) touched off the fireworks when he announced his intention to demand the court-martials to "determine the guilt or innocence in the matter of the Hawaiian air forces."

Names Five Officers

Specifically mentioned by Dingell for court-martial were Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet; Lieut.-Gen. Walter C. Short, commanding the Hawaiian department of the army; Maj.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air; Maj.-Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the Army Air Corps, and Maj.-Gen. Fred L. Martin, chief of the Hawaiian air force.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House naval committee denounced Dingell's action a short time later as "nothing but a cheap effort to get newspaper publicity."

Vinson joined with Representative Bulwinkle (D-N. C.) in an appeal to their fellow members to guard against speeches would give "aid or comfort to the enemy."

Urges Feet be Kept on Ground

"In a time like this," Bulwinkle said, "it behooves every member to keep his feet on the ground. In a time like this no man can accomplish anything by condemning, without knowing the facts."

Brushing aside a request by Dingell that he yield the floor briefly, the North Carolinian said it was the "patriotic duty of every American, and especially every Congressman, to be guarded in his words, in order not to give aid and comfort to the enemy."

Indignantly challenging what he termed Dingell's insinuation that the men in charge of Hawaii's defenses had not been true to their trust, Vinson reminded his colleagues that "Congress can't fight this war." He said that must be left to the men trained for the job and appealed to the House to have confidence in them.

"If the Navy has suffered casualties at Pearl Harbor," he said, "there's just one simple thing for us to do—buckle up our belts and make a determined effort that will win the war that much sooner."

Before the House convened at at noon, what happened at Pearl Harbor was the subject of sharp criticism in the House naval committee and the group voted to ask Secretary of Navy Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, to attend a secret session tomorrow morning for questioning as to how the Japanese managed to penetrate the defenses of Hawaii.

The House naval committee heard one of its members, Representative Vincent (D-Ky), bring the undercurrent of criticism of the Navy for what happened at Pearl Harbor Sunday into the open by declaring that "someone was asleep"—someone responsible for the defenses.

"It took 10 days to get those ships in there," Vincent went on, apparently referring to Japanese airplane carriers believed to have transported the planes which carried out the raids on Pearl Harbor.

The Kentuckian's criticism developed during his effort to learn from a Navy Department witness whether all high-ranking naval officers were physically fit for their jobs, mentioning specifically Rear Admiral Hart, naval commander at Manila.

When Vinson remonstrated that it must be assumed that such officers had complied with the regulations, Vincent retorted:

"I assumed that the boys would be awake at Hawaii. I assumed that they would patrol every inch of the waters surrounding Hawaii."

Later, he said, "We can't fight this war with men 65 or 70 years old" and added that "somebody was asleep."

Vinson asked his committee to maintain a quorum in Washington for the duration of the war so that any legislation desired by the Navy could be expedited. He told reporters that all future sessions of the committee would be held behind closed doors.

Japan Is Seen Trying to Draw U.S. Fleet Back to Home Waters

Air Reconnaissance Over San Francisco Interpreted as Part of Grand Strategy to Create Panic on Pacific Coast.

DEC 10 1941

Washington, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—A far-flung Japanese effort to panic the United States into withdrawing its main battle fleet to home waters appeared to be under way today as part of an almost incredibly daring plan for a swift rout of all American military and naval power in the Far East.

This was the interpretation which some informed quarters here placed on the bold aerial reconnaisance of the San Francisco area, the reports of officials in Vancouver, B. C., that Japanese naval units were off the Aleutian Islands, and the expectation in Canada that an attack on the Pacific Northwest was imminent.

Expert's keeping tabs on Japan's rapid utilization of the initial advantages gained at the start of the war Sunday by their surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, pieced the puzzle of seemingly scattered actions into this significant pattern:

The Japanese grand strategy appears to call for immobilizing the powerful United States Pacific fleet as the first major move of the war.

The first action designed to this end was the devastating raid on Pearl Harbor. Full results of this yet remain to be disclosed.

Narrows the Pacific Ocean.

In itself this attack had the effect of greatly narrowing the Pacific Ocean in a naval sense and even raised the possibility that, under a favorable combination of circumstances, the very coast of the United States might be temporarily vulnerable to hit-and-run operations.

Quickly taking advantage of the initiative gained, the Japanese—as all evidence indicated today—apparently had maneuvered an aircraft carrier clear across 5,200 miles of the Pacific to the very shores of California and sent reconnaissance planes roaring landward through the night.

The results were air raid warnings, blacked out cities—in a word, the war was brought to the doorstep of millions of Americans who but two days before had believed such a thing virtually impossible.

What could the Japanese hope to gain by such a maneuver? The most probable answer seemed to be a panic-born demand that the fleet be brought home. Such a move would strip the fleet of its strategic mission of protecting far Pacific bases and keeping supply lines open, and compel it to adopt a defensive strategy in home waters.

Would Leave Japanese Free.

Such an accomplishment would leave the Japanese free to act, with relatively small naval forces, against American bases strung across the Pacific from Hawaii to the Philippines. That action, in fact, has long since started against Guam, Wake, Midway and the other American outposts which fitted in with the apparent long-range American strategy of blockading Japan, cutting off her trade with South America and meanwhile conducting offensive operations from such major bases as those in the Philippines.

If this interpretation of the West Coast attack threat is correct, it presents a striking parallel to German submarine activities off the Atlantic seaboard during the world war. In the summer and fall of 1918 half a dozen German undersea raiders prowled in American waters. They attacked coastal shipping, cut cables, laid mines and otherwise harassed naval coast defenses.

Fooled Germans in 1918.

Official naval reports issued after the war disclosed the conviction of the American High Command was that the purpose of these raids was to force withdrawal of American naval units in European waters and those assigned to convoys.

In that purpose, the record of American operations show, they failed. "In their chief mission of preventing transportation to Europe the U-boats failed utterly," declared Navy Secretary Josephus Daniels in a war review. "The flow of troops, supplies and munitions to France and England was not for a moment interrupted."

The American answer to the U-boats was to impose rigid protective regulations on coastal shipping and turn the job of defense over to small warcraft and to such large naval craft as were normally based on American ports.

In the light of this history some observers draw the conclusion that though the Pacific fleet has suffered heavy losses to its ships and its bases there will be no basic modification of its main mission, and the Japanese yet will feel the full force of its striking power and the sting of the bombers whose bases are protected by the fleet's continued operations in the Far East.

RIGID RESTRICTION CLAMPED ON AXIS ALIENS; 1,500 HELD

At Least 400 Germans, Italians, 1,000 Japs Seized as Dangerous

Hull Warns Nation to Guard Against Surprise by Reich; 1,100,000 Persons Curbed

By The Associated Press

DEC 10 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—Calling Germans and Italians "alien enemies" along with Japanese, the government clamped rigid wartime restrictions on 1,100,000 such persons in this country and its possessions today while federal agents conducted a nationwide roundup of those considered dangerous.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was arresting certain Axis subjects listed as "dangerous to the peace and safety of the United States." Scattered reports from over the country indicated that their number would exceed the 400 Germans and Italians which officials originally had estimated were scheduled for apprehension. Some 1,000 Japanese were arrested.

In Los Angeles, Hans Gebhardt, legal representative for the German consulate there, was among those jailed. Richard B. Hood, head of the FBI there, reported that 325 Japanese, 52 Germans, and nine Italians were held there pending determination of whether they shall be released or interned.

At San Francisco, Hans von Bernhard, former commercial attache, was held in the roundup.

In New York, 86 Germans and 49 Italians were arrested, along with 200 Japanese, and taken to Ellis Island.

The number of Japanese held was believed to be close to 1,000, about half of whom were in Hawaii, and there was a possibility that it was much higher.

Will Have Hearings

All those seized are being turned over to the Immigration Service for temporary detention. They will be given hearings on evidence gathered by the FBI to determine whether further confinement is warranted. The army probably will be given custody of those for whom extended detention is necessary.

Attorney General Francis Bid

repeated his request that all matters pertaining to alien seizures be handled only through the FBI. He asked that state governors cooperate to avoid disturbance and confusion and to "prevent molestation of all peaceful and law-abiding aliens."

The regulations for Axis subjects were issued under Presidential proclamation and approximate the limitations put into effect during the first World War.

May Not Change Home

Axis aliens may not change their residence or travel from one place to another except under rules to be prescribed by the Attorney General or the Secretary of War.

They may not enter upon any highway, railway, subway, waterway, public utility, or building which is not open to the public generally.

They are barred from areas surrounding forts, camps, arsenals, airports, power plants or dams, or factories, warehouses or storage yards for implements of war; from canals, wharves, piers and docks, and from all kinds of warehouses, sheds, elevators, railroad terminals and transfer facilities.

Forbidden Items

The President's proclamation listed these items forbidden to be in the possession of aliens:

"Firearms; weapons or implements of war or component parts thereof; ammunition; bombs; explosives or material used in the manufacture of explosives; short-wave radio receiving sets; transmitting sets; signal devices; codes or ciphers; cameras; papers, documents or books in which there may be invisible writing; photograph, sketch, picture, drawing, map or graphical representation of any military or naval installations or equipment or any of arms, ammunition, implements of war, device or thing used or intended to be used in the combat equipment of the land or naval forces of the United States or of any military or naval post, camp, or station."

Hull Warns of Nazi Surprise

He Says U. S. Must Guard Against New Coup

Berlin Talks of Shooting War.

DEC 10 1941

Washington, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull indicated today that this country should be on guard against a sudden German move supporting Japan in fulfillment of the Axis tri-partite pact.

[The Berlin radio declared today that "America now faces a two-front war, a shooting war in the Atlantic and a rapid-fire war in the Pacific, and America is unprepared." The broadcast was heard in New York by NBC.]

In reply to a press conference question of whether he thought such a German move would be like the Sunday morning attack on Honolulu by Japan, Mr. Hull said that the United States always should be on guard against surprise moves, especially when international desperadoes were prowling around the world.

Any preliminary military move of the character of the Pearl Harbor attack, he said, would only arouse the American people to resist with all the speed and all the might that this nation can exert.

With specific reference to Japan's air and submarine attack on Pearl Harbor, Mr. Hull said that if the national effort to which he referred were put forward, no American need fear the outcome of the attack which he said was so outrageously and treacherously undertaken by Japan.

Nazi Pledge Of Help for Japan Bared

Gillette Asserts Hitler Promised He'd Get Control of French Fleet

RUSSIA IS HELD KEY

Walsh Calls Parley of Naval Group to Study U. S. Warship Needs

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP).—Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) said today that he had received information from a source found to be reliable in the past that Hitler had promised Japan he could obtain control of the French fleet by next month and would be able to give the Japanese active military aid by February.

DEC 10 1941

Gillette said this information came to him from persons who had reported on Oct. 28 that Japan planned to launch an attack on the United States either in December, 1941, or in February, 1942.

Gillette said this information was transmitted to the State Department, along with a report from the same source on Nov. 16, that Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy, had been sent to this country at Hitler's instance to gain time for preparations for aggressive action.

Most legislators thought that the extent of any military aid Hitler might give to Japan in furtherance of the Axis pact would depend largely on whether the Russian armies were able to continue their resistance to the Nazis.

But any move to make a portion or all of the French fleet available to the Japanese was regarded with extreme concern in Congressional circles, already shocked by disquieting reports of American naval losses in the surprise Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

The White House said yesterday that one old battleship and a destroyer had been sunk and several other war vessels damaged. These losses left the United States far superior to Japan in capital ships, it was pointed out, but there was no indication how much of the fleet previously had been diverted to the Atlantic.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) said the Senate Naval Affairs Committee had obtained the following comparative figures on the American and Japanese fleets:

	U. S.	Japan
Battleships in service.	17	10
Battleships building...	15	8
Aircraft carriers.....	6	8
Carriers building.....	12	2
Cruisers	37	46
Cruisers building.....	54	10
Destroyers	171	125
Destroyers building...	193	11
Submarines	112	71
Submarines building..	74	7

With the Pearl Harbor attack in mind, Walsh called the committee into a closed session today to canvass the Navy's needs in the light of yesterday's declaration of war by Congress.

He said he knew of no legislation, other than removal of restrictions against the sending of Army selectees and National Guardsmen out of the Western Hemisphere, which would be required of Congress at the present time.

Meanwhile, high ranking senators agreed that the United States probably had entered into a lengthy war.

Senator George (D-Ga.) said it was his belief that the conflict with the island empire might last three years.

"The American people must be aroused to the gravity of this situation," he declared. "The sacrifices we will be called upon to make will be immensely greater than any we have contemplated up to this hour. The whole power of the nation must be turned to developing the offensive as well as defensive arms we need."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he looked for a six-year war that "might cost 2,000,000 American lives." He said recent publication of Army war plans indicated that it would take three years to complete preparations for a military expeditionary force that might have to be raised.

Taft said he looked for a declaration of war against the United States soon by Germany and Italy, adding that only by an expeditionary force could the United States finally hope to crush Hitler.

Like Taft, Senator Glass (D-Va.) said he expected a declaration of war by Germany. Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) said he thought the United States ought not to wait for any such declaration but ought to begin fighting the Nazis now.

"Hitler has promised aid to Japan, you can be sure of that," he told reporters. "If he had not, they would not have made their attack."

RUSSIA'S POSITION ON WAR IN DOUBT

Litvinoff Sees Roosevelt, But No Commitment Is Yet Made

DEC 10 1941

Sincere Sympathy For U. S., However, Is Expressed By Envoy

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—The question whether Soviet Russia will strike at Japan remained unanswered tonight; although President Roosevelt and the Russian Ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff, have agreed that quick victory over the Axis depends on coordinated activity by its foes.

In presenting his credentials to the President yesterday, Litvinoff expressed the "best wishes and warm sympathy of the people of the Soviet Union toward the American people in these days of ordeal."

The text of the Ambassador's remarks and Mr. Roosevelt's reply were issued by the State Department today.

Gratitude Expressed

Litvinoff, after reminding the President of the friendly relations which have existed between the two countries, said:

"The peoples of the Soviet Union are happy in the realization that they are receiving from the American people not only their sympathy in this struggle, but also substantial materials for it, and it affords me keen pleasure to express to you, Mr. President, and to your people, the warm gratitude of my Government and my country for this generous support."

Turning to more recent events, Litvinoff concluded:

"My arrival in Washington coincided precisely with the moment in which American territory and American armed forces were subjected to attack from another state—an attack no less unexpected than that to which, five and a half months ago, the Soviet Union was subjected.

Limited Commitment

"This event, arising from the present international situation, was brought about by the same forces and the same ideology which let loose sanguinary war in Europe and other continents. I must limit myself, at the present moment, Mr. President, to the assurance of the best wishes and warm sympathy of the people of the Soviet Union towards the American people in these days of their ordeal.

"I am convinced that the similar trial of the Soviet and American peoples will rivet still more strongly the bond of friendship between them."

In reply President Roosevelt assured the Ambassador that "it is the firm intention of the Government of the United States to continue to carry out its program of aid to the Soviet Union in the conduct of the struggle."

All Of One Pattern

DEC 10 1941

Of the conflict with Japan, the President said:

"There can be no doubt that the struggle in which the United States is being forced to engage is closely connected with, if not a component part of, a gigantic struggle on a world scale which has been brought about by kindred forces of aggression inflamed with ambitions for world conquest and world domination.

"I agree with you that the successful and speedy outcome of this struggle will depend largely upon the extent to which the countries opposing aggression are willing to coordinate their activities, to use their resources in a timely and rational manner and to maintain among themselves full understanding and confidence."

PRESIDENT URGES 7-DAY WORK WEEK

Also Considers Requesting Labor Truce to Expedite Increased War Production

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt today proposed a seven-day production week for the industries which manufacture the war machine that will pound Japan into submission.

At the same time, he said he was considering calling a conference of labor and industrial leaders to consider an agreement to replace anti-strike legislation.

The Chief Executive told a press conference that the administration hoped to expedite production of war equiptment so that there would be many more actual deliveries next year than were lately contemplated.

In addition, he said, it will be necessary to obtain expansion of the war effort by building new plants and adding on to old ones.

To Increase Program

The increase in output under the present program, Mr. Roosevelt said, probably will involve a seven-day week.

The two-fold speed up was agreed upon at a conference this morning in the Presidential office attended by members of the OPM and the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board.

DEC 10 1941

The office of Sidney Hillman, associate director of the OPM, explained that President Roosevelt's reference to a possible seven-day work week did not mean that each worker would work every day.

Would Stagger Shifts

The plan backed by the OPM would involve operation of defense plants 160 hours weekly, with the other eight hours devoted to maintenance work. The shifts would be staggered and persons who worked Saturday and Sunday would have other days off, if the five-day work week were in effect.

At his press conference, the Chief Executive was reminded that he had seen numerous labor leaders lately and some of these had suggested a conference to work out a voluntary plan for eliminating strikes in defense industries. Mr. Roosevelt said he was considering calling such a parley but he did not know whether it would be an unofficial one, off the record, or an official conference.

MATERIAL SEIZURE MACHINERY SET UP

OPM Acts to Take Over Vital, Scarce Supplies If Needed; Would 'Pay Later'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Acting with war time urgency, the Office of Production Management established machinery today to requisition hoarded supplies of critical materials of a "seize first and pay later" basis.

30.24 — 13433

The OPM, named by the President as the government's "requisitioning authority" under the property seizure act, created an Inventory and Requisitioning Section headed by E. A. Tupper to take over privately owned materials "whenever normal sources of supply are inadequate."

Simultaneously OPM announced that hoarded supplies of scarce war materials in the hands of dealers or manufacturers would be "requisitioned as needed."

Some Capital officials believed that Japanese action in the Pacific, threatening imports of vitally needed tin, rubber manganese, chromite tungsten, and other materials from the Orient spurred the OPM action.

DEC 10 1941

However, it was thought the first application of the new mechanism would come in the requisitioning of $60,000 to $100,000 worth of tin plate stored in New York warehouses, originally destined for countries now dominated by the Axis. It will be seized and resold to South America.

"Fair and just compensation" to the owner of seized materials will be determined tentatively "as soon as practicable" after the take-over. OPM is authorized to set up an appeal officer or board to hear contested claims. This board or official will arrive at a final determination. If the dispossessed owner is still unsatisfied, he will be paid 50 per cent of the final offer and may take an appeal to the Court of Claims or to a Federal District Court.

The Economic Defense Board extended its controls on exports to all articles which had not previously been subject to licenses. It said, however, that general licenses would continue to be issued for the free export of materials to the American nations and other friendly destinations.

Congress Acts To Lift Limits On Selectees

Moves To Permit Use In Any Part Of World For Duration

No Age Change Foreseen

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP) — A grimly war-conscious Congress today took the initial step toward permitting the nation's armed forces—selectees as well as regulars—to fight in any part of the world.

The Senate and House Military Committees approved legislation to eliminate the present territorial restrictions, and to permit retention in service of all fighting forces for the duration of the war. Both steps were requested by the War Department.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, National Selective Service director, said in Chicago that there is a "strong possibility" that Congress will lower the minimum draft age from 21 to 18 and that men deferred because they were 28 or over may be called up.

He reported that re-classification of selectees deferred because of occupation was already under consideration and that re-classification of men deferred because of dependents may be taken up later.

Meanwhile, the House completed and sent to President Roosevelt's desk a bill to freeze naval enlistments for six months beyond the duration of the war.

Chairman May (D.-Ky.) of the House Military Committee said the new measure, relating to overseas service, would be brought to the House floor tomorrow, and its passage sought immediately under suspension of rules.

It would nullify two provisions of the Selective Service Act, now preventing use of selectees outside the Western Hemisphere or their retention in service beyond 30 months.

Subject of weeks of acrimonious argument during movement of the Selective Service Bill through Congress, the two changes were approved unanimously by the committee after but little more than two hours' study.

The action came in executive session following a committee consultation with Brig. Gen. Wade H. Haislip, Assistant Chief of Staff in charge of personnel. Meanwhile, it deferred action until tomorrow on two other War Department requests for legislation which would:

1. Repeal the Taber amendment to the property seizure act prohibiting the government from taking over equipment and machinery necessary to existing production.

2. Permit emergency purchase of war materials abroad and their admission to this country duty free.

May said the War Department had made no request for a change in the present Selective Service age brackets, adding that the Army had a potential reservoir of 1,000,000 men reaching the age of 21 each year to draw upon for induction.

He said also that the Army probably would call back to service "as they are needed" 175,000 men who have been released and now are in the reserves. But he emphasized that the Army would take under consideration "the hardship cases" and that it would affect chiefly "specialists" in various types of Army work.

The legislation freezing the enlistment of Navy men slid through the House on voice vote. Together with an unrestricted, all-out recruiting campaign, it envisioned a strength of 532,500 to man a two-ocean Navy by 1947.

Commander Herbert G. Hopwood, aide to the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, in charge of personnel, said that the Navy Department was planning to ask legislation permitting induction of selectees into the Navy in the event its recruiting campaign failed to bring in a sufficient number of men, but was hopeful such inductions would be unnecessary.

AMERICAN STAFFS IN ORIENT SAFE

5 Centers Report Attaches Well; Negotiations For Subjects' Exchange Begin

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The State Department announced tonight that it has received word that all members of the staffs of the American embassy at Tokyo, the embassy at Peiping, consulate general at Shanghai, consulate general at Hong Kong, and consulate at Manila are safe and well.

All United States citizens in the Hong Kong colony are safe.

Meanwhile, it was revealed the United States has asked a neutral European nation to negotiate the exchange of Americans in Japan for Japanese subjects trapped here by the war.

Secretary of State Hull requested the European nation to undertake both diplomatic and transportation arrangements.

More than 100 American diplomatic and consular officials were on duty in Japan, occupied China, Manchukuo, Thailand and French Indo-China when Japanese warplanes struck at Hawaii and the Philippines. Between 35 and 50 Japanese government officials are in American territory.

Under international law diplomatic and consular officials of belligerent nations are exchanged as quickly as the formalities and transportation can be arranged.

Aside from the diplomats, there are an estimated 5,000 Americans in Japan or Japanese-occupied territories for whom some of the 93,000 Japanese registered in the United States might be exchanged if transportation can be arranged.

Switzerland, Sweden, Portugal and Spain are among the few European neutrals with diplomatic officials and facilities in both Japan and the United States. One of those nations is expected to act as intermediary.

The high officials for whom exchange arrangements are to be made include Joseph C. Grew, American Ambassador in Tokyo, and Willys R. Peck, Minister to Thailand, and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japan's Ambssador here, and Saburo Kurusu, special envoy who flew across the Pacific to participate in the final, hollow diplomatic discussions.

Japanese diplomatic and consular officials in other American Republics which have declared war on Japan probably will be exchanged at the same time as those stationed in this country.

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP)—Funds in this country of Thailand (Siam) and her nations were frozen tonight in an order by President Roosevelt.

The action was similar to that taken in the case of other invaded countries. Treasury officials had no information immediately on the amount of funds involved, but said it was small.

DEC 10 1941

340,000 Japs Now in Lands of Enemies

DEC 10 1941

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP).—There are about 340,000 Japanese in the far Pacific lands with which Japan is now at war, and 228,000 in South America, according to figures for 1937 in the Japanese Year Book.

The total of 150,000 for Hawaii indicates that the Japanese statistics include persons of Japanese extraction who are regarded as citizens of the countries in which they reside. Alien registration records show only 41,000 Japanese nationals in Hawaii, or a little more than one-fourth of the year book estimate.

That volume also shows 115,000 in the United States proper, whereas the alien registration recorded only one half that number.

These additional estimates of Japanese living abroad appear in the book: North America (other than the United States), 26,000; Australia, 3,000; Netherlands East Indies, 6,500; Philippines, 25,000; Oceania, 155,000.

PHILIPPINE LOYALTY TO LAST PROCLAIMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines—now under attack by Japan—has pledged that "the flag of the United States will be defended by American and Filipino soldiers until the last round of ammunition has been fired."

This was disclosed today—two days after Japanese bombers first appeared over the islands—in a cable from the president to Joaquin M. Elizalde, resident commissioner from the Philippines.

"The whole Filipino people welcome the opportunity of testing their loyalty to America through blood and fire," concluded Quezon in the cable placed in the Congressional Record by Representative Crawford (R-Mich).

Quezon dispatched his cable Dec. 3 to deny any dissension in Philippine defense preparations.

FILIPINOS IN U. S. SEEK TO FIGHT JAPS

Flood Commissioner's Office With Offers to Help.

DEC 10 1941

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP).—Filipinos throughout the United States are flooding the office of their Resident Commissioner with telegrams asking how they might aid in the war against Japan.

A local group, led by Abdon Llorante of the commissioner's staff, a lieutenant in the United States Army in the last war, has requested Secretary of War Stimson to permit their joining United States armed forces or that they be given transportation to the islands where they may fight. They carried a letter from Commissioner J. M. Elizalde.

Filipinos are considered nationals of this country, but not citizens. It had not been determined whether the joint efforts of the United States and the Philippine Commonwealth against a common enemy would sufficiently alter the status of Filipinos in this country and Hawaii to permit their joining the military forces of this country.

Commissioner Elizade was advising Filipinos to offer co-operation to local authorities wherever they might be and to carry their identification certificates. These certificates, bearing the individual's picture and Mr. Elizade's signature, have been distributed widely in recent months by the Commissioner's office to aid in preventing misunderstandings.

470 JAPANESE FIRMS ON U. S. 'BLACKLIST'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The United States extended its blacklist tonight to include Japanese firms in the other American republics.

An official announcement listed 470 persons and firms, most of them Japanese, in South and Central America, to be added to the list of more than 2,000 Axis firms now on the blacklist.

Several non-Japanese individuals were included because of their important affiliation with Japanese enterprises.

A further list containing additional Japanese names will be issued shortly. With their names on the official "proclaimed list of certain blocked nationals," it is illegal for anyone in the United States to ship anything to those firms.

Aim Now Victory, Not Defense, Says Priorities Board

$150,000,000,000 Outlay Estimated, Doubling Previous Program

DEC 10 1941

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP) — The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, top defense agency, today declared the country was engaged in an "all out victory program," and other defense officials said this called for a $150,000,000,000 outlay.

Such an expenditure would more than double the current armament program for which appropriations and authorizations are nearing seventy billion dollars.

"From this moment we are engaged in a victory program," said a SPAB announcement, issued following a special session in the office of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace.

"We can talk and act no longer in terms of a defense program." Victory is our one and only objective and everything else is subordinate to it."

The SPAB announcement itself mentioned no figures for the cost of the victory program.

It was disclosed that the board had been summoned to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt tomorrow.

"From now on, every action by this board and by the related civilian agencies of the government must be keyed to one goal—complete victory in this war which has been thrust upon us," SPAB said.

"It is clear that a vastly expanded national effort is imperative. Production schedules for all manner of military items must be stepped up at once.

"Every activity of our national life and our civilian economy must be immediately adjusted to that change. To attain victory we aim at the greatest production which is physically possible; we call for the greatest national effort that can possibly be made."

The SPAB announcement was taken by the Capital as the first avowal by the board of sponsorship for the much-discussed "victory program," calling for the doubling of production in virtually all types of weapons and armaments, including planes, tanks and guns.

LAGUARDIA WARNS OF OUTPOSTS' LOSS

Civilian Defense Chief Declares At Los Angeles, Emergency Is Serious

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells People To Be Prepared In Case Anything Happens

[By The Associated Press]

Los Angeles, Dec. 8—Fiorello H. LaGuardia, chief of Civilian Defense, asserted today the United States was in danger of losing some of its Pacific outposts, thus bringing the warring Japanese closer to its shores.

He told the State Civilitn Defense Council that the Japanese bombing at Honolulu Sunday was not just a token attack.

"The losses have been great. We must be prepared for it when the report is receivd in Washington. Lt no one minimize the damage inflicted in this assault.

"This ought to convince all who ma yhave had any doubts as to the seriousness of the present emergency."

War Not Far From Coast

Warning that war now is "not far from the California coast," LaGuardia stressed the necessity for increasing air-raid warden service, the number of fire fighters, police, plant protection and public protection in general.

LaGuardia and Mrs. rFanklin D. Roosevelt arrived today by air from New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave this advice:

"Don't say, 'nothing can happen to us.' Just pray that it doesn't, but be prepared if it does.

"Get ready. Don't be silly enough to be caught by surprise. Prepare your house for effective blackout.

DEC 10 1941

Says We Are All Afraid

"We are all afraid. No matter how scared we are inside, however, we act as though we're not afraid. It's silly to say we're not scared. No one who has any sense is not afraid. We must go on doing the ordinary things of life."

Mrs. Roosevelt added that one room in every home should be set aside in which there can be no lights visible in case of a blackout. She suggested the kitchen as the best place, since "you can go to bed in the dark, but you can't cook in the dark."

LaGuardia and Mrs. Roosevelt spoke first at an emergency meeting of the Civilian Defense Council, then called in heads of police and fire departments in the forty-odd cities in the metropolitan Los Angeles area.

From here they will go to San Francisco for similar conferences.

Clipper Passengers Scorned Jap Bombs

San Francisco, Dec. 9 (AP).—The bombing of Honolulu failed to frighten 17 passengers on the Anzac Clipper and all refused to return to the United States, its captain said today on bringing the Pan American flying boat back to port.

The clipper itself changed its course and landed at another port in Hawaii after word of the attack, Capt. Harry Lanier Turner said. The clipper was only 400 miles off Honolulu when it heard the city was being bombed.

It flew to a pre-determined port, which the captain declined to name, unloaded its passengers, refueled and returned without ever seeing Honolulu, any war planes or warcraft.

The passengers, including three women, were told of the war but insisted on continuing to their destinations in Honolulu or the Orient.

On the return flight the ship ducked into clouds whenever it could find them, as a screen from possible enemy ships.

Navy Has Honolulu List

Honolulu, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander of the Pacific Fleet, said in a statement today that a list of casualties suffered in Sunday's surprise attack by Japanese planes on Pearl Harbor had been sent to the Navy Department in Washington.

This list, for notification of next of kin, contained all necessary information which the navy will release.

Adequate hospital facilities are available here for all persons injured in the attack.

DEC 10 1941

This was the first dispatch to be received direct from Honolulu by the Associated Press since a tight censorship of news was clamped down Sunday following the Japanese attack.

N. Y. Youth Lost Off Destroyer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Navy announced today that Warrer H. Kast, twenty years old, storekeeper second class, of Herkimer N. Y., was lost overboard from a destroyer in the Atlantic during a heavy storm on Dec. 2. He was the son of Leroy Kast, Herkimer.

Official Army Casualty List

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 9—The War Department published the army's first official casualty list of the war today, making public the names of thirty-seven army officers and men killed in action in the Japanese attack on Hawaii.

Six were commissioned officers, four of the air forces and two of the infantry. All thirty-one enlisted men were of the air forces.

Next Of Kin Notified

The names were announced as a partial list of the casualties resulting from Sunday's bombardment of the island of Oahu, Hawaii, by Japanese air units.

"The adjutant general of the army, in each case, notified the next of kin of the deep regret of the Secretary of War at the death of this soldier in the defense of his country," the War Department said.

At the same time, the army said it was advised by the Hawaiian commander that there had been no casualties among dependents of army personnel.

(The navy said today it had only meager information to date about casualties in Hawaii and that it was carefully checking all names to avoid mistakes.

DEC 10 1941

Relatives of men will be notified as soon as names and numbers are determined, the navy said, and later the public will be informed through an official list. One naval casualty was announced, Robert Carl Cornelius, chaplain, of Buffalo.)

The army list included:

Volunteers Swamp Recruiting Offices Throughout Nation

DEC 10 1941

Army, Navy, Marines And Coast Guard Get Record Applications

WASHINGTON—Dec. 9 (AP)

By the Associated Press.

Thousands of fighting mad Americans packed recruiting offices in every State of the Union yesterday volunteering—even demanding—to don the naval and military uniforms of their Nation and fight the Japanese.

In New York, the rush of naval volunteers was estimated by officials at more than double that of the first day of war in 1917.

Everywhere, from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, enlistments in all branches of the Nation's armed forces ran from 10 times to 100 times above the normal daily total in recent months.

World War veterans, Spanish War veterans and schoolboys with books under their arms stood in the long lines that formed in the streets of hundreds of cities.

Can't Estimate Total.

Hard pressed recruiting authorities, ordered to keep their offices open 24 hours a day, seven days a week for the duration of the war with Japan, couldn't even estimate the vast numbers of applicants for service.

In New York, early in the day and long before the United States had formally declared war, hundreds of eager men stood in line outside the Federal Building. At an early hour, there were nearly 2,000 men outside the naval recruiting office alone. Officials ordered 1,000 men to go home and return later, but so reticent were they to leave, the order was rescinded and the volunteers stayed on.

Everywhere, the picture was the same. Men, young and old, seething with anger and a determination to help their Nation to defend its shores and to beat down the Empire of the Rising Sun, turned out in numbers too great for the clerical and medical staffs of recruiting centers.

American Legion posts and other volunteer workers provided coffee and food for shivering men who stood in line out of doors for hours in the face of chill December winds.

Mayor-Elect Enlists.

At Scranton, Pa., Mayor-elect John F. O'Brien, 45, of Avoca, Pa., was one of the first to seek a new term with the Navy with the assertion that "no old Navy man can take this sitting down."

In New Haven, Conn., naval volunteers included Alan Bartholemy, captain of the 1941 Yale football team, while in Syracuse, N. Y., Chapman W. Schanandoah, 35, an Onondaga Indian, whose tribe, as one of the "Six Nations of the Iroquois Confederacy," opposed the Selective Service Act, was among the naval volunteers.

Also at Syracuse, Robert Wehr, 20, and John Smith, 21, friends who had planned to be married in a double wedding in January, obtained the permission of the prospective brides and joined the Navy.

From New England to California, men quit jobs and left class rooms to get to recruiting stations.

At Salt Lake City, Charles L. Gilley, 22, gave up a $20-a-day job, asked his fiancee to wait a little while, and joined the Marines to avenge the feared death of his brother, Ernest N. Gilley, 20, a Marine stationed at Wake Island, now claimed by the Japs.

On both coasts, in the South, in the desert States, the mountains and the plains, volunteers loudly proclaimed their desire for combat action — real fighting — with all branches of the services and their stock answer to the question why they wanted to enlist invariably was—"patriotic."

FIVE CONGRESSMEN BACK FROM BRITAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (AP)—Five members of the national House of Representatives returned from a tour of England aboard the Dixie Clipper and one warned that the United States faces a long war with Japan.

Rep. Melvin J. Maas (R-Minn) asserted the American people must prepare for a "major, serious and long war which can be won only by a total effort," adding that he feels Japan will prove a hard push-over."

DEC 10 1941

"I think we are in for a lot more and even greater shocks than the one on Sunday," Maas said. "This is total war and there is room in the Pacific for only either the United States or Japan. "Japan has taken the first step in her suicide, however."

Maas expressed belief Japanese aviation has been underrated by other nations, likening it to Germany's preparedness as compared with that of France and England at the start of the European war.

Rep. Joseph Clark Baldwin (R-NY), another of the returning Congressmen, said that a curtailment of supplies from this country would not be "disastrous" to Great Britain.

The other representatives were: William Hill (R-Colo), William Sterling Cole (R-NY), and Richard P. Gale (R-Minn).

nearby to avoid possible attacks upon the Eastern seaboard by Axis planes.

Senator Stewart said this Government should seize Martinique, French Guiana and "every other foot of soil from which an enemy airplane of Germany, Italy or Japan could attack."

Referring to the Japanese successes in the Pacific, Senator Stewart said that the "whole country is asking how and why this happened when we had been told by our experts that such a thing could not happen. Maybe the army and navy just were asleep. I don't know but it ought to be told. We can take the bad news along with the good."

Lights Along Coast May Be Extinguished

Navy Advises Shipping Of Possible Move To Keep From Aiding Enemy

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP)—The navy advised shipping today that navigation lights along the United States coasts and its territories might be extinguished and radio beacons discontinued without notice.

Apparently the navy was prepared by these measures to prevent giving any enemy assistance in locating American harbors.

The Navy Hydrographic Office disclosed at the same time that net and boom defenses against deep-draught vessels would become effective in the San Francisco harbor at 12 noon tomorrow. Warships and other public vessels will have priority for passage over all other shipping.

DOCK FACILITIES ARE MAJOR PROBLEM FOR BRITISH

LEASE-LEND TRAFFIC
INCREASES LOAD (800)

BY EDWARD ROBINSON

DEC 10 1941

(ADVANCE) LONDON-(CORRESPONDENCE OF WIDE WORLD)-A MAJOR WARTIME PROBLEM FOR THE BRITISH HAS BEEN THE EXPANSION OF DOCK FACILITIES IN HOME AND OVERSEAS PORTS TO COPE WITH THEIR OWN EXPANDED EFFORT AND THE ENDLESS LEASE-LEND TRAFFIC FROM THE UNITED STATES.

BOMBING OF MIDDLE-EAST DOCK AREAS HAS HAMPERED NORMAL UNLOADING METHODS, A DOCKS OFFICIAL SAID, SO THAT LIGHTERING--USE OF SMALL BOATS TO CARRY GOODS ASHORE--IS CONSIDERED ADVISABLE AT THE MOMENT. THUS SHIPS CAN BE SCATTERED IN A HARBOR.

"I KNOW AMERICAN BOATS HAVE BEEN CROWDING ON EACH OTHER IN THAT AREA," HE SAID, "BUT THE FACT THAT THEY ARE NOW TURNING THEM AROUND (CLEARING THEM) IN THE MIDDLE-EAST AT THE RATE OF ONE A DAY MEANS VERY GOOD GOING, WHEN ALL THE HAZARDS ARE REMEMBERED."

BUT BRITISH DOCK EXPERTS ARE NOT TALKATIVE ABOUT THE WAY THEY'VE BEATEN BOMBINGS AT HOME AND AROUND THE AFRICAN COAST BECAUSE, AS ONE OF THEM SAID: "WE'VE PAID IN LIVES, SHIPS AND STORES FOR BEING TOO COCKY ABOUT OUR WORK."

THERE IS EVERY REASON FOR CAUTION. EVERY TIME IT HAS BEEN MADE PUBLIC THAT CERTAIN DOCK AREAS HAD RECOVERED FROM A BLITZ AND WERE AGAIN WORKING AT TOP SPEED, THE INFORMANT SAID "THEY GOT ANOTHER AND WORSE DOSE. NOW WE DON'T DO ANYTHING BUT GET ON WITH THE JOB AND STAY DUMB."

DEC 10 1941

IT WAS ADMITTED THAT MANY OF THE DOCKS AROUND BRITAIN HAD BEEN "BADLY KNOCKED ABOUT", BUT ACTUALLY THE DESTRUCTION OF NAZI RAIDS "DID US A GOOD TURN" WITH CLEARANCE JOBS WHICH FORCED IMPROVEMENTS ONCE ON A WHEN-POSSIBLE SCHEDULE.

IN MANY CASES WHERE THERE HAD BEEN NARROW BOTTLENECKS OUT OF THE DOCKS, MULTIPLE TRACKS HAVE BEEN BUILT WHICH MORE THAN BALANCED DELAYS CAUSED BY BOMBINGS.

MOST BRITISH PORTS ARE ABLE TO TACKLE THE GRADUALLY INCREASING WEIGHT AND DIVERSITY OF CARGOES IN THEIR STRIDE. INFORMANT SAID THEY HAD CRANES AND GEAR "ABLE TO MOVE PRACTICALLY ANYTHING THE WAR MACHINE WILL TURN OUT."

TRANSPORT MINISTER LORD LEATHERS TOLD A SHIPPING CONFERENCE ON NOVEMBER 12 THAT "MORE AND BETTER EQUIPMENT IS BEING INSTALLED AS FAST AS IT BECOMES AVAILABLE", ADDING THEY WERE "KEEPING THE TURN-AROUND TIME DOWN TO THE IRREDUCIBLE MINIMUM."

A DOCKS EXECUTIVE SAID THEY HAD RECENTLY HAD ONE 6,000 TONNER WITH A CARGO SO MIXED "THE MANIFEST GAVE US A HEADACHE", BUT IT WAS DOCKED AND SENT AWAY AGAIN IN THREE DAYS. "THAT SORT OF THING USED TO TAKE FIVE OR SIX DAYS", HE COMMENTED.

30.24 — 13439

"THE BIGGEST TROUBLE ABOUT THE SPEED-UP," HE SAID "IS THAT WE CAN'T, FOR OBVIOUS REASONS, BE TOLD ABOUT BOAT MOVEMENTS. IN PEACETIME WE WERE ALWAYS READY, KNOWING WHEN AND WHERE A CARGO WAS COMING IN. NOW, THE FIRST A DOCKMASTER KNOWS IS THAT A FREIGHTER IS IN. THAT MEANS TIP-TOP COORDINATION, EQUIPMENT AND FIRST-CLASS DOCK LABOR--AND WE'VE GOT THEM."

A MOBILE ARMY OF ABOUT 100,000 DOCKERS IS ONE OF THE MAIN FACTORS BEHIND THE SPEED-UP OF THE TURNAROUND, AND DOCK, ROAD, RAIL AND CANAL FACILITIES ARE SO LINKED TO THE NETWORK OF DUMPS THAT TRAFFIC IS MOVING LIKE CLOCKWORK THESE DAYS.

ANOTHER FACTOR WHICH HELPED WAS THAT THE GOVERNMENT WAS THE PRINCIPAL CUSTOMER, A FACT WHICH ELIMINATED PEACETIME SORTING AND INEVITABLE CUSTOMS DELAYS.

DEC 10 1941

THE SPOKESMAN HAD ONE BIG GRUMBLE, HOWEVER. "WE'VE GOT SIX GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS--SHIPPING, ADMIRALTY, TRANSPORT, FOOD, SUPPLY AND MINES--SCRAPPING WITH EACH OTHER FOR PRIORITY ON CARGOES. THEY NOT ONLY GET IN EACH OTHER'S WAY, BUT HINDER US AS WELL."

A FACTOR WHICH HELPED IN THE SPEED-UP WAS THE SYSTEM OF SPECIAL LIGHTING FOR NIGHT SHIFTS WHICH, WORKING IN COOPERATION WITH SPOTTERS AND ALARMS, HELPED TO REDUCE DELAYS TO A NEGLIGIBLE MINIMUM.

NIGHT WORK, OR RATHER THE ABSENCE OF IT, IS THE BIGGEST HEADACHE FOR DOCKWORKERS IN THE NEAR AND MIDDLE-EAST.

IT IS TOO DANGEROUS ON SUCH A VULNERABLE COASTLINE TO PERMIT EVEN A GLIMMER OF LIGHT AT NIGHT. "IF WE COULD PUT A NIGHT SHIFT ON," SAID AN EXECUTIVE RECENTLY RETURNED FROM AFRICA, "WE COULD SPEED UP THE TURN-AROUND BY AT LEAST 70 PER CENT."

ANSWERING THE CRITICISM THAT THE BRITISH HADN'T MADE PROPER PROVISION FOR THE HANDLING OF THE INCREASED TRAFFIC IN AFRICAN PORTS, HE WAS CAUTIOUS BUT FIRM.

DEC 10 1941

"IT IS TOO RISKY TO GO INTO DETAIL, BUT EVERYONE KNOWING THE HISTORY OF THE DIFFICULTIES OF INSTALLING MODERN FACILITIES IN THESE PORTS ALSO KNOWS WE CAN ONLY USE WHAT'S THERE NOW.

"ALL OUR TIME IS TAKEN UP HITCHING THE MANHANDLING METHODS OF NATIVES TO MODERN MECHANICS, WITH THE EVEN MORE TICKLISH JOB OF PERSUADING THEM TO IGNORE AIR-RAIDS AND WORK RIGHT THROUGH. A 'WIN THE WAR' SLOGAN IS NO GOOD THERE. IF YOU CAN'T GET THEM TO STICK WHEN THE BOMBS ARE FALLING, ALL THE MACHINERY IN THE WORLD WON'T HELP YOU."

HE ADDED: "BUT I MUST BE FAIR. AFRICAN DOCK LABOR IS THE FINEST IN THE WORLD AT MANHANDLING STUFF, AND THE WAY THEY'VE MOVED ON FROM THEIR LEISURELY ORIENTAL METHODS IS MARVELLOUS."

HE QUOTED AS AN EXAMPLE A RECENT COALING ACHIEVEMENT BY AN EGYPTIAN GANG. "WE HAD TO SHIFT A BOAT ON PRIORITY, AND THEY PUT 1250 TONS OF COAL ABOARD IN AN HOUR AND THREE-QUARTERS, EVERY BIT OF IT MANHANDLED. THAT'S A RECORD."

JAPS SINK TWO BIG BRITISH BATTLESHIPS

Jubilant Japanese Hail Sinking of Warships, Landing in Philippines

TOKIO, Dec. 10 (Official radio received by A. P.) (A. P.).—Imperial headquarters jubilantly announced tonight the sinking of two British capital ships, the new 35,000-ton Prince of Wales and the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse, by Japanese bombers off Malaya; the landing of troops in the Philippines, and the occupation of the U. S. island of Guam.

Acknowledged Japanese losses in the communique broadcast by Domei were two transports sunk and two damaged without loss of life; 51 missing Japanese airplanes, 13 of them Army planes and 38 naval.

FLEET OBLITERATED

Excited crowds were told by loudspeakers that "the British Far Eastern Fleet has been obliterated."

(Britain acknowledged loss of the two ships with perhaps a considerable part of their crews totaling more than 3000 men, but there was no other official indication to support Japan's claim of having "obliterated" Britain's newly assembled Far Eastern flotilla working out of Singapore.

(A DNB dispatch in Berlin quoted Japanese naval men as believing that the 35,000-ton British battleship King George V, a sister ship of the Prince of Wales, also had been sunk, but there was no confirmation of this in Tokio, nor any indication that the King George was in the Far East).

WALES TRIED TO ESCAPE

The Japanese said that the Repulse sank immediately after bomb hits on it at 2:29 P. M. today Tokio time (12:29 A. M. E. S. T.), and that the Prince of Wales was crippled in one attack, tried to escape, and went down under another avalanche of bombs at 2:50 P. M. (12:50 A. M., E. S. T.). The Prince of Wales was specially armored against air attacks.

The action occurred off the eastern Malayan coast, the Japanese said, while on the northern tip of Malaya, Japanese land forces were fighting their way toward Kota Bharu, a British air base, after successful landing operations.

ACTION ON LUZON

The Japanese landing in the Philippines in combined land, sea and air operations was described as "north of Manila" on the island of Luzon.

(A Manila dispatch quoted the Philippine Constabulary as saying enemy parachutists had captured Vigan, which is on the western side of Luzon Island. Earlier Manila dispatches told of a Japanese landing at Aparri, on the northern side of Luzon 250 miles airline from Manila.)

TROOPS HOLD GUAM

The Japanese, announcing the occupation of Guam, island outpost and transpacific Clipper stop about 1500 miles east of Manila, said their troops now were firmly established there.

An 820-ton British naval tug also was reported officially sunk by Japanese units at the mouth of Hong Kong Bay in the spreading war.

Warned Of 10-Year War

All this news of successes caused wild excitement in Tokyo, and Emperor Hirohito dispatched a congratulatory message to Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined fleets.

However, Capt. Hideo Hiraide, naval press section spokesman, uttered a note of caution at a national rally. He asserted that Japan had smashed the main British and United States naval forces in the Pacific, but said the nation must be prepared to wage a ten-year war.

He contended that successes against the British and the smash at the Pearl Harbor base of the United States fleet had reversed the 5-5-3 naval ratio of the 1922 Washington conference in Japan's favor.

Tokio Loudspeakers Inform Japs of Warship Sinkings

Report Preparedness To Take Over Control Of Three Oceans

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 10 (omchi radio pickup).—Loudspeakers today shouted Japan's most tremendous news of war successes so far—the sinking of two of Britain's mightiest capital ships and the landing of Japanese forces in the Philippine Islands—to jubilant throngs of war-stirred Japanese.

Announcing that Britain's new 35,000-ton battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse had gone down in the Pacific off Malaya under bursts of Japanese air bombs, imperial headquarters declared "the British Far Eastern fleet has been obliterated."

(The loss of the two ships was acknowledged by Britain, but there was no indication of other losses to substantiate the Japanese claim that Britain's newly massed naval strength in the Far East had been nullified.)

Japan already had claimed naval supremacy of the Pacific after her Sunday air smash against the United States fleet in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and imperial headquarters today proclaimed Japan prepared to seize control of both the air and water of the Pacific, Indian and Antarctic Oceans.

Troop Landings Reported.

In a virtual broadside of communiques which kept crowds gathered in front of radios and newspaper bulletin boards, the Army and Navy sections of the Imperial headquarters:

Said Japanese landing parties had en set ashore successfully in the Philippines north of Manila in joint land-sea-air operations against Philippine resistance,

Declared that previously-reported occupation of the United States Pacific island of Guam had been confirmed and that Japanese military and naval forces now were securely established there.

Japanese naval units were reported officially also to have approached the mouth of Hong Kong Bay and sunk an 820-ton British naval tug. The announcement indicated that the vessel was doing patrol duty.

(Berlin news and radio announcements quoted Japanese naval authorities as saying they had reason to believe that the British battleship King George V, new 35,000-ton sistership of the Prince of Wales, also had been sunk in the air-sea battle.

(There was no confirmation of this from any other quarter, however, nor even any intimation that she is in that part of the world.)

Against all these successes, the communiques said Japan had lost not one warship.

They acknowledged only that two transports had gone down and two others were damaged, with no loss of life on any of them, and that 51 planes were missing, 13 Army planes and 38 naval.

A terse announcement said the Repulse sank instantly and that the Prince of Wales, crippled and in flight from a first air assault, was destroyed in a second aerial attack.

Hirohito Congratulates Admiral.

Wild excitement greeted the broadcast, cut into all Japanese networks, and Emperor Hirohito dispatched a message of congratulations to Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined fleets.

Capt. Hideo Hiraide, spokesman of the naval press section, urged restraint, however. He told a national rally that Japan had smashed the main British and United States naval forces in the Pacific, but must be prepared to carry on the war for a decade.

Contrary to British and American expectations, he declared, the qualitative strength of the Japanese fleet had risen tremendously since the 1922 Washington Conference, where, he said, Britain and the United States forced on Japan an inferior (5-5-3) naval ratio in hopes of preventing a Japanese naval victory.

But the smash on Pearl Harbor, he declared, has reversed the ratio and "the Japanese Navy will continue to let actions speak in proving to the world the superiority of the Japanese Navy."

The Privy Council met in a 15-minute plenary session with the Emperor, Prime Minister Gen. Hideki Tojo and other cabinet members present. (A radio report heard by C. B. S. in New York said an important foreign policy decision had been discussed in Tokio and might be announced today.)

Heavy Fighting Continues.

A Domei dispatch from Saigon said heavy fighting was occurring between Japanese and British forces near Kota Bharu in northern Malaya.

Official Japanese quarters, in denying what they called "United States claims of the sinking of a Japanese aircraft carrier off Hawaii," suggested that "United States observers might have seen a United States vessel believed to be the U. S. S. Enterprise (19,900-ton aircraft carrier) sink after being hit by Japanese bombs and mistaken it for a Japanese warship."

A member of the navy press section of imperial headquarters asserted that "all Japanese aircraft carriers in the Pacific still are carrying out their tasks with full force" contrary to rumors abroad that one had been sunk.

Continuing, these sources were quoted in a Domei broadcast as saying that the imperial Japanese headquarters had delayed making all such announcements until reports were verified, sacrificing speed for accuracy.

Japanese Claim Landing On Guam

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP)—DNB said today that Japanese Imperial Headquarters had announced at 2.20 P. M. (Tokyo time) that Japanese troops had landed on the United States-owned Pacific island of Guam with the support of naval units.

The German news agency also quoted Japanese naval headquarters as saying that Japnese naval forces had sunk an American submarine off Palau Island on Monday.

Japan Out to Rule Pacific

Spokesmen Say Tokio Must Control Indian and Antarctic Oceans, Too.

DEC 11 1941

Tokio, Dec. 10 (Official radio picked up by AP).—The Japanese Imperial Navy is determined and prepared to secure control of the air and seas in the Pacific, Indian and Antarctic oceans, the spokesman of the naval section of Imperial Headquarters declared today.

By this means, he said, two fundamental policies will be successfully realized—disposing of the China affair and creating the prosperity sphere of East Asia.

However, Capt. Hideo Hiraide, the spokesman, warned a national rally under auspices of the Tokio press that the Japanese people must be prepared to carry on war against the United States and Britain for ten years "even though the Japanese Navy already has smashed the main force of the United States Pacific Fleet."

SINGAPORE, Thursday, Dec. 11—More than 2,000 survivors were saved from the British warships Prince of Wales and Repulse, it was officially announced today.

Several hundred survivors of the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse, sunk by the Japanese in the South China Sea, were rescued by a destroyer today and brought here. Their number and the circumstances of the rescue were not disclosed.

British Destroyer Rescues Survivors

New York, Thursday, Dec. 11 (AP)—The British radio, in a broadcast heard by CBS this morning, said 600 to 700 survivors of the Prince of Wales and Repulse had been landed at Singapore.

CBS Reporter Aboard Sunken British Ship

Singapore, Dec. 10.—(AP.)—Cecil Brown, 33, Columbia Broadcasting System reporter, was on board the Prince of Wales when she was sunk, informed quarters said today.

With Brown went O'Dowd Gallagher, London Daily Express war correspondent, who had covered the Chinese-Japanese and the Spanish civil wars, and the battles of France and Britain.

Brown cabled his New York office on Monday morning:

"Out-towning four days. Swell story."

Subsequently two cables were received signed by Brown, but which, it was explained, could have been written by someone back-stopping for him.

Brown, a native of New Brighton, Pa., went to Europe as a staff member of International News Service, then resigned to take a CBS post in Rome. He was expelled from Italy last spring on the ground that his reporting was unfriendly to the Fascist regime.

Brown reached Belgrade a few hours before the first German bombing in the invasion of Yugoslavia. After the Balkan campaign Brown was attached to the British Middle East forces as CBS correspondent with headquarters in Cairo and was recently transferred to Singapore.

His wife, Martha Brown, lives in New York.

JAPANESE SAY AIR ATTACKS CAUSED LOSS

Britain Left With 19 Battleships After Worst Single Tragedy

Australian Reaction Puts Curbs On Business To Conserve Supplies

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 10—Two Great British men of war, the 35,000-ton battleship Prince of Wales and the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse, were sunk today by the Japanese in action off Malaya.

The full story had not yet unfolded here tonight. There was no information as to how they had been destroyed aside from Japan's claim that they had gone down under air attack—an unprecedented feat, if true, recalling reports that Japanese pilots have been making "human torpedoes" of themselves by diving headlong at the objective.

Dispatches from Sydney reported that the loss of the Prince of Wales and Repulse had stunned the people of Australia and altered the whole concepion of Australian preparations.

Concedes "Initial Momentum"

The Australian Prime Minister, John Curtin, immediately promulgated regulations for the conservation of vital stocks for essential services.

"There can no longer be business as usual in Australia," he proclaimed, "but only concentration on war production and war necessities. Frankly, the enemy's striking power in the air has given the enemy an initial momentum which only a maximum effort can arrest. There must be an end to holiday plans."

The Australian War Cabinet and War Advisory Council at once began discussing measures to meet the new position.

Worst Since War Began

The sinking of the two mighty ships was the worst single tragedy to befall the Royal Navy since the war began. Nevertheless, it left Britain with at least nineteen battleships afloat or building.

Shortly after Prime Minister Churchill had informed Parliament of the news, the Germany agency DNB attributed to Japanese naval authorities an expression of belief that the 35,000-ton battleship King George V also had gone down.

Nothing was said as to the basis for this alleged belief; there was no confirmation from any quarter that the George V had been even involved in the action off Malaya.

The Prime Minister made his announcement with utter candor, not sparing the House.

"Bad News For House"

"I have bad news for the House which I though I should impart to them at the earliest possible moment," he said.

"The report has been received from Singapore that H. M. S. Prince of Wales and H. M. S. Repulse have been sunk while carrying out operations against a Japanese attack upon Malaya.

"No details are yet available except those contained in a Japanese official communique which claims both ships were sunk by an air attack.

"I shall take occasion at an early date to make a short statement of the general war situation which has, from many points of view, both favorably and adversely undergone important changes in the last few days."

Loss Of Life Not Known

The loss of life aboard the Repulse and Prince of Wales, which together carried crews aggregating more than 3,000 men was not known.

[Alfred Duff Cooper, the British Minister in the Far East, was heard by CBS to state in a broadcast from Singapore that this loss had been considerable.]

The Prince of Wales, launched in 1939 and especially armored against air attack, participated in hunting down the German battleship Bismarck after the latter had destroyed the British battle cruiser Hood.

Scene Of "Charter Meeting"

It was aboard the Prince of Wales that Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt drew up the Atlantic charter.

She had arrived in Singapore last week as flagship of Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, commander of the newly created Eastern Fleet.

In the entire previous course of the war only two British capital ships had been lost—the battleship Royal Oak, 29,150 tons, which was sunk by a German submarine on October 14, 1939, in Scapa Flow; and the Hood, a 42,100-tonner.

JAPANESE TELL OF BATTLE

The Japanese communique, as circulated about the world, stated:

"The British Far Eastern Fleet was sighted off the eastern coast of the Malay Peninsula at 11.30 o'clock this morning and Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

"The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits at 1429 (2.29 P. M.).

"The Prince of Wales was hit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits.

"She attempted to escape, but at 1450 (2.50 P. M.) she received additional hits and was sunk."

FIRST SUCH AERIAL VICTORY

If these claims are established this will have been the first time in history that a battleship has been sunk by unaided aerial action.

The Vichy radio during the day broadcast a Tokio dispatch which stated that Japanese naval airmen in attacking the United States Fleet at Pearl Harbor had, after releasing their torpedoes, "flung their planes straight at their objectives" in suicide dives.

This dispatch, which was attributed to the Japanese newspaper Nichi Nichi, added that Japanese flying boats "flew an unprecedented distance to reach Pearl Harbor" and that "not a single one of our airmen expected to return alive."

Heavy Casualties Reported; English Far Eastern Fleet Obliterated, Tokio Asserts

By the Associated Press.

DEC 11 1941

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Britain lost two of her mightiest capital ships today—the powerful new 35,000-ton battleship Prince of Wales and the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse—both sunk by the Japanese off Malaya in the most disastrous single blow struck to the British Navy in the whole war.

Their loss was announced by the Admiralty without word of how they were sent to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean or of the fate of thier crews, together more than 3,000 men.

The normal complement of the Prince of Wales is 1,500 men and that of the Repulse is between 1,181 and 1,205 men.

A Japanese communique said the two ships were destroyed by air attack. This, if confirmed, would be the first known sinking of any warship of the size either of the Prince of Wales or the Repulse by aerial bombardment.

King George Declared Sunk.

(D.N.B. quoted Japanese naval authorities today as announcing they had reason to believe that the 35,000-ton British battleship King George V also had been sunk with the Prince of Wales and Repulse.

(No explanation was offered for this reported belief and there was no confirmation from any other quarter that the new British battleship, sister ship of the Prince of Wales, had been hit or even involved in the air-sea battle.

(The German wireless, heard in New York, carried this: "Flash—Tokio—the Japanese Naval Office announced that also the British naval battleship King George has been sunk."

(Imperial Japanese headquarters declared today that "the British Far Eastern battlefleet has been obliterated" with the sinking of the Prince of Wales and Repulse, according to a pickup of the official Japanese radio.

(Alfred Duff Cooper, British Minister in the Far East, announced in a broadcast from Singapore that there had been considerable loss of life on the Prince of Wales and the Repulse, C. B. S. said today.

(Worse than the loss of the ships is that of the many brave sailors and highly-trained officers who have died, as they would have wished to die, fighting for their country," Mr. Duff Cooper was quoted as saying.)

The Prince of Wales, only recently dispatched to the Pacific, was the flagship of the fleet Britain has massed and organized to defend the empire in the Far East. She was especially armored against air attack.

Churchill Announces Loss.

Prime Minister Churchill made public the announcement of the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse in a terse statement before the shocked House of Commons.

He gave the news biuntly:

"I have bad news for the House which I thought I should impart to them at the earliest possible moment," he declared. "The report has been received from Singapore that H. M. S. Prince of Wales and H. M. S. Repulse have been sunk while carrying out operations against a Japanese attack upon Malaya.

"No details are yet available except those contained in a Japanese official communique which claims both ships were sunk by an air attack.

"I shall take occasion at an early date to make a short statement of the general war situtlon which has.

from many points of view, both favorably and adversely undergone important changes in the last few days."

Colonial Secretary Lord Moyne made a similar statement in the House of Lords.

Battleships Remaining.

With the Prince of Wales and Repulse lost, Britain still had at least 19 battleships afloat or building.

DEC 11 1941

Battleships now in service are five of the 30,000-ton Queen Elizabeth class, built during the last war; four of the 29,000-ton Royal Sovereign class; the Nelson and Rodney of 33,000 tons, commissioned in 1927, and the battle cruiser Renown of 32,000 tons, the only one of three of this type in commission at the start of the war.

The Prince of Wales was one of five ships of the King George V class, all of which were scheduled for completion in 1941.

The King George V itself is known to be in service.

Two 40,000-tonners, the Lion and Temeraire, mounting 16-inch rifles, are scheduled for completion in 1943.

The Navy's program called for two more ships to be completed in 1944, but no names have been assigned to these and no announcement made of progress on them.

One of Navy's Blackest Days.

The warships went down in one of the British Navy's blackest days "whilst carrying out operations against the Japanese attack on Malaya," the Admiralty said.

It added that "no details were yet available except those contained in the Japanese official communique, which claims that both ships were sunk by air attack."

The Prince of Wales was flying the flag of Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, commander of the British fleet in Eastern waters.

Previous to today's blow, Britain in more than two years of war had lost only two of her capital ships, the battleship Royal Oak, 29,150 tons, sunk by a German submarine October 14, 1939, in Scapa Flow, and the 42,100-ton battle cruiser Hood, sunk by the German battleship Bismarck May 24, 1941, in the Atlantic.

Approximately 1,300 men were lost aboard the Hood and 810 men aboard the Royal Oak.

Helped Hunt Down Bismarck.

The Prince of Wales was one of the vessels which hunted down the Bismarck in the Royal Navy's quick revenge for the loss of the Hood. The Atlantic charter was drawn up aboard her in August by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

She arrived in Singapore last week as the flagship of Admiral Phillips, proudly leading a flotilla to reinforce the British Navy in face of the Japanese threat which turned into war.

The British announcement today said only:

"A report has been received from Singapore that H. M. S. Prince of Wales and Repulse have been sunk while carrying out operations against the Japanese in attacks on Malaya."

The announcement came a short time after Japanese imperial headquarters in Tokio had broadcast a communique announcing that the two vessels had been sunk by Japanese bombers this afternoon, Tokio time, off the east coast of the Malay Peninsula.

Sank Instantly, Japs Say.

The Repulse, the Japanese said, sank instantly after being hit by the Japanese air bombs, while the Prince of Wales was damaged, sought to escape and then was attacked again, suffering additional hits which sent her under the waves.

There was no mention in the Japanese announcement of the crews.

A British spokesman said there would be a statement shortly on the general situation which, he said, from many points of view was both favorable and adverse and had undergone important changes during the past few days.

The text of the Japanese communique said:

"The British Far Eastern fileet was sighted off the eastern coast of the Malay Peninsula at 11:30 o'clock this morning and Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

"The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits at 14:29 (2:29 p.m.).

"The Prince of Wales was hit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits.

"She attempted to escape, but at 14:50 (2:50 p.m.) she received additional hits and was sunk."

Laid Down in 1937.

The Prince of Wales was laid down January 1, 1937, along with the keel of the 35,000-ton King George V, at the earliest possible moment after Britain was freed of naval pact restriction.

Her design included an improved distribution of deck and side armor, as well as an improved system of underwater protection.

Armament includes ten 14-inch guns, sixteen 5.25-inch guns and four multiple pompoms for use against aircraft.

The 14-inch guns are a new model with an effective range greater than 15-inch guns mounted on earlier ships.

The Repulse was begun January 25, 1915, and completed in August, 1916, as one of the "hush ships" of the World War period. Subsequently she was modernized from lessons learned in the World War.

She carried the Prince of Wales, who later became Eward VIII and now is the Duke of Windsor, to South Africa in 1925 and escorted King George VI and Queen Elizabeth part of the way across the Atlantic in 1939 when they visited Canada and the United States.

Since the outbreak of the war with Germany, there have been many German claims that she had been damaged or disabled, by air attack or by submarines. In June, D. N. B., official German news agency, said the Repulse and the battleship Malaya both were put out of action by U-boat torpedoes.

Her armament includes six 15-inch guns, 12 4-inch guns, eight 4-inch anti-aircraft guns and a variety of smaller guns.

Last Man Out Of Dunkerque Was Aboard Cruiser Repulse

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 10—The commander of the sunken British battle cruiser Repulse was the senior naval officer at Dunkerque and one of the last men to leave the beaches of that bloodied battle ground in the great British evacuation.

He was Capt. W. G. Tennant, of Worcestershire, a 51-year-old navigation expert and bird lover. Lord Gort's dispatches telling of the British evacuation at Dunkerque ended with these words:

"By midnight on June 2-3 all the remaining British troops had been embarked. Major-General Alexander, with his senior naval officer, toured the beaches and the harbors in a motorboat, and being satisfied that no British troops were left ashore, they themselves left for England."

The senior naval officer was Tennant.

The catain of the second British capital ship acknowledged lost today, the battleship Prince of Wales, was Capt. John Catterall Leach, who was injured in his ship's fight against the German battleship Bismarck and who was returned to service from sick leave especially to take charge of the Prince of Wales when that vessel took Prime Minister Churchill to sea for his historic meeting with President Roosevelt last summer.

Berlin, Thursday, Dec. 11 (AP)—DNB quoted the Tokyo Imperial Naval Command today as announcing that the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse were sunk about noon Wednesday off Kwangcha, on the coast of Malaya.

(Maps of Malaya show no "Kwangcha.")

It said both ships had been closely watched by a Japanese submarine which reported when they left their base, and that they then were followed and attacked by Japanese submarines, with Japanese planes later engaging them.

King George V Also Hinted Sunk

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP)—DNB quoted Japanese naval authorities today as announcing they had reason to believe that the 35,000-ton British battleship King George V also had been sunk with the Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse in air attacks on Britain's Far Eastern fleet.

(The German wireless, heard in New York, carried this: "Flash—Tokyo—The Japanese naval office announced that also the British naval battleship 'King George' has been sunk."

DEC 11 1941

(There was no confirmation of this from any other quarter, however, nor even any intimation that she is in that part of the world.)

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Singapore, Thursday, Dec. 11 (AP)—Several hundred survivors of the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse sunk by the Japanese in the South China Sea, were rescued by a destroyer today and brought here. Their number and the circumstances of the rescue were not disclosed.

British land forces meanwhile consolidated their positions along strong lines in Northern Malaya, where the Japanese had driven a wedge across the frontier.

Singapore heard in stunned silence of the sinking of the two powerful capital ships which led Britain's new eastern fleet into Malayan waters only eight days ago. Naval authorities said they were unable at present to give details of the grievous setback to the fleet, which had gone on a sweep of the sea looking for Japanese naval units.

The Japanese in their land drive apparently had captured hotly-contested Kota Bharu airbase, but elsewhere on the long peninsula leading to Singapore British defenses were firm.

British and Indian troops reformed and re-organized south of Kota Bharu after heavy fighting in the jungles just below the Thai border, and a communique said they were in excellent spirits and their losses comparatively light.

The Japanese who landed at Kuantan, on the Malayan east coast about 200 miles above Singapore and 100 miles below Kota Bharu were battering vainly against strong British positions, it was announced.

"The situation at Kuantan remains unchanged," said a night communique. "The position there remains intact."

Only at Kota Bharu on the ragged north border had the Japanese made any advance, and at one point in this frontier area a Punjabi motorized unit trapped and destroyed seven Japanese tanks.

In the seas about Malaya and in the air, both warships and planes from the Dutch East Indies reinforced the British in strength.

Netherlands bombers were helping British, Australian and New Zealand air units to pound Japanese transport ships and air bases in Thailand. Dutch warships (possibly including new cruisers) were with the British Far Eastern fleet in the China Sea.

Official advices from Hongkong, meanwhile, acknowledged there had been some Japanese penetration of the colony's mainland defenses in the land attack which began Monday.

The attackers were declared to have been stopped, however, and there was even better news from Chungking, China—a report of an offensive by Chinese troops against the rear of the Japanese forces attacking Hongkong and an assault directed against Japanese-held Canton.

Juantan, under Japanese attack in Malaya, is important because it is the hub of roads leading south to Singapore and west 70 miles to the North-South Malayan railway, but informed persons expressed the belief that because of the strength of British defenses the Japanese are likely to make little progress there unless they achieve air superiority and can put overpowering forces ashore.

Singapore had two air raid alarms last night and one this morning, but saw no Japanese planes. At least five raiders were shot down Tuesday, during a battle over Butterworth, an important station on the western trans-Malayan railway on the mainland opposite Penang Island.

The food situation remained good on Singapore Island, but the public was urged to buy reasonable amounts. Asiatics still were leaving the congested downtown district of Singapore, but many were refused entry to Johore State, which is linked to Singapore by a causeway.

North Malaya Air Base Taken By Nipponese

By C. YATES McDANIEL,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 10.—The British apparently have lost Kota Bharu, the northern Malaya air base where the Japanese have landed strong forces just inside the Thailand frontier, but a communique indicated tonight they have balked Japanese drives both in that area and at Kuantan, only 200 miles north of here.

The communique mentioned Japanese tanks for the first time, saying seven were trapped and destroyed yesterday in the Kedah area along the Thailand border by a British Punjabi motorized unit.

British troops, "after acquitting themselves splendidly have reorganized south of Kota Bharu and now are in excellent spirits after heavy fighting over a wide area yesterday," the communique said.

"Our casualties remain comparatively light," it added.

"Elsewhere our frontier remains unbroken."

DEC 11 1941

Positions Remain Intact.

"The situation in Kuantan has been unchanged since the morning communique and the position there remains intact."

The communique was issued at 10 p.m. (7 a.m. E. S. T.).

Strong Netherlands Indies warship and warplane reinforcements had joined British land and air forces in trying to check the Japanese assault on Northern Malaya in the spreading battle of Southeastern Asia.

30.24— 13443

(Probably because of local censorship, this dispatch did not mention the loss of the 35,000-ton British battleship Prince of Wales or the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse.)

Transports and River Pounded.

Dutch bombers and fighters flew in yesterday and already have joined British, Australian and New Zealand air units which have been pounding Japanese transports and land bases in southern Thailand since Monday.

The Dutch flyers also have been fighting alongside British Empire air forces to contest Japan's admittedly vigorous efforts to win quick mastery of the air.

Battle Raging At Kuantan

Dutch warships are with Britain's eastern fleet in the China Sea.

British land and air forces were reported in action this morning trying to check Japan's latest—and nearest—threat to Singapore at Kuantan, on the Malayan east coast 200 miles north of this vital fortress.

Details were not available concerning this new Japanese landing attempt, but Britain was known to have strong defenses around Kuantan, the hub of roads leading south along the coast to Singapore and west toward the important north-south railroad seventy miles in the interior.

An official British announcement said today, "It can now be stated there has been no confirmation of the unofficial report included in Monday's communique that mustard gas has been used by the Japanese."

Informed sources expressed belief that the Japanese threat to Kuantan was not likely to become serious unless the enemy is able to gain air superiority and put overpowering land forces ashore. They explained that a movement south or west would be possible only along the roads, because they cross wild, impenetrable jungle.

Singapore had two night air alarms and one this morning, but no hostile planes appeared. At least five raiders were downed yesterday in an air battle which developed when the Japanese attempted a strong attack on Butterworth, an important station on the western Trans-Malayan railroad, on the mainland opposite Penang Island.

Johore Bars Refugees

Several Japanese aircraft were reported reconnoitering over southern Malaya, although none appeared here.

Malaya's organized manpower was fully mobilized last night with the mustering of the local defense corps for full-time service.

Asiatic populations continued to leave congested downtown Singapore, but neighboring Johore state, linked to Singapore by a causeway, yesterday refused entry to any persons without relatives or definite destinations there because of fear that an influx of homeless would hamper defense and upset long-made food plans.

Authorities said the food situation on Singapore Island was good but urged the populace to buy only reasonable requirements.

Reports from the Burmese capital of Rangoon said Burma was ready for any eventuality.

Chinese dispatches said that Chinese forces were trying to relieve the Japanese pressure on Hongkong, Britain's No. 2 Far Eastern bastion, by strong, widespread attacks on the Japanese in southern Kwangtung province.

Round Up Chutists At Vigan

DEC 11 1941

Invaders Use Air And Sea Arms To Cover Landings

By CLARK LEE

Manila, Dec. 10 (AP)—Invading Japanese troops and parachutists were reported tonight to have won footholds of uncertain tenacity along 160 miles of the north and northwest Luzon coast of the Philippines, despite a smashing assault by United States Army and Navy fliers on one transport convoy of six ships.

The United States Army announced officially that the Japanese, in heavy force, swept against Northern Luzon from Vigan to Aparri, that landings were effected at Aparri and perhaps several contiguous points on the north coast and that the six-troop convoy had been crippled in early morning landing operations near Vigan, on the northwest.

The Philippine constabulary said main Japanese forces also had succeeded in landing near Vigan and there was one report that the town had been taken by Japanese parachutists.

(A London radio report from Manila later said a number of parachutists had been rounded up in the Vigan area).

A second Army communique late in the afternoon said that the situation in North Luzon was unchanged and that no other landings had been confirmed aside from those mentioned earlier, about Aparri.

(A Washington communique indicated that the air attack on the six ships had defeated attempts to land between Vigan and San Fernando, the latter about 150 miles from Manila).

Manila and its own naval and military establishments were under ferocious and sustained aerial attack in the bright afternoon sunshine.

Smoke columns were visible from Nichols Air Depot; fires burned at the Cavite Naval Base, and the raiders struck at a line of merchant ships anchored outside the breakwater of Manila Bay and at Fort William McKinley.

More than 100 bombs were dropped in the first hour of the attack. Several Japanese planes were reported shot down.

U. S. Forces Swing Into Action

American forces swung into immediate action in the north and west to fight off the first full-fledged invasion of United States territory since the War of 1812.

In the early morning, army and navy flyers roared to the attack against the six Japanese transports off Vigan on the west coast, scoring direct hits on three, capsizing and sinking one and damaging three others with near misses. The ships, a communique said, were heavily escorted.

The Japanese used both naval and aerial bombardment to cover their operations which, a communique from the headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the United States commander in chief, said were "in heavy force."

Attacked From Air, Shelled

Aparri was pounded from the air throughout Tuesday night and then shelled by warships, while the first troops landed at dawn at near-by Pamplona.

American troops, with the support of the Philippine army, were going into action on the ground. The nature of their operations cannot be disclosed at present.

Those Japanese landing operations which were carried out were along some eighty miles of China Sea coast and a similar distance on the Babuyan Channel coast.

This coast line for the most part is favorable for landings. For many years Filipinos there have complained to the authorities that Japanese fishing boats frequently visited the region and made soundings, but few of them were ever pursued and captured.

Face Rough Terrain

From both Vigan and Aparri, however, the invaders face rough terrain if they hope to advance overland toward Manila.

Aparri lies at the edge of a fertile farming region which extends inland for some distance, but beyond this lies a range of almost impassable mountains in which the jungle is so dense and the ground so difficult that only men on foot can cut their way through. Savage head-hunters populate the country.

A single narrow road leads southward from Vigan, flanked on one side by the sea and on the other by rugged mountains.

Intense Excitement

Even before the day's air attack, the invasion news created intense excitement in Manila. Many persons were leaving the city, taxis were absent from the streets and the two-wheeled horse-drawn calesas were hard to find. Most business went on normally.

Seventy-one planes attacking in four waves dropped 200 heavy bombs in the attacks on airfields, naval establishments and merchant ships in the afternoon assaults. Anti-aircraft shells burst well beneath them and fighters, which were seen rising off to meet the bombers, apparently failed to gain altitude fast enough to engage them.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire greeted the first wave of twenty-seven planes, which flew over at about 20,000 to 25,000 feet. The Japanese circled the city three times in perfect formation and dropped 100 bombs, centering their attack on military objectives.

A. A. Fire Starts Again

Smoke began to spiral up from Nichols Field. The attack began about 12.40 and ended at 1 P. M. The heavy gunfire ceased momentarily, then burst out in renewed fury at the formation which by then was disappearing into clouds off Cavite.

The faint drone of motors sounded from high above anti-aircraft bursts which dotted bright blue patches of sky with huge smoke rings over the bay. The second wave of attackers came on despite the anti-aircraft fire.

Then water began spouting in high white columns along a line of merchant ships in the bay. The bomb geysers grew in precision from the merchantmen nearest the land, working toward Cavite. Perhaps forty bombs were dropped in this attack.

Oil Tanks Ablaze

A moment later columns of dirt and smoke sprouted from the direction of Cavite. A few minutes later flames were visible. The two largest fires had the appearance of oil tanks ablaze. Some bombs were dropped in the water off Cavite.

Fifteen minutes after the first two assaults another wave of nine bombers appeared over Cavite, flying in close formation high above the incessant anti-aircraft fire. The planes flew in a formation of three perfect V's. More bombs were dropped toward Cavite, raising at least two new smoke plumes.

Then Toward Ships

Then the formation swung toward the merchantmen. Anoher load of bombs was dropped. The planes circled over the docks and the seaward edge of the city, skirting McKinley Field, where more bombs dropped, then roared out to sea past Cavite.

The bombers roared overhead with what to those on the ground was agonizing slowness, heedless of anti-aircraft fire. They had hardly disappeared when eight other planes in close formation made a fourth assault, centering on Cavite, where perhaps thirty bombs were dropped.

There was no panic among the hundreds watching from the bay front. The civilians slowly dispersed after the last flight of bombers had disappeared over the horizon.

4-MOTORED BOMBERS

Many giant four-engined bombers were said to have been among the Japanese attacking planes.

Reports from Baguio, between Manila and the north coast, said two of a flight of three Japanese bombers apparently returning to their base after the Manila raid were shot down by United States fighters. Crewmen bailed out and were captured.

A boatload of casualties, including four dead, arrived at Manila from Cavite. The injured were said to have come from the Canacao naval dispensary at Cavite, which was hit by a bomb. Officials decided to move the dispensary to the mainland.

CIVILIAN BOAT HIT

One civilian boat at the Cavite dock was said to have been hit. Fires were still burning in the Cavite area six hours after the raid.

DEC 11 1941

Five Japanese fishing boats sailed up the Pasig River in the heart of Manila, apparently unaware that the war was on. Soldiers and police fired on the boats when they failed to heed a warning to halt. The 10 Japanese fishermen on board were arrested.

Parachutists Capture Port.

Manila, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Japanese parachutists were reported to have captured the northwestern Luzon port of Vigan today and sea-borne troops landed near the northern port of Aparri.

DEC 11 1941

An army communique said that the Japanese first anded at Aparri "and perhaps other contiguous points" nd conducted landing operations at Vigan amid bomb-ng by American planes which capsized one transport and damaged two of five others. A second communique said at 4:45 P. M., Manila time (3:45 A. M., Eastern standard time) said no further landings had been made and that "the situation in northern Luzon remains the same."

The 4:45 P. M. communique continued: "There is no evidence of any landings other than those mentioned this morning. Military objectives in the vicinity of Manila were bombed early this afternoon. While not yet verified, it is reported that the Japanese did not escape unscathed. Several planes were reported shot down. One report from a reliable source said a plane piloted by a Filipino aviator accounted for one Japanese aircraft."

The first landing was said to have been made at Pamplona, close to Aparri. Filipinos familiar with the region said that although there were no large harbors, many places along the coast were favorable for such landings. They declared that for years Japanese fishing boats had been seen along the coast, taking soundings.

There was intense excitement but no panic in Manila. Many rushed to leave the city but conveyances were hard to find. No taxis were running, and most of the two-wheeled, horse-drawn calesas were engaged. General business continued normal.

DEC 11 1941

Manila Under Aerial Attack.

Manila was under aerial attack from 12:40 P. M. (11:40 P. M., Tuesday, Eastern standard time) until 1 P. M.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire ceased momentarily then burst out with renewed violence at a target invisible in the clouds off Cavite. The faint sound of airplane motors could be heard far overhead and anti-aircraft shell bursts blossomed white in bright blue patches of sky.

Smoke was seen from the vicinity of Nichols Air Depot. Mushrooms of water spouted among merchantmen in the harbor. A few minutes later flames could be seen from two large fires.

After the first two assaults nine more bombers were seen high over Cavite, well above the bursts of anti-aircraft fire. They flew in the Japanese three-V close formation. These, too, dropped bombs on Cavite and unloaded other explosives over the merchantmen. A final attack was made eight minutes later by eight other bombers circling high over Cavite and the harbor shipping.

Reliable but unofficial reports said that the Japanese also bombed Iba and Clark Field en route to the Manila raids. Iba and Clark Field are north of Manila.

Police said more than 100 bombs fell in the Manila and bay area, but civilians looked on without a sign of panic from vantage places along the bayfront.

Two of three Japanese bombers which flew over Baguio, north of Manila, late today were shot down by United States Army flyers. The crews of the downed planes took to their parachutes and were captured. No bombs were dropped on Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines.

All indications were that a heavy battle still was raging all along the northern and northwest coasts of the island, with naval, air and land forces involved.

An army communique issued shortly before noon by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United States commander in the Far East, said the exact strength of the attacking Japanese forces was not known, but declared:

"The enemy is in heavy force off the northern coast of Luzon, extending from Vigan to Aparri."

In terse official language the bulletin told of the damage inflicted upon the attacking Japanese flotilla by the American air force.

Communications Cut.

"Our bombing attacks on these ships created grave damage. Three transports were directly hit, one immediately capsizing. Bombs were observed hitting close to three others."

Advices relayed from the constabulary commander at Tuguegarao, capital of Cagayan province, where Aparri is situated, said the Japanese had paved the way for the landing attempt there with an aerial bombardment through the night.

Shortly after this report was received all communications with Vigan, Aparri and Tuguegarao were interrupted.

Vigan, a city of 19,939, is the capital of Ilocos Sur province. Aparri, the only safe port on the north coast, has a population of about 20,000.

[The official Tokio radio announced early today that Japanese forces had succeeded in landing at several points north of Manila and that operations still were proceeding. It was reported the sinking of an American submarine off Palau Island and an unidentified American transport of 15,000 tons in Manila Bay.]

The sea-borne Japanese assault on northern Luzon came as United States and Philippine officials strove to stamp out an apparently well-organized Fifth-Column movement accused of causing two false air raid alarms in Manila during the night and of setting flares to guide Japanese bombers to targets around the capital the previous night.

Observers here, speculating on the Japanese objective in attacking Northern Luzon, said that the invaders faced very difficult terrain if they hoped to advance overland to Manila.

Mountains Intervene.

Aparri is on the edge of a fertile farming region which extends back about 150 miles from the coast, but beyond this lies a range of almost impassable mountains which extends southward to within 100 miles of Manila.

The jungle in those mountains is so dense and the terrain so rough that only men on foot can get through. The country is populated with savage native tribesmen descended from headhunters.

From Vigan only a single narrow road, unsuitable for the movement of heavy equipment, leads southward, flanked on one side by the sea and the other by rugged mountains.

The two false air-raid alarms which sounded in Manila during the night were attributed by Alfredo Eugenio, Philippine national air-raid precautions head, to spurious telephone calls to persons in charge of the sirens.

Senor Eugenio announced the arrest of two air-raid workers of undisclosed nationality and said that two more were under surveillance. He issued instructions that hereafter alarms should be sounded only on orders direct from his office, and said he would recommend that the whole alarm system be taken over by the army.

He expressed also a belief that the fifth columnists had hoped to cause confusion and panic among the uneducated masses in Manila by sounding the alarms.

Air-raid observers reported that during the alerts they saw numerous red rockets rising from various places in and around the city. One series shot up like fireworks from a crowded downtown area and another from the sea wall.

There still were no official figures on casualties resulting from the widespread air raids directed against Luzon since the initial assault, but an army announcement last night declared that losses had been heavy on both sides.

American pilots and anti-aircraft gunners declared that the suddenness of the Japanese assault had given the raiders an initial advantage, but expressed full confidence.

"The next time we'll give 'em hell," declared one gunner.

An American pilot said that thus far the Japanese had got the worst of it in individual aerial dogfights.

"The got the first jump on us, but we're not overly impressed," he said, "and we certainly don't think they are super men."

Tales of Heroism.

Tales of courage and heroism came from air fields on which the Japanese had made surprise attacks, with stories of American gunners blazing away at the raiders from grounded planes.

"One bird sat in the tail of a bomber on the ground and kept blazing away at those diving Japs," said one soldier. "They shot the seat away under him and wing off his plane, but he was still firing when they went away.

"A private in another grounded bomber kept his machine gun going until the gasoline tanks caught fire and got so hot he had to get out."

Another observer told how an American lieutenant, piloting a pursuit plane, "got on a Jap's tail at 20,000 feet and rode him clear into the ground."

Japanese planes dropped leaflets Monday over the province of Ilocos Norte in extreme northwestern Luzon urging the Filipinos to revolt and stating "we are here to finish the war in the Far East and liberate the Filipino people."

Filipino soldiers at an army training camp at Davao cheered raiding Japanese planes Monday afternoon and realized their mistake only when the Japanese opened fire with machine-guns, belated reports said today. At Baguio the populace made a similar mistake.

Air Battle Over Manila

By RUSSELL BRINES
Associated Press Correspondent

Manila, Dec. 10—Japanese four-motored bombers smashed at military objectives and shipping moored in the harbor today in a prolonged assault on the Manila area that started huge fires at Cavite naval base and sent columns of smoke spiraling up from Nichols air depot.

American interceptor planes and Japanese dive bombers fought a brisk battle over Nichols Field and one plane was believed to have been hit.

I watched the entire attack from a beach house one and one half miles from Nichols. Hundreds of other persons along the beach front huddled against fences and beneath trees during the four separate afternoon attacks.

Flames Seen 9 Miles Away

From where I stood, nine miles directly across the bay from Cavite, flames roaring high in the air could be seen at the end of the raid. Smoke also rose from a smaller fire at Cavite an hour after the assault. Another Cavite fire apparently was extinguished. Black smoke hovered over Nichols Field.

After first circling the city in two formations of twenty-seven planes each the Japanese returned seaward, then split up for the assaults. High in the clouds above the bay at least six dive bombers peeled off from the main units and roared swiftly down toward Nichols. The bomb blasts shook my house.

DEC 11 1941

The attack stirred alive a gigantic hornets' nest as American interceptors which had cleared over the air base throughout the morning went into action. After their swoop onto the field the bombers climbed high and split up. Individual dogfights developed, with the Americans trying to get onto the tail of the Japanese planes.

Could See Fighting

The fighting could be seen through scattered clouds directly over my head. Anti-aircraft guns cracked throughout the city and the machine guns of the combatant planes rattled incessantly.

The fight lasted at least fifteen minutes. One plane emitted a light stream of smoke from its motors and disappeared inland. Some witnesses reported that it had glided toward McKinley Field, after which a high burst of smoke was seen. Another plane slanted seaward beyond Cavite, straightened near the water, then disappeared over the horizon. The fight ended when the fast bombers climbed high and headed seaward with the Americans following.

Meanwhile, smoke began spiraling up from Nichols Field. This attack started about 12.40 and ended at 1 P. M.

Heavy gunfire ceased momentarily then burst out again at planes hidden in the clouds off Cavite. As a second wave of bombers came on the smoke rings of anti-aircraft shells puffed out far below them.

The planes dropped forty bombs at columns of merchant vessels, sending up high waterspouts. Columns of dirt and smoke also shot into the air from the direction of Cavite and flames roared up, apparently from an oil-tank fire. Several bombs fell into the water off Cavite.

Third Flight Attacks.

A third flight of nine bombers attacked some fifteen minutes after the first assaults. Flying in close V formations, they appeared over Cavite, apparently safe from anti-aircraft shells bursting below them.

The attackers dropped a cluster of bombs, sending up two new smoke plumes from Cavite, swung toward the merchantmen and dropped another salvo, then bombed the Fort McKinley area and sped back out to sea.

This attack was followed by a fourth in which eight planes in close formation dropped some thirty bombs on Cavite.

U. S. Transport Claimed At Manila by Japanese

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Japanese submarines sank a 15,000-ton United States transport in Manila Bay yesterday, the German radio said today in quoting a Japanese communique. Japanese naval units said they sank an American submarine off the Island of Palau, 180 miles east of the Philippines.

A British armored merchant ship of 6,000 tons was also reported sunk off Hong Kong.

The Japanese claimed that Hong Kong was blockaded by land and sea and that it was again heavily raided yesterday.

In North Malaya the Japanese reported occupation of important key positions.

"The attack on Hawaii, Guam, the Philippines, Wake and Singapore started simultaneously," the Japanese announced, asserting they had lost only 10 aircraft and no naval vessels.

Naval Battle Reported

London, Dec. 10. — (AP) — The German radio said today that a battle between United States and Japanese fleets was in progress off Manila, but gave no indication of the source of the information. Possibly catching its own report on the rebound, the station later quoted the Boston radio as saying a "great naval battle" was raging near Manila.

One Day Of War Turns Kids Into Tough Soldiers

DEC 11 1941

By CLARK LEE

Manila, Dec. 10 (AP)—One day of war at Manila has made tough, determined soldiers out of a good many American youngsters who only yesterday were just kids in soldiers' uniforms.

I spent the night with a group of them on anti-aircraft duty guarding Manila Bay. Their detachment shot down the first Japanese plane felled by anti-aircraft fire in the Clark Field battle and later downed four others, plus one badly hit and probably unable to return to its carrier.

They were dog-tired from daylong, nightlong duty but quickly sprang to man their guns when he heard the sound of Japanese bombers approaching at 2:25 this morning in a softly moonlit sky. They withheld their fire because they did not sight the planes.

In the drawling accent of a Southwestern State they said: "Yesterday we'd a let fly anywhere at the sky."

Yesterday they were so green that when 54 Japanese bombers came over at 10,000 feet with the sunlight painting their silvered wings they remarked to one another: "My ain't they purty?"

A few minutes latey they suddenly became soldiers, instead of kids. They didn't hit any of the heavy, multi-motored raiders, but they did answer to their own satisfaction the question of whether the Japanese can fly aeroplanes and bomb accurately.

"Sure, they can bomb," a Sergeant said. "If they can't hit a fish in a barrel from 10,000 feet they can come close to it."

While the last bombs were still exploding Japanese fighter planes, obviously from carriers, dived and strafed planes on the ground and the gun position as well. The guns went into action, getting "five for sure and probably one more." Two American pursuit planes pitched into the battle and downed one each.

Coasts Are Now Fully Protected

Communiques Tell Of Successes And Setbacks

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP) — The Army announced tonight it had ringed the nation with men and steel sufficient to "meet any threat" of invasion — and added that a search was on for fifth columnists who lit beacons to guide enemy airmen to Seattle.

In two communiques, its first of the war, it told of both success and setbacks in the Far Pacific, and disclosed what had been done to protect the nation's coastal areas, their dense populations and mighty war industries against Axis attack.

The fifth columnist search was on in the region of Port Angeles, Washington. In that vicinity, State Police last night found and extinguished a series of fires, in the form of arrows pointed toward Seattle.

"Steps to augment the defense of both the East and West coasts commenced Sunday night, when the War Department placed plans in effect which have materially strengthened the forces already stationed in those areas," the communique said.

"The railroads aided greatly in the movement of troops and materiel, operating through trains to destinations on emergency schedules. In addition to the ground troops moved, the Air Force has completed a re-distribution of air units which has placed it in a position to meet any threat on both the East and West coasts."

At the same time, the War Department made public 88 more names of those killed at Pearl Harbor, and the Navy disclosed that Rear Adm. Isaac Campbell Kidd was killed in action during last Sunday's savage peace-time attack on that outpost, total casualties had already been officially estimated at 3,000 with nearly half of them fatalities.

DEC 11 1941

Successes took the form of bombing attacks on a convoy of Japanese troop transports off Luzon in the Philippines. One of the transports was sunk and five others damaged.

But Japanese landing parties successfully gained footholds on Northern Luzon, the principal Philippine island, and the capital was stunned at word of the sinking of the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse.

"Reports from the Far Eastern Command," said the Army communique, "indicate a definite attempt of the enemy to invade the Island of Luzon. Initial Japanese attacks against the West Coast of Luzon north of San Fernando were repulsed with apparent heavy enemy losses. Actual landings were effected along the northern coast of Luzon. The Japanese attacks are in considerable strength, and are supported by heavy naval forces.

"Military and naval installations on Luzon have been subject to intermittent Japanese air attacks throughout the day, that on the naval base at Cavite being particularly heavy."

On the home front, meanwhile, William S. Knudsen called for a "work or fight" program and said the production of heavy four-motored bombers would be increased to 1,000 monthly, twice the present goal.

The seven day, 168 hour production week must go into effect immediately in five fields, he said, naming them as guns, planes, tanks, ammunition and shipbuilding. New plants must be built for making TNT and powder, he said, and new planes plants would be located well inland, out of the reach of enemy bombers.

When a reporter said that previous appeals for the 168 hour week had failed, and asked what further step could be done to bring it about, Knudsen answered:

"I think the Japs have done that for us."

At the close of the day, the White House released a message from President Roosevelt to Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese Generalissimo, predicting that the common Chinese-American struggle "will result inevitably in the complete elimination of the lawless forces against which your effort, our effort and the efforts of our associates are now directed."

Washington took the bad news with the good, as President Roosevelt last night cautioned it that it must, and set about the routine of activity in the capital of a nation at war.

President Roosevelt met with his War Cabinet, William S. Knudsen, OPM director, announced that the production program for heavy four-motored bombers would be boosted from 500 a month, the present goal, to 1,000. He also urged a "work or fight" program for American industry.

Secretary Morgenthau called in congressional leaders to discuss the question of higher taxes. The House passed a bill giving Navy authority to purge the Merchant Marine of subversive radio operators. The State Department announced that representatives of the American nations would meet in early January to draw still tighter the Pan-American front against the Axis.

And, there were other things: Four of the famous Japanese cherry trees were chopped down in Potomac Park during last night's semi-blackout here. Park authorities called it vandalism, not patriotism. SPAB ordered a 75 per cent reduction in the manufacture of coin-operated gambling machines and juke boxes because the metal is needed for the war industries.

There was a tense little scene in the Senate, with one of that Chamber's leading isolationists temporarily blocking a bill which the administration considers necessary to the war effort. Hiram Johnson of California said "No," and forced the postponement of the passage of a measure which would permit the Army to send its draftees, reserves and others outside the Western Hemisphere.

He told the Senate he wanted to "keep the President's promises." These, he explained as pledges given "again and again" by Mr. Roosevelt that Americans would not be recruited to "fight on foreign soil."

A colleague asked whether the Japanese attack was not sufficient to justify a change. Johnson replied:

"No, I don't think so but if it be sufficient there is time to determine that. We don't need to run it through in a quarter of a day."

The parliamentary situation was such that unanimous consent was necessary for the consideration of the bill. Its passage under other circumstances was expected later.

To all outward appearances, the Capital swallowed its disappointment that President Roosevelt gave no additional details of Sunday's debacle at Pearl Harbor. Chairman Walsh (D.-Mass.) of the Senate Naval Committee said that the President must be the judge of what information should be given to the public, and that he was satisfied Mr. Roosevelt had told all he could.

"The President, as Commander-In-Chief," he said, "is in the position of having to determine the line of demarcation between giving as much information as possible to the American public and of refraining from giving information that will be comforting to the enemy."

At the White House, it was said, meanwhile that a record-breaking number of telephone calls, telegrams and letters had been received in response to last night's speech.

"Without exception, they show a complete unanimity," said Stephen Early, the President's secretary.

Ships At Manila Reported Hit

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The German wireless reported from Shanghai that several vessels anchored in Manila harbor were hit by bombs at noon today when the Japanese air force again attacked the Philippine capital.

Two boatloads of Japanese attempting to cross Tide Cove and land on the east shore were sunk by British machine-gun fire and survivors of the party were wiped out on the beach, the communique said.

A Japanese plane crashed this morning in Tide Cove.

Artillery Fire Credited

All reports to British headquarters, the communique added, testify to the effectiveness of the artillery fire which yesterday and last night halted the invaders.

About 1,000 United States nationals, including Occidentals, Chinese and Filipinos, are marooned here, some of them having come from Shanghai. The Occidentals number about 350 persons, including 110 women and 60 children.

Many of the Americans are registering for civil defense work.

Japanese naval units were reported officially also to have approached the mouth of Hongkong Bay and sunk an 820-ton British naval tug. The announcement indicated that the vessel was doing patrol duty.

Chinese Launch Offensive Against Jap-Held Canton

British Pacific Bases And Facilities Open To Use by Her Allies

Japanese Branded 'Bunch Of Pirates' for Manner Of Attack on Hawaii

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A British authority declared today that "all bases and facilities we can afford will be available for our Allies" in the Pacific.

Discussing the naval situation in the Pacific, he stigmatized the Japanese as "a bunch of pirates whose technique in opening hostilities in the Nazi manner "assured surprise and temporary advantage."

From the wide dispersal of the Japanese fleet, he said, it is obvious that preparations for war must have been made "a long way back."

"Co-ordination of the attack must have entailed the most careful preparation, great secrecy and cunning," he said.

Vessels from which air attacks were launched on Pearl Harbor in Hawaii were at least 10 days out of Japanese bases, he said.

He said it was believed that the objects of the first Japanese attacks were:

On Pearl Harbor: "To damage and put of commission the main United States naval base in the Pacific."

On Guam and other intermediate islands: "To check the mobility of the United States fleet."

On Manila: "It apparently was an attempt to wreck an advance American base and obtain an excellent Japanese base for intensified operations.

Against Hong Kong: "The elimination of a British base which was the major threat to Japanese supply lines."

On Malaya: "It was apparently an attempt to open up Singapore to air attack. We do not know whether it was likewise planned as a preliminary to a land attack on that naval base."

Through naval reconnaissance, he said, Japanese troop carriers were detected off Indo-China December 6, steaming in a westerly direction.

"Reconnaissance prepared us and initial Japanese attacks were repulsed, but fighting continued in Thai territory, which apparently did not seriously resist."

AUSTRALIA MAPS ALTERED STRATEGY

DEC 11 1941

Loss of Two Capital Ships Changes Position.

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister John Curtin declared today that Japanese striking power in the air had given the enemy 'an initial momentum which only the maximum effort can arrest" and called on Australia to concentrate on war production and war necessities. News of the loss of the battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse, which the Prime Minister called a grave blow, altered Australia's whole conception of preparations.

Mr. Curtin immediately published regulations for the conservation of vital stocks for essential services only and the War Cabinet and War Advisory Council held urgent meetings to map new plans. All provincial premiers were summoned to a conference.

Recruiting for the Australian Imperial Force was halted, at least temporarily, to avoid any possible drain on trained home-based forces during the emergency. The Commonwealth was warned to be ready for aerial or naval bombardment.

Populace Behaving Well; Two Pay Blackout Fines

Honolulu, Dec. 10 (AP) — The Hawaiian Islands Army command reported tonight there had been no attacks against the islands since Sunday and that the military government was functioning smoothly and the populace was behaving well in the emergency.

The proclamation of martial law in the territory received the full approval of President Roosevelt after reports of its smoothly functioning machinery had been submitted to him.

An impressive blackout was held last night. It was intended to safeguard civilians as well as military installations. There have been but few cases of non-cooperation and these have been severely dealt with.

A Provost Court, presided by Judge James L. Coke, law member of the Military Commission, has disposed of 15 cases. More are under investigation.

Two persons who failed to obey blackout regulations were fined $10 each.

Japanese Credit Hawaii Attack to 'Suicide' Airmen

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Vichy radio broadcast a Tokio dispatch today asserting that the Japanese naval airmen who attacked the United States fleet at Pearl Harbor released their torpedoes and then "flung their planes straight at their objectives, thus repeating the famous exploit of three 'human torpedoes' which marked the Japanese attack on Shanghai."

The dispatch, quoting the newspaper Nichi Nichi, said Japanese flying boats "flew an unprecedented distance to reach Pearl Harbor" and that "not a single one of our airmen expected to return alive."

The "three human torpedoes," according to the Japanese Army account, were three privates who thrust lengths of bamboo filled with explosives under the Chinese barbed wire at Shanghai in 1932 and died in the blast. But, the Japanese say, they opened a way through the wire for an infantry assault.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—King George VI messaged Sir Thomas Shenton, Governor General of Malaya, today that the empire relies "on your fearless determination" to crush Japan's onslaught and that he was confident its faith was well placed.

"At this fateful moment I assure you of my high confidence in your leadership. I am at one with you and their highnesses, the rulers and the peoples of Malaya in the trial which you are sustaining," the King said.

"I know that the empire's reliance on your fearless determination to crush this onslaught will be fully justified and that, with God's help, the devoted service of every man and woman in Malaya shall contribute to our victory."

Japanese Planes May Be Using Powerful New Aerial Torpedo

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The possibility that Japan has developed a new and far more powerful aerial torpedo than had been in use before was suggested here today by the work of her airmen against ships at Pearl Harbor and off Malaya.

Authorized sources, however, said they had no official information.

Experts in armament here discounted today the report from London that Japan has a powerful new aerial torpedo accounting for the destruction at Pearl Harbor and off Malaya. One of the best authorities said that no more powerful torpedoes than those now used by the British and American forces are made, as far as is known by manufacturers in this country. They admitted, however, that they have no accurate information as to who is making the Japanese aerial torpedoes.

Taking It Out On Perry

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch today reporting a movement "by leading Japanese personages" to tear down the statue of Commodore Matthew C. Perry, United States Navy, which stands near Yokosuka, site of the Japanese navy's greatest base.

The dispatch, quoting the newspaper Yomiuri, said that Perry "commanded a fleet of six ships which, despite the protests of the Japanese, anchored in the Bay of Tokyo in February, 1854."

It recalls that this resulted in the treaty which opened the ports of Shimoda and Hakodate to United States ships and brought Japan into intercourse with the rest of the world after two and a half centuries of seclusion.

The 1854 visit was Perry's second. The first was in 1853.

Air Raids on Tokio, Kobe And Osaka Denied

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The German wireless today quoted the Japanese government spokesman, Tomokazu Hori, as saying reports of United States air raids on Tokio, Kobe and Osaka were devoid of foundation.

The spokesman said not a single plane of enemy forces had flown over any part of Japan since the outbreak of the Pacific war. The reports of raids on Japanese territory were mentioned in a C. B. S. broadcast from Manila, which said they were unverified.

Security and Peace Declared Japan's Aims in New War

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—D.N.B., in a dispatch from Tokio, gave Tomokazu Hori, Japanese Foreign Office spokesman, as authority for this statement of Japan's war aims:

"Japan took to arms for no other reason than to guarantee our country's security and safeguard the peace and well-being of the people of Eastern Asia, who have a common fate with Japan through geographical position and their natural conditions."

New Japanese Accord With French Reported

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Exchange Telegraph quoted the Berlin radio today as saying a new "defense agreement" had been reached between Japan and French Indo-China, the Vichy government's Oriental outpost which was a springboard for Japanese attacks on United States and British possessions.

Franco-Japanese Accord Reached.

Vichy, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—An announcement today, confirming Japanese reports, said that a new Franco-Japanese accord had been reached to "adapt the means of defense of Indo-China to the new situation." The statement said that "this agreement takes into account the attitude of neutrality France intends to observe during the conflict in the Pacific and refers to previous accords which affirm French sovereignty over the Indo-Chinese Union."

LATIN NATIONS MOVE AGAINST JAPS, AID U. S.

DEC 11 1941

Buenos Aires, Dec. 10 (AP).—Latin-American moves today included:

Argentina Bolivia and Honduras froze Japanese funds, following Brazil and Uruguay.

Paraguay Bolivia and Ecuador declared solidarity with the U. S.

President Baldomir of Uruguay warned that war operations threatened to come to the River Plate and added: "We are practically at war . ."

Argentina was reported ready to reconsider a previous objection to fortifying the Straits of Magellan at Chile's suggestion for cooperative effort.

An Argentine senator suggested a special session to consider a war declaration or a rupture with Japan.

Smash Japs' Windows.

Japanese store windows were smashed at San Salvador by demonstrators parading with El Salvador and U. S. flags to the locked Japanese legation.

President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico tonight appointed his predecessor, Lazaro Cardenas, commander-in-chief of all Mexico's Pacific forces, land, air and naval.

Mexico's gold-shirted legions, previously accused of Fascist leanings, offered their services to the Government as war leaders reinforced the Lower California coasts and Congress approved solidarity with the U. S.

Cuba closed down two radio stations because they interfered with transmissions from U. S. stations and forbade the entry of aliens except from the Americas and Britain.

U. S. authorities closed the Panama Canal from 6 P. M. to 6 A. M. until further notice; Panama cautiously moved 74 Germans and 57 Italians to the Atlantic side in custody.

Colombia let it be known that if Germany or Italy declared war on the United States, Colombian reaction identical to that taken toward Japan could be expected. Colombia severed relations with Japan Monday.

Pan-American Nations Act to Aid U. S. in War on Japan

Argentina, Brazil, Chile Move to Co-operate As Non-Belligerents

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—The pattern of pan-American thought on Japan's aggression in the Pacific solidified today, with smaller nations generally declaring themselves in on the hostilities and the larger pledging aid to the United States short of war.

Argentina, Brazil and Chile took steps to co-operate as non-belligerents.

Foreign Minister Juan Rossetti of Chile announced that Argentina and Chile had agreed to fortification of the Strait of Magellan, the island-dotted route between the Atlantic and the Pacific where German raiders took refuge at times during the World War.

Rossetti said an agreement would be signed to amend a boundary treaty of 1881 which forbade military establishments in the strait.

Cuba Declares War.

Cuba's Congress unanimously declared war against Japan, following swiftly similar action by the Central American bloc.

The Colombian House of Representatives today approved by a vote of 69 to 29 a bill granting the government emergency powers it had requested to meet the international situation.

Colombian government planes patrolled coastal shipping lanes by order of the War Ministry.

Panama's police rounded up nearly 200 Germans and Italians and established a temporary concentration camp on the Cristobal High School grounds, some United States soldiers from the Panama Canal Zone assisting in guard duty.

Solidarity with the United States was proclaimed in Chile, Peru, Uruguay and was reaffirmed in Mexico by President Manuel Avila Camacho.

Increased Production.

Avila Camacho declared in a nine-minute radio speech to the nation last night that Mexico, which broke relations with Japan Monday, could best help the United States at war by increasing industrial and agricultural production.

He twice repeated, "Mexico is in danger!" and pledged that the United States could rely on Mexico's "solidarity and co-operation."

"Mexico has already taken the necessary steps for the protection of her territory and vigilance over her territorial waters," he said.

Argentina stuck to the policy of "neutrality toward all" long proclaimed by Acting President Ramon Castillo, but granted the United States the use of her port facilities or warships. The United States was described officially as "a non-belligerent."

Venezuela Stands Firm.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—President Isaias Medina condemed Japanese aggression and re-affirmed the Venezuelan policy of friendship with the United States in a radio speech last night. He said that Venezuelan territory never will be used for an attack against North America. Troops guard all strategic points.

Paraguay Stands Firm.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Government of Paraguay declared solidarity with the United States in the Pacific war today.

BAN SHIPS AT NIGHT IN PANAMA CANAL

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Army headquarters announced tonight the Panama Canal would be closed from 6 P. M. to 6 A. M. daily.

Precautionary blackouts also were ordered both in the Canal Zone and in the city of Panama.

Meanwhile, the Republic of Panama completed formal action on its declaration of war against Japan, which was signed immediately by the President.

CANAL ALARM FALSE

Siren Signal Was Sounded During Blackout.

Balboa, C. Z., Dec. 10 (A. P.).—United States Army headquarters said today that a siren signal which sounded yesterday at 11:45 P. M. during a Canal Zone blackout proved to be a false alarm.

There was a report at first that hostile planes were believed to have been sighted in the Canal Zone area, but the all clear sounded ten minutes later, when the report was dispelled.

All of Puerto Rico Has 2d Blackout

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Puerto Rico had an island-wide blackout tonight for the second night in succession. Military sources said the White House had inquired last night as to what island defense steps had been taken.

San Juan Ends First All-Night Blackout

By the Associated Press.

DEC 11 1941

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 10.—San Juan today completed its first all-night blackout and practice air alarm begun when sirens sounded through the city at 9 o'clock last night.

The F. B. I. this morning confirmed that during the night seven Germans, one Japanese and one Italian were taken into custody.

18 Nations War on Japan

10/12/41

By Associated Press

Eighteen nations are now at war with Japan. They are:

The United States, Great Britain, The Netherlands East Indies, Costa Rica, Canada, China, Haiti, El Salvador, Honduras, Free France, the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Australia, New Zealand, Panama, Union of South Africa, Cuba.

Mexico and Colombia have broken off diplomatic relations with Japan, and China also has declared war upon Germany and Italy.

BAR AXIS SHIPS AT MAGELLAN

DEC 11 1941

Argentina and Chile Will Fortify Straits.

Washington, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Argentina's agreement with Chile to fortify the Straits of Magellen at the bottom of the new world throws a bar across the only remaining open sea route linking the Axis Powers.

With the Panama Canal closed to the Axis and Africa's Cape of Good Hope in control of the British, last night's defense pact will mount guns commanding the narrow waters between the South American mainland and Tierra Del Fuego. Those guns will:

Dominate the role route for a Nazi-seized French fleet to join forces with the Japanese.

Cut Japanese supply lines to and from German held ports in the Atlantic.

Sever Japanese shipping lanes to eastern South America.

Holds Path Open for U. S.

Hold open a path for the United States Navy between the Atlantic and the Pacific if anything should happen to Panama or if some emergency were to crowd the Canal.

The fortification agreement, announced in Santiago, completes a rough circle of inter-American bases around South America.

It gives the bottom of the hemisphere a double-barreled defense, for the Falkland Islands, slightly to the northeast in the Atlantic, are British.

It ties in with armed bases in the Caribbean, on the hump of Brazil, and at Panama.

Coupled with Brazilian, Uruguay and Argentine pledges to permit use of their harbors to United States warships, it effectively blockades the Atlantic coast. It also completes the blockade along the Pacific Coast, for Ecuador, Chile and Peru offer friendly harbors, and Ecuador has agreed to give the United States free use of the Galapagos Islands.

In addition to sealing the South American coasts where Japan has been buying raw materials, selling finished goods and settling colonies in coastal flat lands ideal for airplane landing fields, the straits fortifications when completed will be a counterbalancing influence on heavy Nazi concentrations in southern Chile and Argentina.

Although it has not been officially announced, it was assumed the United States would help finance the fortifications.

U. S. Calls Upon Latin Neighbors For Unity Parley

Note To Other Republics Tells Of "Treacherous Attack" By Japs

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The United States today called upon its good neighbors, the 20 other American republics, to consult on joint action for defense of the Western Hemisphere against the Axis.

Secretary of State Hull formally proposed to the governing board of the Pan-American Union that the foreign ministers of the American nations convene on defense measures in conformity with good neighbor pledges already made at Pan-American Conferences.

The United States acted at the suggestion of Chile, with its long Pacific coastline. The date for the meeting is expected to be set Dec. 17 when the Pan-American Union will have replies from the other countries to the United States' note. Nine of them already have declared war on Japan and others have given the United States assurances of support.

The United States' note to the other republics declared that Japan's "treacherous attack" on American territory in the Pacific made it urgently necessary for all the nations on this continent to take defensive action.

Setting forth the threat to the Western Hemisphere, the note said:

"On Dec. 7, 1941, without warning or notice and during the course of negotiations entered into in good faith by the government of the United States for the purpose of maintaining peace, territory of the United States was treacherously attacked by armed forces of the Japanese Empire.

"The course of events since the outbreak of war in Europe in 1939 clearly demonstrates that the fate of every free and peace loving nation of the world hinges upon the outcome of the present struggle against the ruthless efforts of certain powers, including the Japanese Empire, to dominate the entire earth by the sword.

"The wave of aggression has now broken upon the shores of the new world.

"In this situation that menaces the peace and security and the future independence of the Western Hemisphere, a consultation of the ministers of foreign affairs appears to be of urgent desirability."

The American republics, at conferences, held in Buenos Aires, Lima, Panama, and Havana, have previously adopted resolutions recognizing that "a threat to the peace, security, or territorial integrity of any American republic is of common concern to all."

U. S. WRITERS 'CONFINED' TO BERLIN HOMES

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP)—United States newspapermen were ordered out of a German press conference today and sent to their homes in German retaliation for the arrest of Axis newspapermen in the United States.

The American embassy said later they were not arrested but merely confined to their homes. One German official assured them that any further action would be "in the noblest form," that if police came for them it would not be in police cars.

German employes of American news agencies and newspapers were permitted to continue sending dispatches.

CITES U. S. ARRESTS

The Americans were seated with other newspapermen at the customary conference table when the Foreign Office spokesman came to the door. Instead of entering, he announced:

"Contrary to international practice, German correspondents have been arrested in the United States.

"I must now ask American correspondents to leave this room and proceed to their homes."

As the Americans left he silently shook their hands.

American newspapermen "no longer exist for you and us," a Foreign Office speaker told the remaining correspondents.

(Five German newspapermen, all but one representing DNB, German News Agency, were taken into custody in New York after President Roosevelt assumed extraordinary powers over German, Italian and Japanese nationals.)

"LEAVE FOR JUG"

(The Bern office of the Associated Press received from Berlin on its automatic teletype today a message which said: "Hurry up. We leave for the jug."

(Asked if the Americans would be interned Angus Thuermer replied:

("We don't know. All American correspondents have been asked to leave for their homes in Berlin. Bye-bye old man."

(The next dispatch was filed by Rudolph Josten, German employe of the staff.)

German authorities refused to comment upon President Roosevelt's speech last night in which he warned the American people that the United States must face the war machines of Germany and Italy as well as Japan.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, close to the Foreign Office, said it would find an authentic German answer soon.

Germany Cuts Off Press Relations With America

U. S. Newsmen Confined To Homes; Hitler Is Reported in Berlin

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—United States newspaper correspondents were dismissed from the daily press conference today and instructed to go to their homes—not their offices—on grounds that Axis newspapermen had been arrested in the United States in violation of international practice.

(The British Broadcasting Corp. said today that "Hitler is now back in Berlin in order to address the Reichstag." N. B. C. heard the broadcast in New York.

(The Rome radio said in a broadcast heard by N. B. C. that President Roosevelt's speech last night "is of such a manner that the functioning of the tri-partite pact may be expected."

(The Tokio radio broadcast a Domei dispatch from Rome last night saying "it was understood" the United States Embassy in the Italian capital had started burning important documents in preparation for severance of American diplomatic relations with the Axis.)

Americans Forced to Leave.

Instead of going to the conference table, the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman stood at the entrance and announced:

"Contrary to international practice, German correspondents have been arrested in the United States.

"I must now ask American correspondents to leave this room and proceed to their homes."

Then, as the Americans left the room, he silently shook their hands.

Another official assured the American correspondents that whatever might be done to them as reprisal would be done "in the noblest form."

No police car, for instance, would call for them in case their arrest was deemed desirable, he said.

(President Roosevelt, charging the existence of a German and Italian threat of a "predatory incursion upon the territory of the United States," has assumed extraordinary powers over the nationals of those countries as well as of Japan.

(Among Germans taken into custody, the German Embassy in Washington asserted, five were newspapermen in New York and all but one were representatives of D.N.B., the official German news agency.)

U. S. Newsmen "No Longer Exist."

American newspapermen "no longer exist for you and us," a Foreign Office speaker told the assembled correspondents after the departure of the Americans.

He said he regretted the step, but that it was a logical consequence of the United States' handling of German journalists.

Berlin newspapers carried accounts of the arrest of 400 German and Italian nationals in the United States, but thus far there have been no reports of arrests of American nationals here.

"Leaving For The Jug"

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP) — American press correspondents in Berlin left their offices for their homes at 12.40 P. M. today, presumably under house arrest.

Lanky Angus Thuermer, of the Associated Press staff in Berlin, answered an automatic printer query from here at 12.37 with a laconic: "Hurry up. We leave for the jug."

Asked who would fill in at the Berlin end of the wire, Thuermer messaged back: "Rudy (Rudolph Josten, German employe of the staff) will fill in. Lochner (Berlin Bureau Chief Louis P. Lochner) and I have to leave for home now. See you."

Ultimate Fate Unknown

Asked if they would be interned, he answered: "We don't know. All American correspondents have been asked to leave for their homes in Berlin. Bye-bye, old man."

There the connection was broken.

The Berlin connection was restored at 1.05 when Josten filed a brief story that, as the Foreign Office put it, 'American journalists no longer exist for you."

The wire continued in operation with Josten able to file.

"Roosevelt Only Aggressor"

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—An Exchange Telegraph (British news agency) dispatch from Zurich tonight quoted a German Foreign Office spokesman in Berlin as saying that "Germany in the future regards President Roosevelt as the only aggressor existing in this world."

"The necessary consequences will follow immediately," the spokesman was said to have added.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 11 (Thursday).—A number of United States citizens, including newspaper men, were arrested in Berlin today, D. N. B., official news agency, said in a report issued here by Reuters, British news agency.

Germans Held For Inquiry, Washington Tells Berlin

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The State Department said tonight it had informed the German Embassy, in answer to inquiries, that a number of German newspaper corespondents in this country had been held "for investigation."

Among them was Kurt Sell, for many years correspondent here for DNB, the official German news agency.

The embassy was informed that the correspondents were lodged in hotels or in their homes and were being given every consideration and provided every possible comfort.

Suggestion Of Release

At the conclusion of the investigations, it was said, it was hoped that a number of the correspondents would be released.

Sell, the best known of the German correspondents in this country, has represented the German news agency here for fifteen years and has many friends among his American colleagues.

A number of the German Embassy staff visited Sell today, insuring the embassy's satisfaction with his treatment.

Nazis' Word On U.S. War Is Due Today

Reichstag Will Meet To Hear Declaration By Government

Will Broadcast Action

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Berlin radio announced tonight that "the German Reichstag meets tomorrow at 3 p. m. (Berlin time) to hear a declaration of the government. The meeting will be broadcast by all German radio stations." The announcement was heard here by CBS.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation said today that "Hitler is now back in Berlin in order to address the Reichstag." NBC heard the broadcast.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Rome radio said today in a broadcast heard by NBC that President Roosevelt's "speech is of such a manner that the functioning of the Tri-Partite Pact may be expected."

REICHSTAG MEETS TODAY

London, Thursday, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The German Reichstag is to meet at 2 p. m. today, British time (8 a. m., EST), according to a German radio announcement, the Reuters news agency reported.

Tuesday it was reported that the Reichstag might meet Wednesday, but apparently no meeting was held. Nevertheless rumors that such a meeting would be held persisted in Berne, Switzerland.

Bern, Dec. 10 (AP)—Italy and Germany will adopt the attitude that the United States has brought them into the Japanese war, the Italian Foreign Office spokesman told foreign newspapermen in Rome today.

The official position is not yet ready to be announced, the spokesman said, and added that President Roosevelt in his speech last night "declared Germany and Italy, independent of any declaration of war, consider themselves already at war with the United States."

The press conference was reported by the Swiss news agency.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Argentine news agency Andi reported in a dispatch from Berlin tonight that the German Reichstag would meet at 3 p. m. Berlin time (8 a. m., E.S.T.) Thursday "to accept a declaration by the German government."

The agency said according to all indications this declaration would concern the war in the Pacific.

It said the proceedings would be broadcast over all radio stations in Germany.

Berlin, Rome Wires Of A. P. Are Silent

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Communications between Switzerland and the Berlin and Rome offices of the Associated Press were broken tonight.

The Bern Associated Press bureau was unable to reach the offices in the Axis capitals by either telephone or teletype.

Earlier in the day both offices had filed dispatches through Bern.

Roosevelt's Statement Assailed by Italians

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—President Roosevelt's statement last night that Germany and Italy consider themselves at war with the United States was declared by a Fascist source today to be an attempt to justify "the war-mongering policy which has led the United States into war."

Official comment, however, was withheld.

Stefani, official Italian news agency said the President's references to Germany and Italy showed clearly his "state of mind."

GAYDA IGNORES LATINS

Italian Editor Says They Are Tied to U. S.

Rome, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, said today that Italy and Germany, like Japan, would ignore declarations of war by "minor Latin republics of Central America." He said that the geographic necessities of these republics were understood in Berlin, Rome and Tokio, but that their "total, passive, risky enslavement" to Britain and the United "is less understood."

U. S. ASSAILED IN SPAIN

Press Prints Nazi Attacks on Roosevelt

DEC 11 1941

Madrid, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The controlled Spanish press was filled with long war reaction reports from Berlin today, mainly centering about statements of Nazi spokesmen that "Roosevelt is the lone aggressor."

The Falange (fascist) party organ Arriba said that the war in the Pacific would weaken Britain immediately by breaking the flow of war materials from the United States and added:

"Senor Roosevelt's famous two-ocean navy was nothing more than a sensational project when hard and valiant reality struck at all the traditional routes from San Francisco to the rest of the world."

announced tonight.

Russian troops in the south also were advancing, and the radio quoted Major General Petrov in Red Star as saying the Germans had lost 15,000 men, 150 tanks, 131 planes and more than 70 guns in thirty days of assault on the Red naval base of Sevastopol, in the Crimea.

Radio Cites Red Gains

The radio cited these gains:

Seven towns retaken in the Kalinin area, 95 miles northwest of the capital; 1,400 Nazis killed

Several settlements rewon in the Tula sector, 100 miles south of Moscow; 600 Germans killed.

Recapture of Olets, in the Orel sector, 200 miles to the south; the routing of two German infantry divisions, and 12,000 German casualties.

DEC 11 1941

75 Tanks Captured

Two Soviet units, under Generals Kuznetsov and Levuashenko, were credited with wiping out 4,800 Nazis and the capture of 75 tanks in isolated battles, and the Red Air Force was officially reported to have destroyed 600 German soldiers, 10 tanks, 67 trucks with supplies and infantry, and about 80 ammunition carts in a single day's activity.

The communique, without specifying the precise locale, said only, "on a number of sectors of the western and southwestern front our units advanced and occupied a number of populated centers."

The Soviet Government said that Red Army detachments killed 1,400 invaders and took seven villages in the Kalinin sector, ninety-five miles northwest of the capital, and wiped out more than 600 men in winning back several settlements at Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow.

The Moscow radio quoted Major-Gen. Petrov in Red Star as saying that the Germans also had lost 15,000 men, 150 tanks, 131 planes and more than seventy guns in thirty days' attacks on the Crimean naval base, Sevastopol.

A special communique broadcast by the Moscow Radio told of the developments at Tikhvin, a strategic railway center which has been a pawn of war for a month. It links Leningrad with Vologda and the supply port of Archangel.

German Retreat Is Deep.

Reports to London indicated that Adolf Hitler's troops, failing in a two-month drive aimed directly at the capital, were retiring to defensive positions ranging up to 100 miles west of the Soviet defense arc.

(Reports to London indicated that a German move to dig in for the winter on a line through Rzhev, Vyazma, Mechosk and Orel was under way.

(There were indications, however, that Russian counter-attacks would continue. One report told of the formation of a field army of more than 500,000 men, specially supplied by Ural industries for subzero warfare.)

Names Divisions Routed

Russian sources said a German announcement of the restriction of Eastern activity to local operations might be an artifice to cover other plans.

The Moscow radio said the Twelfth German Tank Division, the Eighteenth Motorized Division and the Sixty-first Infantry Division were routed with heavy casualties after they had held Tikhvin ten days.

"The remainder of these divisions have taken on peasant clothing, thrown away their equipment and are trying to escape through the woods," it was said. "Our booty is great."

Other Successes Claimed

A communique later said Soviet air units had destroyed 10 German tanks, 67 trucks with infantry and military supplies, about 80 carts with ammunition and 600 soldiers and officers in one day's activity.

Other successes were credited to a single artillery unit which claimed destruction of nine German gun batteries, eighteen mine-thrower batteries, three blockhouses, one observation post and the annihilation of an infantry regiment. 3 tions are being drawn back to where the terrain offers better possibilities of defense through the winter, it was said.

On the other hand, spokesmen asserted, in certain sectors there will be advances in order to improve the position.

No Peace Talks With Reds, Nazis Say

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The German Foreign Office spokesman was quoted by the Berlin radio today as categorically declaring there is no possibility of peace talks with Soviet Russia.

"There will be no talking with the Bolshevists. They will be beaten," he said.

DEC 11 1941

Russian News Ominous, London Feels

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—Reports that the Russians had gained air superiority over the Germans were seen by some sources here tonight as ominous, the speculation being that the Nazis were withdrawing planes from the Soviet front for a renewal of heavy assaults on England.

14,000 More Nazi Troops Fall Near Capital's Snowy Lines

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Dec. 10—At least 14,000 more German troops have fallen on the snowy Moscow front and the advancing Red Army has recaptured ten or more villages, the Soviet radio announced tonight.

Red Army Takes Key City

Olets Recaptured With 12,000 Nazis Lost—Berlin Admits Army Retires.

DEC 11 1941

Moscow, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—A special radio announcement declared tonight that Red Army troops have recaptured Olets, routing two German infantry divisions and inflicting casualties of 12,000 Nazis killed and wounded. Olets, due east of Orel, on the front about 200 miles south of Moscow, had been in German hands since the beginning of this month.

New gains for the Red Army, particularly in the southern sector, were announced by the Russian communique tonight after earlier reports that German troops had been blasted from Tikhvin, 110 miles east of Leningrad, leaving 7,000 dead in a ten day battle, and had suffered new reverses before Moscow.

Nazis Withdraw Many Wedges In Russian Front

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP)—German troops are withdrawing from many of the offensive wedges they have driven into the Russian Front, German military spokesmen said today, but they declared the retirement was to winter positions for tactical reasons.

The spokesmen acknowledged that Tikhvin, rail center 110 miles southeast of Leningrad which the Russians claim to have recaptured, may have been among the places vacated.

The German push is through until spring, spokesmen indicated, declaring "Germany has no strategic ambitions this winter."

For Defense Possibilities

Advanced detachments in certain wedges and troops in unfavorable positions are being drawn back to where the terrain offers better possibilities of defense through the winter, it was said.

On the other hand, spokesmen asserted, in certain sectors there will be advances in order to improve the position.

DEC 11 1941

Russia

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 10 — German advance forces have withdrawn to winter lines in sector after sector along the Russian battle front, a military spokesman declared today.

Asserting that the Nazi push eastward was through until spring, this spokesman said "Germany has no strategic ambitions this winter."

He acknowledged that because of the withdrawals "to better defensive positions" it was possible that the Russians had reoccupied Tikhvin, railline center 110 miles southeast of Leningrad.

He did not specify the extent or location of the withdrawals.

Finns Capture Refugees.

Helsinki, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Finnish troops intercepted on the west shore of Lake Onega 40,000 civilian refugees who had been herded by the Red army for transfer across the Lake, said a Finnish army dispatch today. The dispatch said that "endless caravans of pitiful refugees" were trudging homeward through the snow.

The Finnish communique said that a Russian garrison at Motti, southwest of Karhumaki, on the west shore of the lake, was wiped out almost to the last man in fierce fighting. Units of several hundred were annihilated as they withdrew across the ice and through the woods, said the communique.

Reds Claim Air Superiority.

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Russians claim air superiority over the entire Soviet-German battlefront, particularly in the Moscow area, a British authority said today.

"Russian tanks have been doing particularly well on the Moscow sector," a British source said, declaring that they have proved more effective than German machines in the snow, because of broader treads.

"Our British Valentine tanks, which have been operating on the Moscow sector, have been found very satisfactory by the Russians and have done very well. There is more and more evidence of great German difficulties in mechanical transport maintenance."

German prisoners taken on the Moscow front were described as "inadequately and filthily clothed."

Allies Lift Siege Of Tobruk Via New Junction In Libya

Imperial British Forces Announce Capture Of Gambut

DEC 11 1941

At The British 8th Army Battle Headquarters In The Desert, Dec. 10 (AP)—British troops were reported officially to have lifted the siege of Tobruk with a new junction at El Adem in the Libyan desert, and tonight another heavy tank battle was believed imminent west of there.

South African, Indian and Allied troops made the junction and also captured Gambut, a coastal point about 40 miles east of Tobruk. German and Italian units fled westward after suffering heavy losses, the British announced.

Officers said their troops had established a 30-mile-deep wedge from Tobruk southward into the desert, and mobile units now were hitting out on either flank in mopping up efforts against the Axis forces. A sandstorm raged throughout the area.

Twenty-seven German tanks were captured and destroyed at Gambut where they were found in a repair shop.

Although the R.A.F. still was giving full and effective support to the advancing ground forces, it was conceded that German air strength was getting tougher beyond Tobruk.

The Axis troops still held Bardia and the frontier pocket of Salum and Halfaya, but these points now were cut off by the British wedge into Tobruk.

Axis Siege of Tobruk Raised in Capture of El Adem, British Say

Westerly Movement of Foe Speeded by Pressure, Cairo Communique Says

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 10.—The British announced a rejoining of hands of the Tobruk garrison with British forces at El Adem in the Libyan desert today and declared that the westerly movement of Axis forces "has now apparently accelerated under the vigorous pressure of our forces."

Road communications eastward from Tobruk have been established and the British have recaptured Gambut, coastal point about 40 miles east of the fortress, the communique added.

It said the British from Tobruk had reached South African and Indian troops at El Adem to the southeast, but admitted that Germans and Italians still were in strength on the western perimeter of Tobruk's defenses.

Tobruk Siege Raised.

Nevertheless, the siege of Tobruk has been raised, the communique declared.

The R. A. F. is giving the "fullest and most effective co-operation" with the ground forces in the advance westward, it was added.

In an attempt to cover the retreat, about 20 Axis tanks made an attack yesterday and lost two of their number.

El Adem was occupied after being abandoned by the Germans and Italians, and an infantry column to the south was driven westward with heavy losses, the communique said.

At the same time South African armored cars and mobile columns of Indians were reported working around to the German and Italian rear by circling toward Acroma.

Twenty-seven abandoned German tanks were captured in a repair shop at Gambut, the British said.

BRITISH CAPTURE TOBRUK CORRIDOR

With El Adem's Fall Port Is Fully Relieved.

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The British have recaptured El Adem, key to East-West communications in Libya, a British authority announced today. He declared: "The relief of Tobruk now is an established fact."

British troops were continuing to operate around the southern flank of the Axis force and "pushing round to the west of his lines of communications."

this informant said.

The Axis troops still held three strong points, Bardia, Halfaya and Ghiba, which is on the frontier between Salum and Sidi Omar, but the doom of those last centers of organized resistance in eastern Cirenaica sems inevitable, he said.

Notable Air Successes Claimed by Italians

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—Italian fighting planes of a new type sent into action on the North African front have scored notable successes over the R. A. F., shooting down 13 British planes in fierce combats, the Italian high command announced today.

The daily war bulletin also credited German planes with shooting down six British planes and said two more were destroyed by Axis anti-aircraft defenses.

The Italians admitted they had lost eight planes.

Sharp land fighting was reported in the Tobruk zone and at Salum, near the Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

British planes returned to the attack on Sicily last night, bombing Trapani but causing only minor damage, the high command announced.

Ship With 2,000 Prisoners Sunk, Italians Admit

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 10.—The Italian high command announced today that an Italian ship with 2,000 British prisoners aboard had been torpedoed.

The attack occurred off the coast of Greece, a communique said, and asserted that rescue operations still were under way.

WARNS BRITONS OF NAZI INVASION

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Lord Strabolgi, chief labor whip in the House of Lords, said today that Germans have 100,000 crash airplanes and gliders which could be used in landing a big force in Britain. He told the House of Lords that a ready answer to raiding parties from the air is the home guard and that they should be armed with the most deadly weapons available.

NEW WAR BUDGET BILLION POUNDS

British Parliament to Be Asked for Credit.

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The British Government will ask Parliament for a credit of another billion pounds (about $4,000,000,000) for war expenditures during the current year ending March 31, 1942, informer quarters said today.

This credit would bring to four billion pounds (about $16,000,000,000) the total war credits voted since March 31, 1941.

American Export Line Drops Run To Lisbon

Last U. S. Ship Service To Europe Announced "Deferred" By Government Order

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The last American steamship service to Europe, the American Export Line's New York-Lisbon run, has been discontinued, the company said today.

Lisbon is the steamship outlet for Americans and refugees fleeing Europe. Advices from Lisbon said that Portuguese and Spanish ships would continue to make unscheduled voyages to bring refugees here.

American Export Line officials said the service had been "deferred" by Government order.

German Spy Is Executed

Captured After Parachute Jump in England

London, Dec. 10 (AP).—A German spy was executed this morning at Wandsworth Prison, the Home Office announced today.

He was identified as Karel Richard Richter, a Sudeten German born Jan. 29, 1912, in Kraslice.

The Home Office said he was convicted under the Treachery Act after a secret trial, and that his appeal, heard on Nov. 24, was dismissed.

An authoritative statement said Richter parachuted to a landing in England near the Hertfordshire village of London Colney on the night of May 13.

He hid in a wood for nearly two days, it said, and "20 minutes after he merged from his hiding place he was in the hands of the police."

This speedy capture, the statement added, came about because a lost truck driver on Richter's emergence from the wood shouted at him for directions.

A police constable then appeared and the truck driver, in a casual remark, spoke about "an unhelpful stranger who was then only a dozen yards away."

The policeman immediately followed Richter, questioned him and, unsatisfied with the answers, took him to the nearest police station, where there was further questioning and a search.

"There was found on him several hundred pounds of money in British and United States currency," the statement added. "He also had a map of the eastern counties and a pocket compass. He was wearing a civilian suit, three pairs of woolen pants and two pairs of socks."

The police in a search of the neighborhood of the wood found a carefully concealed camouflaged parachute harness, a German crash helmet bearing the swastika design, a flying suit, a fully loaded automatic, a trowel, a parcel of food and a portable wireless transmitting set capable of sending messages to the continent.

Canadian Corvette Sunk Two Americans Saved

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 10.—(AP.)—Navy Minister Angus MacDonald announced today that the Canadian corvette, Windflower, had been sunk in a collision while on convoy duty and that 23 members of her crew were presumed lost.

There were 44 survivors, two of them Americans: Harry A. Mackenzie, a telegraph operator, whose sister, Mrs. Elenor Young, lives on Liberty Street, Bloomfield, N. J., and Able Seaman Charles Lane, whose father, Charles Lane, lives at 23 Roanoke Street, Lynn, Mass.

Darlan Sees Ciano

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Dec. 10 (AP).—Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan conferred with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano today at Turin.

East Haddam Man Listed As Casualty by British

London, Thursday, Dec. 10.—(AP.)—The names of two United States residents were included in a list of deaths from "enemy action" among members of the merchant navy and fishing fleets issued by the minister of war transport today. They were Michael Danko, RFD No. 1, East Haddam, Conn., and John Garthwaite, 139-12 Thirty-Fourth Road (Flushing), New York.

United States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The War Department issued the following today:

Information received last night from the Commanding General, Far Eastern Command, reveals the defeat of a hostile attack against the west coast of Luzon between San Fernando and Vigan. Our first bombing attacks on six transports at Vigan resulted in direct hits on three hostile ships and damage to the remaining three, one ship capsizing and sinking immediately.

The Navy Air Force participated in the attack in close cooperation with the Army. No operations have as yet materialized in the southern islands.

A second communiqué, issued at 5 P. M., follows:

1. Philippine Theatre—Reports from the Far Eastern Command indicate a definite attempt of the enemy to invade the island of Luzon. Initial Japanese attacks against the West Coast of Luzon north of San Fernando were repulsed with apparent heavy enemy losses. Actual landings were effected along the northern coast of Luzon. The Japanese attacks are in considerable strength and are supported by heavy naval forces.

Military and naval installations on Luzon have been subject to intermittent Japanese air attacks throughout the day, that on the naval base at Cavite being particularly heavy.

2. Hawaiian Islands—no action has been reported in this area since the initial attack on Dec. 7.

3. West Coast—The Commanding General, Ninth Corps Area, reports that the Washington State police last night found and extinguished a series of fires near Port Angeles, Wash. These fires were in the form of arrows pointed toward Seattle. Search is being made for Fifth Columnists.

4. General—Steps to augment the defenses of both the East and West Coasts commenced Sunday night when the War Department placed plans in effect which have materially strengthened the forces already stationed in those areas.

The railroads aided greatly in the movement of troops and material, operating through trains to destinations on emergency schedules. In addition to the ground troops moved, the Air Force has completed a redistribution of air units which has placed it in a position to meet any threat on both the East and West Coasts.

MANILA, Dec. 10 (AP)—An Army communiqué today declared:

The enemy is in heavy force off the northern coast of Luzon, extending from Vigan to Aparri.

Large Japanese naval elements are escorting transports with Japanese aircraft. At Vigan about 7:30 A. M. six transports were engaged in landing operations.

At that time our bombing attacks on these ships created grave damage. Three transports were directly hit, one immediately capsizing.

Bombs were observed hitting close to three others. At Aparri, and perhaps at other contiguous points, landings were effected. The exact strength of the enemy is unknown.

A later Army communiqué said:

The situation in Northern Luzon remains unchanged. There is no evidence of any landings other than those mentioned this morning.

Military objectives in the vicinity of Manila were bombed early this afternoon. While not yet verified, it is reported that the Japanese did not escape unscathed. Several planes were reported shot down. One report from a reliable source said a plane piloted by a Filipino aviator accounted for one Japanese aircraft.

U. S.-Canada Defense Called Complete

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 10 (AP)—Plans for the joint Canadian-United States defense of the North American west coast are "complete in every particular," it was stated officially today.

An official said that the joint defense plan called for use of the forces of both countries but did not involve a single command. It was added that if some contingency arose which would make such command desirable it could be established in five minutes.

The joint Canadian-American Defense Board is to meet next week.

Japanese

TOKYO, Dec. 10 (From Japanese broadcast recorded by The Associated Press)—The following was issued today:

The British Far Eastern Fleet was sighted off the eastern coast of the Malay Peninsula at 11:30 o'clock this morning and Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits at 14:29 [2:29 P. M.].

The Prince of Wales was hit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits. She attempted to escape, but at 14:50 [2:50 P. M.] she received additional hits and was sunk.

British

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Admiralty issued this communiqué today:

The Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that a report has been received from Singapore that H. M. S. Prince of Wales (Captain J. C. Leach, M. V. O., R. N.), flying the flag of Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, K. C. B., and H. M. S. Repulse (Captain W. G. Tennant, C. B., M. V. O., R. N.) have been sunk while carrying out operations against the Japanese attack on Malaya.

No details are available except those contained in the Japanese official communiqué which claims that both ships were sunk by air attack.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 10 (AP)—A communiqué issued tonight said:

In the Kelantan area the day has been quiet. Reports show heavy fighting took place yesterday over a wide area. Our units, after acquitting themselves splendidly, have now reorganized south of Kota Bharu and are in excellent spirits. Our casualties have been comparatively light.

30.24 — 1345 1

Elsewhere our frontier remains unbroken.

In the Bardia area a Punjabi motorized unit yesterday trapped and destroyed seven enemy tanks.

There is no change in situation at Kuantan where our position remains intact.

An unconfirmed report that gas has been used by the enemy is without foundation.

HONG KONG, Dec. 10 (AP)—A British communiqué today said:

The Japanese launched a heavy attack on our positions. Some penetration of our forward defenses occurred but the attack, for the moment, is halted. Fighting is continuing.

In spite of poor visibility our artillery was effective. Last night we inflicted severe casualties on a Japanese company on patrol, one of our own patrols in a hand-to-hand encounter wiping them out with tommy guns, rifle butts and bayonets.

The British Command in Hong Kong issued the following this afternoon:

Two attacks from the direction of Shanghai have been beaten off and the situation has been stabilized at approximately this morning's position.

A Japanese plane crashed this morning at Tide Cove.

Two boatloads of the enemy attempted to cross Tide Cove and land on the east shore. Both boats were sunk by machine-gun fire, and the remnant of the landing party was wiped out on the beach.

Reports are reaching headquarters testifying to the effectiveness of our artillery fire last night.

CAIRO, Dec. 10 (AP)—British Middle East Headquarters issued this communiqué today:

British troops from Tobruk joined hands in El Adem with South African and Indian troops from the southeast, although the enemy are still in strength on the western defenses.

The siege of Tobruk has, therefore, been raised and road communications have been opened with the east.

The westerly movement of the enemy referred to in a communiqué yesterday has now apparently accelerated under the vigorous pressure of our forces with the fullest and most effective cooperation of our air forces.

The remaining enemy armored forces are endeavoring to cover this westerly movement and one counter-attack was made yesterday by about twenty tanks. This attack was, however, repulsed and two enemy tanks were destroyed.

El Adem itself was found to be unoccupied by the enemy and our columns working southwest from that place maintained pressure all day on enemy positions held with artillery and some tanks, inflicting many casualties and taking a number of prisoners.

An enemy infantry column immediately south of El Adem was driven westward with heavy losses.

Simultaneously South African armored cars and mobile columns of Buffs, [East Kent Regiment], Punjabi and Rajput troops have been working around the enemy's right rear toward Akroma.

Mopping up operations north of the road Bardia-Tobruk continues and our occupation of big supply centers which the enemy had established at Gambut, halfway between Bardia and Tobruk, is now confirmed. During this mopping up twenty-seven abandoned tanks were found at what had evidently been a German repair shop.

On the coast near Tobruk an enemy hospital was seen outside of which were displayed signs asking for water.

In yesterday's operations a few miles west of Ed Duda about 150 prisoners of war were taken, most of them German.

The R. A. F. Middle East Command in Cairo issued the following today:

Dispersed aircraft of the airdrome at Derna and motor transport on roads in the vicinity of Derna were attacked by our bomber aircraft Monday night. Other attacks were made on tanks and motor transport in the El Adem area with good results.

During yesterday the airdrome at Derna again was raided, direct hits being obtained on two aircraft on the ground. Tmimi airdrome was also attacked, bombs falling among aircraft in the dispersal area.

A G-50 was shot down by our bombers near Martuba. Fighter combats which developed over the battle area in the course of yesterday's operations resulted in one JU-88, one JU-87, one ME-109 and one ME-110 being shot down. Other enemy aircraft were extensively damaged.

Machine-gun attacks were carried out on the landing ground at El Agheila and on traffic moving along the El Agheila-Agedabia road.

From these and other operations eleven of our aircraft are missing, but the pilots of a number of fighters are safe.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Italian High Command issued this communiqué today:

In the Solum area enemy pressure increased against strongholds held by our troops. To the south of Tobruk fighting continues. Enemy mechanized units have been destroyed.

Axis air formations successfully renewed attacks against large concentrations of enemy motorized units east of Bir el-Gobi, as well as motorized columns on the march.

At Tobruk strong concentrations of armored units in the area east of that stronghold were effectively bombed.

In numerous aerial combats nineteen enemy planes were shot down. Thirteen were destroyed by new-type Italian fighters and six by German fighters. Two enemy planes were destroyed by anti-aircraft defenses at Agedabia and Solum.

Eight Italian planes did not return.

Enemy planes dropped bombs on Derna and Bardia. In the last mentioned place two field hospitals were hit, although they were clearly marked with red crosses. There were some injured among the patients.

Last night the R. A. F. attacked Trapani [in Sicily], causing insignificant damage.

Italian planes effectively bombed installations on the island of Malta.

One of our ships returning from Libya with 2,000 British prisoners was torpedoed off the Greek coast by an enemy submarine. Rescue work is in progress.

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (From Russian Broadcast Recorded by The Associated Press)—The following communiqué was issued today:

During the night of Dec. 9-10 our troops engaged the enemy on all fronts.

The Moscow radio tonight broadcast the following communiqué:

During today our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

On a number of sectors of the western and southwestern front our units advanced and occupied a number of populated centers.

During Dec. 9 four German planes were destroyed.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP)—A communiqué from German headquarters today said:

On the east front local enemy attacks were successfully repulsed. The opponent again suffered heavy bloody losses.

Strong air force formations on the southern sector of the east front dispersed troop and tank concentrations and effectively bombed Soviet airports.

In the Moscow region and northeast of Lake Ilmen the enemy suffered considerable losses through attacks by combat planes.

In North Africa heavy fighting is continuing. German and Italian dive bombers effectively battered British mobile columns and anti-aircraft positions. German chasers downed five enemy planes at Tobruk.

Finnish

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 10 (AP)—The communique of the Finnish Army follows:

Karelian Isthmus—Mild local enemy harassing fire of field guns and trench mortars against our positions without damage. At some places infantry fire reached a fierce pitch. Numerous enemy patrols were annihilated. Our artillery and trench mortars shelled enemy bunkers, a supply column, etc., and silenced some enemy guns and mortars.

Svir River Front—Numerous enemy patrols trying to cross the lower flow of the Svir River were dispersed. South of the upper flow there was artillery and trench mortar fire on both sides.

East Front—Southwest of Karhumaki our troops mopped up after fierce fighting. Numerous enemy units comprising as many as several hundred men in scattered retreat north and east of Karhumaki and Povenets were annihilated on the ice and in the woods. North sectors are unchanged.

Air—Our own force continued to bomb and machine-gun enemy forces retreating southeast of Povenets. A large fire broke out in a certain enemy column. In addition, a fuel supply was set afire. One of our planes was destroyed.

WORK OR FIGHT PLAN BACKED BY KNUDSEN

DEC 11 1941

Japs Have Forced 7-Day Week, Says Production Chief

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—William S. Knudsen put himself on record for a "work or fight" program for American industry today and declared that production of heavy four-engined bombers would be boosted to 1000 a month, twice the present goal.

Knudsen, production director of the Office of Production Management, told a press conference that the 168-hour, seven-day work week urged by President Roosevelt last night must go into effect as rapidly as possible in five more industries.

FIVE FIELDS NAMED

Guns, planes, tanks, ammunition and shipbuilding were the five fields he named.

Told that appeals by the War Department and the President had previously failed to bring about the 168-hour week and asked what further step could be taken to achieve it, Knudsen said:

"I think the Japs have done it for us."

He added that construction of new plant facilities was essential for heavy, long-range bombers and for the production of T. N. T. and powder.

TO BE LOCATED INLAND

New bomber plants, Knudsen said, would be located far inland, out of range of Axis raiders, instead of being concentrated as most of them are now, along the Atlantic and Pacific shores.

At the present time, he said, there appears to be sufficient skilled labor to go on the 168-hour week.

Asked whether he thought it might become necessary to conscript labor, he first passed the question off with a pleasantry. It was repeated, and he replied gravely:

"Do you mean 'work or fight?' Good, I'm for it."

SWING SHIFTS URGED

Knudsen indicated in the discussion that he believed the 168-hour week could be accomplished in the five industries named by a "swing-shift" arrangement without increasing the hours of individual workers for the time being.

Knudsen stated that new curtailments in passenger automobile production for December and January have been ordered by the Office of Price Administration.

He refused to state the extent of the new slash, referring questioners to Price Administrator Leon Henderson, who was not available immediately for comment.

Roosevelt Sends Note To Chiang

DEC 11 1941

Tells Confidence of War Outcome; Filipino President Cables His People's Determination

Washington, Dec. 10. — (AP.) — President Roosevelt today sent a message of confidence in the outcome of the war to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China.

The message, made public by the State Department, said:

"Japan first treacherously attacked and then declared war upon the United States. The Congress has declared the existence of a state of war between the United States and Japan.

"In the valiant struggle of resistance which China has carried on for four and one-half years against the invading forces of a predatory neighbor, China had been made aware of this country's sympathy in principle and in practice. China is now being joined in her resistance to aggression by a host of other nations that have been menaced by Japan and the movement of conquest in which Japan is a major participant.

No Easy End.

"The struggle can not be easily or quickly brought to a successful end. It will demand of all who are entering it, as it has demanded and will demand of you and your courageous people, concentrated effort and intensive devotion to the common cause of vanquishing the enemy and thereafter establishing a just peace.

"I take pride in my country's association with you and the great nation which you lead. I am wholly confident that the struggle in which we are engaged in common with other gallant nations will forge stronger the bonds of traditional friendships and will result inevitably in complete elimination of the lawless forces against which your effort, our effort, and the efforts of our associates are now individually and collectively directed."

Washington, Dec. 10. — (AP.) — President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines cabled President Roosevelt today his people were "loyal to America and determined to stand by her."

The text of the cable, transmitted to the President through the Interior Department, read:

"I have just arrived from Baguio the summer capital of the Philippines, where I was when the war between the United States and Japan was declared. I have covered the country by automobile and I am happy to report that everywhere the people are loyal to America and determined to stand by her in testimony of their gratitude to you, to the Government of the United States and to the American people, and because of their devotion to the cause of democracy and freedom. I am proud, therefore, that the reiterated assurance I have given to you to the effect that you can count upon us was no empty word."

U.S. Holds Midway, Cable Indicates

DEC 11 1941

Napa, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP).—A cablegram arriving here today indicated that Midway Island in the Pacific was in American hands at least up to a late hour yesterday.

The message was from Asil Callen, 19, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ace Callen.

Young Callen is in the Navy. His message said merely "safe, don't worry." It appeared to have been dispatched last night.

Admiral Kidd Killed In Attack on Hawaii

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Navy announced today that Rear Admiral Isaac Campbell Kidd was killed in action during the attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Sunday.

Kidd was flag secretary and aide on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, Admiral Husband Kimmel.

Admiral Kidd reported for duty as chief of staff and aide commander of battleships of the battle force on February 3, 1940 and was in command of a Battleship division of the Pacific Fleet at the time of his death. The ship on which he was serving was not named.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, March 26, 1884, Kidd was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1906. He served on the USS Pittsburgh in 1913 and in 1914 was transferred to the USS California. Two years later he returned to the Naval Academy for duty and served there until 1918 when he assisted in fitting out the Battleship New Mexico and subsequently served as executive officer of the New Mexico until July 1919, when he became flag lieutenant and aide on the staff of the commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

There followed tours of duty at the Naval Academy again, on the Battleship Utah and the cargo ship Vega, as captain of the port of Cristobal in the Canal Zone, as Chief of Staff of the command base force, as head of the officer detail section in the Bureau of Navigation, and as commander of Destroyer Squadron One, scouting force, from February, 1935, until June, 1936.

Then he completed courses at the Naval War College and served on its staff for several months before reporting for duty as commanding officer of the U. S. S. Arizona, his last assignment before joining the battle force of the Pacific Fleet.

Rear Admiral Kidd, whose home was in Washington, held the Cuban Pacification medal, the Mexican service medal, Victory fleet medal and the Atlantic fleet clasp.

Survivors include a son, Isaac Campbell Kidd, Jr., a midshipman scheduled for graduation at the United States Naval Academy next week. His widow has been living temporarily in Annapolis.

Clipper Captain Describes Attack On Pacific Outposts

Tells How Two Squadrons Of Planes Bombed And Machine-Gunned Wake Island

DEC 11 1941

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Dec. 10—Japanese planes destroyed the Pan American Airways' docks, hotel and other buildings in their surprise raid on Wake Island last Sunday, but failed to cripple the Philippine Clipper, which just had landed there, Capt. J. H. Hamilton said tonight.

Captain Hamilton told his story in a statement issued jointly by Pan American Airways and the Twelfth Naval District public relations office.

He described the flight to California via Mdway and Honolulu as "routine" in os far as the flight was concerned.

But what he saw at the Pacific island outposts was anything but routine.

Captain Hamilton told how he took cover in a drainage pipe while two Japanese squadrons of nine planes each machine-gunned and bombed the island outpost.

The clipper was outbound for Singapore and was flying between Wake and Guam when the naval commandant at Wake Island advised Hamilton by radio that hostilities had begun and suggested that the plane turn back.

"We circled, dumped about 3,000 pounds of gasoline—to get to our landing weight of 80,000 pounds—and returned to Wake . . . and landed about twenty minutes after taking off," the statement said.

"On our arrival there, the commandant cleared us to depart subject to his orders. He asked that first we make a patrol flight, and we prepared to do so. Orders were given to fuel the plane with sufficient gas for that flight and for the flight to Midway, plus the standard reserve.

"Then I went with the commandant to his office to discuss the patrol.

Planes Came Over

"As I left his office to go to the hotel, and had just arrived by automobile at the spot where workmen had been laying five-foot drainage pipes, I left the car to walk. . . .

"At that moment, they came over—nine planes on close pyramid formation, flying at about 1,500 feet. I ducked into one of the drainage pipes.

"This was one of two squadrons, each of nine planes, which participated in the attack.

"One squadron started by machine-gunning the construction camp, the other immediately afterward launched the attack which I saw.

Five-Minute Attack

"They were over the island for about five minutes, dropping what I judged to be fairly small bombs, about 150 pounds.

"The bombs fired the hotel, destroyed other Pan American buildings and the dock, but did not hit the Clipper. However, there were sixteen bullet holes in the plane. By good fortune, no bullets struck a vital spot.

"The attacking planes left the vicinity then and we prepared immediately for departure. . . . We rounded up Pan American ground personnel. We felt it was imperative to take them aboard to go with us.

Two Vessels Sighted

"En route to Midway we . . . saw nothing until we were approaching Midway and were within about forty miles of the island. Then we saw two surface vessels, destroyers or cruisers, headed on a course toward Wake. Midway was completely blacked out.

"As soon as we landed we reported this to the naval commandant and we learned that the attack which had been made on Midway had been shelling by surface vessels.

"Up to that time there had been no attack on Midway by plane. At each point we noted an economy of action, At Wake and at Midway. The enemy apparently knew the desired objectives and proceeded directly to them.

Took Off Again

"As soon as possible, we proceeded again, this time with Hawaii as our destination.

"Again the flight operation itself was routine; we saw nothing.

"Toward the conclusion of the flight we took a course for a time directed on an alternative airport, then were informed that the way was clear at Pearl Harbor. We altered our course and landed there.

"The damage at Honolulu is a matter of record.

"I must say that the morale of the people in Hawaii is excellent.

"The same is true of the people we saw at Wake and Midway.

"These people are calmly going about their regular business as best they may, at the same time taking the necessary precautions for safety.

And So To Frisco

"We remained in Honolulu until yesterday afternoon, when we took off for San Francisco.

"This portion of our journey was like any other we have ever made, with the exception that we maintained radio silence."

By radio silence, Hamilton meant that the plane's radio transmitter was not used, so that enemy planes might not intercept signals and use them for calculating the Clipper's position.

Hamilton said that thirty-seven persons, including eleven crew members, were aboard the Clipper when it left Wake Island. All except the crew members and one company executive were left at Honolulu.

Native Of Arkansas

Captain Hamilton, 34, a native of Texarkana, Ark., attended the University of California, and then took a navy flying course at Pensacola, Fla., for two years.

He has 5,562 flying hours to his credit and has been flying Clippers for two years. He and his wife, the former Geraldine Allen, of Miami, Fla., live in San Francisco.

Navy Probe Rejected

DEC 11 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 10 — Chairman Harry S. Truman (Dem., Mo.) announced today the Senate Defense Investigating Committee would continue it work during the war, but "believes that it should not investigate military and naval strategy or tactics."

Therefore, Truman said, no attempt will be made to inquire into the circumstances of the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor Sunday. He made the comment after a closed committee session called to determine future policy.

"From its inception," a statement said, the committee has confined itself to "the non-military aspects of the defense program, that is to say, with seeing to it that the defense articles which the army and navy had determined that they need are produced in a minmium of time at a minimum of cost and with as little disruption of the civilian economy as possible."

Walsh Takes Same View

Chairman David J. Walsh (Dem., Mass.) of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee said President Roosevelt must be the judge of when information about war operations should be given to the American public.

For that reason, Walsh said, his committee would make no effort to question naval officials on the extent of ship losses in the Pearl Harbor attack.

Walsh said he was satisfied that the President had told all he could about the Pacific situation, and added:

"The President, as Commander in Chief, is in the position of having to determine the line of demarcation between giving as much information as possible to the American public and of refraining from giving information that will be comforting to the enemy."

Meanwhile the House Naval Affairs Committee was called into executive session to permit members to question Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Naval surgeon general, as to whether the Navy's top-ranking officers are physically fit for wartime duty.

Representative Vincent, Democrat, of Kentucky demanded the opportunity to interrogate Dr. McIntire on the subject, asserting, "We can't fight this war with 65 or 70 year old men."

The committee had invited Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, to be on hand for the session so that they might be questioned as to how the Japanese managed to deliver their surprising and damaging attack on Pearl Harbor.

Vinson Halts Plan.

Chairman Vinson announced late yesterday, however, that Secretary Knox would be out of the city today and that the war with Japan made it impossible for Admiral Stark to take time from his official duties to testify.

President Roosevelt told the Nation in his speech last night, however, that he himself did not yet have sufficient information on the Pearl Harbor attack to state the exact damage done to United States warships there. Because of this lack of information, many lawmakers considered that any investigation of the circumstances of the assault would be premature.

Representative Vincent had demanded questioning of the Navy's high command on the Pearl Harbor attack, declaring that "somebody was asleep" in Hawaii. A short time later, Representative Dingell, Democrat, of Michigan told the House he planned to demand court-martial proceedings against the ranking Army and Navy officers involved, a step which Mr. Vinson promptly denounced as "nothing but a cheap effort to get newspaper publicity."

Representative Dingell was forestalled at the close of yesterday's House session from making a five-minute additional speech on the subject when Representative Cole, Democrat, of Maryland forced adjournment because a quorum was lacking.

"I'll get five minutes one way or the other tomorrow to make this speech in spite of the brass hats," stormed Mr. Dingell a few minutes later.

Naval Expansion.

Chairman Vinson disclosed yesterday that the Navy is preparing legislation to authorize the building of still more combat ships which will be started just as soon as new or existing ways are available.

Mr. Vinson said he would insist that the new program emphasize battleships, apparently to offset any similar construction which Japan might undertake. The Georgian gave no details of the projected expansion.

At present, the United States has about 345 combat ships in the five major categories—battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines—under construction and on last Navy Day, October 27, the number in service totaled 346.

Asserting that all naval building now is on a 24-hour-a-day basis, Mr. Vinson said the forthcoming legislation might include some provisions for further expediting the work.

Radio Put At Disposal Of Military

President Delegates Power to Defense Communications Board; Details Explained

DEC 11 1941

Washington, Dec. 10 — (AP.) — President Roosevelt placed all the nation's radio facilities at the disposal of the Army and Navy today for "use, control, inspection, or closure," but an official explanation said this did not mean any general commandeering of stations.

An executive order by the President "means simply that the Chief Executive is delegating to the Defense Communications Board certain authority which is already given him" by the Communications Act, said Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the board.

After asserting that no "general taking over or operation of private radio by the Government is contemplated," Fly added:

"There is no change in policy or plans. The step is a procedural one. It has long been known that the military may require certain communication facilities in connection with the national emergency. Many of these needs have already been arranged for by agreement. Under today's executive order, the Army or the Navy will now, when necessary, arrange to take over or close radio facilities through the Defense Communications Board, thus relieving the President of this extra responsibility. The Defense Communications Board, which has made plans for utilizing wire and radio services in the present emergency, is not undertaking censorship."

Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, urged all stations to "exercise unusually careful editorial judgment in selecting news." This, Miller said, was in line with Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions in his radio speech last night.

Hemisphere Service Bill Is Blocked

Senator Johnson, Delaying Action by Senate, Says He Wants President to Keep Promise

DEC 11 1941

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP).—Senator Johnson, Republican, California, veteran foe of the Administration's foreign policies, temporarily blocked Senate action today on a measure lifting legal restrictions upon the use of selectees and National Guardsmen outside the Western Hemisphere.

Explaining to reporters later that he wanted to "help the President keep his promises," Johnson said he desired additional time to study the bill because he felt that it would permit the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign territory.

"The President has promised again and again," Johnson said, "that he would never send American boys to die on foreign soil. I want to help him keep that promise."

Reminded that Congress had declared war on Japan, Johnson said he thought there was no need to rush through the bill before the Senate knew fully what was involved in it.

Would Extend Service.

The measure, offered by Chairman Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, not only would lift the hemisphere restrictions, but would extend the service of all Army personnel for the duration of the war and six months after.

Reynolds said he would press for action on the measure tomorrow and Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee announced he would ask the House to accept the Senate varsion of the bill in order to speed enactment.

May said he had received no word from Army officials about a reported proposal to expand the draft age limits to include all men between 18 and 45 years old. The present law takes in only those from 21 through 35, with those above 28 being deferred.

"I am not in favor of going down to 18 yet," May said. "We may have to go up, but I don't want to go down to take in the children."

OPM Stops Big Rush By Buyers

Order Is Effective From Today To Dec. 22 1941

DEC 11 1941

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The government tonight banned the sale of any new automobile tires to the public until Dec. 22 to stop "a consumers' buying wave."

The order, effective tomorrow, was issued by Donald M. Nelson, priorities director, on the OPM's Civilian Supply Division. "Severe penalties," the OPM said, are provided for violation of the order.

"The prohibition means," the announcement explained, "that no new automobile, truck, bus, or motorcycle, farm implement or other type of tire or tube may be sold by anyone—including tire stores both wholesale and retail; filling stations, automobile dealers or any others—except on preference rating orders of A-3 or higher.

"The restriction, however, does not apply to the sale of used tires and tubes, retreaded tires, or to the sale of tires and tubes furnished with new or used automotive vehicles.

"Although the prohibition on tire sales is effective until Dec. 22, a more permanent plan for controlling distribution of tires is to be worked out."

The OPM said that the consumers' buying wave had broken out after the start of hostilities with Japan Sunday. Motorists and others apparently feared that the war would shut off the supply of rubber and decided to stock up.

Pending the working out of a control program, the order also prohibits processors from consuming or processing any rubber except for defense needs and certain essential civilian uses which the order lists.

For these essential civilian uses rubber may not be processed at a rate of consumption greater than that for November.

The order was issued so suddenly that tire dealers, who apparently will have to close shop for ten days unless they sell other merchandise, had no advance warning.

Only a brief press release was issued tonight. Officials said the full text of the order would not be available until tomorrow.

Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator, told the Senate Military Committee today he believed the nation's present rubber supply would last two or three years with rationing and said he was interested in any feasible plan to increase the supply.

Jones testified at a hearing on a plan of Senator Downey (D.-Calif.) to increase the rubber supply through cultivation of large acreage of Gualyule plant in the Salinas Valley of California. He said he would support the plan if it was found feasible.

Witnesses testified that the plant could be cultivated to produce a ton of rubber a year per acre at the end of four years and that enough seed was available to plant 50,000 acres this year.

Jones reported a supply of 600,000 tons of rubber in the country and another 100,000 tons on the high seas en route from the Far East. He expected some war loss in the tonnage en route.

Jones said that four synthetic rubber plants now building would produce about 40,000 tons a year in another 12 months. He placed the nation's consumption at about 600,000 tons a year.

Quezon Pledges Loyalty Of His People To U. S.

Philippines' President Cables Roosevelt That They Will Stand By America

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines cabled President Roosevelt today his people were "loyal to America and determined to stand by her."

The text of the cable, transmitted to the President through the Interior Department, read:

"I have just arrived from Baguio, the summer capital of the Philippines, where I was when the war between the United States and Japan was declared. I have covered the country by automobile, and I am happy to report that everywhere the people are loyal to America and determined to stand by her in testimony of their gratitude to you, to the Government of the United States and to the American people, and because of their devotion to the cause of democracy and freedom. I am proud, therefore, that the reiterated assurance I have given to you to the effect that you can count upon us was no empty word."

U. S. to Release Funds So Japs Can Eat

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The State Department announced tonight that arrangements had been made for the release of sufficient frozen funds for the purchase of food and other necessities for the personnel of the Japanese Embassy and Japanese consular establishments in this country.

The announcement emphasized that the arrangement would be continued "on a strictly reciprocal basis."

The Japanese Embassy staff here has been purchasing necessities with funds they had on hand at the time Japan attacked Hawaii, but it is understood the money was running short.

Government Seizes 2,303 Enemy Aliens

Only Three Hours Needed By FBI To Make Arrests

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The government has seized 2,303 enemy aliens since Sunday, apparently completing its initial program for such arrests.

Attorney-General Biddle, announcing the total today at a press conference, said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had apprehended all those listed for arrest in this country within two hours after receiving its orders. In Hawaii the job was done within three hours.

Those held include 1,291 Japanese, 865 Germans and 147 Italians.

They are in the custody of the Immigration Service pending a review of evidence concerning them by civilian boards. Aliens ordered detained for the duration of the war will be turned over to the Army, while immigration officials will have charge of those paroled.

The seizures brought to around 4,300 the number of aliens held in connection with war developments. About 900 Italians are at Fort Missoula, Mont., 300 Germans at Fort Lincoln, N. D., more than 400 Germans at Fort Stanton, N. M., and around 400 Germans and Italians are held under sabotage charges or have been convicted as a result of damage done to Axis ships in United States ports.

During the World War this country arrested 8,500 enemy aliens, of whom about 3,000 were paroled. Those detained for the duration included 2,300 civilians and 2,200 military prisoners, mostly German officers and seamen. The detention camps were in Georgia, North Carolina and Utah.

Biddle declared that there had been "absolutely no evidence of fifth column activities, sabotage or espionage." Those seized, he said, were persons whom the department felt "it would be unwise not to apprehend" and had been selected as much as a year ago.

Urging the public to "keep our heads and tempers," the Attorney-General said that aliens need not fear arrest so long as they obeyed the law.

He announced that Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, would come to the department to organize a new division to handle alien property, similar to the office of alien property custodian which existed until 1934. Crowley also will be the Attorney-General's alternate on the Economic Defense Board.

Princess Hohenlohe Seized By FBI Agents

Philadelphia, Dec. 10 (AP)—Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe of Hungary, once reputed friend of high Nazi officials and a colorful figure in European political intrigue before the war, was arrested today by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

The Princess, now nearly 50, was sent to the United States immigration station at Gloucester, N. J., along with sixty-four other German, Italian and Japanese nationals rounded up in Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania.

Immigration and FBI agents declined to say where the Princess had been taken into custody. They also declined to say whether she had been residing or visiting here.

She successfully fought deportation proceedings last May.

RAID GERMAN GROUP

Dies Agents Seize Papers of Chicago Organization.

DEC 11 1941

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP).—Agents of the Dies committee disclosed today that they had raided an organization which they said had been collecting about $1,000 a week ostensibly for the relief of German war prisoners in Canada.

Papers of the organization, called the Kyffhauser Bund Hilfs Werk, were seized and several of its leading figures were questioned and then released, the agents said.

They added that their investigation showed that the group had sent between $30,000 and $33,000 to a clearing house in Philadelphia The money was supposed to go to relieve the prisoners in Canada, the agents said, but evidence they collected indicated that it was being diverted to other purposes. They declined to furnish additional details.

SAYS BRITISH AIM TO DISARM REICH

DEC 11 1941

Representative Cole Tells of Trip to England.

Washington, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Representative Cole, Republican, of New York said today that Great Britain, confident of ultimate victory over the Nazis, planned to disarm Germany after the war so that she could never again threaten the peace of the world.

"There will be no German Army after this is over," he said in his interview.

The New Yorker, a member of a congressional party that has just returned from a trip to the British Isles, said he found the English "a determined and courageous people who will never stop fighting until Hitler is licked."

"Many of the officials with whom I talked," he said, "expressed the hope that it would not be necessary to inflict on Germany the horror and destruction which the Nazis have inflicted on the British. But they are determined to put an end once and for all to Hitlerism."

Oil Industry Warns Germany and Japan Have Ample Gasoline

Nippon Believed to Have Fuel for Two Years; More Seen as Aim of Drive

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—From various authoritative oil industry sources came the warning today that Japan and Germany, despite huge losses of supplies, have sufficient petroleum and gasoline for at least a good many months of all-out blitzkrieg campaigns.

Some suggested Japan has enough for two years and that Germany still is fairly well supplied. However, they said, both nations are evidently making supreme efforts to assure themselves of future oil supplies.

These sources called "utter nonsense" the often-heard suggestions that both the aggressor powers were nearing the end of their resources of petroleum—the most valuable asset of modern military and naval forces.

"We heard that opinion," one expert said, "when the Germans conquered Poland, and we heard it again when they ran over France and Norway and Greece—and we're still hearing it in combination with their fighting in Russia and Libya."

Oil May Be Aim of Campaign.

Some oil experts point out that the Japanese attack in the Pacific may be part of a grand campaign formulated by the Axis around the oil supplies of Europe and Asia.

Japan obviously struck in Hawaii and the Philippines, they say, to divert American supplies from the British Isles, the Near East and Russia.

The Near East and Russia contain practically all the oil resources of Eurasia.

Russia is expected to produce about 250,000,000 barrels of oil—an output second only to the United States—this year, and nine-tenths of this production comes from the Caucasus, which Gen. Timoshenko's forces are defending so successfully.

That may mean, it was suggested, that Germany will throw her Eastern armies into a power drive against Iraq, Iran (Persia), Saudi Arabia and Bahrein.

Island Stored Petroleum.

Those four areas are expected, according to the oil men's statistics, to produce more than 100,000,000 barrels of petroleum this year, three times the amount which Germany now obtains from her own fields and from Rumania, Poland, Italy and Albania combined.

Japan, at the crossroads of Far Eastern maritime operations, was stated by some foreign oil experts to have, in the course of the last 15 years, converted herself into "an island filling station."

In addition to imports and new oil sources, there have been tremendous developments in the production of synthetic gasolines.

And all this excess apparently has been stored in Japan, in underground reservoirs.

Oil men recalled that, during the earthquake of 1923, there were terrific explosions of gasoline as a result of quake and reasoned that this could have resulted only from underground storage. Some said they had reason to believe this storage method still was being employed, and had been, in numerous secret positions in Japan, for a long number of years.

U. S. LEADS AXIS IN STEEL BY 2 TO 1

Allies' Capacity More Than Twice Enemy's Total, Institute Reports

Seizure Of Two-Thirds Of Russian Plants Would Not Give Germany Lead

DEC 11 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 10—The American Iron and Steel Institute said today that the United States alone can produce three tons of steel for every two made by the Axis and Axis-dominated nations.

Combined steel capacity of the United States, the British Empire and Russia is considerably more than twice the Axis total, the institute declared.

Even if two thirds of Russian capacity should fall into German hands, the United States and the Allies could still make sixty per cent. more steel than Germany and the rest of the world, the world-wide survey made by the institute disclosed.

88,000,000-Ton Capacity Seen

The institute summed up the international steel situation as follows:

The United States industry will have capacity by the end of this year for producing about 88,000,000 net tons annually.

Approximately 60,600,000 tons annually can be made by Germany, Japan and all continental European steel-making nations except Russia.

[Foreign figures are not published but the records of maximum production in peak periods afford a measure.]

Nearly 120 P. C. More

British Empire steel capacity is around 20,600,000 tons a year and Russia about 21 800,000 tons.

Combined capacity of the United States, the British Empire and Russia is approximately 130,400,000 tons annually, or nearly 120 per cent. more than the Axis.

About sixty per cent. of Russian steel capacity is believed located in the central and southern areas. Even if Russia lost all that capacity around 117,300,000 tons could be produced annually by the United States, the British Empire and the balance of Russian mills.

Capacity Of Axis Mills

The Axis and Axis-dominated countries could make only about 73,700,000 tons annually even though they could operate all the steel-making facilities in central and southern Russia at full capacity, a doubtful possibility.

The mills of Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland have produced as much as 29,600,000 tons annually, or roughly half the total steel capacity owned by Axis and Axis-dominated nations.

The institute gave the following figures for probable maximum capacity of steel-producing nations, based on the last recorded peak year:

	Annual Capacity.	When Reached.
Axis Dominated
France	10,700,000	1929
Belgium	4,500,000	1929
Japan	7,100,000	1940
Italy	3,000,000	1939
Luxembourg	3,000,000	1929
Hungary, Spain, Sweden	2,700,000	....
Allied
United Kingdom	15,100,000	1939
Canada	2,600,000	1941
South Africa	400,000	1941
Australia	1,300,000	1940
India	200,000	1940

DEC 11 1941

Reached Peak In 1929

The institute said that France, Belgium and Luxembourg reached their peak in 1929 and failed to reach that level in any later year. German output from 1936 through 1940, however, was in excess of 1929.

Similarly, present estimated capacity of the United States, the United Kingdom and British dominions, and Russia is much greater than in 1929.

New Argentine Envoy To Tokyo Stranded

A. M. Candioti, At San Francisco, Hopes To Accompany Departing Representatives Of Japan

San Francisco, Dec. 10 (AP)—Alberto M. Candioti, Argentina's new Ambassador to Japan, is 4,500 miles from his job, with about the same chance of getting there as a thumbless hitchhiker. He and his wife virtually are living out of a suitcase—seventy-six packages of personal effects are somewhere on (or maybe under) the high seas.

Candioti today said the outbreak of war had not diminished his eagerness to take over his duties, particularly since the British Government has asked that the Argentine Embassy in Tokyo look after British interests in Japan.

He said he probably would remain in San Francisco indefinitely, hoping for passage to the Orient with departing representatives of the Japanese Government.

American Consul, Girl Clerk Seized By Japs at Hanoi

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The State Department announced tonight that O. Edmund Clubb, American Consul at Hanoi, French Indo-China, had been arrested by Japanese military authorities.

Iris Johnston, a clerk at the consulate, was taken into custody at the same time, on the evening of Dec. 7, it was said.

Both were described as safe and well. Clubb's home is in South St. Paul, Minn. The State Department had no information on Miss Johnston's home address.

The American Consul at Manila reported tonight that his staff was all safe and well.

Blackout Stirs L.A.; 'Not Test'

Los Angeles, Dec. 10 (AP).—A three-hour blackout, during which unidentified planes were reported by the Army's Interceptor Command as circling in the vicinity of Los Angeles, was lifted shortly after 11 P. M. tonight (2 A. M., Thursday, New York time).

"This definitely is not a test blackout," the regional controller of the Fourth Interceptor Command in Los Angeles had said. "This is serious."

Shut Plane Plant.

Police officers of suburban Hollywood ran along darkened streets shortly after 10 P. M. warning all pedestrians and motorists to seek shelter immediately. Excitement prevailed, and the Consolidated Aircraft Co. in San Diego, where the blackout also was ordered, stopped production and sent all employes home. Company officials said it would cost the plant nearly 135,000 man-hours of labor.

Some defense plants in the Los Angeles area also were ordered closed. Lockheed and Douglas aircraft plants remained operating full blast, however.

Earlier it was revealed that signal fires in the form of arrows pointing at Seattle had been found by Washington State Police near Port Angeles, Wash., and were extinguished. The commanding general of the Ninth Corps Area said an intensive search was under way for fifth columnists.

COAST FIRES PROBED AS SPIES' BEACONS

DEC 11 1941

SEATTLE, Dec. 10 (AP).—Two brush fires seemingly pointing the way to Seattle and Bremerton were discovered by State patrolmen last night.

In Washington the War Department said a search was on for Fifth Columnists who lit beacons to guide enemy airmen to Seattle.

Ross Cunningham, assistant to the Governor, reported that identity of the persons who set the fires was known, but that so far as he could determine no arrests had been made.

FIRES RESEMBLE ARROWS

He gave this version of the incident:

Brush fires were burning on the Olympic Peninsula yesterday, set by persons clearing land. State Patrolmen W. L. Lane and Howard Hurd, in the vicinity, attached no significance to the blazes until they burned low.

Then the fires, on opposite sides of the highway, appeared to resemble arrows, one pointing in the general direction of the Bremerton Navy Yard, the other toward Seattle. The patrolmen extinguished them.

FBI GETS REPORT

State authorities reported the fires to Army officers and the Federal Bureau of Investigation and then withdrew from the case.

Meanwhile, at Nome, Alaska, fire swept through the Lomen Commercial Company's property, causing $40,000 damage, Carl Lomen, chairman of the board, was informed tonight. Previous estimates of damage had ranged up to $100,000.

Flares Fall on San Francisco

Believed to Have Been Dropped by Enemy Planes—Alarms Black Out City.

DEC 11 1941

San Francisco, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Two air raid alarms early today plunged San Francisco into a blackout almost 100 per cent effective. The alarms were accompanied by reports that a half dozen flares had been dropped over the city, presumably from enemy planes.

The army interceptor command, silent as to the cause of the alerts, said that no information was available concerning the flares, but added that it was unlikely that they had been dropped from United States planes.

Army planes took to the skies at the first warning—a yellow alert indicating the presence of "unidentified" planes in the area. This was about 1:45 A. M. (Pacific standard time). Five minutes later the all-clear signal was sounded.

Then, at 2:15 A. M., came a second alert; this time a blue signal, signifying the approach of enemy planes. For slightly more than an hour the alarm continued, then sirens sounded an all-clear. Windows were reported broken along downtown streets by citizens seeking to get at switches in stores where lights still burned.

Other Cities Darken.

Other northern California cities were blacked out at approximately the same time: Oakland, Berkeley and other Bay area cities and Sacramento. The blackout here was considerably more thorough than that of Monday night, when illuminated shop signs glowed on.

Stung by an army general's reprimand, San Francisco has dropped its easy-going ways and had begun to learn how to respond to air raid warnings.

"This is war — death and destruction may come from the skies at any moment," Lieut.-Gen. John L. DeWitt, commanding General of the Fourth Army, said in a blunt rebuke for the manner in which the city responded to first mainland air raid alarms of the Japanese-American war Monday night and early Tuesday.

The General's warning of the danger of death from the air spurred other West Coast cities, from Canada to Mexico, to make blackout and air raid preparations. All of them admittedly had much to learn.

Gen. DeWitt said the conduct of some San Franciscans who failed to heed the blackout orders was criminal, and said persons who doubted the reality of enemy planes being over California Monday night were acting in a manner that was "inane, foolish, idoitic."

"It is nonsense to assume we would practice an alert," he said.

Pickup Of Planes Off Coast Causes New York Alarm

Flight Soon Identified After Warnings Are Sounded

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—A pickup of a plane flight off the East Coast resulted in air raid warnings today in New York city, on Long Island, in Newark and other New Jersey cities with the all clear signal sounding a short time later.

An intelligence officer at Mitchel Field, headquarters of the First Air Corps, explained that there was "an actual pickup of planes at sea," but they were identified a short time later and the all-clear signal was given.

"There was no record of such a flight by either the Army or Navy or civilian observers," the officer said, "and we had to assume that they were enemy planes." The assumption was proved erroneous when the planes were identified.

The first alarm today was sounded at 5:53 a. m. (E.S.T.) in Suffolk County, on the eastern tip of Long Island, with an all clear signal at 7:22 a. m. The alarm moved inward on Long Island to Nassau County where it sounded at 8:42 a. m. and ended at 9:05 a. m.

The warning in New York city and the metropolitan area came at 8:41 a. m. with the all-clear at 9:01 a. m.

The metropolitan area experienced its first two alarms of the war yesterday amidst considerable excitement as the result of what theWar Department described as a "phoney tip"that hostile planes were approaching the city.

Military and civilian agencies said they were working on plans to perfect the warning system, improve the signals, co-ordinate civil and military information in order to eliminate the sounding of unnecessary alarms.

Air Raid Rules

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—The following is the third in a series of instructions issued by the Office for Civilian Defense for the guidance of the people in case of air raids:

PUT OUT LIGHTS

Wether or not blackout is ordered, don't show more light than is necessary. If planes come over, put out all lights at once—don't wait for the blackout order. The light that's out will never guide a Jap. Remember a candle light may be seen for miles from the air.

If you have portiers, overdrapes, or curtains, arrange a double thickness over your windows. Blankets will do. If you have heavy black paper, paste it on your windows. Don't crowd or stampede stores to get it, however. You probably have everything you need at home. Be ingenious — improvise.

Should you get an air-raid warning, remember to shut off gas stoves, gas furnaces, and gas pilot lights on both. Bomb explosions may blow them out from blast effect. Gas that collects may be explosive later.

Prepare one room, the one with the least window-glass, in the strongest part of your house, for a refuge room. Put food and drinking water in it. Put a sturdy table in it. Put mattresses and chairs in it. Take a magazine or two, and a deck of cards, into it. Take things like eyeglasses and dentures with you when you go into it. Take toilet facilities, paper, a screen. If you have a portable radio, take that too. Above all, keep calm. Stay at home. Put out lights.

Army Studies Methods To Quiet False Alarms

Similar Needless Excitement in '98 and '17 Recalled

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—New York's air-raid scare and President Roosevelt's admonition against circulation of "unconfirmed reports" prompted an Army study today of ways to quiet baseless war alarms.

A preliminary investigation indicated that a well intentioned telephone call originated a report of enemy bombers two hours off-shore which sent Mitchel Field, L. I., fighters into the air yesterday amid a flurry of excitement in Manhattan.

Almost at the same time the War Department was scotching a rumor that Oregon had been bombarded from the sea.

Some officials were inclined to view the spread of alarmist rumors as an inevitable product of public excitement which could be expected to decline as the war wore on.

Some recalled that false alarms were equally widespread in the first world war.

In the Spanish-American War following the sinking of the Maine there were heated demands that the fleet be brought home from Cuba to protect Atlantic coast ports from Admiral Cevera's Spanish armada

Navy Places Mines In New York Harbor

Area Covering Approaches Established—Patrol Vessel To Issue Directions To Incoming Craft

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—Mines have been placed in the approaches to New York Harbor, the Navy Department announced today.

A statement by the Hydrographic Office said:

"A mined area covering the approaches to New York Harbor has been established. Incoming vessels will secure directions for safe navigation from the patrol vessels stationed off Ambrose Channel entrance."

PRESIDENT LAUD'S HARRIET ELLIOTT

Accepts Resignation Of Defense Commission's Consumer Adviser

Roosevelt, In Letter, Mentions Her "Splendid Service"

DEC 11 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 10—The resignation of Miss Harriet Elliott as consumer adviser on the Defense Commission and as associate administrator of the consumer division in the Office of Price Administration, was accepted today by President Roosevelt, effective immediately.

In a letter of resignation, dated November 22, Miss Elliott disclosed she expected to return to her duties at the woman's college of the University of North Carolina.

Praises Roosevelt

She spoke with appreciation of her opportunity to assist in the defense program and told the President "this nation and the world are deeply in your debt for your incomparable and courageous leadership in this, the most critical moment in all history."

In a letter of reply, made public at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt likewise expressed appreciation and that of the nation's consumers for Miss Elliott's "splendid service."

Displeasure Reported

Before Miss Elliott's resignation was announced officially, it was said in defense quarters she was displeased with alleged sidetracking of consumers' interests in the defense program.

In its present status, her staff members contended, the consumers' unit has been relegated to virtually hopeless subordination.

Gen. Pershing Offers Services To Nation 'To The Last Ounce'

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the AEF in the first World War, offered his services to his country again today to the "last ounce" of his strength.

Pershing was 81 last September and has been in poor health, but he said in a letter to President Roosevelt he was one of millions of Americans who wanted to be of help in the fight.

Pershing sent this letter to the Chief Executive:

"All Americans today are united in one ambition—to take whatever share they can in the defense of their country. As one among these millions, I hasten to offer my services, in any way in which my experience and my strength, to the last ounce, will be of help in the fight.

"With supreme confidence that, under your calm and determined leadership, we will retain our balance, despite foul blows, I am faithfully yours, John J. Pershing."

The Chief Executive replied:

"You are magnificent. You always have been—and you always will be. I am deeply grateful to you for your letter of December tenth. Under a wise law, you have never been placed on the retired list. You are very much on the active list and your services will be of great value."

2 Destroyers Launched At Boston Navy Yard

The Earle Named In Honor Of World War Figure, The Doran For Bluejacket

Boston, Dec. 10 (AP)—Two destroyers were launched at the Boston Navy Yard today.

One bore the name of the naval officer who organized the North Sea mine barrage in the World War and the other that of a bluejacket who was wounded while cutting a cable between Spain and Havana in 1898.

The former was named in honor of Rear Admiral Ralph Earle, U. S. N., late president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute and chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance during the World War. The sponsor was Mrs. John Fore Hines, of Ardmore, Pa., his daughter.

The other—the Doran—was named for the late Chief Master at Arms, John James Doran, USN. Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, of Boston, Doran's sister, was the sponsor.

Admiral Earle won the Distinguished Service Medal for his services, the citation crediting him organizing the mine barrage.

Additional Army Casualty List

DEC 11 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 10—The names of three more officers and eighty-five soldiers were added today to the army's first casualty list of the war.

The list of the dead now has reached 122. They were at Parl Harbor, where, the White House said Monday, casualties might run to 3,000 dead and wounded, almost half of them dead.

Following are the new additions, to the death list, with the names of the next of kin:

SHIELDS, PRIVATE WILLIAM F., Mr. John Shields, father, Bisbeen, Ariz.

FOX, PRIVATE JACK W., John A. Fox, father, Culver City, Cal.

LUSK, PRIVATE HOWARD N., Mrs. Ann Rynolds, sister, Lynwood, Cal.

ROBERTS, CORPORAL THOMAS E., Mrs. Sibyl M. Roberts, mother, Westminister, Cal.

Sergt. James H. Derthick, Ravenna, Ohio, reported killed in Hawaii, is alive but wounded.

MacKenzie's Views On War Today

DEC 11 1941

BY DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The further Japanese successes in the war of the Pacific—notably the sinking of the Great British warships Prince of Wales and Repulse, and the landing of Jap troops in the Philippines—make grim reading for the Allies, but they are far from decisive and needn't cause any discouragement whatever.

Probably there is little danger that we shall allow ourselves to fall under a complex which attributes superhuman capabilities to the enemy, but we should guard against any such tendency. A lot of folk got the superhuman complex regarding the mighty German war-machine, and it was two years before the Russians deflated the invincibility balloon under which much of the continent of Europe (and the peoples of some other countries) sat and shivered.

The Japanese aren't superhuman, despite the fact that in three days of bombing they have inflicted damage which the Germans haven't been able to do in more than two years with what once was the greatest airforce ever created. And what's the answer to that?

The Nipponese fighting machine doesn't compare in power with that of the Nazis. Certainly the Japanese aren't better warriors. I think we have the answer in three points:

(1). The Japanese created a vast advantage by a surprise attack, and have worked with terrific swiftness since the start; (2), their bombers have been favored with a good fortune which hasn't fallen so plentiful even on the Germans with all their skill and power; and (3) they have been fighting a "suicide" war thus far, striking widely and with utter disregard for consequences to equipment or their own lives.

That last point is important. The Nipponese are risking everything in these early hours in an effort to secure an advantage which will carry them through. That type of warfare brings either great rewards or terrible disasters. It is the sort of thing the Japanese are well adapted to, for a people who are endowed with such courage that they don't hesitate to commit hara kiri to satisfy honor surely aren't going to hesitate to sacrifice themselves in this emergency.

The Japanese are carrying out a strategical program which is Hitlerian in its daring and scope, and it is given to wonder whether Berlin hasn't had a considerable hand in shaping the plans. The line of strategy now begins to take form.

Their immediate objectives are the occupation, or at least the immobilization, of the two great allied naval bases of the Far East — Britain's Singapore and our own Philippines. It is not hit-and-run attack which the Japanese have made on these strongholds.

The British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse were sunk in a naval engagement off the Malayan peninsula above Singapore, and there is heavy land fighting in Malaya between the British and Japs. The enemy apparently have made one or more landings in Luzon, the Philippines, and Berlin reports a great naval battle between our ships and Japanese off Manila.

If the Japanese could knock out both the Philippines and Singapore, they would have secured command of all those waters.

The object of the Japanese assault on the narrow Malayan Peninsula is twofold: to give them a land base from which to strike at Singapore, which lies at the end of the peninsula, and to cut the lifeline between Singapore and British Burma, against which the Japanese likely will fling an attack.

But beyond these immediate objectives, which are so essential for success, lies another — the Dutch East Indies with their wealth of supplies. For long now the Japanese have made no bones of admitting that they would immediately strike for the Indies if America cut off its shipment of essential supplies to Nippon—as has been done.

Japan has been dependent upon the United States for the bulk of its vital war supplies. There is only one direction in which the Japs can now turn, and that's to the Dutch East Indies. Unless the resources of the Indies can be tapped, Nippon will soon be in a dangerous position.

LONDON, DEC. 10-(AL)-KING GEORGE VI SENT THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE TODAY TO THE BRITISH GOVERNOR OF HONGKONG:

"IN THE HOUR OF ATTACK BY THE FORCES OF JAPAN IN WHICH HONGKONG FACES THE FIRST FURIES OF THE ENEMY, I SEND YOU AND MY PEOPLE IN THE COLONY A MESSAGE OF CONFIDENCE AND ENCOURAGEMENT IN YOUR ORDEAL.

"I HAVE EVERY TRUST IN YOUR LEADERSHIP AND THE SPIRIT OF FEARLESS DEVOTION WHICH WILL UPHOLD THE GARRISON AND XHE PEOPLE OF HONGKONG. THEYHAVE ALREADY SUSTAINED A WANTON AND SAVAGE ASSAULT, BUT UNDER GOD'S PROVIDENCE ALL THE EFFORTS OF THE ENEMY W LL BEE BROUGHT TO NAUGHT."

WASHINGTON,DEC.10-(AP)-THE STATE DEPARTMENT CAUTIONED AMERICANS TODAY NOT TO PERMIT THEIR INTEREST IN "FREE GOVERNMENT MOVEMENTS" IN BEHALF OF CONQUERED COUNTRIES TO DIVIDE THEIR ALLEGIANCE OR OTHERWISE DAMAGE AMERICAN UNITY.

OFFICIALS SAID THE WARNING WAS NOT DIRECTED AGAINST THE "FREE FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE," OR ANY OTHER GROUP IN PARTICULAR, BUT IT WAS MADE PLAIN THAT THE DEPARTMENT WOULD RATHER NOT SEE AMERICAN CITIZENS BECOME MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNING BODIES OF ANY OF THE MOVEMENTS.

DEC 11 1941

CLARIFYING THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT'S POLICY TOWARD ACTIVITIES OF FOREIGN POLITICAL LEADERS AND GROUPS ORGANIZING SUCH MOVEMENTS IN THIS COUNTRY, THE STATE DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCEMENT SAID:.

"THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES DOES NOT LOOK WITH FAVOR ON ANY ACTIVITIES DESIGNED TO DIVIDE THE ALLEGIANCE OF ANY GROUP OF AMERICAN RESIDENTS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ANY FOREIGN GOVERNMENT, IN EXISTENCE OR IN PROSPECT. THE FIRST CONCERN OF THE UNITED STATES MUST ALWAYS BE UNITY OF THE COUNTRY, BASED ON THE AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE AND THE IDEAL OF LIBERTY MANY TIMES INVOKED SINCE ITS FIRST STATEMENT IN OUR DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, TOOK COGNIZANCE, HOWEVER, THAT "IN HARMONY WITH THE BASIC PRINCIPLES OF LIBERTY, THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES DO HAVE A SYMPATHETIC INTEREST IN MOVEMENTS BY ALIENS IN THIS COUNTRY WHO DESIRE TO LIBERATE THEIR COUNTRIES FROM AXIS DOMINATION."

IN FACT, THE "FREE FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE" IS RECEIVING LEASE-LEND AID FROM THE UNITED STATES, AND IS WORKING IN CLOSE COOPERATION WITH THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

LATIN AMERICA CAN BE OF GREAT ASSISTANCE TO THIS COUNTRY IN CONFLICT WITH JAPAN

DEC 11 1941

CAN HELP BLOCKADE BY DENYING MATERIALS TO TOKIO, GIVING THEM TO UNITED STATES; AND PROVIDING BASES AND DRYDOCKS (1,000)

BY ALBURN WEST AND EDWARD STUNTZ

WASHINGTON,DEC 10-(WIDE WORLD)-INTER-AMERICAN COOPERATION, ALREADY GEARED TO WAR IN THE ATLANTIC, COULD BE A POTENTIAL STRONG ARM FOR UNCLE SAM IN HIS BATTLE WITH NIPPON.

THE "GOOD NEIGHBOR" REPUBLICS, WHETHER OR NOT THEY FORMALLY JOIN THE UNITED STATES IN THE COMBAT AGAINST JAPAN, CAN AT ONCE:

PROVIDE ESSENTIAL BASES AND IMPORTANT DRYDOCK FACILITIES FOR THE UNITED STATES FLEET;

KEEP JAPAN FROM THE SOUTHERN CONTINENT'S VAST STORE OF RAW

MATERIALS WHILE SPEEDING THESE CARGOES HERE;

GUARD UNCLE SAM'S BACK DOOR AGAINST NIPPONESE ESPIONAGE LIKELY TO BE AIMED AT THE ALL IMPORTANT PANAMA CANAL.

STEMMING FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S FIRST TERM INAUGURATION OF THE "GOOD NEIGHBOR" POLICY, THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS IN 1938 BRANDED AGGRESSION AGAINST ANY ONE STATE AS AGGRESSION AGAINST THEM ALL AND BEFORE THE END OF THIS MONTH FOREIGN MINISTERS OF ALL THE STATES WILL MEET IN RIO DE JANEIRO TO RANGE THE MIGHT OF THE HEMISPHERE AGAINST JAPAN.

DEC 11 1941

DECLARATIONS OF WAR BY THE CENTRAL AMERICAN AND CARIBBEAN REPUBLICS AGAINST JAPAN AND ANNOUNCEMENTS OF A POLICY REGARDING THIS COUNTRY AS A NON-BELLIGERENT ALREADY HAVE OPENED THEIR PORTS TO UNITED STATES WARSHIPS AND CLOSED THEM TO JAPAN.

THE CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS, SCHEDULED FOR LATE DECEMBER, AND THE THIRD SUCH MEETING SINCE ADOLF HITLER STRUCK AT POLAND IN AUGUST, 1939, WOULD CARRY OUT THE PLEDGE OF MUTUAL ASSISTANCE ADOPTED AT THE LIMA, PERU, PAN AMERICAN CONFERENCE IN 1938, AND REAFFIRMED AT HAVANA.

BUT WHILE ANY ACTUAL MILITARY AND NAVAL COLLABORATION AWAITS THE RESULTS OF DIPLOMATIC ACTION, THESE FACTORS STAND OUT:

IN OCTOBER, 1940, THE CHIEFS OF STAFF OF THE OTHER 20 REPUBLICS VISITED THE UNITED STATES AS GUESTS OF GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL AND TOURED ARMY POSTS.

THE FOLLOWING SPRING THE COMMANDERS-IN-CHIEF OF THE ELEVEN LATIN AMERICAN NAVAL POWERS SPENT A MONTH IN A CROSS-COUNTRY AIR TOUR OF NAVAL SHORE ESTABLISHMENTS.

WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS REPEATEDLY HAVE STRESSED THE VALUE OF THESE VISITS IN BRINGING THE LEADERS OF THE ARMED FORCES OF THE REPUBLICS TOGETHER.

THEY POINT OUT THAT CUBA, THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, HAITI, THE CENTRAL AMERICAN REPUBLICS, ECUADOR, COLOMBIA AND VENEZUELA WOULD PROVIDE AN IDEAL JUMPING OFF PLACE FOR ASSAULTS ON THE PANAMA CANAL, AND UNFRIENDLY MILITARY LEADERS IN ANY COUNTRY WOULD BE A CONSTANT THREAT.

DEC 11 1941

THEY STRESS, TOO, THE DEFENSIVE VALUE OF THE ARMED FORCES OF THE OTHER REPUBLICS.

AVAILABLE INFORMATION INDICATES THAT A POSSIBLE COMBINED MILITARY STRENGTH OF ABOUT 400,000 TROOPS AND 1,244,000 RESERVES COULD BE AMASSED IN LATIN AMERICA.

IT IS CONSIDERED HIGHLY POSSIBLE THAT IN ADDITION THE OTHER REPUBLICS COULD MUSTER SOME 14,000 PILOTS OF VARIED MILITARY VALUE.

MORE CONCRETE IS THE NAVAL POWER OF THE REMAINDER OF THE HEMISPHERE.

DEC 11 1941

PUBLISHED COMPILATIONS SHOW THAT ON THE PACIFIC SIDE CHILE AND PERU HAVE A COMBINED TOTAL OF 47,000 TONS IN ONE BATTLESHIP, TEN DESTROYERS AND 13 SUBMARINES. CHILE HAS CRUISER BUILDING PROGRAMS.

THE MAIN NAVAL STRENGTH OF LATIN AMERICA, HOWEVER, IS ON THE ATLANTIC SIDE, WHERE ARGENTINA AND BRAZIL COULD MUSTER A FLEET OF FOUR BATTLESHIPS, THREE MEDIUM CRUISERS, 12 DESTROYERS, SEVEN SUBMARINES, SIX MINE LAYERS AND NINE MINE SWEEPERS--AN OVERALL TONNAGE OF 147,000. BRAZIL IS ENGAGED IN A DESTROYER

30.24— 13463 30.24—13463

BUILDING PROGRAM.

IN ADDITION THE UNITED STATES IN THE PAST TWO YEARS HAS GREATLY EXPANDED THE NUMBER OF OFFICERS FROM THE SERVICES ON DUTY IN EMBASSIES AND LEGATIONS AND ON SPECIAL MISSIONS IN LATIN AMERICA WHILE INVITING A NUMBER OF OFFICERS FROM ALL THE OTHER COUNTRIES TO PARTICIPATE IN TRAINING PROGRAMS HERE.

DEC 11 1941

OF MORE IMPORTANCE, POSSIBLY BECAUSE THE NEED WILL BE MORE VITAL, IS THE LATIN AMERICAN STOREHOUSE OF RAW MATERIALS.

SINCE THE SPREADING EUROPEAN CONFLICT SENT THE UNITED STATES ARMAMENT PROGRAM INTO HIGH SPEED, THIS COUNTRY HAS GONE AFTER EVERY POSSIBLE TON OF PRODUCTION OF THE OTHER REPUBLICS.

DEC 11 1941

THROUGH METALS RESERVE, INC., AND DEFENSE SUPPLIES, INC., AGENCIES OF THE FEDERAL LOAN ADMINISTRATION, THE UNITED STATES HAS PURCHASED THE COPPER PRODUCTION OF CHILE AND PERU, CHILE'S NITRATE, BRAZIL'S MANGANESE, MEXICO'S MERCURY, BOLIVIA'S TIN AND TUNGSTEN, ARGENTINA'S ZINC CONCENTRATES AND TUNGSTEN, AND MICA, NICKEL, ZINC ORE, DIAMONDS, GRAPHITE AND BERYLLIUM FROM THESE AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

DEC 11 1941

AT THE SAME TIME UNITED STATES' TRADE WITH LATIN AMERICA ZOOMED TOWARD AN EXPECTED BILLION-DOLLAR MARK FOR 1941.

AS THE UNITED STATES HIGH COMMAND LOOKS TO THE PROTECTION OF THE MULTI-THOUSAND MILE COASTLINE FROM BERING STRAIT TO CAPE HORN, THE AID THAT FRIENDLY GOVERNMENTS FROM LOWER CALIFORNIA TO THE SOUTHERN TIP OF CHILE COULD GIVE WOULD BE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

SPECIFICALLY, THIS WOULD INCLUDE THE ATTITUDE OF THE OTHER REPUBLICS TOWARD EXPORTS TO JAPAN PROVIDED THE NIPPONESE WERE ABLE TO PIERCE THE UNITED STATES' SEA BARRIERS.

DEC 11 1941

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE WITH THE NIPPONESE HAS BEEN RELATIVELY SMALL. DURING 1940 FIGURES FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE SHOW THAT ONLY 2.9 PERCENT OF LATIN AMERICA'S IMPORTS WITH A VALUE OF $25,233,000 CAME FROM JAPAN. IN THE SAME YEAR ONLY 2.4 PERCENT OF EXPORTS OF THE 20 COUNTRIES WITH A VALUE OF $23,669,000 WENT TO JAPAN.

HOWEVER THERE HAVE BEEN REPORTS--MOSTLY WITHOUT OFFICIAL RECOGNITION--OF ATTEMPTED TRANS-SHIPMENT OF VITAL MATERIALS THROUGH SOUTH AMERICA TO JAPAN.

DEC 11 1941

FINALLY THERE IS THE FACTOR OF JAPANESE POPULATION IN LATIN AMERICA. AVAILABLE STATISTICS PLACE A TOTAL OF SOME 300,000 JAPANESE IN THE OTHER AMERICAN REPUBLICS. OF THESE SOME 30,000 ARE IN PERU AND 170,000 IN BRAZIL.

DEC 11 1941

BUT THEIR POTENTIAL VALUE TO EMPEROR HIROHITO AND TO JAPANESE SPIES WOULD BE NIL IF THE GOVERNMENTS SUBSCRIBED TO THIS EXCERPT FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S WESTERN HEMISPHERE SPEECH OF MAY 27,1941:

"THE DEADLY FACTS OF WAR COMPEL NATIONS, FOR SIMPLE SELF-PRESERVATION, TO MAKE STERN CHOICES. IT DOES NOT MAKE SENSE, FOR INSTANCE, TO SAY 'I BELIEVE IN THE DEFENSE OF ALL THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE,' AND IN THE NEXT BREATH TO SAY, 'I WILL NOT FIGHT FOR THAT DEFENSE UNTIL THE ENEMY HAS LANDED ON OUR SHORES.' AND IF WE BELIEVE IN THE INDEPENDENCE AND INTEGRITY OF THE AMERICAS, WE MUST BE WILLING TO FIGHT TO DEFEND THEM JUST AS MUCH AS WE WOULD FIGHT FOR THE SAFETY OF OUR OWN HOMES."

President Signs Two Resolutions At Once

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP) — Congress unceremoniously declared war on Germany and Italy today to an accompaniment of American successes on the Pacific.

Without a single vote of opposition, both Houses quickly took the step which made this nation a full and formal participant in the world-wide fight against Axis domination.

President Roosevelt, who had asked for the declaration immediately upon learning that Germany and Italy had declared war on the United States, signed the war resolutions as soon as they were received at the White House.

Thus the tremendous line-up of the world powers for the prosecution of World War No. 2 was complete except for one major exception. Russia, which is at war with Germany and Italy, has yet to declare herself against Japan, but Secretary of State Hull expressed confidence that she would do so.

DEC 12 1941

Just before going into conference with Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Ambassador, Hull told reporters:

"We for our part have no doubt that the government and the people of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics will do their full part in standing side by side with all liberty loving people against the common menace."

And so, despite a furious Senate exchange which found Senator Tobey (R.-N.H.), charging inefficiency in the Navy Department and receiving a scornful tongue-lashing from Lucas (D.-Ill.), the Capitol tonight found the war outlook considerably more cheering than the aftermath of the blow the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor.

The sinking of the Haruna had already been announced when Congress met to declare war on Germany and Italy. Its action was swift, and taken in an atmosphere which combined the detachment of passing a minor bill with a steely calm. There was no flag-waving. There were no flights of patriotic oratory. Congress simply and in routine fashion adopted a resolution.

President's Message

In both Houses a very brief message from the President was read first of all:

"On the morning of Dec. 11, the government of Germany, pursuing its course of world conquest, declared war against the United States.

"The long-known and long-expected has thus taken place. The forces endeavoring to enslave the entire world now are moving toward this hemisphere.

"Never before has there been a greater challenge to life, liberty and civilization.

"Delay invites great danger. Rapid and united effort by all of the peoples of the world who are determined to remain free will insure a world victory of the forces of justice and righteousness over the forces of savagery and barbarism.

DEC 12 1941

"Italy also has declared war against the United States.

"I therefore request the Congress to recognize a state of war between the United States and Germany and between the United States and Italy."

Separate resolutions naming Germany and Italy were presented and the votes were taken immediately. The Senate voted 88 to 0 for war against Germany and 90 to nothing for war on Italy. Two senators who were absent for the first vote arrived in time for the second.

The House meanwhile, was voting 393 to 0 for war on Germany and 399 to 0 for war with Italy. But in that chamber, one member, Representative Jeannette Rankin (R.-Mont.), voted "present." It was she who cast the only vote on Monday against war with Japan.

The declarations were rushed to President Roosevelt, and he signed them immediately upon their arrival at the White House.

Congress, meanwhile, went on to legislation for the prosecution of the war and approved a bill which would permit the Army to send draftees, reserves and others outside the Western Hemisphere. Its consideration yesterday had been blocked by Senator Johnson (R.-Calif.).

30.24-13465

That done, the Senate ran into the Tobey-Lucas exchange.

Tobey asserted that the fleet's listening devices "weren't working" at Hawaii last Sunday, that it "lay at anchor and no steam up," and that more ships were sunk than the President had revealed. He demanded that Secretary of the Navy Knox be replaced by a "responsible" man who believes in "efficiency" rather than in public statements.

Aroused and angered, Senator Lucas (D.-Ill.), pounced upon Tobey's remarks, and drew from the New Hampshire senator a statement that the source of his information was two other senators. Tobey said he had demanded an investigation of the facts but so far they had not been made available.

LUCAS HITS BACK

"I wouldn't want to tell all I've heard on the floor of the Senate about the debacle at Pearl Harbor," Tobey shouted.

Lucas replied that it was "a serious thing to indict anyone until you know what you are talking about. "Tobey, he added, did "not know what he was talking about and he admits that he does not."

"You, Mr. Senator from New Hampshire," he shouted at Tobey, "are no naval strategist. You may think you can run this war from the floor of the Senate, but you cannot. You must have faith in the men of the Navy.

"The time has passed for you to continue the type of tactics you have employed in the United States Senate. Why, if we had followed your advice, I hate to say where we would be today.

"Oh shame, on anyone at this hour—only 48 hours, no details, no nothing—standing on the floor of the Senate, denouncing and condemning everything."

Even while the debate was on Secretary of the Navy Knox arrived at Honolulu. The Navy Department announced tonight did not make public details of the unexpected trip, but it was assumed it was for the purpose of making a first hand investigation of the surprise Japanese raid at Pearl Harbor Sunday.

Delegate King of Hawaii announced also he had talked with Governor Poindexter by long distance telephone and that the latter said Honolulu newspapers were publishing the story that 20 enemy planes had been destroyed during the Sunday raid.

U. S. Declarations of War

DEC 12 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Two war resolutions, identical except that one named Germany and the other Italy, were passed immediately by Congress today after a message from President Roosevelt had asked a declaration of war against those nations. Both had declared war on America a few hours earlier.

The President's Message

On the morning of December 11, the government of Germany, pursuing its course of world conquest, declared war against the United States.

The long-known and the long-expected has thus taken place. The forces endeavoring to enslave the entire world now are moving toward this hemisphere.

Never before has there been a greater challenge to life, liberty and civilization.

Delay invites great danger. Rapid and united effort by all of the peoples of the world who are determined to remain free will insure a world victory of the forces of justice and of righteousness over the forces of savagery and of barbarism.

Italy also has declared war against the United States.

I therefore request the Congress to recognize a state of war between the United States and Germany, and between the United States and Italy.

DEC 12 1941

American Declaration of War

Declaring that a state of war exists between the government of Germany and the government and the people of the United States and making provision to prosecute the same.

Whereas the government of Germany has formally declared war against the government and the people of the United States of America; Therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the state of war between the United States and the government of Germany which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and the President is hereby authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the government to carry on war against the government of Germany; and, to bring the conflict to a successful termination, all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the Congress of the United States.

Grim Faced President Signs New Declarations Of War

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—A grim faced man perched a long cigaret holder on the edge of his desk today, picked up a pen and wrote across the lower edges of two documents "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The Chief Executive had signed the resolutions of Congress declaring a state of war with Germany and Italy—as he had signed a similar document Monday formalizing the conflict with Japan.

A dozen congressional leaders of both parties peered over his shoulder as, in the dead silence of the presidential office, the pen scratched across the two rectangles of stiff paper. The undershot jaw jutted forward in savage manner.

As he signed each document he penned in the lower left corner the precise time of his signature—3:05 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, for the German resolution, 3:06 p. m., for the Italian.

Chairman Tom Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held a watch for the President to see.

The spectators were the same who saw him sign the Japanese resolution on Monday: Vice-President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn, Chairmen Connally and Bloom (D.-N.Y.) of the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees; Majority Leaders Barkley (Ky.) of the Senate and McCormack (Mass.) of the House; Republican Leaders McNary (Ore.) of the Senate and Martin (Mass.) of the House; Senator Austin (Vt.), Assistant Minority leader in the Senate; Representative Eaton (N. J.), ranking minority members of the House Foreign Relations Committee; Senator Glass (D.-Va.), member Woodrow Wilson's war time Cabinet, and Representative Luther Johnson (D.-Tex).

One of the spectators said that as Mr. Roosevelt spread out the documents before him on the same spot where he had signed the resolution last Monday he commented:

"Every thing seems to come in three's, and here they are."

Senator Glass was reported to have told the President that there was a suggestion when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was wording the resolutions that it should be done so as not to hurt any feelings. Glass, wagging his finger grimly, exclaimed: "Not hurt their feelings! Hell, we want to kill 'em!"

Text of German War Note

DEC 12 1941

It Accuses U. S. of Systematically Attacking Reich Forces at Sea for 4 Months.

Washington, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Germany's Charge d'Affaires, Hans Thomsen, delivered today at the State Department his country's declaration of war against the United States with a note accusing the United States of aggression against Germany. The note asserted that American naval vessels "since early September, 1941, have systematically attacked German naval forces."

The note, a copy of the document handed to the American Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, was signed by German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and said that the United States already had "virtually created a state of war." The text follows:

"Mr. Charge d'Affaires:

"The Government of the United States, having violated in the most flagrant manner and in ever increasing measure all rules of neutrality, in favor of the adversaries of Germany, and having continually been guilty of the most severe provocations toward Germany ever since the outbreak of the European war provoked by the British declaration of war against Germany on September 3, 1939, has finally resorted to open military acts of aggression.

"On September 11, 1941, the President of the United States publicly declared that he had ordered the American Navy and air force to shoot on sight at any German war vessel. In his speech of October 27, 1941, he once more expressly affirmed that this order was in force. Acting under this order, vessels of the American Navy since early September, 1941, have systematically attacked German naval forces. Thus, American destroyers, as for instance the Greer, the Kearny and the Reuben James, have opened fire on German submarines according to the plan. The Secretary of the American Navy, Mr. Knox, himself confirmed that American destroyers attacked German submarines.

Says Reich Adhered to Rules.

"Furthermore, the naval forces of the United States, under orders of their Government and contrary to international law, have treated and seized German merchant vessels on the high seas as enemy ships.

"The German Government therefore establishes the following facts:

"Although Germany on her part has strictly adhered to the rules of international law in her relations with the United States during every period of the present war, the Government of the United States from initial violations of neutrality has finally proceeded to open acts of war against Germany. The Government of the United States has thereby virtually created a state of war.

"The German Government, consequently, discontinues diplomatic relations with the United States of America and declares that under those circumstances brought about by President Roosevelt, Germany, too, as from today, considers herself as being in a state of war with the United States of America.

"Accept, Mr. Charge d'Affairs, the expression of my high consideration. RIBBENTROP.

"December 11, 1941."

Asks Safety for Italians.

Later, Italy's Ambassador, Prince Colonna called at the State Department "to ask for information" and was told that his Government had already informed the American Charge d'Affaires in Rome that Italy considered herself at war with the United States. Colonna asked that measures be taken to permit departure of the embassy staff.

James Dunn, political adviser to the State Department, who received Colonna and his first secretary, told them that the United States "had long expected Germany to carry out its threat against this hemisphere and the United States and that we fully anticipated that Italy would consistently follow along."

Duce Hails 'Heroic' Japan

ROME, Dec. 11 (Official radio received by AP)—Premier Benit Mussolini today linked Fascist Italy's destiny with that of "heroic Japan" by declaring war on the United States in a five-minute speech from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia.

"I say to you, and you will understand," he told party faithfuls below him, "that it is a privilege to fight with them (the Japanese) . . . Italians! Once more arise and be worthy of this historical hour! We shall win."

A propaganda ministry broadcast quoted the Fascist ruler as saying that President Roosevelt was "a real tyrannical democrat," who "wanted the war and had prepared for it day by day with diabolical obstinacy."

Thus Italy joined her fortunes with Germany and Japan in a world struggle precipitated by the tripartite Axis alliance (a pact which provided, however, that Italy and Germany were to go to Japan's aid only if Japan were attacked.)

Almost an hour before Mussolini appeared on the balcony at 2:50 p. m. (7:50 a. m., EST), Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano summoned the United States charge d'affaires to the Chigi Palace and informed him that King-Emporor Vittorio Emanuele had declared Italy at war with the United States as from today.

DEC 12 1941

Vociferous crowds surged through Rome's streets demonstrating Axis solidarity with Japan, and cheered in front of the Japanese embassy.

Japan's ambassador was on hand to thank them.

For the first time since last summer Italian troops were posted inconspicuously a block or two from the U. S. embassy, but there were no demonstrations.

(A Bern dispatch from Rome reported arrangements probably would be made shortly for a special train to take the U. S. embassy staff to Lisbon for an exchange with Italian personnel allowed to leave the United States.

(Those permitted to leave Rome, Italy, it was said, totalled about 200 persons, including 51 members of the embassy, 80 or 90 members of their families, ten Catholic priests, and nine newspaper correspondents. All were under police surveillance.)

HITLER DECLARES WAR AGAINST U. S.

DEC 12 1941

Says Nazis, Italians, Japs United for Finish Fight

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by AP)—Adolf Hitler declared war against the United States today and announced that Germany, Italy and Japan were pledged in a new alliance to fight it together to a finish.

In the course of an address to the Reichstag which lasted an hour and a half, Hitler repeatedly and violently attacked President Roosevelt, and expressed on behalf of "the German people" relief and satisfaction with the Japanese attack on America.

Before he spoke the declaration of war was handed—at noon, Berlin time (5 a. m. EST)—to United States Charge D'Affaires George L. Brandt by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's foreign minister. This declaration, which was not made public until it was announced by Hitler, did not mention Japan, but accused the United States of acts of war at sea against Germany.

DEC 12 1941

WAR DECLARATION

It concluded: "The Reich government therefore severs diplomatic relations with the United States of America and declares that under these circumstances, brought about by President Roosevelt, Germany also, commencing today, regards herself in a state of war with the United States of America."

Brandt was handed his passport at 4:20 p. m. (9:20 a. m. EST) after Hitler had started speaking in the Kroll pera house.

A number of United States citizens in Germany were placed under arrest, a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman declaring that as many were being taken into custody in Germany as German citizens were arrested in the United States. This, by German count, is 400.

U. S. NEWSMEN MOVED

A number of Americans, however, are said to remain at liberty. Most American newspaper correspondents were taken from police stations to a suburban Berlin villa. Their treatment, it was stated, would depend on the treatment of German journalists arrested in America.

The main new fact in Hitler's speech, aside from the announcement of the war declaration, was his disclosure of the new three-power accord which supplements the tripartite pact under which Hitler declared war and pledges Germany, Italy and Japan to make common war against the United States and Britain, to fight "to a victorious end with all available means; to "bring about a just order" later and to refrain from concluding a separate peace "without complete mutual consent."

The war declaration itself cited Mr. Roosevelt's shooting orders to the Navy, the cases of the United States Destroyers Greer, Kearney and Reuben James, destruction of German submarines, and "illegal" treatment of German merchantmen at sea. Thus, it was charged, the United States, "first starting with violations of neutrality has finally gone over to overt belligerent acts against Germany. It has thus practically created a state of war."

DEC 12 1941

CHARGES [illegible]

This, in substance, was Hitler's narrative before the Reichstag:

That President Roosevelt has been "systematically sabotaging European peace" since November 1938, and that he finally "practiced instigation" with Japan.

That Japan "has risen against this violation of the rules of decency."

That even if Germany did not have an alliance with Japan "we are convinced that Roosevelt and the Jews would [illegible] one state after another;" that Germany and Italy possess the insight and the power to realize that this question "will now be decided forever."

That Germany always tried to prevent a break with the United States, but that when it heard of an American plan to attack Germany by 1943 it brought Germany "patience" to the breaking point.

That Germany is fighting not for herself alone "but for this entire continent."

EULOGIZES HIMSELF

Of himself, Hitler said:

"I am now the head of the strongest military force in the world . . . Behind me is the National Socialist party with which I grew great and which grew great with me and by me. I thank the President and I thank God for the opportunity given me and the German nation that our generation, too, may write a page in the book of honor of German history."

Hitler said he had to fight Russia to save Europe.

He gave these figures of Ruessian losses to December 1:

Russian prisoners, 3,806,865; tanks destroyed or captured, 21,391; guns, 32,541 and airplanes, 17,325.

NAZI CASUALTIES CITED

All German casualties for the period of the Russian war he said, were:

162,314 dead; 571,767 wounded; 33,324 missing.

Winter, he said, had slowed the Germans in Russia, but "when summer comes, nothing will be able to stop the German advance."

Turning to England, Hitler said that up to December 1, this year, 2,191 British planes and 6,516,791 tons of British and affiliated shipping had been destroyed.

Hitler made an especial point of comparing Mr. Roosevelt with Woodrow Wilson and accusing them alike of war guilt. He even attacked Mrs. Roosevelt, declaring she "refuses to live in our world of work."

"I cannot be insulted by Roosevelt," he said.

Reichstag Cheers War on U. S.

Berlin, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Adolf Hitler declared war against the United States today in a historic address before the Reichstag.

DEC 12 1941

At the same time he announced a new military alliance of Japan, Italy and Germany for a finish fight with the United States and Britain.

Der Fuehrer disclosed that even while he spoke Germany was giving the American Charge d'Affaires his passport, marking the complete breach of relations. This formality took place at 4:20 P. M. (9:20 A. M., New York time).

DEC 12 1941

The Reichstag's cheers lasted several minutes after Hitler had made his declaration.

The military pact to make a common war against the United States and Britain pledged Germany, Italy and Japan mutually to fight "to a victorious end with all available means" and later to "bring about a just order." None of the three is to sign an armistice with either the United States or Britain "without complete mutual consent."

The new accord supplements the three-Power pact, pledging joint assistance of any of the three attacked and under which Hitler made clear, Germany was deciding to fight the United States.

The war declaration came after about one hour of Hitler's hour and a half speech.

That was Hitler's own declaration. The German Government's was delivered to the American Charge d'Affaires, George L. Brandt, at noon by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. Hugh R. Wilson, the last American Ambassador at Berlin, was recalled for consultation on November 14, 1938.

The note said that the United States had finally shifted from breaches of neutrality to "overt belligerent acts" against Germany and had thus "practically created a state of war." The note concluded:

"The Reich Government therefore severs diplomatic relations with the United States of America and declares that under these circumstances, caused by President Roosevelt, Germany, also commencing today, regards herself in a state of war with the United States of America."

Says U. S. Attacked Japan.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, President of the Reichstag, both introduced Hitler and followed his address with a brief speech declaring that world war now had broken out "in the truest sense of the word—a world war between the Powers of construction and the Powers of decay."

The Reichsfuehrer told his cheering audience in the Kroll Opera House that Germany and Italy were honoring the three-Power pact with Japan on the grounds, as the Axis puts it, that the United States had attacked Japan.

"I have today told the German Ambassador to the United States to ask for his passport.

"Germany has never been as united as today and will have the strength to take all measures necessary.

"National Socialist Germany has far more foresight and I have therefore given the American Charge d'Affairs his passport today.

"Italy and Germany are forced, in agreement with the stipulation in the tripartite pact, to associate themselves with Japan," Hitler said.

Hitler declared that President Roosevelt had practiced "instigation" with other countries and now with Japan.

Promises War Till Victory.

"I think all of you who have heard with eagerness that at last one State, a first class Power, has risen against this violation of the rules of decency. Not only Germany, but all the decent people in Europe are deeply satisfied with this Japanese challenge against this American power."

Hitler announced at the same time that Japan, Germany and Italy had concluded a supplementary military agreement "in their unshakeable determination not to lay down arms before the war against Britain and the United States has come to a successful conclusion."

Hitler said that the disclosure of an American plan to attack Germany by 143 "with all the resources at the disposal of the United States" had brought Germany's patience to the breaking point.

"We had always endeavored to prevent a break with the United States. And now Italy and Germany are forced in loyal fulfillment of their obligations, under the tripartite agreement, to associate themselves with the struggle of Japan against America and England."

"I Am the Head."

Hitler finished his radio broadcast at 4:35 P. M. (9:35 A. M. New York time), with an appeal to all Germans to stand by him. "I am now head of the strongest military force in the world, of the strongest air force and the most gallant navy. Behind me is the National Socialist party with which I grew great and which grew great with me and by me.

"I thank the President and I thank God for the opportunity given me and the German nation that our generation, too, may write a page in the Book of Honor of German history."

Hitler, introduced by his No. 1 political heir, Marshal Goering, began addressing the Reichstag shortly after 3 P. M. He called the war an historic struggle which would determine history for hundreds of years to come.

"This has become the greatest year of decision by the German people and your greatest decision stands before us," he said.

"In this serious time," Hitler told the assembly, "I speak to you members of the Reichstag as representatives of the German nation.

"Furthermore, the entire German people shall take cognizance of these reports as well as of the decisions which our adversaries have forced upon us.

"If providence wanted it that war should not be avoided, so I must thank providence for putting me at the head of the German nation in this war which will decide the fate not only of Germany but of Europe and the entire world throughout the next 500 or 1,000 years. . . .

Plans [illegible]

"It is my decision to hold the European front unconquerable for the enemy."

Among other things, Hitler said that Germany's sea communications "now are open from Spain to Petsamo"—Finnish port in the far North—and "Europe is defended by fortifications which in no way are less than those of the Siegfried Line."

He spoke of what he termed British attempts in the past to

Excerpts From Hitler's War Speech

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 11—Textual excerpts giving those portions of Adolf Hitler's speech in the Reichstag today which relate to the United States follow:

[The first part was a long historical resume of Germany's part in the war. Hitler then repeated the old charge that reports of the Polish Ambassador to Washington, found at Warsaw, showed that the United States fostered Polish resistance to German demands.]

His reports to Warsaw [Hitler said] are documents from which it becomes evident with terrible clarity to what extent a single man is burdened with this World War.

A difference of regime and form of government between Germany and America was always present.

That difference, therefore, could not have been a sufficient reason.

One of the two nations inferfered in the other's affairs.

An ocean always has been between them and whether the difference has been that of a country ruled by a President and that of a country ruled in the form of a monarchy, or the present difference between an authoritarian President and the Führer these differences could not have served as sufficient pretext for enmity.

Wilson Is Assailed

In fact, differences existing between the United States and the Soviet Union at present should by rights be much greater than those that have existed between Germany and the U. S. A.

Two men only were responsible for this enmity between the United States and Germany—Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

It was a broken pledge, as history since has proved; a pledge broken by Woodrow Wilson that in its consequences led to untold misery both for the victors and the vanquished in the last World War. And it was this broken pledge that made Versailles possible.

At that time German people certainly paid dearly for being credulous and believing in Presidnet Wilson's assurances, and today we have more or less the same picture of an American President inciting the world to go to war against Germany.

I can well understand that there is a world-wide gulf between the outlook of President Roosevelt and myself.

Roosevelt, of course, comes from a wealthy family and has had all advantages of upbringing in that circle.

Bit Of Self Pity

I, myself, come from a small, very poor family and have always had to work for myself.

During the first World War Roosevelt was able to go into politics and to see to it that he made money. I, of course, became a soldier and simply took orders for four years I tried to do nothing but my duty.

In fact, I shared my fate with millions and Roosevelt shared his fate with the upper 10,000.

During inflation, Roosevelt went on earning money, whereas I remained in hospitals.

Then we both developed in politics. Roosevelt became boss of a city council, a position to which he had risen by his money, and I became Chancellor because I was leader of a popular movement. One thing, of course, we both have in common. Our coming into power was closely connected with democracy—that is with the failure of states which had relied on democracy.

In both countries there was ruin and nobody had any work. While in Germany during the next years an immense regeneration of labor, trade and art took place, Roosevelt did not succeed in altering anything in spite of the fact that in America there were only eighteen people to the square kilometer compared to 145 in Germany.

"Jews Have Flourished"

This can only be due to total incompetence. In five years it has been possible in Germany to find work for everyone. During the same period in America Roosevelt has succeeded in undermining American economy, in devaluating the dollar and in keeping up the figure of unemployed. Jews, of course, have flourished.

In fact, in Europe it seems inconceivable that Roosevelt should not have ended up before a State court. In fact, he would presumably—before a civil court—have been given a term of imprisonment for sharp practice in business.

For what possible reason could such enmity against the German people have arisen?

First, Germany, practically is the only country in Europe which never possessed any colonies whatsoever on the soil of the North American continent. Apart from German emigrants to the United States, Germany has never interfered in the affairs of America.

DEC 12 1941

Antagonism Denied

Second, Germany has never adopted any antagonistic attitude toward the United States but in fact the Germans who emigrated gave their blood fighting for the liberty of the United States.

Third, Germany never has taken part in any war waged against the United States.

Fourth, in 1917 the United States on their part entered the war against Germany for reasons which since have been proved to be entirely spurious. They have been proved to be such by an investigation committee set up by none other than President Roosevelt himself. This committee has proved that only vested interests of a small capitalistic clique were benefitted.

There have been no territorial claims or any other differences of opinion standing in the way of an understanding between the United States and Germany.

Under various influences, Roosevelt has tried to create conflicts everywhere, to deepen existing conflicts and to prevent a peaceful settlement of existing conflicts.

For years he wished there might arise in Europe a conflict in which, by taking sides, he might engage American industry.

"Campaign Of Hatred"

From 1937 onward he took all the opportunities which he could possibly seize to act against the Reich. In his speech of October 5, 1937, he began his campaign of hatred against us by talking of a quarantine which he would establish against the dictatorships.

Then he recalled his Ambassador, so from that moment onward the two countries were only represented by charges d'affaires in their respective capitals.

DEC 12 1941

In November, 1938, he checked every possibility of peaceful settlement by giving the impression that he himself was in favor of peace, but at the same time threatening all those countries who were trying to settle their own affairs peacefully with economic reprisals, financial measures and other acts.

About that also we have very clear reports from the Polish embassies in Washington, London and Paris.

In 1939 he went on with his work of hatred and warmongering. He interfered in internal European affairs which were none of his business, which were just as little his business as the affairs of one of the American states are of the head of the German state.

Interference Charged

He did not recognize certain governments which had established themselves in Europe. He failed to recognize the new order. On the contrary he recognized and upheld puppet governments . . . and with the representative of one of these governments even made treaty to secure a foothold in territory which was not American.

President Roosevelt addressed an appeal to me and to the Duce on April 5, 1939, which was a mixture of arrogance and ignorance of the geographic conditions of our continent.

When I had given President Roosevelt a very polite but firm answer he ceased to talk for the time but instead Mrs. Roosevelt began a campaign. She and her son refused to live in the world as we National Socialists understand it . . . a world of work and not a world of falsehood.

Then on April 11, 1939, President Roosevelt obtained an amendment to the Neutrality Act by repealing the arms exportation embargo unilaterally. . . .

Roosevelt froze Norwegian and Danish assets, though it was well known that they were not subject to German control or interference. Then the Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian puppet Governments were recognized by Roosevelt and finally on June 15, Roosevelt sent a telegram to the then Prime Minister of France, M. Reynaud, promising to double American aid to France if France only continued her resistance against Germany.

Called Warmonger

He also assured France he would not recognize in the name of the United States any territorial changes such as return of Alsace-Lorraine to Germany. It goes without saying that such recognition from America is of no consequence whatever to Germany and the German Government.

These examples I have only cited in order to show up the activities of this warmonger in their proper light.

Roosevelt was afraid even then of a European peace because it might interfere with his plans. He was afraid that Europe might realize peace after all was possible and in her best interests.

DEC 12 1941

He froze French assets but only in order to get hold of gold which had been transported from Case Blanca to the United States on board a United States cruiser.

Then, in August, 1940, Roosevelt made a further step toward war announcing a joint military program between the United States and Canada. He continually invented crises and interrupted journeys on week ends, rapidly returning to Washington to make these crises more credible.

Finally he drew still closer to war in November, 1940, lending fifty destroyers to England although he received encircle Germany and, turning to the war with Russia, said that "only a blind man" could have failed to see Russia's pre-war preparations to fight Germany.

"It became known that the rulers of the Kremlin, despite the (Russian) pact with Germany, were preparing an attack against Germany. They had gathered a vast power not to defend something which was in danger but in order to attack Germany."

Hitler compared Germany's present fight to that of ancient Greece defending Europe against Persia. Later, he said, the Romans and the Germans took up this defense.

He said that in all her wars Europe had had to fight against 'strange elements from abroad."

"If any one said that cultural values have been brought back from America to Europe, it was only the invention of a decayed Jewish mixture."

He said that Germany was fighting not for herself, but for the entire continent.

"It is a happy sign that the knowledge of this fact is alive now in most European nations which either openly or by volunteers have taken part in the fight."

Reviewing initial successes in the war with Russia, Hitler cited statistics issued by the German High Command.

He said that on December 1 the number of Russian prisoners amounted to 3,806,865, tanks destroyed or captured to 21,391, guns to 32,541, and aircraft to 17,325. The period for these claims was June 22, when the war started, to December 1, Hitler said.

"Every step in Russia had to be fought for. The heat, the mud and the cold had to be overcome." Only the beginning of winter, he said, had slowed the German campaign, but next summer, he added, "nothing will be able to stop the German advance."

Hitler said that Russia's war attitude first was disclosed when, as he said, Joseph Stalin instigated "revolt" in Yugoslavia. Presumably he meant the refusal of Yugoslavia to accede to German demands before she was invaded and partitioned.

Hitler said that by December 1, this year, 2,191 British planes and 6,516,791 tons of "enemy" shipping had been destroyed.

Lists German Losses

He put German losses, for the period, June 22-December 1, at 158,773 dead, 563,082 wounded and 31,191 missing.

Counting the air force and the navy, total German losses amounted to 162,314 killed, 571,767 wounded and 33,324 missing, he said.

First, touching on the United States after this long preamble, Hitler declared that former President Wilson had "deceived Germany" and that now between President Roosevelt and the Fuehrer "there is a worldwide abyss."

The Reichstag roared its cheers at this point.

Hitler said that documents found in Warsaw proved that "one man alone" stood behind Poland's resistance—that reports by the Polish Ambassador in Washington disclosed President Roosevelt's "fanatical hatred of the German people."

Germany, he said, was the only European State which never possessed or claimed colonies on the North American continent. He declared that Germany had never interfered in American affairs and never adopted an antagonistic attitude toward the United States.

DEC 12 1941

He referred in passing to German emigrants to the United States who had given their blood in fighting for liberty and independence.

Hitler declared that Mr. Roosevelt himself had set up a committee to investigate the causes of American entry into the world war in 1917.

"This committee proved that it was only a small group of capitalistic interests which caused Americas entry into the last war and not Germany herself."

Hitler then recited what he called Mr. Roosevelt's unneutral acts from the beginning of the present war.

In these, Hitler said, the President was "influenced by Jews who tried to use the United States and himself as an instrument against the increasing movement in Europe to turn them out."

Hitler here dwelt at some length on a personal attack on the President and even mentioned Mrs. Roosevelt, saying that she refused to live in a "world of work, as we National Socialists do."

"All the time Roosevelt endeavored to create a conflict or to deepen existing ones and by all means to prevent conflicts from being solved. Roosevelt had only one desire all the time—to create conflict somewhere."

ir return British bases of considerable value. It is not quite certain whether it was hate or a desire to take over the British Empire which was the primary driving force in this act.

DEC 12 1941

When Lease-Lend

Then when British assets in the United States had become exhausted he concluded the lend-lease agreement and in the meantime a whole series of incidents had been directed by Roosevelt against Germany.

Then Roosevelt declared the Red Sea open to American shipping. He had shortly before that confiscated German ships in the United States and German subjects had been interned and treated contrary to international law in a most despicable manner.

Of all such incidents the fate meted out to two escaped German prisoners who reached United States territory from Canada was particularly despicable—they were handcuffed and handed back to Canadian authorities contrary to all international agreement and custom.

Roosevelt also interfered in the Balkans. He sent the notorious Colonel Donovan to incite a revolt there.

He gave Yugoslavia and Greece guarantees; he recognized the exiled governments and froze their assets.

On April 26, America delivered twenty motor speedboats to England; on April 6, American troops landed in Greenland for the first time and soon after a German submarine was attacked with depth charges.

On July 17, all German consulates, the German Library of Information and other official German bureaus were closed at the demand of the American Government, while on June 20, American troops landed in Iceland, a move by which Roosevelt hoped to render ineffective the operations of German submarines.

Shooting Order Cited

On July 10, American Secretary of State for Navy Knox, ordered the American navy to fire on Axis ships.

As a result, a great number of incidents occurred such as when on September 26, depth charges were fired on a German submarine, a feat which was repeated on October 6 in the case of the American destroyer Kearny.

A few weeks later the American navy even went so far as to seize the harmless German merchant ship Odenwald, which was crossing to an American port. The crew was imprisoned.

It does not impress me very much if Roosevelt sees fit to call me a gangster. After all, one would do well to remember that "gangster" is an American term and apparently gangsters prevail in that country. On the other hand, I cannot feel insulted by Roosevelt because, just as with President Wilson, I consider Roosevelt to be insane.

Against Japan, Roosevelt resorted to similar methods, making hypocritical demands. The world must have been relieved to see at last a state rise up to tell Roosevelt to mind his own business and he cannot very well complain this was not called for. That Japan took this step and decided to defend her freedom must fill all decent people with profound satisfaction.

We know, of course, that the eternal Jew is behind all this. Roosevelt himself may not realize it, but then that only shows his own limitations.

More Blasts At Jews

Indeed, we all know the intention of the Jews to rule all civilized states in Europe and America. We know this is a time when for nations it is the question of "to be or not to be."

When President Roosevelt sees fit to give me good advice he is like the bald hairdresser recommending a famous hair tonic to his clients.

Economically, countries like the United States and Great Britain are so backward that we will not accept gifts from them; we merely demand our rights.

These countries have done everything to prevent both Germany and Italy from creating conditions essential to their existence. . . . I have, therefore, given to the American charge d'affaires his passports today.

In pursuing a policy of world dictatorship President Roosevelt has refrained from no step to prevent Germany and Italy from creating conditions that could secure their existence.

Both he and England have opposed every revision, and, in flagrant contradiction of international law, America has attacked our ships, interned the crews and, in the end, went even so far as to give its navy, contrary to all international law, the order to attack and sink German and Italian ships.

War Plan Charged

Since then, a plan prepared by President Roosevelt has been revealed in the United States, according to which his intention was to attack Germany by 1934 with all the resources at the disposal of the United States. Thus our patience has come to the breaking point.

An agreement has been made by the three countries concerned. It is as follows:

In their unshakable determination not to lay down their arms until the common war against the United States of America and Britain has been brought to a successful conclusion, the German Government, the Italian Government and the Japanese Government have agreed upon the following provisions:

"Article 1—Germany, Italy and Japan jointly and with every means at their disposal shall proceed with the war forced upon them by the United States of America and Britain until victory is achieved.

"Article 2—Germany, Italy and Japan undertake not to conclude an armistice or peace with the United States of America or Britain except in complete mutual agreement.

"Article 3—After victory has been achieved, Germany, Italy and Japan will continue in the closest cooperation with view to establishing a new and just order along the lines of the tripartite agreement concluded by them on September 27, 1940.

"Article 4—The present agreement will come into force with its signature and will remain valid as long as the tripartite pact of September 27, 1940.

DEC 12 1941

Drawn Up In Berlin

"The high contracting parties will in good time before the expiration of this term of validity enter into consultation with each other as to future development of their cooperation as provided under Article 3 of the present agreement.

"In witness hereof the undersigned, duly authorized by their respective governments have signed and sealed the present agreement.

"Drawn up in triplicate in the German, Italian and Japanese languages in Berlin on the eleventh day of December, 1941, in this twentieth year of the Fascist era, equivalent to the eleventh day of the twelfth month of the sixteenth year of the Shova Era."

Mussolini Predicts Victory

Rome, Dec. 11 (Official radio received by A. P.).—Germany and Italy declared war today on the United States, arraying the Axis's might with Japan's and joining the wars in the East and West into one titanic world struggle.

DEC 12 1941

This historic decision was announced by Premier Mussolini to tumultuous crowds in a five-minute speech from the balcony of Palazzio Venezia.

The Fascist leader pledged his people victory and told them that President Roosevelt, "through a series of infinite provocations, betraying with a supreme fraud the population of his country, wanted the war and had prepared for it day by day with diabolical obstinacy."

He appeared on his palace balcony at 2:50 P. M. (7:50 A. M., Eastern standard time).

Fifty minutes earlier, Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano had summoned the United States Charge d'Affaires to the Chigi Palace and informed him that King-Emperor Victor Emmanuel had declared Italy at war with the United States as from today. Crowds surged through Rome vociferously demonstrating Axis solidarity with Japan.

The German-Italian war declarations fulfilled commitments under the three-Power pact to go to Japan's aid if she were deemed to have been attacked by the United States.

Predicts Axis Victory.

DEC 12 1941

Il Duce assured his people the pact would "become an instrument of just peace between the peoples."

"Italians," he concluded, "once more arise and be worthy of this historical hour! We shall win!"

This was Mussolini's fateful message:

"This is another day of solemn decision in Italy's history and of memorable events destined to give a new course to the history of continents.

"The Powers of the steel pact, Fascist Italy and National-Socialist Germany, ever closely linked, participate from today on the side of heroic Japan against the United States of America.

Becomes Military Alliance.

"The tri-partite pact becomes a military alliance which draws around its colors 250,000,000 men determined to give all in order to win.

Neither the Axis nor Japan wanted an extension of the conflict.

"One man, one man only, a real tyrannical democrat, through a series of infinite provocations, betraying with a supreme fraud the population of his country, wanted the war and had prepared for it day by day with diabolical obstinacy.

Pleased to Fight on Tokio's Side.

"The formidable blows that on the immense Pacific expanse have been already inflicted to American forces show how prepared are the soldiers of the Empire of the Rising Sun. I say to you, and you will understand, that it is a privilege to fight with them.

"Today the tri-partite pact, with the plentitude of its forces and its moral and material resources, is a formidable instrument for the war and a certainty for victory.

"Tomorrow the tri-partite pact will become an instrument of just peace between the peoples.

"Italians! Once more arise and be worthy of this historical hour!

"We shall win!"

Il Duce spoke only five minutes, interrupted repeatedly by shouts from thousands of his followers who had been called together earlier to hear the momentous declaration.

To Set Up New World Order After Victory; See 'Bright Future'

DEC 12 1941

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 11 (Domei Radio).—Soon after word reached here tonight that Germany and Italy had joined Japan in war on the United States, the government announced that all three Axis powers had entered a solemn pact that none would make a separate peace.

The agreement bound them not only to make war indissolubly together, but also to make peace after it in a common front under the 1940 three-power pact.

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo declared the German-Italian war declarations "together with the marvelous achievements of the imperial (Japanese) armed forces unfold a bright future for the Japanese Empire, which is proceeding resolutely with the construction of a new world order."

The three-power agreement, the announcement said, provided:

"Article one: Japan, Germany and Italy shall prosecute the war forced on them by the United States of America and the British empire with all the forceful means at their command until it ends in their victory.

"Article two: Japan, Germany and Italy pledge that without complete understanding between themselves they will not conclude an armistice or peace with the United States of America or the British empire.

"Article 3—Japan, Italy and Germany, after the victorious end of the war, will co-operate most closely together on the basis of the tripartite pact concluded on September 27, 1940, in order to attain a righteous new order.

"Article 4—The present agreement comes into force immediately as it is signed and will remain in force for the whole duration of the tri-partite pact concluded on September 27, 1940. The three partners will come to an agreement at a timely moment, before the expiring of the above date, in order to establish formalities of their co-operation as foreseen by article 3 of the present agreement."

Germany to Hold Man for Man.

Berlin, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Germany has arrested United States citizens in Germany equal to the number of German nationals arrested in the United States and if there are further arrests of Germans there an equal number of Americans will be arrested here, an official Nazi spokesman declared today.

The spokesman alleged that German newspaper men detained in the United States had been locked up in filthy prisons, but declared that American correspondents held in Berlin have been quartered in a private mansion.

Nazis Arrest U.S. Citizens

Reprisal For Imprisonment of Axis Nationals

London, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A number of United States citizens, including correspondents, were arrested in Germany today in reprisal for the arrest in the United States of German and Italian Nationals, DNB said in a report heard here by Reuters.

In Paris, it said, United States newspapermen were ordered to leave a press conference with German occupation officials and to return to their homes. This action was the same as that taken American correspondents in Berlin yesterday.

"As a reprisal for President Roosevelt's order, which is against international law, for the arrest of German press correspondents and the United States, North American German and Italian Nationals in the United States, North American journalists and a number of North American Nationals were arrested in Germany today," the report said.

(Attorney General Biddle announced yesterday in Washington that the United States Government had seized 865 Germans, 147 Italians and 1,291 Japanese as enemy aliens since Sunday.

U. S. Charge d'Affaires Says Ours Will Be Freed When Theirs Are Released Here.

DEC 12 1941

Washington, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The State Department was informed today by the American charge d'affaires in Berlin that the German propaganda ministry says American correspondents in custody there are safe and well and will be released when German correspondents in this country are set free.

The department issued the following statement:

"The State Department has received a telegram from the American Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, dated December 11, stating that a report which the embassy has just received quotes an official of the Propaganda Ministry as stating that American correspondents are safe and well in a villa at Wannsee under custody and that they will be released as soon as the news of the release of German correspondents in the United States is received."

Wannsee is a residential suburb of Berlin, with a bathing beach on a lake of the same name which is one of the most popular summer playgrounds of the Nazi capital.

Attorney-General Biddle had formally announced earlier that a small number of newspaper men were included among German, Italian and Japanese aliens arrested by the FBI in the last few days.

These newspaper men, he said, are being held in detention in a hotel and "are being accorded every consideration and courtesy to which their semi-official status entitles them."

He added that these Axis newspaper men had not been taken into custody because they were newspaper men or because of their legitimate press activity but because they also were engaged in activity regarded as legitimate press activity.

Mr. Biddle did not name the newspaper men or the cities in which they are being held. It was said in other quarters, however, that six were detained in New York and one here.

A. P. Chief Taken From Home.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—An Argentine Press report from Berlin today said Louis P. Lochner, veteran chief of the Associated Press Bureau in the German capital, had been escorted from his home by police and that his present whereabouts was unknown.

Mr. Lochner's family reported that the German officers called and courteously invited him to accompany them.

A dispatch from Rome said the American newspapermen had been denied all telegraphic and telephonic communications.

U. S. Embassy Guarded.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Argentine press dispatches from Rome said that Italian troops were stationed today near the United States embassy along with a strengthened police guard. The soldiers were posted inconspicuously a block or two away and were fewer than on a previous occasion, last summer when several hundred blocked off the streets leading to the embassy.

No demonstrations or disturbances were reported.

Embassy Swap Planned.

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Arrangements probably will be made shortly for a special train to take the staff of the United States embassy in Rome to Lisbon to be exchanged for the staff of the Italian embassy in Washington, the Swiss Telegraph Agency reported today in a Rome dispatch.

It said about 200 Americans would be permitted to travel by this train, including 51 members of the embassy staff, 80 or 90 members of their families, ten Catholic priests and nine newspaper correspondents.

At a press conference in Rome, the spokesman said, American correspondents were deprived of rights to telephone and telegraph on Wednesday and that today they were barred from press conferences and later placed under police surveillance.

The spokesman said the treatment inflicted on some Italian correspondents in the United States was contrary to custom since it was generally considered that accredited correspondents should receive the same treatment as diplomats. He said measures taken in the United States made it necessary that similar measures be taken in Italy.

Informs American Minister Move Not Necessarily Leading to War Notice

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The State Department announced tonight that the Hungarian prime minister had informed Herbert Claiborne Pell, the American minister at Budapest, the Hungary had broken off diplomatic relations with the United States.

In Solidarity Plan

The action was taken, the State Department was informed, "in view of the solidarity of central European states" which the prime minister compared with the solidarity of the republics of the Western Hemisphere.

The prime minister added that the move was not taken with the intention of declaring war on the United States.

The prime minister told Pell he would have to consult with the German foreign office concerning the a prerequisite of peace was liquidation of the "Hitler criminals."

"The Hitler gang dreams of peace with us," Zaslavsky said, "because the whole of Germany longs for a cessation of the war, foreseeing catastrophe. Hitler promised the Germans victory and deceived them. Now he promises peace, and he also is deceiving them."

Peace with Germany, this writer said, will come only after the German people banish Hitler and his followers, and added: "But this peace will be only by agreement with Great Britain and the United States."

Meanwhile, Walter Thurston, United States charge d'affaires, informed the Soviet Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, S. A. Lozovsky, that the United States was at war with Japan. The formal message from Washington was received by Thurston at 1.30 A. M. today, although it was sent Tuesday.

Russians Assert Armistice Will Only Be Signed By Joint Agreement With U. S. And Great Britain

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Kuibyshev, Dec. 11—A Russian peace with Germany would be made only by joint agreement with Britain and the United States, Soviet officials declared tonight in announcing that Germany had put out peace feelers to the Soviet Union.

The official Communist newspaper Pravda said of the situation: "The Hitler gang is ready any day to sign a peace with Russia if only our Government would talk with them."

David Zaslavsky, Pravda's chief editorial writer, said, however, that the United States will rid the United States "of the handicaps of indefinite suspense," Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King said in a statement today.

"It removes the remaining restrictions on cooperation with Britain and other nations of the commonwealth as well as with Russia and China and the other allied powers," said King.

"Nothing has so greatly impeded the action of the United States in its own defense and in the defense of freedom in other parts of the world as the inability of the administration, for one reason or another, to take the initiative when and where the situation seemed to demand it.

"That terrible handicap Germany and Italy have at least removed.

"While now the United States is at war with enemy nations on either side of the continent, her real freedom and security is greater today than it has been at any time since the union of the Axis powers."

SOVIET STAND IN WAR CHEERS U. S. OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The declaration of Soviet officials that Russia would never make peace with Germany except by joint agreement with the United States and Britain cheered this Capital though there was no immediate comment from the State Department or White House.

Among members of Congress there had been indications of some uneasiness over the long hours of silence in Kuibyshev after the Japanese attack on the United States.

However, no such feeling had been evidenced at the State Department and only a few hours before the Soviet declaration Secretary of State Hull asserted the United States had "No doubt that the government and people of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will do their full part in standing side by side with all liberty loving people against the common menace."

MEETS LITVINOFF

Hull issued this reassuring statement shortly before a conference with Maxim Litvinoff, the newly-arrived Russian ambassador, which was described as for the purpose of a general exchange of information.

After this meeting, Litvinoff declared to reporters that Russia and the United States have "common cause and a common fight" but, despite a barrage of questions on that point, gave no hint of what course the Soviets would adopt with respect to the war in the Pacific.

He disclosed, however, that he had seen President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, the President's close friend and adviser, earlier in the day and said he expected to see Lord Halifax, the British ambassador, soon, adding that the latter visit would be only a courtesy call on a diplomatic colleague.

ABOUT JAPAN

As for his talk with Hull, Litvinoff said, "We understand each other." He added:

"Today you have declared war on Germany and Italy and they are the great enemy."

In response to one specific question as to Russia's attitude toward Japan, Litvinoff replied:

"Japan has taken no action against Russia, and Russia has taken none against Japan."

French Circles Say Vichy Appears Decided For Moment On Policy Of Neutrality

Vichy, Dec. 11 (AP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, United States Ambassador, was received by Marshal Petain, chief of state, and Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan for a twenty-minute interview today shortly after word was received of the German-Italian declaration of war on the United States.

Well-informed French circles said it appeared that the Vichy Government had decided for the moment on neutrality although it had not yet had time to complete a study of the Hitler and Mussolini speeches.

After the interview with Petain and Darlan, Admiral Leahy returned to the embassy, where he worked for more than an hour on a report to the State Department.

San Jose, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—It was officially announced today that Costa Rica will declare war against Germany and Italy within a few hours. War has already been declared against Japan.

La Paz, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Bolivian Government today expressed solidarity with the American nations which have declared war against Japan and offered collaboration without actually declaring war.

The CBS correspondent at La Paz reported today that the Bolivian Government is expected to freeze the funds of all Axis nationals. Last night it blocked off Japanese funds.

Bolivian mines, railroads, airports, communications and oil wells have been put under armed guards to prevent sabotage, and all Axis residents are under strict surveillance, it was added.

Collaboration Pace Stepped Up By Latin-American Nations

U. S. Neighbors Act To Cut Japan Off From Partners In Europe—Mexico Breaks With Axis

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 11—Latin America was linking defenses and joining the hostilities tonight to throw an impassable bar from pole to pole and split the newest Axis aggressor in the Orient from her accomplices in Europe.

The pace of hemispheric collaboration, already stepped up since the Japanese attack on the United States last Sunday, quickened when the whole of the Axis entered the world conflict today.

Brazil Reaffirms Solidarity

Brazil reaffirmed its solidarity with the United States and the rest of the Americas, declaring in a Foreign Ministry statement:

"The Brazilian Ambassador to the United States is authorized by the President of the Republic to reaffirm to the North American Government the attitude of Brazil in view of the declaration of war by Germany and Italy."

The same Brazilian sentiment had been expressed with reference to Japan, but the new statement had not been expected before tomorrow.

Declarations of war against Germany and Italy were made promptly by Costa Rica, first of all the Americas to declare war on Japan last Sunday, and by the Dominican Republic and Cuba.

Mexico broke relations abruptly with Germany and Italy just as it had with Japan.

Axis Funds Frozen

Mexico already had frozen Axis funds.

The Axis' last regular transit link with the Western Hemisphere was choked off when Standard Oil stopped the trickle of gasoline to Lati, the Italian transatlantic air line.

It was considered likely that Lati's four planes in Brazil might try to make a break for home with the little fuel they have left.

The United States Embassy instructed United States businessmen in Brazil to discharge all German-born employes.

Latest Developments

Elsewhere, there were these developments:

Chile—Ratified Pan-American accords. Government expected to ask emergency economic powers and to grant dollars only to importers of necessities.

Uruguay—Extraordinary session of Senate called to ratify acceptance of $7,000,000 United States loan for arms purchases.

Bolivia—Pledged solidarity with United States, troops guard mines.

El Salvador—Froze Axis funds, sent 300 more workmen to Panama Canal defenses.

Colombia—Planned declaration of solidarity tomorrow, froze Axis funds.

Peru—President expressed nation's desire to collaborate with United States for defense.

Nicaragua—Expected to declare war on Germany and Italy, already has against Japan.

Guatemala—Students called for war on Axis, as already has been declared against Japan.

Argentina—Planning to consider United States non-belligerent, all Argentine political leaders telegraphed pledge of solidarity to United States Congress.

Panama closed schools indefinitely, started registering all citizens for service in any capacity, and authorized United States troops to take over strategic areas for canal defense.

WILL STAND BY SAYS CHURCHILL

DEC 12 1941

Declares That U. S. And Great Britain Would Rather Perish Than be Conquered

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP)—With five simple words—"we are all in this"—Winston Churchill proclaimed today Britain's proud determination to stand at the side of the United States and maintain at any and every cost the mighty barricade now thrust up across the world against the Axis marauders of Europe and Asia.

Speaking before Germany and Italy had declared war upon the United States, but in consciousness of the imminence of that last step, he told the Parliament:

"Our foes are bound by their ambitions and their crimes to seek implacably the destruction of the English-speaking world and all it stands for. It is the supreme barrier for all their kind.

"If this should be their resolve we are prepared to meet it. If they should declare themselves resolved to compass the destruction of the English-speaking world, I know I speak for the United States as well as for the British Empire when I say we would rather perish than be conquered.

"On that basis, and putting in at the worst, there are quite a lot of us to be killed."

Britain, America, Not Alone

And, he pointed out, Britain and America were not alone, for the Chinese, the Dutch and the republics of the new world were standing up to be counted, and Russia was now driving the Germans back through the chill wastes of the Soviet Union and sealing "one of the outstanding blunders of history."

Summing up the greatest division of nations since the world began, he declared:

"Not only the British Empire now, but the United States are fighting for life. Russia is fighting for life. China is fighting for life. Behind these four great combatants and communities are ranged all the spirit and hope of all the conquered countries in Europe, prostrate under the cruel domination of the foe.

"I said the other day that four-fifths of the human race were on our side.

"It may well be an understatement. Just handfuls and cliques of wicked men and their military or party organizations have been able to bring these hideous evils upon mankind.

"It would indeed bring shame upon our generation if we did not teach them a lesson which will not be forgotten in the records of a thousand years."

Effect on Morale

The political and military advantages of the complete British-American alliance now joined was seen here tonight, after Mr. Churchill's speech and the final action of the American Congress, as immeasurable both in morale and in weapons.

Many quarters predicted that the morale of the German and Italian peoples would suffer tremendously with realization that the full might of America was now arrayed against them.

Reflection brought confidence that the war in the Pacific, far from shutting off the flow of U. S. aid to Britain and Russia, would mean that the full productive power of the United States would now be devoted to equipping all who fight the Axis.

Only guarded comment was made as to what in some quarters was called the one remaining "anomaly"—the peaceful status between Russia and Japan.

Perhaps expressive of the general attitude was an editorial in Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard emphasizing that "only Moscow can decide" as to "how much would Russia's engagement in the east interfere with her battle against the chief enemy of mankind . . . our chief hopes of victory in future must hang on Russia's power of counter-offensive."

Good and Bad News

Reviewing before parliament the course of a struggle that now convulses almost the whole of the habitable globe, Prime Minister Churchill found as always news that was good and news that was bad.

Aside from Russia—where he said Hitler's disaster would "constitute an event of cardinal importance in the final decision of the war" and where the German armies already had suffered "a bloody loss almost unequalled in history"—he reported victory for the first phase of the British offensive in North Africa.

True, he said, not all had gone as had been wished, but nevertheless "I am bound to say it seems very probable" that it would do so.

British mastery was attained in the first phase despite tank losses heavier than had been expected, he went on, and British air strength remains superior for the last phase despite the "most extravagant" aerial reinforces brought in by the Germans from the Russian and other fronts.

Shift in Africa

He disclosed incidentaly that the Libyan field commander, General Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham, had been succeeded, because he was suffering serious overstrain, by Major General Neil Methuen Ritchie.

Turning to broader theaters, the prime minister promised that Britain would keep her pledges of heavy material aid to Russia, but at the same time must recognize that for the next few months at any rate "the volume of American supplies reaching Britain and the degree of help given us by the U. S. Navy will be reduced."

"The gap must be filled," he added, "and only our efforts will fill it.

As to the Pacific, he said that the sudden Japanese assault had brought "very serious injuries" to American and British naval power, recalling especially the sinking on Wednesday of the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse. Both, he said, were sunk by bombers and torpedo aircraft, and there was no reason to suppose that any new weapon or explosive was used.

"The naval power of Britain and the United States was very greatly superior and is still largely superior to the combined forces of the three Axis powers," he went on, "but no one can underrate the gravity of the loss which has been inflicted in Malay and Hawaii, or the power of the new antagonist which has fallen upon us or the length of time it will take to create, marshal and mount the great forces in the Far East which will be necessary to achieve absolute victory."

Prime Minister Calls Campaign in Soviet Russia Nazi Blunder.

DEC 12 1941

London, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill spoke gravely today of United States and British naval losses in the Pacific and the Far East, declared that Adolf Hitler committed a colossal blunder in attacking Soviet Russia and predicted utlimate British victory in North Africa despite unexpected reverses.

Mr. Churchill told Parliament "our foes are bound by their ambitions and their crimes to seek implacably the destruction of the English-speaking world and all it stands for."

"It is the supreme barrier for all their kind," he said. "If this should be their resolve we are prepared to meet it. If they should declare themselves resolved to compass the destruction of the English-speaking world, I know I speak for the United States as well as for the British Empire when I say we would rather perish than be conquered.

"On that basis, and putting it at the worst, there are quite a lot of us to be killed."

Sees U. S. Fighting for Life.

"Not only the British Empire now, but the United States is fighting for life. Russia is fighting for life, China is fighting for life. Behind these four great combatant communities are ranged all the spirit and hope of all conquered countries in Europe—prostrate under the cruel domination of the foe."

And then, in a ringing peroration, Mr. Churchill closed:

"Just handfuls and cliques of wicked men and their military or party organizations have been able to bring these hideous evils on mankind.

"It would indeed bring shame upon our generation if we did not teach them a lesson which will not be forgotten in the records of a thousand years."

"It may well be," he declared in a sweeping review of the broadened war, "that we shall have to suffer considerable punishment, but we shall defend ourselves everywhere with the utmost vigor and in close co-operation with the United States and Netherlands Navy.

"No one can underrate the gravity of losses inflicted on the United States nor underrate the length of time it will take to marshal the great forces necessary in the Far East for absolute victory."

Speaking seriously and appearing tired, Churchill nevertheless declared confidently that the naval might of Britain and the United States was very greatly superior and still is largely superior to the combined forces of the three Axis Powers.

He said bluntly that because of American naval losses Britain must expect that United States naval aid in the Atlantic and the volume of American supplies for Britain to be reduced, but added:

"I cannot doubt now that the 130,000,000 people of the United States have bound themselves to this war and once they get settled down to it . . . that the flow of munitions and aid of every kind will vastly exceed anything that could have been expected up to the present."

Of the sinking of Great Britain's battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse by Japanese air attack off Malaya, the Prime Minister said he understood that they were without support of their own land-based fighter planes because of an attack which had been made on the airdromes.

He told the House of Commons that the ships were sunk by Japanese aerial torpedoes.

Called Thoroughly Sound.

In my whole experience I do not remember any naval blow so heavy or so painful as the sinking of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse on Monday last," Mr. Churchill stated. "These two fast, powerful ships constituted an essential feature in our plans for meeting the new Japanese danger as it loomed up against us in the last ten months.

"In moving to attack Japanese transports and landing craft where they were disembarking invaders of Siam and Malaya on the Kra Isthmus or thereabouts, Admiral Philipps was undertaking a thoroughly sound, well-considered offensive operation, not indeed free from risk, but not different in principle from any similar operation we have repeatedly carried out in the North Sea and the Mediterranean.

"Both ships were sunk by repeated air attacks by bombers and torpedo aircraft. These attacks were delivered with skill and determination. There were two high-level attacks, both of which scored hits, and three waves of torpedo aircraft of nine in each wave which struck each of our ships with several torpedoes.

"There is no reason to suppose any new weapon or explosives were employed, or any bombs or torpedoes of exceptional size.

"Continued waves of attack achieved their purpose and both ships capsized and sank, having destroyed seven of the attacking aircraft. Escorting destroyers came immediately to the rescue and have now arrived at Singapore crowded with survivors. There is reason to believe the loss of life has been less heavy than was first feared, but I regret Admiral Sir Tom Phillips is among those reported missing. . . .

DEC 12 1941

Hails Anglo-U. S. Navy Supreme.

"Naturally I should not be prepared to discuss the resulting situation in the Far East and in the Pacific or measures which must be taken to restore it," Mr. Churchill went on to say. "It may well be that we shall have to suffer considerable punishment, but we shall defend ourselves everywhere with the utmost vigor and in close co-operation with the United States and the Netherlands Navy.

"The naval power of Britain and the United States was very greatly superior and is still largely superior to the combined forces of the three Axis Powers, but no one can underrate the gravity of the loss which has been inflicted in Malay and Hawaii, or the power of the new antagonist which has fallen upon us, or the length of time it will take to create, marshal and mount great forces in the Far East which will be necessary to achieve absolute victory.

"We have a very hard period to go through and a new surge and impulse will be required and will be forthcoming from every one."

Praises Chinese.

Turning to China, Mr. Churchill declared:

"Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has sent me a message announcing his decision to declare war against Japan and also against Japan's partners in guilt, Germany and Italy. He has further assured me the whole of the resources of China are at the disposal of Great Britain and the United States. The Chinese cause is henceforth our cause. The country which has faced Japanese assault for over four years with undoubted courage is indeed a worthy ally, and it is allies that from now on we will go forward together to victory—not over Japan alone but over the Axis and all its works.

"The Japanese onslaught has brought upon the United States and Britain very serious injuries to our naval power."

Mr. Churchill described the British campaign in Libya as the only place the British could open a field of fighting that would aid Russia.

He said Hitler had made one of the outstanding blunders of history in attacking Russia, pictured the Germans as in retreat on the Russian front after suffering enormous losses and said Britain was now bent on annihilation of retreating German forces in Libya with good prospects of success.

He also announced that Gen. Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham, commander of the British Eighth Army in Libya, had been succeeded by Major-Gen. Neil Methuen Ritchie, a much younger man.

He said that Gen. Cunningham, who is 54 years old, was reported to be suffering from serious overstrain and was granted general sick leave.

Gen. Ritchie, 44, has been an officer in India, Palestine and Mesopotamia.

Mr. Churchill declared that first predictions of quick triumph for the British in the Libyan campaign were an expression of unduly favorable views.

"The Libyan offensive did not take the course its authors expected," he said, "although it will reach the end at which they aimed"—destruction of the Axis Armies.

"Although the Libyan battle is not yet finished I have not the slightest hesitation in saying that for good or ill it is Gen. Auchinleck's battle," he said, referring to Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, commander-in-chief of British Middle Eastern forces.

Admitting that British losses in tanks "are a good deal heavier than we expected in Libya," the Prime Minister said that the German Army was stubborn and "in every way worthy of the tomb prepared for it."

"My confidence in Auchinleck has grown continuously. In Auchinleck as with Wavell, we have a military figure of the first order," he added.

He said that Great Britain's successes in Africa were made possible by air superiority which has been maintained in spite of extravagant air re-enforcements by the Germans, including planes from the Russian front.

"Enemy On Defensive"

"Prolongation of the Libyan battle may not be without its compensation to us," he said. "From the point of view of drawing weight from the Russian front continuance of fighting is not to be regarded as an evil."

The Prime Minister added that "the enemy, stripped largely of armor, is now retreating to defensive positions west of Tobruk" and "substantial re-inforcements available to us are close at hand."

DEC 12 1941

"On the 18th of November General Auchinleck sent out to destroy the entire armed forces of the Germans and Italians in Cirenaica," he asserted. "Now, on the 11th of December, I am bound to say it seems very probable he will do so."

Atlantic Losses Slashed

He said that "in the battle of the Atlantic, Britain's net losses of mercantile marine have been reduced to a good deal less than one fifth of those of the four months ended in June—a tremendous figure."

"The month of November and the first ten days of December fully maintained the great recovery of the previous four months," he continued.

In the section of his war review on the African fighting he said: "The first phase of the Libyan battle is now over. The enemy has been driven out of all positions that bar our western advance except four pockets at Bardia and Halfaya, which are hopelessly cut off."

DEC 12 1941

"Axis Has Paid Price Of Valor"

The Axis, he said, has "paid the price of his valor, and the second phase may gather more easily than the first."

Turning to the Russian campaign, Churchill said:

"We can already see, after six months of fighting in Russia, that Hitler made one of the outstanding blunders of history, and the results so far realized constitute events of cardinal importance in the final decision of the war."

Only by the Libyan campaign, he said, could the British have brought a second front into action to help Russia under conditons costly to the Axis and favorable to Britain.

"Foe In Wide Retreat"

"In Russia, the Germans have everywhere been brought to a standstill. On a large portion of the front they are in retreat. Their losses are enormous."

He said Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, Britain's Far Eastern naval commander, was reported missing in the sinking of the Prince of Wales.

He said there was reason to believe the loss of life on the Prince of Wales and the Repulse had been less heavy than at first feared, and declared, "Seven of the aircraft which attacked the two ships were destroyed."

Had Sent Reinforcements

He declared that seven of the aircraft which attacked the two ships were destroyed.

He said he could not discuss the situation resulting from the British and American losses or the measures that should be taken to meet it.

"It may well be that we shall have to suffer considerable punishment but we shall defend oprselves everywhere with utmost vigor and in close co-operation with the United States and Netherlands Navy," he said.

"No one can under-rate the gravity of losses inflicted on the United States nor under-rate the length of time it will take to marshal the great forces necessary in the Far East for absolute victory.

"We must expect the volume of American supply reaching Britain and the degree of help from the United States Navy to be reduced. The gap must be filled and only our own efforts will fill it.

"I cannot doubt now that the 130,000,000 million people of the United States have bound themselves to this war, and, once they get settled down to it and bend themselves to it as their main purpose in life, that the flow of munitions and aid of every kind will vastly exceed anything that could have been expected up to the present."

Text of Churchill's Speech

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Following is the text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address to the House of Commons today:

A great many things of far-reaching and fundamental importance have happened in the last few weeks.

Most of them have happened in the last few days, and I think it opportune to give the House the best account I can of where we stand and where we are.

I will begin with the battle of Libya.

A lot of people in easy positions have been very much down on the military spokesman at Cairo. They accuse him of having taken unduly favorable views of our positions at different dates.

I am not going to apologize for the military spokesman at Cairo. I have read every day the statement he has made and I have also read reports which have come continually from the front.

I think the military spokesman in Cairo has been pretty well justified in what he has said, having regard to how things stood or seemed to stand at each moment when he said it.

It is a difficult thing to have a military spokesman at all. It would be much more convenient for a military commander to remain quite silent, but then it is said "Are we going to know nothing of what is going on? Is it all to be kept to a small secret circle? Is nothing to be told to the public, to the empire and to the army?

There is a very great army in the Middle East and only a small part of it is able to fight in this battle in Libya, but all are watching with very great interest what occurs.

I don't think you could go on the basis of fighting for three weeks or a month with no information being given by our side except in very guarded communiques and only stories coming from the enemy, who aren't always entirely truthful in their accounts.

Therefore I am in favor of the military spokesman in Cairo and I think he has discharged an extremely difficult task wisely and well.

Also, if anybody based their hopes on what he said, that man would find today he has not been misled.

There might be ups and downs; there might be disappointments; there would certainly be the ebb and flow of battle; but in the main, views founded on the daily output of the military spokesman would be found thoroughly in accord with where we are at present.

It must be remembered here at Westminster and in Fleet Street that it has been sought to establish the rule that nothing must be said about the war that is not altogether discouraging.

Although I must admit the British public seem to like their food cooked that way, a military spokesman addressing a large army might do more harm than good if he always put things at their worst and never allowed buoyancy, hope, confidence and resolve to infect his declarations.

There ought to be fair recognition of the difficulties to a task of that kind and this defense I have made also applies to the admirable official communiques which have been issued by General Auchinleck's headquarters and which have given a very informing and effective picture of the confused struggle which has been proceeding.

DEC 12 1941

Battle Took Unexpected Course

The Libyan offensive did not take the course that the authors expected—though it will reach the end at which they aimed.

Very few set piece battles that have to be prepared over a long period of time work out in the way they are planned and imagined. The unexpected intervenes at every stage, the will power of the enemy impinges itself upon the prescribed or hoped-for course of events.

Victory is traditionally elusive. Accidents happen, mistakes are made, sometimes right things turn out wrong and quite often wrong things turn out right. War is very difficult, especially to those who take part in it or are conducting it.

DEC 12 1941

On Nov. 18 Auchinleck set out to destroy the entire armed forces of the Germans and Italians in Cyrenaica. Now on Dec. 11 I am bound to say it seems very probable he will do so.

The picture that was made by the commanders beforehand was of a much more rapid battle than has actually taken place. They had the idea which I expressed to the House that the whole German armored force would be encountered by our armor at the outset of battle and that the battle would be decided one way or the other in a few hours.

This might have been the best chance for the enemy. However, the sudden surprise and success of our advance prevented any such main trial of strength between the armored forces.

At Sidi Rezegh we divided the enemy armor, throwing them into confusion. In consequence of this, detached actions took place over immense spaces of desert and the battle, although equally intense, became dispersed and protracted. It became a widespread, confused battle of high-class combatants manning mechanized transports and fighting in a barren land with the utmost vigor and determination.

The commander of the 21st German Armored Division, whom we captured, expressed himself very well when he said this warfare is a paradise to the tactician and a nightmare to quartermaster.

30.24—13473

30.24-13473

DEC 12 1941

Combat Units Are Ready

Although we have large armies in the Middle East, we have never been able to place in the desert advance infantry forces numerically equal to those the enemy had gradually accumulated on the coast. To us the foundation of everything was supply and mechanized transport and this was supplied on what would hitherto have been considered a fantastic scale. Also, we had to rely on our superiority in armor and in the air.

In this struggle everything depended on the absolutely unrelenting spirit of the offensive, not only in the generals but in the troops. That has been forthcoming and is still forthcoming.

All the troops have fought all the time in every state of fatigue and hardship with one sincere, insatiable desire to engage the enemy and destroy him if possible, tank-to-tank, man-to-man and hand-to-hand.

Behind all this process, working out at so many different points and in so many different combats, has been the persistent will power of Auchinleck. That will power might easily have subsided onto the defensive instead of to the precious initiative, which in the Libyan theater we have for the first time felt ourselves strong enough to make.

The first main crisis of battle was reached between Nov. 24-26. On the 24th Auchinleck proceeded to battle headquarters. On the 26th he decided to relieve Cunningham and appointed Major General Ritchie, a comparatively junior officer, to command of the 8th Army.

Cunningham has rendered brilliant service and was responsible for the planning and organization of the present offensive in Libya, which began with surprise and success. He since has been reported by medical authorities to be suffering from serious overstrain and was granted sick leave.

Auchinleck's Battle

Since Nov. 26, the 8th Army has been commanded with great vigor and skill by Ritchie. During nearly the whole time, Auchinleck has been at battle headquarters, and I have no hesitation in saying that for good or ill it is Auchinleck's battle.

Watching these affairs, as it is my duty to do from day to day and often from hour to hour, and seeing the seamy side of reports as they come in, I have felt my confidence in General Auchinleck grow continually, and though everything is hazardous in war, I believe we have found in him, as we have also found in General Wavell, a military figure of the first order.

The newspapers have given full and excellent accounts of the strangely interspersed fighting in which British armored corps, a New Zealand division, a South African division and an Indian division, the British 70th Division and the rest of the Tobruk garrison, including the Poles, all played an equally brilliant and active part.

At the beginning of the offensive I told the House we should, for the first time, be fighting the Germans on equal terms in modern weapons. This was quite true. Naturally there have been some unpleasant surprises and also some awkward things have happened, as might be expected. Those who fight the Germans fight a stubborn and resourceful foe, a foe in every way worthy of the doom prepared for him. Some of the German tanks carry, as we knew, a six-pounder gun which, though it, of course, can carry many fewer shots, is sometimes more effective than the gun with which our tanks are mainly armed.

Our losses in tanks were a good deal heavier than we expected and it may be that at the outset—before it was disorganized—the enemy's recovery process for damaged vehicles worked better than ours. I am not sure of it, but it may be so; they are very good at that. However, we had good superiority in numbers of armored vehicles and in the long rough and tumble we gradually attained mastery so far as the first phase of the battle was concerned.

Air Superiority Maintained

Our air force was undoubtedly superior in numbers and quality to that of the enemy, and though Germans have drawn, in most extravagant manner, reinforcements from many quarters including from the Russian front, that superiority has been more than maintained.

Greatest satisfaction is expressed by the troops and by military authorities about the way in which they have been helped and protected by action of the R. A. F.

Like other people concerned I hoped for a quick decision, but it may well be that this wearing-down battle will be found in the end to have inflicted deeper injury upon the enemy than if it had all been settled by maneuver.

In no other way but in this Libyan attack could the second front have been brought into action under conditions more costly to the enemy and more favorable to ourselves.

This will be realized when it is remembered that about half and sometimes more than half of everything—men, munitions and fuel—which the enemy sends to Africa is sunk before it gets there by our submarines, cruisers and destroyers and by activities of our air force from Libya and from Malta.

In this way, therefore, prolongation of the battle may not be without its compensations. From the point of view of drawing weight from the vast Russian front, continuance of fighting in its severity is not to be regarded as an evil.

The first phase of battle is now over, the enemy has been driven out of all positions which barred our westward advance—positions which he most laboriously fortified. Everything has been swept away except certain pockets at Bardia and Halfaya which are hopelessly cut off and will be mopped up or starved out in due course. It may definitely be said that Tobruk has been relieved.

DEC 12 1941

Reinforcements Close at Hand

The enemy, still strong but severely mauled and largely stripped of his armor, is retreating to a defensive line to the west of Tobruk fortress, and clearance of approaches to Tobruk and establishment of our air power thus far forward to the west in new airfields will enable the great supply depots of Tobruk—which have been carefully built up to furnish support for the second phase of our offensive with great economy on our lines of communication—to be brought into use.

Substantial reinforcements and fresh troops are available close at hand.

Many of the units which were most heavily engaged have been relieved. Their places were taken by others, although we have to keep numbers down strictly to the level which our vast transport facilities permit.

The enemy, who has fought with utmost stubbornness and enterprise, has paid the price of his valor and it may well be that that second phase will gather easily the fruits of the first. All danger of the Army of the Nile not being able to celebrate Christmas and New Year in Cairo has been decisively removed.

Before I leave the purely British aspect of war I must report to the House the progress of the Battle of the Atlantic. When I last spoke I said that in the four months ending with October, making allowance for new buildings but not for sea captures or United States assistance, the net loss of our mercantile marine had been reduced to a good deal less than one-fifth what it was in the four months ending in June—a tremendous saving.

As these were the very months when Hitler had boasted that strangulation of our seaboard supplies would be at its height, we were entitled to rest with some solid assurance upon that fact.

DEC 12 1941

November Also Shows Progress

The House has a right to treat the fact as of great importance because these matters of sea power and sea transport involve our lives. The month of November has now gone by, and without revealing actual figures I am glad to say it fully maintained the great recovery of the previous four months. In the first ten days of this month we also found the progress and positions had been fully maintained. These are the foundations upon which we live and carry forward our cause.

I turn to Russia. Six weeks or a month ago people were wondering whether Moscow would be taken, or Leningrad, or how soon the Germans would overrun the Caucasus and seize the oil fields of Baku. We had to consider what we could do to prepare ourselves on a long front from the Caspian Sea to the Mediterranean.

Since then a striking change has become evident. The enormous power of the Russian armies and the glorious steadfastness and energy with which they resisted the savage onslaught made upon them have been maintained. On top of this has come the Russian winter and on top of that the Russian Air Force.

In Russia Hitler has everywhere been brought to a standstill. On a large portion of his front he is in retreat and the sufferings of his troops are indescribable. Their losses have been immense.

The cold and snow, the piercing wind which blows across icy spaces, the ruined towns and villages, the long line of communications assaulted by dauntless guerrilla warriors, the stubborn unyielding resistance with which Russian soldiers and the Russian people have defended every street, every house, every yard and their soil—all these facts have inflicted upon the German armies and the German nation a bloody loss almost unequaled in history of war.

Only the Beginning

But this is not the end of a ter—it is the beginning.

The Russians have regained definite superiority in the air over large parts of the front. They have great cities in which to live, their soldiers are habituated to the severities of their native climate They are inspired by a feeling of advance after long retreat—of vengeance for their monstrous injuries.

In Hitler's launching of the Nazi campaign upon Russia we can already see, after less than six months of fighting, that he made one of the outstanding blunders of history, and results so far realized constitute an event of cardinal importance in the final decision of the war.

Nevertheless, we must remember that great ammunition capacities have been lost to Russia by the German invasion, and our pledges to the Russians for heavy monthly quotas of tanks and airplanes and vital raw materials which we have made—although, as we can all see, our position has been changed in various important ways, not all in a favorable direction—faithfully and punctually will be fulfilled.

A week ago the three great spheres of Libya, the Atlantic and Russia would almost have covered the war with which we were concerned.

Since then it has taken an enormous and very grave expansion.

The Japanese government, or ruling elements in Japan, have made a cold-blooded, violent, treacherous attack on the United States and ourselves. The United States has declared war upon her assailants, and we and the Royal Netherlands government have done the same.

A large part of the Western Hemisphere, state after state, parliament after parliament, is following the United States. It is a great tribute to the respect for international law and for the independence of these less powerful countries which the United States had shown over many years, but particularly under the Presidency of Mr. Roosevelt.

Several states in Central and South America—powerful, wealthy, populous communities—are in the process of throwing in their lot with the great Republic of North America.

DEC 12 1941

Secure in Company

And it will not stop here. It seems quite certain that Japan, when she struck her treacherous and dastardly blow at the United State, counted on the active support of German Nazis and on Italian Fascists. It therefore is very likely that the United States will be faced with the open hostility of Germany, Italy and Japan. We are in all this.

Our foes are bound by their ambitions and their crimes to seek implacably the destruction of the English-speaking world and all it stands for. It is a supreme barrier for all their kind.

If this should be their resolve we are prepared to meet it. If they should declare themselves resolved to compass destruction of the English-speaking world, I know I speak for the United States as well as for the British Empire when I say we would rather perish than be conquered.

On that basis and, putting it at the worst, there are quite a lot of us to be killed.

Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has sent me a message announcing his decision to declare war against Japan and also against Japan's partners in guilt, Germany and Italy.

He has further assured me the whole of the resources of China are at the disposal of Great Britain and the United States. The Chinese cause is henceforth our cause. The country which has faced Japanese assault for more than four years with undoubted courage is, indeed, a worthy ally, and it as Allies that from now on we will go forward together to victory—not over Japan alone but over the Axis and all its works.

Admits Serious Naval Blow

The Japanese onslaught has brought upon the United States and Britain very serious injuries to our naval power.

In my whole experience I do not remember any naval blow so heavy or so painful as the sinking of the Prince of Wales and Repulse on Monday last.

These two fast, powerful ships constituted an essential feature in our plans for meeting the new Japanese danger as it loomed up against us in the last few months.

These ships had reached the right point at the right moment and were in every respect suited to the task assigned to them.

In moving to attack Japanese transports and landing craft where they were disembarking invaders of Siam and Malaya on the Kra Isthmus or thereabouts, Admiral Phillips was undertaking a thoroughly sound, well considered offensive operation not indeed free from risk, but not different in principle from any similar operation we have repeatedly carried out in the North Sea and the Mediterranean.

Both ships were sunk by repeated air attacks by bombers and torpedo aircraft. These attacks were delivered with skill and determination. There were two high-level attacks, both of which scored hits, and three waves of torpedo aircraft of nine in each wave which struck each of our ships with several torpedoes.

There is no reason to suppose any new weapon or explosives were employed, or any bombs or torpedoes of exceptional size. Continued waves of attack achieved their purpose and both ships capsized and sank, having destroyed seven of the attacking aircraft.

Escorting destroyers came immediately to the rescue and have now arrived at Singapore crowded with survivors. There is reason to believe the loss of life has been less heavy than was first feared, but I regret Admiral Sir Tom Phillips is among those reported missing.

DEC 12 1941

He is well known here at Whitehall. His long service at the Admiralty as vice-chief of the naval staff gave him many friends who mourn his loss.

Personally I regarded him as one of the ablest brains in naval service and I felt honored to have established personal friendship with him.

On his way out I was most anxious that he should see General Smuts and so an interview was arranged between that great statesman and naval officer whose long service at or near the summit of Admiralty had made him acquainted with every aspect of the war.

It is a very heavy loss we have suffered. I hope in a short time it will be possible to inform the relatives of many who have safely arrived at Singapore from both these great ships; still the loss of life has been most melancholy.

Naturally I should not be prepared to discuss the resulting situation in the Far East and in the Pacific or measures which must be taken to restore it. It may well be that we shall have to suffer considerable punishment, but we shall defend ourselves everywhere with the utmost vigor and in close co-operation with the United States and the Netherlands Navy.

The naval power of Britain and the United States was very greatly superior and is still largely superior to the combined forces of the three Axis powers, but no one can underrate the gravity of the loss which has been inflicted in Malay and Hawaii, or the powe of the new antagonist which ha fallen upon us, or the length o time it will take to create, marshal and mount great forces in the Far East which will be necessary to achieve absolute victory.

We have a very hard period to go through and a new surge and impulse will be required and will be forthcoming from every one.

We must, as I have said, faithfully keep our engagements to Russia in regard to supplies, and at the same time we must expect, at any rate for the next few months, the volume of American supplies reaching Britain and the degree of help given by the United States Navy will be reduced. The gap must be filled and only our own efforts will fill it.

I cannot doubt, however, now that 130,000,000 people in the United States have bound themselves to this war and once they get settled down to it, bending themselves to it—as they will—as their main purpose in life, then the flow of munitions and aid of every kind will vastly exceed the basis which had ruled up to the present.

Not only the British Empire now but the United States are fighting for life. Russia is fighting for life. China is fighting for life. Behind these four great combatant communities are ranged all the spirit and hope of all conquered countries in Europe—prostrate under the cruel domination of the foe.

I said the other day that four-fifths of the human race were on our side. It may well be an understatement.

Just handfuls and cliques of wicked men and their military or party organizations have been able to bring these hideous evils upon mankind.

It would indeed bring shame upon our generation if we did not teach them a lesson which will not be forgotten in the records of a thousand years.

U. S. Bombers Batter Enemy

DEC 12 1941

Two 29,000-Ton Battleships, Cruiser And Destroyer Fall Prey To American Fliers

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP) — A series of hammering and destructive blows at Nippon's Navy were announced today as Congress took up Hitler's gage of battle and put the United States formally into the war against Germany and Italy.

Official communiques said that:

1. Army bombers sank the 29,000-ton Japanese Battleship Haruna off the northern coast of Luzon, Philippine Islands.

2. The American forces protecting Wake Island, tiny stepping stone halfway between Hawaii and the Philippines, repulsed four enemy attacks, and sank a light cruiser and a destroyer from the air.

3. Navy patrol planes scored bomb hits on a Japanese battleship off Luzon and, in the words of Adm. Thomas C. Hart, Commander of the Asiatic Fleet, left her "badly damaged."

This battleship was unnamed, but was of the Kongo class, the same class as the Haruna. There are four ships in this category. All are old battlewagons built before the last World War. They were rebuilt during the period of 1926-30 and made more formidable, however.

The Navy, in its third communique of the war, said the Japanese ship was badly damaged. It said this was the second Japanese battleship to be bombed effectively by United States forces.

No further details were given.

The Japanese Navy has four battleships of the "Kongo" class. The "Kongo" and "Hiei" were commissioned in 1912 and the "Haruna" and "Kirisima" in 1913.

All four have a standard displacement of 29,330 tons and complements of about 980 men each.

The government here has already reported the "Haruna" was bombed and sunk.

The text of the Navy Department communique follows:

"The Navy Department announced that Adm. Thomas C. Hart, United States Navy Commander-In-Chief, United States Asiatic fleet, has reported that Navy patrol planes scored bomb hits on a Japanese battleship of the Kongo class off the coast of Luzon. The ship was badly damaged. This is the second Japanese battleship to be bombed effectively by United States forces."

Navy officers emphasized that this attack was in addition to the onslaught on the Haruna, which the Army announced had been sunk by Army planes.

All four battleships of the Kongo class were re-fitted between 1928-1930, and the "Kongo" was reported to have been completely rebuilt to provide additional protection against torpedo and aircraft attack.

The "Kongo" was designed by Sir George Thurston and built by Vickers, the Great British armament firm.

Three of the "Kongo" class battleships carry eight 14-inch guns, 16 6-inch guns, eight 5-inch anti-aircraft guns, and four submerged torpedo tubes.

The "Hiei" carries six 14-inch guns, 16 6-inch guns, four 5-inch anti-aircraft guns, and four 3-inch anti-aircraft guns. She was reported by Jame's Fighting Ships to have been turned into a training vessel.

The battleships are protected by heavy Krupp armour and torpedo protection bulkheads.

All were converted to oil burners and were reported to have facilities for three aircraft each.

DEC 12 1941

The Navy Department announced that the garrison on tiny Wake Island, about half way between Hawaii and the Philippines, had repulsed four separate enemy attacks, and in the process had sunk a light cruiser and a destroyer from the air.

"Despite the loss of part of the defending planes and the damage to material and personnel," the announcement said, "the defending garrison succeeded in sinking one light cruiser and one destroyer of the enemy forces by air action.

"A resumption of the attack and a probable landing attempt is expected. The Marine garrison is continuing to resist. The above report is based on information received up until noon, Dec. 11."

The Navy's report quickly spread excited jubilation throughout a Capital which earlier had learned that Army airmen, operating in the Philippines had sent a Japanese battleship, the 29,000-ton Haruna, to the bottom.

Secretary of War Stimson who made this announcement also said Japanese attempts to land in the Philippines were meeting determined opposition, and had been confined to the extreme northern tip of the Island of Luzon.

Although Manila dispatches told of the Japanese seizure of an airport in Eastern Luzon, they also quoted Army officials there as saying the situation was "completely in hand," that "enemy detachments that landed on the Luzon coast are being disposed of" and that "mopping up operations are proceeding."

Tokio Also Loses Destroyer to Our Navy in Attack on Island—Army Bombers Sink Japanese Battleship Off Luzon.

Washington, Dec. 11 (A. P.). — The sinking of the 29,000-ton Japanese battleship Haruna by army bombers off the northern coast of Luzon in the Philippines was announced today by Secretary of War Stimson.

At his press conference Mr. Stimson said that the Navy Department had confirmed the sinking, previously reported by the army as a battleship of the Haruna class.

The navy announced this afternoon that four separate attacks on Wake Island had been repulsed by defending United States forces in the last forty-eight hours and that one light cruiser and one destroyer of the Japanese forces had been sunk.

A resumption of the attacks was expected, the navy said, and an attempt at landing by the Japanese also was believed in prospect.

DEC 12 1941

U. S. Naval Communique.

The navy issued this communique:

"The marine garrison on Wake Island has been subject to four separate attacks in the last forty-eight hours by enemy aircraft and one by light naval units.

"Despite the loss of part of the defending planes, and the damage to material and personnel, the defending garrison succeeded in sinking one light cruiser and one destroyer of the enemy forces by air action.

"A resumption of the attack and a probable landing attempt is expected. The marine garrison is continuing to resist. The above report is based on information received up until noon December 11."

DEC 12 1941

Wake Attack Began Sunday.

Wake Island is one of a chain of island stepping stones to the Far East originally developed principally for trans-Pacific clipper flights.

The Japanese onslaught at Pearl Harbor last Sunday was followed quickly that same day by an attack on Wake which, according to the accounts of eyewitnesses later reaching this country, destroyed the Pan American Airways' docks, hotel and other buildings.

The story of the attack was told in San Francisco yesterday by Capt. J. H. Hamilton of the Philippine Clipper which had just landed at the tiny spot of land about midway between Honolulu and Manila, when Japanese planes leave

roared in to the attack. The clipper was not crippled.

In a statement issued in San Francisco jointly by Pan American Airways and the Navy Public Relations Office, Capt. Hamilton said Wake was attacked by two squadrons of nine planes each. They bombed and machine-gunned the installations on the island and although sixteen bullets struck the Philippine Clipper it was able to continue the flight to this country.

DEC 12 1941

Determined resistance by American forces, Mr. Stimson reported at his press conference, has confined Japanese landings on Luzon to the vicinity of Aparri at the extreme northern tip of the island.

[From Manila, however, came reports that Japanese parachutists had seized an airport six miles from Iligan in eastern Luzon. Aparri is on the northern coast.]

Bomber Replacements at Hawaii.

The Secretary of War said that there were attacks by Japanese aircraft in the vicinity of Manila yesterday, particularly on the air fields of Cavite and Nichols Field. Mr. Stimson said that losses of planes in the attack on Hawaii on Sunday, though heavy, already were being replaced.

These losses can be made good and they are being made good now, the Secretary said. He reported that a flight of four-motored army bombers arrived in Hawaii during the Japanese attack.

The first of the planes was shot down, but the crews of the remaining ships, with a few moments' warning, brought their ships in at various air fields in the islands and only two planes suffered any damage.

This damage, Mr. Stimson said, was very light and would be repaired quickly.

Through Heavy Test.

"The American people have been put through a very heavy test in the last four days," he said. "When we survey the situation in cold blood and in perspective, we must realize that initial reverses are almost inevitably to be expected in a contest between a democracy and an autocratic government.

"This is particularly true when the autocratic government has been preparing and fighting for several years and its men are veterans. We must be very careful not to underestimate the ability of the Japanese esamen.

"On the other hand, all students of history know that every war has three periods. They have been designated as the period of onset, the period of drag, when the war begins to weigh on the nations involved, and the finish.

An Initial Disadvantage.

"During the first period, it is inevitable that the free government, the government that depends on the consent of its people, carried on by persuasion instead of by force, is at a distinct disadvantage.

"On the other hand, it is to be expected, and usually has been proved to be a fact, that in the later periods, when it becomes a matter of endurance, the democracies win victories and win the war.

"It is the last shots, not the first shots, that count.

"The government that depends on the consent and free will of its people has a momentum and endurance that no government that depends on the will of one man can have."

Report Not Complete.

Mr. Stimson said of the attack on Hawaii that the War Department itself as yet does not have a complete report, but said that this was no time for recriminations or accusations of blame.

"Anything like that, it seems to me, is a sign of an immature government and people," he asserted. "The present is not the moment for investigation. That will come later. The present moment is one for action and preparation."

The army, the Secretary said, was engaged in strengthening its defenses everywhere—"in Hawaii and everywhere else."

Third Communique Issued.

Mr. Stimson handed correspondents the department's third war communique, explaining that since its preparation the navy had confirmed that the Japanese battleship sunk was the Haruna. It follows:

"The Philippine theater: The Commanding General, Far Eastern Command, confirms the sinking of a 29,000-ton Japanese battleship yesterday by the American Army Air Forces, north of Luzon. This battleship is believed to be the 29,000-ton Haruna, or a vessel of the Haruna class.

"Continued attempts by strong Japanese forces to establish themselves along the northern coast of Luzon were reported. Determined resistance has confined this action to the attack in the vicinity of Aparri, at the extreme northern tip of Luzon, where the Japanese attempted to establish a beach-head yesterday. Air activity continued in the vicinity of Manila, with intermittent attacks on air fields at Cavite and Nichols Field throughout the day."

SMALL INVADING FORCE LANDS AT LEGASPI PORT

DEC 12 1941

However, "Situation Remains Unchanged Materially," American Dispatch Says—Nipponese Parachutists Make New Thrust At Ilagan

BY CLARK LEE

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Friday, Dec. 12—The Japanese have improved their strength in Luzon, but "the situation remains unchanged materially," the United States Army stated in a communique today.

The army said it had received an unconfirmed report that a small force had landed at Legaspi, a port on the Albay Gulf, on the southeastern coast of Luzon, the main island of the Philippines.

The situation found the American defenders of the Philippines apparently having smashed every Japanese effort to set invading forces firmly ashore, save possibly for one new thrust by parachutists.

Text Of Communique

The communique, issued shortly before 8 A. M., said:

"The enemy has improved his strength in northern Luzon. However, the situation remains unchanged materially. A small force is reported to have pushed ashore at Legaspi, but hitherto the report has not been confirmed and further details are lacking."

DEC 12 1941

Manila was under air-raid alarm for an hour and forty minutes early this morning—from 3.59 to 5.30 A. M.—but no raiders were reported.

Successes Reported

The communique came at the beginning of a new day after the American defenders had had a series of successes, including the burning and sinking by army planes of a 29,000-ton Japanese battleship off the north coast of Luzon.

At Aparri, on the northern tip of Luzon Island, where one of the strongest invasion attempts was made, unofficial but reliable reports last night said the Japanese were being driven back to the seacoast and the region around the port was again in American hands.

DEC 12 1941

Constabulary Acts

The one exception to the United States successes was an airport six miles from Ilagan, which was said to have been seized by aerial invaders. Units of the Philippine constabulary were organizing to quell the chutists.

At all other points, a United States Army spokesman announced shortly before the parachutists' reported descent, "the situation is completely in hand" and "mopping-up operations are proceeding" to dispose of the invaders.

The sinking of the Japanese battleship by air attack followed quickly upon yesterday's crippling of a troopship convoy of six vessels off the Luzon west coast, in which at least one of the ships was sunk.

Fired By Bombers

The warship, either the Haruna or one of her three sister ships, was set afire by United States Army bombers and sank yesterday while supporting the landing operations.

The report of the parachutists at Ilagan means that the Japanese now have tried to plant beachheads on northern Luzon, northernmost as well as chief island of the archipelago, from three sides.

They have tried to land at Aparri on the squared-off northern coast; on the west, from the China Sea at several points ranging as far south as Lingayen, only 110 miles northwest of Manila; and now, by air, on Luzon's east coast facing the open Pacific.

Ilagan, a short distance inland, is in Isabela Province, about 70 miles south of the port of Aparri.

The Lingayen incursion was the last-reported attempt by the Japanese at an invasion from the sea and a spokesman said it was weak and had been repulsed by a Philippine Army regiment.

(In Washington, however, an Army communique said "continued attempts by strong Japanese forces to establish themselves along the northern coast of Luzon were reported. Determined resistance has confined this action to the attack in the vicinity of Aparri, at the extreme northern tip of Luzon, where the Japanese attempted to establish a beach head yesterday.")

Two other battles were being waged in the islands, an internal struggle to secure the Philippines against fifth Columnists and a battle of the skies to ward off destructive enemy air raids.

Authorities in all parts of the Commonwealth rounded up suspects among whom were several followers of Benigno Ramos, instigator of the Sakdalista uprising of 1935 and for years an exile in Japan.

An extraordinary session of the Philippine National Assembly pledged the islands' loyalty to the United States and authorized all their resources and unspent Government balances to be used for the war effort.

Philippine President Manuel Quezon, a spokesman said, received a message of praise from President Roosevelt on the islands' "magnificent defense against wanton invasion." Quezon replied that "we will do our duty to the end."

President Roosevelt also sent congratulations to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, army commander in the Philippines.

DEC 12 1941

Japanese daylight air raids Wednesday on Manila, Cavite naval base, and Nichols Field airbase were reported to have inflicted heavy damage. Press reports put casualties at 30 persons killed and 300 wounded in afternoon raids by 71 enemy bombers on six objectives in this area.

Between nine and 15 Japanese bombers were said to have been shot down and four American planes lost.

Manila had its second successive quiet night, however, and there were no bombs yesterday, although Japanese planes, apparently on reconnaissance, crossed the edge of the city and caused an alarm.

Ten of the dead were said to have been aboard a merchant ship hit when the raiders laid a precise line of probably forty bombs among vessels clustered outside the Manila breakwater. A lighter inside the bay and several off the Cavite base were reported sunk.

Americans Recapture Area Near Aparri in North Part of Island.

PARACHUTISTS WIN AIRPORT

Japanese Seize Field Close to Ilagan—Invaders Driven Toward the Seacoast.

BY RUSSELL BRINES

Manila, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Philippine Army was reported unofficially but reliably tonight to have recaptured the region around Aparri, on the north coast of Luzon, and to be driving the Japanese back to the seacoast.

Japanese parachute troops were reported today to have landed at an airport six miles from Ilagan in Isabela province, eighty miles south of Aparri, and the Filipino constabulary was organizing to repel them.

As Japan threw fresh swarms of parachute troops into the battle of Luzon Island in the Philippines today, American battle forces were reported to have crushed the first waves of seaborne Japanese troops attempting to invade the island.

Japanese forces which landed on the coasts of Luzon Island are being disposed of and mopped up by United States and Philippine troops, a United States Army spokesman declared today.

The spokesman earlier today announced the repulse by Filipino soldiers of a light Japanese attack about 110 miles northwest of Manila.

"The situation is completely in hand," the spokesman said.

A United States Army bomber late yesterday attacked a Japanese battleship of the Haruna class about ten miles northeast of northern Luzon Island coast.

"The bomber scored three direct hits and two very close alongside," he said. "When the bomber left the battleship was blazing fiercely."

[Secretary of War Stimson said today that the Haruna had sunk.]

DEC 12 1941

Attack Nearer Manila.

On land, the spokesman said, there have been no major developments since yesterday with the exception of light attacks by Japanese ground troops in the vicinity of Lingayen, a port on the Gulf of Lingayen on the western coast of Luzon. A Philippine Army division stopped this thrust he said.

[Mention of Lingayen places the Japanese land forces nearer Manila on Luzon than at any time thus far. Previous action on Luzon has centered north of Vigan, about 200 miles north of Manila. However, the Japanese have been reported holding Lubang Island, fifty miles off the entrace to Manila Bay.]

United States and Filipino troops continued to battle the Japanese who landed along the 160-mile coastline between Vigan and Aparri.

Iligan, scene of the reported parachute landing, is in the province of Isabela, some seventy miles south of the port of Aparri and 180 miles northeast of Manila.

Suspects Arrested.

Throughout the Islands, authorities rushed the roundup of suspects in a drive to check fifth column activities. Several former followers of Benigno Ramos, leader of the Sakdalista uprising of 1935, were taken into custody. Ramos for years was an exile in Japan.

An air raid warden said that a special telephone line linking his office with the Nichols Air Depot had been cut and thus the Army Signal Corps had been unable to notify civil officials in time for an alarm before the start of an air attack yesterday.

A spokesman said that President Manuel Quezon received a message from President Roosevelt praising the Philippines for "magnificent defense against wanton invasion." The President also sent congratulations to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in the Philippines.

President Quezon replied to Mr. Roosevelt: "I have received your very heartening message and all I can say is to once more reiterate what I have heretofore declared—we will do our duty to the end."

The Philippine Army received reports that the Japanese had been checked at Aparri, on the northern tip of the island 250 miles from Manila.

Assembly Pledges Aid.

An extraordinary session of the National Assembly approved a resolution pledging the support and co-operation of the Filipine people of the United States for the war against Japan.

The assembly authorized President Manuel Quezon to place all resources of the country at the disposal of the United States, "for the prosecution of the war to a successful conclusion."

It also approved a bill making all unexpended Government balances in general and special funds available for national defense and protection of the civilian population.

Bomb Casualties Heavy.

The Cavite naval base and Manila itself counted probably heavy casualties from fierce Japanese daylight raids yesterday.

Conservative press reports said at least thirty persons were killed and 300 wounded during the afternoon raids by seventy-one planes on six major objectives in this area.

Other reports said thirty-seven were killed and forty-six in the Pasay district alone, near Nichols air depot, while ten more were killed aboard one of two merchant ships hit when the bombers laid a precise line of probably forty bombs among merchantmen clustered outside the Manila Bay breakwater.

A lighter in Manila Bay and several off Cavite were reported sunk.

Hospitals were reported crowded with wounded, mostly civilians. Some were wounded in the streets by shrapnel, presumbably from anti-aircraft shells.

Naval Base Badly Hit.

Unofficial reports said that the Cavite base was heavily smashed with bombs hitting the city where the houses are closely packed.

Fires were still burning there and the flames were visible in Manila, nine miles distant.

Varied reports said that between nine and fifteen Japanese planes were shot down and four American planes lost.

Manila had another alarm early today, from 12:30 A. M. to 1:45 A. M. (11:30 A. M. and 12:45 P. M. Wednesday, New York time). But no bombings were reported. The planes, apparently Japanese on reconnaissance, flew over the edge of the city.

The capital had another alarm from 3:15 A. M. (2:15 P. M. Eastern standard time Wednesday) to 6:30 A. M. (5:30 P. M. Eastern standard time Wednesday), but passed its second bombless night.

[In Washington, the War Department said military and naval installations on Luzon were subjected to intermittent Japanese air attacks throughout the day, that on the naval base at Cavite being particularly heavy.]

Japanese bombs, besides starting huge fires at Cavite, sent up columns of smoke from Nichols Air Depot, bombed the ships outside the Manila Bay breakwater and struck near Fort William McKinley.

DEC 12 1941

The Japanese also were reported to have bombed Clark Field and Iba en route to Manila.

Radio Station Silenced.

The Cavite dock was bombed and explosives also were reported to have fallen close to the Pan American Airways base.

One Japanese plane fell on top the KZRH transmitter near Manila, cutting off a transcribed broadcast of President Roosevelt's Tuesday night speech.

Two Filipino airmen were said to have shot down a Japanese plane in Quezon City, a suburb of Manila. The pilot bailed out and was captured by police.

Two others were reported shot down over Baguio, between Manila and the northern coast, when United States airmen attacked three planes apparently returning from the raids here.

Another Japanese plane was said to have fallen on a farm in Pampanga Province. Three of its four occupants were reported killed.

Observers here said that the attackers used light bombs, probably thirty-pounders, on most objectives, with the heavier charges falling mainly on Cavite. The raiders were said to have dropped 200 heavy bombs in all.

The populace was described as amazingly calm.

Curious crowds gathered on Manila's downtown streets and the bay front, watching the attack.

The raiders flew higher than the range of anti-aircraft shells and fighters taking off to engage them apparently failed to gain sufficient altitude to fire at them.

The first group of twenty-seven planes came over at 20,000 and 25,000 feet, circled three times in perfect formation and loosed 100 bombs on military objectives.

The attack began at 12:40 P. M. and lasted twenty minutes. Smoke arose from Nichols Field.

The second wave flew over soon afterward and concentrated explosions on the merchant ships. Perhaps forty bombs fell in this attack.

The pattern of the bombing could be seen steadily approaching the Cavite naval base and within a few minutes dirt and smoke spouted from that direction. Then flames appeared, the largest apparently coming from blazing oil tanks.

Fifteen minutes later nine more bombers appeared over Cavite. Bombs from these planes brought two more smoke plumes from the Cavite section. They also bombed the merchantmen again and dropped other explosives on the edge of McKinley field.

They had hardly disappeared when the last formation of eight planes centered an assault on Savite, dropping thirty bombs.

A half dozen bombs fell amid large residences in Pasay owned by prominent Americans, but most of them had left the section after Monday night's attack on Nichols Field. The dead were said to be all Filipinos.

The raids on the bay front and Cavite were visible from the residence of United States High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre. Some bombs fell less than a quarter of a mile from his residence.

Island Heads Given Praise by Roosevelt

DEC 12 1941

Manila, Dec. 11.—(AP)—President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines and Lieut.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of United States Far Eastern forces, today received messages of commendation and encouragement from President Roosevelt.

President Quezon received the following mesage from the President:

"The overwhelming majority of all the people of the world are watching the magnificent defense against wanton invasion which is being conducted by the government and people of the Philippine Islands. I know you will all continue your splendid work. My personal and official congratulations on the fine stand you are making.

"Continue your splendid work. May God be with you, and I send you all my affectionate good wishes."

General MacArthur received the following message:

"My personal and official congratulations on the fine stand you are making. All of you are constantly in our thoughts. Keep up the good work. Warmest regards."

Quezon replied to Roosevelt, "I have received your very heartening message and all I can say is to once more reiterate what I have heretofore declared—we will do our duty to the end."

Manila Doing Best

MANILA, Friday, Dec. 12 (AP)—"We shall do our best."

This was the reply today of Lieut.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the U. S. Far Eastern forces, to a message of congratulation from President Roosevelt.

The defender of the Philippines cabled the President:

"The Far Eastern command appreciates deeply your message. We shall do our best."

President Roosevelt's message, dispatched Thursday, said: "My personal and official congratulations on the fine stand you are making. All of you are constantly in our thoughts. Keep up the good work. Warmest regards."

Tokyo, Friday, Dec. 12 (Official Radio Received by A. P.)—Japanese headquarters said today that Japanese land and sea forces had landed on the south coast of the Philippine Island of Luzon this morning.

Filipinos' First Dog-Fights

DEC 12 1941

By Russell Brines
Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

Manila, Dec. 11—A baptism of wartime dogfighting left Filipino pilots confident today.

They encountered Japanese attack planes which strafed Zablan Field near Manila during yesterday afternoon's raids.

Young and spirited, they sat in a downtown restaurant lingering over their breakfast after almost continuous duty since Japanese machine-gun bullets splattered Zablan, where the Filipino Air Corps was born in 1935.

"They came at us fast while our planes were on the ground," said the youthful captain, who is one of the most experienced pilots in the island's fledgling air force.

"I saw three of them. I didn't look for any more because they were trying to reach my plane. I had to work my way slowly, taking advantage of every bit of cover, as machine-gun bullets were flying all over the place. Nobody was really hurt but a few of the boys got nicked in the arm."

He said the Japanese planes flew at about fifty feet altitude, strafing the field, then climbed. The Filipino pilots followed.

Civilian reports said the captain was one of two Filipinos who shot down a Japanese plane during the dogfighting, but the captain said:

"I really don't know. When you're up there you're too busy to make sure."

Bern, Dec. 11 (AP)—A German DNB dispatch dated Tokyo tonight reported that Japanese landing forces in the Philippines had repulsed American troops and occupied "an important key position."

The defenders were said to have retreated southward, destroying roads.

[There was no mention of this direct from Tokyo. DNB has carried severel claims of Japanese successes which Tokyo itself did not broadcast.]

TOKYO CLAIMS BAG OF 81 U. S. PLANES

DEC 12 1941

Sinking Of Destroyer And Submarine Also Reported By Japanese

350 Americans At Guam, Including Governor, Are Declared Captured

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Dec. 11 (Official radio received by AP—The destruction of eighty-one American planes, a submarine and a destroyer in Japanese air attacks on the Philippines and the capture of 350 Americans on the island of Guam were claimed officially tonight.

The Japanese acknowledged only five planes lost in all these operations—three missing and two which were said to have "dived headlong into enemy positions."

[Tokyo was silent about Washington's official announcements that American airmen had sunk three Japanese ships, the 29,000-ton battleship Haruna off the Philippines and a light cruiser and destroyer off Wake Island, which is between Honolulu and Guam.

[The Domei agency reported Japanese airmen attacking Wake Island had set fire to barracks and warehouses, and shot down seven United States planes in dogfights. Domei said this action Tuesday was the second raid and that Japanese troops later effected a landing. But Tokyo officially did not announce any such landing.

[Nor did Tokyo follow up with any news about what happened to Japanese troops who landed in the Philippines.]

No Losses At Guam

An army communique said no Japanese losses occurred in the occupation of Guam, where it was said that twenty-five Japanese found interned were released and that "mopping-up" operations were continuing.

American prisoners were said to include Capt. George G. McMillan, Governor in the Guam capital of Agana; the Vice-Governor and the naval station commandant.

A naval communique said that of the eighty-one planes claimed destroyed in the Philippines, forty-five were downed in dogfights.

Heavy damage to the United States naval base of Cavite, the Nichols air field in Manila [illegible] transport in Manila Bay also were claimed.

86 British Planes Claimed

The Japanese army said eighty-six British planes have been destroyed since Monday in the fighting in British Malaya. Thirty of these were reported downed in air combat, among them five United States-built Brewster Buffalo planes.

Direct bomb hits on two British gunboats along the Hongkong coast also were announced by the navy.

On the diplomatic front the Government announced that Japan, Germany and Italy had signed a pact that none would make a separate peace.

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo declared the Axis war declarations on the United States, together with the "marvelous achievements of the imperial (Japanese) forces, unfold a bright future for the Japanese Empire, which is proceeding resolutely with the construction of a new world order."

Capital Of Guam Claimed; Wake Invaded: Japs

DEC 12 1941

Tokyo, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by AP)—Japanese forces have occupied Agana, the capital of Guam, without losses to themselves, and also have landed on Wake, the Japanese reported today.

An army communique said 350 Americans, including Capt. George G. McMillin, Guam's Governor, and the island's Vice-Governor and naval station commandant, were taken prisoner.

Domei reported the landing on Wake Island.

Two Warships Claimed

A naval announcement said a United States destroyer and submarine were sunk and a transport damaged in a fierce Japanese air bombardment yesterday on Cavite and Manila Bay, in the Philippines.

The war bulletin said that at least eighty-one United States planes were destroyed in the attacks, forty-five of them in air combat, and that at hard-hit Cavite naval base an arsenal explosion touched off large fires.

Heavy damage on Nichols Field, near Manila, also was reported. The Japanese acknowledged only five planes lost—three missing and two which were said to have "dived headlong into enemy positions."

Gunboat Hits Reported

Direct hits on two British gunboats in a Japanese air attack on the Hongkong coast yesterday also were announced by the navy.

An army recapitulation of planes destroyed since Monday on the Malayan air front, a British zone of operations, listed eighty-six, including thirty shot down in the air. Of these, it said, five were United States-built Brewster Buffalo fighter planes.

[illegible]. They said 25 Japanese found interned on the island were released and the landing force was continuing "mopping up operations."

A navy communique said a 3,000-ton United States tanker was captured in the Guam attack.

It declared the Japanese, striking by sea from all sides of the island, gained their first foothold at dawn yesterday, when a naval landing party reached shore at Port Apra, on the west coast of the island, 1,500 airline miles east of Manila. The port is little more than five miles from Agana, the capital.

Domei reported a second attack on Wake Island Tuesday morning by Japanese naval planes. Barracks and warehouses were said to have been smashed and set ablaze. The news agency reported that seven United States planes were downed in a single day's dogfights in the skies over the island.

Berlin Quotes Japs As Saying Lexington Has Been Sunk

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The Berlin radio today quoted the Japanese as saying the American aircraft carrier Lexington had been sunk off Hawaii.

(The report is not confirmed anywhere.

(The 33,000-ton Lexington, completed in December, 1927, at a cost of more than $45,000,000, was built to carry a maximum of 80 warplanes and a normal crew of 2,122, including flying personnel.)

Japs Claim Ten R. A. F. Planes.

Tokio, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Japanese naval planes destroyed ten British planes in a bombing and machine-gunning attack on Kuantan air field on the east coast of Malaya, Japanese naval headquarters said today.

Domei dispatches from Saigon, French Indo-China, said that tremendous damage was done to another air field on the west coast of Malaya, opposite Penang Island, in a twenty-four-hour bombing attack.

BRITISH PICK NEW FAR-EAST ADMIRAL

Layton Succeeds Tom Phillips, Still Missing From Prince Of Wales

2,300 Survivors From Two Sunken Warships Arrive At Singapore

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 11—The British radio tonight quoted the Chungking radio as saying additional Japanese forces have landed in central and northern Malaya, supported by heavy tanks.

A1 C YATES MCDANIEL

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 11—Rear Admiral Sir Geoffrey Layton took temporary command of Britain's Far East battle fleet tonight in the place of Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, who is among 595 officers and men still missing from the sinking of the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse.

Missing also is the Prince of Wales commander, Capt. John Leach.

Weary and many of them wounded, some 130 officers and 2,200 men saved from the China Sea reached this British bastion after destroyers and other fleet units had worked at the rescue all last night.

Among the survivors were Fleet Captain L. H. Bell and Capt. W. G. Tennant of the Repulse.

Gives Up Plans For London Trip

Vice Admiral Layton, former commander of the China station who had been superseded by Admiral Phillips, immediately gave up plans to return to London for a new post.

Even with the survivors here, the full story of what happened off the east coast of Malaya yesterday morning when the Prince of Wales and Repulse went down under a hail of Japanese bombs and aerial torpedoes was not available.

Some members of the crews said the first Japanese bomb smashed the airplane catapult deck of the Repulse. After that, under incessant attack, gunners died in bomb blast: and others manned their stations, keeping up the firing until hope for both ships was gone.

DEC 12 1941

Planes Shot Down

Seven planes were reported officially to have been shot down.

Among the first of the rescued brought to shore were Cecil Brown, of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and O'Dowd Gallagher, correspondent for the London Daily Express.

British planes, meanwhile, kept watch off the coast of Malaya for further Japanese transport movements, while big bombers blasted at the foothold Japanese landing forces gained in the sweltering jungle to the north.

A communique declared British defenses there were holding and that "there are no reports of further attempts to land in the Kuantan area, nor were any enemy ships seen in that direction by air reconnaissance."

Airfields Hard Hit

The war bulletin acknowledged that Japanese bombers had hit heavily at British airfields in northern Malaya and said some of these were made temporarily unservicable. Penang, off the west coast, was bombed heavily also.

A night communique declared that "in Kedah (the northernmost Malay state) British units are in contact with the enemy near the Thailand border where local patrol encounters occurred," and said in the Kuantan area where the Japanese landed yesterday morning the British are holding their original positions."

Reports from Hong Kong indicated defense forces there also were holding out firmly against Japanese attack.

The British headquarters reported that Japanese siege troops were "being trapped between impregnable forces" as large Chinese units closed in on them from the rear and left flank.

(A Netherlands East Indies communique reported that Dutch naval forces had reached Singapore, and said Australian air units based in the Indies attacked a Japanese air base on the little island of Pobra, southeast of the Philippines.)

Japs' Bombs Started Fire Aboard Repulse In First Attack

DEC 12 1941

Torpedo Planes Then Swooped Down From All Directions

By the Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 11—A survivor of the British battle cruiser Repulse declared last night that when the fleet steamed northward along the coast of Malaya, Admiral Sir Tom Phillips signaled, "We are out looking for trouble and no doubt we shall find it.

"We hope to surprise enemy transports tomorrow and expect to meet the Japanese battleship Kongo. I am sure every one will give a good account of himself."

The survivor gave this account of subsequent action:

Toward dusk a Japanese plane spotted the fleet, which consequently changed course during the night.

At 11 a.m. Wednesday action stations were sounded when eight Japanese planes were sighted at about 15,000 feet.

They dropped bombs, one of which pierced the Repulse's plane hangar and exploded in the marines' mess, starting a fire which was fought from then until the ship sank.

Tremendous Barrage.

Both the Repulse and the battleship Prince of Wales opened a tremendous anti-aircraft barrage, shooting down one plane.

Japanese torpedo planes hit the Prince of Wales, stopping one propeller and causing the ship to list. The Repulse dodged the torpedoes, and, in reply to an inquiry from the Prince of Wales, signaled:

"Have avoided 19 torpedoes till now, thanks to Providence."

Then came a second high bombing attack which scored some near hits, and a final swoop by the torpedo planes from all directions.

The Repulse was hit in the bow, then in the stern just as her guns brought down two more Japanese planes.

The big ship was settling quickly, shuddering convulsively. The captain called all hands on deck and told them to abandon ship, concluding, "and may God be with you."

Unable to Launch Boats.

The Repulse started to turn on her beam ends as the men ran down the sloping deck and leaped into the water coated with 4 inches of oil.

Unable to launch boats, the men clung to floats and bits of wreckage or drifted in lifebelts.

Meanwhile, 4 or 5 miles away, the Prince of Wales was belching great clouds of smoke amidships. She was an easy victim then, but took a long time to sink.

Slowly the battleship turned turtle, floated keel upward for a time, then gradually settled beneath the sea, leaving hundreds of heads bobbing in the water.

So great was the crush in one float that two dead men were propped upright in the center. The living, all around them, sang Tipperary.

In another float, a young midshipman, with a hole in his side big enough for a man to put a fist in, sat silently, clenching his teeth.

Some men had the skin scalded from their backs, but made no complaint.

After it was all over, our planes came over and destroyers arrived and took us on board.

Seven Jap Planes Downed Before Men Abandoned Sinking Vessels

DEC 12 1941

By [illegible]

SINGAPORE, Dec. 11 (AP).—More than 2,000 of some 3,000 men who made up the crews of the sunken battleships Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse have been rescued from the China Sea, British authorities announced today.

The full story of what happened still was not available, but crew members of the Repulse said the first Japanese bomb struck the 32-ton Repulse on its airplane catapult deck.

Gunners were knocked down and killed in the blasts on both ships, but others quickly manned their stations and continued to blaze away at the attacking waves of planes despite the ships' mortal wounds, they said.

Seven Planes Downed

At least seven Japanese planes were shot down, the survivors said, before the commanders ordered the men over the sides of the sinking ships.

The men clung to life aboard rafts, floats and lifeboats until the destroyers raced in for the rescue. One crew man said Japanese planes hung overhead during the first part of the rescue work, but did not machine-gun the struggling survivors.

Cecil Brown of the Columbia Broadcasting system, 33-year-old native of New Brighton, Pa., and O'Dowd Gallagher, of the London Daily Express were two rescued from the Repulse, on which they had embarked as correspondents.

British land forces meanwhile consolidated new lines in northern Malaya against a Japanese wedge driven across the Thailand frontier while sea and air units sought vengeance for the destruction of the gigantic leaders of Britain's Far East flotilla.

Both the 32,000-ton Repulse and the 35,000-ton Prince of Wales were the victims of bomb hits, according to the Japanese high command.

(Few British commentators accepted the declaration that aerial bombing alone was responsible, however. DNB, the official German news agency, quoted Tokio's Imperial Naval Command as saying Japanese submarines had engaged the British vessels before the planes attacked. Submarine torpedoes thus may have been rammed home while British gun crew were diverted by the planes.)

ADMIRAL MISSING.

(The BBC, in a broadcast heard by CBS, said the Commander of the Repulse, Capt. W. G. Tennant, was reported among the survivors but there was no word on Admiral Sir Tom Phillips, Commander of the British Eastern Fleet, whose flag was flown by the Prince of Wales.).

Comment of morning newspapers in London on the China Sea action ran the scale from guesses that the Japanese used human torpedo tactics in suicide dives to speculation on the possibility they had developed a super explosive.

2,330 On Repulse, Prince Of Wales Saved

London, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today that approximately 130 officers and 2,200 men had been saved from the Prince of Wales and the Repulse.

DEC 12 1941

The communique said that exact figures were not available because the injured were dispersed among several hospitals.

It gave the full complement of the Prince of Wales as about 110 officers and 1,515 men, and of the Repulse as 60 officers and 1,240 men.

This would mean a loss of 595 officers and men.

U. S. Reporter Tells Of Feeling British Warship Mortally Hit

Cecil Brown Describes Attack By Suicidal Jap Torpedo Planes On Repulse And Prince Of Wales

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 11—Aerial torpedoes fired with suicidal abandon sank the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse, Cecil Brown, CBS correspondent and survivor of the Repulse, reported today in a 2,000-word log he jotted down during the attack.

There was no explosion on either, Brown reported, and this probably accounted for the survival of more than 2,000 or some 3,000 men on the ships sunk off the Malayan coast.

The ships went down without an explosion because of the great effectiveness of the aerial torpedo attacks, Brown said.

Terrific Power Indicated

"It is apparent," Brown cabled CBS along with his diary today, "that the best guns and crews in the world would be unable to stem a torpedo bombing attack if the attackers are sufficiently determined."

High-level bombing attacks were coordinated with torpedoing, Brown said, with about eighty planes in action.

High-level attacks came first on the Repulse, starting a fire; then two torpedoes struck the mortal blows.

The Prince of Wales was wounded first by torpedoes; then finished by high-level bombs.

Eyewitness Account

Brown wrote his eyewitness account as he watched the battle aboard the Republic, with the Prince of Wales half a mile away.

Here is a summary of his story:

Nine Japanese bombers approach the Repulse at 10,000 feet. Anti-aircraft guns scream constantly. One bomb hits the water, another hits the catapult deck, penetrating the ship and exploding below. Fires rage below.

All gun crews remain cool, wisecracking. Jap drops three bombs. Destroyers at varying distances set up full barrages.

"The Prince of Wales seems to be hit. We are twisting and snaking violently to avoid torpedoes. The Japs are coming in low one by one in single waves. They are easy to spot. The guns are deafening.

Jap Plane Falls

"The officer beside me yells, 'Here comes a tin fish!'. A Jap torpedo bomber is heading directly for us, 200 yards high. He's less than 500 yards distant. The torpedo drops, and he banks sharply, and his whole side is exposed to our guns. But instead of gliding away, he's making a graceful dip toward the water. He's hit and bursts into flames.

"Other planes are coming in low in an amazing suicide effort to sink the Repulse. Their daring is astonishing. They come so close you can make out the pilot's outline.

"Another wave of torpedo bombers is approaching. They are being met with everything we've got except our fourteen-inchers. The signal officer flashes, "We eluded all torpedoes this second attack."

Another Goes Down

We've just shot down another torpedo bomber. The Wales seems to be stopped definitely. The Japs are throwing everything recklessly against the two capital ships. There's fire aboard us. It's not out.

"The calm of the crews is amazing. The cool precision of all hands has seemed unreal and unnatural.

"Another torpedo attack. I see a torpedo drop. It's streaking for us. A watcher shouts, "Stand by for torpedo." Someone says: "This one's got us!" It felt like the ship had crashed into a well-rooted dock.

Thrown Across Deck

"It threw me four feet across the deck, but I did not fall, and I did not feel any explosion—just this very great jar.

"Almost immediately, it seemed, we began to list, and less than a minute later there was another jar of the same kind and same force, except that it was almost precisely the same spot on the starboard. That the Repulse was doomed was immediately apparent. The communications systems announced: 'Prepare to abandon ship! May God be with you!' "

Penang Heavily Bombed.

Singapore, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Penang, important port on an island off the west coast of Malaya, was heavily bombed by Japanese planes today, British headquarters announced.

Heavy Japanese air attacks have rendered unserviceable a number of northern Malaya airdromes, but the situation of the British forces in that sector is unchanged, a communique said today. It added that no further Japanese attempts to land at Kuantan, 200 miles above Singapore, had been made since the initial landing yesterday morning and that no further Japanese vessels had been seen in that area.

HONGKONG REPELS TWO NEW ATTACKS

Communique Calls Situation at Colony Stabilized.

DEC 12 1941

Hongkong, Dec. 11 (AP).—The British defenders of this crown colony have beaten off two new attacks and the situation is stabilized, a communique said late yesterday. The communique added that two boatloads of Japanese attempted to cross Tide Cove and land on the east shore.

"Both boats were sunk by machine gun fire and the remnant of the landing party was wiped out on the beach," it said.

A later communique said: "It has been a quiet night and there is nothing to report. Some shelling of Hongkong Island took place, but had only a nuisance value. Damage and casualties are insignificant."

Blackout of Tokio Area Reported Ordered

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The German radio broadcast a dispatch from Tokio today that a blackout of the Japanese capital and the district surrounding it had been ordered by Japanese military authorities.

Germans Are Said To Pilot Many of Japanese Planes

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP) — A large percentage of the Japanese planes attacking the Malayan Peninsula are piloted by Germans, the News Chronicle's Singapore correspondent reported tonight.

"Enemy plane losses from which the pilots were captured or killed establish that a large percentage of the pilots are Germans," the correspondent said.

The main British land forces have not yet engaged the Japanese who have gained a foothold north of Singapore, he added.

AUSTRALIANS BOMB JAPANESE AIR BASE

Planes Based on Netherlands Indies Raid Tobi in Palau Group Off Philippines

DEC 12 1941

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 11 (AP)—A Netherlands Indies Army communiqué declared today that Australian bombers based in these islands raided a Japanese air base on the little islands of Tobi between the Celebes and the Japanese-mandated Palau Islands southeast of the Philippines.

The war bulletin said:

"One aircraft failed to return from these operations. No hostilities have taken place within Netherlands Indies territory during the last twenty-four hours."

A Netherlands Indies naval communiqué said Netherland naval forces had reached the big British base at Singapore.

Batavia had two air alarms during the day, but no enemy planes could be seen over the city and no bombs were dropped, the Netherlands Indies news agency reported. The agency said blackout restrictions were enforced strictly and two of three civilians fired on by police for using flashlights were wounded.

British Bombers Pound At Enemy Footholds Gained In Sweltering Malaya Jungle

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, China, Friday, Dec. 12—Chinese troops attacking all along the Kwantung front to relieve Japanese pressure on Hong Kong have inflicted 15,000 casualties on the Japs in a continuing two-day offensive, the China radio announced today.

(A United Press dispatch from Hong Kong said the Chinese are threatening to cut communication lines of the Japanese thrust against the British crown colony, and that as a result, the situation there is stabilizing.)

Heavy blows were dealt to the Japanese especially on the northern and western anchors of the battle front, the account stated.

The central sector of the front was in the Shiuchow area about 130 miles north of Canton.

Approximately 1,000,000 Japanese soldiers still are in China, and about 400 Japanese planes are based on Hainan Island 200 miles southwest of Canton, the radio said.

But Japanese troops were reported here as withdrawing from Manchuria and Hankow on the Yangtze River, possibly to reinforce operations against the Malay Peninsula and the Philippines.

A Chinese army spokesman said 30 trains bearing about a division had left Manchuria and private foreign sources said Japanese troops and civilians had started to leave Hankow.

Not one of the hundred Japanese airplanes in Hankow were left in this important Japanese-occupied city which was captured in October, 1938, it was reported.

Evacuation would necessitate the withdrawal of all Japanese troops westward up to Ichang.

Some observers said it represented the all-out character of Japan's effort in Malaya and other southern territory.

(Singapore reported yesterday that the Chinese were already attacking about Canton.)

Other sources said Chinese troops would be sent south to the Burma Road.

An appeal to Russia to declare war against Japan was circulated today by the official Central News Agency and published in all Chungking newspapers.

"If she misses this opportunity Russia may rue it later," said the appeal. It expressed the conviction that Japan was using her neutrality pact with Russia in the same way that Germany used the Russian-German non-aggression pact.)

Attack On Jap Rear Slated

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Dec. 10 (Delayed)—An all-out Chinese land offensive against the rear of the Japanese troops attacking Hongkong is expected shortly, Chinese circles said today, but there was no official confirmation that the movement already was under way.

(Singapore reported yesterday that the Chinese already were attacking in the Canton area.)

Burma Road Defense

Chinese leaders also are planning to dispatch Chinese troops south to the Burma road area, it was learned.

General Yang-chieh, former Ambassador to Moscow, and recognized as one of China's foremost strategists, suggested that Chinese staff officers be sent to the United States, Britain and Russia to "work hand in hand with allied forces."

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—The BBC reported tonight that bitter battles still were raging at Hongkong, with British land and naval forces replying effectively to artillery which the Japanese brought up to shell Stonecutter's Island. CBS heard the broadcast.

Sweeping Australian Measures Announced

Steps Are Taken To Draft All Available Man Power Into Armed Forces

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 11 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin announced sweeping emergency measures tonight to draft all available man power into the armed forces and place the entire nation on a war footing.

DEC 12 1941

Single men from 18 to 45 and married men from 18 to 35 will be required to register under the new draft laws. Veterans of the last war were being mobilized for guard and coast defense duties. The Cabinet laid plans for drastic gasoline rationing and checked fuel, coal and clothing stocks and air-raid precautions.

Women rushed to answer a call for volunteers for the auxiliary services.

AUSTRALIA MOVES TO ENLARGE ARMY

DEC 12 1941

Plans Enormous Increase of Men in All Services.

Melbourne, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—An enormous increase in the number of men to be put under arms in Australia and a curtailment of the list of reserve occupations were provided in emergency measures announced tonight by Prime Minister John Curtin to meet the grave situation in the Pacific.

Newly affected under the new orders are all single men and childless widowers between the ages of 35 and 45 years, and married men and widowers, with children, between the ages of 18 and 35 years. They will be called on to register for service to enlist when required.

Members of the Volunteer Defense Corps, largely veterans of the first world war, were being mobilized for guard and coastal duties.

Other measures under what Mr. Curtin called "the first instalment of a complete revision of the whole of the Australian economic and domestic life," included: Prohibition of flood lighting in sports arenas, halting of dog racing for the duration, gasoline rationing and delegation of powers to States to blackout or evacuate any area.

John Curtin told his compatriots today that the Australian Government is preparing a series of decrees to place the entire nation on a war footing.

The time for appeals to the people for support has passed, Curtin said, and henceforth they must accept the Government's decisions immediately and without argument as to their wisdom.

Defense Of Seaboard

The Prime Minister emphasized that Australians would be called upon to do more, man for man, than the British, because of the vast seaboard to be defended.

The Cabinet was reported checking oil, fuel, coal and clothing stocks, air-raid precautions, war factories for inland areas and woman and man power.

Women rushed to join police and other auxiliaries.

Internal transport will be reorganized to curtail gasoline, the output and consumption of non-essential goods will be restricted and trading hours reduced.

Japanese Steamer Goes Through War Zone

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The German radio quoted a dispatch from Tokio today that the Japanese steamer Fuji Maru had passed through the war zone without incident and arrived today at Kobe with 1,609 Japanese subjects taken from the Netherlands Indies just before the outbreak of hostilities.

Action Was Expected.

London, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—A British spokesman said today that the German and Italian declarations of war upon the United States were "what we have been expecting since the Japanese attack."

Hugh Dalton, the Minister of Economic Warfare, said that the Japanese war would be "far from a walk-over" and estimated that Japan has sufficient oil to fight a major war for fourteen months.

EXPECTS U. S. TO REPAY JAPS

London, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Minister of Information Brendan Bracken addressed the American Chamber of Commerce today as fellow belligerents and declared that the United States would repay with compound interest Japan's blows in the Pacific.

"Let there be no mistake about it," he added. "The Japanese have gained great naval successes. But there is a great difference between striking power and staying power."

Censors Pass First Story Of Attack Upon Hawaii

DEC 12 1941

By EUGENE BURNS

Honolulu, Dec. 11 (AP)—Fifty to 100 enemy warplanes knifed at Hickam Field, Army air base, the Pearl Harbor naval base and the Kaneohe naval air base in six separate raids on Oahu Island Sunday.

Censorship was lifted partially today, permitting disclosure of more details of the Japanese surprise attack.

The first raiders flew over at 7:55 a. m. Sunday and were followed by other waves at 11:20 a. m., 11:59 a. m., 12:22 p. m., 7:15 p. m. and 9:10 p. m.

Forty-nine civilians were killed and more than 100 injured.

(In Washington the White House has announced that with Navy and Army casualties the total probably would be around 3,000, about equally divided between killed and wounded).

Martial law was declared.

Police handled the civilian situation beautifully, with only a small amount of subversive activities in evidence.

Military Gov. Walter C. Short suspended habeas corpus proceedings.

DEC 12 1941

Blackouts were instituted for an indefinite period with heavy penalties for violation.

The Japanese consul was taken into custody while he was burning records.

Dangerous areas were evacuated and schools ordered closed indefinitely.

Breaks in gas mains caused by the bombing were sealed and fires started in gasoline tanks were put out by heroic efforts.

Small craft were ordered detained in Kewalo Basin and all ships were warned they would be fired upon if they approached Oahu Island without permission.

Fires were soon under control.

Saloons were closed indefinitely.

Food selling continued but sales were confined to normal quantities and gasoline sales were limited to a one half a tankful at a time.

Restaurants remained open throughout the emergency, but any elaboration is not permitted by the censorship.

Military Courts are now functioning, with most of the cases representing blackouts violations. As a result authorities announced a "light-on penalty of $5,000 or five years at hard labor.

Civilians have responded excellently with thousands volunteering for police work, patrol work, blood donations, and guard duty.

Military officials forbade Japanese to possess firearms, short wave radio receiving sets, wireless transmitting sets, and cameras.

Lucas in Fiery Reply Says President Will Punish Any Neglect; Refutes Charges

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox arrived at Honolulu this afternoon.

This was announced early tonight by the Navy Department which gave no other details. It had been known only that Knox was absent from Washington.

While all official information was lacking, the purpose of the secretary's trip apparently was to make a personal investigation of the smashing Japanese surprise raid on the naval base and other defense installations at Honolulu Sunday.

Knox was the first cabinet officer to enter the war zone.

A few hours after the department's announcement of his arrival in Hawaii, new details on the Pearl Harbor attack last Sunday were received in the United States, indicating that he may have ordered a partial lifting of the censorship there.

Admirals at Hawaii Say U.S. Will Hit Back 'Harder'

Kimmel and Bloch Praise Valor During Sunday Attack

HONOLULU, Dec. 11 (AP).—"We Americans can receive hard blows but can deliver harder ones," Admiral Husband Kimmel, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, and Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commandant of the 14th Naval District, said in a joint statement today.

"In these days when we face the task that lies ahead with calm determination and unflinching resolve it is truly great to be an American.

"Victory for us is assured.

"Never have we been so proud as when we saw Sunday's magnificant response to the call of duty by civilian employees of the government and contractor firms—whom we call ununiformed fighters—and officers and men of the Navy, Marine Corps and Army.

"Instances of valor were so great in number that they are too many to enumerate. The same sort of selfless courage was displayed then that will win this war."

(Large numbers of civilian employees re engaged on projects at Pearl Harbor naval base and at other Oahu Island Navay and Army facilities subjected to vicious attack Sunday by Japanese warplanes.)

HAWAII THRUST LAID TO PATROL

DEC 12 1941

Army Men Say Japs May Have Trailed U. S. Planes.

Washington, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—A theory that the clock-work regularity of the army's dawn patrol may have contributed unwittingly to the surprise of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor was advanced today by military men familiar with the Pacific outpost.

One officer recalled that while he was stationed in Hawaii, a squadron of army patrol planes would roar over his house at the same time every morning and return at the same time after sweeping a certain distance out to sea.

"You could set your watch by those flights," he recalled.

That regularity, he explained, may have been capitalized on by the Japanese when they made their daring aerial swoop on the great naval base.

"It is possible," he said, "that the Japanese sent some of their Naval Intelligence officers into Hawaii where they got jobs on the sugar plantations from which they could watch and time the dawn patrols every day.

Would Help Carriers.

"That would enable them—or any other expert observer, for that matter—to estimate pretty accurately how far the patrols extended over the sea, and with that information they could determine how close to the islands their aircraft carriers could approach to launch their attack planes without danger of being observed by the army patrols."

Those patrols were sent out from several different fields, he recalled, but they all presumably went about the same distance to sea.

If the Japanese carriers, he said, were able to evade the navy's outer patrol cordon of surface ships and aircraft—which appears to have been the case—they could then time the last lap of their dash with considerable accuracy.

The fact that the raids on Pearl Harbor and nearby Hickam Field began at 7:55 A. M., Honolulu time, might even indicate that the enemy flyers virtually followed the army's dawn patrols back to their bases.

Clouds Cloak Mountains.

Another well-informed source suggested that the raiders probably swept in from the sea at great height to make their detection difficult and then dropped swiftly into the cloudbanks which almost always cloak the mountains surrounding Pearl Harbor. When they emerged from this cloud screen they would be in a position to dive swiftly on their target. The dive probably would not take more than a few seconds, one authority said.

The question of what actually happened at Pearl Harbor still monopolized conversation among members of Congress, but the legislators resigned themselves to wait until the information was no longer valuable to the enemy and could be released.

Some of those familiar with the navy cautioned against too much pessimism and cited President Roosevelt's rejection of the "fantastic" Tokio claims that Japan had wrested Pacific naval supremacy from the United States. Too little time had elapsed, they asserted, for the main body of the fleet to get in action with any sizeable Japanese force.

"We may get some good news on that score any day now," one member said, "but, on the other hand, it may take weeks or months before the main body of the fleet will be able to get a crack at the Japanese fleet."

Mid-Pacific Coral Isle--- That's Wake

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 11—Three tiny islands of coral surrounding an almost land-locked lagoon—an ideal landing place for seaplanes—constitute Wake Island, scene of battles between Japanese forces and defending United States Marines.

Strategically, Wake's importance is primarily as a mid-ocean base for air forces. The islands have been described by naval experts as "just the same as a home fire extinguisher, possibly never needed, but mighty important in an emergency."

Wake Island proper is largest of the trio. Roughly two miles square, it is only about fifteen feet above the water line and was used almost solely as a stopping point on transpacific plane routes until Congress appropriated funds for a navy air base there a year ago.

Third Stop West

To passengers on clipper planes it is the third stop on the westward flight, coming after Honolulu and Midway Islands. It is 2,000 miles from Honolulu, 2,700 from Manila, in the Philippines. Guam, another midocean seaplane base, is 1,300 miles away while San Francisco is 3,800 eastward.

From the air, Wake resembles a green jewel in a setting of blue because of deeply contrasting green waters of the Lagoon, the blue of the ocean and a sharp white line of waves breaking over a circular reef.

Vegetation on the islands is sparse—principally shrubs that resemble the sagebrush of Western plains.

Inhabitants now include pricipally the construction crews and personnel at the naval seaplane base, the marines defending the island against Japan and thousands of ocean birds which use Wake as a nesting place. The islands were taken over by the United States in 1899.

Canal Shipping Limited To Daylight

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, Dec. 11. Shipping operations through the Panama Canal were restricted by United States Army orders today to daylight hours—6 A. M. to 6 P. M.—as a war precaution.

Blackouts were the rule at night throughout the Canal Zone—the fortified ten-mile wide strip of land through which the canal has borne freight, passenger and naval vessels since 1914.

The republic of Panama, which ceded the zone to the United States in 1903, today completed her formal declaration of war against Japan and joined in blackout precautions. More than 1,000 Axis nationals, both European and Japanese, were detained by Panama police for transfer to the Canal Zone quarantine station.

Pan American Airways announced suspension of all service between Balboa and Cristobal.

Japs In Cuba Rounded Up

Cuba's Cabinet backed a declaration of war with Japan with orders for immediate reorganization of the armed forces "to prepare them for immediate activities that the state of war demands."

Japanese nationals were ordered to register with police, and were forbidden use of the mails. Those living near the coast were given ten days to move inland.

Colombia, adjoining Panama, on the South American mainland, let it be known that if Germany or Italy declared war, a severance of Bogota's diplomatic relations with them could be expected. She broke relations with Japan on Monday.

Lazaro Cardenas, former President of Mexico, was appointed commander-in-chief of all Mexican land, naval and aerial forces assigned to Pacific defenses by President Manuel Avila Camacho.

U. S. Cuts Off Gasoline From Italian Airline

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Standard Oil Company, under instructions of the United States embassy, today stopped supplying gasoline to Lati, the Italian trans-Atlantic air line.

It was believed this would compel Lati to suspend its service as soon as its present small stock is exhausted.

U. S. Marine Garrison Disarmed by Japs

By the Associated Press.

DEC 12 1941

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—United States Marine garrison at Peiping was disarmed today by Japanese troops, the German radio said.

There were no incidents and the Americans were told to remain in their barracks until further orders. The garrison, about 70 men, was under orders to leave China when the war broke.

NAZIS SHIFT CHIEF ON MOSCOW FRONT

General List Replaces Von Bock as Russians Retake 30 More Towns in Advance

KUIBYSHEV, U. S. S. R., Dec. 11 (AP)—Field Marshal Siegmund Wilhelm List has replaced General Fedor von Bock as commander-in-chief of the German armies on the Moscow front where the Germans have been trying for more than two months to advance against the Soviet capital, it was announced today.

Although it was not known whether Von Bock was killed or recalled, the change was regarded as a result of the unsuccessful German offensive, and continuing Russian counter-drives said to be pressing the Nazis steadily westward.

Military dispatches said Red army tank units cleared the Germans from the Tula-Serpukhov-Moscow highway by smashing Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian's fourth Nazi tank division. Tula is 110 miles south of Moscow.

The Germans were reported being pursued southwestward, and abandoning settlement after settlement to the Russians.

Thirty more villages near Yelets in the Orel sector 200 miles south of Moscow also were retaken, the Russians said.

The new German commander before Moscow, Field Marshal List, led the successful Nazi push into the Balkans last spring.

The newspaper Izvestia jubilantly proclaimed Russian successes and said "The Soviet army must not only liberated cities and villages, but must exterminate the invaders."

But the Government and press were silent on the United States-Japanese war. Newspapers continued to print objective accounts of the fighting.

Finnish Ski Troops Push Foe Back

HELSINKI, Dec. 11 (AP) — Finnish ski troops, unchecked by severe cold, are pushing Russian forces back through the snow-plied forests of Eastern Karelia between Lake Onega and the White Sea, a Finnish communique said today.

Several Soviet detachments, some of them composed of several hundred troops, were reported wiped out northeast of Povenets, north of Lake Onega.

Von Bock Replaced in Russia

London Hears Nazi Field Marshal List Now Commands in Moscow Sector

DEC 12 1941

London, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Siegmund Wilhelm List, who commanded Germany's Balkan conquests, has replaced Gen. Fedor von Bock as the German Commander in Chief on the Moscow front, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Kuibyshev said today.

Exchange Telegraph also reported that the Russians have cleared the Germans from the road linking Moscow and Tula, 100 miles south, and have routed the Fourth Tank Division of Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian's armored command.

Nazis in Retreat.

Moscow, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The destruction of two German infantry divisions in fighting which resulted in the Russian recapture of Olets and the continued retreat of German soldiers in southern Russia were announced today by the Moscow radio. The Russians said that the Germans lost 12,000 killed and wounded on the Olets battlefield, in the Orel sector, 200 miles south of Moscow.

The soldiers of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist in the south were reported officially to be retreating and under the constant attacks of guerrilla detachments.

Pravda, Communist party organ, said that "pursuit of the enemy continues. Roads are littered with enemy dead."

The Russians declared that a guards unit operating in the Stalinogorsk direction of the front dislodged the Germans from six populated centers. A Pravda dispatch broadcast by the Moscow radio said that Russian soldiers who dislodged the Germans from Tikhvin, 110 miles east of Leningrad, were "successfully pursuing the Germans, who are retreating in disorder, and have occupied fifteen villages."

Olets Sector Operations.

An announcement, issued yesterday by the Tass agency, said:

"Early in December important engagements broke out in the area of the town of Olets. The Germans concentrated considerable forces there and pushed back our troops and captured the town.

"Red Army troops of the southwestern front launched counter-attacks and in the course of four days waged fierce fighting for the town. On December 9 our troops, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Kostenko, routed the German Fascist troops and occupied Olets.

"In the fighting in the Olets area, two enemy infantry divisions have been completely smashed—the Forty-fifth Division, commanded by Gen. Materner, and the Ninety-fifth Division, commanded by Gen. Siekst von Armin. The enemy lost on the battlefield 12,000 killed and wounded.

"Our troops captured rich trophies—according to preliminary figures about ninety guns of various calibers, more than 150 minethrowers, about 200 machine guns, about 200 trucks, more than 100 motorcycles, a large quantity of ammunition and other military equipment. Gathering and counting of trophies is in progress."

Axis Forces Are Retreating Northwest of Old Tobruk-El Adem Desert Battlefiield

CAIRO, Dec. 11 (AP)—Steady, day-long pressure by main British and African mobile columns in pushing the retreating Axis desert forces progressively northwest of the former Tobruk-El Adem battlefield in the Cirenaican desert, the British announced today.

Some enemy units which took refuge behind defenses west of El Adem and south of Tobruk were attacked; British armored units also drove off a number of German tanks which tried to break up operations west of El Adem by Indian and English forces.

These appeared to be Axis rear-guard actions.

A communique also said that Poles of the Tobruk garrison, now joined firmly with the main British forces in the vast desert battle-ground, had stormed and taken two posts in the western Tobruk defenses to which some Axis units still are clinging.

A communique reported discovery of a total of 37 abandoned German tanks.

(In London, a British military source said he believed the main movement of British forces northwest from El Adem might be the start of a big new battle of encirclement.)

British Pursue Enemy In Libya

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 11—British mobile columns are making successful attacks on Axis forces retreating westward from the El Adem area, British general headquarters announced today.

"Throughout the day our mobile forces continued successfully to attack the enemy," the communique said, adding that details have not yet been received.

British troops were reported to have driven back a number of German tanks which attempted to hold off the attacks in the El Adem area, fifteen miles south of Tobruk. Two posts on the western defenses of Tobruk itself were captured from Axis troops, the communique said.

Enemy Is 'Definitely Retreating,' London Source Reports

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A British military source said today the British Army in Libya was beginning a big new encirclement effort against Axis forces west of Tobruk.

Polish troops on the Western Tobruk defenses were keeping up frontal pressure while British units were moving steadily northwestward, either to envelop the Germans and Italians or to compel them to speed their retreat, the spokesman said.

"The enemy is fighting a very skillful rear guard action, but he is definitely retreating," the source said.

The British said patrols operating along the coast of Libya between Tobruk and the frontier destroyed 38 tanks in workshops in addition to 27 reported captured yesterday.

British Cruiser Hit, Rome Says

DEC 12 1941

Rome, Dec. 11 (Official Radio Received by AP)—Italians said today that a British cruiser among the units bombarding Derna, Libya, yesterday was hit in an attack by Axis torpedo-carrying planes.

A communique broadcast by the Rome radio made no further mention of damage to the ship, but said the hospital at Derna was hit by the shelling from the ships and that several staff members were injured.

Sergeant There Seven Months Says Fleas Were in Pay of Enemy and Foes Along With Stukas.

This story was written for the Associated Press by a British sergeant, Alfred P. Perry, who spent seven months in Tobruk with an anti-aircraft force before the Libyan port was relieved this week. Sergt. Perry is a former journalist who worked on several American newspapers in 1929, when he visited this country on a Walter Hines Page fellowship.

By ALFRED P. PERRY

With British Forces in Cirenaica, Dec. 11.—Tobruk relieved! It doesn't seem possible.

Seven months of bombs and boredom, dust and fleas, rumors of relief and regular disappointment, almost made us believe we were destined to grow wrinkled and gray-haired in this desolate semi-circle of desert beside the blue Mediterranean.

And, now that it's over, some of us feel a kind of twisted affection for the place we've cursed so often. We have so many memories bound up with it.

Some of the memories are pretty grim. . . .

That blazing afternoon at the end of April when the stukas first swooped on us. We sight the squadron far out at sea. Slowly they swing in and I take a height on them. The G. P. O. orders fire, comes the rattle and clang from the guns as long shells are rammed home, and then the air is torn with the crash of the salvo.

Caught by Trick.

A pause which seems like an age; then four little puffs of smoke blossom around the leading stuka. Again the guns crash out and the plane staggers and plunges sideways. Nice shooting!

Now for the next one. A sudden yell, "Plane!" cuts through the din and even as the lookout shouts his warning a woosh of falling bombs tells us what has happened—a second squadron of stukas has come in behind and is diving on us out of that blinding sun. Those of us not already on the ground are hurled flat.

We are blinded, suffocated, the breath knocked out of our bodies as the earth heaves beneath us. We claw at the ground and pray. Nothing can live in such an inferno. It is going on forever. . . .

Suddenly everything is still and, as the clouds of dust and smoke drift away we pick ourselves up, scarcely believing we are still alive. All around us are.

Wounded Look After.

And then that hospital in Tobruk town where those wounded who could move rolled beneather their beds twenty times a day while the building shook to the crash of bombs. Those who couldn't move lay in their beds and prayed.

Almost worse than the bombs as a tribulation to flesh and spirit were the desert fleas. Ours were obviously in the pay of the enemy. How we cursed them on the nights when the moon was late in rising and we hoped to snatch a couple of hours of sleep before the inevitable procession of the night bombers started.

Twenty-one alarms in one night was our record.

No wonder we looked forward to our periodic day off by the sea. Even though we had to keep an eye open for stukas and be ready to dive into caves for shelter, it was Heaven to wash ourselves and our sweaty clothes in clear sea water and lie on the sand and dream of home, beer and beauty.

And then we had quiet days when the wind howled and dust-devils swept over the desert so that one could not venture out without goggles.

But mostly our grouse was plain boredom, week after week, month after month, the same eternal desert, the same discomforts, the same raids. Even danger itself became tedious after a while.

Well, it's over now.

ARRESTED IN INDIA

Bose's Brother Accused of Contact With Japan.

New Delhi, India, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Sarat Chandra Bose was arrested in Calcutta today under the defense regulations and a communique said he had been in contact with the Japanese. His brother, the Nationalist leader, Subhas Chandra Bose, is believed to be in Rome or Berlin plotting an Indian uprising against the British.

CANADA EXPECTS TO KEEP AMERICANS

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Canadian officials said today that United States volunteers in Canada's fighting forces are expected to remain where they are rather than return to the United States for service.

They said that nearly 10,000 men from "south of the border" are serving in the Canadian Army, and that 10 per cent of the air crews trained and in training for the Royal Canadian Air Force are from the States.

CANADA HOPES TO SIMPLIFY ITS PRICE PROGRAM

Licensing Policy Reviewed, Some Regulations Dropped

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 11 (Canadian Press)—Canadian dealers in all commodities are being granted licenses by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and a detailed explanation of this general licensing system will be issued soon, the board announced today.

DEC 12 1941

Many Must Get Licensing

Donald Gordon, chairman, said the board might find it had sufficient control of all branches of industry to enable it to discontinue the specific form of licensing which was adopted before the price ceiling policy was decided upon.

No definite decision had been made and the general licensing ruling was made because the board wished to have further time to study the facts.

Until further notice, sellers of foods, feeds, clothing and footwear who are licensed under an order of Oct. 2 are no longer required to enter on sales slips the buyer's license number and are also relieved from any obligation to see that buyers are licensed.

The Oct. 2 order provided that all dealers in these commodities should be licensed.

Today's order said that warehouse and cold storage plant operators are also relieved from recording license numbers.

Seek Simplification

The board statement said the licensing policy had been reviewed to see if simplification could be obtained.

The board emphasized that it was not abandoning licensing in principle but was seeking a simpler method of enforcement in order to relieve business of the extra work involved in original regulations, particularly that of recording license numbers on sales slips.

The temporary suspension of part of the licensing regulations does not affect special licensing requirements issued by any particular administrator or controller or by any other federal or provincial government official. For instance, the licensing requirements of the coal administrator and the hides and leather administrator remain operative, the board said.

Pending final decision on the licensing policy, regional licensing officers will continue to carry on their present duties.

WILL STAY AT VATICAN

Taylor's Secretary May Use Pope's Summer Garden.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Harold H. Tittman Jr., diplomatic secretary to Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican, is expected to take quarters in the summer cottage of Pope Pius in the Vatican gardens, now that Italy and the United States are at war, Andi, Argentine news agency, reported from Rome today.

The agency said it was understood that other Americans who would retire to the Vatican for the duration of the war were the Rev. Walter Carrol, English language expert to the papal secretary of state; Cardinal Maglione and Mgr. Francis Brennan of Shenandoah, Pa., one of the judges of the ecclesiastical tribunal, the Rota.

Continued Economic Relations With U. S. Is Canada's Hope

DEC 12 1941

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (AP)—The continuance of the close economic and financial relations between Canada and the United States, with the spread of war, is looked for by Canadian officials.

Informed circles said tonight they did not look for any adjustment between the currencies of the two countries. The present premium of approximately 10 per cent. at which the United States dollar is maintained in relation to the Canadian dollar is likely to continue.

Both countries are certain to face increasingly serious problems of scarcity of certain materials, either due to restriction of imports from the Far East or to increased war production.

The hope here is, that with the machinery already set up for economic collaboration, Canada and the United States will work out arrangements to share alike the handicaps of shortages.

Thus if the available supply of an essential commodity which Canada imports from the United States is cut by 50 per cent., it is hoped the United States will not cut off exports to Canada, but merely reduce them by 50 per cent.

Responsibility for working out details of collaboration in connection with particular commodities and articles falls on the joint economic committees which now function with representatives of key departments of both governments.

United States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The War Department today issued the following communiqué:

Philippine Theatre—The commanding general, Far Eastern Command, confirms the sinking of a 29,000-ton Japanese battleship yesterday by the American Army Air Forces, north of Luzon. This battleship is believed to be the 29,000-ton Haruna, or a vessel of the Haruna class.

Continued attempts by strong Japanese forces to established themselves along the northern coast of Luzon were reported. Determined resistance has confined this action to the attack in the vicinity of Aparri, at the extreme northern tip of Luzon, where the Japanese attempted to establish a beach head yesterday. Air activity continued in the vicinity of Manila, with intermittent attacks on airfields at Cavite and Nichols Field throughout the day.

An afternoon communiqué said:

Our scouting planes took to the air during a noon air raid and were reported to have kept a formation of Japanese bombers away from Manila. The enemy aircraft were reported to have been turned back and were last seen heading in a westerly direction.

There were no further developments in the situation in Northern Luzon. Enemy detachments who landed on the Lingayen coast are being disposed of and mopping up operations are in progress.

Another War Department communiqué, issued tonight, said:

Philippine Theatre — Japanese bombardment planes subjected military and naval installations to occasional bombing throughout the day. In the absence of further specific information there is reason to believe that the defense of the Island of Luzon against attempted landing operations in the north and northwest is continuing successfully.

There is no change in the military situation in other areas.

The Navy issued this communique:

The Marine garrison on Wake Island has been subject to four separate attacks in the last forty-eight hours by enemy aircraft and one by light naval units.

Despite the loss of part of the defending planes and the damage to material and personnel, the defending garrison succeeded in sinking one light cruiser and one destroyer of the enemy forces by air action.

A resumption of the attack and a probable landing attempt is expected. The Marine garrison is continuing to resist. The above report is based on information received up until noon, Dec. 11.

Another Navy communiqué, issued tonight, said:

The Navy Department announced that Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. Navy Commander in Chief, United States Asiatic Fleet, has reported that Navy patrol planes scored bomb hits on a Japanese battleship of the Kongo class off the coast of Luzon. The ship was badly damaged. This is the second Japanese battleship to be bombed effectively by United States forces.

MANILA, Friday, Dec. 12 (AP)—A United States Army communiqué, issued shortly before 8 A. M. today [7 P. M. Thursday, E. S. T.] said:

The enemy has improved his strength in Northern Luzon. However the situation remains unchanged materially. A small force is reported to have pushed ashore at Legaspi, but hitherto the report has not been confirmed and further details are lacking.

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 11 (AP)—A British Headquarters communiqué today said:

As announced yesterday evening H. M. S. Prince of Wales and H. M. S. Repulse were lost by enemy action yesterday morning.

Over 2,000 survivors have reached Singapore.

At least seven enemy aircraft are known to have been destroyed during the attack.

There appears to be no change in the enemy's plans, and the situation of our forces in the north [of Malaya] remains the same.

Heavy scale air attacks on northern airdromes have rendered a number of them temporarily unserviceable.

There are no reports of further attempts to land in the Kuantan area, nor were any enemy ships seen in that direction by air reconnaissance during yesterday.

With the attack on the Philippine Islands reported from the General Headquarters of United States forces in Manila yesterday afternoon, it seems clear that the Japanese are dividing their main effort between Manila and Northern Luzon.

Apart from this Japanese mobile air and sea forces are probably still engaged in raiding operations in wide spaces of the Pacific.

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 11 (Australian Associated Press)—A communiqué issued by the Royal Australian Air Force said:

Nothing of importance to report. Seaward reconnaissances have been carried out daily. One of our aircraft failed to return.

HONG KONG, Dec. 11 (AP)—A communiqué issued here today said:

It has been a quiet night and there is nothing to report. Some shelling of Hong Kong Island took place, but had only a nuisance value. Damage and casualties are insignificant.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Admiralty issued the following communiqué today:

Reports have now been received from Singapore that approximately 130 officers and 2,200 ratings have been saved from H. M. S. Prince of Wales and H. M. S. Repulse.

The exact figures are not yet available owing to the fact that the injured have been dispersed among several hospitals.

The full complements were approximately: Prince of Wales, 110 officers, 1,515 ratings; Repulse, 60 officers, 1,240 ratings. Next of kin of both casualties and survivors will be informed as soon as names are available.

An Air Ministry communiqué said today:

A tanker in the mouth of the River Ems and a railway junction near Wilhelmshaven were effectively bombed during daylight attacks on Northwest Germany yesterday by aircraft of the Bomber Command. Two airdromes in Holland were also bombed.

A Hudson aircraft of the Coastal Command yesterday bombed and hit an enemy supply ship off the Norwegian coast.

None of our aircraft is missing from these operations.

An Air Ministry communiqué said tonight:

Aircraft of the Bomber Command again operated in daylight today. Targets attacked included a dock near Emden and an airdrome in Holland.

No aircraft are missing from these operations.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP)—British Headquarters issued the following communiqué today:

Throughout the day our mobile forces continued successfully to attack the enemy, whose general trend of movement is northwest and west from El Adem.

A number of engagements took place, but owing to the wide area covered and the difficulties of communications, detailed reports have not yet been received.

Enemy troops and transport sheltering behind the defenses immediately west of El Adem were attacked by British armored units, while further to the west British and South African mobile columns pressed the enemy back all day in a northwesterly direction.

Small pockets of enemy infantry and armored cars left in the area north of Bir Hacheim are being dealt with.

In the late afternoon our armored forces attacked and drove off a number of German tanks which were endeavoring to interfere with operations being carried out west of El Adem by Sikhs, Punjabi and the Royal Sussex Regiment.

Some miles southwest of Acroma British armored units shelled a concentration of enemy motor transport, burning some and damaging others.

At Tobruk itself Polish units maintaining pressure on the enemy captured two posts on the western defenses.

Enemy air action against Tobruk yesterday was on a somewhat increased scale, but ineffective.

Further east South African troops continued to clear up the area north of righ, Capuzzo and where a few enemy stragglers were still being captured.

New Zealanders also were engaged in mopping up operations in the area immediately east of Tobruk.

In addition to twenty-seven abandoned tanks which were found between Bardia and Tobruk the day before yesterday, a further ten German tanks have now been discovered.

In the frontier area our artillery was persistently harassing enemy detachments isolated in various defended localities.

Supporting the ground forces, our Air Forces carried out continual sweeps over the whole area of operations.

Enemy concentrations and motor transport were attacked and near Acroma in particular a number were damaged and set on fire.

Ground troops shot down one German ME110.

The R. A. F. Middle East Command issued this communiqué today:

R. A. F. bomber aircraft raided objectives at Tripoli and landing grounds at Derna and El Gazala during the night of Dec. 9-10.

At Tripoli considerable damage was caused to Admiralty buildings. Many explosions occurred. A number of fires which broke out developed into a blaze which could be seen many miles from the target.

Our aircraft also machine-gunned motor transport vehicles and bombed storage buildings at Derna and El Gazala. Results of the raids could not be observed owing to unfavorable weather conditions and poor visibility.

Yesterday bad weather seriously hampered operations in Libya but in the course of fighter patrols a number of enemy aircraft were damaged.

From these and other operations three of our aircraft are missing but two of the pilots are safe.

DEC 12 1941

Netherland

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Netherlands Indies Naval Command issued this communiqué by radio today:

Mining of appropriate seaways, which was begun before the war started, has now been completed.

All Netherlands merchant ships which were in the present war zones in the Far East have arrived safely in our territory.

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (Delayed) (Distributed by The Associated Press)—A Soviet Information Bureau announcement, issued by Tass, said today:

Early in December important engagements broke out in the area of the town of Olets.

The Germans concentrated considerable forces there and pushed back our troops and captured the town.

Red Army troops of the Southwestern Front launched counter-attacks and in the course of four days waged fierce fighting for the town. On Dec. 9 our troops, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Kostenko, routed the German Fascist troops and occupied Olets.

In the fighting in the Olets area two enemy infantry divisions have been completely smashed—the Forty-fifth Division commanded by General Materner and the Ninety-fifth Division commanded by General Siekst von Armin.

The enemy lost on the battlefield 12,000 killed and wounded.

Our troops captured rich trophies—according to preliminary figures about ninety guns of various calibers, more than 150 mine-throwers, about 200 machine-guns, about 200 trucks, more than 100 motorcycles, a large quantity of ammunition and other military equipment. Gathering and counting of trophies is in progress.

Col. Gen. Paul Ludwig von Kleist's German units are retreating on the Southern Front, constantly attacked by guerrilla detachments.

A guards unit operating in the Stalinogorsk direction of the front dislodged the Germans from six populated centers. In fighting with the enemy the unit annihilated more than 100 Nazi officers and soldiers.

MOSCOW, Friday, Dec. 12 (Distributed by The Associated Press)

—The Moscow radio broadcast the following communiqué early today:

During Dec. 11 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

On a number of sectors of the Western and Southwestern Fronts our troops, waging violent battles against the enemy, have occupied a number of populated points.

Six German planes were destroyed on Dec. 10. We lost two planes.

On Dec. 10 our aviation destroyed twenty German tanks, 420 trucks with troops and supplies, forty field guns and anti-tank guns, 140 armored ammunition carts, and annihilated or dispersed about one regiment of enemy infantry.

Units operating in one of the sectors of the Kalinin front broke through enemy defenses and recaptured several villages.

A special communiqué today said:

According to preliminary incomplete figures our troops captured at Tikhvin forty-two guns, thirty-six mine-throwers, 190 machine guns, twenty-seven tanks, ten armored cars, 102 trucks, 110 automatic rifles, 2,700 rifles, 28,000 shells, 17,500 mines, 30,000 hand grenades, 210 rifle cartridges and a large quantity of other war material.

Yugoslav

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 11 (Reuter)—A royal Yugoslav command communiqué, issued tonight said:

The Yugoslav Army in the field under General Mihailovitch continues to hold its positions in the face of the enemy offensive. Axis troops, despite continued pressure on our forces, failed to force a withdrawal.

General Mihailovitch and all ranks underh is command sent greetings to King Peter on the Day of National Unity and wishes for the speedy resurrection of Yugoslavia.

DEC 12 1941

Japanese

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The following is the Navy section of the Japanese Imperial Headquarters communiqué issued today in Tokyo and heard here by Reuter:

In an intensive massed assault on Manila Bay Japanese naval aircraft yesterday shot down more than forty-five United States planes and destroyed thirty-six others on the ground in addition to sinking one destroyer and one submarine and heavily damaging a transport.

During the attack on the Cavite naval base Japanese planes exploded the arsenal, causing widespread fires. Other units roared down on Nichols Field, heavily damaging the field, hangars and other facilities.

Three Japanese plane are missing while two others drove headlong into enemy positions.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (From a German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press)—The German High Command issued this communiqué today:

In the East heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in repulsing local counter-attacks. Aviation aided army attacks with success against columns and concentrations of armored cars, fortified positions and rear communications lines.

In North Africa there were no engagements of consequence. German war planes dispersed some concentrations of armored cars and trucks. Off the North African coast a British cruiser and torpedo boat were attacked and gravely damaged by German and Italian planes.

Finnish

VICHY, France (Reuter)—A Finnish war communiqué issued today, according to a Helsinki telegram, said:

During the occupation of the villages of Karkumaski and Poventsa, Finnish troops annihilated nearly three enemy divisions. Only the remnants of the Seventh, Seventy-first and 313th Soviet Divisions succeeded in escaping destruction by flight. The pursuit of enemy units which are hiding in the woods is continuing.

The losses of the Finnish Army during these operations were very small.

DEC 12 1941

Italian

ROME, Dec. 11 (From an Italian broadcast recorded by The Associated Press)—The Italian High Command issued this communiqué today:

Yesterday enemy pressure on our strongholds on the Solum front continued.

To the south and southwest of Tobruk local fighting took place, in the course of which the Thirtieth Division destroyed thirty-five enemy tanks and many other motorized vehicles.

An Italian and German dive-bomber formation attacked installations of the fortress of Tobruk and enemy troop and motorized concentrations in the region of the stronghold.

In aerial combats five enemy planes were brought down by German fighters.

An enemy attack on Tripoli yesterday afternoon caused several fires. There were no casualties.

Enemy naval units yesterday bombarded Derna, causing damage to the hospital. There were several injured among the staff.

An enemy cruiser of medium tonnage taking part in the action was hit by one of our torpedo-carrying planes.

An enemy plane last night dropped bombs on the Port of Catania [Sicily.] No damage was caused. One person was injured.

The naval base of Valletta, Malta, was bombed by units of the Air Force last night.

U. S. MAY REGISTER ALL AGED 18 TO 65

DEC 12 1941

Plan For Men and Women Now Is Being Studied, Hershey Asserts

Fresh Legislation Required For "No. 1 Project," He Declares

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 11—Registration of all men and women from 18 to 65 years of age may be asked by the Government in an all-out mobilization of the nation's human resources for the war with the Axis.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, disclosed today that this plan was under study as the army called for 10,000 volunteer nurses and Congress swiftly passed legislation removing prohibitions against service of selectees outside the Western Hemisphere.

20,000,000 Could Serve

"We undoubtedly are soon going to consider the registration of women," Hershey said.

He went on to estimate that 20,000,000 could serve by replacing men in factories, enlisting in civilian defense or with the armed service in non-combatant capacities.

The general proposition of registering and classifying all able-bodied men and women aged 18 to 65 was described by Hershey as the "No. 1 project at this time."

New Legislation

This would require new legislation. Emphasizing that the idea still was in the study stage, Hershey said he thought Congress should enact legislation presenting the people with "a broad liability for registration and a narrower liability for service."

"I don't visualize 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 men marching off to war, but we must try to be ready through a measured approach to the problem," he said.

"There is something to be gained by registering and classifying a broad group of people."

1,000,000 More Available

Under the present Selective Service Act men between 21 and 35, inclusive, were registered. About half of the present 1,600,000 men in the army were drafted under this act.

Hershey estimated that 1,000,000 more men were immediately available from the registered group, though, he said, this might mean lowering the standards for acceptance.

And he made clear that the first calls would go to men in this group.

"Let's use what we've got first," he said. "I believe we should use the group 21 to 28 now to the limit of efficiency."

Removal Asked

Congress wrote into the Selective Service Act last summer a restriction against dispatch of drafted men for service outside the Western Hemisphere.

With Japan's attack on the United States, the Administration immediately asked for removal of this restriction.

When legislation to do this was brought up in the Senate yesterday, Democratic leaders asked for the unanimous consent for its consideration, but Senator Johnson (Rep., Cal.) objected.

Under the rules, a lone objection meant that consideration must be deferred until today. Johnson said he wanted to help President Roosevelt keep his pledge that an American expeditionary force would not be sent to fight on foreign soil.

No Further Objections

When Congress assembled at noon today, Germany and Italy also had declared war on this country. Johnson took the floor in the Senate and said "two momentous things" had happened since yesterday and that he offered no further objections. He left the chamber and was not present when the legislation was approved, 86 to 0.

Special messengers took the bill to the other side of the Capitol immediately and the House approved it by a roaring voice vote.

In addition to removing restrictions on the area where selectees may serve, the legislation authorizes the War Department to hold them and all other army personnel in service until six months after the end of the war.

Not all the 10,000 volunteer nurses asked by the army would go into immediate service. It asked enlistments also in the reserves subject to call to active duty. To be eligible a woman must be a graduate of an accredited nursing school, unmarried and from 22 to 30 years old.

ROOSEVELT LAUDS POLITICAL 'TRUCE'

DEC 12 1941

President Wires Democratic And GOP Chiefs Thanks For Their Stands

Part In Civil Defense For Major Organizations Suggested

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 11 — President Roosevelt, hailing offers of the major political parties to aid the war effort, asserted today that they were capable of "inestimable service" and he thought they could function to the best advantage in the field of civilian defense.

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic National chairman, telegraphed Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of the Republican National Committee, on Tuesday declaring politics stood adjourned and poinnting to the possibilities of service by the two political organizations.

Martin wired back that Republicans would gladly answer any call to national service and stood ready to contribute their talents and abilities in every way to the defense of their country.

Thanks From Roosevelt

In identical telegrams to the two today, the President thanked them on behalf of the country "for the patriotic action you have in contemplation."

The text of the President's telegrams:

"Let me thank you both personally and on behalf of our country, for the patriotic action you have in contemplation. The national organizations of the two great parties are capable of inestimable service in our present emergency.

"The nation-wide quality of their personnel, the circumstance that their agents are men and women of eminence and respect in their respective communities, will, I am sure, demonstrate that in time of war there can be no partisan domestic politics. There can be only a determined intent of a united people to carry on the struggle for human liberty to a victorious conclusion.

For The Duration

"So, I am sure we appreciate—and the people will appreciate—that the political truce is for the period of the emergency and that the principles of our respective parties will continue to dominate our courses. When the war is over we will still be adhering to our historic method of settling our domestic problems which have made our country the great nation it is, and has shown the world that democratic freedom is a perfectly workable system of government.

"My own thought, with which I hope you will agree, is that the two national party organizations can function to the best advantage in the field of civil defense, but you will, of course, work out your own procedure and processes in carrying out your patriotic purpose."

RANKIN FALTERS ON 'PRESENT' VOTE

Woman Member Who Said 'No' on Japan War Doesn't Ballot on Germany-Italy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—In a voice so weak the clerk had to call for her vote a second time—and in a tone very different from her distinct "no" of Monday—the lone member of Congress who had opposed declaring war on Japan answered "present" today to the roll call on accepting Hitler's challenge to fight.

Miss Jeannette Rankin (R-Mont), long-time peace advocate who voted against fighting the kaiser 24 years ago, also answered "present" when the question of replying to Mussolini's war declaration came around.

It had been a terrible week for Miss Rankin—and she showed it. Her fluffy gray bobbed hair was not as neatly coiffured as on Monday. The part was a bit irregular. Instead of forming a halo accenting her dark vivacious eyes and clear skin, her hair was a bit limp.

She had on sapphire blue wool frock and around her neck she wore a long silver chain with a pendant large silver medallion. On her left arm was a matching bracelet. She had on her horn-rimmed specs.

When the House convened, and while the representatives were waiting for the expected message from the President, Miss Rankin sat in the galleries, crowded with young people most of them looking as though they were secretaries and clerks from congressmen's offices.

Nervousness Evident

As the time neared for the President's message Miss Rankin went onto the floor. Several members stood talking to her in the aisle.

When the clerk began to read she took her seat in the back. Rep Everrett Dirksen (R-Ill) sat on her left and talked to her for a time as the roll call started. She shook her head.

As the clerk's voice droned through the alphabet, nearer and nearer to "R," Miss Rankin nervously clasped and unclasped her handbag.

Called the clerk: "Rankin of Mississippi." Miss Rankin leaned forward. She was next.

"Rankin of Montana." She spoke. There was a moment's hesitation, indicating the clerk did not hear her reply. She spoke out again. "Present." She leaned back. There was no booing as on Monday.

The resolution on declaring war against Italy was introduced. The members on the floor grew restless, the galleries began to empty. It was a thrice-told story and it had lost its appeal. The speaker halted the roll call until order was restored.

Her name was reached.

"Present,"—a firmer voice this time.

Then she went into a cloak room off the floor. She was sitting in an armchair, munching an apple and drinking milk, when the House by voice vote approved sending armed forces anywhere to win victory for Uncle Sam.

Mrs. Roosevelt And Hitler World

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Dec. 11—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today "I have no desire to live in a world Mr. Hitler would create."

Her comment, given in an interview, took cognizance of Adolf Hitler's criticism of her in his war declaration speech, during which he said she refused "to live in a world of work as we National Socialists know it."

U. S. Suspends Mails To Germany And Italy

Service Also Is Dropped To All Points Under Control Of Axis Powers

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Postoffice Department suspended today all mail service from the United States and its possessions to Germany and Italy and all points under their control.

Gibraltar, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Russia and unoccupied France now are the only points in continental Europe for which mail will be forwarded.

All foreign transit mails to and from Germany and to and from Italy will be held in postoffice exchange offices.

EXPECTS NAVY WOULD DETECT NAZIS' PLANES

DEC 12 1941

Andrews Doubts Hitler Has Means to Launch Craft at Atlantic Coast

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, confident in the American North Atlantic fleet, said today that he doubted "very much if Germany has any ships that could come in close to this shore to launch planes without being detected by our patrols."

Ready Since Sunday

Andrews, commander of the North Atlantic coast frontier, which extends from Halifax to Hatteras and commandant of the powerful third naval district, said the declaration of war by Italy and Germany had caused no changes in naval operations, because "we have been as alert as possible since Sunday."

"There is possibility of a long range bombing attack on this coast if Germany has the proper planes," he stated, explaining that he meant planes capable of making a round trip to New York from France or Germany. He conceded that Axis suicide pilots might bring their planes here and crash with their bombs.

He said he did not know if Germany had any aircraft carriers. Italy's fleet presumably is bottled up in the Mediterranean.

Beach Area Evacuated In California Blackout

DEC 12 1941

Trees Burst Into Flame Mysteriously During Santa Cruz County "Test"

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Dec. 11 (AP) Santa Cruz County was blacked out tonight and several eucalyptus trees mysteriously burst into flame while more than 1000 persons were being evacuated from the beach area fronting the Pacific Ocean.

Two Reported Detained

The evacuation was reported as a comprehensive test by the Army, but several trees on a high cliff in an area inhabited by Japanese strawberry growers suddenly burst into flame.

At least two persons were reported detained at the police station.

Women fainted at wild, unverified rumors that planes had been sighted approaching from sea, and that vessels were 160 miles offshore.

The Fire Department quickly extinguished the flaming trees.

Order Residents Out

Soldiers went from door to door and ordered residents to put out their lights, lock their doors and hurry from the entire waterfront area.

Residents were requested to go 1000 yards or more from shore.

Later the Army broadcast over the police radio that the evacuation order was "temporarily canceled."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP) — Orders for a second practice blackout over Southern California were canceled tonight by officers of the Army's Fourth Interceptor Command.

To Avoid Loss of Time

Maj. T. J. Olds, control officer of the interceptor command here, said the Army was attempting to avoid any unnecessary hysteria or loss of time in defense industries from practice blackouts.

He quoted Brig. Gen. W. O. Ryan of the Fourth Interceptor Command as saying any blackouts in the Los Angeles area henceforth would be ordered only when danger from air attack was actual.

Arrow Shaped Fires Are Explained

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Dec. 11 (AP)—The Port Angeles News said today it had learned the arrow shaped fires reported in a War Department communique to be under investigation because they pointed toward Seattle merely were windrows of second growth timber, fired Tuesday by men clearing land.

The News said the windrows, assembled in an east-west direction, had burned and smoldered all Tuesday. It added the land owner since had been given Army permission to continue land clearing but to cease burning.

Los Angeles, Dec. 11—Lloyd's of London resumed sale of bomb insurance today, at a premium of $1 for $100 valuation. Last week the cost was 10 cents per $100. From Monday until today, policies were refused.

Halifax, Dec. 11 (AP)—Lloyd's of London has refused to underwrite further bombardment insurance on Halifax property, the city's civilian emergency committee was advised today.

ATLANTIC PATROL BOMBER CRASHES

DEC 12 1941

Officer Killed And Two Others And Three Enlisted Men Are Missing

Accident Occurs During Takeoff On Routine Flight. Five Injured

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 11—The navy announced tonight that one officer was killed, two officers and three enlisted men were missing, and five enlisted men injured as the result of a crash of an Atlantic Ocean patrol bomber.

The plane crashed during a take off for a routine patrol flight, the navy said, but the location of the accident was not announced "for reasons of national security."

The officer who lost his life was Ensign Paul Harry Alter, 26, born at Fort Plain, N. Y.

Men Reported Missing

The missing men were listed as: Lieut. (J. G.) Richard Beverly Hughes, 28; next of kin, wife, Mrs. Aida Thomas Hughes, Long Beach, California.

Ensign Robert William De Reamer, 25; next of kin, father, Clarence Russell De Reamer, Griffith, Ind.

Cleo Wells, 31, aviation machinist's mate first class; next of kin, wife, Mrs. Margaret Lee Wells, Norfolk, Va.

Harry Hinton Sheep, 21, radioman third class; next of kin, mother, Mrs. Gladys Hall Sheep, Elizabeth City, N. C.

Carl Willard Pierce, 23, aviation machinist mate third class; next of kin, mother, Mrs. Bertha Mae Pierce, North Wilkesboro, N. C.

Those Who Are Injured

The injured were:

John R. McIntyre, 27, aviation machinist mate first class; next of kin, mother, Mrs. Grace Fandrey, Columbus, Ohio.

Robert Edward Dearen, 23, aviation machinist mate third class; next of kin, wife, Mrs. Carolyn Russell Dearen, New York.

Robert Morris Smith, 20, aviation machinist mate third class; next of kin, sister, Mrs. Alberta Pease, Chicago.

Oliver Lee Lawhead, 20, radioman third class; next of kin, father, Earl Lawrence Lawhead, Sr., Indianapolis.

New Motor Ship Oregon In Crash With Navy Craft; Nine Known Dead

[By the Associated Press]

Boston, Dec. 11—Fears were entertained tonight that seventeen members of the crew of the freighter Oregon perished when she sank after a collision with a naval vessel off Nantucket yesterday.

Of a crew believed to have numbered forty-two, the rescued totaled twenty-five and nine bodies were recovered, leaving eight missing.

Eighteen survivors were brought to New Bedford by the Viking, a fishing vessel, which also bore eight bodies. Seven other survivors arrived at Boston on a tanker with the body of Chief Officer D. C. McNaught.

Hearing Scheduled

All known survivors, under orders not to discuss the sinking, were assembled in Boston tonight for an appearance tomorrow at a Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation hearing.

Meanwhile, the navy, the Coast Guard, the freighter's agents and all others in any way connected with the disaster remained rigidly uncommunicative. Even the medical examiners who viewed the bodies declined to announce the cause of death.

However, there was reason to believe some of the missing were in a lifeboat which capsized after drawing away from the Oregon.

Some Leaped Into Sea

Some members of the crew were forced to leap into the sea as she sank and it was thought a few might have succumbed to the icy water.

The collision occurred before dawn and at first the Oregon's officers hoped to bring her into port. Several hours later, however, a radiogram said that she was sinking. The Oregon, a new $2,270,000 motorship, was believed to have suffered greatest damage in the fore section. This theory was supported by the fact she was unable to proceed for a time under her own power.

Many of the survivors were in makeshift attire and showed signs of strain and fatigue.

Eagle Squadron Flyer From Richmond Missing

Pilot Officer Richard Patterson Joined Canadian Air Force In 1940—Abroad Since October

Richmond, Dec. 11 (AP)—Pilot Officer Richard Fuller Patterson, of Richmond, member of the Second American Eagle Squadron in England, has been reported "missing," his mother, Mrs. Henry B. Handy, has been advised.

Henry B. Handy, Patterson's stepfather, said a letter was received yesterday from headquarters of the Royal Canadian Air Force that Patterson and his plane were missing. The message did not state how long Patterson had been missing.

Patterson entered the Royal Canadian Air Force's initial training school at Toronto in April, 1940. He joined the Eagle squadron in England last October 15.

Radio And Guns In Boston Roundup

DEC 12 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Boston, Dec. 11—A radio transmitting set, located only half a mile from the command post of the Boston harbor defenses, and a large store of firearms were seized tonight as police and Federal agents arrested separately for questioning an alien and a naturalized citizen who had been under surveillance.

Detective Lieutenant James V. Crowley said twenty shotguns and rifles and fifteen revolvers were found in the North End locksmith shop of an Italian alien, and Winthrop Police Chief William E. Pumphret said the radio set was found in a cellar one half mile from Fort Banks.

British Flyers Die In Alabama Crash

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Two British flying cadets died last night in the crash of their United States Army training plane near Gainesville, Ala., it was announced today by Maxwell Field here.

The cadets were identified as Peter Greene, 20, of Rose Bank, Gloucester, and Stanley Holden, 30, of North Harrow, Middlesex.

FBI JAILS 2 MINNESOTA PROFESSORS AS ALIENS

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Times said today two University of Minnesota professors were held incommunicado in the Ramsey County (St. Paul) Jail in connection with a roundup of alien nationals of enemy countries.

One of the professors, the Times said, was identified as Dr. Konstantin Reichardt, professor in German and Scandinavian languages, who came to the university from Germany two years ago. The paper did not give the name of the other.

The federal Bureau of Investigation has declined to disclose names of several picked up in this area in the alien roundup.

Ranke came here from the University of Heidelberg in Germany in 1938 to be visiting professor of egyptology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Rep. Fish Declares U. S. Cause Is Righteous

Very Existence Of Free People All Over World At Stake, He Says

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—Representative Fish (Rep., N. Y.) said today that in warring against the Axis powers "America stands united in a righteous and sacred cause, that of defending a peaceful world against brutal military aggressions by lawless dictators."

In a statement, he described the declaration of war against Germany and Italy today as "the most tragic moment in American history."

He predicted a "long, bloody and costly war" in which "the very existence and destiny of not only America but that of free people all over the world is at stake."

Shipyard Crew Sets World Speed Record In Building Tanker

Workers Complete Craft In 63 Days, Far Ahead Of Former Mark

DEC 12 1941

By the Associated Press

Quincy, Mass., Dec. 11.—Workers in one of the Nation's largest shipyards are claiming a new world's speed record in shipbuilding as proof of their rallying cry "We can build ships faster than they can be sunk."

The ship, the 12,700-deadweight-ton tanker Sinclair H-C, is scheduled to go down the ways at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River plant Saturday night—only 76 calendar days, 63 working days, after the laying of her keel.

Old Record Smashed.

Bethlehem officials said the best previous time for a ship of this type was 119 calendar days, also made by Fore River.

Tidal demands necessitate the night launching — first after-dark ceremony in the yard's history. When the tanker hits the water, workmen will try for another record—getting her ready for delivery in 24 days, instead of the usual couple of months, after launching.

William H. Collins, the yard's general manager, said the workmen utilized the ship's hull number "1491" for a slogan, "91 in 90 days," —a slogan they had printed on huge bottons they wore proudly on their overalls.

Men Underestimated Selves.

But they underestimated their own capabilities, he said, and the launching date twice was advanced, clipping 14 days from time first goal. In one week, a thousand tons of steel were erected, and company officials said that was a record in itself.

The ship will be the 15th, including the battleship Massachusetts, launched this year at Fore River. The yard, bristling with a military and police guard, has $600,000,000 in one-time defense contracts, now war contracts.

Minister To U. S. Says He'll Devote Himself To Restoration Of Nation's Independence

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—Thailand's Minister to the United States announced tonight his refusal to recognize the reported capitulation of his Government to Japanese invaders and declared he would devote himself henceforth to the restoration of Thailand's independence.

The Minister, Mom Rajawongse Seni Pramoj, recalled that his country was the first Far Eastern nation to establish diplomatic relations with the United States and appealed to freedom-loving Americans to support him in his task.

Traveler Says Japan Decided to Commit National Hari-Kari

Would Lose Less Face In Defeat by Great Power Than by China

DEC 12 1941

By WILLIAM PINKERTON,
Wide World News.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—A traveler familiar with the Orient, just back from Singapore, voiced the opinion today that Japan chose to provoke "the greater powers" because in such a war she would "lose less face" if defeated.

Deane Dickason, well-known travel lecturer, declared, "Japan has chosen national hari-kari as the honorable way out of an intolerable situation."

"I think that both Japan and the Netherlands Indies were disappointed by what seemed our lack of interest when the Japanese moved into Indo-China last spring," he said.

"The Dutch were afraid that the United States might not move if Japan attacked Thailand or the Netherlands Indies.

"Perhaps the Japanese, too, had a feeling then that the United States would not move unless attacked directly."

Finally Showed Interest.

The freezing of Japanese assets and the embargo on oil shipments after the Japanese march into Indo-China showed, he added, that the United States did have some interest in the status quo of the Pacific.

The people of the Malay Peninsula, strategic tip of the Asiatic mainland, had been expecting war on a fortnightly basis all during the summer, Mr. Dickason reported, and were prepared for it.

Mr. Dickason left there about October 1. "Both the Netherlands East Indies and the British at Singapore were prepared to fight Japan—without allies if need be—when I left," he said in an interview at his New York hotel.

Six months ago, he added, they would not have fought without assistance.

Oil and Food Scarce.

The reason that Japan felt forced to go to war, Mr. Dickason said, was that her supplies, both of oil and of food, were getting short. European evacuees from Japan told him in August, he said, that in their opinion Japan did not have enough supplies to last beyond November 15.

"The shutting off of oil from the United States and Mexico was the same as cutting off the blood stream of an industrial nation such as Japan."

He heard estimates that, at most, Japan had oil reserves to last two years—if no aggressive war was undertaken. With aggressive warfare, Japan's oil stocks would not last beyond a year, he said he was told.

China Gaining Strength.

Meanwhile, China was gaining strength through the lease-lend aid of the United States, he continued, and Japan was likely to fall victim to the Chinese if she did not move aggressively herself.

One reason Japan moved into Indo-China, he added, was to divert the rice of that rich agricultural region to her own island, where food was not plentiful.

Certainly, he added, Japan also was provoked from Germany to make war on the United States.

He estimated that there were 450,000 troops in Malaya on October 1, added that new troops continued to arrive in a steady stream, and that the air forces of the British and Dutch in Malaya have increased to four times what they were a year ago. The Netherlands Indies, he estimated, had about 1,200 planes in October.

DEC 12 1941

The British had garrisoned Malaya with Australian volunteers plus strong units of native Indian fighters. Fire bombs, he said, were among the loads of ammunition which had been convoyed to the Straits Settlements from Liverpool.

Mr. Dickason, formerly a Denver newspaperman, has been guiding cruise parties since 1923.

When Bombs Start to Fall, Lie Down: That Is Rule No. 4

DEC 12 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The following is the fourth in a series of instructions issued by the Office of Civilian Defense for the guidance of the people in case of air raids:

Lie Down

If bombs start to fall near you, lie down. You will feel the blast least that way, escape fragments and splinters.

The safest place is under a good stout table—the stronger the legs the better.

A mattress under a table combines comfort with safety.

The enemy may use explosive bombs or incendiary bombs, or both. If incendiaries are used, it's more important to deal with them than to be safe from blast. So defeat the incendiary with a spray (never a splash or stream) of water, then go back to safety under a table in a refuge room.

Unless gas is used, raids will likely be over in your immediate neighborhood in a short time. However, stay under cover till the "all clear" is sounded.

Know your raid alarms. Know the "all clear." Official news of these will come to you from your air raid warden. Don't believe rumors. Watch this paper for air raid alarm description. Ask the warden when he comes.

Should your house be hit, keep cool. Answer tappings from rescue crews if you are trapped. (You most likely won't be either hit or trapped, but if you are, you can depend on rescue squads to go after you). Again—keep cool, and wait. Don't yell after you hear them coming to you, unless they tell you to. Keep cool!

Just keeping cool hurts the enemy more than anything else you can do. Keep calm. Stay at home. Put out lights. Lie down.

The War Interpreted

The declaration of war against the United States by Germany and Italy, in alliance with Japan, was fully expected and doesn't alter the position materially.

Herr Hitler, as overlord of the Axis, undoubtedly hopes that the moral effect of this declaration, delivered at a moment of great triumph because of Japanese successes, will benefit his cause. However, it is likely that the effect has been largely discounted in advance.

DIFFERENT AXIS TACTICS

True, this may presage more direct action against the United States. Indeed one would expect this to be so. But that action would have come in any event, for the normal Axis strategy is to strike without warning. It happens to suit Hitler's purpose now to make a show of the formality.

As for the Japanese end of our now all-inclusive war, the long lane is showing some slight curves even though no turning has developed.

We have some good news to go with the bad. Foremost is the announcement by an American army spokesman in Manila that "the situation is completely in hand" in connection with the Japanese landings on the island of Luzon, of which Manila is the capital. With this is recorded the fine success of our bombers in making three direct hits on a Jap battleship off Luzon and leaving it a blazing mass.

This is encouraging in view of the vital importance of our defense of the Philippines. The battle of the Pacific at this moment pivots on the Japanese assaults against the two great Allied bases—our own Philippines and Britain's Singapore.

Possession of these two powerful bases is essential to control of the Pacific. That is to say, it is essential to successful prosecution of the war in the Far East.

While the word from Manila is cheering, we shouldn't jump to conclusions. The Japanese attack is continuing, with fighting forces ashore at various points, and a further landing of parachute troops at an airport near Illanga was reported this morning. We have to sail through a lot of dirty weather yet.

The sensational success of the Japanese in the first round of this fresh conflict very naturally has distracted attention from the European war. Had the world taken trouble to glance at this theater it would have learned that the Russians have had further successes, both in the Leningrad and the Moscow sectors, and report inflicting bloody losses on the Germans.

GERMANS WITHDRAW

Simultaneously the Nazis announce with apparent complacence that their advance forces have withdrawn to winter lines along the Russian front. The military spokesman in Berlin said the German push eastward was finished until spring. That is cheerful news for the Allies, for it will give the Bolshevists a chance to recuperate from the effects of their fierce struggle thus far.

London, however, isn't entirely happy over reports from Moscow, and it may seem like a curious circumstance that this is due to the fact that the Bolshevists claim to have gained air superiority over the invaders. To Britain that means Hitler has withdrawn many warplanes from Russia for use elsewhere. In other words, the Fuehrer appears to be cooking up a fresh scheme to employ against the Allies.

What are we to expect? There are several possibilities. Among these, and of peculiar interest to the United States, is the possibility that the Germans may be preparing to intensify their attack on Atlantic shipping and may carry their attack into American waters. There always is the possibility also that they may attempt air raids against the Atlantic coast for the psychological effect.

Beyond this, the direct assault against England may be resumed. It also is quite in the cards that the Germans may at last attempt a move through Spain into French North and West Africa. With the French colonies in their possession, and perhaps the French navy in their hands, they would be in a powerful position for attacks on American and British shipping and naval operations.

Code of Samurai May Be Back Of Japanese Surprise Attack

DEC 12 1941

Bombardier and Machine Gunner Who Fired First Shot Regard It as Triumph in Bushido Tradition Ingrained in Nippon Soul

By CLARK BEACH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (Wide World)—There might be something more than naval strategy behind the sudden bombing of Pearl Harbor.

The medieval cult of the Samurai is deep ingrained in the Japanese soul, from the highest admiral or general to the lowliest mechanic.

The first of anything has always fascinated the Japanese: The first snow of winter, the first water drawn from the well on New Year's Day, the first blossom of spring, the first note of the nightingale. So in war the first to ride up to the foe or the first to wield a spear always has been held in high honor. It was always a distinction coveted by the Samurai, the old hereditary soldiers.

For whatever reason the war lords launched their surprise attack, somewhere in their racial mind, very probably, lurked the age-old desire to strike the first blow. Certainly, the bombardier who loosed the first bomb in Pearl Harbor and the machine gunner who shot the first American regarded it as a triumph in the Samurai tradition.

Japan, for all her westernization, has never thrown off entirely the superstitions and the anachronistic code of the Samurai.

Europe grew weary of the exaggerated ideals which governed the knights in all their acts of love and war. Cervantes finally gave chivalry the coup de grace when he wrote "Don Quixote," which laughed it out of existence.

Bushido a Vital Force

But European chivalry never affected the whole people; it concerned only the knights. On the other hand, the entire Japanese nation was imbued with the traditions of the Samurai; they set the national code of ethics, known as Bushido—"the way of the warrior"—and students of Japan say that it is a vital force today in Nippon.

Statesmen constantly allude to Samurai heroes in their public addresses. Japanese boast of having ancestors who were Samurai. A large proportion of Japanese movies are historical stories of the Samurai warriors.

So potent is the influence of Bushido that it might explain many of the fantastic things that will happen in the Pacific in the days ahead.

Samurai became the special title of the warrior in the tenth century. Two hundred years later it was decreed that only a Samurai could bear arms, and the rank became hereditary. One had to be born into the warrior caste. It was believed that the three lower castes—the farmer, the artisan and the merchant—were incapable of becoming fighters.

DEC 12 1941

The Samurai wore two swords as the badge of their caste. Their life was an incessant, stringent training for war. They lived and died sword in hand, extolling loyalty to their group and filial piety.

Invent Hari Kari

Only warlike amusements, like hunting, were permitted. They lived on a pension and could engage in no business. They were forbidden to live extravagantly, to dress showily, to write poetry or to dance. Anyone caught dancing was ordered to commit hari kari. (The Samurai invented this painful method of suicide.) The general idea seems to have been to keep the young fighters away from the frivolous court at Kyoto.

In battle they stressed deception, ambush and surprise as main elements of strategy. They were keen on displays of individual prowess. In early days engagements consisted of a number of personal duels, all in progress simultaneously.

The Samurai became the chief political power, at one time tending to eclipse the Emperor. Their days were numbered in 1873, however, when an imperial decree substituted universal conscription for the system of hereditary militarism. This, among other things, provoked a civil war, in which they finally were overthrown in 1877.

But their Bushido lived on in Japan, the land of the Kami—the ancient gods of tradition.

Japanese boys from their cradle are encouraged to play with toy soldiers and guns. Their textbooks are full of tales of Samurai heroism introduced by exhortations from the Emperor to emulate these heroes.

Service is Compulsory

Military education begins in the secondary grades and is intensified in high school. Military service is compulsory for all males between 17 and 40, two years of which must be spent in active duty.

Geography combines with the war cult to make the Japanese stoical and fatalistic, for they are used to sudden death from volcanic eruptions, tidal waves, floods, earthquakes, typhoons, landslides and conflagrations that level their wood-and-paper houses. Military leaders can easily find volunteers for human torpedoes and bombs.

The military extremists who got control of the government in the past 10 years are not members of an heriditary military caste, yet are prime exponents of the cult of war. Convinced that Japan's hope for prosperity lay in conquest of East Asia, they won control by wholesale assassination, terrorism, espionage and strike-breaking.

Under the Japanese system of government, only the army, navy and premier have direct access to the emperor, in whom all power is vested. The army and navy are not responsible to the premier. They can act independently and often have ordered the armed forces into action without even consulting the premier and the diet.

Some elements of the public have bitterly opposed them. But their position next to the emperor, the son of heaven, combined with the war cut and the traditional veneration of the warrior have given them enormous prestige. Those who know Japan do not expect them to be repudiated—until the failure of their enterprise proves them false prophets and traitors to the people.

War Gives Stimson Arms to Achieve His Far East Peace Plan

DEC 12 1941

Cast in Different Role Than in 1931, When Persuasion Failed

By JOHN LEAR,
Wide World News.

Washington, Dec. 11—United States acceptance of Japan's war challenge gives Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson the job of enforcing with arms a Far Eastern policy he tried for years to achieve through peace.

Stimson, as Secretary of State in 1931, first enunciated the doctrine that this country would not recognize the acquisition of territory by force.

He stated the position in a note to Japan when the Japanese were just beginning to invade China.

Reaffirms Position

After Manchuria was gobbled up, he repeated it in these words:

"In view of the present situation and of its own rights and obligations therein, the American Government deems it to be its duty to notify both the Imperial Japanese Government and the Government of the Chinese Republic that it cannot admit the legality of any situation de facto nor does it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement entered into between those governments, or agents thereof, which may impair the treaty rights of the United States, or its citizens in China, including those which relate to the sovereignty, the independence, or to the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open door policy; and that it does not intend to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenants and obligations of the Pact of Paris of August 27, 1928, to which treaty both China and Japan, as well as the United States, are parties."

Hull Amplifies Policy

When the Republican Administration of President Hoover gave way to the Democratic Administration of President Roosevelt, the Stimson policy went on unchanged. The new Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, not only sustained it but amplified it to bar recognition of territories acquired by other aggressors than Japan—namely, Italy and Germany.

Now, ten years after its promulgation, the Stimson principle has been brought to a showdown.

The Japanese attacked United States territory on Sunday because this nation's Government refused to retreat from this attitude.

30.24-13487

Congress on Monday declared war to stop aggression.

This time Stimson, the Secretary of War, has something Stimson, the Secretary of State, could not get—the backing of the British for a firm stand in the Pacific.

Historians Recapitulate

Many historians have expressed the belief that if England had supported Stimson ten years ago, the Far Eastern crisis might have been peacefully resolved, peace - protecting machinery might have been strengthened, and the world today might not be at war.

As boss of the army, under Commander in Chief Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary Stimson does not have the viewpoint of a swivel-chair "brass hat" but that of a fighting soldier with personal knowledge of what war means.

The hard-riding New York lawyer ("Teddy" Roosevelt took Stimson into politics at the age of 40 because he admired his horsemanship) had been Secretary of War under President Taft, and had returned to private law practice before World War I threatened the country. But in 1915 he stumped the nation in support of the preparedness plans of Maj. Gen Leonard Wood. After the United States declared war, he entered the army, saying:

"After all the noise I have made about fighting, I feel I'd better do a little myself. I couldn't retain my self-respect if I didn't get into it."

Wins Promotion Rapidly

He was commissioned judge advocate in the army reserve, with a major's rank, because he was 50 years old. That was not active enough. He became lieutenant colonel of the Three Hundred and Fifth Field Artillery and went to France. He was promoted to colonel and won French and Belgian medals in action at Pexonne, Neuf-Maison and Bois de Hais Labarre.

Having seen war destruction at first hand both in Europe and in Central America (he ended a bloody civil war in Nicaragua by intervention in 1927), he worked constantly after his appointment as Secretary of State in 1929 to build the kind of world peace his old law partner, Elder Statesman Elihu Root, had striven for when Root held that position.

Litvinoff Rebuked Him

He was the first to try to put teeth into the Briand-Kellogg pact to outlaw war. He attempted to use that treaty to persuade China and Russia to settle differences over the Chinese Eastern Railway. He was rebuked by Maxim Litvinoff, one of the signers of the Kellogg accord, for giving "advice and counsel" to Russia while the United States refused to recognize Russia.

It is one of the paradoxes of war that Litvinoff arrived in Washington to gear his country tighter to Secretary Stimson's military machine in a war being sought in defense of a Stimson policy which Litvinoff once rejected.

Secretary of State Stimson was undiscouraged by one failure to negotiate peace. He tried a second time in September, 1931, when Japan invaded Manchuria. He asked both combatants to "cause their military forces to refrain from any further hostilities" and disperse their armies "so as to satisfy the requirements of international law and international agreements."

He Fails Again

That didn't work, and he tried again, after Manchuria was taken. Again he failed.

He worked for peace in other ways—at the five-power naval conference in London in 1930, at the 1931 Paris conferences on German reparations, in Europe as one of President Hoover's advisers of the war debt moratorium.

Although a traditional Republican, he had the reputation of ignoring politics for important jobs. President Roosevelt likewise ignored politics in appointing him Secretary of War in July of 1940, after Stimson in January had publicly advocated a legal ban on war materials this country then was sending to Japan.

At 75, the Secretary still rides often. His last active soldiering was in 1926, as a reserve brigadier general in the Pine Camp maneuvers in New York.

Still faithful to his principles, he urged preparedness before this war, as he did before the last; has fought neutrality as opposed to international law.

DEC 12 1941

More world-minded than vengeful, he reciprocated Britain's 1931 failure to support him in the Pacific by supporting help to Britain in the Atlantic as early as 1939.

Mr. Stimson once was Governor General of the Philippines. He opposed freedom for the islands. He said sooner or later they would be attacked, and would not be able to defend themselves.

EDITOR'S NOTE: THE FOLLOWING RECOLLECTIONS OF LONDON'S FIRST BLACKED-OUT NIGHTS FOR COMPARISON WITH AMERICA'S NEW EXPERIENCES WITH AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS WERE WRITTEN BY A MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE STAFF WHO WAS ON THE LONDON STAFF WHEN WAR BROKE OUT IN 1939 AND LATER WAS CHIEF OF THE AP BUREAU IN AMSTERDAM WHEN THAT CITY WAS AN IMPORTANT LISTENING-POST IN EUROPE.

DEC 12

BY FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

NEW YORK, DEC.11-(AP)-THE DARK BUSINESS WHICH AMERICAN COASTAL CITIES ARE PRACTICING IN THESE FIRST NIGHTS OF WAR--THE BLACKOUT--WAS COMPLETELY SATISFACTORY IN LONDON FROM THE STANDPOINT OF BLACKNESS FROM THE FIRST NIGHT OF SEPTEMBER, 1939, WHEN HITLER STRUCK AT POLAND.

THESE WERE THE REASONS:

30,04—13489

30 24-13489

1--IT WAS A FULL-TIME JOB AND IT NEVER WAS RELAXED IN ANY IMPORTANT DEGREE.

2--IT WAS THE RESULT, WITH OTHER AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS MEASURES, OF MORE THAN A YEAR OF CAREFUL PLANNING.

3--IT WAS ENFORCED WITH THE UTMOST RIGIDITY AND IMPARTIALITY.

LONDON'S BLACKOUT WAS NOT POPULAR AND IT WAS DEFINITELY UNSAFE FROM THE STANDPOINT OF PEDESTRIAN AND MOTORIST SIMPLY BECAUSE IT WAS SO BLACK.

DEC 12 1941

MOST OF THE CREDIT FOR ITS SUCCESS FROM A MILITARY STANDPOINT GOES TO THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, WHICH IS THE RULING MUNICIPAL BODY OF GREATER LONDON, AND TO HERBERT MORRISON, THE PRESENT BRITISH MINISTER OF HOME SECURITY, WHO BEFORE THE WAR WAS LONDON'S MAYOR IN FACT BUT NOT IN NAME. HE WAS HEAD OF THE COUNCIL.

THIS COUNCIL AND THAT OF OTHER ENGLISH CITIES WORKED IN CLOSEST COOPERATION WITH THE HOME OFFICE OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, WHICH PUTS UP MUCH OF THE ARP MONEY AND ISSUED THE PRELIMINARY ARP INSTRUCTIONS TO EVERY HOUSEHOLDER IN ENGLAND.

THESE INSTRUCTIONS WERE ISSUED MORE THAN A YEAR BEFORE THE WAR AND THEY COVERED EVERYTHING FROM HOMESPUN METHODS OF COMBATTING GAS CONTAMINATION TO REINFORCEMENT OF A ROOM AGAINST BOMB SHOCK OR BLAST.

DEC 12 1941

AS FOR THE LONDON BLACKOUT IT WAS AND IS THE MOST SEVERE IN ALL OF EUROPE AND IS ENFORCED IN EVERY CITY AND COUNTRY DISTRICT OF ENGLAND BY FULL-TIME AIR RAID WARDENS AND POLICE ON CONSTANT PATROL.

BLACKOUT TIMES VARY WITH THE SEASON. THE NEWSPAPERS AND RADIO CONSTANTLY REMIND HOUSEHOLDERS OF THE CURRENT TIME.

FROM THE START OF THE WAR NO GLOW WHATSOEVER--TO SAY NOTHING OF A DIRECT GLEAM OF LIGHT--WAS PERMITTED FROM WINDOWS OR DOORWAYS. NO BLUE LIGHT WAS ALLOWED AS IN PARIS. AUTOMOBILES TRAVELED WITH HEAVY LIGHTS PAINTED BLACK. A THIN CROSS SCRATCHED THROUGH THE COATING WITH A NAIL PROVIDED THE ONLY LIGHT PERMITTED.

CURBINGS, FIREPLUGS, TELEGRAPH POLES AND ROADSIDE TREES WERE WHITEWASHED. IF YOU TOOK YOUR CAR OUT AT NIGHT YOU WERE SUPPOSED TO WHITEWASH FENDERS AND BUMPERS. THERE WERE NO STREET LIGHTS WHATSOEVER. TRAFFIC LIGHTS WERE THIN CROSSES OF GREEN RED OR AMBER, HEAVILY COWLED.

DEC 12 1941

REGULAR AIR RAID WARDENS AND POLICE WERE EMPOWERED TO ISSUE SUMMONSES WHICH RESULTED IN THE STIFFEST OF FINES FOR VIOLATIONS. AT LEAST ONE BUSINESS CONCERN TO MY KNOWLEDGE BARELY ESCAPED A FINE OF 500 POUNDS STERLING ($2,000)) BECAUSE THE JANITOR FOR A FEW NIGHTS NEGLECTED THE BLACKOUT WHEN HE SWEPT THE SECOND FLOOR.

IN MANY CASES BUSINESS BUILDINGS WITH LARGE WINDOWS SOLVED THE BLACKOUT PROBLEM WITH BLACK PAINT SMEARED OVER THE WINDOWS PLUS HEAVY BLACK CURTAINS. EVEN THESE HAD TO BE CONSTANTLY ADJUSTED ON COMPLAINTS OF WARDENS INSIDE OFFICES AT NIGHT. STUDENT'S DESK LAMPS TOOK THE PLACE OF OVERHEAD LIGHTS.

DEC 12 1941

AS FOR THE BLACKOUT IN PRIVATE HOMES, MY STONE COTTAGE AT BROMLEY, KENT, JUST OUTSIDE LONDON, WAS TYPICAL.

AT FIRST WE TRIED AN ELABORATE ARRANGEMENT OF CURTAINS AND BLANKETS PINNED UP OVER THE LIVING ROOM WINDOWS AND A SINGLE WELL

SMOTHERED BRIDGE-LAMP INSIDE.

WE THOUGHT IT WAS FINE BUT THE AIR RAID WARDEN DIDN'T. EVERY NIGHT HE BANGED ON THE DOOR AND EVERY NIGHT HE GREW TESTIER.

FINALLY WE HIT UPON THE ARRANGEMENT WHICH PROVED BEST OF ALL: LIGHT WOODEN FRAMES EXACTLY FITTING THE INSIDE OF THE WINDOWS, COVERED WITH HEAVY BLACK PAPER, THESE COULD BE HELD TIGHT TO THE GLASS WITH MOVEABLE NAILS OR SCREWS AND TAKEN DOWN QUICKLY AT BED TIME OR IN DAYLIGHT. SOME OTHERS USED CORRUGATED PAPER, WITH HALF A BROOMSTICK TACKED TO THE END, WHICH COULD BE ROLLED UP WHEN NOT IN USE.

DEC 12 1941

ONE THING WE NEVER SOLVED--VENTILATION. WE FINALLY DECIDED YOU CAN'T HAVE FRESH AIR AND LIGHT AT THE SAME TIME.

Wake, Midway Still Hold Japan Attackers at Bay

Washington Has No Confirmation Guam Occupied by Enemy; Army Says Landings Beaten Off Luzon West Coast

DEC 13 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The heroic defenders of Wake and Midway, tiny Pacific islets, continued to hold the Japanese at bay today, while on the principal Philippine island of Luzon, American land, sea and air forces joined in a terrific struggle to smash repeated Japanese attacks.

This was the gist of the latest United States Navy and Army communiques.

Besides disclosing that the valiant marines on Wake Island were still holding out, the navy communique spiked reports it had received word that the islands of Midway and Guam had been captured by the Japanese.

The American Federation of Labor had said earlier that the navy had notified it more than 1,000 members of the A. F. L. building trades were taken prisoner when Guam and Midway were captured.

The communique said that Midway was still in United States hands and that there was "no confirmation of the alleged occupation of Guam by the Japanese."

A second A. F. L. statement said: "On the basis of new information from authoritative sources, the American Federation of Labor tonight amended its earlier report of the capture of A. F. L. building celved, Guam remains in American hands."

In San Francisco, the Postal Telegraph cable department reported it was "working" the island without interruption which would indicate it was still in American hands.

President Roosevelt told his press conference that so far as was known the heroic little Marine garrison at Wake Island—credited with sinking a Japanese light cruiser and a destroyer—still was holding out.

The army communique said attempted Japanese landings were repulsed south of Vigan and north of San Fernando, cities on the west coast of Luzon. However, a previous communique indicated that the Japanese not only had succeeded in landing at Vigan, but were augmenting their forces there.

It was believed here that the principal Japanese attacks were being made on the west coast of Luzon because there are good communication lines from there to Manila.

The communique dacknowledge that some enemy troops had been landed near Legaspi, in the extreme southern portion of Luzon Island, as claimed by the Japanese imperial headquarters.

But the capital discounted the Japanese claim that the landing at Legaspi, and also at Aparri, in the far north of the island, placed the enemy troops in position to carry out a pincers attack on Manila. In military circles, it was said that mountain and estuary barriers stood in the way of a pincers' movement from those two footholds. By some, the Japanese blows at Aparri and Legaspi were regarded simply as diversions.

The view that the real attack was being made on the west coast of Luzon was strengthened by the communique's statement that "previous reports of enemy naval concentrations west of Zambeles province * * * were confirmed."

Aside from this general report on the Philippine situation, the communique said that Japanese air activity continued throughout the day with raids in the Manila area and at Davao on the island of Minbanao.

A forenoon communique from the War Department told of furious renewed attacks by the Japanese on Luzon, main island of the Philippines. The attacks were coming from several directions. It was said of the situation on the island:

"The commanding general of the Far Eastern command reports the Japanese are making a series of concentric thrusts on the island of Luzon. Enemy concentrations are reported at Legaspi and off the west coast of Zambales. The enemy is augmenting its forces at Aparri and Vigan."

There was little official information as to the situation elsewhere in the Pacific.

Aside from the report on the fighting in the Philippines, the army's communique said only:

"Hawaii: No operations reported.

"West Coast: No change in the situation."

NIPPONESE RUN IN DARK TO AVOID NAVAL BATTLE

11 Invading Bombers Shot Down In New Raids On Philippines—Two American Flyers Cited For Heroism In Raids On Foe

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Dec. 12—In their first encounter with ships of the United States Asiatic fleet, the Japanese warships have turned tail and fled to avoid coming to grips, it was disclosed today, while the American defenses of this stanch island were beating back with strong effect at heavy Japanese aerial assaults.

In widespread raids seeking to cover continuing efforts of the invader's land forces to seize lodgments, 113 Japanese bombers were counted, but eleven of them were smashed by American forces.

These attacks were loosed at the province of Batangas, south of Manila; the United States naval base area of Olongapo, fifty miles west of Manila, and Clark Field, north of the capital.

American Flyers Cited

The afternoon communique from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that a single American pilot, First Lieutenant Boyd D. Wagner, had shot his way out of an attack by five Japanese pursuit planes, sending two down in flames and machine-gunning twelve Japanese ships on the ground, leaving five of them burning. Only then, with his gasoline running low, did he turn for his base.

No Mention of Landings

(This communique made no mention of the immediate situation as to Japanese land forces. In Washington during the day, however, the War Department announced that the Japanese were attacking Luzon from several directions, in a series of concentric thrusts, and that enemy concentrations were reported at Legaspi and off the west coast of Zambales.

(Legaspi, the major Philippine port on the Pacific side, is about 250 miles from Manila. The province of Zambales, northwest of Manila, extends southward toward the fortress of Corregidor, which stands guard before Manila Bay.)

Another flyer—Capt. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., of the army—was saluted posthumously by General MacArthur for his gallantry in scoring three direct hits on the Japanese battleship Haruna, "leaving her in flames and distress." (It has been confirmed in Washington that she subsequently sank.)

Whether the young flyer had died under Japanese fire before observing the results of his action—the first great naval victory obtained by the United States—was not known.

Filipinos Praised

Along with these evidences of the flaming will to conquer of American troops, there were many manifestations of high Filipino morale, among both civilians and military.

General MacArthur's communique told of a group of mountain natives who "brought in three Japanese aviators trussed up like animals"—the survivors of a Japanese plane shot down in the Clark Field area.

"In Batangas six Filipino pilots, undaunted by the tremendous odds against them, attacked two enemy formations of twenty-seven planes each as they roared over the airfield. Before the enemy aircraft broke formation and disappeared in the clouds the Filipino pilots accounted for two ships."

Jap Fleet Flees In Dark

The official announcement of Japan's first and timorous brush with United States fleet units disclosed only that the invader had run away in the intervening darkness, and had remained in this shelter to escape going into action.

It was accompanied by a declaration of Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, that while there had as yet been no word of the activities of the submarines "when the news comes it should be big news."

DEC 13 1941

"Our submarines pack a big punch," he added. "When a torpedo hits anything it stays hit. But a submarine is like a big-game hunter with an elephant gun who sits hour after hour, day after day, awaiting his prey. Sometimes it takes a long time to get results."

The admiral disclosed frankly that the Japanese air raid of Wednesday on the Cavite naval yard off Manila had wrought "very great damage" and had damaged some small ships tied up at the docks. Others, he said, were moved away and escaped damage.

Loss Of Life Heavy

"There was considerable loss of life more among the civilians in the city o Cavite than among the naval personnel," he added.

"We still are attempting to determine the total casualties. The list will be sent to the Navy Department. The naval men killed were for the most part on duty."

A single direct bomb hit, he said, destroyed a navy dispensary in Cavite.

killing all in the building. He added that the Japanese had not been bombing hospitals as such; that the dispensary was in the center of a legitimate military objective.

The Japanese, he remarked, were using two sorts of bombs: incendiaries—"and they work"—and fragmentation bombs.

The admiral cited a naval flyer who trailed the second battleship to be knocked out by American forces—the Kongo or a similar ship—off northwest Luzon, staying on her trail until other planes could come up and seriously cripple her.

Manila Confident

Manila, itself, where the Philippine Red Cross had evacuated 5,000 persons from the thickly populated district with bus drivers volunteering to help, was confident.

During a morning air-raid alarm the people ran to shelter but within an hour—while the alarm still was effective—they moved about freely and boys pitched pennies, glancing upward only occasionally.

The civilians remaining here appear calmer than at any time since hostilities were opened by the Japanese.

Along the downtown streets the crowds cheer loudly for the reinforcements moved northward in "blitzbuggies"—commandeered buses.

From among the watchers, the shout arose:

DEC 13 1941

"Give 'em hell!"

To guard against food hoarding President Manuel Quezon has ordered a civilian emergency administration to commandeer food supplies and stocks to prime necessities. He has called the National Assembly into extraordinary session to consider emergency legislation.

Small Japanese Forces Effect Landings but "Situation Is in Hand;" Heavy Damage Done by Attacks on Cavite

DEC 13 1941

Manila, Dec. 12 (AP).—Japanese warships fled from American surface ships in the first encounter of the two fleets since the war began and darkness prevented the Americans from renewing the action, it was reported today as Japan hurled fresh land and air attacks on the Philippines.

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, said ships from his command have had only one encounter with the Japanese warships but that ended without result. The size of the fleets involved was not stated.

However, he acknowledged that the Japanese air force had scored heavily in the "successful" raid Wednesday on the Cavite naval yard off Manila and that the raid caused a "considerable loss of life."

He said a single direct bomb hit smashed a Navy dispensary in Cavite, killing all nurses, doctors and patients in the building. Their number is not yet known.

Admiral Hart said the Japanese had not been bombing hospitals, but that the dispensary was in the midst of a legitimate military objective.

At the same time, the Far Eastern army command announced that Japanese planes had raided widespread sections of the Philippines and an army spokesman said a small Japanese force apparently had landed at Legaspi, 250 miles southeast of Manila.

The Japanese attacked Olongapo, 50 miles west of Manila, one of the most important naval installations in the Philippines; the province of Batangas, and Clark Field, 40 miles north of Manila.

The spokesman also declared that the Japanese had improved their strength in northern Luzon but that the "situation remains unchanged materially."

In a lengthy report on the naval actions thus far, Admiral Hart announced that a naval flier trailed a Japanese battleship, the Kongo or a ship similar to her, off northwest Luzon until other naval planes could come up and "seriously cripple" the vessel with bombs.

The army also cited one of its aviators, Capt. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., for scoring three direct hits on a Japanese battleship of the Haruna class and leaving her in flames.

That same announcement told of Captain Kelly's death.

(No details of Captain Kelly's feat were given but it was presumed he died in the attack on the ship. The War Department in Washington said the vessel later sank.)

The Japanese attack on the Manila-Cavite area was made by a large number of planes flying high above the anti-aircraft gun range.

A total of 113 Japanese bombers were counted during the morning, it was said.

The announcement said they were dispersed, partly due to bad weather, but bombed various places.

It said one plane was shot down near Clark Field and fell in the mountains.

"Some time later a group of mountain natives brought in three Japanese aviators trussed up like animals," the communique added.

Six Filipino pilots attacked two Japanese formations of 27 planes each as they roared over the airfield in Batangas and accounted for two ships before the Japanese broke formation and fled into the clouds, the communique said.

Admiral Hart said the technique and efficiency of the Japanese were of a very high order and that "all in all it must be considered that the Japanese raid was successful from the Japanese standpoint."

He told newspapermen the Japanese were using two types of bombs, incendiaries—"and they work"—and fragmentation bombs.

Admiral Hart said he had received no word of the activities of United States submarines, but added:

"When the news comes it should be big news.

"Our submarines pack a big punch. When a torpedo hits anything it stays hit. But a submarine is like a big game hunter with an elephant gun who sits hour after hour, day after day, awaiting his prey. Sometimes it takes a long time to get results."

The Admiral said that the raiders did "very great damage" at Cavite and damaged some small ships tied up at naval docks. Other small ships were pulled away and escaped damage, he said.

"There was considerable loss of life, more among the civilians in the city of Cavite than among the naval personnel," he said, adding:

"We still are attempting to determine the total casualties. The list will be sent to the Navy Department. The naval men killed were mostly on duty."

The afternoon announcement at the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the United States Far Eastern Army, said 113 Japanese bombers were counted in the morning raids on the Philippines and that 11 were reported shot down.

The Japanese principally threatened the northern and southeastern shores of Luzon Island.

A brief United States communique issued shortly before 8 A.M. (7 P.M., E.S.T., Thursday) said the Japanese had improved their strength in northern Luzon, where a landing in force was started early Wednesday.

The war report also declared a small Japanese force was reported to have pushed ashore at Legaspi, a town of 53,000 population about 250 miles southeast of Manila on the Albay Gulf.

The latter report was partly confirmed three hours later when the Far Eastern command headquarters said the Japanese apparently had landed a small force at Legaspi.

(An official Tokyo radio broadcast said Japanese headquarters reported that Japanese landed on the south coast of Luzon this morning.)

Manila passed its third successive night without bombs, although the capital was under an air-raid alarm for an hour and 40 minutes early this morning—3:50 to 5:30 A. M. No raiders were reported.

The Army was silent on progress of the hunt for Japanese parachute troops who were said yesterday to have captured an airport six miles from Ilagan, 80 miles south of Aparri, on the northern tip of Luzon.

Filipino constabulary was reported organizing to mop up the parachute troops.

Unofficial but reliable reports last night said the Japanese were being forced back to the northern shore and the region around the port of Aparri was in American hands again.

(With the Japanese thus active nearly all around Luzon, the U. S. Navy disclosed it was taking a leading role in the defense of the Philippines with an announcement in Washington that Navy patrol planes scored bomb hits on a Japanese battleship of the 29,330-ton Kongo class off the coast of Luzon. The Navy said the ship was damaged badly.

(The Navy report declared this was the second Japanese battleship to be bombed effectively by United States forces. The Government already had announced that Army planes bombed and sank the battleship Haruna or one of her sister ships of the Kongo class.

Lieutenant General MacArthur cabled President Roosevelt in reply to a message of congratulations that "we shall do our best" in the defense of the Philippines.

been mortally damaged. The War Department in Washington announced that the 29,330-ton Haruna was sunk Wednesday, north of Luzon.

Capt. Kelly was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1937 and became a captain on September 9, 1940, after training in various flying and bombing schools.

A United States naval flyer who trailed a Japanese battleship for a long time in the face of frequent anti-aircraft fire until other naval planes could fly to the scene and "seriously cripple" the huge ship also was officially cited for his work.

The story was told in the report of Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet, on the attack on the Kongo or a ship just like her off northwest Luzon Island.

(This was the second Japanese battleship which the United States claims to have sunk or damaged.)

Admiral Hart's account of the attack on the Kongo was the first detailed action by the naval flyers to be reported from the Far Eastern front.

"The Kongo was last seen out of control and we are sure seriously crippled," the announcement said. (This action already had been announced in Washington.)

Admiral Hart's announcement said Lt. C. A. Keller, piloting a big plane, sighted the Kongo or a ship just like her off Northwest Luzon and held contact a long time despite frequent anti-aircraft fire.

Other planes arrived and Lt. Comdr. J. V. Petersen and other pilots in the attack group pressed home the assault under heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The announcement said they made "at least one hit and we think two. The ship was definitely out of control and we are sure she was seriously crippled.

"There was no fire when she was last seen so she may have been able to return to port."

Admiral Hart revealed that the American Navy had lost three large planes since the war started—two during the daylight raid on the Gulf of Davao about an hour after the Pearl Harbor attack.

DEC 13 1941

Air Force casualties thus far have been small, but there have been "plenty of attacks on our planes," he said.

Giving further details of aerial fighting, the Army spokesman said the pursuit ship (apparently that of Lt. Wagner) that was sent to Aparri, on the northern shore of Luzon Island, found 12 Japanese pursuit ships on the ground and two in the air.

[illegible]erican pilot shot down the air and machine-[illegible]nose grounded and re-unscathed," the spokes-said.

He declared that Lt. Col. Roger Helsman, a native of Texas who has served in the Philippines before, has the situation in Davao province on Mindanao Island "well in hand."

Lt. Col. Helsman arrived there about three weeks ago, Davao, with a large Japanese population, has been considered a sensitive spot, the spokesman added.

"There were numerous rumors of a planned large uprising there," he said. Lt. Col. Helsman, with the forces at his disposal, has 1,500 Japanese males interned. He reports everything quiet and under control."

Bullet Holes in Planes.

Admiral Hart's report said most of the damages suffered by American naval planes were minor bullet holes.

He said one plane was hit, in one of its tanks but the craft managed to return to its base on the other tank.

The admiral said American naval planes shot down one Japanese plane.

"Lt. Utter attacked three Japanese fighters and shot down one with his own guns," the report said. "Two others fled. Utter landed on the sea and taxied to the cost, repaired the damage and flew home the next day."

Flyer Who Died Sinking Haruna First U. S. Hero in New War

DEC 13 1941

Posthumous Tribute Paid to Capt. Kelly By Gen. MacArthur

By CLARK LEE

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Dec. 12.—A Florida-born West Pointer, Capt. Colin P. Kelly, jr., 26, who helped even the score which the Japanese ran up at Pearl Harbor when he planted three bombs on the Japanese battleship Haruna, paid for the sinking of the ship with his life.

One sentence in a communique issued by Lt. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of the Far Eastern Army, paid posthumous tribute to the young Army flyer:

"Gen. MacArthur announced with great sorrow the death of Capt. Colin P. Kelly, jr., who so distinguished himself by scoring three direct hits on the Japanese capital battleship Haruna, leaving her in flames and in distress."

Just when and how Capt. Kelly died was not stated, but it is possible that death came without his knowing that the Haruna had been mortally damaged.

MacArthur Commends Another.

Gen. MacArthur commended First Lt. Boyd D. Wagner of the Army Air Corps, who "distinguished himself by his daring attack on a Japanese air detachment at Aparri yesterday morning."

"When attacked by five pursuit planes," he said, "he shot two planes out of the air and machine-gunned 12 on the ground, leaving five burning. Wagner ended his terse report by saying, 'My gas was running low so I returned home.'"

Lieut. Wagner, whose home is at Johnstown, Pa., is 25 years old and has been in the Air Corps since 1937. He was commissioned a second lieutenant on June 16 of that year and was promoted to first lieutenant in October of the next year. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh.

'I'm Proud Of Him,' Says Widow Of U.S. Flyer Who Sank Haruna

Year-And-Half-Old Son "Will Be Proud, Too," Asserts Mrs. Colin P. Kelly, Jr.

DEC 13 1941

[By the Asso

New York, Dec. 12—"I'm proud of him," Mrs. Colin P. Kelly Jr., said simply and then, holding her year-and-one-half-old son close to her, added: "And 'Corkey' will be proud, too."

"Is there any word about those who were with him—the copilot or anyone?" asked the widow of one of the United States' first air heroes of World War II.

There were no tears in Mrs. Kelly's eyes as she talked of the 26-year-old West Point flyer and captain who was credited with scoring three direct hits on the Japanese battleship Haruna, which sank north of Luzon in the Philippines. Her eyes glowed, instead, with the pride of which she spoke.

"In Every Sense Of Word"

"He was an officer in every sense of the word," she said. "Even I, his wife, did not know what orders he had received, the places he was to go, or the secrets that he knew. He was a marvelous officer and I know that he would want to have died in action, as he did. I know that he is happy that it came in that fashion.

"I am happy that he has done this and has left his imprint behind."

She mused:

"And didn't he give those Japs something to remember him by?"

Mrs. Kelly, the former Marian Wick, arrived here last month from Honolulu to visit her parents. She received three letters from her husband Monday.

Plane Building To Flying, That's Wagner's Career

terest in a model plane club, today was hailed as a hero.

He is Lieut. Boyd D. Wagner, 25, the pilot officially commended in an army communique for "distinguishing himself by his daring attack on a Japanese air detachment" at Aparri in the Philippines. Lieutenant Wagner was credited with shooting down two Japanese planes in a savage dogfight and strafing twelve more on the ground.

Wagner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd M. Wagner, of Johnstown, and was described by friends as "typically American, from his head to his toes." His father is a mine electrician and his mother works in a Johnstown store. His sister is a student at Indiana State Teachers' College, Indiana, Pa.

Wrote Newspaper Essay

Lieutenant Wagner's interest in aviation led him in 1936 to write an essay for a Pittsburgh newspaper's junior birdmen's contest:

"The Junior Birdmen of America helped me to choose a career in aviation."

That won him a plane trip to Charleston, W. Va., and in June, 1937, he enrolled as an army flying cadet. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1938 and made first lieutenant a year later. His last trip home was in October, 1940, and he went to the Philippines two months later.

Johnstown friends of Lieutenant Wagner said he was "modest and studious. So far as we know, he has no girl—aviation is his love."

Spies Set Off Flares In Manila

By Russell Brines

MANILA, Dec. 13 (Saturday) (AP).—Fifth columnists set off red flares in Manila last night in a new outbreak of subversive activity and rifles blazed in the blacked-out streets as sentries fired under orders to "shoot to kill."

The rockets were sighted from downtown Manila early in the evening and others were seen from the bay front. Rifle fire was heard immediately from both directions.

Sentries and members of the constabulary, under orders to enforce the black-out and ask no questions, fired on several houses from which lights could be seen.

Pedestrians and motorists who failed to respond to challenges after the curfew hour also drew rifle shots from the sentries.

The firing lasted for several hours in one district. There a large neon-lighted clock atop a sign flashed on and was promptly shot out.

Streets virtually were deserted and what automobiles attempted to navigate were challenged repeatedly by the sentries.

More than 500 Europeans have been arrested in a round-up of Italians and Germans. Many Swiss, Hungarians and persons of other nationalities were taken into custody but later released. The Axis nationals were prepared, with trunks and even containers of food already packed.

A complete radio set and a transmitting set was seized from one German.

Man of Mark at West Point.

Capt. Colin P. Kelly Jr. was a young Floridian who transferred from the infantry to the Army Air Corps two years ago.

He was a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and made a distinguished record for himself there for the multiplicity of his activities. On his graduation in 1937, the Howitzer, the student year book, on the staff of which he had served for four years, paid him a high tribute.

"A combination of Irish blood and southern sunshine has given Kelly the best qualities of both," it read. "Equally famous are his drawl and his friendly smile; a temper perhaps, but one that rises to defend the principles that he cherishes.

"He has not devoted all his efforts to study and consequently has not achieved high academic rank, but he has participated in sports and other activities and has found additional time to enjoy thoroughly his life at West Point.

"He is positive in his opinions, vigorous in his actions all around and has a knack for making friends. He speaks positively and those of us who really know him well will be glad to say: 'I knew him when.'"

Capt. Kelly was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin P. Kelly Sr. of Madison, born on July 11, 1915. He attended high school there and after one year at the Marion Military Institute in Florida he went to West Point in 1933, the appointee of Senator Duncan Fletcher.

He went out for football his first year there, then turned his attention to cross-country running and to boxing. He was a member of the varsity boxing team. He sang in the cadet chapel choir, was a member of the history committee of the academy and was advertising manager of the Howitzer in his last year besides serving on its staff for four. He was a member of the Cadet Players, which presents the annual cadet show each year and he held a pistol marksmanship medal.

DEC 13 1941

A few months after his graduation in 1937 he and Miss Marion E. Wick of West New York, N. J., were married in the cadet chapel at the Point. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wick of West New York.

At his own request Second Lieut. Kelly, as he was then, was transferred from the infantry to the air corps. He was sent to Randolph Field for his primary training in September of 1937. He served as a student officer there and in October of 1939 he was sent to Kelly Field for advanced training. He was not formally transferred to the Army Air Corps until January of that year, when he was assigned to March Field in California and attached to the Nineteenth Bombing Squadron.

West Point Posts Communique

In June of 1940 he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant and in the following September was made a captain.

At West Point, Gen. MacArthur's communique praising Capt. Kelly and First Lieut. Boyd D. Wagner, another Air Corps pilot who distinguished himself in attacking a Japanese air detachment, was published in today's information sheet and posted on bulletin boards there.

Commissioner Asks Help From U.S. For Philippines

Manila, Saturday, Dec. 13 (AP)—Swift help for the Japanese-invaded Philippines was urged tonight by Francis B. Sayre, United States High Commissioner, who declared: "We on the front line are fighting to the death, for we have abiding confidence in our cause and in our leader."

"We know you back home will send us help and you won't permit divided counsels or capital and labor disputes or red tape or anything else to delay your getting effective help to us before it is too late," Sayre said in a broadcast to the United States.

"We are in the fight to stay," he said. "War enjoins upon us all: action, action, action.

"Come On America"

"Time is of the essence. Come on America!"

Sayre paid high tribute to Filipinos fighting alongside Americans, declaring "they are proving with their lives the loyalty pledged to the United States by President Manuel Quezon."

"Out here on the firing line we have come to grips with reality," he said. "We have seen Japanese squadrons of planes shining in the sun, dropping swift death and destruction upon portions of Manila and upon Cavite, across the bay. . . .

"Men are fighting and dying for America and American ideals. The American Army and Navy are on the job."

Airmen Are Helping Troops To Land

Claim Destruction Of 202 U. S. Warplanes, Admit Loss Of Ten

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Dec. 12 (Official Radio Received by A. P.)—Japanese troops aided by "human-torpedo" airmen were reported officially tonight to have landed in southern Luzon "to begin a pincer attack" on American forces in the Philippines.

Ten more Japanese planes were acknowledged lost in an imperial headquarters communique, which said nine pilots rammed their objectives in suicide attacks.

A total bag of 202 United States warplanes was claimed.

Japanese Admissions

The Japanese also admitted the sinking of one mine sweeper, heavy damage to a second and slight damage to a light cruiser, but took no official notice of Washington's announcement that United States airmen sank the 29,000-ton battleship Haruna and other Japanese warships.

Domei, however, in a world broadcast denied that the Haruna was lost. The agency quoted "authoritative Japanese" as saying that United States aviators apparently mistook the slightly damaged cruiser for the Haruna.

Moros Want A Crack At Japs

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Saturday, Dec. 13—Fierce Moro fighters of the Sulu archipelago, who traditionally dislike Filipino Christians, but who hate the Japanese more, want to join the fight against the Nipponese.

Assemblyman Gulamu Rasul, of Sulu, said today he would ask permission of President Manuel Quezon to form a regiment of Moros to join the battle. Besides their desire to fight the Japanese, he said they wanted to demonstrate Mohammedan loyalty to the Government.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 12—Friday night was uneventful in the Philippines, with only local activity in Japanese-occupied areas, according to an army communique issued Saturday morning in Manila and reported in an NBC broadcast.

"There have been no raids anywhere in the Philippines since yesterday," the communique said.

TOKYO REPORTS PINCER ATTACK ON PHILIPPINES

Says "Human Torpedo" Airmen Are Helping Troops To Land

Penang Island Raided

The army announced that Japanese warplanes raiding Penang island, off the coast of the Malay peninsular, had sunk one British ship and heavily damaged four others in a convoy, besides scoring hits on warehouses and port facilities.

Domei also broadcast a Shanghai dispatch saying that Japanese bluejackets had occupied Kulangsu island, facing Amoy, on the Chinese mainland opposite Japanese Formosa.

The Japanese Government announced a military agreement with Japanese-occupied French Indo-China, but gave no details. In Japanese-conquered Thailand the Bangkok Government was reported to have begun seizing British and American assets in keeping with its new alliance with Japan.

Pre-Dawn Landing Made in Southern Luzon, Japs Report

Forces Now Are Able To Begin Pincer Move, Tokio Declares

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 12 (Official Radio).—Japanese troops suceeded in landing before dawn today in Southern Luzon while in naval operations around the Philippines the Japanese Navy has lost a minesweeper and suffered damage to a light cruiser and another minesweeper, imperial headquarters communiques reported.

"Human torpedo" tactics by Japanese naval aviators were announced officially in a communique of the navy section of imperial headquarters, broadcats by Domei, which said:

"Nine Japanese naval planes have been lost. Their crews rammed their objectives. One aircraft is missing."

Against these air losses the navy section communique said that 202 United States warplanes had been destroyed, including 77 shot down, since the beginning of operations against the Philippines.

Slight Damage Reported.

The cruiser admitted harmed was only slightly damaged, the official report asserted, and continued to take part in operations. One minesweeper suffered heavy damage, it added. Most of the crew of the minesweeper announced sunk was said to have been rescued.

The landing in the Southern section of Luzon, a joint communique of the army and navy sections of imperial headquarters said, was made by the army in close co-operation with the navy and air forces.

"With this operation," it added, "Japanese forces now are able to begin a pincer attack against the enemy from North and South Luzon."

Attack on British Convoy.

The army section of imperial headquarters announced that Japanese warplanes yesterday sank one vessel and heavily damaged four others in a severe attack on a British convoy assembled at Penang, on the western coast of Malaya. The Japanese also attacked warehouse and port facilities, the army section added.

(The British reported considerable civilian damage in the Penang attack, but said no military objectives were hit.)

Already reported unofficialy, imperial headquarters announced at 5:50 p.m. today the conclusion of a military agreement between Japan and French Indo-China, which is occupied by Japanese troops. Domei said the agreement was signed Monday, but gave no details.

A Domei dispatch from Shanghai said Japanese bluejackets had occupied Kulangsu Island, facing Amoy, and the surrounding district yesterday.

Assets Reported Seized.

Thailand's government was reported by Domei to have begun seizing British and American assets within the kingdom, in keeping with her new alliance with Japan.

Domei said authoritative Japanese denied the United States claim that the battleship Haruna had been sunk off Northern Luzon. (The War Department in Washington announced the sinking of a battleship "believed to be the 29,000-ton Haruna or a vessel of the Haruna class.")

It asserted that the Americans apparently mistook for the Haruna a Japanese light cruiser which, it said, imperial headquarters admitted was damaged in operations against the Philippines.

Jap Troops Claim Taking Of Kowloon In Hongkong Battle

Say "Human Torpedoes" Blast Philippine Defenders

Tokyo, Saturday, Dec. 13 (Official radio received by (AP))—Japanese military headquarters said today that its troops have occupied Kowloon and surrounding British territory facing Hongkong and are preparing for an attack upon the Island Crown Colony, site of Britain's big East Asian naval base.

The Japanese announcement, issued at 8:30 a. m. (6:30 p. m. Friday, E.S.T.) said that Kowloon was occupied yesterday.

(Latest British advices prior to the Japanese announcement said heavy Japanese pressure had forced Hongkong's defenders to withdraw toward Kowloon, which is in the mainland section of greater Hongkong.

(The island of Hongkong itself is a strongly fortified fortress with numerous defense positions hewn from the island's granite and rock surface. There is an East-West range of mountains bristling with British gun positions.)

Hong Kong Is Raided Again, Japs Report

TOKIO, Dec. 12 (official radio) (AP).—Domei said large formations of Japanese Army bombers raided Hong Kong's military objectives effectively today.

Propaganda leaflets also were said to have been scattered, urging the Chinese populace of the British crown colony to revolt and join the drive for "a greater East Asia."

TOKIO ADOPTS NAZI BLACKOUT LAWS

Tokio, Dec. 12 (Official radio received by A. P.).—The Japanese Government has drafted German-style laws for the punishment of crimes committed during blackouts.

Domei, the Japanese news agency reported that they would follow the "German pattern" of the death penalty or life imprisonment for acts of violence or even such offenses as theft.

Tokio Reports Sinking The Arizona at Hawaii

LONDON, Dec. 13 (Saturday) (AP). — Reuters (British news agency) today quoted a Japanese communique broadcast from Tokio as saying that the 32,600-ton United States battleship Arizona had been sunk in action at Hawaii. The communique said the Arizona was the third American battleship sunk by Japanese.

[No further information was received which would indicate whether the Japanese reported that they had sunk the Arizona in the attack on Hawaii last Sunday, or in some subsequent engagement. The Arizona, completed in 1916 at the New York Navy Yard, has a normal complement of 1,358 men.]

DEC 13 1941

The same report was broadcast from Berlin, which credited Domei as the source of information.

Completed in 1915.

In Washington, the Navy Department declined to comment.

The Arizona, a sister ship of the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, was completed in June, 1915, and normally carries a complement of 1,353 officers and men. She has 12 five-inch guns and eight five-inch anti-aircraft guns.

Claim Three Ships.

The Berlin report said Japan was now claiming the sinking of the U.S.S. Oklahoma, 29,000 tons, and the U.S.S. West Virginia, 31,800 tons, in addition to the Arizona. The Oklahoma and Arizona, according to Jane's Fighting Ships, are similar in many respects, differing on the appearance of their conning towers and bridge.

Berlin also broadcast a Tokio confirmation that a British destroyer was sunk in addition to the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse.

EVERY PLANE RETURNS SAFE FROM FORAY

Invading Troops, However, Pierce Imperial Lines Below Thai Border

Heavy But Confused Fighting Rages In Jungles Of North Malaya

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 12—British bombers struck heavy blows today at the Japanese advanced operational base in southern Thailand as the enemy began a strong push into northern Malaya after twenty-four hours of comparative inaction following destruction of their original armored spearhead.

Every British plane returned from a second assault on Singora, fifty miles north of the British Malayan border, where the Japanese landed December 8 unopposed by the Siamese.

British Lines Pierced

Official reports said the Japanese penetrated British lines at several points just south of the Thai border, where heavy but confused fighting continued all day in an area broken by rough, jungle-clad hills.

British aircraft maintained continuous patrols over Malaya today, but nowhere found evidence that the Japanese were attempting further disembarkations or trying to reinforce the units landed earlier this week at Kota Bahru and Kuantan—respectively, 300 and 200 miles north of Singapore.

Japs Push Overland

The push which the Japanese pursued today was overland into Kedah province, a northwestern Malaya area bordering on Thailand.

Penang, the British island off western Malaya, again was attacked this morning, but there was no material damage to military objectives.

The first raid on Penang yesterday killed approximately a hundred civilians and damaged much non-military property.

Twelve American women and children and one man left Singapore today for the Netherlands East Indies, leaving 356 Americans and 358 Filipinos in British Malaya.

Those remaining include representatives of the Goodyear, Goodrich and United States rubber companies, the National City Bank, naval and military observers and Methodist missionaries.

Japs Fear Air Raids

The civilian population throughout Japan is living in fear of air raids, British nationals reported upon arriving in Singapore aboard what is believed to be the last British or Allied merchantman to get away from Japan.

The ship, which left Japan taking out the last Britons before the outbreak of hostilities, sighted two Japanese planes en route, and the passengers said one of the craft fired a burst of machine-gun fire without doing damage.

The new arrivals said shallow concrete shelters were appearing in streets of some Japanese cities, but that most population centers were without adequate bomb protection.

Jap Barges Dive-Bombed

British and Australian airmen dived to within fifty feet of the coastal waters to machine-gun "Japanese soldiers crouched helplessly" in sixty armored barges off Malaya, the BBC reported. Some of the ships were set afire, and many of their occupants left struggling in the water, the radio said.

Far up the China coast on the Hongkong front, heavy Japanese pressure caused advance British units to withdraw toward Kowloon in the mainland section of the colony.

A Rangoon dispatch said Japanese bombers in their first raid on Burma caused seven casualties and some property damage yesterday afternoon in the Tenasserim area, which extends southward into the Kra Isthmus opposite Thailand.

An Australian crew flying an American Lockheed-Hudson bomber from a base in the Dutch East Indies sank the Japanese schooner Nuya Maru, a Batavia dispatch said.

Strong Jap Blows Dent Malaya Line

Penetrations on Peninsula Only Local, Says Singapore Report

By L. Yates McDaniel

Singapore, Dec. 12 (AP).—A British communique admitted tonight that strong Japanese attacks had dented British defense lines in the jungles along the Malaya-Thailand frontier and said heavy fighting continued.

The penetrations, however, were described as local.

The British, meanwhile, struck back by air at the bases from which the Japanese drove south into Malaya.

The war bulletin said the port of Songkla (Singora) on the east coast of Thailand 50 miles north of the Malaya frontier was bombed during the morning.

"All machines returned safely," the communique said, "but owing to ground mist it was difficult to estimate the damage inflicted."

British casualties were said to be lighter than at first thought and equipment losses were reported slight. Recent fighting had centered in the Kuantan area 200 miles north of Singapore.

A heavy Japanese bombing of Penang on the western coast of Malaya yesterday caused considerable damage to civilian property, a British communique said today.

It said no military objectives were hit.

Of the military situation, it said that "there has been no change in the general situation either in Malaya or Hong Kong in the past 12 hours."

Penang Bombed Three Times

PENANG, Malaya, Dec. 12 (AP).—Japanese planes heavily assaulted Penang three times today, inflicting considerable damage and starting fires which raged on tonight. Broken water mains hampered fire-fighters.

Bombs battered the town itself and outlying districts, but casualties were negligible since the entire downtown area already has been vacated. About 100 civilians were killed in yesterday's raid on this island off Malaya's west coast.

Chinese Forces Massed On Indo-China Border

DEC 13 1941

Chungking, Saturday, Dec. 13 (AP)—Chinese forces are massed along the border of French Indo-China prepared to move into that Japanese dominated colony if necessary and are moving other huge concentrations towards Burma to aid defense of that British colony, warfront dispatches reported today.

In addition to these forces strong Chinese units are battling the Japanese in the vicinity of Hongkong and are thrusting eastward along the Canton-Kowloon railway in a dual operation to relieve pressure on the British Crown colony.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is in personal command of these vast movements, under way in Yunnan province.

The Chinese press meanwhile called upon Russia to strike Japan while her forces are spread over thousands of miles of the Pacific.

The newspapers predicted the Japanese would keep the upper hand for two or three weeks and then would begin slipping.

They predicted further an all-out attack upon Japan by the Allies, possibly in February, "when Japan will fade as the cherry blossoms begin to bloom."

Japanese Infiltrating In Frontier Area

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Japanese troops have been infiltrating into the Kedih frontier area of Northwest Malaya and British troops have withdrawn to prearranged positions, a British official said today.

The Japanese activity there was limited to patrol operations, he said.

Reports that the Japanese had made landings at Dungan, 100 miles north of Kuarlan, and at Kuala Trengganu, 50 miles farther north, were unconfirmed here.

This source said a heavy air attack had been made on Penang Island, off the west coast of Malaya, but that it had caused no military damage.

At Hong Kong, where British defense forces were said to be under heavy Japanese pressure, some British forces have withdrawn toward Kowloon, in the mainland section of the colony, this source said.

He added that Chinese forces were reported operating "in the vicinity" of the British crown colony.

The China radio reported from Chungking that a powerful Chinese offensive was under way along the Kwangtung front to relieve the Japanese pressure of Hong Kong. This broadcast said the attack started two days ago, and Japanese casualties already had mounted to 15,000.

Japanese Schooner Sunk by Australia

Batavia, Netherland East Indies, Dec. 12 (AP).—A Netherlands Navy communique reported today that an Australian airforce Lockheed Hudson bomber had sunk the Japanese schooner Nuya Maru.

The communique added that N.E.I. navy units were "participating in Allied action on the sea and in the air" and said no hostilities had taken place on N.E.I. territory in the past 24 hours.

This colonial capital underwent its fourth air raid alarm of the war at 10:30 P.M. (10 A.M., E.S.T.) today.

U.S. Citizens Flee Bangkok

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Bangkok, Thailand, Dec. 9 (Delayed) Numerous Americans and other foreign residents of Bangkok left for Burma today by train shortly before the first contingent of Japanese troops arrived in Thailand's capital.

Leaflets in the Thai language, bearing the signature "Commander of the Japanese Forces" and urging the populace to assist the Japanese, were dropped from planes and distributed by soldiers. Severe punishment was threatened for persons damaging railways or other communications.

Silent Thai crowds lining the road watched a second large contingent of Japanese troops arrive, presumably from French Indo-China, at 10 A. M. today. Japanese residents displayed rising-sun flags in welcoming the troops.

Workers Dig Trenches In Parks Of Sydney—Pill-Box Defense Posts Built

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 12 (AP)—Workers were digging trenches in the parks of Sydney and building pill-box defense posts in the streets of Brisbane today as Australia made ready to meet Japanese invasion.

Defense authorities expressed the belief, however, that the chance of sporadic coastal raids by hit-and-run landing parties was greater than the likelihood of any large-scale invasion attempt.

Any such raids, they said, probably would be accompanied by bombardment of industrial centers by carrier-based aircraft or the shelling of coastal [illegible] Japanese naval forces.

Authorities announced that air-raid tests were over and that the next sounding of the sirens would be the real thing.

Army Minister Francis Michael Forde announced all militiamen had been called up for full-time training.

Prime Minister John Curtin last night announced sweeping emergency measures to draft all available manpower into the armed forces and place the entire nation on a war footing.

DEC 13 1942

Single men from 18 to 45 and married men from 18 to 35 will be required to register under the new draft laws. Veterans of the last war were being mobilized for guard and coast defense duties. The cabinet laid plans for drastic gasoline rationing and checked fuel, coal and clothing stocks and air raid precautions.

Women rushed to answer a call for volunteers for the auxiliary services.

Government Takes Full Control Over Australia by Decree

Evatt and Roosevelt Exchange Messages Of Confidence

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 12.—Government by decree took full hold of this commonwealth today amid such new provisions as empowerment of the armed service ministries to make unlimited expenditures on urgent matters without reference to the war cabinet.

Foreign Minister H. V. Evatt formally messaged President Roosevelt that Australia is at war with Japan and expressed appreciation of the "initiative, courage and patience" shown by the President and Secretary of State Hull in the futile prewar negotiations with Japan.

Now, the message said, "the commonwealth of Australia is honored to be associated with the United States in resisting the aggressors until they are finally overthrown."

The President replied:

"We did our utmost to keep peace in the Pacific, but our enemies had decided on aggression beforehand. This is now a world war in a true sense. We are in it with you and you will not find us wanting. I need not tell Australians to keep a stout heart. I know you will and we will win."

Hawaii Defenders Fighting Mad After Japanese Stab at Islands

Civilians of Honolulu So Used to Maneuvers They Thought Attack Was Practice.

By Eugene Burns

Honolulu, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Oahu Island's defenders rose to magnificent heights of valor in the face of six vicious raids on this Pacific outpost by Japanese warplanes last Sunday.

The sudden stab has left them fighting mad.

Fifty to 100 enemy planes participated in the thrust at the Pearl Harbor naval base, the Hickham Field army base and the Kaneohe naval air base.

The first wave came over at 7:55 A. M., followed by others at 11:29 A. M., 11:59 A. M., 12:22 P. M., 7:15 P. M. and 9:10 P. M.

[In Washington the White House announced earlier that army, navy and civilian casualties probably would be 3,000, about equally divided in killed and wounded.]

Martial law was proclaimed after the raids and the civilian population, calm and determined, is co-operating splendidly with the military authorities.

Martin Vitousek, 17 years old, and his father perhaps were the first to see the enemy attack.

"Suddenly we were in the thick of a black-painted mass of planes," Martin said. "They rocketed from the sky everywhere and I saw on the wingtips the rising sun of Japan. When the first bomb hit, my heart almost went out of me. Then all hell broke loose."

He said that he saw three enemy planes shot down.

Ventura Mathias, 31, garbage department inspector, boarded a warship in Pearl Harbor to complain about illegal dumping of garbage a few seconds before the Japanese launched Sunday's attack against the naval base.

"I had just got aboard," he said, "when I saw about fifty planes flying about 100 feet high. All of a sudden there was havoc all around, and I ran off."

Thought It Maneuver.

Honoluluans, accustomed to army and navy maneuvers, thought it was just another defense practice when they were awakened by the explosions.

The whining shell brought Mrs. Burns and me to our feet. This was no maneuver.

I raced up nearby Tantalus Mountain, elevation 1,350 feet, from where Pearl Harbor and Hickham Field were plainly visible and saw three black plumes rising from Hickham Field and Pearl Harbor and blue patches of sky flecked with white bursts of anti-aircraft fire.

A Japanese sat on a concrete guardrail on the peak, smoking complacently.

Pearl Harbor was almost blacked out by heavy smoke and high overhead bombers roared amid intense anti-aircraft fire.

While I was approaching the office a bomb exploded less than 100 feet away from a hardware store and near by another bomb killed a man. One direct hit on an automobile killed its four occupants instantly.

The police handled the civilian situation beautifully in the emergency.

No Raids Since Sunday.

Army authorities said today that there have been no new Japanese air raids against the Hawaiian Islands since Sunday night.

Army authorities said that there were no serious overt acts reported and the entire area is quiet.

Army and navy project workers returned to their jobs Monday.

Business men summed up their attitude with: "They shot their bolt in one big surprise. They'll never get away with it again."

Travelers Bump Into Blitz

[EDITOR'S NOTE—The following dispatch, delayed by the censor, was written by Thomas Yarbrough, recently of the London staff of the Associated Press, who was en route to Cairo when the Japanese struck at Honolulu. He describes his sensations in the first Hawaiian raid.]

DEC 13 1942

By THOMAS YARBROUGH

Honolulu, Dec. 12—Our ship eased into the sunny Honolulu harbor from San Francisco Sunday morning at the height of the first Japanese air raid.

They sure picked a swell day for it. Thinking it was nothing more serious than a big-scale war game, we enjoyed the show immensely.

Scores of delighted passengers crowding the deck remarked that it was mighty fine of the United States Navy, timing it so nicely with our arrival.

A whistling bomb plunketed into the water about a hundred yards from our vessel and an American automobile dealer bound for Tientsin, shouted, "Boy, what if it had been a real one."

A half hour later we got the full impact of the sad reality. The ship's officer herded us into the lounge and told us this was the real thing and no fooling.

The bombing spectacle we had been watching—fire, the flash of guns, the ear-splitting crack of anti-aircraft guns before our eyes—was the opening stroke of the war on Oahu.

The officer who announced the news to us was perspiring and his hands were trembling. He took a deep breath and then he said:

"It seems there's a state of undeclared war between Honolulu and the United States."

Everybody wondered what he meant by "Honolulu" fighting the United States.

His slip of the tongue was cleared up soon, however, and we learned the truth.

He told us to disembark in groups

"The first direct blow of the war struck here with stunning surprise. This probably caused the people to be more excited than those I'd seen and heard in England many times in the last two years, but there was no sign of panic or hysteria.

Automobiles and trucks and fire engines with screaming sirens sped through the clean, palm-lined streets without slowing down for intersections despite the many civilians who were ignoring "take shelter" warnings.

Ducked Under Tree

As our group walked toward the hotel, a bomb whistled down alarmingly close and a chorus of anti-aircraft guns roared.

We ducked under a big palm tree—something new in air-raid shelters.

A grinning soldier across the street called out: "It looks like the real McCoy!"

A boy on a bicycle came down the street with a load of newspaper extras.

They carried these banner lines four inches high:

"War! Oahu Bombed By Japanese Planes."

Excitement Over by Monday

The excitement of the war of surprise wore off Monday. Thousands of Christmas shoppers mingled with Army guardsmen.

The stores closed at 4:30 p. m., allowing employees and customers alike to start home before darkness.

Soldiers halted thousands who wandered into downtown buildings without knowing they had become official quarters.

Details of the audacious raid developed with startling swiftness.

The first fatality was a ten-year-old Portuguese girl. Thereafter the toll mounted, with six, then eight, and then with a carful killed,

'This Is Mock Maneuver' Jap Consul Told Reporter

By EUGENE BURNS

Honolulu, Dec. 12 (AP)—"This is just a mock maneuver!"

That was the statement the Japanese counsul gave me Sunday as Nippon planes raided these islands with screaming bombs, and as fragments of anti-aircraft shells clattered to the pavement.

A few minutes later that consul, Kazuo Kita, was caught by detectives as he burned his official papers in a tub.

The audacious, shocking attack didn't paralyze the people here—it filled them with a tremendous resentment and courage. Of them Lieut.-Col. Kendall J. Fielder said "Your behavior and spirit under fire conformed to the best traditions of a free people."

It was impossible to transmit messages to the United States, but during that period we jotted down notes.

"Big gas tank fired," one read. "Subsequently blaze put out by heroic action."

"Row of 20 houses burning," said another. Others included:

"Army Intelligence said 'we want people to continue with their normal peacetime endeavor as nearly as practicable and avoid congregating.'"

"Three Japs riding in green sedan told person 'give up your money or you'll get plenty of this;'

"Planes strafed Wahiawa and injured ten;"

Paper Misses Story

One paper here didn't carry the biggest story in Hawaii's history. Six hours before the raid a vital gear broke in the press assembly.

All food retailers and wholesalers were closed on Tuesday for an inventory. A gasoline-rationing order was issued. No civilian could get more than a half a tankful.

Business places were ordered to close at 4:30 p. m. daily, allowing employees, as well as customers, to reach home before the blackout.

Honolulu business men are discussing plans for establishment of air-raid shelters. These plans include commandeering of all basements. Classrooms of the University of Hawaii were turned into an evacuation center for defense housing.

Heretofore in Hawaii every one has referred most politely to Japanese as "Japanese." Now the word always is "Japs."

The l...on at Waikiki, famed as a playground, was deserted today. From the Elk's Club, near Diamond Head, to the Niumalu Hotel, just two figures in bathing suits could be seen. They were little lads, aged nine and twelve, industriously filling sandbags and stacking them on the sidewalk near Oahu Street.

There were about twenty filled sandbags there, and several hundred empty bags waiting to be filled, a big job to be done.

When asked what they were doing, the boys replied, "The bags were there to be filled, and we didn't have anything else to do and so we're filling them."

All Tackle Defense Jobs

Overnight, Honolulu swung over completely from a playground into a taut but tough and mobile defense unit, with every one from the Governor to the youngest boy and girl Scout fitting into his niche for defense.

By 11 a. m. Sunday, civilian Red Cross and defense units were functioning at their assigned stations.

It was the first test for the provisional police force, composed of Legionnaires, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other civilians who have been training for months and last spring participated in Army maneuvers. They supplemented regular police in handling traffic and guarding important positions throughout the city.

Refugees from the fire-destroyed district of Waikiki and the McCully area were placed in schoolhouses. In school kitchens, domestic science teachers and cafeteria employees quickly transformed themselves into emergency war-relief workers.

As soon as regulations from authorities were promulgated at noon Monday Honolulu slipped into the groove. Ice deliveries, though delayed, were made daily.

Santa Clauses peered from windows through crisscrossed tape. Salvation Army kettles, inviting Christmas aid, dotted streets patrolled by helmeted and armed infantrymen.

Theaters, closed since Saturday night, opened at 10 a. m. Wednesday, and enjoyed a rush of patrons. Laughter greeted "The Great Dictator" in a downtown theater.

Honolulu Raid Called Unlike London's Worst

Veteran of Both Declares Attack on Hawaii Was Comparatively 'Small Fry'

The following dispatch, delayed by the censor, was written by Thomas Yarbrough, recently of the London staff of The Associated Press, who was en route to Cairo on a new assignment when the Japanese struck at Honolulu. Mr. Yarbrough, who was a veteran of many bomb raids in London, describes the first Hawaiian raid.

By Thomas Yarbrough

HONOLULU, Dec. 12 (AP).—London was ready. Honolulu was caught on the wrong foot.

The most striking difference was the suddenness and the extreme difficulty of believing the attack was the real thing.

The most striking sameness was the way the people reacted. Just as in London, nearly everybody had a fine case of jitters for the first few hours, then settled down to the job of getting used to the strange new ways of war.

Judging by the civilian casualties and damage to residential and business property, Honolulu's raid was small fry compared with the worst assaults upon London. Some bombs in London tore up whole intersections and knocked down rows of houses. The biggest crater here is five feet in diameter.

The Britons always wondered how Americans would take it and were inclined to argue when Americans in London asserted that our cities would show the same steadiness that caused the world to salute Londoners. Honolulu did.

More Ships, Guns, Planes, Knox Urges From Hawaii

San Diego, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP).—More ships, more guns, more planes—faster and faster—were demanded by Secretary of the Navy Knox in a message from Honolulu.

The message, addressed to the inspector of naval aviation here and relayed to aircraft companies and other war industries, read:

"The enemy has struck a savage, treacherous blow. We are at war, all of us. There is not time now for disputes or delays of any kind. We must have ships and more ships, guns and more guns, planes and more planes, men and more men—faster and faster. There is no time to lose. The Navy must lead the way. Speed up—it is your Navy and your nation."

KNOX SPEECH NOT HEARD

NEW YORK, Saturday, Dec. 13 (AP)—Honolulu did not respond early today to attempts to establish contact for an N. B. C. broadcast to the United States by Navy Secretary Frank Knox. Plans were cancelled.

LATIN AMERICA BACKS UP U. S.

Roosevelt Calls Republics' Attitude Excellent.

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Excellent and wholly satisfactory was the way President Roosevelt described today the attitude of Latin American governments in support of the position of the United States.

The President did not elaborate on that point at his press conference. Replying to a question, he said he did not know yet who would represent this Government at the forthcoming Inter-American conference at Rio de Janeiro.

Latin America And The War

Port Au Prince, Dec. 12—Haiti declared war today against Germany and Italy after President Elie Lescot had asserted that the United States' cause was also Haiti's and the American continent's.

"The Haitian nation which emerged from slavery will do everything to crush the forces which intend to enslave peoples, and this country is prepared to undergo bombing and burning rather than come under the yoke of Naziism and Fascism," Lescot told the Legislature.

San Salvadore, Dec. 12—The Salvadorean Congress declared war on Italy and Germany at noon today.

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Cuban Ambassador Concheso informed the United States today that Cuba has declared war on Germany and Italy. The message was delivered to Under Secretary of State Welles.

The Ambassador had previously informed Welles of Cuba's earlier declaration against Japan.

Havana, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista tonight ordered immediate confiscation of all Italian, German and Japanese holdings and internment of the Axis nationals on the Isle of Palms, forty miles south of Havana province in the Caribbean.

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, Dec. 12 (AP) — The Government today ordered the arrest of all Germans and Italians, established telegraphic censorship and assumed control of all funds of Japnaese, Italians and Germans.

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 12 (AP)—Morning newspapers reported today that the Japanese agricultural colony at Corinto had been searched and a number of rifles and revolvers seized by Colombian authorities who ordered all Japanese to remain within the limits of the colony.

Colombia is withholding a declaration of war on the Axis powers because of a constitutional provision which would postpone national elections if the nation were at war, Government sources said today. A Presidential election is due in February.

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Nicaraguan army and police began last night rounding up Germans and Italians for internment. Control of their property will be taken over by the Nicaraguan government.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Venezuelan government decreed freezing of all Axis funds today.

Montevideo, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Alfredo Baldomir announced tonight that Uruguay would regard the United States and all other American countries at war with Germany, Italy and Japan as non-belligerents.

German, Italian and Japanese funds were frozen.

Santiago, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Chilean army has artillery needed to defend the Straits of Magellan, but expects the United States to supply other necessary defense weapons, Defense Minister Juvenal Henandez said tonight.

He said Chile would propose a meeting of the Chilean, Argentine and Brazilian general staffs to plan continental defense of the straits, important sea lane around the southern tip of South America.

Mexico Breaks Off Relations and Brazil Reaffirms Solidarity

By the Associated Press.

The Western Hemisphere's position as a barrier separating the Oriental and European members of the Axis was solidified further today by declarations of war by five Latin American republics against Germany and Italy.

Costa Rica, first of the 21 American republics to declare war against Japan, took similar action yesterday against Germany and Italy.

Cuba, Nicaragua, the Dominican Republic and Guatemala followed with similar declarations and Mexico broke off diplomatic relations with the Third Reich and Italy, as she had done previously with Japan.

Implementing Mexico's latest action was an offer by the Mexican Confederation of Workers of 300,000 armed members for any required national service.

Brazil reaffirmed her previously-proclaimed solidarity with the United States and other American republics, "in view of the declaration of war by Germany and Italy" against the United States.

The Colombian Senate unanimously voted far-reaching military and financial emergency powers to teh government early today to cope with the international situation. The Chamber previously had approved.

The Berlin radio reported in a dispatch from Tokio that Japan had blocked credits to Argentina, Peru, Brazil, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras, Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

ALL OUT AID TO U. S. PLEDGED BY CHINA

Roosevelt Gets a Message From Chiang Kai-shek.

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—China today offered the United States "all we have," pledging to fight with Americans until "the Pacific and the world are freed from the curse of brute force and endless perfidy."

The offer was included in a message to President Roosevelt from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in response to a message sent the Chinese leader by the President on December 9.

Chiang's message, made public by the State Department, said:

"In this tragic hour when you too are assailed by the treacherous aggressor, the people of China renew their gratitude to the people of the United States for the understanding and help that have been given us. "To our now common battle we offer all we are and all we have to stand with you until the Pacific and the world are freed from the curse of brute force and endless perfidy."

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Polish government in exile declared war on Japan today. President Wladyslaw Raczkiewiecz signed the declaration at the recommendation of the Polish cabinet.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Dec. 12-(AP)-Congress declared war today on Germany and Italy. War against Japan already has been declared.

GREEK EXILES CUT TIES WITH JAPAN

Recall Minister and Get Thanks From Hull.

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The Greek Government in exile in London today broke off diplomatic relations with Japan.

A note delivered at the State Department by the Greek Minister declared that the Greek Minister at Tokio had been ordered to leave as an expression of unqualified disapprobation. Sentiments were expressed favoring the common struggles of the free peoples in behalf of international justice and against brute force."

The Greek Minister in Washington is Simon P. Diamantopoulos.

DEC 13 1942

Secretary Hull immediately expressed the full appreciation of the United States for the renewed evidence of Greece's cooperation.

"The Greek Government," Mr. Hull said, "has demonstrated, by its early action, at once its opposition to aggression, its abnorrence of the Japanese attack, and its friendship for the Government and people of the United States."

The Greek fleet has joined the fight upon Japan in Asiatic waters, according to a cable received today by the Greek Daily Herald, 140 West 26th street, from its London correspondent.

The Herald's dispatch follows: "Already first Greek-Japanese clash in Indian Ocean where Greek fleet arrived some time ago. Torpedo boat Aetos was attacked by Japanese submarine. Two torpedoes directed against Aetos but both failed hit. Aetos counter-attacked by deep charges. Very probably enemy submarine was hit. Presumably destroyed. Aetos suffered no damage, no casualties."

TIENTSIN SILVER SEIZED BY TOKIO

Several Million Dollars' Worth Taken Over.

30 24-134 99

Berlin, Dec. 12 (Official radio received by A. P.).—A Japanese announcement tonight said that several million dollars' worth of silver bullion had been seized by Japanese troops occupying the British and French concessions at Tientsin, North China. Part of the money will be given to Chinese banks to cover payments to the (Japanese controlled) Federal Reserve Bank and the remainder will be used to strengthen its reserves, it was said.

This silver bullion, backing for 55,000,000 Yuan notes of the Chinese Republic, was on deposit in British and French banks at Tientsin when the Japanese took over Tientsin early in the Sino-Japanese war. The Japanese demanded the silver on behalf of the North China puppet government which they established as a forerunner to the present Nanking regime.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Navy Ministry announced tonight seizure of two Japanese boats and detention of their crews for illegal fishing off Lower California.

Jap Ship Bombed Off Costa Rica

DEC 13 1941

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 13.—The government announced today that United States Navy patrol planes intercepted and bombed off the Costa Rican coast the fishing boat Albert, carrying a Japanese crew and flying the American flag.

The boat, which had taken on fuel oil at Punta Arenas, turned back and the Japanese crewmen were interned.

Reports said the U. S. planes apparently made no attempt to hit the Albert. At first the planes were believed to have been Japanese, and panic momentarily spread through the port.

At first the planes were believed to have been Japanese, and panic momentarily spread through the port. Calm was restored when the planes' identity was established.

Rep. Van Zandt Returns Japanese Decoration

DEC 13 1941

Lieutenant in Naval Reserve To Report for Duty Today With Atlantic Fleet

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Representative Van Zandt (Rep., Pa.), former commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, returned today a Japanese decoration he received in 1936 and announced he would report for duty tomorrow with the Atlantic fleet to help avenge the Pearl Harbor attack.

Van Zandt is a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve. He said his active duty may not be for the entire duration of the emergency, "but I hope to serve sufficient periods of time to enable me to serve both my constituents and my country."

The Pennsylvanian as commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars headed a good-will delegation to Japan five years ago and received from the Imperial Reservists Association of Japan a decoration inscribed, "In token of our friendship and hands across the sea to endure to the end of the world."

Philippine Attack Is Following Plan Army Anticipated

DEC 18 1941

Only Successful Invasion Must Be On West Coast Near Manila

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—American-Filipino forces defending the Philippines have prepared for years to meet just such an attack as tonight's War Department communique indicates the Japanese invaders are attempting.

Geography and military considerations dictate that any attempt to conquer the Island of Luzon be entered on the west coast north of Manila, the capital.

Aparri, where an early landing was made, is ringed with steep volcanic mountains, and is linked with Manila by only a primitive highway.

Legaspi, where another landing was reported, is more than 200 miles southeast of the capital by air, with Ragay Gulf and rough mountain jungle between.

Establishment of Japanese beachheads at these points was viewed by military men chiefly as diversions to tempt Gen. Douglas McArthur to divide his forces.

But the west coast north of Manila, in the vicinity of Vigan, San Fernando and Lingayen, is connected with Manila by substantial though narrow hard-surface highways, and also by a European gauge railway most of the distance.

Harbors are poor but long stretches of beach facilitate landings from the sea by means of small boats, presumably protected by barrages of gunfire from warships at sea and by warplanes overhead.

It is in this area that defense plans long have envisioned a wartime attack as most likely to be centered. Intensive preparations, particularly in recent months, have been made by Army forces to beat it off.

Invaders might be held at bay indefinitely in the far North Aparri area or around Lesgaspi, but only strong military forces could hope to halt a drive on Manila once major bases were established on the west coast north of the capital.

The war department's morning communique said the Japanese were augmenting forces which effected a landing at Vigan, but the night statement reported attempted landings between that point and San Fernando and also at Lingayen had been repulsed.

The peacetime war games of the American Garrison year after year have been based on the problem of halting a drive southward from the same area where the heaviest enemy attacks now are reported.

Farther southward, another point also closely watched by military men is the Zambales Peninsula northwest of Manila, and closer than the sector where the day's heaviest fighting was reported.

A landing on this peninsula might permit a drive southward within artillery fire of Corregidor Fortress, which guards the entrance of Manila Bay.

The defenders have been trained repeatedly to cope with an attack down this strip of land. They would be aided by rugged jungle country.

Significantly the day's first communique reported a heavy concentration of enemy forces of the coast of Zambales.

Russia Menaces Japan's Rear With Large Army and Air Fleet

DEC 18 1941

Use of Bases in Vladivostok Would Help American Bombers in Their Round-trip Drive Against Nippon.

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Russia has Japan on an uncomfortable spot today. The two nations are officially at peace. That status may continue. On that score, the Soviet isn't saying "yes" and it isn't saying "no." But Maxim Litvinoff, the new Russian Ambassador to the United States, spoke yesterday of Russia's fight with America and Britain in a common cause.

Official Soviet spokesmen, rejecting German peace feelers, sounded much the same note.

Such a Russian attitude, military observers here noted, is not calculated to contribute to the peace of mind of a Japan that is now fighting on three fronts in China, Malaya and the Philippines. And particularly since Russia has an old grudge to settle—her humiliation at Japan's hands in the Russo-Japanese war of 1904.

As long as Russia remains on the fence, Japan has a powerful menace at her back door, with air bases and bombers ready only 600 miles from Tokio. And as long as that situation prevails, Japan must immobilize a defensive force of planes and troops roughly adequate to meet any sudden Russian move.

In one respect the situation offered a striking parallel to that which preceded Italy's entry into the European war when France was forced to keep sizable forces on the Italian border as a precaution against an abrupt Italian invasion.

Key Cities Live in Fear.

And, while the uncertainty lasts, it was pointed out, Tokio and other key Japanese cities must live in fear that an unannounced Russian decision to join in the Pacific war may subject them to a surprise plastering from the air in the best Japanese Pearl Harbor manner.

Should Russia make such a decision, it would close the ring of military Powers about Japan and be a vital strategic gain for the Anglo-American front.

By striking suddenly and powerfully, while Japan is occupied in military and naval operations extending over thousands of miles of land and ocean, it is believed that the Russian Siberian Army might well alter the whole development of Japanese strategy and turn it into a strategy of defense.

The Russians have in Siberia two things which could be of immense help to the Allied campaign against Japan: an army and the air bases.

DEC 18 1941

Russian Army Larger.

Prior to the withdrawal of some divisions from the Siberian front to aid in fighting the invading Germans, the Russian Army in the East was generally considered superior in numbers and equipment to the Japanese forces facing it across the border of Manchoukuo. The Russian Air Force was believed to possess great striking power in comparison with that of its potential opponent, regardless of the Japanese air showing of recent days.

The presence of this army with its modern armored divisions, which Japan probably is ill-equipped to oppose with her predominantly foot-soldier army, has long been a stumbling block in the way of Japanese expansionist ambitions and figured large in Tokio's claims of pre-war days that she was being encircled.

Vladivostok Would Help.

The importance of Russia's air bases around Vladivostok is that, once available for Allied operations, they would greatly facilitate the bombing of Japanese military objectives from the Philippines by forming the northern terminal of a 2,400-mile-long bomber plane shuttle route.

To Tokio and return from air bases in the Philippines is a long flight for even the most modern United States four-motored bombers. A one-way trip to Vladivostok, where fuel and a new load of bombs could be picked up for the return journey, would be much simpler.

It is such use of the Philippines as a base from which to bomb Japan that makes them so strategically important to the United States at this time. It appears that the availability of complementary bases in Siberia would be no less valuable.

The question of supply problems was the period in which Britain, with Germany and Japan trying to keep pace, were experimenting with these big, fast but lightly armored craft as a means of supplementing the hitting power of orthodox battleships with new speed.

Behind The News

Jap Ego Suffers Blow In Sinking Of Haruna

UNRATED JAP BATTLESHIPS

DEC 13 1941

By Glenn Babb

Associated Press Staff Writer

Japan's Kongo-Haruna class of battleships, one of which has been sunk and another sorely punished by daring American air bombers, have a unique patriotic-religious value in Japanese eyes.

Vessels of this class were the first modern capital ships built by the Japanese themselves. They symbolize Japan's emergence as a great naval power. The sinking of the Haruna and the heavy punishment of the Kongo undoubtedly will have a dampening effect on Japanese morale if and when the high command ever lets the people know about them.

Each Carries Shrine

Each of these ships carries a small reproduction of a famous Shinto shrine whose name it bears. These little shrines are made of wood from the parent temple or contain religious relics from it. The Japanese, when they know, doubtless will feel that something of the divinity they claim for their race went down with the Haruna.

First of the class, the Kongo, was built between 1911 and 1914 by Vickers in Britain, then allied with Japan and anxious to foster her growing naval power. The other three—Haruna, Kirisima and Hiei—were laid down in Japan about a year later. In them the Japanese, with their fondness for imitation and adaptation, sought to use the British plans for the Kongo. Japanese shipbuilders had never before attempted warships of such size and power and there were well-supported reports of trouble in translating the British drawings into steel fighting ships.

Launching Trouble

One, variously identified as the Hiei or the Haruna, was said to have heeled over on her first launching, but this has never been confirmed.

The four ships originally sailed the Eastern seas as battle cruisers. That was the period in which Britain, with Germany and Japan trying to keep pace, were experimenting with these big, fast but lightly armored craft as a means of supplementing the hitting power of orthodox battleships with new speed.

But battle cruisers did not fare so well in the Battle of Jutland in 1916, Britain losing three of her nine and Germany one of her five. The Japanese virtually rebuilt the Kongo class between 1926 and 1930, increasing their armor, fitting them with bulges, increasing their tonnage from 27,000 to 29,330 tons and reducing their speed from nearly thirty knots to about twenty-seven. Still later the Kongo and perhaps the others were given additional protection against air attack.

DEC 13 1941

Scrapping a Joke

Japan went through the motions of sacrificing the Hiei on the altar of disarmament at the London Naval Conference of 1930. She was formally decommissioned, her big guns and turrets removed, she was painted a dazzling white and listed as a "seagoing training ship." Naval officers who saw her in that period said the alterations were such that she could be refitted for combat duty in a short time. She was used largely for ceremonial purposes, as the Emperor's flagship during maneuvers and at naval reviews and to carry the puppet Emperor of Manchoukuo from the continent to Japan on a state visit in 1934.

Non-Japanese naval authorities had little doubt that the Hiei was ready to fight again very soon after the naval truce ended on December 31, 1936, as a result of Japan's denunciation of the Washington Naval Treaty.

Japanese battleships are named for the old provinces of Japan—not the modern prefectures. But since the Kongo class began life as battle cruisers they are named—like the more modern 10,000-ton cruisers—for mountains which the Japanese venerate as the sites of famous shrines.

Named For Mountain

The Haruna took its name from Mount Haruna, about ninety miles northwest of Tokyo. The Haruna shrine yearly draws hundreds of thousands of pilgrims who worship there

Homosubi, the Shinto god of fire, and Haniyasu-Hime, goddess of earth and growing things. The Kongo is named for Mount Kongo, in Korea, site of hundreds of shrines and Buddhist temples. Korea had been newly annexed when the Kongo's keel was laid in a British shipyard and the choice of name reflected Japanese pride in the expanding empire.

Japanese Battleships Are Named After Mountains

DEC 13 1941

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Japanese battleship Hiruna, sunk by American bombing planes, and a blaatleship of the "Kongo" class badly damaged by bombs, were named after mountains in the Japanese Empire.

The Kongo Mountains are south of Nara, one of the most scenic spots in Japan, and the Hiruna Mountains, near Maebashi, are famed for their beauty.

With occasional exceptions Japanese warships are named as follows:

Battleships, after mountains and provinces.

Cruisers, after rivers, mountains, straits and channels.

Aircraft carriers, after mountains, dragons and birds.

Destroyers (first class), poetic meteorological names.

Destroyers (second class), after trees, flowers and fruits.

Torpedo boats, after birds.

Minelayers, after islands and birds.

"Kongo" and "Hiruna" have been traditional names for Japanese warships since Japan, beginning a modern navy to 1878, acquired its first steel-framed cruisers of 2,248 tons.

the same thing in Sunday's surprise attack on Pearl Harbor in Hawaii.

Reported From Vichy.

Two days ago the Vichy radio broadcast a Tokio dispatch that the Japanese aviators released their torpedoes and then "flung their planes straight at their objectives" in Pearl Harbor to repeat "the famous exploit of the 'human torpedoes' which marked the Japanese attack on Shanghai."

In the 1932 attack on Shanghai, Japanese Army accounts said that the "human torpedoes" were three privates who thrust lengths of bamboo filled with explosives under the Chinese barbed wire and died in the blast.

The blast opened the way for an infantry assault, the Japanese say, and a huge statue depicting the feat stands today before the War Office in Tokio.

Italy Used Such Squads.

Other suicide squads used thus far in the war are Italy's "mezzi" units which Rome announced participated in an assault on Gibraltar last September.

The Italians said these secret, fast little boats which are believed to consist of little more than man-carrying torpedoes slipped past Gibraltar's defenses and sank three or four ships in the British harbor.

In Italy's propaganda build-up for her Ethiopian conquest five years ago, Rome boasted about her "suicide squadrons" of aviators who were ready to dive on British warships should Britain oppose Italy.

But there have been no such Italian aerial feats reported thus far in this war.

Broadcast, Entirely Without Basis, Reports Air Attack on New York

UNDATED

By the Associated Press.

The Japanese people are being asked to believe that New York already is under air bombardment and its Stock Exchange closed. Here are two samples of the official Japanese propaganda broadcast by Domei and picked out of the air today:

"Shanghai—The Chungking radio, quoting a Reuters message, sensationally announced that New York City was bombed twice this morning by unidentified planes. The Chungking radio said that the bombings lasted between 6:30 to 7:27 and 8:06 to 8:40 (presumably Tokio time)."

"Saigon—It is reported from New York that transactions on the New York Stock Exchange have been suspended for the time being as the result of increasingly unfavorable news regarding the Japanese-American War. It is said that the cotton, sugar and rubber markets are still continuing business."

Both stories were entirely without basis.

Hitler Didn't Declare War After All

According to Nazis' View of His Speech

DEC 13 1941

Berlin, Dec. 12 (Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Spokesmen at the Wilhelmstrasse declared today that Adolf Hitler's speech yesterday was not a declaration of war against the United States.

Technically, they said, it was "nothing else but a statement of facts created by President Roosevelt's aggressive policy"—a "registration of a condition already existing between the United States and Germany."

Germany's declaration left [illegible] te Department yesterday morning by German Charge [illegible]s Hans Thomsen said, that Germany "as from today [illegible]s herself as being in a state of war with the United [illegible] America."

Hitler's mention of Iceland in his war address to the Reichstag jolted the inhabitants here out of their dreams of continued detachment from actual war. As the Arctic twilight deepened and the lights came on, Icelanders looked upward and welcomed the roar of United States fighter patrols.

Hitler said that "on June 20 American troops landed in Iceland, a move by which Roosevelt hoped to render ineffective the operations of German submarines."

There was a new warmth in the greetings exchanged as truckloads of British and American troops passed on the roads. Senior American officers characterized co-operation with the British as "very close and mutually advantageous to both armies."

'Let 'Em Come, We'll Pin Their Ears Back,' Iceland Forces Cry

By DREW MIDDLETON,
War Correspondent.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Dec. 11 (Delayed).—Declarations of war by Germany and Italy and Adolf Hitler's reference to Iceland brought a universal reaction among United States soldiers and marines today of "Now we know where we stand; let 'em come."

American troops, only 800 miles as a Heinkel bomber flies from German airdromes in Norway, are ready.

"We'll pin their ears back," they proclaimed.

American and British forces and their commanders have been in a state of instant readiness to repel attack since their arrival. Minor changes in routine necessitated by the state of war were carried out with calm precision.

Parliament to Get Proposal for Allied Council of War

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—Edgar Louis Granville, Liberal National member of Parliament, said today he would urge the creation of an Allied War Council to include Britain, Soviet Russia and the United States.

It was also announced that he would raise in Commons again the proposal for a British Empire War Cabinet, a suggestion turned down previously by Prime Minister Churchill.

At the same time Lord Strabogli told the House of Lords that unless the United States, Britain and their allies "can coordinate the far greater forces we have to bring against the Axis and return a blow which will win, victory will not be forthcoming." He declared that the "absence of any machinery for co-ordinating the military efforts of our forces and those of our great allies is a source of anxiety."

There is no sign, he said, that "what President Roosevelt called the broad strategy needed is being provided with machinery for carrying it out." He said, too, that "we have had disasters already comparable with those of the last war in naval losses—British and American—in the last few days."

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—An Exchange Telegraph Company dispatch from Stockholm, Sweden, said today that American journalists arrested in Germany had been lodged in a boarding house on the shore of a small lake in Berlin and were not in ordinary police custody.

Swiss Dispatch From Rome Tells Of Reprisal For Actions Against Newsmen In America

Bern, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Swiss telegraph news agency dispatch from Rome today said Italian authorities arrested six American correspondents in reprisal for the arrest of Italian newspapermen in the United States.

The agency did not name those arrested, but said there now are only three American journalists, including one woman, not under arrest although they are under police surveillance in their homes.

Ten other United States citizens were reported arrested.

Americans in Reich To Report to Police

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12 (AP)—Dispatch from Berlin tonight said all North Americans over 15 years of age in Germany or German-acquired territory must present themselves at a police station within 24 hours.

This decree specified that the North Americans could leave their homes only with special permission. Children must be listed by their legal representatives.

Berlin informants said departure of United States diplomats probably would be delayed for some time because of necessity to arrange such details as travel.

They said Germany was willing to extend diplomatic status to newspapermen accredited to Berlin if the United States would do the same. Correspondents would be considered collectively instead of individually, they added.

ing of the German offensive was a lie from beginning to end. "On the contrary," it said, "the weather has favored the Germans as the advent of winter this year has been late and slow. . . . It is not the terrible frost but our valiant Red army that now inflicts defeats on the German Fascist invaders while frosts, real Russian frosts, are still ahead."

The Berliner Tageblatt article containing the peace feeler asserted that Moscow was ready for peace if Germany guaranteed not to occupy Russia and abandoned the policy of attempting to annihilate Communism.

Says U. S. Reserves Will Grow.

Pravda praised the United States for firmly taking "its place in the anti-Hitler front" long before formally being at war with Germany. It said of the Japanese war that "the Japanese aggressor has plunged into a very hazardous adventure which bodes him nothing but defeat."

American reserves will grow while Japan's reserves will become exhausted, the newspaper predicted, and added: "That will decide the issue of the war. Japan will indisputedly suffer defeat."

The comment was circulated the official Russian news Tass.

Pravda Declares Reds Will Fight Germany, Confident That U. S. Can Handle Tokio —Promises No Separate Peace.

Moscow, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia will fight Germany to the end and is fully confident that the United States can defeat "the Japanese aggressor," official statements wirelessed abroad declared today.

Pravda, the official communist newspaper, said of German peace feelers—put out through the Berliner Tageblatt—that Germany would never get peace from Russia until the "Hitler gang" is ousted, and added that any peace would be "only by agreement with Great Britain and the United States."

The Soviet Information Bureau meanwhile issued a statement declaring that Hitler's excuse that an early winter has forced a halt-

The war in the Pacific will undoubtedly be long and protracted, Pravda predicted, but the United States possesses a "tremendous superiority" over Japan in production capacity for the present "war of motors and reserves."

DEC 13 1941

"In comparison with the United States," Pravda declared, "Japan is poor as regards resources of raw materials and her production machine cannot even be compared with that of America. It is sufficient to point out that the production capacity of American metallurgy reaches nearly 91,000,000 tons of steel a year, which is double the capacity of Germany, Italy and the territories occupied by Fascism, and thirteen times more than the production capacity of Japanese metallurgy which barely reaches 7,000,000 tons a year."

In reserves of manpower there is "no comparison," Pravda said, for Japan faces the united front of the United States, Great Britain and China.

The Russian newspaper said the Japanese "treacherously and without warning" attacked American and British possessions and the wide-spread simultaneous attack "testified that the aggression had been carefully prepared beforehand.

Talks Called Camouflage.

"The negotiations which Japanese representatives conducted in Washington were manifestly intended to camouflage preparations for this treacherous attack. Japan resorted to the method with which the Soviet people is familiar from experience of war against bloodthirsty Hitler, who in the same treacherous manner, like a bandit, attacked the Soviet Union."

The suddenness of the premeditated attack "determined certain temporary successes of the Japanese armed forces. The Americans sustained rather serious losses. They lost a certain number of aircraft and warships. Great Britain similarly sustained losses. A not inconsiderable number of non-combatants became victims of aggression."

The newspaper said the results of the first days of war in the Pacific "clearly demonstrated that the Japanese aggressor wanted to strike a blow at once at the most important strategic bases of the United States in the Pacific as well as at the vital strategic centers of the British Empire.

"However, Japan's initial successes can by no means predetermine either the further course of military events or still less the outcome of the war. The fact that Germany and Italy also declared war on the United States does not alter this situation.

"If Japan counted on the possibility of 'lightning victory' she is in for a disappointment no less cruel than that suffered by bloodthirsty Hitler as the result of his bandit attack on the Soviet Union."

Pravda predicted a "sharp intensification of activity" on the Chinese front.

The aggression did not come as a complete surprise to the United States because "a majority of the American people long ago realized the formidable danger threatening the whole world in connection with the predatory war initiated by Hitler and his 'allies,' the Communist organ said.

"Without being formally at war with Hitlerite Germany the United States firmly took its place in the anti-Hitler front rendering extensive assistance to the powers fighting against Nazi tyranny. The United States made use of the breathing space afforded by the aggressors in order to develop its war industries."

'Hitler's Gang' Ouster Is Prerequisite to Peace, Russians Say

Agreement of U.S., Britain, Soviet Also Must Come First, Pravda Asserts

By the Associated Press.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Dec. 12.—Ousting of "the Hitler gang" and a joint Moscow - London-Washington agreement are listed here as prerequisites of any peace between the Soviet Union and Germany, for which feelers have been reported from Berlin.

(The official Communist newspaper, Pravda, reported at Moscow that the German peace feelers were put out through the Berliner Tageblatt. The Tageblatt article asserted that Moscow was ready for peace if Germany guaranteed not to occupy Russia and abandoned the policy of attempting to annihilate Communism.)

David Zaslavsky of Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, cited these conditions in an editorial, saying:

"The Hitler gang is ready any day to sign a peace with Russia if only our government would talk to them."

At the same time, the Soviet government received from United States and Japanese diplomats formal notification that the United States and Japan are at war.

The United States notification, made by Embassy Councilor Walter Thurston, was received in what was described here as a "cordial atmosphere."

Hitler's Speech Heard.

Adolf Hitler's war declaration speech also was heard here by radio. There was no immediate official comment.

DEC 13 1941

New army gains both on the southwestern front and at the center before Moscow, where Germany's high command is declared to have substituted Field Marshal Siegmund List for Gen. Fedor von Bock, were announced by the Soviet Information Bureau in a Moscow broadcast today.

(A Pravda report also broadcast today from Moscow said Soviet cavalrymen of Lt. Gen. Kostenko had "recaptured an area containing about 300 villages" in the Olets area south of Moscow.

("Germans are hiding in attics, cellars and even in chimneys," the newspaper declared, "in the hope that they will be able to rejoin their units under the cover of darkness."

(London commentators expressed belief that local Russian drives were developing into a full-scale counterattack along the whole line against the frost-bitten German legions maneuvering now, by Berlin accounts, to dig in for the winter.

(If there was a ruse in the German announcement that large-scale warfare would be discontinued until spring, they said, the Red Army's seizure of the initiative apparently doomed it.)

Wage Violent Battles.

"On a number of sectors of the western and southwestern fronts," the Soviet communique said, "our troops, waging violent battles against the enemy, have occupied a number of populated points."

Huge quantities of war supplies were said to have been seized this week in the recapture of Tikhvin, 110 miles southeast of Leningrad, preliminary figures including 42 artillery pieces, 27 tanks, 10 armored cars, 102 trucks and hundreds of infantry weapons.

"The Hitler gang dreams of peace with us," Zaslavsky wrote, "because the whole of Germany longs for a cessation of the war, foreseeing catastrophe. Hitler promised the Germans victory and deceived them. Now he promises peace and he is also deceiving them."

Zaslavsky said peace with Germany would come only after the German people banished their leader and his followers and "this peace will be only by agreement with Great Britain and the United States."

The Soviet press continued through yesterday to publish communiques on the new war in the Pacific without comment, with most of the reports from United States and British sources.

RUSSIA CLAIMS TOLL OF 85,000 GERMAN LIVES

Soviet Reports Defeat Of Army Of 750,000 On Moscow Front

DEC 13 1941

Says 11 German Divisions Are Smashed, Surrounded Or Retreating

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 12—Russian counter-attacks at Sevastopol have forced part of the German forces in the Crimea to withdraw toward Perekop at the isthmus entrance to the peninsula, the British radio said today.

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Dec. 12—Russia announced the utter defeat of a crumbling German army of 750,000 men on the Moscow front tonight with 85,000 Germans killed and twenty-three of an original fifty-one divisions either smashed, routed, surrounded or retreating.

A special communique reported German troops in flight on both flanks of the encirclement front on the frozen Moscow plain. Red Cossack detachments were said to be slashing through the German lines, isolating division after division and leaving them behind for battles of annihilation to come.

German "Fiasco"

"Fiasco of German plans for surrounding and capturing Moscow," was the title of the announcement wirelessed abroad by the Soviet Information Bureau. An accompanying announcement warned the Germans that the Russian winter was late, with temperatures still around zero and "terrible cold" yet to come.

(The German High Command said early this week that with the setting in of winter the Nazi troops had entrenched themselves and that Moscow and Leningrad could not be taken before spring.)

"The cannibal Hitler," an earlier communique said, "decided to choose a different corner for his pranks and left the Eastern Front for Berlin in order to disclaim responsibility."

The communiques were broadcast from Moscow.

Germany was said to have thrown 13 tank divisions, 33 infantry divisions and five motorized infantry divisions into the "second general offensive" against Moscow that started Nov. 16.

The plan was to strike at Moscow from the north, south and west, encircling and capturing the city. First objectives were Klin, 55 miles northwest of Moscow on the Leningrad Railway, and Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow.

"Up to Dec. 6 our forces conducted fierce defensive battles, holding back attacks by enemy shock groups on the flanks and repelling artillery thrusts," the communique explained.

"On Dec. 6, our troops on the Western Front, having worn down the enemy, launched conter-offensives against the enemy flanks," it continued.

"As a result of this offensive both enemy flank groups have been routed and are rapidly retreating, leaving behind them arms and equipment and suffering heavy losses.

Between Nov. 16 and Dec. 10 the total results of successes are:

"We captured or destroyed (without taking air force operations into account) 1,434 tanks, 5,416 lorries, 675 guns, 339 trench mortars, 870 machine guns. During this period German losses amounted to over 85,000 killed. These figures are incomplete."

Troops under General Balov, the account said, recaptured the major strategic points of Stalinogorks and Venev, 100 and 130 miles southeast of Moscow. German troops which had reached this point had half-completed the encirclement of Tula, the great munitions center.

To the north a Soviet force under General Lilushenko was credited with smashing the German first tank division, the Fourtenth and Thirty-sixth motorized infantry divisions, capturing Rogachev and surrounding the northern pivot of Klin, which the Germans had taken.

In the "wearing down" period from November 16 to December 6 Red troops killed 55,000 Germans assaulting their positions, the communique said. In the counter-offensive from December 6 to December 10 they were said to have killed 30,000 Germans and recaptured 400 towns.

Reds Hold Initiative

The Moscow victory meant that Russians held the initiative on both the central and the southern fronts, where German troops still were on the defensive after the flight from Rostov.

In the north an official announcement indicated the Germans were suffering gravely from the Leningrad defenders' war of attrition and from the advent of severe cold. The announcement stated as an example that the Twenty-second Regiment of the First German Infantry Division had such heavy losses that it was disbanded and merged into the First and Forty-third regiments.

Many German companies before Leningrad were said to have lost as much as fifty per cent. of their men, and many troops there were still wearing summer uniforms.

DEC 13 1941

10 Tank Divisions Routed

In all, ten tank divisions and thirteen infantry divisions were reported smashed, routed or pushed back in the five days of heavy fighting on the Moscow front.

In the southern wing of fighting General Rokossovsky's troops were said to be pursuing the German 5th, 10th and 11th Tank Divisions, an SS Division and the 35th Infantry Division after occupying the town of Kistra.

General Govorov's troops broke through defenses of the 252nd, 87th, 78th and 268th Infantry Divisions and occupied the districts of Kulibyaken and Lokotnya, the communique went on.

Developing a pincer movement against the southern flank of the German thrust, General Boldin's forces struck northwest of Tula, routed the 3rd and 4th Tank Divisions and an SS Regiment and pressed on to surround the 296th Infantry Division.

Farther to the east in the Velev-Stalinogorsk area General Golikov was credited with pushing back units of the 18th Tank Division and the 10th Motorized Infantry Division and capturing the towns of Mikhailov and Yepifan.

The 2nd Tank Division and the 106th Infantry Division were reported in flight before troops of General Vlassov, who captured the town of Solnechnogorsk.

Another army under General Kuznetsov captured the town of Yakhroma, pursued the retreating German 6th and 7th Tank Divisions and the 23rd Infantry Division and emerged to the south of Klin, the report said.

The First Guard Cavalry Corps of General Balov, which took Venev and Stalinogrosk, routed the 17th Tank Division, the 29th Motorized Infantry Division and the 167th Infantry Division and was reported "pursuing their remnants."

Vast Debacle Indicated as Russians Hit Hard at Foe—Retreat From Crimea Also Is Reported.

DEC 13 1941

Moscow, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Russia today claimed a sweeping victory on the winter-bound Moscow front, amounting to the utter defeat of a crumbling German Army of 750,000 men, with twenty divisions smashed, put to flight or surrounded and strategic positions recovered on both the north and south flanks of the German line of siege.

The preamble to a special communique was captioned "Fiasco of German Plans for Surrounding and Capturing Moscow."

The communique said that the Germans in a futile second general offensive against the capital had thrown thirteen tank, thirty-three infantry and five motorized infantry divisions into their now miscarried effort.

[These reports indicated a success even more spectacular than the recent rout of the Germans on the southern front at Rostov. At the same time the British radio anounced today that Russian counter-attacks at Sevastopol have forced part of the German forces in the Crimea to withdraw toward Perekop at the isthmus entrance to the peninsula. The British broadcast was picked up by CBS.]

90,000 Reported Slain.

Victory was proclaimed in two communiqu issued by the Soviet Information Bureau and broadcast by the Moscow radio. Thirty thousand Germans were said to have fallen in recent actions, and 85,000 in operations between November 16 and December 10. In those twenty-two days the Russian land forces alone were said to have captured or destroyed 1,434 tanks, 5,416 trucks, 675 field pieces, 339 trench mortars and 870 machine guns.

Stalinogorsk and Venev, on the south flank of the capital defense line—actually to the southeast of Moscow—were reported recaptured with an advance continuing in several sectors west and southwest of the city.

Other forces captured Mikhailov, Yepifan, Solnechnogorsk and Yakhroma, the Russians claimed, and seven German division were retreating before the troops headed by three Russian generals in this area.

Mikhailov is 125 miles southeast of Moscow, Yepifan is forty miles southwest of Mikhailov and Solnechnogorsk is thirty miles west of Mikhailov.

Stalinogorsk is sixty miles east of Tula and 120 miles southeast of Moscow. Venev is halfway betwen Tula and Stalinogorsk.

Cite Defeated Units.

The forces of Gen. Lilushenko smashed through the German First Tank Division and the Fourteenth and Thirty-sixth Motorized Infantry divisions to capture Rogachev and surround the town of Klin, the communique said. Klin is fifty-five miles northwest of Moscow on the Leningrad railway.

Gen. Rokossovsky's troops, pursuing three German tank divisions, an S. S. division and an infantry division have occupied the town of Kistra, the communique said. Gen. Govorov's units broke through the defenses of four other infantry divisions and occupied the districts of Kulibyaken and Lokotnya. Northwest of Tula Gen. Boldin's forces, having routed two tank divisions and an S. S. regiment "are successfully developing their offensive, pressing on and surrounding the 296th Infantry Division."

The communique also added that the Russan had recaptured "400 inhabited places," and captured 386 tanks, 4,000 motor vehicles, 305 guns and a large quantity of other material. It said that hundreds of tanks and huge quantities of motor vehicles and other equipment had been destroyed.

Earlier tonight the Russians announced officially a continuing advance by the Russian Army in the southwestern sectors of the Moscow front.

The Soviet Information Bureau said that eleven German planes were destroyed yesterday, five being brought down in an air combat near Moscow. The Russian Air Force was also credited with destroying and damaging seven German tanks, 418 trucks with troops and supplies, five staff cars and 14 field guns and anti-aircraft guns.

The announcement said that "on several sectors of the western and southwestern front our troops continued to advance, inflicting losses on the enemy."

1,000 Nazis Slain.

More than 1,000 Nazi officers and men were killed and twenty-eight inhabited centers were recaptured in an advance on a sector of the southwestern front, according to an earlier Soviet communique broadcast by the Moscow radio.

[In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the Vichy radio quoted "neutral information that fighting has been resumed in the extreme north, on the Murmansk front, where the Russians had a certain amount of success."]

It said these successes were accomplished in three days of fighting.

New army gains on both the southwestern front and at the center before Moscow, where Germany's High Command is declared to have substituted Field Marshal Siegmund List for Gen. Fedor von Bock, were announced by the Soviet Information Bureau in a Moscow broadcast today.

A Pravda report also broadcast today from Moscow said that Soviet cavalrymen of Lieut.-Gen. Kostenko had recaptured an area containing about 300 villages in the Olets area south of Moscow.

War Supplies Taken.

"Germans are hiding in attics, cellars and even in chimneys," the newspaper declared, "in the hope that they will be able to rejoin their units under the cover of darkness."

[London commentators expressed belief that local Russian drives were developing into a full-scale counter-offensive along the whole line against the frostbitten German legions maneuvering to dig in for the winter. NAZI 'ALIBI' RIDICULED

Soviet Declares Red Army, Not Winter, Forced German Retreat

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (From Russian Broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press)—The Soviet Information Bureau issued this statement today:

Crooks and sharpers from "Hitler and Company," gambling house.

It is well known that the swaggerer Hitler had announced to the whole world that a solemn parade of fascist troops would take place on Red Square in Moscow Nov. 7. It is also well known that on Nov. 7, 1941, a parade did take place on Red Square, but that it was a parade of Red Army troops and not of Hitler's bandit hordes. When the Hitlerite crooks received from the Red Army a number of telling blows, they stopped boasting of parades.

More than that, suddenly the German Command totally changed the tone of its communiqués.

In their latest communiqués, Hitler's band no longer report the advance of their troops continuing "in accordance with plan."

The Germans allege that frosts and snowfalls are raging on the Eastern front and the "continuation of military operations on the Eastern front and their character will henceforward be determined by the advent of the Russian Winter. Since weather conditions do not permit large offensive operations, the German Command renounces them. Only operations of local importance are taking place on wide expanses of the Eastern front.

Thus the German fascist crooks and sharpers yell that their offensive was interrupted by the severe Winter frost and snowfalls.

Of course this is a lie from beginning to end, because Hitler's army of thieves has been receiving from the Red Army powerful blows one after another, regardless of the approach of Winter. Indeed, the first important victory was scored by Soviet troops in the area of Rostov, where at that time there was no frost or snowfall.

In the area of Moscow, which the Germans wanted to capture but from which they were forced to retreat, real Winter has not yet come, for as a rule the temperature did not fall below three to five degrees.

On the contrary, the weather has favored the Germans, as the advent of Winter this year has been late and slow. Hence it is not the frost and not "the advent of wintry weather" that matters, but the fact that the Hitlerite gamblers made an error in their bloodthirsty plans. And the cannibal Hitler decided to choose a different corner for his pranks and left the eastern front for Berlin in order to disclaim responsibility for the possible defeat of his army during the Winter. It is not the terrible frost but our valiant Red Army that now inflicts defeats on the German fascist invaders, while the frosts, real Russian frosts, are still ahead.

As to the so-called "operations of local importance," the following remark should be made:

When Hitler's troops captured Rostov they trumpeted about it throughout the world as a great victory which opened before them the road to the Caucasus. However, when the Red Army wrested Rostov from the German fascist invaders, the German command mutters that this was "an operation of local importance."

When Hitler's troops occupied Tikhvin they trumpeted about it throughout the world as about a major victory which placed Leningrad troops in a critical position. However, when the Red Army wrested Tikhvin from the Germans, the German command mutters that this is "an operation of local importance."

When the Fascists captured Olets they proclaimed to the world that this was the most important victory, but when our troops wrested Olets from the Germans they again mutter about "an operation of local importance."

Petty sharpers from "Hitler and Company" gambling house.

Berlin's Report on Campaign

Berlin, Dec. 12—(Official Radio Received by A. P.).—German military spokesmen said today that tenacious Russian counter-attacks against the German encirclement offensive at Sevastopol were repulsed Wednesday night.

DEC 13 1941

"Despite the heaviest losses the enemy kept on repeating the attempts to break through the German iron ring, launching attacks at times with the force of entire regiments," it was said. "At a number of points in the fighting sector fierce hand-to-hand fighting developed while the thrusts made by Bolshevist shock troops were being repulsed, but all these enemy units were annihilated or dispersed."

"German Army artillery all day yesterday effectively shelled Bolshevist field positions and bunkers despite heavy rainfall and dense fog."

Britain Adds To Her Watch On Nazi Fleet

Daylight Flights Over Naval Bases Are To Scout Enemy

By NOLAND NORGAARD

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—Britain has redoubled her watch on the German fleet to keep Hitler from taking advantage of United States-British preoccupation in the Pacific to loose raiding warships in the Atlantic.

Well-placed observers said tonight that daring daylight forays by British aircraft over the German naval bases of Wilhelmshaven and Emden this week were attempts to scout out the latest dispositions of the German Navy.

At the same time there are indications that British air, surface and undersea patrols in the Mediterranean have been similarly intensified to guard against new Italian naval movements.

Only today the Admiralty announced that a British submarine had spotted three Italian cruisers speeding south in the central Mediterranean and had probably sunk one of them. The fact these ships were at sea, in spite of Mussolini's unhappy naval record in past days of this war, is interpreted as an attempt to cash in on the Japanese diversion and get a much-needed convoy to the Axis African forces.

British loss of the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse in the Pacific and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal in the Mediterranean, plus added demands on the Mediterranean fleet and the fact that some cruisers are in the South Atlantic looking for raiders, leaves Britain more than ever dependent upon bombers, torpedo planes and submarines to keep German warships off the main seas.

If the 35,000-ton German battleship Tirpitz slipped out, for instance, Britain might now have difficulty in massing quickly another such array of warships as hunted down and killed the Bismarck, sister ship of the Tirpitz.

The same applies in lesser degree to the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, German battlecruisers which still are believed to be at Brest—bombed again last night—and to the pocket battleship Lutzow and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen.

From the standpoint of guarding Germany's North Sea exists Britain now has, however, one advantage lacking when the Bismarck was tracked down—far-reaching U. S. aerial reconnaissance from Iceland.

British Keep Close Watch on German Immobilized Fleet

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—The British were reported by informed observers today to be keeping an even closer watch than usual on the German fleet, ready to halt any attempt of Nazi warships to break into the Atlantic in an effort to take advantage of United States and British naval losses in the Pacific.

Daylight bomber forays over the German naval bases at Wilhelmshaven and Emden during the last two days were regarded by these observers as an attempt to spot the latest positions of Hitler's fleet.

The battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are believed still immobilized at the French port of Brest which, it was noted, the British bombed again last night.

Subs Sink Four Vessels In Atlantic, Nazis Claim

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (Official Radio).—German submarines operating in the Atlantic have sunk four merchant ships totaling 27,700 tons, including one large tanker, the high command announced today.

The war bulletin identified the ships as British and said a smaller tanker and two escort vessels were damaged seriously.

It said two British bombers were shot down yesterday and last night during R. A. F. raids on Helgoland and northwestern Germany.

Submarine Sends St. Denis To Bottom After Stopping It In Mediterranean

DEC 13 1941

Vichy, Dec. 12 (AP)—The French Government announced today that the French merchantman St. Denis was sunk yesterday in the Mediterranean south of the Balearic Islands by a submarine "presumed to be British."

The French said the submarine stopped the St. Denis and fired two torpedoes into her without examining her papers.

Three persons were said to have been killed.

The Government declared "measures were being taken" to stop such attacks. The announcement did not say what the measures would be.

NAZI REGIMENT DESTROYED BY EIGHTH ARMY

DEC 13 1941

Imperial Troops Sweep Westward Fifty Miles Beyond Tobruk

English Cruiser Shells Port Of Derna At Point-Blank Range

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Associated Press Correspondent

Cairo, Dec. 12—A new and destructive British offensive was proceeding deep in the Cyrenaican desert tonight, supported by point-blank warship shelling of the Axis base of Derna and other heavy naval action.

Rolling approximately 50 miles west of Tobruk through two days of blinding sandstorms, the striking force of the British Eighth Army destroyed a German regiment which once totaled 1,200 men, cut off parts of two Italian divisions and drew a swift and firm circle about Axis-held Gazala.

Within 60 Miles Of Derna

Advanced units plunged still farther westward, penetrating a total of 120 miles of Libyan territory and getting within 60 miles of the big Axis supply port of Derna.

The enemy had given no sign of taking a stand.

Ahead of the desert troops a British cruiser, screened by destroyers, swept in to shore at Derna within easy range and poured hundreds of 5.25-inch shells into the port in broad daylight.

Axis Ship Riddled

Officers said the barrage riddled a 3,000-ton Axis ship, broke up other vessels and demolished port facilities. Then the cruiser slipped away safely through the heaviest dive-bombing assault since the terrible days of Crete.

That was on the misty morning of Wednesday.

DEC 13 1941

[A Rome communique claimed "hits" by German planes and by other means on a British cruiser and destroyers which bombarded Derna both Wednesday and Thursday.

Out at sea in the central Mediterranean, a British submarine pounced on three heavily-screened Italian cruisers, headed south at high speed. The submarine sprayed three torpedoes and, the Admiralty announced in London, "one of the enemy cruisers probably sank as a very violent explosion followed."]

Nazi Regiment Destroyed

The German regiment which was destroyed was the Three Hundred and Sixty-first, composed mostly of middle-aged reservists, many of whom had served in the French Foreign Legion. They were rushed to Africa at the start of November and bore the full brunt of the British tank attack November 23, suffering heavy casualties.

Remnants of the regiment, first captured by New Zealanders and subsequently freed by German tank counter-attacks, were forced to participate in another German counter-assault December 2, although inadequately armed, and without tank or air support.

The Italian divisions which were cut off today were trying to withdraw from positions on the northwest corner of the Tobruk perimeter, under heavy pressure from Poles of the garrison. British forces, meanwhile, rolled in from the south and reached Gazala, blocking the Italian retreat.

Communique's Story

Today's British communique told this story of the latest advance:

New Zealand troops, pressing ahead with vigor, arrived yesterday at a point just east of Gazala; Indian and British troops occupied an escarpment south of the town and then pressed on west, taking in all some 620 prisoners.

The enemy was cleared out of the Acroma area west of Tobruk and today Axis columns west of there were attacked and poured hundreds of 5.25-inch shells into the port in broad daylight.

They were rushed to Africa at the start of November and bore the full brunt of the British tank attack November 23, suffering heavy casualties.

Remnants of the regiment, first captured by New Zealanders and subsequently freed by German tank counter-attacks, were forced to participate in another German counter-assault December 2, although inadequately armed, and without tank or air support.

The Italian divisions which were cut off today were trying to withdraw from positions on the northwest corner of the Tobruk perimeter, under heavy pressure from Poles of the garrison. British forces, meanwhile, rolled in from the south and reached Gazala, blocking the Italian retreat.

Communique's Story

Today's British communique told this story of the latest advance:

New Zealand troops, pressing ahead with vigor, arrived yesterday at a point just east of Gazala; Indian and British troops occupied an escarpment south of the town and then pressed on west, taking in all some 620 prisoners.

The enemy was cleared out of the Acroma area west of Tobruk and today Axis columns west of there were at-

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 12—British troops have destroyed the German Three Hundred and Sixty-first African Regiment, numbering 1,200 men, and surrounded Gazala in a drive through a two-day sandstorm, an advance that swept fifty miles beyond Tobruk, war dispatches said today.

Parts of two Italian divisions were believed to have been cut off in the advance, which penetrated about 120 miles into Libyan territory.

A communique disclosed that Gazala, forty miles west of Tobruk, had been partly encircled. Subsequent advices from the front described the town as surrounded.

Survivors of the German Three Hundred and Sixty-first Regiment disclosed they had had no air or tank support, nor means of defending themselves against tanks and planes. They also had been very short of food since November 21.

Admited By Decree

The regiment was composed of second-line troops, mostly reservists between the ages of 30 and 40. Many had served in the French Foreign Legion and had not been admitted to the German army until a special Berlin decree in 1940 authorized their enlistment for service in Africa.

Rushed to Africa early in November, the regiment bore the full brunt of a British tank attack November 23, suffering heavy casualties. After being captured by New Zealanders on November 25, remnants of the division subsequently were released by a German tank attack on the New Zealanders' positions. They were said to have been compelled to participate in an attack on December 2, inadequately armed and poorly equipped. The regiment suffered heavy casualties and finally the remnants surrendered, it was stated.

The hard-driven bid for a decision in the campaign, now in its twenty-fifth day, apparently was touched off as one of the first moves of Maj. Gen. Neil Methuen Ritchie, who replaced Gen. Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham in a shift of the Libyan field command announced by Prime Minister Churchill yesterday.

Within 60 Miles Of Derna

The communique indicated that British and Indian advance forces are within sixty miles of the Axis supply port of Derna, which the Italian High Command said was under bombardment by British naval units while British bombers reached still farther west and battered at Bengasi.

The Middle East Headquarters account of the push said New Zealand forces stabbing west from Tobruk yesterday reached a point just east of Gazala, while Indian and British forces from the southeast swept west of Gazala and seized 120 prisoners there.

"Despite bad weather and heavy sandstorms which have now continued for two days," the war bulletin said, "our advance is everywhere being pressed with the utmost vigor in a northwesterly direction."

It added that the air force, similarly disregarding unfavorable weather, aided the advance by battering incessantly at the Axis forces.

DEC 13 1941

Altogether the communique listed almost 1,000 Germans and Italians captured during the new thrusts. Besides the 120 rounded up west of Gazala, the communique said 500 were seized south of Gazala and 300 more were taken—west of the Acroma area.

Advance Is 50 Miles West Of Tobruk

British Navy Men Tell Of Derna Attack

By LARRY ALLEN

Alexandria, Dec. 12 (AP)—The guns of a British cruiser and supporting destroyers riddled a 3,000-ton Axis merchantman, blasted chunks of other ships hundreds of feet into the air, and wrecked port facilities at the Libyan port of Derna early Wednesday, the British officers said tonight upon their safe return.

Although the daring daylight bombardment stirred up a hornet's nest of Axis bombers and coastal artillery fire, none of the British ships was damaged and none of the crew injured, the officers said.

After the ships had poured hundreds of shells into the important Axis port, they were attacked intermittently from 8 a. m. until noon.

"We shot down one Junkers 87 and probably damaged several others," the cruiser's captain said.

The cruiser was reported screened with destroyers and fired hundreds of 5.25-inch shells in the first daylight bombardment of the Libyan coast since the current British offensive began. It stirred up a "hornet's nest" of enemy bombers which tried for hours to sink her, officials said.

Capt. M. H. A. Kelsey said that shells literally riddled a 3,000-ton Axis merchantman and damaged other vessels. In the harbor dock shops and other port facilities also were wrecked.

A cruiser-destroyer force had made a fruitless swing eastward through the Mediterranean in hope of intercepting Axis convoys bound for Libya when it suddenly altered course and headed straight toward Derna through rain and mist.

Axis Shipping Shelled By British Cruiser

By LARRY ALLEN

Alexandria, Dec. 12 (AP).—Sweeping within point-blank range, a British cruiser heavily shelled Derna on the Libyan coast in a daring surprise attack today and safely emerged from one of the biggest dive-bombing assaults since Crete. Axis shipping and harbor installations were reported heavily damaged.

Axis Withdrawal Continues.

London, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Axis forces are continuing their withdrawal west across Libya, harassed by British mobile columns, a British spokesman said today.

The withdrawal, he said, "is impeded by operations of our mobile columns and by losses of prisoners, guns and mechanical transport."

VALLETTA, Malta, Dec. 12 (AP)—R. A. F. bombers based on this Mediterranean island fortress dropped 50 tons of bombs on Tripoli and Bengasi in North Africa Wednesday and Thursday mornings, it was announced tonight.

At Tripoli the attacking airmen reported starting a fuel dump fire visible for 100 miles. Warehouses, wharves and shipping were targets at Bengasi.

Germans Bomb Tobruk.

Berlin, Dec. 12 (Official radio received by A. P.).—The German High Command reported today that its bombers attacked the port of Tobruk and rail lines near Sidi Barrani last night while fighting continued on the Libyan desert front.

The war bulletin said that British tank and motorized columns were dispersed by a German-Italian air attack and that six British planes were downed in dogfights.

It listed Briain's air losses from December 3 to 9 as sixty-nine planes—thirty-four of them in the Mediterranean and North Africa. During the same time, the High Command said, Germany lost eighteen planes "in the fight against Great Britain."

Derna Bombarded.

Rome, Dec. 12—(Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Relentless British sea bombardment of Derna, important Axis Cirenaican supply base 100 miles west of Tobruk, was acknowledged today by the Italian High Command.

The daily war bulletin said that German planes had caught up with the British warships which bombarded Derna Wednesday and scored bomb hits on a cruiser and a destroyer. Nevertheless, Derna was bombarded again yesterday by a cruiser and two destroyers, the communique acknowledged.

The communique also said strong British land attacks had been repulsed as hard fighting continued west of Tobruk.

[Derna, in normal times a desert paradise for travelers, with gushing streams and shade trees, is considered by military men one of the chief prizes in fighting for Cirenaica on account of its water supplies. It is the first important objective west of Tobruk along the coast. Sea as well as air bombardments indicated the British were extending their tank offensive along the coast.]

The communique said fire was opened on the cruiser from Derna and it may have been hit.

British planes also attacked Bengasi last night and the night before, the communique said.

Besides the push west of Tobruk, the British were said to have intensified their artillery fire on Italian and German positions on the Bardia-Salum front. German stukas and Italian dive-bombers repeatedly bombed British mechanized concentrations around Bir Hacheim, about fifty miles southwest of Tobruk, the communique said.

Italian planes also bombed the Valetta naval base on Malta, it was said.

ITALIAN CRUISER IS BELIEVED SUNK

British Submarine Reports Mediterranean Attack.

London, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The Admiralty announced today that a British submarine had torpedoed and probably sank an Italian cruiser in the central Mediterranean.

In an attack at dusk on three Italian cruisers heavily screened by destroyers, the submarine made three hits, the communique said, adding: "Failing visibility and a rough sea made accurate observation difficult, but it is considered that one of the enemy cruisers probably sank as a very violent explosion followed a few minutes after the attack."

Germans In Libya Using French Material

DEC 13 1941

Alexandria, Egypt, Dec. 12 (AP)—A considerable amount of French equipment such as motor transport, guns and tanks is being used by the hardput Axis forces in Libya, a British spokesman said today.

"But I can not say where they got it," he added.

Commenting on reports that the Axis may get use of Bizerte and other French North African bases, he said "I wouldn't be surprised."

Even if they unload convoys at Bizerte, the spokesman said the Germans and Italians would have a far longer and costlier trek across the desert than they now have with the use of Tripoli as a base for receiving supplies in North Africa.

A senior British naval officer said the Germans had no warships in the Mediterranean except for submarines, which are particularly active in the western area.

He declared the Italians have acquired a severe case of "cold feet" as a result of tremendous losses inflicted on their shipping by the British fleet and that there has been a noticeable slackening in Axis efforts to run the gauntlet of bombs, torpedoes and guns of the imperial fleet.

The spokesman said it was doubtful that the Axis could be able to send another armored division to aid Gen. Erwin Rommel's back-pedalling and rapidly depleting forces in Libya.

U. S. Will Take Over Eritrea on Red Sea For Supply Base

Thousands of Workers To Be Sent to Build Unparalleled Project

By ED KENNEDY

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Dec. 10 (Delayed).—The United States will virtually take over Eritrea for the duration of the war and convert it into an arsenal of the democracies in the Near East under an arrangement with Great Britain which was made known here today.

Title to this strip of land along the Red Sea, which was wrested from Italy by British forces will remain with Britain and its administration will continue to be British. But the United States will pour thousands of technicians and workmen into it to erect factories, assembly plants and innumerable other establishments.

It will be the powerhouse behind combat troops in this part of the world.

Well out of enemy bombing range, airplanes, tanks and other equipment will be assembled there and minor manufacturing will be carried on. American materials will pour into Eritrea and come out as the implements of war, ready for the battlefield.

Other more extensive measures which cannot be disclosed now are also on the program.

Cities situated in regions enjoying salubrious climatic conditions will spring up, linked to the coast by new railroads.

The task of converting this land into an enormous supply base, although staggering, will be carried out with lightning speed. It is an undertaking unparalleled in world history.

Plans include using available Italian labor in East Africa.

Portugal Suspends Visas For Americans, British

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Portugal has suspended granting visas to United States and British citizens, the United States Embassy said today.

The action at least temporarily denied to Americans in Britain and on the European continent one of the last means of getting home, other than by British ships.

The Portuguese, it was stated, gave no reason for discontinuing the issuance of visas to Americans and British.

Portugal Bars Aliens Seeking Passage to U. S.

Denial of Visas, Plus Spain's Closing of French Border, Cuts Off Refugees

May Strand Americans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said today that the State Department has received information that the Portuguese government has suspended the issuance of transit visas to Americans and others in Europe desiring to enter Portugal en route to the United States or other destinations.

Mr. Hull said it is his understanding that Portugal will still issue visas to Americans headed from the United States via Portugal for other destinations in Europe.

The reason for this appeared to be that while there are facilities for going from Portugal to other European countries, there now are very few facilities for crossing the Atlantic from Portugal.

Thousands of refugees from all over Europe, particularly from Nazi-controlled countries, have poured through Portugal since the beginning of the European war, and it was assumed here that that flow of refugees would now cease, at least temporarily.

The only American steamship line which has been operating between Lisbon and the United States has discontinued regular sailings, but there are still irregular sailings of Spanish and Portuguese vessels from that port.

It was understood here the Portuguese government's action was taken to keep Portugal from becoming overcrowded with refugees who would have no means of leaving the country and would interfere severely with its economy.

Spain Closes French Frontier

Lloyds to Discontinue Insuring U. S. Property

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Lloyds today disclosed it had decided to discontinue insurance of property in the United States and Canada against air raids and war risks.

The decision of the famous insurance house applies only to land property and does not affect war risk insurance on shipping.

Lloyds' policy regarding war risk insurance is the same as that already in effect in Britain, where the government has put into operation a compulsory war risk insurance plan.

17 NAZIS DEAD IN FRANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—The B. B. C. said today that 17 German soldiers on the border between Occupied and Unoccupied France were killed by French patriots. The broadcast, heard here by C. B. S., was in German and beamed to Europe.

Four Parisians Shot For Having Weapons

Paris, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—German authorities announced today that four residents of Paris had been shot to death for unlawful possession of weapons.

Two Belgians Doomed as Spies

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12 (AP).—An Argentine news dispatch from Berlin tonight reported two Belgians, Albert Thion and Richard Vande Walle, had been sentenced to death as British spies in Brussels.

Admiral Fenard Gets New Duties

DEC 13 1941

Berlin, Dec. 12—(Official radio received by the (AP))—A Vichy dispatch said today that Vice-Admiral R. A. Fenard, newly appointed secretary-general of French Africa, has been charged with coordinating the economic activity of French Africa.

He took over some of the powers relinquished by the resignation of General Maxime Weygand.

CHRISTMAS CARD A MEMORIAL NOW

London, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Through the odds of war the British Admiralty's Christmas card this year will be a memorial to a sunken vessel.

The card, chosen weeks ago, pictures the battleship Prince of Wales, which sank on Wednesday in the China Sea. The battleship is depicted flying Prime Minister Churchill's "Good Voyage" signal as he passed an Atlantic convoy while returning from his meeting at sea with President Roosevelt.

Free French Navy Chief Visits Newfoundland

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Dec. 12.—Admiral Emile Muselier, commander in chief of the Free French naval forces, is inspecting personnel under his command here and observing conditions under which they operate.

Authorities last night permitted disclosure of his presence. He will visit Canada shortly, but the date was not announced.

CANADIAN SHIP LOST

23 on Naval Vessel Die in Atlantic Convoy Collision.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Survivors said today that the Canadian corvette Windflower sank in the Atlantic twenty minutes after a merchantman in the convoy she was escorting ripped off her stern in a collision in a dense fog.

Twenty-three men were lost, most of them killed when the corvette's boiler exploded a few minutes after the colision.

Canada Will Ration Gasoline By Coupon

New Plan To Begin April 1—Announcement Made By Munitions Minister

DEC 13 1941

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (AP)—Canada announced tonight it will begin to ration gasoline by coupon on April 1.

Munitions Minister Howe made the announcement. He did not disclose the amounts of gasoline which will be permitted in various categories.

Private cars used for non-essential driving will be placed in the basic or "A" category, Howe said, and United States visitors to Canada will be allowed to purchase gasoline "to the same relative extent as Canadians who drive cars which fall within the basic category."

Commercial vehicles will get gasoline up to their proved normal requirements, and other categories will be set up to take care of private car driving essential for business use.

United States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—A War Department communiqué today said:

Philippine Theatre: The Commanding General of the Far Eastern Command reports the Japanese are making a series of concentric thrusts on the island of Luzon. Enemy concentrations are reported at Legaspi and off the west coast of Zambales. The enemy is augmenting its forces at Aparri and Vigan.

Hawaii: No operations reported.

West Coast: No change in the situation.

The War Department communiqué tonight said:

Philippine Theatre: Japanese air activity continued throughout the day with raids in the Manila area and at Davao on the island of Mindanao. Attempted Japanese landings were repulsed south of Vigan and north of San Fernando, as well as at Lingayen on the Island of Luzon.

Operations of enemy parachutists were reported at Tuguegarao and Ilagan, in the extreme north and northeast of the island of Luzon. Some enemy troops were landed in the vicinity of Legaspi in the extreme southern portion of the island of Luzon. Previous reports of enemy naval concentrations west of Zambales Province on the western coast of Luzon were confirmed.

The Commanding General of the Far Eastern Command has notified the Commanding General of the Army Air Forces of the brilliant performance of the American Army and Navy fliers and the fliers of the Philippine Commonwealth in attcking enemy units total disregard for their own safety. One spectacular instance was the feat of Captain Colin P. Kelly Jr., of Madison, Fla., who successfully attacked the battleship Haruna, putting that warship out of commission. In the destruction of this important unit of the Japanese Fleet, Captain Kelly lost his life. Another brilliant victory was scored by Lieutenant Boyd D. Wagner, of Philadelphia, who shot down two enemy planes and wrecked several others that were on the ground in the vicinity of Aparri in Northern Luzon.

Hawaii: There has been no renewal of Japanese attacks on Oahu since the initial operations on Dec. 7, 1941.

West Coast, United States: Rumors of enemy parachute troops on the West Coast have been thoroughly investigated and completely discredited.

A Navy Department communiqué late today said:

Naval forces continue to coordinate their efforts with the Army on land, sea and in the air against heavy Japanese attacks on the island of Luzon. There is no confirmation of the alleged occupation of Guam by the Japanese. The resistance of Wake and Midway continues. No further air activity over Hawaii has been reported. The situation in the Atlantic remains unchanged.

The above is based on reports up to noon today.

MANILA, Dec. 12 (AP)—The headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today in a communiqué:

MacArthur announced with great sorrow the death of Captain Colin P. Kelly Jr., who so distinguished himself by scoring three direct hits on the Japanese capital battleship Haruna, leaving her in flames and distress.

MacArthur takes pride in announcing the name of First Lieutenant Boyd D. Wagner, Air Corps pilot who so distinguished himself by his daring attack on the Japanese air detachment at Aparri this morning.

When attacked by five pursuits, he shot two planes out of the air and machine-gunned twelve on the ground, leaving five burning. Wagner ended his terse report by saying, "My gas was running low, so I returned home."

The enemy attacked through the air this morning with heavy force. One hundred and thirteen bombers were counted. They were dispersed, probably due partially to overcast weather, and, divided into groups, bombed various places, including the field in Batangas.

Our forces destroyed eleven Japanese planes. One plane shot down at Clark Field fell in the mountains. Some time later a group of mountain natives brought in three Japanese aviators trussed up like animals.

In Batangas six Filipino pilots, undaunted by the tremendous odds against them, attacked two enemy formations of twenty-seven planes each as they roared over the air field. Before the enemy aircraft broke formation and disappeared in the clouds the Filipino pilots accounted for two ships.

The six Filipino pilots who took part in the operations at Batangas included Captain Jesus Villamor, Lieutenant Godogredo Juliano and Lieutenants Aclan, Manlunas, Mondiego and Basa.

Villamor's squadron downed one Japanese yesterday near Manila.

DEC 13 1941

An Army communiqué issued Saturday morning in Manila and reported in a broadcast of the National Broadcasting Company follows:

Last night was uneventful. There is local activity in areas which have been occupied.

The enemy force at Legaspi has not been reinforced.

The reason for the early air raid alarm this morning was a small group of enemy planes which were observed headed toward Manila. The group of planes turned away.

There have been no raids anywhere in the Philippines since yesterday.

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 12 (AP)—The British Command issued this communiqué today:

There has been no change in the general situation either in Malaya or Hong Kong in the past twelve hours.

Considerable damage was done to civilian property on Penang. Heavy bombing occurred there yesterday. No military objectives were hit.

A British Headquarters communiqué tonight said:

Our aircraft bombed Singora during the early morning.

All machines returned safely, but owing to ground mist it was difficult to estimate the damage inflicted.

In the Kedah [northern frontier] area heavy fighting proceeded throughout the day. The enemy attacked our positions in strength during the early morning and made local penetrations.

Confused fighting continues.

Penang again was heavily raided by air this morning. There was no material damage to military objectives.

DEC 13 1941

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 12 (AP)—The British Middle East Headquarters issued this communiqué today:

Despite bad weather and heavy sandstorms which have now continued for two days, our advance is everywhere being pressed with the utmost vigor in a northwesterly direction.

New Zealand troops from Tobruk yesterday reached a point just east of El Gazala.

Indian and British troops from the southeast reached an escarpment south of El Gazala, capturing about 500 German and Italian prisoners, and also pressed on west of El Gazala, where another 120 prisoners were taken.

The Acroma area was cleared of the enemy. On Dec. 12 enemy columns were attacked west of that place. Much enemy transport was damaged or destroyed and guns, motor vehicles and about 300 prisoners and much material were captured.

Very bad weather also impeded our air forces. Nevertheless they carried out sweeps throughout the battle area, bombing enemy columns and dumps and affording ground troops most valuable support.

A Royal Air Force Middle East communiqué today said:

Harbor installations at Bengazi again were successfully raided by our bomber aircraft during the night of Dec. 10-11.

Direct hits were obtained on wharves and a dock railway and violent explosions occurred on Cathedral Mole.

During yesterday operations over the Libyan battle area were hampered by bad weather. Fighter aircraft, however, engaged enemy fighters, seven of which were destroyed and others damaged.

Machine-gunning attacks were made on enemy transport on the Gheminesel-El Agheila road. Considerable damage was done to gasoline carriers and other transports, and casualties were inflicted on enemy personnel.

Bomber aircraft were active on road communications between Tinini and Cirene, and in a raid on an airdrome at Martuba one aircraft was destroyed on the ground and gasoline stores were ignited.

Three JU-52's coming into Libya from the north were attacked by our aircraft and shot down in flames into the sea.

30,24-13505

30.24 - 13505

In the Central Mediterranean yesterday bombers attacked shipping in Catania harbor. Two hits were scored on a large merchantman, which was set on fire. Another vessel probably was hit.

From these and other operations eleven of our aircraft are missing.

DEC 13 1941

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Admiralty issued the following communiqué today:

The Commander in Chief of the Mediterranean Fleet has reported successful action against an Italian cruiser by one of His Majesty's submarines operating under his command.

Shortly before dark three Italian cruisers heavily screened by destroyers were observed on a southerly course, moving at high speed.

Three hits with torpedoes were secured on the enemy. Failing visibility and a rough sea made accurate observation difficult but it is considered that one of the enemy cruisers probably sank, as a very violent explosion followed a few minutes after the attack.

The Air Ministry issued this communiqué today:

Aircraft of the Bomber Command last night attacked objectives in the Cologne area and elsewhere in Western Germany.

Docks at Havre and Brest also were bombed and mines were laid in enemy waters.

Three of our aircraft are missing.

The Air Ministry issued this communiqué tonight:

Hampden aircraft of the Bomber Command operated over Northwest Germany in daylight today. An oil refinery at Emmerich and a factory near Bremen were among the targets attacked.

R. A. F. fighter patrols attacked objectives in the Calais and Nieuport areas.

One bomber is missing from these operations. A fighter is missing from the patrol today.

Destruction of an enemy bomber over this country Monday night now is confirmed.

A communiqué issued today by the Air and Home Security Ministries said:

There was slight activity by enemy aircraft last night, mainly in the coastal areas of Eastern England. The few bombs dropped caused but slight damage and no casualties.

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (Distributed by The Associated Press)—A Soviet Information Bureau communiqué broadcast by the Moscow radio said today:

During the night of Dec. 11-12 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

Units of Comrade Gripenkin, operating on one of the sectors of the Southwestern Front, during three days of fighting recaptured twenty-eight inhabited centers, annihilating more than 1,000 officers and men.

Another Soviet Information Bureau communiqué today said:

During the night of Dec. 11-12 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

Kriuchenkin's unit operating in one sector of the southwestern front in three days of fighting recaptured from the enemy twenty-eight villages, killed over 1,000 enemy men and officers and captured many guns and machine guns.

In another sector of the front our troops captured within one day twelve German guns, ninety-four machine guns, twenty trucks, 300 horses and many other trophies.

Our fliers operating on the southern front destroyed in one day five tanks, 250 trucks, six staff buses, four guns, 100 ammunition carts, eighteen anti-aircraft machine guns, three mine-throwers and one gasoline tank.

The Soviet Information Bureau also issued this communiqué today:

During Dec. 12 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

On several sectors of the western and southwestern front our troops continued to advance, inflicting losses on the enemy.

On Dec. 11 we destroyed eleven German planes. In air combat near Moscow five German planes have been brought down.

Our air force destroyed and damaged seven German tanks, 418 lorries with troops and supplies, five staff cars and fourteen field and anti-aircraft guns.

Our air force also destroyed 110 carts with ammunition, sixteen petrol tank lorries and annihilated and dispersed two battalions of enemy infantry.

Our forces operating on one of the sectors of the western front in one day's battle with the enemy captured eight German tanks, ten guns, forty-eight machine guns, 100 lorries, 120 automatic rifles and an ammunition dump.

In another sector of the front Commander Beloff's cavalry during several days' fighting have captured sixty tanks, forty guns, 2,000 lorries, 100 motor cycles and much other booty.

In one of the sectors of the southwestern front our troops captured eleven guns, seven trench mortars, thirty-seven machine guns, 114 carts with supplies and many automatic and manual rifles.

Commanders Kozin's and Bagdafaroff's units captured thirty-two machine guns, ten trench mortars and other booty.

The Moscow radio broadcast this special communiqué of the Soviet Information Bureau tonight:

Fiasco of German plans for surrounding and capturing Moscow.

On Nov. 16 the German Command threw into the Moscow front thirteen tank divisions, thirty-three infantry divisions and five motorized infantry divisions for the second general offensive against Moscow.

The Germans intended to strike at Moscow from three directions and then capture the city. The first objectives were Tula, on the south; Klin, on the north, and then to close in from three sides.

Up to Dec. 6 our forces conducted fierce defense battles, holding back attacks by enemy shock groups on the flanks and repelling auxiliary thrusts.

On Dec. 6 our troops on the Western Front, having worn down the enemy launched counter-offensives against the enemy flanks.

DEC 13 1941

As a result of this offensive both flank groups have been routed and are rapidly retreating, leaving behind arms and equipment, and suffering heavy losses.

On Dec. 11 we had the following picture:

Forces of General Lilushenko smashed the First Tank Division and the Fourteenth and Thirty-sixth Motorized Infantry Divisions and, capturing Rogachev, surrounded the town of Klin.

Forces of General Kuznetzoff captured the town of Yakhroma and, pursuing the retreating German Sixth and Seventh Tank Divisions and Twenty-third Infantry Division, have emerged as to southwest of Klin.

Forces of General Vlassoff pursuing the Second Tank Division and the 106th Infantry Division have occupied the town of Solnechnogorsk.

General Rokossovsky's troops pursuing the Fifth, Tenth and Eleventh Tank Divisions, an SS division and the Thirty-fifth Infantry Division have occupied the town of Kistra.

General Goroff's units have broken through defenses of the 252d, Eighty-seventh, Seventy-eighth and 268th Infantry Divisions and occupied the district of Kulibyaken and Lokotnya.

To the northwest of Tula General Boldin's forces, having routed the Third and Fourth Tank Divisions and an SS regiment of the Germania Division, are successfully enveloping their offensive, pressing on and surrounding the 269th Infantry Division.

The First Guard Cavalry Corps of General Beloff having routed the Seventeenth Tank Division, the Twenty-ninth Motorized Infantry Division and 167th Infantry Division of the enemy is pursuing these remnants and has occupied the towns of Venev and Stalinogorsk.

General Golinoff's forces in the southwest pushed back units of the Eighteenth Tank Division and Tenth Motorized Infantry Division and occupied the towns of Mikhailox and Yepifan.

Since the beginning of their offensive, from Dec. 6-10, our units have occupied and freed more than 400 centers.

From Dec. 6-12 our troops captured 386 tanks, 4,137 trucks, 604 motorcycles, 305 guns, 109 trench mortars, 715 machine-guns and 546 automatic rifles.

During the same period our forces destroyed seventy-one tanks, 665 trucks, ninety-two guns, 119 trench mortars and 131 machine guns. These do not include enemy material destroyed by air operations.

In addition a colossal amount of other arms has been captured, also ammunition, supplies, uniforms and other goods.

The Germans lost on the field of battle more than 30,000 killed.

Between Nov. 16-Dec. 10 the total results of our successes are:

We captured and destroyed (without taking into account air force operations) 1,434 tanks, 5,416 trucks, 675 guns, 339 trench mortars and 870 machine guns.

During this period German losses amounted to over 85,000 killed. These figures still are incomplete.

DEC 13 1941

Netherland

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 12 (AP)—The following communiqué was issued by the Netherlands Indies Navy today:

No hostilities have taken place on Netherlands Indies territory during the past twenty-four hours.

Units of the Royal Navy are participating in Allied action on the sea and in the air.

On Dec. 8 an Australian Hudson aircraft stationed on Netherlands Indies territory sank the Japanese schooner Nuya Maru.

Japanese

TOKYO, Friday, Dec. 12 (From a Japanese Broadcast Recorded by The Associated Press)—A joint communiqué of the Army and Navy sections of the Japanese Imperial Headquarters said today:

Japanese troops in close cooperation with the Navy and air forces succeeded in landing in the southern section of Luzon Island before dawn today.

With this operation Japanese forces now are able to begin a pincer attack against the enemy from North and South Luzon.

A communiqué of the Navy section of Japanese Imperial Headquarters, broadcast by Domei, said today:

Two hundred and two United States warplanes have been destroyed, including seventy-seven shot down, since the beginning of Philippines operations.

Nine Japanese naval planes have been lost. Their crews rammed their objectives. One aircraft is missing.

One light cruiser was slightly damaged but is still participating in operations. One minesweeper was sunk. Most of the crew was rescued. Another minesweeper suffered heavy damage.

German

BERLIN, Dec. [illegible] from a German Broadcast Recorded by The Associated Press—The German High Command issued this communiqué today:

There were local operations on the Eastern Front yesterday.

In the Atlantic German U-boats sank four British ships totaling 27,700 tons, including a large tanker.

In addition two escort vessels and one tanker were seriously damaged by torpedoes.

Ineffective British nuisance raids were directed yesterday against the area of the German [Helgoland] bight and last night against Northern and Western Germany.

Two enemy bombers were shot down.

In North Africa the fighting continues.

Units of the German and Italian Air Force dispersed British tank and motorized columns. During the ensuing air combats German fighters shot down six enemy planes.

German bombers last night bombed the port of Tobruk and railway objectives near Sidi Barrani.

In the period from Dec. 8 to 12 the British Air Force lost sixty-nine planes, thirty-four of them in the Mediterranean and Northern Africa.

In the same period eighteen German planes were lost in the fight against Great Britain.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 12 (From an Italian Broadcast Recorded by The Associated Press) — An Italian High Command communiqué said today:

In Libya fighting continues west of Tobruk. New strong enemy attacks supported by tanks were repulsed.

Around the Solum end of Bardia enemy artillery fire has intensified.

German Stukas and Italian dive bombers repeatedly bombed a concentration of mechanized units and motorized columns in the Bir Hacheim area.

The German fighters shot down six planes in air combats.

The naval formation which shelled Derna on Wednesday was again overtaken by German planes. One cruiser and a destroyer were hit by bombs.

In the Central Mediterranean two enemy planes were destroyed by our fighters.

During an attempt to raid Argostoli Bay [Greece] a third plane was shot down by the defenses. One Italian plane did not return.

Yesterday morning an enemy cruiser and two destroyers again shelled Derna. The Principe di Piemonte Hospital was hit several times but damage was slight.

Fire was opened on the cruiser and it is believed that it was hit.

Bengazi was attacked during the night of Wednesday-Thursday. There were three casualties and no damage.

Italian planes raided the naval base of Valletta, Malta.

About 1,800 British prisoners who were on a torpedoed steamer mentioned in Wednesday's communiqué have been rescued. There were some injured among those picked up.

There were other heartening diplomatic exchanges, but still no word as to what position Russia would take toward the struggle in the Pacific. However, an official broadcast from Moscow said Russia would fight Germany to the end and was confident the United States could defeat the Japanese aggressor.

From Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese Generalissimo, came an offer of "all we are and all we have to stand with you until the Pacific and the world are free from the curse of brute force and endless perfidy."

THE PRESIDENT

He made a number of announcements pertaining to the war, including the designation of eight defensive sea areas on both coasts. Restrictions on navigation will apply in these areas. Presumably they will be mined.

Roosevelt, King George See Victory Over Axis

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 12—President Roosevelt cabled King George VI of England today that "the forces which have plunged the world into war, however strong, cannot prevail against the indomitable strength of free peoples fighting in a just cause."

The President's declaration was in reply to a cable from the King in which George declared that the British Empire is "proud indeed to be fighting at your side against the common enemy."

Texts of the messages were released by the State Department.

Mr. Roosevelt told King George, "Our two nations are now full comrades in arms. The courage which your people have shown in two long years of war inspire us as we join the struggle. . . . May God guide us through whatever trials are yet to come and speed the day of victory."

King George told the President that "my thoughts and prayers go out to you and to the great people of the United States at this solemn moment in your history when you have been treacherously attacked by Japan. . . We share your inflexible determination and your confidence that with God's help the powers of darkness will be overcome and the four freedoms established throughout a world purged of tyranny."

The areas include the waters near Portland, Me.; Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Narragansett Bay, San Diego, San Francisco, the entrance to the Columbia River and the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Puget Sound.

Other Announcements.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed these facts also:

That Prime Minister Churchill of England and Lord Beaverbrook had sent him a telegram offering to help the United States to meet material shortages in any way possible and specifically offering the output of three shell plants in Canada. This offer is being studied.

The Treasury reported that on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday defense bonds sold in banks totaled $5,592,000, up 126 per cent over the corresponding period last week.

Bond sales in the five biggest post offices, at $1,510,000, were up 70 per cent, and defense stamp sales at these post offices were up 25 per cent.

Ore movements on the Great Lakes during the 1941 navigation season totaled 80,000,000 long tons against 65,500,000 in 1940 and 66,500,000, the peak in the first world war. Ore stock piles at plants were 2,000,000 tons greater than when the winter season began last year and enough new carriers will be available to handle all 1942 ore needs.

By presidential proclamation, a Red Cross drive was launched today for a $50,000,000 war fund which Mr. Roosevelt said was an essential part of the conduct of war.

Rebukes Senator Tobey.

The President took occasion to rebuke Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, who spoke in the Senate yesterday of an "almost unspeakable disaster" to America's naval forces in Hawaii and demanded a congressional investigation to determine if there were dereliction and inefficiency.

The President said that the Senator who made those statements—he did not mention Mr. Tobey's name—did not know a thing about it. The Senator, he said, reported somebody's gossip and used it as a statement of fact. He had no right whatsoever to do so, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Reminded that Prime Minister Churchill had said that the loss to the American fleet could not be understated, the President said that was true and he had said virtually the same thing himself.

Reporters remarked that they were hearing many reports about what happened at Pearl Harbor and inquired when the real facts would be released.

The President said that he thought nobody should publish anything on the rumors and reports until a report is obtained from Navy Secretary Knox, who is in Hawaii.

"You can't ignore what a Senator says," the President was told. No, Mr. Roosevelt responded, but you can characterize it in one of those news paragraphs that is not entirely factual.

CONGRESS SPEEDS BILL TO LIST MEN FROM 18 TO 64

Those Between 19 And 44 Would be Liable For Military Service

Registration of 23 Million To Give Manpower Picture; 21-35 Group Not Included

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 — Congress leaders signalled today for swift action on legislation to require the registration of all men from 18 to 64, inclusive, with a view of making those from 19 to 44, inclusive, liable for military training and service.

DEC 13 1941

Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee introduced the bill immediately after a conference of House leaders with Secretary of War Stimson and other War Department officials. He announced that hearings will start tomorrow, and predicted the measure would be approved in two hours.

Speaker Rayburn of the House said the new registration was "necessary to get an overall picture of the manpower of the country" and Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, agreed that such a precautionary step should be taken quickly.

Hershey said that the new registrations, of course, would not apply to men from 21 to 35, inclusive, who have registered previously. He took occasion, too, to deny that the War Department has any immediate plans for the registration of women, a step which had been reported after Hershey held a press conference yesterday.

"I'm sorry that impression got out," he told newspapermen. "We haven't contemplated that step yet."

While the new bill obviously was designed to tap the vast reservoir of men from 19 to 21 and possibly train them for combat service, there was no indication of the disposition that might be made of men 45 to 64, inclusive, who would register but, under the terms of the legislation, would not be liable for combatant service. It was believed some of them might be mustered for vital non-combatant duty.

40 Million Men

At selective service headquarters, it was estimated that there are about 40,000,000 men between 18 and 64. Officials calculated that there are 25,000,000 in the 19-44 age group, including the approximately 17,000,000 already registered under the present Selective Service Act applying to those aged 21-35.

The measure would permit the President to order the deferment from training of any men whose age makes such action advisable. It also would permit enlistment of men up to 45.

Congress only yesterday completed action on legislation to keep the National Guard and selectees in service for the rest of the war and six months thereafter and to remove the original prohibition against use of such men outside the Western Hemisphere.

Cooperation Pledged

The War Department's new request was presented by Stimson, Hershey, and other officials at a hurriedly-summoned conference of House leaders. The discussion consumed less than a half hour. Pledges of cooperation were reported to have been given by all those present.

The list included Rayburn, Democratic Floor Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, Republican Floor Leader Martin of Massachusetts, May, and Representatives Thomason (D-Tex) and Andrews (R-NY) of the military committee, and Representative Wadsworth (R-NY), cosponsor of the original 1940 Selective Service Act.

General Hershey also conferred with members of the Senate military affairs committee who predicted that speedy action would be taken on the measure on that side of the Capitol.

Bill for 18-65 Registration

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—The text of a House bill requiring registration of all men from eighteen to sixty-five years old:

AN ACT

To amend the selective training and service act of 1940 to aid in insuring the defeat of all the enemies of the United States through the extension of liability for military service and the registration of the man power of the nation, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that (a) the Congress hereby declares that the present concerted world-wide assault upon the free countries of the world gravely threatens the security of the republic and that the nation is fighting for its existence and its future life.

(b) The Congress further declares that it is the national policy to accept no result save victory, final and complete, over all the enemies of the United States; and that to this end it is imperative that liability for military service be extended to further age groups and that a complete inventory of the man power of the nation be taken by registration.

SECTION 2. Section 2 of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby amended by deleting the words "twenty-one and thirty-six" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "eighteen and sixty-five," so as to read as follows: Except as otherwise provided in this act, it shall be the duty of every male citizen of the United States, and of every male alien residing in the United States, who on the day or days fixed for the first or any subsequent registration is between the ages of eighteen and sixty-five, to present himself for and submit to registration at such time or times and place or places, and in such manner and in such age group or groups, as shall be determined by rules and regulations prescribed hereunder.

SEC. 4. Section 4 (A) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress) as amended, is hereby amended by inserting before the period the following: "Provided further, that the President is authoriezd under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe to place the registrants of any registration among or after the registrants of any prior registration or registrations within each of the classifications which may at any time be in existence under this act and rules and regulations prescribed pursuant thereto."

SEC. 2. Section 2 (2) of Public Law 206 of Seventy-seventh Congress is hereby repealed.

SEC. 6. Section 15 (A) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby amended (1) by deleting the words "twenty-one and thirty-six" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "nineteen and forty-five"; (2) by deleting the word "twenty-first" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "nineteenth," and (3) by deleting the word "thirty-sixth and inserting in lieu thereof the word "forty-fifth."

SEC. 3. Section 3 (a) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby amended by deleting the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Except as otherwise provided in this act, every male citizen of the United States, and every male alien residing in the United States, beside between the ages of nineteen and forty-five at the time fixed for his registration, shall be liable for training and service in the land or naval forces of the United States: provided, that any citizen or subject of a neutral country shall be relieved from liability for training and service under this act by making application prior to becoming a member of the land or naval forces, in accordance with such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe, to be relieved from liability for training and service under this act, and such person shall thereafter forever be debarred from becoming a citizen of the United States: provided further, that any citizen or subject of any other country whom the President has or hereafter may proclaim to be an alien enemy of the United States shall not be inducted for training and service under this act unless he is acceptable to the land or naval forces." Section 3 (a) is further amended by deleting the word "thirty-six" in the first proviso of the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the word "forty-five."

DEC 13 1941

SEC. 7. Section 5 (c) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby amended by deleting the words "of those men in a status" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "of any or all of those men in a status."

SEC. 8. Section 15 (c) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783 of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby repealed.

SEC. 9. Section 5 (e) of the selective training and service act of 1940 (Public Law 783, of Seventy-sixth Congress), as amended, is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"Anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding, the Presi- is authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to provide for the deferment, by age group or groups, from training and service under this act in the land and naval forces of the United States of those men whose age or ages are such that he finds their deferment to be advisable in the national interest: provided, that the President may, upon finding that it is in the national interest, terminate, by age group or groups, the deferment of any or all of the men so deferred."

NO CASUALTY LISTS TO BE MADE PUBLIC

Government Rules Ou Their Use In Press Or Broadcast

Official Figures On Tota Killed Or Injured To Be Announced

DEC 13 1941

[By The Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 12—The Government ruled out publication of casualty lists in the press or their broadcast by radio today because this might give information to the enemy.

President Roosevelt announced the decision at a press conference, and the army and navy indicated this would be the procedure:

Neither service will announce official lists of those killed and wounded, but will notify relatives directly as quickly as possible. Official figures on total casualties will be announced, and an announcement will be made in the event of the death of an outstanding figure, such as a general or an admiral.

Stories From Relatives

While a general tabulation of casualties will be forbidden, newspapers will be free to publish stories, obtained from relatives, about the deaths of soldiers and sailors from their cities.

Also to keep information from the enemy, selective service headquarters said that draft quotas and induction calls henceforth would be considered confidential military information, not to be published. It was explained that this was to prevent disclosure of the rate and manner of army increases. The ruling does not prevent local publication of the names of men drafted.

Information Revealed

Behind the order to withhold publication of war casualty lists is long army and navy experience that names of men killed or wounded in action may reveal important military information.

In the 1914-18 war military men recall, Imperial Germany reported casualties only to the family. The unit to which the soldier was attached was identified, however, and by careful reading of local death notices military observers were able to establish very accurately the disposition of divisions on the battlefront.

By one bit of deduction an American intellgence officer was able to warn of an impending 1918 German offensive in France.

German Flyer's Case

A German flyer was shot down on the Western front and his name and address ascertained by military intelligence. Some three weeks later, in neutral Switzerland, the American officer noted in a German newspaper the notice of the flyer's death, together with the commendation from his commanding general.

This general, it was related, was reputed to be the commander of a spearhead for general offenses.

The facts added up to a hint that an offensive was in the making at the point where the flyer was shot down, and the American army intelligence so warned. The attack came two days later.

The facts added up to a hint that an offensive was in the making at the point where the flier was shot down, and the American Army intelligence so warned. The attack came two days later.

In the light of such experience, some Army men took the view that publication of a long casualty list might disclose, in connection with other data, that a division from that area had been in a heavy action and thus identify the unit.

In the present early stage of the conflict, it is the Navy more than the Army which is concerned about casualty lists, particularly those which would indicate heavy losses on a particular warship and thus possibly identify ships hardest hit in the Pearl Harbor attack.

Later, informed officials, interpreting these developments, said that in the event of the death of outstanding figures, such as Rear Admiral Kidd, announcements probably will be made. It also is expected that the War and Navy Departments will announce official figures on total casualties without localities or the names of units involved.

The War-Navy interpretation of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks was that assembling of casualties, even within a state-wide area, is contrary to the government's wishes.

Selective service headquarters said that, at direction of War Department, draft quotas and induction calls henceforth would be considered confidential military information and hence unpublishable. War Department officials add that ban extends also to size of armed forces unless announced officially.

Officials explained that the withholding of such information on draft calls and quotas would be to prevent disclosure of the rate and manner of army increases. This ruling does not prevent local publication of the names of men drafted.

30 PCT. INCREASE IN NAVY'S POWER SOUGHT IN SENATE

DEC 13 1941

$3,000,000,000 Bill Lists 7 Battleships, 160 Other War Craft

10-Billion Appropriation For Expansion of Defense, Lend-Lease is Approved

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—In swift reaction to the Japanese stroke at Pearl Harbor, the administration today produced a bill authorizing the construction of seven or eight 45,000-ton battleships and about 160 other fighting ships—an over-all increase of 30 per cent in the two-ocean navy.

The bill was offered in the Senate just before that branch passed a $10,572,350,000 measure to expand all military activities. The latter bill, embracing cash and contract authority, went through without a record vote. It was sent immediately to a joint Senate-House conference committee for adjustment of $2,328,309,000 added by the Senate to a similar bill passed previously by the House.

Chairman David I. Walsh (D-Mass) of the naval committee rose during debate on the appropriation bill and nonchalantly proposed the ship increase of 900,000 tons, saying President Roosevelt and the Navy Department had requested him to introduce it. This measure was referred to the navy committee.

Walsh said the Budget Bureau had informed him that initial appropriation requests for the new building program would be for only one-third of the total, or 300,000 tons, because that was all that could be handled at the present time.

Under normal conditions, he said, the total additions would cost about $3,000,000,000 and under present conditions "probably much more."

He said the bill would authorize the building of seven or eight 45,000-ton battleships; six or seven 20,000-ton aircraft carriers; 26 or 27 10,000-ton cruisers; 80 1,800-ton destroyers, and 47 1,100-ton submarines.

Present authorized strength he listed as 1,045,000 tons of battleships, 454,500 tons of aircraft carriers, 899,024 tons of cruisers, 478,000 tons of destroyers, and 172,000 tons of submarines.

Before passing the big new appropriation measure, the Senate merged a $1,556,496,000 lend-lease fund approved by the House into an over-all fund of more than $7,000,000,000 for the War Department.

It also removed the existing limit of 900,000 on the number of Army draftees that might be in service at any one time and added money to buttress Navy recruiting by calling, if necessary, 50,000 selectees for the Navy and 10,000 for the Marines.

It added $500,000,000 in contract authority, above the $140,000,000 previously allowed by the House, for purchase of new planes for the Navy, and $300,000,000 in cash for temporary and emergency naval construction work.

To Expand Air Corps

Committee amendments approved also included $62,797,000 for procurement of troop transports and authority for the Secretary of War to feed and otherwise care for prisoners of war.

Other funds were for speedy expansion of the Army Air Corps, ordnance, and mobile aircraft warning services, as well as $269,000,000 for support of the Philippine Commonwealth Army.

Additions voted by individual amendments included $290,000,000 for temporary defense housing, $100,000,000 for military aviation landing fields, $68,000,000 for new civilian airports, $1,500,000 for expenses in collecting the new $5 auto use tax, and $1,000,000 for farm rehabilitation loans.

Argument on Senators' Help

The only big argument of the day revolved around a $216,000 item to permit each senator to employ a "special executive assistant" at an annual salary of $4,500, the fund to go for paying them the last six months of the current fiscal year.

Cries of "salary grab" and "unnecessary" expenditures went up from economy advocates and others, but advocates, contending increased mail and other responsibilities brought on by the emergency warranted more office help, finally won on a roll call, 53 to 30.

Most Senators now employ about six secretaries and clerks.

Warns of Sabotage Epidemic

Admiral Waesche Says Axis Agents in U. S. Now Have Signal to Go Ahead.

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Enemy saboteurs, the Senate heard today, got their green light to go ahead just as soon as Rome and Berlin formally declared war on the United States.

Rear Admiral Richard R. Waesche, who commanded the Coast Guard until it became part of the navy, said that heretofore the signal had been delayed because the Axis feared widespread sabotage would "help unite this country and speed up our defense effort to all-out proportions."

DEC 13 1941

But now, he asserted, the Axis had no reason for holding back, hence an epidemic of fires and explosions may come at any time in vital defense centers.

Admiral Waesche's warning reached the Senate in testimony that accompanied an urgent request by the finance committee for speedy approval of a $10,000,000,000 war appropriation bill.

Former Havoc Recalled.

The measure contains funds for adding 2,500 men to the Coast Guard to guard against repetition of multi-million dollar havoc caused in the last war by the sabotaging of munitions plants and harbor facilities.

Admiral Waesche said there was no doubt that up until the time Germany and Italy were ready to declare war, those nations and Japan had "subsersive activities in this country, to which they have not yet given the green light to go ahead."

Admiral Waesche said sabotage in the last war "ran up into hundreds of millions of dollars" of damage and he recalled the Black Tom munitions disaster in New Jersey, which alone cost more than $14,000,000, "not counting the loss of life and the tremendous delay through the destruction of the terminals and the facilities for shipping munitions."

The Coast Guard, which as part of the navy is responsible for the security of harbors, docks and terminals, has items totaling more than $18,000,000 in the big appropriation bill.

CZECH FACTORIES SLOW DOWN 30 P. C.

Hurban Tells How People Sabotage Production.

DEC 13 1941

Washington, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Vladimir Hurban, the Czecho-Slovakian Minister, declared today that production in Czech factories under forced operation by the Germans had dropped 30 to 40 per cent during the last few months.

While warning the Czech people against open uprisings and acts of violence which would serve as the pretext to wipe out thousands of patriots, Mr. Hurban said the exiled Czech Government in London had appealed to the people to slow down production in the wartime industries.

"If one worker loses but five minutes in his daily schedule," Mr. Hurban explained, "it amounts to thousands of hours lost daily if we consider that hundreds of thousands of Czecho-Slovak workers co-operate in this anonymous fraternity."

In retaliation against the Czech's patriotic slow-down, the Czech Minister asserted, the Germans ordered wholesale execution in Czecho-Slovakia in October and November.

Mr. Hurban branded as untrue news reports from Czecho-Slovakia which said that the Czechs seemed to have fitted themselves into Germany's wartime economy, accepted German rule as inevitable, and tried to make the best of it.

U. S. Armed Coast Guardsmen Seize French Liner Normandie

DEC 13 19[illegible]

Crews Of All Vichy Government Vessels In American Ports Will Be Removed, State Department Announces

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Armed Coast Guardsmen, acting on naval orders, seized today the $60,000,000 French liner—Normandie—one of the largest, proudest and finest ships afloat.

Led by Capt. John Baylis, Guardsmen swooped down on the 83,423-ton liner at the Hudson River pier where she has been laid up since the beginning of war.

At the same time, the State Department in Washington announced that crews of 14 French ships in American and Panamanian ports would be removed as a "measure of protection to the crews and vessels."

Guardsmen also boarded four French freighters in New York and ordered the crews to pack up. They were the Ile De Re, 5,104 tons; Mont Everest, 5,120 tons; Leopold L.D., 5,267 tons and Fort Royal, 3,485 tons.

Rear-Adm. Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Third Naval District, said the Normandie had been seized by Navy orders. He made no mention of other ships but authorities in Washington and New York said they would be operated by the Navy.

The 14 ships total 150,747 tons.

The Normandie could be used either as a transport or as an aircraft carrier. She was designed and built for speedy conversion. Captain Baylis said he had removed about 200 seamen from her.

In Washington, the Department of Justice said the French seamen would be released and placed on parole.

Built in 1935, the Normandie is the third largest ship in the world, exceeded only by the British Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary.

Her length of 1,029 feet makes her four times the height of the Statue of Liberty—a gift from France to the United States.

French ships are at these ports:

New Orleans: Angouleme, 2,451 tons; Michigan, 6,419; Touraine, (a tanker), 6,589.

San Francisco: Alencon, 2,327.

Mobile, Ala.: Sheherazade a 13,467-ton tanker.

Los Angeles: Vannes, 2,609; Wisconsin, 8,062.

Canal Zone: Indiana, 5,751; Nemours, 673.

The Ile De Re and the Leopold L. D. recently have been carrying American food supplies to unoccupied France and North Africa.

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The State Department announced today that the crews on all French vessels in American ports would be removed from the boats today.

An official statement said:

"As a measure of necessary protection to the crews and vessels, arrangements have been made to remove today the French crews on all French vessels now in United States ports. This action does not preclude the return of the crews to any vessel the resumption of service of which may be determined."

There are 12 French vessels now in American ports under "protective custody."

2,541 Axis Aliens Arrested, Attorney General Reports

Forty-Three American Citizens Seized In Hawaii Are Accused Of "Pro-Japanese Activity"

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 12—The FBI reported tonight that it had arrested 2,541 Axis aliens, and also 43 American citizens of German, Italian and Japanese extraction.

Francis Biddle, Attorney General, made public the FBI's report.

All the American citizens in custody were arrested in Hawai.

1,370 Are Japanese

The latest totals showed 1,002 German, 169 Italians and 1,370 Japanese under arrest. The Americans held include 19 of German extraction, two of Italian descent and 22 of Japanese or mixed Japanese extraction, all of whom were said by Biddle to have engaged in "pro-Japanese activity."

darkness.

Unverified reports said flares were dropped in the financial district and the ocean, but police were inclined to discount them.

Tells of Accidents.

"People were running around like wild," declared Elmer Combs, booking steward at central emergency hospital. "There were accidents from all kinds of things."

The alarm sounded at 7:24 P.M. (10:24 P. M., New York time) and the huge siren at Fort Miley Hospital, on a hill overlooking the ocean, sounded the all-clear at 9:58 P. M.

It was the third blackout of the city during the war, extending to Oakland, the big Mare Island Navy Yard and the peninsula region south of San Francisco.

Searchlights pierced the sky across the Golden Gate Bridge in Marin County, 10 miles north—but only momentarily.

Pursuit Heard.

Residents reported hearing fast pursuit ships roaring toward the ocean.

An aid to Gen. William Ord Ryan of the Fourth Interceptor Command said "we cannot tell you a thing" about the blackout.

Thirty-three minutes after the alarm here, a blackout was ordered at Sacramento and its air base 100 miles away, but this order was lifted at 8:50 P. M.

Police here were besieged with telephone calls. Street and cable cars stopped. Soldiers halted persons who were smoking. Auto-

Frisco Blacked Out As Planes Roar Over

San Francisco, Dec. 12 (AP).—San Francisco underwent a weird wartime blackout tonight and unidentified airplanes roared over the city during two hours and 34 minutes of total mobiles were abandoned.

Market and Mission Streets were a jumble of automobiles, abandoned so hastily they stood criss-crossed.

The San Francisco office of the Associated Press was in complete blackness as police ordered even a kerosene lamp extinguished.

A half-hour after the blackout in San Francisco, police were informed that a crowd had smashed a store window and put out a night light left on.

Menacing Crowd.

Another crowd in downtown San Francisco began shouting because lights shone through windows on the upper floor of a building.

"Shoot out those lights," the crowd yelled.

Residents poured into the streets in at least one section of Oakland, shouting, "Lights out! Lights out!"

The main switch in the San Francisco Elks' Club building was pulled, and hundreds of members sat around in blackness.

Several persons were arrested for disturbing the peace by failing to observe blackout regulations.

Most residents took the evacuation order calmly. Theaters and churches in the safe area received many evacuees.

Street lights were turned on again when the all-clear signal sounded about 8 P. M. Broadcasting over the police radio, army authorities said the evacuation order was temporarily canceled. Residents then returned to their homes.

Hugo Pedruzzi, 39 years old, of Gonzales, was killed during the blackout. He was struck by an automobile being driven with the lights off.

Test Evacuates Shore Cities

Flaming Tree Adds to Blackout Excitement in Forty Miles of California Coast.

DEC 13 1941

Santa Cruz, Cal., Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Residents along a forty-mile stretch of shore line breathed easier today after a three-and-a-half-hour blackout and a hurried evacuation of about 1,000 persons from the water-front district. The removal area included the cities of Monterey and Carmel and the Monterey Peninsula.

Soldiers went from door to door and instructed householders to turn out their lights, lock the doors and move 1,000 yards or more inshore. The blackout was termed 100 per cent effective.

Excitement was heightened during last night's blackout and evacuation when a large eucalyptus tree burst into flames for an unknown reason. The blaze was extinguished quickly.

Authorities said the tree had not been set afire as a signal. It was about a mile and a half northeast of Santa Cruz in an area inhabited by Japanese berry growers.

Invalids Panicky.

Some women fainted at wild rumors of approaching airplanes and elderly persons and invalids almost became panic stricken.

IOWA PLANT BLAST KILLS 9, INJURES 21

No Hint Of Cause Given As Army And FBI Begin Inquiries At Shell Factory

T. N. T. Melting Unit Virtually Destroyed At $60,000,000 Ordnance Works

[By the Associated Press]

Burlington, Iowa, Dec. 12—A terrific blast that rattled windows five miles away virtually destroyed a T. N. T. melting unit in the $60,000,000 Iowa ordnance plant today, killing nine workmen and injuring at least twenty-one more.

The dead were being identified by fingerprints, since their time cards were in the destroyed structure.

Lieut. Col. Keith F. Adamson, area commandant, immediately closed the entire area to the civilian public and announced that a military board of inquiry from Washington would make an official investigation tomorrow.

No Hint As To Cause

There was no hint as to the cause of the explosion in the No. 1 melt unit, but reports indicated the blast damage was confined to the three-story structure in which T. N. T. (trinitrotoluene) is melted by steam, blended with other explosives and then loaded into shells.

The line affected was loading 81-millimeter shells, Colonel Adamson said.

First of the dead was identified as Pearly J. Pettit, of Lansing, Iowa, who died in a Burlington hospital. Other dead were taken from the building wreckage, it was reported here.

FBI Assigns Men

Fourteen of the injured were in one Burlington hospital, five in another and an undetermined number in the plant receiving hospital.

In addition to the military investigation, the Federal Bureau of Investigation assigned men from Des Moines and other points.

The blast came shortly after 1 P. M. (C.S.T.) when, Colonel Adamson said, as many as sixty might have been in the melthouse.

Apparently Confined

However, he said the explosion apparently was confined to the one structure, the loading line being constructed in series with separate operation departments connected with conveyors. The line extends north and south for nearly a mile.

Many women were employed in the units engaged in final preparation of the completed shells, but none was injured, reports indicated.

Thirty-five Iowa highway patrolmen were assigned to clear the highways for ambulances and prevent congestion. All passes for entrance to the 20,000-acre area were canceled.

5 Miles From Burlington

William Pratt, 25, of Burlington, one of the first of the injured, said the first he knew "there was a terrific noise and then the roof began falling in." He was not badly hurt.

The plant is five miles west of Burlington, normally a town of 25,000, but now mushroomed to nearly 40,000 as a result of plant activity.

California Lumber Fire Held Work Of Saboteur

Santa Barbara, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP)—Fire underwriters said today they were convinced that a $200,000 fire that swept the Ambrose Lumber Company last night was due to sabotage.

The flames started with an explosion and almost the entire yard was afire within a few minutes.

WAR LINK PROBED IN COAST SLAYING

Body Of 30-Year-Old Chinese Found In Seattle Alley, Head Nearly Severed

Connection Suspected With Secret Inquiry Just Begun By Police

DEC 13 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 12—Authorities suspected a war link in the bizarre headsman's slaying of a 30-year-old Chinese whose body was found, hands trussed and head nearly severed, in a South End alley early today.

He was identified as Chow Get Ming, teacher and English student.

Coroner Otto M. Mittelstadt said, "I believe this execution has some bearing on the present war."

Secret Inquiry Under Way

A detective lieutenant said the slaying might be connected with a secret inquiry, with war ramifications, which police began yesterday.

Chinese friends expressed belief Chow was slain by persons who mistook him for a secret agent. They said he probably was not slain by Chinese.

Although they identified him as Chow Get Ming, authorities found that he was registered at the Y. M. C. A., where he lived, as Paul Loo. There were indications in his belongings that he also used the name Shaek Ching Loo.

17 Wounds On Head

Officers found seventeen wounds on his head. Mittelstadt said he had been slain with an ax while kneeling above a chopping block. Apparently he was slain elsewhere and his body dumped in the alley, where it was found by a workman about 6.30 A. M.

Jackman Chin, president of the Chung Wa (Chinese Benevolent Association), among those who identified the body, said Chow's father lives in China and would be notified of his son's death in traditional ceremonial fashion.

The victim's clothing bore one of the new "China" lapel badges ordered by Consul Kiang Yi-seng for members of the community this week.

Word Lists In Pocket

The pockets contained a dollar and a notebook containing English and Chinese word lists. The notebook mystified officers until friends said they believed they merely were part of Chow's vocabulary-building studies.

Detective Chief Ernest Yoris ordered an intensive study of Chow's movements yesterday and an effort to find the place of execution.

ADMIRER OF HITLER ARRESTED IN WEST

Noble and 5 Others Held by FBI in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Robert Noble, 43 years old, self-styled admirer of Hitler and former leader of a pension movement here, was arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation last night and charged with making seditious and disloyal utterances in wartime.

Richard B. Hood, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said that Noble had demanded in a speech the impeachment of President Roosevelt, charged that the United States had messed in Japan's affairs and asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had "egged Poland into an attack on Germany."

The FBI arrested Noble, Ellis O. Jones, listed in pamphlets as founder of the National Copperheads, and Miss Leone Lee of suburban Glendale as they left a meeting of 200 persons at the Embassy Club.

Noble recently testified that he admired Hitler, at a State Assembly committee investigation of Nazi and communist activities here.

The sedition charge carries a maximum penalty of twenty years' imprisonment.

Finnish Freighter Seized

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Finnish freighter seized by the Coast Guard last night as it passed through the Capes at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay proceeded toward Baltimore today.

A. R. Archibald, district U. S. immigration director, said his agents would meet the vessel and remove all Finnish nationals. They will be taken to the city jail where the alien crews of two other Finnish freighters are held.

Danes Offer Services To U. S.

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The captain, officers and cadets of the Danish naval training ship Danmark, now at Jacksonville, Fla., have offered their services and their ship to the United States for service in "the fight for victory and liberty."

The Danmark was in American waters at the outbreak of the war.

The offer was announced on behalf of Capt. Knud L. Hansen, by Danish Minister Henry Kauffman in a note to the State Department.

Methodist Missionaries On Luzon Island Safe

Report Covers 23 Engaged In Evangelistic And Educational Work

DEC 13 1941

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—All Methodist missionaires on Luzon Island in the Philippines were reported safe in a cable received by the Board of Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church.

Dr. Ernest E. Tuck, superintendent of missions in the Philippine Islands, made the report covering twenty-three missionaries engaged in evangelistic and educational work.

The board also received a cable stating that the steamship of the Java Pacific Line on which four missionaries were en route to Singapore had reached an undisclosed port. The four are the Reverend and Mrs. David C. Stubbs, Savannah, Ga.; Miss Pearl Palmer, Clintonville, N. Y., and Miss Maud Nelson Henderson, Texas.

Sugar Legislation To Remain Unchanged For Next 3 Years

DEC 13 1941

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee voted today to continue existing sugar legislation for another three years without any changes in quotas.

Chairman George (Dem., Ga.) said the committee "for obvious reasons" substituted its own bill for a House-approved measure which changed quotas.

"We didn't think it wise to go into any controversial matter at this time which might affect our relations with Cuba, the Philippines and our offshore producers," he said.

The bill reported out by the Senate committee increased the basic rate of benefit payments to sugar producers from 60 to 80 cents a hundred pounds, extending the benefit payments to the Virgin Islands and continued child-labor regulations.

Senator O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.), who offered the substitute for the House bill, said proponents of increased quotas for continental producers had abandoned their request in recognition of "the critical status of international affairs, the necessity for increased supplies of sugar from whatever sources available and for the splendid support received by this country" from those nations which would be affected by any change in quotas.

The Wyoming Senator declared that the bill reported by the Senate would provide for increased domestic production and afford a profitable market in the United States "for all offshore areas which are able to get sugar to the United States."

Singapore Seems to Be Focus Of Japs' Moves in Far East

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Official word from Manila that the "situation remains unchanged materially" may be taken as encouraging, especially in view of the continuing Japanese assaults against strategic

I think we may assume that reinforcements—air, land and water—will reach the Philippines before long, and it's good to know that our knight-champions are holding their own, pending arrival of aid.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's "we shall do our best" inspires confidence. And what a grand job those Marines are doing on the little Isle of Wake—darn their tough hides!

However, it should be emphasized that the Philippines are in a tough place. The Japs have troops ashore on both the northern and southern parts of Luzon and boast that they now are in position to start a pincers movement against

30,24-135-69

Manila. That represents a serious threat.

News from London that the Nipponese troops are infiltrating into Northern Malaya, and that the British are retiring to prepared positions, gives further indication that the Japs are maneuvering into position for a possible drive against the great naval base of Singapore. Even if they find a grand offensive against this powerful position isn't feasible, they figure on establishing airfields from which they can conduct bombing operations against the British fleet at Singapore.

One of the most vital questions in connection with the Battle of the Pacific is whether Russia is going to declare war on Japan. Certainly one would expect the Bolshevists to join the Allies in the fight, since the security of the Soviet Union is so heavily involved. Obviously the quicker Japan is knocked out, the better it will be for Russia, because of the conservation of American and British energy and resources.

The entrance of the Muscovites into the war against Japan at this critical juncture might have a devastating effect on the island empire. As already pointed out in this column, the Red air fleet at Vladivostok is a mighty sword suspended over the heads of the uneasy Japs. All out bombing raids against Japanese cities might be catastrophic for the Nipponese.

The Soviet announcement that Nazi peace overtures have been rejected, and that the Russians will stick by the Allies, comes at an opportune moment. Only yesterday I was asked what might be the significance of the Nazi withdrawal of warplanes from the Russian front, the German cessation of offensives, and Moscow's silence in the face of this. The intimation in this query was, of course, that Hitler and Stalin might be getting ready to sign another peace pact.

The answer would seem to be that the Russian and the Nazi interests clash at every point. That isn't a new thought on my part, for those readers who have followed this column will recall that from the start of the European war, I repeatedly insisted that, despite the Russo-German pact, the two countries were headed for war.

It now is clear that the European conflict will see the crushing of either the Hitlerian regime or the Communistic regime. The Russian soldiers today are continuing their counteroffensives across the wintry wastes in the belief that Hitler is out to seize the wealth of their country and make the Slavs hewers of wood and drawers of water for the glory of the Reich.

Europe no longer is big enough to hold both Hitler and Stalin. The logic of the thing is that Stalin will fight, especially since Moscow already has laid against the Fuehrer the charge of treachery in violating his pact with Moscow.

LATIN AMERICAN ROUNDUP

DEC 13 1941

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUENOS AIRES, DEC.12--WHILE ADDITIONAL LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS WERE DECLARING WAR ON GERMANY AND ITALY OR FREEZING AXIS FUNDS, AN ARGENTINE FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCE DECLARED TONIGHT THAT THE MEETING OF AMERICAN FOREIGN MINISTERS IN RIO DE JANEIRO NEXT MONTH WOULD SEEK STRONGER ECONOMIC COOPERATION AMONG THE AMERICAS IN THE LIGHT OF THE WAR.

ELIMINATION OF FIFTH COLUMNISTS, INCLUDING POSSIBLE ACTION AGAINST PRO-AXIS NEWSPAPERS AND AGENCIES IN LATIN AMERICA, ALSO WILL BE A PRIME TOPIC, HE SAID.

U.S.AMBASSADOR NORMAN ARMOUR CONFERRED TODAY WITH RAUL DAMONTE TABORDA, CHAIRMAN OF THE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING ANTI-ARGENTINE ACTIVITIES.

DECLARATIONS OF WAR AGAINST GERMANY AND ITALY TODAY INCLUDED THOSE OF EL SALVADOR, HAITI, PANAMA AND HONDURAS.

URUGUAY AND BOLIVIA FROZE AXIS FUNDS, AND URUGUAY ANNOUNCED SHE WOULD TREAT ALL WARRING AMERICAN NATIONS AS NEUTRALS.

CHILE'S DEFENSE MINISTER SAID THE CHILEAN ARMY HAD ENOUGH GUNS TO DEFEND THE STRAITS OF MAGELLAN BUT WOULD LOOK TO THE UNITED STATES FOR OTHER DEFENSE WEAPONS. HE SUGGESTED A CONFERENCE WITH THE ARGENTINE AND BRAZILIAN GENERAL STAFFS ON DEFENSE OF THE STRAITS.

IN PERU THE JAPANESE LEGATION SENT THE NEWSPAPERS A LONG STATEMENT DEFENDING JAPAN'S POSITION AGAINST THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, BUT NONE PRINTED IT.

MEXICO'S PRESIDENT MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO SAID "CERTAIN EVIL-INTENTIONED PERSONS" WERE TRYING TO CREATE HATRED OF THE UNITED STATES AMONG THE PEASANTS AND ORDERED THEIR ARREST.

SOLIDARITY IN ATTITUDE (700)

--

DEC 13 1941

BY EDWARD STUNTZ

(ADVANCE)--WASHINGTON, DEC 12-(WIDE WORLD)-THE FRATERNITY OF AMERICAN NATIONS DEMONSTRATED ITS SOLIDARITY, AS PERHAPS NEVER BEFORE, BY LINING UP SPONTANEOUSLY IN A 100 PER CENT MUSTER OF RESOURCES AGAINST THE ENEMIES ATTACKING THE UNITED STATES AND ENDANGERING THE HEMISPHERE.

WITHIN THREE DAYS AFTER THE OUTBREAK OF HOSTILITIES IN THE PACIFIC, IT WAS CLEAR THAT THE AMERICAS STOOD IN SOLID RANKS AGAINST JAPAN AND HER AXIS PARTNERS.

THIS OLD FRATERNITY OF NATIONS HAD BEEN TRIED AND FOUND WANTING UNDER MANY PAST CIRCUMSTANCES, BUT TODAY IT STOOD UNITED.

THE UNIFIED ACTION OF THESE REPUBLICS HAD BEEN THE DREAM OF SIMON BOLIVAR, THE HOPE OF MOST NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICAN STATESMEN FROM EARLIEST COLONIAL DAYS, AND THE DESIGN OF UNITED STATES PRESIDENT MONROE.

PAN AMERICANISM HAS COME THROUGH UNDER THE TEST OF FIRE. IT HAS DONE ITS BIT BEFORE, BUT NEVER AS COMPLETELY AND WHOLE-HEARTEDLY AS IT NOW IS DOING.

TWENTY NATIONS TO THE SOUTH OF THE UNITED STATES--NOW CONVINCED THAT THIS COUNTRY IS A SINCERE RATHER THAN A GREEDY NEIGHBOR--HAVE GRATIFIED, ALMOST STARTLED, THIS CAPITAL WITH THEIR ASSURANCES OF GOOD WILL.

MORE OF THEM THAN LINED UP WITH THIS COUNTRY DURING THE WHOLE COURSE OF THE LAST WORLD WAR ALREADY HAVE DECLARED WAR ON JAPAN. ALL OF THE OTHERS, INCLUDING THOSE WHICH REMAINED COLDLY ALOOF DURING THE PAST WORLD WAR, HAVE PLEDGED THEMSELVES TO ACT IN CORDIAL UNDERSTANDING WITH THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER SISTER AMERICAN REPUBLICS UNDER THE NEW HEMISPHERE DOCTRINE THAT HAS SUPPLANTED THE MONROE DOCTRINE--THE NOW CELEBRATED ACT OF HAVANA.

DEC 13 1941

THAT ACT BLUNTLY PROCLAIMS THAT ANY OUTSIDE AGGRESSION AGAINST ANY AMERICAN NATION SHALL BE CONSIDERED AGGRESSION AGAINST EACH AND ALL OF THEM. THIS IS THE DOCUMENT WHICH HAS TO ALL PRACTICAL PURPOSES SUPPLANTED THE MONROE DOCTRINE, AND IT HAS ITS SEEDS IN A UNITED STATES "GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY" WHICH LATIN AMERICANS HAVE LITTLE BY LITTLE ACCEPTED AS SINCERE.

DEC 13 1941

B153WX

PAST HISTORY COMPARED WITH THE PRESENT SHOWS HOW FAR PAN AMERICANISM HAS GONE AHEAD DURING THE YEARS BETWEEN WARS.

DURING THE OLD "HOCK DER KAISER" DAYS THE UNITED STATES COULD COUNT ON ONLY EIGHT LATIN AMERICAN REPUBLICS AS ALL-OUT ALLIES. THE MAJORITY OF THESE WERE ALLIES ONLY DURING THE FEW MONTHS PRECEDING ARMISTICE. FOUR OTHERS SEVERED DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH GERMANY IN 1917, BUT DID NOT DECLARE WAR. EIGHT OTHERS, INCLUDING MEXICO, ARGENTINA, CHILE, COLOMBIA, AND VENEZUELA, REMAINED NEUTRALLY ALOOF.

TODAY, LATIN AMERICA AS A WHOLE HAS DEMONSTRATED, IN DIFFERING WAYS, A SENSE OF OBLIGATION TO THE NEW PRECEPTS OF INTER AMERICAN SOLIDARITY.

ELECTRIFIED BY THE NEWS OF JAPAN'S ASSAULT ON THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

AND THE PHILIPPINES, LITTLE COSTA RICA DECLARED WAR IMMEDIATELY. NICARAGUA, CUBA, THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, PANAMA AND OTHERS FOLLOWED SUIT, STARTING A SALVO OF INDIGNATION THAT SWEPT THE WHOLE CONTINENT.

THE GOVERNMENT OF BIG BRAZIL, AND THE UNPREDICTABLE ARGENTINE ADMINISTRATION FOLLOWED WITH ASSURANCES OF SOLIDARITY MORE THAN GRATIFYING TO THE UNITED STATES. IT CAN BE SAID SAFELY THAT EVERY REPUBLIC IN THE AMERICAS IS NOW TAKING INVENTORY OF ITS MEANS OF SUPPORT FOR CONTINENTAL SOLIDARITY.

THIS IS THE WAY THE SOCIETY OF REPUBLICS HAS APPROACHED THE PRESENT COMFLICT:

DEC 13 1941

COSTA RICA DECLARED WAR ON JAPAN DEC. 7, 1941, THE DAY JAPAN DECLARED WAR ON THE UNITED STATES AFTER FIRST BOMBING OUR PACIFIC OUTPOSTS; NICARAGUA DECLARED WAR, DEC. 7; UNITED STATES DECLARED WAR, DEC. 8, HONDURAS, GUATEMALA, PANAMA, EL SALVADOR, HAITI, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC DECLARED WAR, DEC. 8; CUBA, DECLARED WAR, DEC. 9.

BIG AND FORMERLY ALOOF MEXICO BROKE DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH JAPAN ON DEC. 7. BRAZIL'S COUNCIL OF MINISTERS APPROVED A MESSAGE OF UNLIMITED SOLIDARITY TO THE UNITED STATES, DEC. 8. ON THE SAME DAY, ARGENTINA, NOT ALWAYS FRIENDLY TO NORTH AMERICA, SENT A MESSAGE DECLARING UNITED STATES A NON-BELLIGERENT AND LATER INTERPRETED THIS ACTION AS MEANING THAT ARGENTINA WOULD GIVE THE UNITED STATES "RECIPROCAL ASSISTANCE AND MUTUAL DEFENSE." COLUMBIA BROKE DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH JAPAN, BOLIVIA PLEDGED "RESOLUTE SUPPORT" OF PAN AMERICANISM, PERU FROZE JAPANESE CREDITS, CHILE PROCLAIMED SOLIDARITY, VENEZUELA OFFERED "FIRM SUPPORT," AS DID ECUADOR--

ALL ON DECEMBER 7 OR 8.

B154WX

URUGUAY AND PARAGUAY, MEANWHILE, SUGGESTED A CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS. THEIR INDICATIONS WERE THAT THEIR INTEREST LAY IN PANAMERICAN SOLIDARITY--THE PROTECTIVE BOON OF SMALLER NATIONS.

THE ROUND-UP MUSTER OF THE AMERICAN NATIONS BECAME REPETITIOUS DECEMBER 11, THE DAY THAT THE UNITED STATES RECEIVED AND QUICKLY RESPONDED TO DECLARATIONS OF WAR BY GERMANY AND ITALY.

COLUMBIA PROMPTLY ADVISED SHE WOULD CONSIDER HERSELF BOUND TO THE UNITED STATES BY WHAT SHE HAD SAID AGAINST JAPAN. MEXICO SEVERED DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE TWO AXIS NATIONS. CHILE SAID SHE WOULD OPEN HER PORTS TO THE UNITED STATES. MOST OF THE OTHERS INDICATED THAT THEIR POSITION ALREADY HAD BEEN DESCRIBED.

GUAM LOST TO JAPS, CAPITAL FEARS

Guam Probably Lost, Navy Says; Wake And Midway Still Fighting Japanese

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The navy announced today that it was unable to communicate with the Pacific island of Guam by either radio or cable and added that capture of the island by the Japanese was proable. A force of fewer than 400 naval personnel and 155 marines was stationed on the island, the navy's communique said, and these defenders had been repeatedly bombed. Furthermore, Japanese troops were said to have landed at several points on the island. The navy said that Wake and Midways islands, which are closer to Hawaii than Guam—which is closest to the Philippines—were continuing to resist.

Navy Dept. Communique

"The Navy Department announced that it is unable to communicate with Guam either by radio or cable. The capture of the island is probable. A small force of less than 400 naval personnel and 155 marines were stationed in Guam. According to the last reports from Guam, the island had been bombed repeatedly and Japanese troops had landed at several points on the island.

"Wake and Midway continue to resist.

"The above is based on reports until 9 A. M. today."

Silence On Civilians' Fate

The communique made no mention of American civilians on Guam or what their fate might have been. Some time ago Congress appropriated considerable sums for development of seaplane facilities there, and it was believed that unless the workers had been withdrawn even after Japan's lightning attack on Pearl Harbor last Sunday, many of them probably were on the island at the time of its supposed capture.

The fall of Guam had been anticipated here practically ever since the start of the war with Japan.

President Roosevelt said in his radio address Tuesday night that the people must accept the idea that Guam, Midway and Wake could all be taken. Further proof of this expectation was seen in the small size of the armed force stationed there.

Other Two Still May Fall

Similarly, Wake and Midway may fall despite heroic resistance. The navy already has reported that in one forty-eight-hour period the Japanese attacked Wake four times by air and once by sea nd that during the latter assault, a Japanese light cruiser and destroyer were sunk by aerial counter-attack by the Wake Marine garrison.

Japan's scheme for moving in on the Philippines, the War Department said today, "is now clearly revealed" as calling for the establishment of "improvised air bases" outside ground-defense areas.

Cebu Bombed

This interpretation was contained in a department announcement that Japanese aircraft had bombed Cebu, south of the concentrated defenses of the island of Luzon.

Other aircraft bombed Clark Field, north of Manila, the department said in the day's first communique on the fighting in the Philippines.

Meanwhile, no further reports of enemy activities in Hawaii have been received, it was said.

War Dept. Communique

The text of the communique, covering reports up to 9.30 A. M., Eastern standard time:

"1. Philippine theater:

"Enemy aircraft in medium strength bombed Cebu and Clark Field. Japanese ground activity on the island of Luzon was sporadic and unimportant. The enemy plan is now clearly revealed as an attempt to secure improvised air bases outside of the area encompassed by our ground defenses.

"On Wednesday the Secretary of War authorized the commanding general of the Far East command to award the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry in action beyond the call of duty. He also gave General MacArthur the power to promote officers and enlisted men of the Far East command for outstanding leadership in the present operations.

"2. Hawaii:

"No further reports of enemy activities have been received."

Cebu Far From Manila

The bombing of Cebu, which is both an island and a city about 300 air miles from Manila, represented an extension of recent Japanese raids in the Philippines.

At the start of the invasion, however, air attacks were made more than 200 miles south of Cebu—at Davao, on the island of Mindanao.

GUAM SEIZED, NAVY THINKS; RADIO SILENT

Cables Also Dead; Civilian Workers Feared Captured; 155 Marines in Garrison

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP). — The United States probably has lost the island of Guam to invading Japanese, it was announced today, but the hard-bitten defenders of the Philippines struck a telling blow at Nippon by chopping off and liquidating a seaborne enemy spearhead thrust ashore north of Manila.

DEC 14 1941

The sombre announcement from the Navy Department that Guam, 1,600 miles southeast of Tokio, was out of communication with the Department and probably captured came as no surprise.

The President had said earlier in the week that the public must be prepared for the fall of the little, 30-mile long island, which lay virtually without fortification in the midst of Japanese-mandated islands east of the Philippines.

COMMUNIQUE TERSE.

The terse communique about the fate of the island, which Congress repeatedly had refused to fortify heavily on the ground that it might stir Japan up to make war, said:

"The Navy Department announced that it is unable to communicate with Guam either by radio or cable. The capture of the island is probable. A small force of less than 400 naval personnel and 155 Marines were stationed in Guam. According to the last reports from Guam, the island had been bombed repeatedly and Japanese troops had landed at several points on the island.

"Wake and Midway continue to resist.

"The above is based on reports until 9 a. m. today."

FEAR WORKERS TAKEN.

It was feared that a large number of civilian construction workers may have been captured on the island. They had been engaged in building seaplane facilities, for which Congress had granted funds.

On the island of Luzon in the Philippines, the defenders wiped out a Japanese force which had landed at Lingayen, smashed at Japanese bombers in breath-taking dogfights, and struggled to thwart enemy efforts to establish improvised airports in the islands.

HOMES, STORES WRECKED.

Japanese bombers aiming at Nichols Air Field in Manila wrecked more than 100 small stores and residences near the field, killing at least 75 persons and wounding 300. At least four of the planes attacking objectives in the Manila area were reported shot down.

A graphic dispatch from Manila told how hundreds of Japanese parachutists floated down into the mountains of north central Luzon Thursday, only to be wiped out in hand-to-hand struggles with Filipino soldiers.

As for the situation in Hawaii, belated reports to the War Department declared that more than 20 Japanese planes were destroyed in the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor last Sunday. Six Army fliers were cited for performing spectacular feats of heroism in the face of superior numbers.

One of the heroes, Second Lieut. George S. Welch, of Wilmington, Del., accounted for four of the enemy planes after performing what the War Department proudly called "maneuvers worthy of a veteran fighter."

U. S. Men Wipe Out Jap Unit In Luzon

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Dec. 3—Japanese landing forces which won a foothold in Lingayen, on the west coast of Luzon one hundred miles from Manila, were declared officially today to have been wiped out.

A communique from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur indicated that the Japanese had made no gains at other landing bridgeheads and that no new landings had been reported. "The situation on the ground has not changed," it asserted.

Text Of Communique

The text of the communique follows:

"Several air fields were attacked by enemy aircraft today.

"Reports so far are meager, but it is reported our losses were slight.

"Some Japanese planes were destroyed, including one shot down by an anti-aircraft battery of the harbor defenses, but the number so far is undetermined.

"The situation on the ground is not changed. Mopping up in the Lingayen area has been concluded."

Second Such Jap Defeat

Thus the second Japanese attempt to gain a Luzon foothold within striking distance of the military works around Manila apparently was smashed.

The Japanese first were reported landing at Lingayen on Wednesday. Within twenty-four hours the situation there was declared "under control," but it was disclosed yesterday that the Japanese were again attempting to develop an attack there.

Tokyo Claimed Gains

(An official Tokyo broadcast earlier told the Japanese people that their forces were advancing inland from the Luzon landings and urging the Filipinos to revolt.)

General MacArthur reported earlier that fighting at other places where the Japanese had stabbed at the coastal defenses had become sporadic. He declared there had been no confirmation of recurrent reports that the Japanese had landed parachute troops.

Air Field Center Of Attack

The Japanese struck anew during the day at United States air bases around Manila and elsewhere in the Philippines. In possibly their heaviest attack they bombed military objectives in the Manila area—particularly Nichols Field.

The raiders, appearing just after noon, met strong resistance from both fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns.

Although the Manila attack centered around Nichols Field, incomplete reports said native residential sections immediately outside the military reservation also were bombed.

(Bert Silen, NBC correspondent, said in a broadcast from Manila that damage to the field apparently was slight, but that for almost a mile civilian homes were set afire.)

Attacked From Above, Below

An Associated Press staff member, Clark Lee, watched the raid from Manila's tallest building and saw American or Philippine fighters pitch into the formation of Japanese bombers.

The fighter craft attacked from above the planes and then flew up from below to get a second crack at them. However, the Japanese still held their formations.

Under Fire Immediately

One flight of enemy planes passed directly over the Associated Press lookout post at an altitude of about 10,000 feet, and drew a shower of shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns.

The noise of the bombings ceased at about 1 P. M.

The bombers came over in two flights, from the west, and headed directly toward Nichols Field. As soon as they appeared, heavy anti-aircraft fire met them.

DEC 14 1941

One Spectacular Dogfight

Ground watchers saw one spectacular dogfight when a lone American closed in and engaged two Japanese planes. All three crafts disappeared in the clouds to the west with their battle still raging.

Earlier in the day air raiders had lashed at outlying Philippine strongholds. General MacArthur announced at 11 A. M. that the Japanese had bombed Clark Field, forty miles north of Manila, and Cebu, about 250 miles southeast of Manila, during the morning.

(In Washington, the War Department announced last night that the Japanese attempted yesterday to land south of Vigan and north of San Fernando and at Lingayen, all on Luzon's west coast, but were repulsed.

(An army communique that was reported in an NBC broadcast from Manila said last night was uneventful, but that Manila had an air-raid alarm early today. The Japanese planes turned away before reaching the city, the communique added.)

Night Of Shooting In Manila

The spurt of raiding followed a night of shooting in Manila, where sentries and constables, ordered to "shoot to kill" to stamp out fifth columnists, battled against elements who fired rockets and violated the stringent blackout.

Rockets were seen in the downtown area early in the evening and over the bay front later. Rifle fire broke out immediately from those directions.

The sentries shot into several houses from which lights could be seen. In one district, a large clock atop a sign flashed on and was immediately shot out.

Pedestrians and motorists who failed to respond to challenges after curfew also drew the fire of guards.

500 Axis Nationals Held

The authorities have arrested more than 500 Italians and Germans. The Axis nationals were ready—with trunks packed and containers of food at hand.

(In Madrid, the Spanish Foreign Ministry announced that the consul-general at Manila had reported the Spanish colony in the Philippines safe.)

A pleas for swift help from the United States was made by United States High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre in a broadcast to the United States. "We are in the fight to stay," he said. "War enjoins upon us all action, action, action. Come on, America!"

Describes Situation As Unchanged

"There is no change in the situation," he added.

Ground troops were credited officially with having disposed of the Japanese force which had landed in the Lingayen area some 110 miles north of Manila, within striking distance of the capital. Lingayen is a port at the head of Lingayen gulf, the most sheltered spot on the west side of Luzon with the exception of Manila Bay itself.

Several Airfields Attacked

"Several airfields were attacked by enemy aircraft today," said General MacArthur's 4.30 P. M. Saturday communique.

DEC 14 1941

"Reports so far are meager, but it is believed our losses were slight. Some Japanese planes were destroyed, including one shot down by anti-aircraft battery of the harbor defenses, but the number is so far undetermined. The situation on the ground has not changed. Mopping up of the Lingayen area has been concluded."

Situation "Under Control"

An official statement Thursday had said that the situation at Lingayen was "under control" after the first Japanese landing Wednesday. On Friday, however, it was disclosed that the Japanese were attempting to develop a second attack there.

Francisco Villanueva, a civilian communications technician, returned to Manila from north central Luzon and said he witnessed the encounter, which lasted for several hours beginning about noon on Thursday.

His story was the only first-hand account of parachutists having landed in the Philippines. Reports of parachutists in the Ilagan area, one hundred miles northwest of Luzon, were circulated several days ago.

Villanueva said he saw hundreds of Japanese swooping down upon the mountains. Some were land troops coming from an unknown source, he said, and others were parachutists attempting to make a landing in a coordinated attack.

Killed Dangling From 'Chutes

Many of the latter were killed while dangling from their parachutes, he said, and others were captured upon landing.

The Japanese force was outnumbered and finally surrendered, he added.

He said the parachutists carried small gasoline tanks, which he believed were for the purpose of starting fires.

Praises Filipino Fighters

The Filipinos fought "vigorously, bravely and well," in the close-quarter battle in which only a few shots were fired, he added.

He explained he had accompanied the troops into the mountains to install communications facilities.

An official broadcast in Toyko early Saturday declared that Japanese forces were advancing inland from Luzon landings, urging the Filipinos to revolt.

First Air Attacks Early

First air attacks on the Philippines Saturday were in the early morning. The 11 A. M. communique reported: "In the air the enemy have bombed Cebu and Clark Field. On the ground, only sporadic and unimportant activity."

Cebu is on an island of the same name 350 miles southeast of Manila. Clark Field, along with Nichols Field, is part of the Manila defense system.

Manila watched large Japanese bombing squadrons attack military installations about the capital in assaults which began at 12.35 P. M. Flying in directly from the west, the first wave headed straight for Nichols air depot. It was met by heavy anti-aircraft fire and later by fighter planes which dived upon it from high altitudes; while others rose to attack from beneath.

Bombs In Residential Area

Terrific detonations were heard from the Nichols Field area.

Reports direct from the field and from other airfields which were the targets of the attack said a number of bombs had fallen in native residential sections, indicating that the defenders had forced the Japanese to drop their bombs and flee.

An NBC brodacast from Manila said damage to Nichols Field was slight.

Blackened and smashed ruins of more than one hundred small residences and stores littered a three-mile area bordering Nichols air field.

The long pathway of destruction showed that the Japanese airmen both overshot and undershot their Nichols Field objective.

The casualties brought the city's death toll so far to more than one hundred. The final figures may exceed this, however.

At least four planes were reported shot down from the forty-three planes which bombed Manila objectives and the other planes which attacked Clark Field to the north and another field in Nueva Ecija province, which also is in the north central part of Luzon island.

Three of the twelve-plane formation were reported shot down by anti-aircraft fire in the north, and one by the Manila harbor defenses.

DEC 14 1941

Observers watching the raid from Manila's tallest building saw two of the Japanese waves roar over at about 10,000 feet, holding formation despite sharp attacks by American and Filipino fighter planes.

Fighter Chases Two Bombers

Over another area one American fighter chased two bombers into the clouds. Results of the dogfight were not seen from Manila.

During the day, General MacArthur sent the following message to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek:

"I take this occasion to send you a message of greeting in sympathy and in spirit. I have been ranged by your side from the beginning of your epic struggle for freedom. That spiritual conception has now become a reality and I send you this warm handclasp of a comrade in arms."

AMERICAN FLYERS STRIKE BACK HARD AT BOMBERS IN MANILA'S WORST RAID

Three-Mile Residential Area Near Nichols Air Field Wrecked, With 75 Killed—Japanese Foothold On Western Luzon Eliminated

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Sunday, Dec. 14 (6.20 A. M.)—An air-raid alarm was in force here today from 5.20 A. M. to 6.15 A. M. but there were no bombs reported dropped.

By CLARK LEE
Associated Press Correspondent

Manila, Sunday, Dec. 14—The Philippine army wiped out Japanese forces which had gained a foothold on western Luzon island Saturday and American flyers smashed hard at a Japanese bombing attack on Manila—the war's worst on the Philippine capital—in which at least 75 persons were killed and 300 wounded.

A checkup today showed that a three-mile residential area near Nichols Airfield was wrecked, although the American air fighters and strong anti-aircraft defenses forced the Japanese attackers, flying in tight formation, to undershoot and overshoot their target.

Wiped Out In Hand-To-Hand Fight

From the mountains of north central Luzon a civilian eyewitness returned to Manila with the first story of the landing of parachute troops, declaring that Filipino soldiers wiped out hundreds of the Japanese parachutists and land troops on Thursday in hand-to-hand fighting which lasted several hours.

An army spokesman said at 7.55 A. M. today (6.55 P. M., E.S.T., Saturday) that operations were proceeding against the Japanese at each of their three Luzon landing points—in the region of Aparri, in the north; Viagan, in the northwest, and Legaspi, in the southeast.

JAPANESE CLAIM ARIZONA WAS SUNK IN HAWAII ATTACK

Tokio Radio Adds to Its Assertions of Ships Destroyed.

DEC 14 1941

London, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Reuters today quoted a Japanese naval communique broadcast from Tokio as saying that the 32,600-ton United States battleship Arizona had been sunk in action at Hawaii.

The communique said the Arizona was the third American battleship to be sunk by Japanese forces since the outbreak of the war in the Pacific.

[The Arizona was launched in 1915 and its normal complement is about 1,358 men.]

The Japanese previously had reported the United States battleships Oklahoma and West Virginia sunk in the air attack on Hawaii last Sunday.

[Apparently the report on the sinking of the Arizona referred to the same action.]

The Japanese communique also said that it had been confirmed that a large British destroyer had been sunk during the same battle in which the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse were sent to the bottom off Malaya.

Japanese Say They Have Sunk U. S. S. Arizona

Report Week's Drive Seals Fate of Hongkong, New Sea Victories Claimed

DEC 14 1941

TOKIO, Dec. 13 (Official Radio Received by (AP).—The Japanese reported tonight that a land drive in their week-old Pacific-Asiatic offensive had "sealed the fate" of Hongkong while the campaign at sea had run up a total of 140,000 tons of British and American warships sunk.

A communique from the naval section of imperial headquarters added the 32,600-ton U. S. S. Arizona to its list of battleships sunk, saying without explanation that her destruction "is now confirmed."

A new British-Chinese move, possibly destined to open a new theater of conflict in the Far East, meanwhile was indicated in a Bangkok dispatch to the Tokio newspaper "Nichi Nichi," which said that British and Chinese forces from Burma had invaded northern Thailand near Chiengmai and that a battle had been in progress since yesterday with Thailand forces driving the British and Chinese back across the border.

Fight for Burma Road

Chiengmai is about thirty miles inside Thailand, on a road which is one of the most feasible routes for an advance on the Burma Road, supply line of the Chungking government. Thailand now is closely bound to Japan, having laid down her arms in the face of Japanese troops pouring in from French Indo-China.

Japanese Imperial headquarters said American military objectives on Wake Island had been damaged severely during an attack by Japanese naval units Thursday. The announcement said the Japanese suffered "some losses," but did not list what these were.

It said that in the aerial action against the Philippines naval warplanes attacked the west coast of Iba, Clark Field, and other objectives near Manila yesterday. Eight American planes were said to have been shot down and fourteen destroyed on the ground. In addition the Japanese said they destroyed eleven American flying boats.

Claim Gains in Malaya

The Japanese Army announced that its air force had downed 129 planes over Malaya and the Philippines, sunk one transport and two gunboats and damaged four transports in the first six days of war. All this, including "destruction of the British main air force in Malaya during the first three days," cost the Japanese only seventeen planes, the army said.

The army said that the fall of Hongkong was imminent, asserting that Kowloon, opposite Hongkong, had been occupied and that Kowloon's "four-miles-long and supposedly impregnable defenses have been shattered." Hongkong was said to be under air attack.

The Japanese now say that the Arizona was sunk in the initial onslaught at Pearl Harbor last Sunday, along with the battleships Oklahoma and West Virginia. The Japanese now list in their tabulation of 140,000 tons five battleships, one submarine, three smaller surface vessels and two other ships sunk; an aircraft carrier probably sunk and four battleships, four cruisers, a submarine and ten smaller craft damaged.

[The Japanese were crossed up in their figures, since the battle cruiser Repulse, 32,000 tons, and the battleship Prince of Wales, 35,000, known to have been sunk, plus the West Virginia, 31,800; the Arizona, 32,600, and the Oklahoma, 29,000, all reported by Tokio, have a total tonnage of 160,400.]

A "Nichi Nichi" dispatch from Saigon, Indo-China, said the government had issued a mobilization order affecting all youths fit for military service, following conclusion of a military agreement with Japan.

[The report of Indo-Chinese mobilization was denied at Vichy Saturday, The Asscociated Press said.]

The Japanese Justice Ministry announced that all interned foreigners of hostile nations would be given all possible comforts and that "special attention" would be taken of their health.

Domei, the official news agency, said the 17,000-ton liner Tatuta Maru, which had sailed from Yokohama for the United States to remove Japanese nationals, had turned back and reached safe waters. She is due to arrive at Yokohama tomorrow.

Tokyo, Dec. 13 (Official Radio Received by A. P.)—Japanese imperial headquarters said today American military objectives on Wake Island had been damaged severely during an attack by Japanese naval units Thursday.

DEC 14 1941

The announcement said the Japanese suffered "some losses," but did not list what these were.

It said that in the aerial action against the Philippines, naval warplanes heavily attacked the west coast town of Iba, Clark Field and other objectives near Manila yesterday.

Eight American planes were said to have been shot down and fourteen destroyed on the ground. In addition, the Japanese claimed the destruction of eleven American flying boats.

Arizona Claimed Sunk

Meanwhile, the Japanese raised to three their claims of United States battleships sunk in the initial aerial onslaught on Hawaii last Sunday, adding today the U. S. S. Arizona to the previously claimed battleships Oklahoma and West Virginia.

The naval section of imperial headquarters said the sinking of the Arizona "is now confirmed."

(How this was "confirmed," the communique did not say and there was no verification of the Japanese assertion in any other quarter.

Wild Claims Recalled

(It has been an Axis technique to make spectacular war claims, especially naval, in hope of learning the true result of attacks from its adversaries' denials.

(The United States has acknowledged that one battleship capsized and a destroyer was blown up in the enemy attack on Pearl Harbor December 8.)

Japanese sources said the British and American fleets in the Pacific now have lost about 140,000 tons of warships sunk, damaged or captured.

Their list included five battleships, one submarine, three smaller surface vessels and two other vessels sunk; an aircraft carrier probably sunk and four battleships, four cruisers, a submarine and ten smaller craft damaged.

(In London, Reuters quoted a Japanese communique as saying it had been confirmed that a large British destroyer had been sunk during the same battle in which the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse were sent to the bottom off Malaya.

(A British torpedo boat, a gunboat and three merchant ships were declared to have been destroyed Thursday in an attack on the British crown colony of Hongkong.)

DEC 14 1941

The Japanese Army announced that its air force had downed 120 planes over Malaya and the Philippines, sunk one transport and two gunboats and damaged four transports.

All this, including "destruction of the British main air force in Malaya during the first three days," cost the Japanese Army only seventeen planes, the army boasted. The navy has issued no six-day figures.

Hongkong's Fall "Imminent"

Japanese army headquarters declared that the fall of Britain's Crown Colony of Hongkong was imminent following complete Japanese occupation of Kowloon "whose four-mile-long and supposedly impregnable defenses have been battered down."

It said the colony was under sustained Japanese aerial attack.

The mainland peninsula of Kowloon has the British city of Kowloon on it and faces the island part of Hongkong.

It said preparations already had begun for an attack on Hongkong. Other Japanese advices said Britain's main defense lines in front of the island had been broken.

Thailand "Invaders Repulsed"

Thailand troops have repulsed British and Chinese forces which invaded the country near Chiengrai, on the northern frontier, in a battle in progress since yesterday, Nichi Nichi reported today from Bangkok.

The dispatch said the combined British and Chinese forces had been driven northward across the frontier into Burma.

The British and Chinese first crossed the Thailand frontier toward Chiengrai, about thirty miles from the border, the dispatch said.

(The road through Chiengrai is one of the most feasible routes for an advance upon the Burma road.)

(Berlin quoted dispatches from Shanghai as saying a large number of Japanese bombers heavily attacked the Tenasserim area of southernmost Burma shortly after noon today.)

Notwithstanding the Japanese assertions of mighty opening blows, Premier General Hideki Tojo warned a public rally against intoxication over them and declared Japan must be prepared for a long war and all the hardships that entails.

The Premier again told the Japanese they were "fighting in self-defense and in the cause of righteousness."

The Justice Ministry announced that all interned foreigners of hostile nations would be given all possible comforts and that "special attention" would be taken of their health.

TOJO WARNS JAPAN OF LONG, HARD WAR

He Says That 'Intoxication by Initial Victories' Should Be Avoided

'IN END RIGHT WILL WIN'

Thai Premier Congratulates Tokyo Chief on 'Splendid' Achievements of Week

DEC 14 1941

TOKYO, Dec. 13 (From a Japanese Domei News Agency Broadcast Recorded by The United Press) —Premier-War Minister General Hideki Tojo warned today against "intoxication by initial victories" and said Japan should be prepared for a long, hard war necessitating sacrifices.

Addressing a large public rally in Hibiya Park, General Tojo said that "in its history of 2,600 years the Japanese Empire never once has drawn the sword save in self-defense and in the cause of righteousness."

He said that for months Japan sought to keep the peace in the Pacific, "but our selfish enemy flatly refused to lend an ear."

["Britain and America never wanted to compromise in the Far East, but the Japanese Government had done the utmost over a long period to secure a Pacific understanding," General Tojo said, according to a Reuter recording. "Japan was therefore compelled to rise in arms against Britain and the United States. I am convinced that right is on our side, and that in the end right will win. Japan's victory means triumph for common prosperity in the Far East, and also the triumph for a New World Order."]

General Tojo today received a congratulatory message on Japan's "splendid achievements in the first few days of war" from Thailand's Premier Luang Bipul Songgram.

Replying, General Tojo said that "the spirit of Japanese officers and men as well as the people behind the guns is increasingly vigorous."

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo said in a luncheon speech, celebrating conclusion of the German-Japanese-Italian agreement for a common front against Britain and America, that the Axis would be victorious.

"Justice alone promises victory," he said.

General Togo said the new accord is the highest expression of true, practical cooperation.

Japs In Malaya Halted; British

DEC 14 1941

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—The RAF will send immediate reinforcements to Malaya and the Near East, it was announced today. There was said to have been no evidence of German airmen or any secret weapon in the Japanese air attack on the battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse. Germany was still referred to as "the main enemy."

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 13—The British indicated in tonight's communique that the Japanese invasion of upper British Malaya had been substantially checked.

Combat continued on the Kedah province front, facing Thailand in the north, it was said, and the situation there was little changed, while in the Kelantan province area there was no alteration in positions.

Five Jap Planes Claimed

Three British planes were said to have destroyed one enemy plane and probably two others in combat over the island of Penang. In other actions four more Japanese planes were downed. The British admitted no plane losses.

JAPS ON MALAYA HELD, BRITISH SAY

Singapore Reports Invaders Forced Virtually To Standstill In North

Rangoon Communique Tells Of Raid By Foe On Tenasserim Area

BY C. YATES McDANIEL

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 13—Official reports from the jungle battlefields of northern Malaya indicated tonight that the British were holding the Japanese invaders virtually to a standstill.

DEC 14 1941

The British reported little change in the situation on the Kedah province front to the northwest despite continued fighting, and none at all in Kelantan province to the northeast.

Two Points Not Mentioned

No specific mention was made of the situation at Kota Bharu near the Thailand border on the east coast or Kuantan halfway down the east coast in the direction of Singapore, hitherto listed as points of invasion.

By air combat and ground fire, the British said they shot down five enemy planes today without loss of their own, crediting anti-aircraft alone with eight planes and probably nine since the Japanese attack was launched.

Third Raid On Burma Area

A communique from Rangoon, British Burma, announced that the Japanese had raided the Tenasserim area, where Burma shares the Malay peninsula with Thailand. It was the third raid there, but the British reported no damage or casualties.

Rangoon, itself, had its first air alarm today, but the all clear followed in thirty minutes without incident.

Tokyo Quoted Claiming Far East Air Supremacy

Bern, Dec. 13 (AP)—DNB said the Japanese claimed air dominance over Britain in the Far East in a communique today from the army section of imperial headquarters. The communique said:

"The strength of British aviation in the Far East has been destroyed in combats for Malaya and the supremacy of Japanese aviation has been established in Malayan territory.

"One hundred twenty-nine British planes have been downed or destroyed on the ground. Moreover, an enemy transport has been sunk. Four transports have been seriously damaged. Several hundred trucks have been destroyed.

"Japanese losses have reached seventeen planes."

British Retreat Indicated

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—British officials said today that troops defending Hongkong may have withdrawn, "in accordance with plans," from Kowloon Peninsula to positions on the Island of Hongkong itself. Reports on the fighting in that South China area were obscure.

Authorities here declined to comment on the announcement today by the Japanese Ambassador at Buenos Aires that Hongkong had been captured. They suggested it could have arisen from a Tokio radio announcement that Kowloon had fallen.

The British crown colony extends twenty miles to the north of the mainland embracing Kowloon Peninsula. It was not clear whether a Japanese announcement that Kowloon had been taken applied to the peninsula as a whole or to the city of Kowloon on its southern tip.

Occupation of Kowloon City, as distinguished from Kowloon Peninsula, would represent a penetration of about fifteen miles into the crown colony. The city has a population of about 300,000, almost entirely Chinese.

A dispatch from Chungking said that Chinese forces attempting to relieve the beleaguered British colony had captured Senchuan, described as a strategically important point north of Hongkong. Senchuan was not located specifically, but was believed to be between Hongkong and Canton, which the Chinese bombed yesterday.

Chinese Planes Raid Japanese in Canton

DEC 14 1941

Chungking, Dec. 13 (AP).—Chinese reports said last night that Chinese planes had attacked Japanese-occupied Canton during the day in what possibly was a prelude to a general drive designed to recapture Canton.

Canton is believed to be the principal base from which the Japanese are bombing the British Crown Colony of Hongkong.

Retreat At Kowloon Likely, British Admit

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—An authoritative source acknowledged today the possibility that British troops in the Crown Colony of Hongkong might have withdrawn from Kowloon "in accordance with plans," but there was no confirmation of a Japanese claim that the city had been occupied.

Japanese military headquarters, in an official radio broadcast, said that its forces had occupied the city and surrounding British territory facing Victoria, across a stretch of water from insular portions of the great British naval base Kowloon is situated on the mainland.

Fifteen-Mile Penetration

Occupation of Kowloon city, as distinguished from Kowloon peninsula, would represent a penetration of about fifteen miles into the Crown Colony. The city has a population of about 300,000, almost entirely Chinese.

The British source said that while the British in Hongkong and the Chinese in Kwangtung province were in closest touch, there was nothing yet to indicate coordination of Chinese attacks (for example, on Canton, to Hongkong's northwest) with the defense of the colony.

In another sector of the Asiatic front, northwest Malaya, the British said there had been "some withdrawal" by Empire forces in Kedah province, and new Japanese air raids on the Island of Penang, off the northwestern Malayan coast.

Colony's Fate Sealed: Domei

Domei, the Japanese news agency, broadcast a Saigon, French Indo-China, dispatch saying that the British defending Hongkong had withdrawn from their first line of defense following capture of Kowloon.

Reports received at Saigon, Domei said, indicated that "British forces in Hongkong have been trapped, and the fate of the Crown Colony is virtually sealed."

Are Sunk

DEC 14 1941

Chungking, China, Dec. 13 (AP). The Chinese declared today that their troops had recaptured Senchuan, strategic point north of Hongkong, in hard efforts to relieve pressure on the British Hongkong garrison.

The Chinese also said they had reports of Japanese troop movements in the Hankow-Ichang area, two thirds of the way west from Shanghai to Chungking, but were unable to determine whether these indicated large-scale withdrawals of Japanese forces.

[By the Associated Press]

Batavia, Java, N. E. I., Dec. 13—Dutch submarines were credited tonight with destruction of about 4,000 Japanese soldiers and their four transports off southern Thailand and another Dutch naval force was said to have liquidated a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo.

The transports were smashed as the Japanese reinforcements were being moved to the Malayan battlefront.

The submarine victory was announced by the Batavia radio but the N. E. I. military-naval communique reported the Borneo action, saying "a unit of our naval forces has dealt with a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo."

"A number of motor launches were seized during this action while other vessels were destroyed," the communique added. "The settlers have been interned."

The high command announced that hostilities had not yet touched N. E. I. territory and that mobilization of the army was proceeding smoothly.

The submarine action in the Gulf of Siam was one of the sharpest blows yet delivered against the Japanese.

(The British radio said that actually five Japanese transports were sunk by the Dutch submarines under British naval command seventy-five miles off Cape Patani, in peninsular Thailand. NBC recorded the BBC report.)

The fully loaded transports were headed south, presumably for a new landing in British Malaya.

Enemy Settlement On Coast Of Borneo Is "Liquidated"

[By the Associated Press]

Batavia, N. E. I., Dec. 13—About 4,000 Japanese soldiers have been plunged to their death in shark-infested Malayan waters with the sinking of four transports by Dutch submarines, according to an announcement tonight by the commander in chief of the Royal Netherlands East Indies Navy.

These submarines, operating under the over-all British naval command, thus scored one of the heaviest counter-blows to the Japanese in their far-flung sea-air-land offensive at a time when hostilities had still not touched the Dutch territory in the East.

Bagged 75 Miles Off Coast

The transports were bagged but seventy-five miles off the Gulf of Siam coast of peninsular Thailand, opposite Cape Patani. They were en route to reinforce the Japanese Malayan front or perhaps for a new landing attempt on British Malaya.

Besides the Gulf of Siam action, the Dutch announced officially that a naval unit had liquidated a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo, one of the largest islands of the Netherlands East Indies archipelago, which the Dutch share with the British.

The high command said that hostilities had not yet come to Netherlands East Indies territory, permitting smooth mobilization of the colonial army which is still in progress.

May Send Troops Abroad

The commander in chief decreed that Netherlands East Indies troops might serve abroad—that is, outside Dutch territory, if they are needed.

Batavia's fifth air-raid alarm of the war was sounded at 7 o'clock tonight (6.30 A. M., E.S.T.). The all-clear followed in about an hour without the appearance of any planes.

Police were said to be investigating reports that signal lights were flashed during Friday night's alarms. The Attorney General asked the public to report any unusual light displays.

'Drive Lathes like Tanks in Action,' Munitions Chief Asks—Recruits Pour In

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 13 (AP)—Sydney sandbagged its important buildings and the principal towns and cities on the coast ordered blackouts tonight as Australian workers responded to the appeal of Munitions Minister Horman J. O. Makin to "drive lathes like tanks in action" and "wield hammers as if they were bayonets."

Sydney, which fronts on the Pacific Ocean, followed up the digging of trenches in parks by piling up sandbag protection against Japanese air or naval raid.

As the result of Mr. Makin's appeal, munitions workers offered to abandon their holidays and work around the clock.

At all recruiting centers there were long queues of volunteers from early morning until late at night.

Army Minister Frances M. Forde declared Australia would keep her word to send reinforcements to Britain's Mediterranean front in spite of the Pacific war. There already is a substantial reservoir of reinforcements in the Middle East to meet likely demands in the near future, he said.

Australia Reports Enemy Planes

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The State Department announced today information had been received from the French authorities in French Indo-China that O. Edmund Clubb, American consul at Hanoi, who was arrested by the Japanese December 7, is safe and well and now under residential surveillance.

The report added that, contrary to previous advices, no action was taken against his secretary, Miss Iris Johnston.

The legation at Bangkok, Thailand, reported in a telegram dated December 10, that all members of the staff were safe.

A telegram from the American consulate at Penang, dated December 11, announced that all American residents of that city were safe so far as was known.

Large Claims Made

SAN FRANCISCO, Sunday Dec. 14 (From Japanese broadcasts recorded by The United Press)—Tokyo claimed the sinking of a total of 350,000 tons of enemy vessels since the beginning of the "Great East Asian War" during the past week.

The broadcast said the American vessels "confirmed" to have been destroyed were three battleships, four cruisers, one destroyer, one submarine and one "small vessel" for a total of 270,000 tons.

Japan listed the "sunk or destroyed" British naval vessels as two battleships, one destroyer and two small vessels for a total of 80,000 tons.

"These figures," asserted the Tokyo broadcaster, "far exceed any announced by any belligerent since the present war's beginning."

Hawaii Defense Bagged 20 Planes, Army Says

Names Of Six Flyers Inscribed On Roll Of Air Heroes — Wilmington Pilot Downs Four

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The War Department disclosed tonight that more than twenty Japanese planes had been shot down in last Sunday's Japanese air raids on Hawaii.

The names of six youthful flyers who downed ten of the enemy planes were inscribed by the army on the war roll of air heroes. One of them brought down four.

Their "spectacular feats of heroism" were said by Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, Hawaiian Department commander, to typify the "magnificent fighting of American pilots," which since has been demonstrated as well in the Philippines and at Wake Island.

Almost An Ace

Second Lieut. George S. Welch, of Wilmington, Del., was credited with downing four enemy planes. Thus, in a single combat, he failed by only one plane of becoming an "ace." According to 1914-18 tradition, a flyer attains that rating upon accounting for five enemy craft.

Second Lieut. Kenneth M. Taylor, of Hominy, Okla., destroyed two Japanese planes and four other pilots bagged one apiece. The four are:

Lieut. Louis M. Sanders, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

30.24—13521

LIEUT. GORDON H. STERLING, JR., West Hartford, Conn.

SECOND LIEUT. PHILIP M. RASMUSSEN, Boston.

SECOND LIEUT. HARRY W. BROWN, Amarillo, Texas.

Flying fast, single-seat pursuit planes, they fought in each instance against odds, finding their foes "decidedly clever and dangerous flyers," the War Department reported.

DEC 14 1941

Five In Their Twenties

Lieutenant Welch's feat vied with the most spectacular exploits of British and Nazi air men in the battle of Britain. Only Capt. Colin Purdie Kelly, Jr., who gave his life in scoring three direct hits on the Japanese battleship Haruna in the Philippines, has struck a harder blow against the foe in the Pacific thus far.

The six cited today, all but one in their twenties, were pictured by proud air force officials as typical of the skillful and aggressive young flyers trained by the thousands in recent months at the scattered army schools.

Their military careers were so brief before they were sent to reinforce Hawaii's air defenses that the War Department was hard put to dig up biological material.

Just Commissioned

Their detailed records, it was explained, probably were still filed at their former training centers or at air force headquarters in Hawaii.

Of Lieutenant Taylor, who shot down two planes, the War Department said he had only recently arrived in Hawaii, and "the ink was scarcely dry on his commission as an army officer when he was engaged in combat."

The communique said:

"The War Department has been advised by Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanding the Hawaiian Department, that numerous spectacular feats of heroism on the part of American army flyers were characteristic of the fight during the surprise attack of Japanese aircraft at Honolulu on December 7.

Examples Are Cited

"More then twenty Japanese planes were destroyed during the attack, typifying the magnificent fighting of American pilots, General Short cited the following examples:

"Lieutenant Taylor and Second Lieutenant Welch, both flying Curtiss single-seat pursuit planes early in the raid, attacked a formation of six Japanese planes. Each officer shot down two enemy planes. The other two Japanese planes escaped for the time being.

A short time later, Lieutenant Welch, alone, engaged two Japanese planes and, after maneuvers worthy of a veteran fighter, shot them both down.

"Thus, two young American officers destoyed six enemy planes in their first actual battle flight.

American Plane Down

"Lieutenant Sanders, flying at an altitude of about 3,000 feet, saw a dogfight between an American and a Japanese plane. As he banked to join the fight, he saw the American plane go down in flames. He immediately engaged the Japanese plane in a furious battle and shot it down.

"Lieutenant Sterling located a formation of six enemy planes. Undaunted by superior numbers, he courageously attacked and destroyed one of the Japanese planes.

DEC 14 1941

"Lieutenant Rasmussen engaged a single Japanese fighter plane over Schofield Barracks. The ensuing dogfight was witnessed by thousands of spectators as the American pilot, by superior maneuvering, sent the Japanese plane to the ground in a flaming mass of wreckage.

In Midst Of Japs

Lieut. Brown unexpectedly found himself in the midst of a rendezvous of Japanese planes. Instead of attempting to flee before the overpowering strength of the enemy, he courageously attacked, shooting down one of the enemy planes in the ocean off Kahuku.

"In each of these fights, the American pilots were outnumbered at all times and found their opponents decidedly clever and dangerous flyers."

Welch Trained at Kelly Field

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Air Force Headquarters established that Lieutenant Welch is twenty-three years old, attended Purdue University for three years and completed his flying training at Kelly Field, Texas, fourteen months ago.

Lieutenant Taylor, a year younger, attended the University of Oklahoma for two years before signing up as a flying cadet. He was graduated from Brooks Field, Texas, last April 25.

Lieutenant Sanders, thirty-four and eldest of the group, was appointed a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve on Oct. 30, 1937.

Lieutenant Sterling, twenty-two, was graduated last April 25 from Maxwell Field, Ala.

Lieutenant Rasmussen is twenty-three and a Bachelor of Arts graduate of Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa. He completed his Army flying training April 25 in the same class as Lieutenant Sterling.

Lieutenant Brown, twenty-one, a graduate of Amarillo Junior College, finished his Army air training at Kelly Field on Oct. 15 this year.

Mothers Proud of Heroes

Lieutenant Harry W. Brown, one of the six United States Army aviators who battled superior Japanese forces successfully in the fighting at Hawaii last Sunday, didn't surprise his mother by his daring, The United Press reported.

"I knew Harry had it in him," she said. "Hurrah for my boy, and hurrah for all his buddies."

Mrs. Florence Brown, of Amarillo, Tex., mother of Lieutenant Brown, is an elevator operator. "Of course it's wonderful to hear that Harry gave a good account of himself," she said, "but I knew he would. I hope he and the rest of our fliers keep knocking those Japs down."

Another proud mother was Mrs. Joe K. Taylor, of Hominy, Okla., mother of Second Lieutenant Kenneth Taylor, who was also cited for heroism by the War Department for shooting down two Japanese planes in last Sunday's attack.

"Now I know that my boy can take care of himself in the air," she said. "I'm awfully proud, and excited, too. Despite his reassurances, his father and I worried after what happened last Sunday. We received a cablegram from him Thursday saying that he was safe."

She said her son had never flown an airplane before deciding to abandon his pre-law studies at the University of Oklahoma a little over a year ago to enroll in the United States Army Air Corps.

Lieutenant Taylor's father is a County Commissioner and a veteran of the first World War.

Second Lieutenant Philip M. Rasmussen, of Boston, thought an attack was coming long before it did.

In letters to his family he often wrote, "Things are looking very serious in the Pacific." Last week they received a letter which said, "We know a great deal more about what is going on in the Pacific than you people realize. But I am bound not to reveal any secrets."

His father, an interior decorator, said: "We're thankful Phil's safe and glad he can do something for his country."

Kelly Memorial Airport Proposed for War Hero

Floridans Recall Courage of Flyer Who Sank Haruna

MADISON, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—The home town of America's first war hero—Captain Colin P. Kelly jr.—proudly recalled today how the aviator had courted danger as a youth "without giving or asking for quarter."

Captain Kelly was killed early this week after he scored three bomb hits on the Japanese battleship Haruna. The vessel sank.

Curry Merchant jr., Madison newspaper man, told how Captain Kelly competed against larger boys on the gridiron and in the fight ring. "He never asked for quarter," Mr. Merchant said.

City officials are sponsoring a memorial to the twenty-seven-year-old flyer.

At Monticello, Fla., Mayor Richard H. Simpson announced that the city had offered the government a 500-acre tract for establishment of a Kelly memorial airport.

Plane-Detector Lack At Honolulu Alleged

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—Publication of testimony taken by the Senate Appropriations Committee on a $10,572,000,000 military fund bill disclosed today a charge by Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.) that there was no airplane-detector service in operation at Honolulu when Japanese bombers attacked Pearl Harbor last Sunday.

Recalling an inspection trip he made as chairman of a subcommittee handling War Department appropriations, Thomas said that when he visited Honolulu a year ago he found "practically no detector service there."

"Sunday Confirms That"

"The results of Sunday confirmed my failure to find them," the committee record quoted Thomas. "It wasn't there Sunday—if so, it is obvious that it was not in successful operation. I am not a military man, but it doesn't take a military man to see some things that are vitally wrong."

Thomas put into the record a letter he had written Harry Woodring, then Secretary of War, on January 15, 1940, in which he complained that there was inadequate detector service not only at Honolulu but at the Panama Canal.

"Wouldn't Have Had Debacle"

Thomas went on to say that it was "obvious" there was no efficient machinery in operation at Pearl Harbor to warn of the approach of Japanese planes in the attack which sank at least one battleship and a destroyer.

"It is obvious that there was none in operation at Honolulu, which was supposed to be one of the best-fortified points in the world," he continued. "If that had been so, we wouldn't have had that terrible debacle there Sunday."

Unless there is an efficient detector service, he said, "we may expect to hear at any time that the Panama Canal is destroyed."

War Cry of U. S. Is 'Remember Pearl Harbor'

Ranked With 'Remember the Maine,' 'Lafayette, We Are Here' and Others

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—"Remember Pearl Harbor!"

Born last Sunday in Japan's treacherous, peace-shattering attack on the great American naval base in Hawaii, the phrase overnight became the battle cry and the byword of the nation.

As such, it ranges itself beside such other famous expressions in American history as "Taxation without representation is tryanny," "Damn the torpedoes—full speed ahead," "Don't give up the ship," "Lafayette, we are here," and those two others dealing with poignant memories: "Remember the Alamo."

Prior to Dec. 7, 1941, described by President Roosevelt as "a date which will live in infamy," Pearl Harbor meant relatively little to the average American.

Today all that is changed. Who was first to coin the phrase may never be known. It is not known now for certain who first said, "Remember the Maine." The Library of Congress says it came to life in a New York City barroom shortly after the battleship Maine was sunk in Havana Harbor, in 1898. An unknown man raised his glass high and said it as a toast. It became the battle cry of the Spanish-American War.

"Remember the Alamo" was voiced by General Sam Houston preceding the Battle of San Jacinto, in 1836, when Texas gained its independence from Mexico. The Alamo was a former Franciscan mission, where a band of gallant Texas soldiers died at the hands of overwhelming Mexican forces.

Curiously, the World War seems to have had, for Americans at least, no one battle cry to ring discordantly on the ears of the foe. The tribute to Lafayette, who aided this nation in the Revolution, was paid by Colonel C. E. Stanton before the Frenchman's grave.

"Make the world safe for Democracy" has been credited both to H. G. Wells, the English author, and to President Woodrow Wilson. History shows President Wilson told the House in 1917 "The world must be made safe for democracy."

"Damn the torpedoes—full speed ahead" came from Admiral David Farragut in the Battle of Mobile in 1864.

DEC 14 1941

"Don't give up the ship," was an order from Captain James Lawrence in the War of 1812. "Keep the guns going," he said. "Fight her until she strikes or sinks. "Don't give up the ship."

The famous Revolutionary War taxation slogan came prior to the nation's fight for independence. It is attributed to Patrick Henry.

Countless others were originated during the wars in which the nation took part, some famous only as local sayings, while others spread over the country for varying periods of time.

The latest, however, looks good for the duration—and then some.

"Remember Pearl Harbor!"

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The navy announced today the arrival of Secretary Frank Knox by plane from Hawaii. He left immediately for Washington.

"I will have no statements to release until after a conference with the President," Secretary Knox said.

Completion of the secretary's speedy trip to the scene of war action in the Pacific was announced officially by Rear Admiral Charles A. Blakely, commandant of the Eleventh Naval district.

Leahy Hinted As Pacific Chief

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The Army and Navy Register, a service journal, said in an editorial today that "it would surprise no one" if Admiral William D. Leahy, present Ambassador to Vichy, were given the job of coordinating all military and naval commands in the mid-Pacific.

The editorial declared that no judgment should be passed on the Pearl Harbor incident until all the facts were known.

"Whether or not there is a shakeup of the Hawaiian high commands," the Register said, "there are indications of measures to be taken to coordinate all of the mid-Pacific commands, both military and naval, under one head."

with the outside world, they can send out for food and similar purchases.

They might even spend Christmas here. It all depends on how soon the necessary arrangements can be made for the return to this country of the staffs of the United States embassies in Tokyo, Rome and Berlin.

State Department officials declined to estimate how long it might take to make these arrangements. It was pointed out to each of the chiefs of the three Axis missions, however, that all arrangements for their return and the return of the American missions in their countries would be handled on a strictly reciprocal basis.

They will leave for their home capitals just as soon as the staffs of American embassies in Axis countries are safely en route to Washington.

Jap Fleet Chief Torpedoed London Naval Conference

Japanese leadership on the whole is remarkable for its anonymity. How many Americans can name the Japanese Goering, Keitel or Raeder?

From Tokyo's accounts of the week-old war with the United States, just one name has emerged. Emperor Hirohito radioed congratulations to the commander of the forces which sent the Prince of Wales and Repulse to the bottom. Americans and Britons might well note this man, Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander of the combined fleet, Japan's main overseas striking weapon.

He is Japan's foremost advocate of combined air and seapower. As spokesman for the Tokyo Naval Command, he torpedoed the London Naval Conference of 1934 and with it the whole structure of naval limitation, ending the building truce that gave the Pacific Ocean two decades of peace.

Yamamoto is 57, born in 1884 in Nagaoka. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1904, just in time to fight in the Russian-Japanese war as an ensign.

In 1934, Yamamoto held out to the bitter end for the Japanese navy's program (the Tokyo Cabinet had little to say about it) for abolition of the Washington ratios —five-five-three with Japan on the short end—a common maximum tonnage for the American, British and Japanese navies and abolition or restriction of "offensive weapons."

Yamamoto defined these as first, aircraft carriers; second, battle-

Military, Political And Economic Coordination Under Discussion

BY ROBERT BUNNELLE

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Dec. 14—The United States, Britain, Russia, China and the Netherlands are expected to sign a joint declaration of solidarity against the Axis with a solemn pledge of no separate peace, high London quarters said today.

Apparently inspired reports of the prospective pact brought this comment from an authoritative informant:

"It is very intelligent speculation—something which is certain to come sooner or later. But it's bound to take considerable time; the democracies at present are pretty busy fighting battles."

Coordination of military, political and economic activities already is under discussion, it was understood, with plans for allocation of military forces and supplies where they can best be used.

Air Supremacy First Aim

One major move in the direction of military coordination will be to concentrate on attaining air supremacy in the fight to master the Axis.

Britain announced that strong RAF reinforcements are being sent immediately to Malaya in the fight with Japan, and to the Middle East in the Mediterranean front with Germany and Italy.

Strategists here, surveying the first week of the Pacific war, pointed out that Japan's extensive use of aircraft to attack the defenders' Pacific fleets and to cover her widespread land and sea offensive heavily underscored the lessons already learned about the importance of coordinating operations with the air arm in modern war.

Would Blanket Jap Air Forces

The obvious counter to early Japanese successes, it was pointed out, is to blanket Japan's air force.

For security reasons, today's announcement gave no details of the numbers or type of British reinforcements being rushed to the two theaters.

It was assumed, however, in view of warnings in some quarters that withdrawal of much of the German air force from the Russian front presages a powerful air attack either on Britain or on her Mediterranean forces, that the British would be careful about weakening their home defenses or imperilling their North African superiority.

Reliance On U. S.-Made Planes

Because of the distances involved in Far Eastern operations, it was believed the British would rely heavily on American-made planes. British, Australian and Netherlands forces there already have large numbers of American type aircraft such as Catalina flying boats, Hudsons and Brewsters.

The emphasis on air strength was seen in big appropriations for airplanes in the United States and United States seizure of the French liner Normandie, which can be converted into an aircraft carrier in a short time.

Well-informed circles said Russia might soon grant the United States use of Siberian air bases "to protect supply lines from America."

DUTCH PLEDGE ARMED SUPPORT

London, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Queen Wilhelmina exchanged messages today with President Roosevelt in which the Netherlands and the United States pledged co-operation against the Axis.

"The army and navy and the air force of the Netherlands will fight as comrades in arms and in the armed forces of the United States, said the Queen.

Replying, Mr. Roosevelt said, "It is indeed gratifying that the American people will have beside them in the trials ahead your heroic people who have shown such courage and determination."

United Command Urged

British M. P. Says Nation and U. S. Must Follow World War Method

IPSWICH, England, Dec. 13 (AP).—Edgar Louis Granville, a Liberal National member of Parliament, asserted in a speech today that Great Britain and the United States must establish a united command for their joint naval, air and land forces.

"President Roosevelt's call for a world-scale strategy among Britain, Russia, the United States and China means a single policy on production and propaganda strategy," he said.

"Something similar to the single command of the Allied War Council established in the last war is becoming increasingly necessary again."

Litvinov Brands Axis 'Common Foe'

Virtually Lines Up with U. S. and Calls Japs 'Gangsters'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Russia virtually took a stand with the United States in the war with Japan today when Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Ambassador, declared Nippon was "a common enemy" belonging to "the same bunch of Axis gangsters."

But, in a formal statement on Russia's position and in answer to questions at a press conference, the Ambassador carefully avoided making any commitments concerning actual Soviet military operations in the Far East.

And, when asked whether Russia would permit Allied forces to fight on Russian territory, or permit the United States to use air bases in Siberia for attacks against Japan, he replied:

That the Soviet Union "would welcome help on any front in the common cause."

That he could make no answer in public concerning the question about the air bases.

READS STATEMENT.

Litvinov received the correspondents at the Soviet Embassay and, seated at a small desk with a golden bust of Lenin behind him, first read them a prepared statement.

"Complete understanding exists, or will be arrived at," he said, "in decisions concerning the sectors in which the great powers concentrate their strength, with the decisions to be made solely in the interests of the common cause."

That declaration was interpreted generally as meaning that Russia felt her greatest contribution to the defeat of the Axis could be made by maintaing an offensive on the Eastern Front, with the possibility of war with Japan in the Pacific depending on eventualities.

ALL IN SAME BOAT.'

"We are all in the same boat," the Ambassador asserted, "and must crash, or triumph, together over the greatest menace of our times—and we will triumph!"

He went on to say the Soviet Union was "proud and happy to count herself as the ally of your great country."

Then, painting a word picture of Adolf Hitler as the great enemy of mankind, he emphasized that Hitler and Nazi Germany were the powers that must be destroyed.

"Hitler's defeat on the Eastern Front," Litvinov promised, "will seal his fate forever. He is the chief culprit of the present wars and the destruction of Hitler will mean the end of them all."

Litvinoff Predicts New Line-up; Calls Japanese Common Enemy

Russian Ambassador Says Use of Armies Will Be Dictated by Joint Interest of All Engaged in Fighting Axis.

DEC 14 1941

Washington, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian Ambassador, today characterized Japan as the common enemy. He called the Japanese "Axis gangsters," and declared at a press conference that a complete understanding exists or will be arrived at between the various Powers opposing Axis aggression.

Litvinoff asserted that in what sectors the Powers concentrated their strength against aggression would be "ruled solely by the interests of the common cause."

"We're all in the same boat," he declared, "and must crash or triumph together over the greatest menace of our times—and we will triumph."

Replying to questions, Litvinoff said he had been assured by President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and Harry Hopkins, the lease-lend supervisor, that American assistance to Russia would be increased with the growth of American production. Russia has no difficulty in making up losses in manpower, he said, but has been handicapped in making good losses in war material because of the early successes of the Nazi forces in occupying some industrial areas.

Denounces World Gangsterism.

Reviewing the last six months, Litvinoff said that Russia had received warnings of Germany's intentions but had not taken them seriously in view of Hitler's pledges and the belief that the Germans would be insane to attack the strong Soviet Union while engaged in a war on other fronts. Hitler's plans, the Ambassador said, were based on a series of miscalculations and despite early successes the Nazis had now been put on the defensive.

"The Soviet," he declared, "has no intention of allowing Hitler to hibernate. We intend to smash at Hitler until we break up his monstrous war machine. We feel no one can do this for us or without us and we will fight to the end."

The Ambassador said it must be plain even to babes that the war now sweeping the world "is the result of a vast conspiracy of international gangsters calling themselves the Axis Powers. In the struggle against international gangsterism," he added, "we are proud and happy to count ourselves your ally."

Asked whether Germany was pressing Japan to open up a new front in Siberia, the Ambassador said that had been Germany's strategy all the time.

Litvinoff Apt in Slang As He Jabs at the Nazis

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—A judicious admixture of American slang was incorporated with precise English in the statement today by Maxim M. Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador, on Russia's position toward the war.

He said:

By Hitler's promises the Red Army should, six weeks ago, have been "washed out."

A German defeat in Libya would not "settle his [Hitler's] hash."

The Russians would "polish off" the Nazis on the Eastern front.

Correspondents should not "get sore with me" if he did not answer all questions.

The Text of Maxim Litvinoff's Statement on Soviet Position in World War

DEC 14 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Here is the text of the statement handed by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador, to reporters at a press conference today:

I am happy to greet within the walls of my embassy the representative of the American press. I hope there will be many opportunities for further meetings in happier circumstances than today's.

I left the Soviet Union precisely a month ago. During that short period important events have taken place, bringing in their train new problems, for the true understanding of which it may be useful to look back upon the history of the past six months. I will dwell upon this history as briefly as possible.

As you know, Hitler, having completed his campaign in the West, and then in the Balkans and on the Isle of Crete, and having taken up a defensive position in Libya, turned to the next item of aggression on his program, the object this time being the Soviet Union. My government did receive warnings as to the treacherous intentions of Hitler with regard to the Soviet Union, but it did not take them seriously and this not because it believed in the sacredness of Hitler's signature, or did not believe him capable of violating the treaties he signed, and the oft-repeated solemn promises he made, but because it considered that it would have been madness on his part to undertake war in the East against such a powerful land as ours, before finishing off his war in the West.

The easy victories he scored all over Europe lent wings to his madness, on which he is soaring toward his doom. But, though there was method in his madness, his plans were based upon a series of miscalculations, both as to our military strength and the morale within the country. The only thing that went according to plan was the advantage of keeping the initiative in his hands, the advantage of surprise. Attack without the slightest warning and before declaring war, even sometimes under cover of diplomatic negotiations—such is the contribution of the Axis powers, the founders of the so-called New Order, to the rules for intercourse between nations, their contribution to international life. Such tactics certainly give the attacking side considerable advantage at the start, and insure it easy victories. The American nation has, only a few days ago, experienced on its own back what this means.

Hitler did the same thing, when before declaring war he attacked almost all our airports and military bases just behind the frontiers. In this way he was able to destroy in a flash a very considerable quantity of our airplanes ank tanks and, to a certain extent, throw into confusion our troops, taken as they were unawares and without the slightest expectation of war. It must moreover be added that, despite all that had been said, up till then, of the vast growth of German armed forces, this was underestimated by the whole world. Germany's war-machine, as it now appears, considerably surpassed the highest estimates in the number of airplanes, tanks and other deadly weapons, and the whole of this monstrous machine was launched against the Soviet Union, before we were able to get properly prepared for such an attack and to mobilize our own forces. As a result Hitler managed for a long time to press back our troops, to force them into retreat and to penetrate deeply into our country.

But these achievements cost Hitler dear. Our troops put up a desperate resistance, fighting to the last man over every ridge and streamlet, every hamlet, every town, every yard of earth, and inflicting enormous losses upon the foe. The German High Command, as you know, frequently complains bitterly that we do not stick to the rules of the game, that our troops do not surrender when they ought to according to the book. They complain also that the population of occupied territory, instead of blessing Hitler's "New Order" and producing from their midst Quislings, Pétains and Darlans, wreak violent reprisals upon the occupiers, attack them, destroy their staffs, their communications and their ammunition trains, never giving the foe a moment's respite. Despite this, and at the price of stupendous sacrifices, the Nazi troops have managed to occupy a considerable portion of Soviet territory, several big cities and not a few important industrial centres. But if Hitler counted on finding in them anything of value for the replenishment of his much-depleted supplies, he was greatly mistaken. Everything that his troops were in need of, the very machinery from the plants, has either been destroyed or removed.

A situation nevertheless arose in which Hitler, with the whole powerful industry of Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, France and other occupied countries, untouched and at his disposal, was able with impunity to make good his losses of military material, while this became increasingly difficult for us, owing to the evacuation of industrial centres. Hitler makes good his losses in man-power by drawing upon the youngest and oldest classes, and upon his armies of occupation in France, Belgium and elsewhere. Thus, for five-and-a-half months, the Red Army has had to endure, without outside aid, the full pressure of the powerful military machine of Hitler's Germany, with its mighty reserves and resources, for during this period Hitler did not have to fight anywhere else. His dream of war on only one front had come true.

Second Front Wanted

We, naturally, would have welcomed the creation, somewhere in Europe, of a second front, which would have drawn away some of Hitler's forces and given us a moment's respite, enabling us to do a certain amount of regrouping of our own forces in order to pass to the offensive. We never complained, however, never made any demands upon our ally, England, that she should create such a front, but took into consideration her assurances as to the impossibility, difficulty or prematureness of invasion of the Continent.

When I left Moscow a month ago the enemy was at its very gates, subjecting the capital to hourly bombardments, by day and by night. According, however, to Hitler's solemn promise to his people, his hordes should have been marching through the Red Square six weeks before that, and the Red Army should have been completely washed out. Instead of this, not only have the Germans been held up almost all along the front, but they have been forced to retreat while the three great centers which have always been their most coveted objects—Leningrad, Moscow and Rostov—are all in our hands.

It would, in my opinion, be wrong to give all the credit of this to the Winter season, though it has undoubtedly played its part. The truth is rather that a favorable combination of circumstances has come into being. There can be no doubt that the Germans, in their scramble for territory, their hasty grasping at fortified towns, have lost their best military units, and have had to fill up the breaches with those of inferior quality. The determined defense of the Red Army caused an atmosphere of hopelessness and apathy among the attackers, breaking down their belief in a rapid victory. This atmosphere was in its turn thickened by the German Army's reaction to Hitler's boastful and unfulfilled promises. Here we are confronted, beyond all doubt, by a considerable lowering of the morale of Hitler's armies, if not by their complete demoralization. I am not inclined to believe that Hitler has during the last week or two transferred any troops from the Russian to any other front (existing or newly created).

As a matter of fact there exists only one other land front which has lately become active, and this is Libya. And, important as this front is both in itself and potentially, Hitler is, after all, not sufficiently interested in the preservation of Libya for Italy, or the salvaging of the Italian Army there, to risk failure on the Eastern Front. Hitler could easily recover from any defeat in Libya, for it will not settle his hash. Defeat on the Eastern Front, on the contrary, would mean the shipwreck of all his hopes and plans, and would seal his fate forever. Hitler would get over the defeat of his satellites, or at any rate could keep his head above water without their help for some time, but Hitler's "allies" without Hitler would no longer constitute a grave danger and could be polished off without much trouble. After all, it is Hitler who is the chief culprit in all the present wars, the inspirer and moving spirit of the whole gang, and the destruction of Hitler would mean the end of them all.

Suggestions and rumors to the effect that Hitler has decided to call a halt to major activities in the East, and that it is all a part of his plan, need not be taken at all seriously. Any such halt to his activities can only be imposed upon him by circumstances over which he has no control. However this may be, the Soviet High Command has no intention of falling in with this "plan" nor of allowing Hitler to hibernate. We intend to beat back and smash up the hordes of Hitler till they are completely destroyed. We intend to break up his monstrous war machine, and, with it, its perpetrators. We feel that no one can do this without us, or instead of, and we should be rendering our allies and the common cause poor service did we for a moment relax our efforts in this direction just now.

During the last few days the battlefront has become considerable more extensive, spreading to all continents. It must now be plain even to those who are, politically speaking, babes or blind, that all that is now going on is the result of a vast conspiracy by a handful of international gangsters, calling themselves Axis Powers to plunder all countries, enslaving their peoples. The outlines of this plot were roughed out with the creation of the so-called Anti-Comintern Pact. Against this little handful of plotters, who have made of their peoples slaves and mere instruments of their will is arraigned the whole of the rest of the world. We now have, in various parts of the world, separate sectors of one great battlefield.

In this struggle against the international gangsters the heavy end has fallen to the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States. We are proud and happy to count ourselves the allies of your great country. I am quite sure that complete understanding exists or will be arrived at among these three allies as to which of them should concentrate its greatest efforts and energy on which sector, and that they will be ruled in this by the interests of the common cause. We are all in the same boat now, and will either perish together or together triumph over the greatest evil of our times, over the spirit of aggression, of international infamy and barbarity. And triumph we will!

All that I have said to you just now is to provide you with a background for your questions, if any. You will forgive me if I have to disappoint you by failing to give answers to all the questions which are of interest to you. I quite understand what many of you have on the tip of your tongues, but you see our enemies are listening still more eagerly for my answers than are even press representatives. And so don't get sore with me if there are some questions I won't be able to answer.

Warring Capitals Informed of Stand in East.

DEC 14 1941

London, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Reuters quoted the German radio today as saying that the Vichy Government had notified the United States, Japan and Great Britain of France's neutrality in the Far Eastern war.

French Ambassadors gave notice of the position of their Government in Washington and Tokio, it was said, and the French envoy to Spain notified Great Britain.

CABINET APPROVES DARLAN WAR STAND

Nature of Policy Toward U. S. Not Disclosed.

Vichy, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The Cabinet unanimously approved today Vice-Premier Darlan's outline of France's position in the war between the United States and Germany and Italy, but no indication was given of the policy approved.

The German radio was quoted by British news agencies as saying the Vichy government notified the United States, Japan and Britain of its neutrality in the Pacific war.

BULLETINS

[By the Associated Press]

DEC 14 1941

Chungking, Dec. 13—Chinese planes and troops moved today against the rear of the Japanese forces attacking Hongkong in what promised to be a full-scale offensive aimed at recapturing occupied Chinese territory and relieving the pressure on the British.

[The British radio reported that outside Hongkong crack Chinese troops have attacked Japanese forces around the Canton-Kowloon railway, NBC said. The broadcast said violent engagements are in progress with Chinese demolition squads blowing up bridges and telephone lines in the Japanese rear.]

The Chinese air force was reported to have attacked Canton, which was said to be the principal base from which the Japanese are bombing Hongkong.

Chinese also said that their troops had recaptured Senchuan, north of Hongkong.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The British radio reported that Rangoon, Burma capital and port terminus of the Burma road into China, had its first air raid today, but said that twenty-seven attacking Japanese planes fled upon encountering RAF interceptors.

The BBC said Tenassarin, in southern Burma, was attacked twice, but that casualties and damage were slight.

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed a bill today authorizing the Governor of the Panama Canal Zone to restrict or prohibit photographing, sketching or making maps of any part of the canal area.

Berlin, Dec. 13 (Official Radio Received by the (AP))—A communique from the Croat Government announced that Government heads would meet tomorrow and United States diplomatic representatives would be interviewed immediately afterward, a DNB dispatch said.

Croatia, like other Axis countries, was expected to declare war on the United States.

Transmitters Silenced

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (AP).—All Los Angeles radio stations went off the air at 10.22 A. M. (P. S. T.) today on orders from the army.

DEC 14 1941

Fourth Interceptor Command headquarters said it had nothing to report. Defense Council headquarters, connected directly to the air-raid warning system, said it had not been advised of an alert.

Two minutes later all San Diego stations were ordered off the air.

War In Many Lands

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Polish Government notified the State Department tonight that as of December 11 a state of war existed between Poland and Japan.

Balboa, C. Z., Dec. 13 (AP)—A United States bomber taking off from an outlying field last night crashed into barracks, killing five persons and injuring ten, army officials said today.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Calcutta, a city of 1,500,000 population in eastern India, near the border of Burma, has been declared "an emergency area" by the British authorities, the British radio stated tonight in a broadcast heard here by NBC. No details were given.

Dirigible Off Coast

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 13 (AP)—"An unidentified dirigible" was sighted off the Atlantic coast last night by a navy vessel, causing blackouts to be put into immediate effect at the naval operating base and Norfolk Navy Yard, it was announced today at the Fifth naval district public-relations office.

RAF Beaten, Japs Say

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 13 (AP)—DNB said the Japanese claimed air dominance over Britain in the Far East in a communique today from imperial headquarters. It said:

"The strength of British aviation in the Far East has been destroyed in combats for Malaya, and the supremacy of Japanese aviation has been established in Malayan territory.

"One hundred and twenty-nine British planes have been downed or destroyed on the ground. Moreover, an enemy transport has been sunk. Four transports have been seriously damaged. Several hundred trucks have been destroyed.

"Japanese losses have reached seventeen planes."

Russ Warship Bombed

Berlin, Dec. 13 (Official Radio Received by AP)—The Germans claimed today they had again bombed the Soviet battleship Marat at Kronstadt.

Army and Navy Communiques

DEC 14 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—A communique of the Navy Department:

The Navy Department announced that it is unable to communicate with Guam either by radio or cable. The capture of the island is probable. A small force of less than 400 naval personnel and 155 marines was stationed in Guam. According to the last reports from Guam, the island had been bombed repeatedly and Japanese troops had landed at several points on the island.

Wake and Midway continue to resist.

The above is based on reports until 9 a. m. today.

Another Navy Department communique:

United States airmen turned back the fishing vessel Alert, of United States registry, in the Gulf of Nicoya, on the west coast of Costa Rica. The vessel was boarded on its return to port and was found to have seven Japanese in the crew. They were taken into custody. The Alert was loaded with a cargo of 10,000 gallons of diesel oil.

No new developments have been reported from combat area as of 3 p. m. today.

A War Department communique:

1. PHILIPPINE THEATER: Enemy aircraft in medium strength bombed Cebu and Clark Field. Japanese ground activity on the Island of Luzon was sporadic and unimportant. The enemy plan is now clearly revealed as an attempt to secure improvised air bases outside of the area encompassed by our ground defenses.

On Wednesday the Secretary of War authorized the commanding general of the Far East command to award the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry in action beyond the call of duty. He also gave General MacArthur the power to promote officers and enlisted men of the Far East command for outstanding leadership in the present operations.

2. HAWAII: No further reports of enemy activities have been received.

MANILA, Dec. 13 (AP).—A communique from the headquarters of Lieutenant General Douglas MacArthur, commanding United States Far Eastern forces:

Several airfields were attacked by enemy aircraft today.

Reports so far are meager, but it is believed our losses were slight.

Some Japanese planes were destroyed, including one shot down by an anti-aircraft battery of the harbor defenses, but the number so far is undetermined.

The situation on the ground is not changed. Mopping up in the Lingayen area has been concluded.

An earlier communique:

In the air the enemy have bombed Cebu and Clark Field this morning.

On the ground only sporadic and unimportant activity.

War Communiques

DEC 14 1941

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 13 (AP).—A communique of the combined headquarters:

Fighting continued today on the Kedah front, where there is little change in the situation. Our ground troops shot down one enemy bomber in the Kedah area.

There is no change in the Kelantan area.

Some successes have been obtained in the air today. In a battle over Penang, three of our aircraft engaged and destroyed one enemy aircraft, while two others are believed to have been destroyed, although this has not yet been confirmed.

In another area, three more of our fighters engaged an unspecified number of enemy aircraft and two were shot down. Observer posts later reported three had crashed. All our aircraft returned safely.

A further enemy plane also has been shot down, bringing the day's total to five enemy aircraft destroyed.

Since commencement of hostilities, our anti-aircraft defenses have accounted for eight enemy aircraft, with the probability of one more.

CAIRO, Dec. 13 (AP).—A British Middle East headquarters communique:

Our main forces continue their advance west and northwest from the area south of Gazala. At Gazala itself enemy forces in defensive positions are now encircled by New Zealand troops and are being attacked in the general area southwest of Gazala.

Our mobile columns are causing great confusion and destruction among scattered columns of German and Italian troops and transports endeavoring to make their way to the northwest.

Our tanks also attacked enemy tanks in this neighborhood yesterday afternoon.

DEC 14 1941

In the frontier area South African forces have now cleared up three defended localities held by the enemy southwest of Salum (Sollum), capturing much equipment. Mopping-up operations in this area continue.

Our air forces vigorously attacked enemy motor transport and troops on roads and tracks west of Gazala and Bir Hacheim and on roads north and west from El Tmimi, causing considerable dislocation of enemy movements, much damage to enemy vehicles and casualties to troops.

Ground troops on Dec. 11 shot down four enemy aircraft.

A Royal Air Force communique:

A number of R. A. F. aircraft successfully attacked the airdrome at Meleme (Crete) during the night of Dec. 11-12.

A petrol dump was ignited and caused a number of violent explosions. Many fires broke out. Bombs also burst in the area of a landing ground.

Objectives at Patia, in the Gulf of Corinth, and an airdrome at Araxos also were raided during the same night.

A liner in the harbor at Patras (Greece) probably was hit, and quayside buildings extensively damaged.

In Libya yesterday, our bombers raided enemy motorized units in the Gazala area with good results. Many direct hits were obtained. Petrol tankers were set on fire by our fighters in the course of attacks on the Agedania-El Aghelia road, and many lorries and other vehicles were damaged.

Ju-52's, flying from the north into Libya, were engaged by our fighters, four of the Junkers being shot down. During the night of Dec. 11-12, naval aircraft attacked the airdrome at Castel Benito, in Tripolitania, where three enemy aircraft on the ground were destroyed.

Fire of considerable dimensions broke out in one of the hangars.

Our aircraft were active over Sicily and southern Italy yesterday.

At Marinadigiosa, a viaduct was bombed and motor vehicles machine-gunned, while at Catanzaro Marina factories were attacked. During a raid on an airdrome at Comiso, direct hits were obtained on buildings and hangars. The naval base at Augusta also was attacked.

From these and other operations, eight of our aircraft are missing.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—An Admiralty communique:

Reports have been received of a brilliant night action fought before dawn this morning in the central Mediterranean by destroyers on patrol under command of Commander G. H. Stokes, D. S. C., R. N. One Italian cruiser has been sunk and another severely damaged.

In addition, an Italian torpedo boat was seriously damaged and an E-boat sunk. No damage or casualties was suffered by our force.

A little after 3 a. m., the destroyer Sikh (Commander G. H. Stokes) with H. M. destroyer Legion (Commander R. F. Jessel, R. N.), H. M. destroyer Maori (Commander R. E. Courage, D. S. O., D. S. C., R. N.) and H. M. destroyer Isaac Sweers, in company made contact with two Italian cruisers, a torpedo boat and an E-boat.

The Allied force immediately attacked with gunfire and torpedos. Both cruisers were at once hit. The leading cruiser burned fiercely and later blew up. The other was last seen burning from stem to stern. The torpedo boat was heavily damaged and the E-boat sunk.

An Air Ministry communique:

Fighters on patrol over northern France today attacked a factory, a goods (freight) train and a gun post.

An earlier Air Ministry communique:

Last night docks at Brest and Dunkerque were attacked by aircraft of the bomber command. Coastal command aircraft bombed an oil refinery at Donges, near St. Nazaire, and started large fires among oil tanks.

A Hudson of the same command bombed a large supply ship off Texel, hit it and left it enveloped in black smoke and steam. Enemy airdromes in France and Holland were attacked by aircraft of the fighter command on offensive patrol.

From these night operations one aircraft of the coastal command is missing.

A communique of the Ministries of Air and Home Security:

Last night there was a little enemy activity, which was restricted to the coastal districts. Bombs dropped at one point caused neither casualties nor damage.

Dutch

BATAVIA, Dec. 12 (UP).—A headquarters communique:

During the last twenty-four hours, no hostilities have taken place within the territory of the Netherlands East Indies.

One unit of our naval forces annihilated a Japanese post on the east coast of Borneo. A number of motor launches were seized, while other vessels were destroyed. The Japanese at the post were interned.

In the South China Sea a flying boat of the Royal Netherlands Navy was attacked while on patrol duty by three enemy aircraft. The attack was successfully driven off. One of the attacking craft was damaged.

The army air force is continuing its extensive patrol of the Netherlands East Indies Archipelago. Mobilization of the army is proceeding smoothly.

Japanese

DEC 14 1941

BERNE, Dec. 13 (AP).—A communique of the army section of the Japanese imperial headquarters, reported by D. N. B., German official news agency:

The strength of British aviation in the Far East has been destroyed in combats for Malaya, and the supremacy of Japanese aviation has been established in Malayan territory.

One hundred twenty-nine British planes have been downed or destroyed on the ground. Moreover, an enemy transport has been sunk. Four transports nave been seriously damaged. Several hundred trucks have been destroyed.

Japanese losses have reached seventeen planes.

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 13 (AP).—A Soviet Information Bureau communique:

During Dec. 13 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

On a number of sectors of the western and southwestern fronts Soviet troops, in fierce fighting against the enemy, continued to advance.

Our units have occupied the towns of Livny and Efremov.

Dec. 12 our pilots operating on the western front destroyed and damaged twenty German tanks, 350 lorries with troops and war materials, destroyed ten field guns and anti-aircraft guns with their crews, over sixty carts of ammunition, one motor truck with gasoline, and dispersed and annihilated a regiment of enemy infantry.

An earlier communique broadcast by the Moscow radio:

During the night of Dec. 12-13 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

In two days of fighting in one of the sectors of the Leningrad front, Asfinin's unit dislodged the Germans from one village, destroyed fourteen enemy blockhouses and six heavy guns, captured two guns, three mine throwers, many machine-guns, automatics and rifles, and a large quantity of ammunition, and killed over 400 enemy soldiers and officers.

In a violent engagement in one of the sectors in the Kalinin direction of the front, Essauluk's unit ousted the Germans from a village, smashed the headquarters of the 236th Artillery Regiment, destroyed six guns and killed 100 enemy soldiers and officers.

Nybantuk's unit, operating in one of the sectors of the southern front, dispersed the 50th regiment of the 115th German infantry division and captured the section. Four hundred twenty-nine dead German soldiers and officers remained on the battlefield. Our unit captured two guns and two mine-throwers, fifty cases of mines, sixty-five cases of cartridges and other trophies.

A special statement broadcast by the Soviet Information Bureau:

At the beginning of December, the German information bureau stated: "The German command will regard Moscow as the main objective, even if Stalin tries to shift the center of gravity of operations elsewhere. German circles state that the German offensive against the Bolshevik capital is advanced so far that, with good field glasses, one can already see internal sections of the city."

Now it is already beyond doubt that this boastful plan of encirclement and capture of Moscow has fallen through.

The Germans have suffered a manifest defeat. The Germans complain about winter and assert that it prevented them from putting into effect their plan of occupation of Moscow.

But, firstly, real winter has not yet set in with us in Moscow, for frosts do not exceed from 3 to 5 degrees below zero. Secondly, complaints about winter mean that the Germans did not take care to provide their army with warm clothing, although they had broadcast throughout the world that they were ready for a winter campaign.

And they failed to provide their army with winter clothing because they had hoped to end the war before the advent of winter.

It is manifest that German hopes were not justified. Here the Germans committed a grave and dangerous error in their calculations. But the error in the Germans' plans can by no means be explained by winter conditions of the campaign.

It is not winter that is responsible for it, but organic defeat in the work of the German command in planning the war.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (Official Radio received by (AP)).—A high command communique:

On the eastern front, local enemy attacks were repulsed.

The German air force attacked troops in prepared positions and railway targets in the Donetz basin, the lower Don and on the northern front with good effect.

The air force also bombed Soviet air bases southeast of Lake Ladoga last night and attacked military targets in Moscow.

Last night port installations on the English east and southwest coasts were attacked by bombers.

The main weight of fighting now in full progress in North Africa has shifted to an area west of Tobruk, without the enemy having succeeded in achieving decisive successes.

Bardia and Sollum are resisting growing enemy pressure with great tenacity.

Under cover of low-lying clouds, individual enemy planes dropped bombs on some places on the Dutch-German frontier, which caused a few casualties among the civilian population. In these flights and in ineffective night attacks on occupied western territory, the British air force lost two bombers.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 13 (Official Radio received by (AP)).—A high command communique:

The fight which is in its third week is continuing in Marmarica (northeastern Libya), where Axis forces are fighting strenuously against an enemy much superior in numbers and mechanized vehicles. Violent fighting is continuing west of Tobruk.

Heavy enemy attacks, supported by large quantities of tanks, have been driven off by the strong resistance of our troops, supported by Italian aircraft.

Bardia and Sollum are resisting with tenacity against increasing enemy pressure.

German aircraft attacked enemy motor columns from low altitude with visible effect, setting many vehicles on fire. In repeated air battles, ten enemy planes were shot down by German fighters. Four others were brought down in flames by Italian anti-aircraft batteries. Three Italian planes are reported missing.

Early yesterday morning, enemy aircraft dropped a few bombs on various localities of Sicily and Calabria, particularly at Comiso and Crotone. One person was killed and two wounded at Comiso.

An enemy raid on Tripoli had little consequence.

Patras, in Greece, was bombed. Ten persons were killed and thirty-seven wounded.

Italian Cruiser Sunk, Another Left Blazing

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—A British source said today that the bulk of the German air force, which is reported being withdrawn from the Russian front, might be concentrated for a terrific assault on Britain's Mediterranean fleet. Axis attempts to defend North Africa are doomed unless a supply route across the Mediterranean is opened, this informant said.

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—A pack of British and Dutch destroyers, pouncing with sudden and effective fire on two Italian cruisers in the Mediterranean, sank one and left the other burning from stem to stern today, the Admiralty announced.

Thus, with the Italian cruiser believed to have been sunk by a British submarine in the Mediterranean yesterday, an entire flotilla of three Italian cruisers apparently had been destroyed.

Allied Ships Undamaged

None of the four destroyers—three British and one Dutch—which attacked the heavier enemy warships suffered either casualties or damage, the Admiralty said.

In addition, they sank one motor torpedo boat and heavily damaged another, the communique continued.

The four warships made up the whole Italian formation encountered in the darkness before dawn this morning.

There was no immediate confirmation that these were the remnants of three Italian cruisers reported by the Admiralty yesterday. But today's communique dove-tailed perfectly with that of last night which said a British submarine had spotted three Italian cruisers shortly before dark and had scored three torpedo hits, probably sinking one of the Fascist craft.

One Blows Up

The one sunk by destroyers today burned fiercely, then blew up.

Usually matter-of-fact, the Admiralty acclaimed the British destroyers Sikh, Legion and Maori and the Netherlands destroyer Isaac Sweers for a "brilliant" action and said they hit both cruisers with their opening bursts of gun and torpedo fire.

Today's communique said:

"Reports have been received of a brilliant night action fought before dawn this morning in the central Mediterranean by destroyers on patrol under command of Commander G. H. Stokes, D.S.C.R.N. One Italian cruiser has been sunk and another severely damaged.

"In addition, an Italian torpedo boat was seriously damaged and an E-boat sunk. No damage or casualties was suffered by our force.

Attack At Once

"A little after 3 A. M. the destroyer Sikh (Commander G. H. Stokes), with H. M. destroyer Legion (Commander R. F. Jessel, R.N.), H. M. destroyer Maori (Commander R. E. Courage, D.S.O., D.S.C., R.N.) and H.N.M. (Her Netherlands Majesty's) destroyer Isaac Sweers in company, made contact with two Italian cruisers, a torpedo boat and an E-boat (motor torpedo boat).

"The Allied force immediately attacked with gunfire and torpedoes. Both cruisers were at once hit. The leading cruiser burned fiercely and later blew up. The other was last seen burning from stem to stern. The torpedo boat was heavily damaged and the E-boat sunk."

cruisers and two mosquito boats with a storm of shell and torpedo fire just before dawn today.

Cruiser Blows Up

One of the cruisers blew up and the other was left blazing from stem to stern, the Admiralty said.

One of the torpedo boats also was sunk and the other damaged.

Yesterday the Admiralty announced an attack by submarines at dusk on a flotilla of three cruisers in which three torpedo hits were scored and one of the cruisers was sunk.

DEC 14 1941

Effect Upon Nazis

Although the British did not connect the two attacks as having been made on the same naval detachment, the circumstances strongly suggested that the destroyer units under Commander G. H. Stokes had rushed up at the call of the submarines and completed the destruction of the flotilla in the navy's continuing onslaught against Italian-Libyan supply lines.

Indicating the surprise of the attack, the British said the British and Dutch came off from the encounter without a scratch to ship or man.

Craft Not Identified

Informed quarters said darkness apparently had prevented identification by the British commanders of the Italian ships. There was no report of their size.

Aneta, Dutch news agency, said the Isaac Sweers, of about 1,800 tons, was not completed when the Nazis invaded Holland in 1940, but that she was towed to England before the Germans could put hands on her and that she was finished in a British naval yard.

The agency said the Dutch in England were overjoyed by this and another success in the Far East, where Dutch naval units were announced to have sunk four Japanese transports with a loss of 4,000 Japanese lives.

Air Attack Expected

On the basis of authoritative estimates of a month ago, the Italians were believed here to have but eleven of their thirty-two cruisers built and building at the start of the war.

3 Italian Cruisers Destroyed In Night In Mediterranean

British And Dutch Destroyers And Subs Apparently Wipe Out Entire Flotilla—Escape Unscratched

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—An entire flotilla of three Italian cruisers apparently was wiped out between dusk last night and dawn today by submarines and British and Dutch destroyers in the Mediterranean, successive admiralty communiques indicated tonight.

Three little British destroyers, the Sikh, Legion and Maori, and the Dutch destroyer Isaac Sweers, attacked a heavier detachment of two

The British-Dutch success was announced as one informed source predicted that withdrawal of a large part of the German air force from the Russian front was the forerunner to a terrific air attack on British naval power in the Mediterranean.

DEC 14 1941

This source said it was quite possible that Gen. Erwin Rommel, in North Africa, had been ordered to fight a prolonged sacrifice action until the air force is marshaled for this task and perhaps until the French fleet can be thrown into the balance against the British.

Little-Known Story

Meanwhile a little-known story concerning Mediterranean action of months ago was told by the Free French newspaper, La France Libre, which said the French fleet bombarded Genoa June 13, 1940, under the direction of Admiral Duplat, who disregarded orders of Admiral Jean Darlan, then Navy Minister, not to attack.

The paper said the action lasted twenty-two minutes and three Italian torpedo boats were sunk.

'Can't Beat The Dutch!'

[By the Associated Press]

Mark down today as one when the Netherlands gave a lot of proof to the saying, "You can't beat the Dutch!"

So far:

The British Admiralty gave the Netherlands destroyer Isaac Sweer credit for a part in an attack with three British destroyers which sank an Italian cruiser in the Mediterranean, damaged another, sank one torpedo boat and damaged a second.

Netherlands East Indies reports said Dutch submarines sank four Japanese troopships with a loss of 4,000 Japanese troops off the Thailand coast.

A Batavia communique said a Dutch naval unit annihilated a Japanese post on the east coast of Borneo.

And, decreed the Indies' army commander, Dutch land forces are ready to help outside their islands if necessary.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13—British forces west of Tobruk are attacking the encircled Axis troops at Gazala, the British headquarters declared today.

A communique said that New Zealand forces, reported yesterday to have driven west from their base at Tobruk, had cut off Gazala.

It declared that other British mobile columns well to the west were causing widespread confusion and destruction among scattered Axis units attempting to break through toward Derna and Bengasi.

DEC 14 1941

"Our main forces," the communique declared, "continue their advance west and northwest from the area south of Gazala."

Axis casualties in the battle for Gazala and fighting southwest of there were placed at 3,000—half of that number killed and the rest wounded.

(London reported today that the British advance into Libya was continuing and more prisoners and war material were being captured.)

Meanwhile, the war bulletin reported, South African forces have mopped up "three defended localities held by the enemy southwest of Salum."

(Australia will continue to send troops to North Africa despite the outbreak of war in the Pacific, Francis Michael Forde, War Minister, announced today in a British broadcast heard by NBC in New York.)

South Africans Mop Up

These forces, apparently freed for action by the cleanup in Ethiopia, are being thrown into the action in the Egyptian-Libyan frontier area against Axis forces isolated by the British drive past their positions and deep into Libya.

Military sources said German Gen. Erwin Rommel was believed to be withdrawing in the hope of solidifying a new defense line—possibly in the vicinity of Derna, next big stop west of Gazala.

(The main weight of the Libyan fighting was reported by the German high command today to have shifted to an area west of Tobruk, without a decisive British success.)

British Claim Gazala Encircled, Attacked

[By the Associated Press]

British Communique

The British Middle East general headquarters' communique said today:

Our main forces continue their advance west and northwest from the area south of Gazala. At Gazala itself enemy forces in defensive positions are now encircled by New Zealand troops and are being attacked in the general area southwest of Gazala.

Our mobile columns are causing great confusion and destruction among scattered columns of German and Italian troops and transports endeavoring to make their way to the northwest.

Our tanks also attacked enemy tanks in this neighborhood yesterday afternoon.

Air Forces Attack Troops

In the frontier area, South African forces have now cleared up three defended localities held by the enemy southwest of Salum, capturing much equipment. Mopping up operations in this area continue.

Our air forces vigorously attacked enemy motor transport and troops on roads and tracks west of Gazala and Bir Hakeim and on roads north and west from El Tmimi causing considerable dislocation of enemy movements, much damage to enemy vehicles and casualties to troops.

DEC 14 1941

With the RAF and British and Allied warships harassing sea-borne Axis supplies sent from Greek and Italian ports, virtually the only supply line to these troops remained the Italian-built highway along the Libyan coast from Tripoli.

That road, British communiques indicated, was under merciless pounding of the RAF and possibly subjected to land raiding parties from the British-held oasis of Gialo, on the desert 150 miles from the Gulf of Sirte.

Border Posts Mopped Up

Far behind, Australian fighters were said in a communique to have mopped up three more Axis border posts south of Salum.

[An authoritative source in London said there were still well entrenched defenses there, but the main battleground had swept so far beyond that their situation appeared hopeless.]

On the desert south of Gazala, the British war bulletin reported that British forces had put some 3,000 Axis troops out of the fight there and at Gazala. Half of them were reported killed.

British troops and equipment brought from Ethiopia after the collapse of the last Italian Empire defenders there were said to be bolstering the Libyan offensive.

Italian garrisons hemmed in at Solum, Egypt, and the Libyan port of Bardia were reported officially to be "resisting with tenacity against increasing enemy pressure."

Africa Fighting Shifts

Berlin, Dec. 13 (Official radio received by A. P.).—The main weight of the Libyan fighting was reported by the German High Command today to have shifted to an area west of Tobruk without a decisive British success.

[The British have told of driving beyond Gazala, which is forty miles west of Tobruk, in an effort to round up the German and Italian units which escaped entrapment in the East.]

The garrisons of Bardia and Salum are "resisting growing enemy pressure with great tenacity," the High Command said.

Defeats Seen Brewing Catastrophe For Nazis

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP)—Tass reported on the Moscow radio today that Soviet cavalry advanced eighteen miles and dislodged the Germans from about thirty populated points on the Moscow front yesterday.

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—German setbacks in Russia, typified by a Soviet announcement of the utter defeat of a 750,000-man army before Moscow, may develop catastrophically for the invaders, London military commentators said today.

A Moscow broadcast quoting Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said the Red army retook another thirty villages yesterday in the pursuit of German forces retreating from the Olets area, some 200 miles south of Moscow.

6,000 Killed At Leningrad

Driven from the Volkhov area in the Leningrad sector, Pravda's correspondent said, the Germans have lost 6,000 killed in a month's futile offensive on that town and now are "in forests and open fields experiencing grave transport difficulties."

In the Kalinin sector, ninety miles northwest of Moscow, Pravda said, German counter-attacks were repulsed and the Nazis were driven back behind their starting points, sometimes in such rout they could not take their wounded, arms or equipment.

Observers expressed belief that the speed with which captured munitions were adapted for Red army use would be a determining factor. They said the Germans undoubtedly were abandoning vast quantities of military supplies in their withdrawal under the twin scourges of the attacking Russians and zero cold.

Losses Undenied In Berlin

The striking power of the Russians in a sustained offensive and the organization of reserves face a winter test.

But Soviet reports, undenied in Berlin, tell of German retreats from both northern and southern ends of the Moscow sector, and the armies of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko were said to be pressing the invaders still farther westward in the Donets Basin area.

The Germans seem to be seeking to stabilize their line on the Mius river, which empties into the Sea of Azov about fifty miles west of Rostov, reports saying that they were building concrete forts on the banks.

Claim They've Crossed Mius

The Russians, however, claim to have already forced crossings of the Mius at several points, indicating that improvised fortifications could be promptly outflanked or isolated.

A Soviet Information Bureau communique broadcast from Moscow said Adolf Hitler "decided to choose a different corner for his pranks and left the Eastern front for Berlin in order to disclaim responsibility" for the reverses.

A special communique last night declared 55,000 Germans had been killed and 23 of an original 51 divisions had been smashed, routed, surrounded or forced to retreat in the Moscow zone since November 16.

Berlin, Dec. 13 (Official Radio Received by A.P.)—The German high command acknowledged local Soviet attacks on the Russian front today, but declared they had been repulsed.

Soviet tank action and fog were reported by the Berlin radio earlier to have been factors in the Red army's attacks.

The high command said simply, "on the Eastern front local enemy attacks were repulsed."

Nazi Flyers Attack Bases

German airmen attacked troop positions and railways in the Donets basin, on the lower Don and on the Northern front with good effect, the German communique said.

Soviet air bases southeast of Lake Ladoga and military targets in Moscow were listed as objectives of night attacks.

Surrounded Unit Rescued

A Berlin radio announcer said the Russians were reported to be attacking continuously, without regard to losses and that fierce local engagements were taking place.

DEC 14 1941

In one place the Russians succeeded in piercing German lines, it was said, and surrounded one battalion, which later was relieved by a neighboring unit.

Germans also said that, in an engagement with Soviet troops equal to an army corps (perhaps 40,000 to 80,000 men), the Russians left 1,000 dead on the battlefield and the Germans captured seven Red army tanks.

Penetrations By Patrols

DNB declared that technical engineers maintained German planes at full efficiency on the frosty front with gasoline lower in octane content than Russia, which has stores of American fuel.

"In numerous sectors, patrols are penetrating each day to the rear lines of the enemy," it said, "meanwhile executing strong reconnaissance attacks."

A military commentator of the Lausanne Gazette wrote that fatigue, the weather's effect upon war machines and precision instruments, and supply difficulties probably greater than Hitler's high command expected were German problems.

Most responsible, he said, were "not so much cold and snow . . . but much more the lack of food, supplies and insufficient organization."

Russia Looses Drive to Break Leningrad Ring

Smashing of Nazi Lines on Moscow Front Matched by Fierce Blows in North

BY E. C. DANIEL

DEC 14 1941

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Soviet forces, continuing to pound at the retreating Germans on the eastern front, were reported by the Russian radio today to have loosed a new drive to hurl back the Nazi lines which long had threatened complete encirclement of Leningrad, Russia's second city.

A Moscow broadcast by a correspondent of "Pravda," Communist party organ, said the Germans had been thrown out of Volhkovo, eighty miles southeast of Leningrad, on the west bank of the Volhkov River, which runs from Lake Ilmen to Lake Ladoga. This river long has been the main Russian defense against German thrusts aimed at encircling Leningrad. Whether the advance meant that the Germans had been cleared completely from the Tikhvin region and the area east of the river was not stated.

[The British radio, heard by the National Broadcasting Company at New York, quoted Moscow reports as saying last night that the Russians had recaptured seventy villages in an advance from the Tikhvin area, southeast of Leningrad.]

The drive by Red forces which blunted the Nazi wedge south of Moscow was said by Tass, Soviet official news agency, to have driven eighteen miles in the Yelets area, 210 miles south of Moscow. This was accomplished by Red cavalry, which captured thirty towns and villages.

A Soviet Information Bureau communique said Efremov, forty miles northwest of Yelets and eighty miles east of Orel, and Livny, thirty miles northwest of Yelets, also had been reoccupied by the Red Army.

This drive was matched by other successes in the Tula sector near Moscow and by a counter-offensive in the Kalinin region, ninety-five miles north of the capital, where eight villages were reported recaptured in the last four days.

Fruitless Counter-Attacks

Here, hurriedly mustered German reserves were said by "Pravda" to be launching fruitless counter-attack after counter-attack, but nevertheless were being forced to abandon their wounded and heaps of arms to victorious Soviet forces. The fighting there was reported growing in intensity.

In the Volhkovo area, the "Pravda" report said, the Germans had lost 6,000 troops in the last month and 700 on Thursday alone. Nazi troops, it said, were now dodging in the forests and fields trying to find refuge.

As an indication of German transport difficulties, "Pravda" reported that Soviet scouts saw a supply train of sixty carts being pulled by Nazi soldiers, eight or ten men to the cart. Quantities of supplies, it was said, have been captured.

Reports from the southern sector above the Sea of Azov indicated the Germans were trying to stabilize their line on the Mius River, about fifty miles west of Rostov, but the Russians were said to be crossing the river at several points, threatening newly erected German concrete pillboxes and forts with flank attacks.

DEC 14 1941

Meanwhile news of the German defeat north and south of Moscow set off numerous demonstrations of rejoicing in the Red capital. The "Pravda" broadcast said workers met throughout the city in a surge of celebrations in which they were urged to redouble their production in order to throw the Nazis completely out of Soviet territory, now that the threat to the capital has been relieved by a victory in which the Germans were said to have lost 85,000 men.

Nazis Minimize Red Gains

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (official radio received by A.P.)—German commentators minimized Soviet gains tonight, taking the attitude that any Nazi withdrawals were purely tactical, and told the German people that the strong Soviet counter-drive was being repulsed in most sectors. Fog, it was said, shielded the Russian attacks.

These spokesmen said that along the southern front Axis forces were beating off repeated and violent Red Army attacks, and the high command said German lines on the Moscow front were holding against heavy pressure.

Although D. N. B. German official news agency, spoke of a "withdrawal of the front," it added that this "seemed opportune for tactical reasons" and was not to be taken as a retreat. "These maneuvers," D. N. B. said, "are of such territorial insignificance that they can hardly be seen on the map at all."

The Germans continued to report heavy Russian losses. They said the Red Army left 600 dead on one battlefield and 1,000 on another. German Messerschmitts were said to have downed fifteen Russian planes and anti-aircraft batteries eight others.

German airmen attacked troop positions and railways in the Donetz basin, on the lower Don and on the northern front with good effect, the German communique said. Soviet

DERNA STAND SEEN AXIS AIM IN LIBYA

Forces Cut Into Segments By British Land Drive, Lashed By RAF

Many German And Italian Troops Are Reported Hemmed In At Gazala

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 13—Axis armies in Libya, cut into segments by the revitalized British offensive and lashed by the furies of the RAF, appeared today to be trying for a stand at Derna, oasis port 100 miles west of Tobruk.

A considerable number of the German and Italian troops were reported hemmed in by hard-fighting New Zelanders at Gazala, on the coast forty miles west of Tobruk.

Try To Break Through

Beyond them, far to the west, other Axis units were said to be trying to break through British forces impeding their retreat to Derna.

British Flanking Large Libya Force

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—The British said today their advance into Libya was continuing and more prisoners and war material were being captured.

An encircling movement is proceeding against the flank of a "considerable enemy force" which is believed cut off at Gazala, 40 miles west of Tobruk, a spokesman said.

ROME, Dec. 13 (Official Radio received by AP).—Violent fighting was pictured both east and west of Tobruk by the Italian High Command today.

A communique declared Axis forces in Libya had repulsed heavy, tank-supported British attacks.

Australia To Continue Troop Flow To Africa

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Australia will continue to send troops to North Africa despite the outbreak of war in the Pacific, Francis Michael Forde, War Minister, announced today in a British broadcast heard by NBC.

air bases southeast of Lake Ladoga and military targets in Moscow were listed as objectives of night attacks.

The Germans said they had again bombed the Soviet battleship Marat at Kronstadt.

Patrol Activity Stressed

BERNE, Dec. 13 (AP).—A series of minor patrol actions, under conditions much like the worst months of the 1939-'40 Finnish-Soviet winter war, was indicated to be taking place on the Russian front by a D. N. B. announcement today from Berlin.

Air activity supplemented the patrols, the news agency said, declaring German flyers had inflicted heavy losses on the Russians, particularly in the central sector.

D. N. B. declared that technical engineers maintained German planes at full efficiency on the frosty front, with gasoline lower in octane content than Russia, which has stores of American fuel.

"In numerous sectors patrols are penetrating each day to the rear lines of the enemy," it said, "meanwhile executing strong reconnaissance attacks."

A military commentator of "The Lausanne Gazette" wrote that fatigue, the weather's effect upon war machines and precision instruments, and supply difficulties probably greater than Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's high command expected, were German problems.

Brest, Dunkirk Docks Bombed By RAF

Folkestone, Eng., Dec. 13 (AP). The RAF blasted military objectives in occupied France throughout today despite poor visibility.

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—British bombers made an extensive foray over the German-occupied continent last night, blasting docks at Brest and Dunkirk and bombing an oil refinery at Donges, near St. Nazaire, the Air Ministry announced today.

It was the second attack in as many nights on the German naval base at Brest.

Large fires were seen among oil tanks after the attack on the Donges refinery, a communique declared.

The bulletin also reported that German airdromes in northern France and in the Netherlands were attacked and that a large German supply ship was bombed off Texel, on the Netherlands coast. The ship was left enveloped by a large cloud of smoke and steam, the returning pilots said.

The British acknowledged the loss of one plane in these operations.

The Government reported that German activity over Britain was on a small scale last night and was confined to coastal areas. Neither damage nor casualties resulted, a communique said.

DEC 14 1941

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (From German broadcasts recorded by The Associated Press)—A few casualties were caused among civilians on the Netherland-German frontier by British air attacks last night, the German High Command said today, and German airmen were declared to have attacked port installations on England's east and southwest coasts.

In the raids on the Netherland-German frontier area and "in ineffective night attacks on occupied Western territory," the British air force lost two bombers, the High Command said.

U. S. Takes Over Swedish Luxury Ship Kungsholm

Liner Formerly Plied Atlantic And Recently Made Cruises On Caribbean

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The State Department announced today that the United States had taken over the Swedish motor ship Kungsholm, luxury liner which formerly plied the Atlantic and more recently has cruised on Caribbean pleasure trips.

A department statement explained that, while the Kungsholm belongs to a friendly power, its further use for pleasure cruises is impracticable under the war situation.

For this reason, the department said, "As well as the desire of the United States to be relieved of the burden of protecting the movements of vessels unnecessarily proceeding in waters of the Western Hemisphere, and the consequent prospect of a long period of idleness in American ports and the great expense to the Swedish interests involved, it was considered advisable for the United States Government to take over the vessel for just compensation as provided by law."

U. S. SEIZES 7 JAPS ON OIL-LADEN BOAT

Fishing Vessel Turned Back By Airmen Off West Coast Of Costa Rica

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The Navy Department announced today that a fishing vessel of United States registry operating off the west coast of Costa Rica had been boarded and found to have seven Japanese in the crew. They were taken into custody.

The name of the vessel was given as the Alert. It was said to have been loaded with 10,000 gallons of Diesel oil.

The fishing [illegible] was discovered and turned back [illegible] erican airmen in the Gulf of Nicoya.

Is Not Explained

Significance of the discovery, especially the fact that the boat was carrying Diesel oil, which might be used in submarine operations, was not explained by the Navy Department.

The communique said:

"United States airmen turned back the fishing vessel Alert of United States registry in the Gulf of Nicoya, on the west coast of Costa Rica.

"The vessel was boarded on its return to port and was found to have seven Japanese in the crew. They were taken into custody. The Alert was loaded with a cargo of 10,000 gallons of Diesel oil."

Intercepted Jap Crew Interned In Costa Rica

[By the Associated Press]

San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 13—The Japanese crew of a motorized fishing vessel flying the Stars and Stripes was interned today, driven to dock at the Pacific port of Puntarenas by warning bombs which, the Costa Rican Government said, were dropped by United States navy patrol planes.

The fishing boat was identified officially as the Albert.

Explosion of the bombs—loosed by a three-plane formation as the aerial equivalent of shots across the bow—startled Puntarenas residents yesterday. They first believed it signified an Axis attack.

Bombs Turn It Back

The Albert had sailed into Puntarenas earlier yesterday and then moved on to nearby Caldera to take on fuel oil.

She was pulling away from Caldera when the plane patrol (presumably on guard against submarines and vessels which might refuel them) roared into action. The helmsman quickly headed toward shore.

The crew was taken into custody under regulations implementing Costa Rica's declarations of war against Japan, Germany and Italy.

Mexico Seizes Jap Boats

Mexico announced that two Japanese fishing boats had been seized on charges of illegal fishing off strategic Lower California, and similar seizures were reported on Cuba's northwestern coast.

Honduras, Panama and El Salvador joined Central American neighbors in declarations of war against Germany and Italy, just as they previously had done against Japan.

Japanese Craft Seized.

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The Cuban Navy was reported today to have seized a number of Japanese fishing boats operating off Pinar del Rio Province on Cuba's northwest coast, but no official comment was immediately available.

Nazi Courier Misses Lati Plane To Europe

Italian Craft Takes On From Natal Several Hours Before His Arrival On Condor

Recife, Brazil, Dec. 13 (AP)—An Italian Lati Line plane took off for Europe from Natal today, but a German diplomatic courier who was to have been aboard failed to arrive by German Condor plane from Maceio until 10 A. M., several hours after the Italian plane left.

A Lati plane from Europe was expected to arrive at Natal this afternoon at 3.30 P. M. The Standard Oil Company stopped supplying gasoline to the Condor company today and shut off gasoline supplies to the Lati line Thursday under instructions from the American embassy.

The two lines may be able to obtain small quantities of fuel elsewhere in Brazil, but the ban is expected to hamper their service seriously.

Canal Zone Has Raid Alarm

[By the Associated Press]

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, Dec. 13. Air-raid sirens shrilled an alarm in Balboa at 2.43 A. M. today, but the all-clear was sounded twenty-six minutes later without incident.

Army officials said the alarm had been caused by the appearance of three planes, which subsequently were satisfactorily identified.

Both the Canal Zone and the adjoining Republic of Panama already were under a precautionary blackout at the time the sirens were sounded.

Republic's Supreme Court Accepts Resignation Of Third Vice-President Anibal Rios

Panama, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Panama Supreme Court today accepted the resignation of Third Vice-President Anibal Rios.

DEC 14 1941

Rios said at Bogota, Colombia, today that he was renouncing his claim to the Panama Presidency "in the interests of Panama and the Western Hemisphere."

Rios, former envoy at Lima, was en route home ten days ago when the Government which deposed former President Arnulfo Arias suddenly arrested several of his followers and declared it had stamped out a subversive plot.

Rios Drops Claim To Presidency

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Anibal Rios, third Vice-President of Panama in the overthrown regime of Dr. Arnulfo Arias, said today that he was renouncing all claim to the presidency of the republic "in the interests of Panama and the Western Hemisphere."

Rios, who arrived here ten days ago en route home from Lima, where he had served as Arias's Minister to Peru, said that he planned to return to Panama and submit his resignation as third Vice-President to the Supreme Court.

Arias was deposed in a bloodless coup on October 9 while in Cuba. The presidency was taken over by Ricardo Adolfo de La Guardia.

OPM AIMS AT HOARDERS, ORDERING DELIVERIES HELD TO 1940 LEVELS

DEC 14 1941

No Shortage In Sight, Officials Say; Goal A Normal Reserve

Stove Builders Told To Cut Use Of Heavy Metals By 35%

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The OPM today froze sugar stocks in the United States and limited new deliveries by importers and refiners to 1940 levels. The move was designed to "prevent possible hoarding or speculation."

Emphasizing that there was no immediate or imminent sugar shortage, officials said the order would assure normal supplies to industrial and civilian consumers and would prevent further increases in some 500,000 tons of sugar already built up as reserve supplies this year by jobbers, industrial users and wholesalers.

Under the order, all such stocks in excess of sixty day's supply are frozen immediately and no receiver may accept delivery of additional sugar from a refiner or importer if his stock on hand exceeds thirty days' supply.

Month By Month

Further, no receiver can accept delivery of more sugar in any one month than he received during the corresponding month of 1940.

The OPM said normal sugar consumption in this country was about 6,800,000 tons, but that consumption this year was running about a million tons more.

At the same time the OPM ordered manufacturers of stoves and other cooking appliances to reduce their consumption of those heavy metals by an average of thirty-five per cent. beginning January 1, in order to save iron and steel for war industries.

Metal Supplies Frozen

Effective immediately, the OPM froze their supplies of iron and steel at the average daily amounts used during the year ended last June 30. Beginning December 15, no manufacturer will be permitted to use iron and steel in stove covers and lids, and, effective February 1, the industry must discontinue the use of brightwork or trim containing copper, nickel or aluminum.

The broad order, issued by Priorities Director Donald M. Nelson, affects about 200 producers employing some 60,000 workers. It was described as a preliminary curtailment to cover the first four months of 1942, with prospects that additional restrictions will be imposed later.

Appliances Affected

Cooking appliances affected include all types of ranges, stoves, hot plates, combination ranges, camp and trailer stoves, using gas, electricity, coal or wood, kerosene, fuel oil, or gasoline.

Heating stoves were not covered by the limitation, but officials of the civilian supply division indicated that branch of the industry—including furnace manufacturers—was being studied with a view to possible issuance of some form of curtailment.

On Consumer Front

Meanwhile, the Government continued its activities on the consumer front. Steps taken in this field today included:

A new appeal for all to save waste ppaer, rags, metal and old rubber and sell them to local waste dealers.

Urging of all motorists to have worn automobile tires retreaded rather than discard them.

Hearing On Extension Of Age Limits Opened

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson urged the House Military Committee today to approve promptly far-reaching extensions of the Draft Act to provide "a great pool of men" to meet any eventuality.

In a letter sent to Chairman Andrew J. May (Dem., Ky.) as the committee opened hearings on legislation to register all men from 18 to 64, inclusive, and to make men from 19 to 44, inclusive, liable for military duty, Stimson said:

"I desire to emphasize the psychological or moral effects of the passage of a great measure along these lines. It will make clear to the American people the character of the effort that will be required to defeat the vast forces arrayed against us. To the outside world it will be a symbol that we are providing the means to make good our declared policy to 'accept no result save victory, final and complete.'

Framework For War

"The broad purpose of the bill is to provide a framework into which we can steadily and solidly build stone by stone the structure which will accomplish victory.

"I wish most respectfully to express a caution against the inclusion in the bill of any restrictions as to the priorities whereby men may be called for miltiary service, or restrictions as to administrative procedures, because all such restrictions might turn out to be shackles that would hamper the organization of our land and naval forces and the conduct of the war."

No Limit On Size

Stimson said, too, that the department should not be handicapped by statements in the bill about the size of the forces to be called for military service.

In "a vast cataclysm such as is now in progress," he explained, plans might have to be revised.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Director, was the first witness. He told the committee that "we have no idea of hysterically rushing to classify everybody." He added, "the time is not here but probably approaching when additional men must be ready."

40,000,000 Affected

Hershey estimated the new registration age limits would reach about 40,000,000 men, including the 17,500,000 from 21 to 35, inclusive, already registered.

Representative R. Ewing Thomason (Dem., Texas) asked if the main purpose of the legislation were not primarily "long-range planning."

"Yes," Hershey replied, "and to serve notice to ourselves that we're not holding back any man power; but we're not going to use it unless we have to."

"Would you call men from 21 to 45 before you would those from 19 to 21?" Thomason asked.

"I think it's fair," Hershey said. "If I were laying my course today, it's what I would do."

BAN ON FIGHTING ABROAD IS LIFTED

Roosevelt Signs Measure Ending Restrictions

Washington, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Legislation taking restrictions off the use of American land forces outside the Western Hemisphere and holding all army personnel in service for the duration of the war was signed into law today by President Roosevelt.

The measure, passed by Congress this week, was directed at removing bans placed against the sending of selectees and National Guardsmen to fight on foreign soil.

The President also signed a bill retaining naval, Marine Corps and Coast Guard enlisted men in the service for the duration of the war regardless of whether their enlistments expire before peace comes.

AIR CORPS SEEKING 150,000 MORE MEN

Also Wants 20,000 a Month for Cadet Training

DEC 14 1941

Washington, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The army recruiting service appealed today for 20,000 applicants a month for aviation cadet training. The recruits must be between the ages of 20 and 26.

It also sought 150,000 more men between 18 and 35 for the Air Corps and its service branches. Particularly called for were 5,000 experienced automobile mechanics from non-essential industries.

Prior to the declaration of war, regular army enlistments were at the rate of 25,000 a month, the recruiting service said. It estimated the rate now had more than doubled.

Plan Approved to Give Navy 50,000 in Draft

Congressmen Back Use of Selective Service Rolls

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Authorization for the Navy to take 50,000 men from selective service rolls was approved today by a Senate-House Committee. This provision was written into the $10,000,000 war funds bill by the committee adjusting differences between House and Senate versions of the measure. It also would allow the Marine Corps to draft 10,000 men.

Heretofore, all men inducted for training have gone into the Army.

Another committee-approved provision would remove the existing limit of 900,000 on the number of men who may be in training at one time.

Success Of Detachment In Repelling Attack Is Credited With Spurring Enlistments

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—American marines' success in repelling invasion of tiny Wake Island was credited by marine recruiting officers today for causing a surge in enlistments here.

The Marine Corps received 600 applications yesterday and had to augment its staff to take care of the rush.

House Group Approves Alaska Guard Force

Committee Also Urges Establishment Of Military Code In Territory

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Legislation to establish a military code for the territory of Alaska and to ratify the formation of an Alaskan National Guard was approved today by the House Military Committee.

Delegate Diamond, of Alaska, told the committee a guard force was being organized in the territory, although legal authority did not exist for it.

He said he considered it "extremely urgent" that Congress recognize it by law.

FOREIGN MAIL CENSORSHIP

Machinery For Putting It In Effect Now Being Studied

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Postmaster General Walker said today a committee in his department was studying machinery for censoring incoming and outgoing foreign mail, but that censorship of domestic mail was not involved.

In response to questions he said no thought was being given to an increase in postage rates.

SENATORS DEBATE SEA VS. AIR POWER

Bill for New Ships Is Studied in Light of Sinkings

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—The sinking of four dreadnaughts, Japanese, British and American, in the Battle of the Pacific amid impressive reports of the effectiveness of aerial bombers aroused Congressional demands today for a reappraisal of the warship-airplane controversy.

Such an investigation was considered of urgent importance in the light of an Administration bill introduced yesterday, to authorize a 30 per cent increase in the Navy's surface fleet.

Senator Walsh, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, who said he was introducing the legislation at the request of President Roosevelt and the Navy Department, said the degree of vulnerability of battleships to aerial assault undoubtedly would have to be threshed out.

The measure would authorize an eventual addition of 900,000 tons to the surface fleet, but the first appropriation would be for about 300,000 tons, all that can be handled under present conditions. The total authorization, Mr. Walsh said, was enough for seven or eight 45,000-ton battleships, six or seven 20,000-ton aircraft carriers and some twenty-seven cruisers, eighty destroyers and forty-seven submarines.

DEC 14 1941

The new construction, however, could be apportioned as the Navy saw fit, and most legislators believed a substantial portion of the funds would be allocated for battleships, to replace the one sunk and any damaged in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Senator Wiley, member of the Naval Affairs Committee, told reporters that before any authorization was granted he and others would want to know whether the Navy and Army favored giving priority to battleships or bombers.

Mr. Wiley pointed out that aircraft had been credited with sinking two British, one Japanese and one American capital ship in the past week, along with lighter craft.

"Our recent experience shows that unless a sea navy has a strong coordinating air arm, there is no protection for it," he said. "The question thus becomes one of choosing which branch shall be built up first when there is a limitation on the essential materials needed by both."

Agreeing that the events of the last few days had changed the naval picture, Senator Byrd said that as a veteran advocate of building more battleships, he too was beginning to wonder if more stress should not be put on bombers.

14 Guilty In N.Y. Spy Case

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 13—The conviction of fourteen tight-lipped defendants accused of supplying military information to Germany today capped the Government's drive against one of the most fantastically operated spy rings in recent history.

Against a backdrop of war between the two countries, the fourteen-week-long trial ended early today with a comparatively speedy verdict. A jury of nine men and three women deliberated only eight hours before finding the fourteen guilty on both counts of an indictment charging conspiracy to avoid registering as German Government agents and conspiracy to deliver to the Nazi Government vital American defense secrets.

Face 22-Year Sentence

The verdict carried a maximum sentence of twenty-two years. Judge Mortimer W. Byers said he would set a date for sentencing Monday.

The trial disclosed that the Government had scored what its agents believed an unparalleled triumph in counter-espionage.

DEC 14 1941

Ring "Fathered" By FBI

The Federal Bureau of Investigation virtually fathered the spy ring, said to have twenty unapprehended members now in foreign countries, by handling all its coded short-wave messages between here and Gestapo headquarters in Hamburg. The FBI built and operated a "spy" station on Long Island, where agents learned the identity of German spies, their assignments and activities.

Those convicted were Herman Lang, 40, a Norden Company employe; Conradin Dold, 35; Heinrich Eilers, 42; Paul Scholz, 41; Franz Josef Stigler, 34; Erich Strunch, 32; Adolf Waliszchewski, 50, all employes of American Steamship Lines; Frederick Duquesne, 63; Rudolph Ebeling, 43; Edmund Heine, 50; Josef Klein, 38; Carl Reuper, 37; Leo Waalen, 34, and Axel Wheeler-Hill, who admitted he was paid to report ship movements.

U. S. PROVIDES FREE INSURANCE IN WAR

$100,000,000 Corporation Set Up To Cover Property Losses On Continent

Buildings, Goods, Growing Crops And Orchards Included In Coverage

DEC 14 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The Government today set up a nationwide war insurance system to pay the private owners of homes, farms or factories in the continental United States for damage or destruction resulting from enemy attack.

An announcement by Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones said a War Insurance Corporation, with a capital of $100,000,000, had been established with the approval of President Roosevelt.

At least for the time being, the insurance requires no premiums and no requests to the corporation for insurance. If loss or damage occurs, the property owner notifies the corporation which then will send an adjuster and make payment on the basis of his report.

Already Effective

The announcement of the FLA said the insurance would provide "reasonable protection" for losses or damage, effective today.

The coverage is defined in the statement as applying to buildings, structures and personal property, including goods, growing crops and orchards.

FLA officials explained that this would include factories and warehouses—often the targets of aerial attack or inshore attacks by naval units.

The insurance, however, does not cover such items as currency, notes, documents or objects of art such as paintings.

To Work Out Details

Full details of the system remain to be worked out, the FLA explained.

It was learned that the FLA had been conducting a quiet study of the plan for months before outbreak of the Japanese war, but that hostilities caused the FLA to decide on immediate operation of the program. One FLA official commented that "people on the West Coast have become pretty uneasy in the last few days."

In making the study, the FLA had little precedent. Officials said they believed there was no identical plan in operation in any country during the World War.

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY

MOSCOW, DEC. 13-(AP)-THE GENERAL IMPRESSION OF MOSCOW UPON RETURNING AFTER ALMOST TWO MONTHS IN THE PROVINCES IS NOT ONE OF A CITY WHICH HAS BEEN UNDER SIEGE BUT OF A PROUD CAPITAL WHICH FACED DANGER SQUARELY AND WON ITS OWN FIGHT.

SUBWAYS, STREET CARS AND BUSES STILL ARE RUNNING.

LIGHTS, WATER AND GAS AND OTHER PUBLIC SERVICES STILL ARE FUNCTIONING.

STORES ARE DOING A FLOURISHING BUSINESS.

I RETURNED TODAY FROM KUIBYSHEV, ALTERNATE RUSSIAN CAPITAL, ON A BRIEF VISIT AND FOUND THE BYZANTINE TURRETS OF THE KREMLIN, THE MODERN STRUCTURES OF GORKY STREET AND OTHER MONUMENTS OF OLD AND NEW MOSCOW STILL UNSCATHED.

DEC 14 1941

THE FAMOUS BOLSHOI THEATER AND MOSCOW UNIVERSITY WERE AMONG HEAVY SUFFERERS OF GERMAN RAIDS BUT THEY ARE STANDING.

THE SKELETON STAFF WHICH REMAINED AT THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY WHILE THE OTHERS WENT TO KUIBYSHEV SAID THE SITUATION HAD GROWN EASIER SINCE DEC. 8, SOON AFTER THE START OF THE RUSSIAN COUNTER-OFFENSIVE.

THESE STAFF MEMBERS SAID THERE HAD BEEN FEW BOMBINGS RECENTLY BECAUSE OF BAD WEATHER, ALTHOUGH THE GERMANS TRIED TO RAID THE CITY LAST NIGHT.

THE STAFF WAS HEADED BY SECOND SECRETARY LLEWELLYN THOMPSON, OF COLORADO.

THE BATTLE OF MOSCOW WAS HAILED HERE AS THE GREATEST EVER FOUGHT BY THE RUSSIANS AND THE VICTORY THEIR GREATEST IN SIX MONTHS OF WARFARE.

THE RUSSIANS ESTIMATED THEY HAVE ADVANCED NEARLY 20 MILES IN THE TIKHVIN SECTOR, EAST OF LENINGRAD, AND THE YELETS AREA, 210 MILES SOUTH OF MOSCOW--ON THE NORTH AND SOUTH FLANKS OF THE MOSCOW FRONT.

THEY ALSO SAID THEIR FORCES HAD ENCIRCLED LARGE ENEMY GROUPS IN THE KLIN SECTOR, NORTHWEST OF MOSCOW.

THE RUSSIANS DECLARED THE RETREATING GERMANS ARE BURNING TOWNS AND VILLAGES BEHIND THEM.

ISTRA, NORTHWEST OF MOSCOW, FAMOUS AS THE SITE OF THE NOVO YERUSALIM MONASTERY, WAS REPORTED IN RUINS LIKE MANY OTHER TOWNS OUTSIDE THE CAPITAL.

IN SOLNECHNOGORSK, SOME 50 MILES NORTHWEST OF THE CAPITAL, A LARGE PART OF THE BUILDINGS STILL WERE SAID TO BE STANDING BECAUSE THE GERMANS RETREATED SO HASTILY THEY DID NOT HAVE TIME TO PUT THE TOWN TO THE TORCH.

DEC 14 1941

THE RUSSIAN PUBLIC WAS JUBILANT OVER THE RED ARMY'S SUCCESS IN DEFENDING MOSCOW AND WORKERS' MEETINGS TO CELEBRATE THE VICTORY WERE HELD IN MANY PLACES IN THE SOVIET UNION.

THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA, HOWEVER, WARNED THAT "THE GERMAN RETREAT FROM MOSCOW DOES NOT SETTLE THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR BY FAR," BUT IS ONLY ONE IMPORTANT STAGE IN A LONG STRUGGLE.

"WE MUST NOT LOSE OUR HEADS," THE PAPER SAID. "THE ENEMY IS WOUNDED BUT NOT KILLED. THE ENEMY STILL IS ON THE APPROACHES TO MOSCOW. THE DANGER IS NOT YET PASSED."

WHAT APPEARS TO BE AN IMPENDING MAJOR ASSAULT BY THE JAPS AGAINST STRATEGIC LUZON ISLAND IN THE PHILIPPINES IS THE IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT AT THIS WRITING IN THE BATTLE OF THE PACIFIC--A FURTHER GRIM TEST FOR OUR DEFENDERS, AND GOOD LUCK TO THEIR STOUT HEARTS.

LUZON, ON WHICH LIES MANILA AND THE NAVAL BASE OF CAVITE, IS THE KEY TO THE PHILIPPINES. WHILE THE LOSS OF THESE ISLANDS WOULDN'T REPRESENT A DECISIVE VICTORY FOR THE JAPANESE, IT WOULD BE A HEAVY BLOW AGAINST OUR STRIKING POWER AT THIS JUNCTURE.

THE ENEMY HAS CONCENTRATED HEAVY SEA-FORCES OFF THE PROVINCE OF ZAMBALES, WHICH IS ON THE WEST COAST OF LUZON AND THROWS A PROTECTIVE ARM ABOUT MANILA BAY. AS A FURTHER INDICATION OF A GATHERING STORM, WAVES OF JAP BOMBERS EARLY THIS MORNING SWARMED INTO THE MANILA AREA, WHERE OUR FIGHTER PLANES PROMPTLY ENGAGED THEM AND A FIERCE AIR BATTLE DEVELOPED.

MEANWHILE JAPANESE LAND FORCES WHICH HAD GOT ASHORE AT VARIOUS POINTS IN LUZON WERE WAITING TO COOPERATE WITH THESE FRESH OPERATIONS. ONE OF THESE CONTINGENTS, AT LINGAYEN ON THE WEST COAST, HAS BEEN WIPED OUT.

THE DIN OF THIS FRESH CONFLICT IN THE FAR EAST MUST BE MUSIC IN THE EARS OF HERR HITLER, AS A RED WAVE OF DISASTER SWEEPS OVER HIS WAVERING LINES IN RUSSIA. THE FUEHRER CERTAINLY CAUGHT THE JAPS IN A SWEET HORSE-DEAL WHEN HE PUSHED THEM INTO THE WAR BY PERSUADING THEM THAT HE WAS A SURE WINNER.

EVEN AS THE JAPS STRUCK AT US IN THE DARK, THE NAZI INVADERS IN RUSSIA WERE ON SUCH A TOUGH SPOT THAT NOW, ONLY A FEW DAYS LATER, THE MUSCOVITES REPORT SUCCESSES WHICH LEAD LONDON MILITARY COMMENTA-

TORS TO BELIEVE THE NAZIS MAY BE HEADED FOR A CATASTROPHE. HAD TOKYO WAITED A WEEK LONGER BEFORE MAKING ITS DECISION, IT MIGHT NEVER HAVE ATTACKED THE BEST FRIEND IT EVER HAD.

ONCE AGAIN AT A PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT HITLER HAS ACHIEVED A MAJOR DIPLOMATIC VICTORY. AS RUSSIA STARTS TO KNOCK THE GILT OFF HIS GINGER-BREAD, HE UNLOADS A BUNDLE OF HIS TROUBLES ONTO THE NARROW SHOULDERS OF THE JAPS.

THERE IS ANOTHER ASPECT OF THE BATTLE OF THE PACIFIC FROM WHICH OUR ATTENTION HAS BEEN DISTRACTED BECAUSE OF PREOCCUPATION WITH THE - SHOCK OF OUR SUDDEN PLUNGE INTO THE SECOND WORLD WAR. WE HAVE MOMENTARILY OVERLOOKED OUR VERY PATIENT AND GOOD FRIEND JOHN CHINAMAN, WHO BIDS FAIR TO PLAY A TREMENDOUSLY IMPORTANT PART IN THIS CONFLICT.

DEC 14 1941

THE JAPANESE HAD BARELY LAUNCHED THEIR ATTACK ON AMERICA AND BRITAIN WHEN THE CELESTIALS BEGAN AN OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAP-HELD CANTON, THE GREAT SOUTHERN CHINESE PORT NORTHWEST OF THE BRITISH CROWN COLONY OF HONGKONG WHICH THE NIPPONESE ARE ATTACKING. THE LATEST WORD FROM THAT FRONT TODAY IS THAT THE CHINESE ATTACK IS BEING INTENSIFIED. THIS OPERATION IS IMPORTANT BECAUSE IT IS BELIEVED CANTON IS THE MAIN BASE FOR JAP BOMBING OF HONGKONG.

BUT CANTON REPRESENTS AN ISOLATED INCIDENT. THE CHINESE HAVE SIGNALED THAT THEY ARE PREPARED TO GO ALL OUT IN SUPPORT OF THE ALLIES. DR.WELLINGTON KOO, FAMOUS CHINESE AMBASSADOR TO ENGLAND, SAYS CHINA IS READY TO PROVIDE TRAINED TROOPS FOR THE DEFENSE OF BRITISH BURMA OR OF RUSSIA IF THE JAPANESE ATTACK.

DR.KOO SAYS GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK HAS OFFERED THE SOVIET UNION A MILLION SOLDIERS IF JAPAN STRIKES AT RUSSIA. THE CHINESE CAN AFFORD SUCH A HUGE CONTRIBUTION IN MAN-POWER, BECAUSE THEY CLAIM TO HAVE AN ACTIVE ARMY OF 5,000,000 WITH 12,000,000 IN RESERVE. CHINA'S RESERVOIR OF MEN IS VIRTUALLY INEXHAUSTABLE.

RECOGNITION OF THIS POSITION WAS GIVEN RECENTLY BY JAPANESE PREMIER GENERAL TOJO IN AN ADDRESS TO THE DIET. HE ADMITTED THAT JAPAN IS STILL A LONG WAY FROM SETTLING THE SO-CALLED CHINA INCIDENT.

THERE IS ONE FACTOR WHICH MAY BE OF SPECIAL IMPORTANCE TO OUR EFFORT AGAINST JAPAN. AN ALL-AMERICAN AIR UNIT ALREADY IS SERVING WITH THE CHINESE. THE MAJORITY OF THE MEN ARE FORMER REGULARS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY AND NAVY BUT NOW BELONG OFFICIALLY TO THE CHINESE AIR FORCE. THERE ARE MORE THAN 100 OF THESE VETERAN PILOTS AND THEY ARE MANNING AMERICAN MACHINES. THEY ARE SUPPORTED BY AMERICAN TECHNICIANS AND RADIO MEN.

Air Power + Main Factor in the Pacific

DEC 14 1941

America's Ability to Outproduce Japan Will Win

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (Wide World)—It is idle to argue whether the United States has retained or lost its naval superiority in the Pacific. Such superiority is important, of course, but it is command of the air that really counts.

For limited periods, and over limited sections, the Japanese held control of the air. And air power wrought the devastation at Pearl Harbor and sank Britain's mighty new battleship, the Prince of Wales, and her old but valiant battle cruiser, the Repulse.

It was air power, too, American air power, when it finally began landing its smashing blows, that sent the Japanese battleship, Haruna, to the bottom, badly damaged another battlewagon and doomed a Jap light cruiser and a destroyer.

Thus far, it has been air power all the way.

And it is for that reason that the vicious success of last Sunday's stroke at Pearl Harbor makes it clear that on any realistic basis, an eventual American victory is inevitable.

For, the great factories of America, already gearing themselves to war-time production rates, can outproduce Japan by many fold. The planes that will give the United States supremacy in the skies above the Pacific will soon be trundling off the assembly lines.

z

No Doubt of the Result

The same factor is present where seapower is concerned. New warships are already on the ways. More will follow them. There can be no doubt of the result.

But it will take time—a lot of time. The ships that were lost and damaged at Pearl Harbor must be replaced and repaired. Their number must be increased. A mighty air armada must be assembled. It can't be done overnight.

No one knows as yet the cost of the Pearl Harbor debacle. It was apparently intended to cripple the striking arm of the fleet for a period that would give Japan time to reach her ultimate objective, the rich resources of the Dutch East Indies, and consolidate herself there. With these resources to feed her factories, she would be in a much better position to wage a long war with an America ever growing stronger.

If this was the objective, only time can reveal whether the surprise raid was successful. But at least on change of strategy has been forced upon our Navy. It had traditionally regarded a war with Japan an involving an initial period of defensive fighting, and then a smashing attack.

For that reason the American people can look forward to no collossal victories for many months. There undoubtedly and repeatedly will be such heartening incidents the sinking of the Haruna, but no major triumphs.

Attack When Time is Right

For, until the air arm and the fleet are ready, it must be a defensive war, a war to hang on to what we have in the Pacific. When the time is right, the attack will come, and there will follow the slow, bloody process of hacking our way across an ocean, moving slowly from island to island base, establishing bases as we go, keeping an efficient and open supply line behind us. That will be a long process, too.

As a matter of general strategy, there may be another plan too, a second force moving along the Aleutian Islands—which stretch out from Alaksa like a finger pointed at Japan—by way of the Kamchatka Peninsula of Russia. The Aleutian bases were started late, like the fortification of Guam, because some in Congress were afraid of making Japan mad. But in time they will be built.

In the end, we will be within striking distance of Japan herself.

Will Take a Lot of Time

Meanwhile, with British cooperation, we will be laying as effective a blockade as is possible, around an island nation already pinched for the imported materials which go into the manufacture of the weapons of war.

It will take time, a lot of time, and levy incredibly upon American blood and treasure. The time, too, has undoubtedly been lengthened by the losses at Pearl Harbor, and by the fact that a portion of our production must be diverted to our British and Russian comrades in arms.

But only the arrogant poo-bahs of Japan, and their German and Italian partners in crime, would deny that the day is coming when Americans will "remember Pearl Harbor," with a feeling of pride in a just and crushing vengeance.

ican-made planes can out-fly them. But planes of superior performance do not necessarily mean victory.

The Germans continue to use obsolescent planes (by American standards) successfully because they can send them out in numbers. The troop transports employed in Norway, in the Netherlands, in Greece and Crete are slower than standard American airliners. The German Stuka dive bomber is a comparatively slow plane but it carries a deadly bomb load.

In combatting Japanese air power in the Pacific, the United States has British used torpedo bombers in the successful attack on the Italian naval base at Taranto in November, 1940.

The mainstay of American air power in the Pacific may well prove to be the heavy bomber, in which this country notably excels.

Such bombers can no more fly to Japan from continental bases, or Hawaii, and return than Japanese bombers can reach Hawaii or the United States proper from Japan. But from nearer fields—perhaps from Alaska, or from airports made available to America by an ally—heavy bombers could strike tellingly at the source of Japanese air power, the island empire's aircraft factories, arsenals and fuel supplies.

To the south are the bases of this country's allies in New Zealand, Australia and in the Netherlands East Indies. At the extreme west is Britain's mighty island base of Singapore, almost touching the southern tip of the Malay Peninsula.

Outside of Japan and the United States mainland, the only major repair bases on the Pacific are at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii and Singapore. There the largest capital ships can be docked and put in order. Some of the other bases have repair facilities, but their capacity is limited.

Pearl Harbor's Import.

Pearl Harbor is at the apex of the United States' inner defense line in the Pacific, which runs from the Aleutian Islands to Hawaii to Samoa to Panama. With this "area of predominance" the American forces are reasonably free to operate.

Nipponese Fliers Showed Great Improvement Since Early Years of War in China

DEC 14 1941

BY DEVON FRANCIS

New York.—(Wide World)—An American Army officer, scanning reports of Japanese air assaults on Shanghai in 1937, remarked, "Their maneuvers are juvenile."

He added, "Give me a half dozen United States heavy bombers and I'll dispose of all the Japanese naval vessels in the Shanghai area in 30 minutes."

Perhaps he was right, at the time. But times have changed.

The carefully-planned, brilliantly-executed attack on Hawaii's island of Oahu dispels any doubt that the Japanese have learned their lessons in air warfare and profited thereby.

Critics of Japanese air power need not retreat from their stand that, pitted against another major power, the Japanese will come off second best in a lengthy air war. The Japanese lack the factory facilities, the raw materials, the fuels and—now, at least—the pilots to replace their losses.

Japan Has Good Planes

On the broad map of strategy in the Pacific, Japanese air power probably will not play a deciding role in the outcome.

But it would be fatal to underestimate the nature and extent of the phalanx which the Japanese present to the United States in the air. They have good, if not superlative, airplanes. They have aircraft carriers to deliver their dive bombers and torpedo planes to points of combat. Their hell-for-leather pilots know how to reach and attack an objective.

From all the information available on Japanese warplanes, it is safe to conclude that type for type Amer-problems which go far beyond the performance and production of warplanes, the availability of raw materials and the training of pilots.

To attack Japan proper this country must cross with vulnerable aircraft carriers 4300 miles of open ocean, now spiked with new bases from which the Japanese could attack en route. Or American planes could strike on long-range flights from Alaska, a bastion being rapidly fortified.

The same problems of distance beset any American effort to come to grips with Japanese airpower in South Asia, the Netherlands East Indies and the Malayan Peninsula. Japanese submarines will be on the alert for transpacific vessels carrying combat aircraft to the scene of battle.

Sunday Raid Called Brilliant

A great deal of wishful thinking has been done by Western powers in their appraisal of Japanese flying. It was natural enough. Japanese commercial fliers for years have frightened American passengers with their inexpert handling of transports.

But the most rabid partisan of American air power will concede the brilliance, militarily, of Sunday's raid. While much of its success was due to surprise, nevertheless the purpose with which the enemy planes made for American warships and air fields reflected credit on Japanese tactics.

The Japanese made full use of two types of planes which have proved their worth in more than two years of the European war, dive bombers and torpedo planes. The dive bomber is a German workhorse for both land and sea warfare. The Pacific War Is Contest For Many Tiny Islands And Few Great Bases

Clashing Fleets Will Pivot Upon Specks of Land Because of Vastness of Watery Arena and Limited Operating Radius of Ships, Planes

DEC 14 1941

By CLARKE BEACH

Washington, Dec. 13.—(Wide World)—The curtain rose a week ago on the long-awaited, historic tragedy of the Pacific war. The stage is the surface of the world's largest ocean, and upon it untold numbers of men will die fighting for the possession of a few great bases and thousands of small islands.

Pivoting On Atolls.

The clashing fleets will pivot upon these specks of land, because of the vastness of the watery arena and the limited radius on which warships can operate. The islands also the nesting places for warplanes. Naval strategists agree that no Major fleet engagement should take place more than 2000 to 3000 miles from repair docks, into which crippled vessels can limp after battle. Yet it is 6000 miles between Alaska and New Zealand; 8000 miles between San Francisco and Singapore.

This country's Pacific mainland bases are at San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle. Its outlying bases are at Sitka, Kadiak, Anchorage and Dutch Harbor, in Alaska; in Hawaii; in the Philippines and on a dozen or so islands as far south as Samoa.

The home bases of the enemy are at Yokosuka, Maizuru, Kure and Sasebo; and his outposts are at Formosa, Bonin, Camranh Bay in Indo China, and, it is believed, on many of the mandated islands, which lie between Hawaii and the Philippines.

Pearl Harbor, 2400 miles from San Francisco, is a constant menace to any force seeking to make raids on the west coast or the Panama Canal; and it is unlikely that the Japanese will attempt a large-scale attack on the American mainland as long as the fleet in Pearl Harbor is at its back.

The Japanese started the encirclement of the Philippines when they seized Hainen Island and the Spratly Islands in 1939 and Camranh Bay last July.

Manila, on Luzon Island, is the stronghold of the commonwealth, and it is believed capable of withstanding a long seige and a frontal attack.

Philippine Offensive.

If the Philippines can be held, they might in time become the key to offensive operations against the Japanese. Only 2000 miles from Tokyo, Manila lies much nearer to the enemy capital than either Hawaii or Singapore. Bases on the island provide fields from which to launch air attacks against Formosa, which is 600 miles from Manila; against Camranh Bay, or against the sea lanes which Japanese ships must use for communication with Indo-China or for an expedition against Singapore or the East Indies.

There was opposition to fortifying Guam, and the first money for improvements was not provided until June, 1940, when Congress voted $277,000 for the establishment there of an "aviation and submarine listening post." In March of this year it provided $12,800,000 for defense aviation facilities at Samoa and for harbor improvements at Guam.

The importance of the small islands in the scheme of warfare in the Pacific has grown with the development of the airplane.

At the war's start, naval air bases were being constructed on Midway, Wake, Johnston and Palmyra Islands. From these outposts, United States planes could patrol a front of more than 4000 miles west of Hawaii between Unalaska and Samoa.

Midway and Wake.

Midway lies 1134 miles northwest of Hawaii, and Wake is a little less than half way from Midway to Guam. Palmyra, 960 miles south of Hawaii, is on the route to Samoa. In the Samoan group, at Pago Pago, Tutuila Island, this country has had a minor naval station since 1900. It is now of great importance as a southern terminus for patrol squadrons.

Hawaii is the home station of the fleet, and the most intensively fortified area under the American flag. Within Pearl Harbor are enough anchorage for the whole American navy. Believing that the defensive weakness of Oahu was the proximity of outlying islands in the Hawaiian group, the Army and Navy lately pushed work on fortifications of those islands.

North To Alaska.

North of Hawaii 1990 miles lies Dutch Harbor, southern most Alaskan base. The airplane also made necessary the chain of bases on that rocky, fogshrouded peninsula. Alaska's location gives it easy access to Asia by plane, which means not only that this country can use it in operations against Japan, but also that, if occupied by the enemy, it would be a menace to the United States.

The Army has been developing two primary air bases in Alaska, at Fairbanks and Anchorage.

The Navy also is building air bases there.

The Great Circle route between Japan and the United States passes just south of the Aleutian islands; on it the air distance is about 1500 miles shorter than by way of Hawaii.

South Pacific Open.

The United States has no defense outposts in the South Pacific to protect the Panama Canal or to establish blockade patrols off the western coast of South America, although some authorities for years have advocated establishing such bases. The danger of the Japanese occupying and fortifying one or more of the islands there is seen in the fact that eight islands were within 150 to 200 miles of the Canal. The Galapagos Islands, often spoken of as desirable outposts, are 850 miles off the Ecuadorian coast.

In the South Pacific are numerous island groups owned by the Free French, such as the Siciety Islands, the Leeward Islands and Tahiti; and these, presumably, will be available to the United States as bases in case of naval activity or convoys in that area.

Mandate Menaces.

One of the most serious menaces to the United States Navy in the central and western Pacific are the Japanese mandated islands—a group of about 1400 islands stretching for nearly 3000 miles diagonally across the route between the Philippines and Hawaii.

Japan quietly took over these ocean specks during the World War, when they were held by Germany, which had purchased them from Spain. Japan held them later under a mandate from the League of Nations.

From various evidence, including reports from the few persons who have been permitted to visit there, observers have concluded that Japan has established armed bases on many of them, contrary to treaty. Submarines, smal craft and airplanes operating from them could harry United States shipping on the route to Manila and possibly force this country to abandon the route.

Mopping up the little island bases one at a time is entirely practicable, military experts have said, but sailing into that hornets' nest would give the Navy a long, arduous and dangerous job.

New Routes Into China Supplement Burma Road

Hongkong.—(AP)—Modern Marco Polos are developing dozens of new travel routes and re-opening scores of old ones in the vast interior areas of Free China.

Best known are the Burma road and the so-called Red route to Russia, twin supply lines of the Chungking Government.

Tang Wei-pin, vice-director of the China Travel Service, has told the story here, giving for the first time facts and figures on the immense stretches of the interior open to travel by air, rail, water, bus, sedan chair or horseback.

In the province of Kweichow, the former isolated and sleepy capital city of Kweiyang has become a thriving communication centre. From Kweiyang a bustling highway now connects with Changsha, to the east, while another main road leads westward to Kunming, the Chinese terminus of the Burma road.

From Chungking there is the Sino-Soviet international highway through Chengtu, Tienshui, Lanchow (capital of the largely Mohammedan province of Kansu) and into Chinese Turkestan.

Important air routes include the Hongkong-Chungking-Rangoon line, with stops at Kunming and at Lashio, on the border of China and Burma. Others are Chungking - Kweilin, Chungking - Kunming, Chungking-Chengtu, and the Sino-Soviet line through Lanchow, Hami, Urumchi and Alma Ata.

GERMAN PRESS SEEKS TO WIN FORMER FOES

DEC 14 1941

Propaganda Used In Conquered Countries

By ANGUS THEURMER

Berlin—(The Special News Service)—The German press follows the flag. After the army has defeated a country by the might of the sword, Germany's propagandists try to win over the populace with the might of the word.

Lieutenants of Joseph Goebbels have a finger in directing the local press of captured countries, determining what shall be printed, who shall work on the papers and what news can come out of the land.

But in every land also they established a fat, substantial German-language "Zeitung" (German for "newspaper").

The oldtimer among these organs of the new order in Europe is the Krakauer Zeitung, which has just passed its second birthday. It has Warsaw and Lwow editions appearing as Warschauer Zeitung and Lemberger Zeitung. The latter is the newest addition, which will serve a healthy slice of post-1939 Russian Poland now incorporated into the general government as the province of Galicia.

Officials of the propaganda ministry followed swiftly behind the army in the east, establishing the "Deutsche Zeitung in Ostland" to sell Germandom to the inhabitants of Riga and Latvian areas. Already the editor has put out 98 editions.

30. R4 — 13535

The most important notices of the civil administration always appear in these papers—for instance, if two eggs are going to be issued on ration cards, the best way for a local citizen to know about it is to keep his eye on the official notice section of such newspapers.

In Kaunas, Lithuanians get to read Hitler's speeches and find out they must write requests to the German authorities in the German language, by reading in German the newly-established Kauener Zeitung, which also has offices in Wilna.

But the newspapers of the east are smaller than those of the west. Whereas the above-named papers are about the size of a tabloid, the leading German paper of the west—the Pariser Zeitung, printed on the big newspaper presses of the former French capital—is about the size of a normal American metropolitan eight-column newspaper.

Since the fall of France, German soldiers and French civilians who are interested have been able to read in this technically excellent German-language paper chit-chat out of the Reich, French and German sports news, German political opinions, broadsides against Roosevelt and Churchill, praise of the Fuehrer and his politics, short stories and light entertainment articles—as well as the grim notices under the word "Bekanntmachun" (or "Avis" on the French language page) which tell over the name of Otto von Stuelpnagel of another Frenchman shot for breaking German military rules.

In Holland the Deutsche Zeitung in Den Nierdelanden, in Belgium the Brusseler Zeitung, carries the word of Hitler to those who want to read it.

German soldiers' in the north read the Polar Zeitung and those in Africa read Oase (The Oasis). People in Oslo have the Deutsche Zeitung in Norwegen if they want something German to read on the way to work.

It is sometimes amusing—and annoying—to the foreign correspondents stationed in Berlin to notice how much information never published by the press of the capital turns up in the German-controlled German-language "foreign" press which is not immediately under the eagle eye of the head propaganda men of the Wilhelmstrasse.

Correspondents from other lands in Berlin find it not unusual to have a story reported as "unknown" at all government offices only to read the answer to their inquiries when the next day's German papers arrive from Paris, Belgrade, Brussels, Amsterdam and Warsaw.

An interesting about-face in German press policy was noticed after German military might smashed a few nations to the ground. Slowly but clearly, the leading German newspapers began to change from the difficult-to-read German script type to the Latin type used in French, English, Italian and other languages.

Reluctantly, it was admitted officially that an about-face had been ordered all along the line.

It is part of the propaganda scheme of the German press to make it easy for foreigners to read the leading German-language newspapers.

For one not acquainted with script type, just looking at a page of it is enough to discourage reading.

With papers printed in Latin type, a person of normal courage can begin the struggle with the strange language, a fact which the German propagandists fully realize.

WAR ANALYSIS

Irish Bases Seen Essential To Allies in Atlantic War

DEC 14 1941

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington—Less than a week after the Sabbath morning fall of the first Japanese bomb at Pearl Harbor, this nation has shaken down to its grim role and begun to fight back effectively.

It is rallying all its fighting or working manpower, old and young, for service as needed.

KIRKE L. SIMPSON

It is mustering the total strength of its material resources, so vast that the aggregate staggers imagination.

And it has time to look abroad as the whole western hemisphere rallies with it to meet the Axis challenge and to speculate on the fact that only two nations of strategic importance in the vast and intricate war pattern still are merely onlookers, Turkey and the Irish Free State.

How long Turkey can remain aloof only the Axis master minds in Berlin know. It may be next on Hitler's conquest schedule, now that Russia has balked his search for oil.

Spain and Vichy France can be rated as only technically non-belligerent. Both are playing the Axis game and either might be beckoned or cajoled by Hitler into the fighting to serve his once more revised war strategy. Neither, however, stands so squarely athwart his road to adequate oil resources as does Turkey.

Russian rebuff of Nazi peace feelers has done nothing to ease Japanese concern as to her northern as well as her Pacific and China Sea frontiers. It seems merely a question of time and anti-Axis strategy before Russia will strike. Already Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, has described Japan as the "common enemy."

Nor can Ireland's position fall to come in for new consideration in both Washington and London now. Prime Minister Churchill already has warned Parliament that the war in the Pacific must necessarily lead to some curtailment of American naval assistance in the Atlantic and of the flow of American war supplies to England. That was promptly implemented by an offer to Washington of Canadian shell-making facilities, urgently needed by the British themselves.

Finland can be disregarded, unless Russian initiative reopens the Murmansk route for Atlantic supply lines from Britain and the United States.

All of this leaves in tragic isolation Ireland, non-combatant possessor of the prime geographical key to what might happen in the Atlantic, now that the Pacific has been fanned to a war flame. Nor can Ireland look across the Atlantic for sympathy if she denies to Britain use of Irish coastal bases that can prove crucial in the fight against an anticipated intensified Nazi winter-spring attack on England's Atlantic life lines.

America herself is at war. Americans of all national backgrounds, including those whose forebears came from Ireland, can not easily condone acts of commission or of omission by any people when those acts aid their Axis foes.

WOMEN'S WAR TOO, SAYS LADY ASTOR

Must Take Their Part Along With Men, She Declares---Turns Home Into Hospital

DEC 14 1941

BY ROBERT BUNNELLE

LONDON, Dec. 13 (WW)—American-born Lady Astor has thrown herself into the present conflict as a war to the death in which "all men and all women who love and value freedom must give entire help."

She has sent three sons to the army and a fourth to the navy. There is a Canadian military hospital in the grounds at Cliveden, as there was in the last war for four and one-half years.

WOMEN'S WAR, TOO

Discussing the issues of war and peace in her bomb-blasted, boarded-up St. James' square house, the first woman to sit in the British Parliament declared, "This is the first time in history that women have had to fight a war.

"They are in it because this is an international civil war for democratic civilization and all that liberty stands for and it is as much a woman's fight as a man's fight. We are all fighting together for social and political freedom."

What about the "Cliveden set" and war?

Lady Astor shuffled through a sheaf of papers on her big, flat-topped desk and answered:

"In the first place, there never was a 'Cliveden set.' The tale of a 'Cliveden set,' which desired appeasement with Hitler, which plotted to oust Anthony Eden, et cetera, et cetera, was proved publicly to be inaccurate. Those who circulated these tales fortunately gave chapter and verse, which enabled us to prove that we were out of England when the meetings were alleged to have been held. Alas, I remember the time we were accused of favoring Communism after we had visited Russia with Bernard Shaw.

General Meeting Place

"Cliveden has been a meeting centre for all sorts and kinds of men and women of the most conflicting views. My home was open to anyone interesting who wanted to come there.

"It would have surprised those critics who talked of Nazism if they had known that Ribbentrop never visited Cliveden, but that Litvinoff did—he having been very kind and helpful to us during our visit to Moscow. If there ever was anything like a 'Cliveden set,' then Lord Lothian, whom America loved and admired, was its leader. I think that is the answer to all talk of a 'Cliveden set.'"

Lady Astor disclosed she had once turned down opportunities to meet Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini "because of their attitude toward women."

She smiled, "the dark age attitude toward woman is light compared to the attitude of Hitler and Mussolini. That is why I say this is a woman's fight as well as a man's fight for social and political freedom. The women of America must realize this, and it will be a long and stiff war."

Has Praise for Russia

(Lady Astor Criticized Prime Minister Churchill recently for having "a blind eye where women are concerned," and told the House of Commons: "If you don't conscript married women there will be great discontent.")

"It is a war that must be won if the civilization of the English-thinking peoples is to survive. We will win it, but I think we must have the entire help of America to gain victory."

An old enemy of Communism, Lady Astor nevertheless praised the "magnificent way the Russian people are fighting for their homeland."

"I'm very glad Russia came into the war," she said. "Hitler gave Stalin no choice when, in spite of his treaty of eternal friendship, he attacked Russia. I am against Communism, but I am not afraid of it. I think that the end of this war will not be so much a new era for us as it will be a new era for Communism. I believe Russia is getting back to love of country, individualism and the home, which is the fundamental of all civilized life.

"Still a Virginian"

"I'm not looking for chaos after this war," Lady Astor went on. "There is no need for chaos if we all carry out the spirit as well as the letter of the eight-point declaration of peace aims which Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have made. I think there may very well be a new kind of golden era after the war through the collaboration of the English-thinking peoples.

"I cannot go to America now. I have too much to do here in Plymouth. If you saw Plymouth you would know why. Also I have four sons in this war. But I do want to go to America after the war and talk to the American women about how we can prevent another war. I think that is a woman's job."

Lady Astor, who lives at Plymouth, spends much of her time there working among the war sufferers. But she still considers herself a Virginian.

"I've never described myself as anything but a Virginian," she said, "although I've been in this country for 35 years and have been allowed to sit in the British House of Commons for nearly 22 years."

NAZI PARTY MEMBERS DEMAND
NON-CHRISTIAN PARTNERS (900)

DEC 14 1941

LOCHNER

(ADVANCE) BERLIN, DEC. 13-(WIDE WORLD)-MARRIAGE ADS IN GERMAN NEWSPAPERS REFLECT THE CHANGED AND CHANGING ORDER IN HITLER'S NAZI REICH.

THERE ARE THE MIDDLE-AGED SPINSTERS AND YOUNG WOMEN, FOR INSTANCE, WILLING TO MARRY WAR VETERANS MAIMED IN BATTLE. TYPICAL OF THIS IS AN AD FROM THE VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER OF MUNICH:

"FOR MY SISTER, A JOLLY DECENT PERSON OF PLEASING APPEARANCE, AGE 34, WITH SLIGHTLY DEFECTIVE LEG, I'M LOOKING FOR A MAN OF SOLID CHARACTER. WAR INVALID ACCEPTABLE."

OR THIS ONE IN THE SCHESISCHE TAGEZEITUNG OF BRESLAU:

"BLONDE, 25 YEARS OLD, ONE METER 55 CENTIMETERS TALL, MOTHER OF ONE CHILD, WITH OWN APARTMENT, WOULD LIKE SOON TO MARRY PROPER MAN, GLAD TO TAKE WAR INVALID OR MAN WITH BODILY DEFECT."

AS MAIMED SOLDIERS ARE PROMISED GOOD PENSIONS, THEY EVIDENTLY REGARD THEMSELVES AS DESIRABLE MARRIAGE CANDIDATES. ONE CAN READ IN MANY PAPERS HOW THIS OR THAT VETERAN IS ANXIOUS TO MEET THE RIGHT GIRL FOR MARRYING. HERE IS AN AD FROM THE BERLIN MORGENPOST:

"WAR INVALID, 45, PROTESTANT, IS LOOKING FOR SUBSTANTIAL LIFE'S MATE, 40 TO 50 YEARS OLD, WITH OWN APARTMENT BUT WITHOUT RELATIONS."

DEC 14 1941

WHEN A 100 PER CENT NAZI LOOKS FOR A WIFE VIA THE ADVERTISEMENTS HE IS SURE TO INSIST UPON A NORDIC, NATIONAL SOCIALIST HELPMATE WHO, LIKE HIMSELF, IS "GOTTGLAUBIG" (BELIEVING IN GOD) -- WHICH TO EVERY NAZI MEANS NO GIRL PROFESSING CHRISTIANITY NEED APPLY. CHRISTIANITY, SO THE DYED-IN-THE-WOOL NAZI ARGUES, IS A JEWISH IMPORTATION.

HERE IS ONE SAMPLE AD OF THIS KIND FROM THE BERLIN EDITION OF HITLER'S VOLKISCHER BEOBACHTER:

"GOVERNMENT PRIVY COUNCILOR, PARTY MEMBER, BELIEVER IN GOD, AGE 33, DESIRES TO MAKE ACQUAINTANCE WITH VIEW TO MARRIAGE OF SERIOUS-MINDED, INWARDLY BALANCED, EDUCATED YOUNG LADY UP TO 27 YEARS, CONDITION: BLUE-EYED, NATURAL BLONDE, SLIM, NORDIC TYPE NOT SMALLER THAN 168 CENTIMETERS, HEREDITARILLY HEALTHY, BELIEVER IN GOD, HOUSEWIFELY, ACTIVE IN WAR SERVICE OR NATIONAL SOCIALIST SOCIAL SERVICE."

NAZI WOMEN ARE EQUALLY PARTICULAR, AS THE FOLLOWING ADVERTISEMENT FROM THE SAME VOLKISCHER BEOBACHTER SHOWS:

"NORTHERN GERMAN WOMEN, PARTY MEMBER, AGE 32, SIZE 170, WITH POSITIVE ATTITUDE TOWARD LIFE, HEREDITARILLY HEALTHY, HOUSEWIFELY, WITH LOVE FOR CHILDREN, FOND OF NATURE, DEVOTED TO SPORTS, ACTIVELY INTERESTED IN POLITICAL AND CULTURAL MATTERS, IS LOOKING FOR PARTNER WITH SIMILAR VIEWS ALONG LINES OF OUR PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE WITH VIEW TO

30.24— 13537

30.24— 13537

LOCHNER

A CHARACTERISTIC PHENOMENON OF GERMAN WARTIME MATE-SEEKING IS THE LONELINESS OF OFFICIALS SENT INTO CONQUERED EASTERN AREAS FOR ADMINISTRATIVE PURPOSES.

THIS WRITER HAS MET THEM IN A CITY, SAY, LIKE KRAKAU, WHERE THEY SIT TOGETHER EVENING AFTER EVENING IN A MEN'S CLUB WITH THE SAME FACES OPPOSITE THEM, STRANGERS IN A STRANGE LAND.

NO WONDER THEY TURN TO THE MARRIAGE SECTION OF SOME METROPOLITAN NEWSPAPER AND INSERT AN AD AS DID THIS MAN IN THE BERLIN LOKAL ANZEIGER:

DEC 14 1941

"HIGHER REICH OFFICIAL, AGE 31, WITH COLLEGE EDUCATION, ONE METER 79 CENTIMETERS TELL, CATHOLIC, HAILING FROM CENTRAL GERMANY BUT ORDERED TO UPPER SILESIA ON RECONSTRUCTION WORK FOR DURATION OF WAR, TAKES THIS MEANS, SINCE HE'S PREVENTED BY ABOVENAMED CIRCUMSTANCES FROM MEETING RIGHT PERSON, TO SEARCH FOR LIFE'S PARTNER FROM GOOD FAMILY."

THEN THERE ARE THOSE WOMEN WHO FIND THE BURDENS OF THEIR PROFESSIONAL LIFE IN WARTIME SO HEAVY THAT THEY LOOK TO MATRIMONY FOR ESCAPE. THIS IS PARTICULARLY TRUE OF WOMEN DOCTORS, ONE OF WHOM INSERTED THE FOLLOWING ADVERTISEMENT IN THE BERLIN DEUTSCHE ALLGEMEINE ZEITUNG:

"WOMAN PHYSICIAN, 32, SIZE 170, SLIM, IMPRESSIVE APPEARANCE, CATHOLIC, IN GOOD CIRCUMSTANCES, WITH KEEN SENSE FOR WELL-APPOINTED HOME, IS SO OVERWORKED PROFESSIONALLY THAT SHE EMPLOYES THIS MEANS FOR LOOKING FOR LIFEMATE IN SIMILAR CIRCUMSTANCES PREFERABLY FROM EAST OR NORTH GERMANY."

DEC 14 1941

THE 50 PER CENT TAX ON TOBACCO, MADE EFFECTIVE NOV. 3, SEEMS ALREADY TO HAVE AFFECTED PENNY-COURTING WOULD-BE SWAINS, FOR THE HAMBERGER FREMDENBLATT CONTAINS THIS NOTICE:

"GENTLEMAN, END OF 40S, WITHOUT RELATIVES, OWNER OF BUSINESS AND BANK ACCOUNT, IS LOOKING FOR GOOD-LOOKING WOMAN OR GIRL WITHOUT RELATIVES OF SUITABLE AGE, ABOUT ONE METER 57 CENTIMETERS TALL, RATHER HEFTY, NON-SMOKER."

MANY MARRIAGE ADVERTISEMENTS REFLECT A CRAVING FOR SECURITY IN THESE INSECURE TIMES. TO THE AVERAGE GERMAN, THE MOST SECURE POSITION IS THAT OF A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL. ALTHOUGH THE SALARY MAY BE RELATIVELY SMALL, THE PAY SCALE IS GRADUATED ACCORDING TO LENGTH OF SERVICE AND, IN EVENT OF DEATH, A PENSION IS CERTAIN FOR THE WIDOW.

HENCE, HUSBAND-SEEKING WOMEN LIKE TO ANNOUNCE THEIR FORMULA FOR DESIRABLE LIFE PARTNERS AS DID THIS ADVERTISER IN THE WESTFALEISCHER LANDESZEITUNG OF DORTMUND:

DEC 14 1941

"WIDOW WITHOUT RELATIVES, PROTESTANT, AGE 50, OF IMPOSING STATURE, WITH BEAUTIFUL HOME IN CHOICE LOCATION IN WESTFALIAN COUNTY SEAT, IS ANXIOUS TO MAKE ACQUAINTANCE WITH VIEW TO MATRIMONY OF SUBSTANTIAL GENTLEMAN WITH FIRM CHARACTER AND IN SECURE POSITION, AGE UP TO 58, GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL PREFERRED."

BUT THIS "GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL" RECOMMENDATION ALSO WORKS THE OTHER WAY AROUND. FOR NUMEROUS ADS BY MATRIMONIALLY-INCLINED MALES OF THE SPECIES BEGIN WITH THE OMINOUS WORDS: "GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SEEKS PARTNER." THUS, THE BERLIN LOKAL ANZEIGER ANNOUNCES:

"GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL IN LEADING POSITION IN EASTERN GERMANY, WIDOWER WITHOUT RELATIONS, NORDIC TYPE, DESIRES PRETTY PROTESTANT LIFEMATE UP TO 28, MORE THAN 164 CENTIMETERS TALL, OF GOOD FAMILY, MAY BE WIDOW WITH CHILDREN."

GENERALLY SPEAKING, SOCIAL SECURITY AND POSSESSION OF A FURNISHED APARTMENT -- HARD TO ACQUIRE IN WARTIME -- SEEM TO BE REGARDED AS THE CHIEF BAITS FOR A PROSPECTIVE SOULMATE.

DEC 14 1941

IF A MAN IS ENTITLED TO A PENSION, HE IS SURE TO ADVERTISE THAT FACT. IF A WOMAN HAS A FURNISHED FLAT WITH ALL ACCESSORIES, SHE NEVER FORGETS TO MENTION IT. IF EITHER PROSPECTIVE PARTNER OWNS REAL ESTATE THAT FACT IS LIKELY TO BE AIRED IN THE ADVERTISEMENT.

TO BE THE DAUGHTER OF A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL IS APPARENTLY SOMETHIN TO BE PROUD OF AND CALCULATED TO ACT AS BAIT FOR THE PROSPECTIVE HUSBAND.

RELATIVES, ON THE OTHER HAND, SEEM TO BE A HINDRANCE TO MATRIMONY VIA THE WANT AD. WHEREVER EITHER A MAN ON A WOMAN HUNT OR A WOMAN ON A MAN HUNT CAN CLAIM TO HAVE NO RELATIONS, HE OR SHE CONSIDERS THIS A FEATHER IN THE CAP AND PROUDLY PROCLAIMS IT.

BUS LINE ON THE DESERT

TREACHEROUS SANDS

AND TRIBESMEN

ARE HAZARDS

BUT NAIRN BROTHERS OPERATE

OVER 540-MILE ROUTE (800) PIX SERVICED

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

(ADVANCE) DAMASCUS, (CORRESPONDENCE OF WIDE WORLD)-DESPITE WARFARE AND OTHER TROUBLES OF THIS YEAR, THE FAMOUS DESERT BUS LINE OF THE NAIRN BROTHERS HAS CONTINUED TO RUN BETWEEN DAMASCUS AND BAGHDAD.

WAR, FIRST IN IRAK, THEN IN SYRIA, RAGED ALONG THE ROUTE FOR OVER THREE MONTHS. SERVICE WAS MAINTAINED THROUGH MOST OF THIS PERIOD BY DETOURING TO AVOID THE FIGHTING.

THIS NATURALLY REQUIRED SKILLFUL SWERVING AND CLOSE ATTENTION TO WAR COMMUNIQUES, BUT SUCH PROBLEMS ARE NOT NEW TO THE BROTHERS NAIRN, NORMAN AND GERALD, NEW ZEALANDERS WHO CAME TO THIS PART OF THE WORLD AS OFFICERS IN THE LAST WAR AND HAVE BEEN HERE EVER SINCE.

BETWEEN DAMASCUS AND BAGHDAD, SAID TO BE THE TWO OLDEST CITIES IN THE WORLD, LIE 540 MILES OF DESERT--JUST ABOUT THE MEANEST LAND IN

30.24 — 13537 30.24—13539

THE WORLD.

FOR CENTURIES THE USUAL MEANS OF MAKING THE TRIP WAS BY CAMEL CARAVAN, WHICH REQUIRED A MONTH AND WAS DANGEROUS, FOR THERE WERE MANY BEDOUIN TRIBESMEN AS TREACHEROUS AS THE DESERT ITSELF.

THE NAIRNS DECIDED TO SEE IF THEY COULD IMPROVE ON THE CAMEL. THEY BEGAN TO RUN AUTOMOBILES--THE OLD-FASHIONED TOURING CARS OF THAT PERIOD--ACROSS THE DESERT.

IT WAS NOT EASY. OPERATION WAS BY COMPASS. SOFT SANDS HAD TO BE AVOIDED FOR THE GRAVELLY PARTS WHICH WOULD SUPPORT AN AUTOMOBILE. AND HIGH SUMS HAD TO BE PAID AS TRIBUTE TO DESERT SHIEKS TO INSURE SECURITY.

FROM THIS SERVICE THE PRESENT BUS LINE DEVELOPED. THE NAIRNS NOW HAVE TWO ENORMOUS AMERICAN-BUILT BUSES. THEY FULFILL THE DESCRIPTION OF THE CAMEL AS THE SHIP OF THE DESERT BETTER THAN THE CAMEL HIMSELF.

EVERYTHING--BODIES, ENGINES, WHEELS, SPRINGS, LIGHTS AND TIRES--WAS DESIGNED AND BUILT ESPECIALLY FOR THE DESERT. THE BUSES COST $50,000 EACH.

DEC 14 1941

THE MAIN SECTION IS A TRAILER, HOLDING 20 PASSENGERS, WITH ALMOST ALL MODERN CONVENIENCES AND IS AIR-COOLED. THE TRIP IS MAINLY BY NIGHT; THE BUSES LEAVE AT 4 P.M. AND ARRIVE BY MIDMORNING THE NEXT DAY. THE PASSENGER FARE IS $40, ABOUT 7 1/2 CENTS A MILE.

THE NAIRNS ALSO OPERATE LESS ELABORATE BUSES AND TRUCKS FOR FREIGHT.

STORIES ABOUT THE ADVENTURES OF THE NAIRN BROTHERS ARE COUNTLESS IN THIS PART OF THE WORLD.

SHORTLY AFTER THEY STARTED THEIR FIRST SERVICE, COMPETITION CAME IN, AND SOME OF THE TALES ARE LIKE THOSE OF THE WILD WEST.

ONE ENTERPRISING ARAB OPENED A CUT-RATE LINE. HIS DRIVERS DIDN'T KNOW THE DESERT AND HAD NO COMPASSES, BUT WERE INSTRUCTED TO START OUT BEHIND THE NAIRN CARS AND FOLLOW THEM ACROSS THE DESERT. NAIRN DRIVERS USUALLY GAVE THEM THE SLIP DURING THE NIGHT AND SEVERAL OF THE OPPOSITION CARS WERE NEVER HEARD OF AGAIN.

A BAGHDAD MILLIONAIRE DECIDED TO GET A MONOPOLY OF THE DESERT ROUTE AT ANY COST AND OFFERED TO BUY THE NAIRNS OUT. THEY WERE SITTING ON A CAFE TERRACE OVERLOOKING THE TIGRIS AS NORMAN, NOTED FOR HIS RECKLESSNESS, GAVE A FINAL REFUSAL.

"HAVE YOU A POUND NOTE?" ASKED THE MILLIONAIRE.

NORMAN PRODUCED ONE.

DEC 14 1941

"I DARE YOU TO THROW IT INTO THE RIVER," SAID THE MILLIONAIRE.

NORMAN DID SO.

THE MILLIONAIRE THEN TOOK A FIVE-POUND NOTE FROM HIS WALLET AND THREW IT IN THE RIVER.

"THAT'S WHY YOU'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO LAST AGAINST ME," HE SAID. "YOU'RE A SMART FELLOW AND ALL THAT, BUT FOR EVERY POUND YOU CAN AFFORD TO THROW AWAY, I CAN THROW AWAY FIVE."

NORMAN NAIRN CALLED A WAITER AND SENT HIM TO A PHARMACY FOR A POTION OF DEADLY POISON. HE ORDERED TWO WHISKY AND SODAS AND POURED THE POISON INTO ONE. HE HAD THE WAITER SWITCH THEM AROUND BEHIND

THEIR BACKS. THE APPEARANCE OF THE TWO DRINKS WAS THE SAME.

"YOU PICK ONE AND DRINK IT AND I'LL DRINK THE OTHER," HE SAID TO THE MILLIONAIRE.

DEC 14 1941

THE LATTER REFUSED.

"THAT'S WHY YOU'LL NEVER BEAT ME -- NO GUTS," SAID NORMAN.

PERHAPS NOT ALL THE STORIES ABOUT THE NAIRNS ARE LITERALLY TRUE, BUT THEY ARE PART OF THE LEGEND OF THE NEAR EAST NOW, AND THE NAIRNS DO NOT DISCOURAGE THEM.

SOME TWENTY COMPETING LINES HAVE BEEN STARTED, BUT THE NAIRNS ARE THE ONLY ONES WHO HAVE BEEN ABLE TO MAINTAIN A RELIABLE ALL-YEAR SERVICE.

IN EARLY SPRING HUNDREDS OF SQUARE MILES OF DESERT ADJACENT TO THE TIGRIS AND EUPHRATES ARE FLOODED. THE NAIRNS KEEP TWO TRACTORS ALONG THE ROUTE TO PULL THEIR BUSES OUT IN CASE THEY GET STUCK IN THE MUD.

IN THE FIRST YEARS THERE WERE MANY ROBBERIES. ONE BAND OF BEDOUINS FIRST TRIED TO OVERTAKE THE NAIRN AUTOMOBILE CARAVAN ON CAMELBACK, BUT THEY FOUND THE CAMELS TOO SLOW. THEY THEN USED HORSES, BUT STILL WERE ELUDED. FINALLY THEY STOLE ONE OF THE NAIRN CARS AND USED IT FOR THE ROBBERY, THAT TIME WITH SUCCESS.

FRENCH BANDITS ORGANIZED A RAID ON A CORTEGE TRANSPORTING GOLD BELONGING TO TURKEY AND GOT AWAY WITH THE SHIPMENT, WORTH ALMOST $30,000. IT WAS INSURED.

DURING THE DRUSE REBELLION, BEDOUINS ATTACKED THREE NAIRN CARS WHICH THEY BELIEVED CARRYING GOLD BELONGING TO THE BANK OF PERSIA. IN REALITY THE GOLD HAD BEEN SHIPPED A WEEK EARLIER AND THE CARS WERE EMPTY.

THEY RANSACKED THE CARS, BUT ALL THEY COULD FIND WERE THE "IRON RATIONS" FOR EMERGENCIES UNDER THE FLOORBOARDS.

ONE OF THE DRIVERS, WHO TODAY PILOTS THE BIG BUS, TOLD ME IN HIS OWN VARIETY OF ENGLISH HOW HE SAVED THE RATIONS:

THE BEDOUIN LEADER PICKED UP A CAN OF CORNED BEEF AND ASKED WHAT WAS IN IT.

DEC 14 1941

"PORK MEAT."

HE THREW IT DOWN IN HORROR.

HE NEXT INQUIRED ABOUT A CAN OF CONDENSED MILK.

"PORK MILK."

NEXT HE FOUND A BOTTLE OF TOMATO KETCHUP.

"PORK BLOOD."

"DON'T YOU INFIDEL DOGS EAT OR DRINK ANYTHING BUT PORK?" HE ASKED IN DISGUST AS HE TURNED AWAY.

THE BAND, HOWEVER, DID RELIEVE THE DRIVERS OF ALL THEIR CLOTHES BEFORE DEPARTING.

DEC 14 1941

(ADVANCE)...NEW YORK, DEC 14-(AP)-(WIDE WORLD)-HUNDREDS OF AMERICANS ARE STRANDED IN NUMEROUS CITIES AND VILLAGES IN THE FAR EAST.

EACH OF THEM, WHETHER IN CUSTODY OF THE JAPANESE MILITARY POLICE, OR BARRICADED IN THEIR HOMES, UNABLE TO REACH SAFETY, PROBABLY IS FIGURING HOW SOON THE UNITED STATES NAVY COULD STEAM INTO THE CLOSEST PORT AND SEND MARINES TO RESCUE THEM.

THE "RESCUE" HAS BEEN THE TOPIC OF CONVERSATION IN ALL BARS, CLUBS AND AT PARTIES WHERE FOREIGNERS GATHER IN THE ORIENT SINCE THE JAPANESE ARMY PUSHED INTO MANCHURIA MORE THAN 10 YEARS AGO.

IN SHANGHAI, TIENTSIN, CANTON AND HONGKONG MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN COLONIES HAVE CONSIDERED THE POSSIBILITY OF BEING STRANDED BY A SUDDEN DECLARATION OF WAR BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN.

THEY USUALLY DECIDED IT WOULD BE ONLY A MATTER OF A FEW WEEKS AT THE MOST BEFORE THE AMERICAN NAVY CLEARED THE CHINA WATERS OF JAPANESE WARSHIPS, AND JAPANESE ARMIES, CUT OFF FROM SUPPLIES FROM HOME, WOULD SUCCUMB TO AMERICAN LANDING PARTIES.

JOKINGLY THEY TALKED OF BEING PLACED IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP AND HAVING TO EAT RAW FISH AND UNPOLISHED RICE FOR A FEW WEEKS AND HOW GLAD THEY WOULD BE TO GET ON AN AMERICAN WARSHIP FOR A GOOD MEAL.

OLD "CHINA HANDS" SAW CLEARLY THAT THE WAR WAS COMING. MORE THAN A YEAR AGO THEY SAW JAPAN FACING A CHOICE OF WAR AND FAME--POSSIBLY DOMINATING THE WORLD IN COLLABORATION WITH GERMANY--OR CONCLUDING AN AGREEMENT WITH THE ALLIES AND TAKING A BACK SEAT IN WORLD RECOGNITION.

EXCEPT FOR VERY PROSPEROUS AMERICAN BUSINESSMEN IN SHANGHAI, THE ENTIRE FOREIGN COLONY HOPED FOR A CONFLICT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN, FIGURING THAT UNLESS THE JAPANESE ARMY WERE DESTROYED IT ALWAYS WOULD BE A THREAT TO AMERICAN INTERESTS IN THE FAR EAST. THEY FELT THAT JAPAN MUST BE PUNISHED FOR HER ATTACK ON CHINA.

JAPAN'S CHOICE OF WAR OR COLLABORATION WITH THE ALLIES WAS SEEN APPROACHING NEARLY A YEAR AGO WHEN TRAVELERS REACHING SHANGHAI TOLD OF INCREASING SHORTAGES OF FOOD, FUEL, LABOR AND POWER ON THE JAPANESE ISLANDS.

DEC 14 1941

THEY SAW THE JAPANESE ABANDON ANY SERIOUS ATTEMPT TO REACH CHUNGKING AND DESTROY THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT. THEY SAW JAPANESE ECONOMIC MISSIONS FAIL IN THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES AND OTHER SOUTHERN PACIFIC COUNTRIES. THEY KNEW JAPAN WAS FEELING THE PINCH OF AN AMERICAN EMBARGO.

THE QUESTION WAS HOW LONG JAPAN COULD RATION HER POWER TO FALTERING PLANTS IN NEED OF RAW MATERIALS--AND HOW LONG WOULD THE JAPANESE PUBLIC EAT UNPOLISHED RICE MIXED WITH OTHER GRAINS BEFORE TURNING ON THE GOVERNMENT AND DEMANDING A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

JAPAN, THEY KNEW, HAD TO MOVE IN SOME DIRECTION IN THE NEAR FUTURE BEFORE THE WEIGHT OF HER INVASION OF CHINA ALONE CRUSHED THE NATION. AFTER FOUR YEARS OF WAR IN CHINA IT WAS COSTING THE GOVERNMENT MORE YEN PER DAY TO KEEP GARRISONS ON THE CONTINENT THAN IT WAS MAKING IN PRODUCE AND MATERIALS TAKEN OUT OF OCCUPIED CHINA.

A FEW WEEKS AGO MOST AMERICANS IN CHINA DID NOT EXPECT WAR TO COME WITH A SUDDEN STAB AT THE AMERICAN NAVAL AND MILITARY BASES. SOME EVEN BELIEVED JAPAN WOULD ATTEMPT TO RECUPERATE FINANCIALLY BY TURNING HER COMMERCIAL FLEET OVER TO ALLIED SHIPPING AS SHE DID IN THE LAST WAR FOR A LARGE PROFIT.

DEC 14 1941

OTHERS PREDICTED THAT JAPAN WOULD MAKE A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO PUT ON A SHOW AND GAMBLE ON AN EVENTUAL GERMAN VICTORY OVER BRITAIN AND AMERICA.

IF THE JAPANESE ARMY PERMITTED AN AGREEMENT TO BE MADE WITH THE UNITED STATES IT WOULD LOSE ITS HOLD IN JAPAN AND THE DREAM OF AN EMPIRE WOULD COLLAPSE, THESE OBSERVERS DECLARED.

MOST AMERICANS CAUGHT IN CHINESE CITIES NOW COMPLETELY TAKEN OVER BY THE JAPANESE DID NOT INTEND TO REMAIN IN CHINA IN THE EVENT OF WAR BETWEEN THEIR COUNTRY AND JAPAN.

THEY EXPRESSED THE DESIRE TO QUIT CHINA AT THE LAST MOMENT. MANY AMERICANS IN CHINA ARE ON THE JAPANESE "BLACK LIST" OF PERSONS IN CHINA CONSIDERED UNFRIENDLY TO JAPAN.

HERO MARINES WON'T BUDGE

Repel Two New Bombing Assaults on Isolated Wake Island---Say Damage "Inconsequential"

DEC 15 1941

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—A major Japanese bombing attack on the heroic marine garrison at isolated Wake Island was reported turned back today with destruction of two enemy warplanes by the battling Devil Dogs.

"The marines on Wake Island continue to resist," the navy said in a late afternoon communique.

This announcement followed a War Department statement indicating that the furious Japanese assaults on the Philippines had slackened. Air activity over the Philippines continues, the department said, but ground operations were confined to the Aparri, Legaspi and Vigan areas—well removed from vital centres of defense.

Significantly, the War Department added that the general situation was unchanged. That had been described by an earlier army communique at Manila as "well in hand."

But there was no slackening for the stout-hearted handful of men on Wake Island, tiny outpost on the most direct route from Hawaii to the Philippines. Following up repeated bombardments of recent days, the Japanese made two new bombing attacks, the navy said, and, while the first was light, the second was undertaken in great force, yet it caused only "inconsequential" damage to the island.

(No mention was made of Midway, another besieged U. S. Pacific outpost, which was reported last night to be still flying the Stars and Stripes.)

The navy also reported that enemy submarines were operating in the Hawaiian area but were under vigorous attack.

Apparently, the week of costly Japanese sea and air attacks had failed to make a single serious breach in the valiant defense of the American bastion of the east.

Instead, reports from Manila and Singapore added up to the fact that Japan had paid a heavy toll in ships, planes and men for her attempts to crack that and other strongholds in the ring of Allied defenses, notwithstanding admittedly serious British and American naval losses in initial phases of the conflict last week.

Japanese Missiles Fall Into Harbor in Day Raid on Manila

By The Associated Press.

MANILA, Monday, Dec. 15—United States Army bombers badly damaged two Japanese transports yesterday off Legaspi, on Luzon Island 250 miles southeast of Manila, Army Headquarters announced today.

It was in this area that a Sunday résumé of the first week of the war told of previous unopposed landings by limited numbers of Japanese.

DEC 15 1941

In other areas of the Philippines, today's communiqué said, the situation remained unchanged.

Another announcement said four Japanese fighters were shot down in two aerial attacks on the invaders at Legaspi.

Japanese activity this morning was said to have been limited to sporadic air raids on Luzon.

[Manila had an air-raid alarm at 8:16 A. M. today. No planes appeared, however, and the all-clear signal was given at 9:46 A. M., The United Press reported.]

Sending Out Patrols

The Japanese forces that established a foothold around Vigan were reported sending out patrols today in an apparent effort to widen their holdings in the face of attack by the United States Army bombers that have sunk four Japanese troopships and badly battered three others off Northern Luzon.

Except for the region of Vigan, 200 miles north of Manila on Luzon's west coast, there was only local activity.

The sinking of the transports was announced last night in an Army headquarters communiqué that asserted: "The situation both on the ground and in the air was well in hand as the first week of military operations came to a close."

Eight Transports Said Sunk

The Japanese transports were sunk by American fliers off Northern Luzon, and are in addition to four Japanese transports sunk Friday by Netherland submarines in the Gulf of Siam off Malaya, with the loss of about 4,000 lives. The communiqué did not give the dates of the American action.

The war resume from the office of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in the Far East, said the Japanese transports were attacked north of Luzon in waters through which the Japanese tried at heavy cost to reinforce landing parties near Vigan and Aparri. It was in these waters that Army bombers sank the Japanese battleship Haruna and Navy bombers crippled a second capital ship of the Kongo class.

General MacArthur's report said the Japanese carried out fourteen major air attacks on the Philippines with losses of at least forty planes.

He credited a Philippine Army division with smashing a Japanese landing at Lingayen, 100 miles northeast of Manila, and said bombers had seriously hampered other forces that reached shore "in limited numbers" at Legaspi, 250 miles southeast of Manila; Vigan, 200 miles north of the capital, and Aparri, Luzon's northernmost outpost.

An Army spokesman said the Japanese had been unable to reinforce the landing party at Legaspi and that only local activity, regarded as well in hand, continued at Vigan and Aparri.

Attacks by American planes on the Japanese-seized areas at the far north of the island were said by other sources to be aimed at wiping out an air base the Japanese were trying to establish there.

High-flying Japanese bombers were seen flying southward over Manila shortly before noon yesterday after the quietest night the capital has had since the start of bombing. The few bombs that they dropped fell harmlessly in the harbor. No bombs fell near here during the night and the only alarm was about dawn, lasting fifty-five minutes, when a few planes reported headed for Manila apparently turned back.

The population of the city seemed in better spirits after the uninterrupted night's rest and morale remained high. General MacArthur's communiqué praised the morale of the troops and the population. All newspapers continued publishing daily although with reduced-sized editions. Most newspapermen slept at their offices on 24-hour duty.

[The Philippines go on daylight saving time today, the National Broadcasting Company reported.]

The Japanese radio is keeping up its propaganda effort, broadcasting speeches appealing to the Filipinos to lay down their arms. The broadcasts have been without noticeable effect and so far there has been no attempt by the Manila radio to jam the Japanese short-wave broadcasts.

There has been no food shortage but there has been some difficulty in buying gasoline for civilian purposes. Prices of all commodities generally are rising despite government efforts at control.

In an unceasing drive against fifth columnists customs agents have seized two Japanese whom they said had home-made bombs and dozens of maps.

Cavite Yard Commandant Calls Raid Casualties Few

Rockwell Took Shelter in Ditch With Two Workers

MANILA, Dec. 14 (AP).—Rear Admiral Francis Rockwell, commandant of the Cavite Navy Yard, said today casualties there during a sustained forty-minute Japanese bombing attack on Wednesday were "extremely low." Fire fighting was seriously hampered, he said, because the first bomb struck the Cavite powerhouse.

The commandant took shelter in an air-raid ditch.

"Near me," he said, "were two Filipino yard workers, one of whom was killed and the other injured seriously. Both men were calm and in their assigned place for air raids."

Rockwell, who lost all his personal property in the fire, praised Navy and marine officers and enlisted men stationed at the yard.

"They did their duty in accordance with the best traditions of their services," he said. "Special tribute is due the yard's Filipino workmen and the Navy's insular force. My cook was killed. He had been permitted to go home to evacuate his family, had returned on time and was at his post when he was killed."

Rockwell advised residents of Manila and other places which might be bombed to seek shelter in open ditches during air raids. "Even a hole no more than two by three feet will afford protection against anything but a direct hit," he said.

Siege Is Defied By U. S. Pilots At Hongkong

They Help Fly 275 Out of City; Mme. Sun Yat-sen, H. H. Kung Are Rescued

CHUNGKING, Dec. 14 (AP).—Taking off and landing in the face of possible Japanese air attacks, American and Chinese pilots ferried more than 275 persons out of beleagured Hongkong during the first two nights of the Japanese siege. The news was withheld from publication until today, in order to safeguard all concerned in the operation.

The pilots, employed by the China National Aviation Corporation, which is operated jointly by the Chinese government and Pan American Airways, made sixteen flights out of Hongkong, landing most of their passengers at a point about two hundred miles inland from the British Crown Colony. Some planes flew all the way to Chungking.

Among those rescued were Madam Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic; H. H. Kung, Chinese Finance Minister; American and British members of the Chinese currency stabilization board and C. P. Chen, head of the board, and the staff and families of the China National Aviation Corporation with the exception of Schafer Paas, district traffic agent, who volunteered to supervise arrangements at the Hongkong end.

The pilots also managed to save five of the seven C. N. A. C. planes which were at the Hongkong airdrome when war broke out. One of these, forced down at an inland airfield by engine trouble on Wednesday, was machine-gunned and destroyed by Japanese planes.

The rescued passengers hailed the shuttle service as the most perilous bit of work in the history of commercial aviation.

The crew of Pan American Airways' Hongkong clipper, which Japanese airplane bombs destroyed last Monday, were rescued. With their captain, Fred S. Ralph, they are now at Chungking.

Eight American pilots took part in the rescue, as well as two Chinese. The Americans were Charles L. Sharp, C. N. A. C. operations manager, from Fort Worth, Tex.; chief pilot Hugh L. Woods, Winfield, Kan.; Harold A. Sweet, South Pasadena, Calif.; William McDonald, Birmingham, Ala.; Frank L. Higgs, Columbus, Ohio; Robert S. Angle, from California; P. W. Kessler, Chicago, and S. E. Scott, Waco, Tex.

At least three of them—Sharp, Sweet and Woods—went without sleep for fifty to sixty hours, while McDonald joined in the rescue work after making a regular flight from Rangoon to Chungking. From here he rushed to Hongkong.

No casualties were reported among the pilots or their passengers, who included more than thirty Americans, among them four women.

British Engage Malaya Enemy In Major Battle

Australian Flyers Helping to Meet Japanese Drive in North Border Jungle

SINGAPORE, Dec. 14 (AP).—British and Australian air forces, credited with smashing Japanese landing attempts on the east coast of Malaya, were reported tonight to have been hurled against Japanese tanks and armored cars in an attempt to stem the drive southward from Thailand on both sides of the Malay Peninsula.

A major battle apparently was shaping up along the jungle frontier. A terse British communique reported sharp fighting in Kedah Province, which is in northwestern Malaya, and in the Kelantan area, in the northeast.

"On both fronts," the war bulletin declared, "fighter aircraft are supporting our troops."

[At London, an authoritative British source said Japanese troops also had struck across Thailand into southern British Burma, near Point Victoria. The British Broadcasting Corporation, quoting dispatches from the Malaya front, said the frontier defense line was held by English, Scottish and Indian troops. The broadcast said they held positions north of Alor Star, less than twenty miles inside Malaya at the northwest, and that some of the fighting was taking place north of the frontier, in Thai territory.

Air Action Holds Foe

[The British radio, in a report heard at New York Sunday by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said that, according to a news agency correspondent, intensified air action by the Allies was preventing the Japanese from reinforcing their units on the east coast of Malaya and that, as a consequence, the Japanese were concentrating their driving power on the opposite side of the peninsula.]

Singapore had another air-raid alarm today, but no bombing was reported.

British fighter planes were said to have beaten off Japanese bombers which tried three times to continue last week's raids on the west coast part of Penang.

Japan Attacks Hongkong by Land and Air

Starts Violent Offensive After British Defenders Turn Down Ultimatum

Churchill Message Spurs Resistance

Chinese, Pressing Drive to Help Allies, Reported 8 Miles From Frontier

TOKIO, Dec. 14 (Official radio received by Associated Press).—Japanese forces opened a general land and air offensive against Hongkong at dawn today in an all-out effort to seize the British crown colony following its rejection of an ultimatum demanding surrender, it was announced by radio.

Churchill Rallies Garrison

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—The British garrison's fight to save Hongkong was watched closely here tonight as observers weighed Tokio reports of a strong offensive against the colony and Chungking accounts of a strong drive toward Canton to ease the pressure on the British.

Japanese claims of having captured Kowloon, the mainland section of the Hongkong colony, were without confirmation in official quarters here. It was said, however, that Hongkong was well guarded and its capture would prove a hard assignment.

Prime Minister Churchill sent the following message to Hongkong's defenders:

"We are all watching day by day and hour by hour your stubborn defense of the port and fortress of Hongkong. You guard a link long famous in world civilization between the Far East and Europe.

"We are sure that the defense of Hongkong against barbarous and unprovoked attack will add a glorious page to British annals. All our hearts are with you in your ordeal. Every day of your resistance brings nearer our certain victory."

Chinese Increase Pressure

CHUNGKING, Dec. 14 (AP).—Chinese troops are pressing their attacks on the flank and rear of Japanese forces threatening Hongkong, with fighting going on at Tamshui and Pingshan dispatches said today. Pingshan is about eight miles north of the mainland frontier of the crown colony and about thirteen miles west of the Canton-Kowloon railway. Tamshui is a few miles northwest of Pingshan.

Last-Ditch Stand Of 13 At Malayan Field Bared

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—The heroic rear-guard fight of twenty Indian soldiers and a British lieutenant who fought off an attack of greatly superior Japanese land forces and air attacks at Kota Bharu, in Malaya, and are now believed to have been lost in the last-ditch stand, was reported today in British dispatches from Singapore.

The story had its beginning last Monday at 1 A. M., when the first Japanese troops landed at Kota Bharu, an airdrome just south of the Thailand border. These troops were repulsed, but that afternoon an additional force arrived supported by aircraft, which for several hours strafed the British defenses with machine-gun fire, dropped bombs and threw hand grenades.

Equipment Destroyed

Late in the afternoon the position became untenable. Buildings and whatever equipment might be useful to the Japanese were destroyed before the withdrawal, and the young officer, identified only as Lieutenant Close, was left behind with the dozen Indians.

Fighting under pressure both on land and from the air, and with everything about them burning, these thirteen men were said to have kept the Japanese at bay long enough for all the remaining defenders to reach the main body of British troops.

Nothing has been heard since from Lieutenant or any of his men, the dispatches concluded, and it is feared none of them got away.

Native Quarters at Surabaya Naval Base Evacuated as Precautionary Step

30.24 — 13545

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 14 (Netherlands Indies News Agency)—Two more Japanese ships were sunk today off the east coast of Malaya by submarines of the Royal Netherlands Navy, a communiqué of the Navy Commander in Chief announced today.

A joint communiqué of the Army, Navy and Air Force declared that "some war actions of minor importance have taken place within the territories of the Netherlands Indies yesterday," adding that enemy planes were observed at certain points over the archipelago.

DEC 15 1941

The joint communiqué of the armed forces confirmed yesterday's report that Netherland submarines sank four Japanese troop ships off the east coast of Thailand with the loss of 4,000 lives on the part of the enemy. The communiqué added:

"Netherlands Indies Air Force units have participated very actively in the defense of Malaya. Australian planes further reinforced the Netherlands Indies Air Force. Netherlands Indies troops took part in the internment of Japanese settlers on the east coast of Borneo. These actions took place on the east coast of British North Borneo at the request of the British Allies."

It was previously reported that Netherland troops had rounded up a Japanese settlement on the east coast of Borneo, interned the settlers, captured a number of motor launches and destroyed several other vessels.

Pilots of the Netherlands Indies Air Force who are now fighting with the British on the Malaya peninsula learned the air routes involved by accompanying Royal Netherland Air Line planes on their runs from the Indies to Malaya, Thailand and British India, it was learned today.

The Netherlands Indies Air Lines have discontinued scheduled runs to Singapore, Bangkok and Lydda, Palestine, but they maintain scheduled flights between Sumatra and Burma.

Batavia's sixth air raid alarm of the war sounded this evening, but persons in the theatres did not leave. As an added precaution the Commander in Chief of the Army decreed today that all radio stations must go off the air during air-raid alarms between 6 A. M. and 6 P. M. because it is feared that the radio beams may direct enemy planes to their objectives.

Evacuation of the native quarters at the naval base at Surabaya was announced by the authorities today. Plans for the evacuation, in order to relieve the crowded conditions of this strategic Java town, were completed long before the war. The authorities emphasized that the evacuation is merely a precautionary measure.

Although no bombs were dropped on Nethelands Indies territory so far, according to an official communiqué, enemy aircraft have been reported sighted over the archipelago.

Enemy Over New Guinea

MELBOURNE, Dec. 15 (Monday) (AP)—The Royal Australian Air Force reported in a communique today that Japanese planes have been sighted over New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelego, but disappeared before battle could be joined.

New Guinea is a few hundred miles off the northern tip of Australia and the Bismarck Archipelego lies to the west of New Guinea.

Australia continued hastily calling-up of all available men to the armed services.

Mobilization of the Australian militia began today and tens of thousands of men between 18 and 35 will be in camp or disposed to vital defense areas by Wednesday night.

The training of Australia's second-line army will begin within three weeks, to include men between 18 and 35 with children.

Tokio Reports 12 "Enemy" Planes Veered Off Near Takao

TOKIO, Dec. 14 (Official radio received by A. P.)—Formosa, Japan's island base off the Chinese coast, had its first air-raid scare of the war last night when army headquarters reported that twelve "enemy" planes were sighted off Tokio, 450 miles north of Manila as a bomber flies.

The Japanese high command said that planes veered off without making an attack.

Thai Cabinet Change Predicted In Toyko

New Alliance Of That Country With Japan Cited In Dispatch

Tokyo, Dec. 1: (Official Radio Received by A.P.)—The newspaper Hochi, in a dispatch from Bangkok, declared today that a reshuffle of the Thai Cabinet would be a "natural sequel" to the new alliance between Japan and Thailand.

Heretofore, Hochi said, Thailand's leaders in the main have been men who were educated in the United States or Britain.

The paper declared, however, that a change in that situation now could be expected.

DEC 15 1941

Japanese Report All-Out Land And Air Offensive Aimed To Capture Hongkong

[By the Associated Press]

DEC 15 1941

Tokyo, Dec. 14—(Official radio received by A. P.) — The Japanese opened a general land-and-air offensive against Hongkong at dawn today in an all-out effort to take the British crown colony after rejection of an ultimatum for surrender, it was announced by radio.

At the same time Japanese headquarters declared that an entire British mechanized division had been destroyed in a Japanese advance over the Malayan frontier toward Singapore. The Japanese press claimed twenty-one American and British naval vessels had been sunk or put out of commission in the week-old war of the Pacific.

A headquarters communique said the latest naval damage inflicted upon American forces included the sinking of a submarine by a Japanese destroyer off the Philippines yesterday.

20 Tanks Claimed

Destruction of the British mechanized division was said by headquarters to have occurred Friday. Twenty tanks and sixty trucks were captured in the advance, the Japanese said.

Navy planes which attacked Nichols airport at Manila Saturday shot down a United States interceptor and destroyed forty-three planes on the ground, including nine of the "largest type," the communique said. Two of Japan's planes were missing from the raid, it was declared.

Mass air raids also were made on Mergui and Victoria airdromes in British Burma by army planes and two transports were sunk in an attack on Penang island off the west coast of Malaya, said the communique. Kuantan airdrome on the east coast of Malaya also was raided.

Heavy Damage Reported

Considerable damage was done in Burma and Malaya raids, the Japanese said. Four small fighting planes were set ablaze on the ground and troop concentrations punished at Penang and Victoria despite intense anti-aircraft fire. Airport facilities were smashed and fuel tanks blasted at Mergui, and at least one large bomber wrecked at Kuantan, all at the expense of three Japanese planes.

Nichi Nichi estimated that the twenty-one American and British naval vessels sunk or put out of commission totaled 350,000 tons—270,000 tons from the American navy and 80,000 from the British fleet.

The newspaper Kokumin placed United States naval losses at eight warships destroyed and sixteen damaged, and British losses at six sunk and seven damaged.

225 Ships Seized

The paper estimated that the Japanese navy had seized 225 British and American merchant vessels and also a gunboat, and declared the two countries had lost 364 military and naval aircraft in the war so far.

From Shanghai it was reported that the United States gunboat Wake captured there had been renamed the Tar and put into Japanese service.

Meanwhile, on the political and domestic front, the newspaper Hochi reported from Bangkok, capital of subdued Thailand, that a reshuffle of the Thai Cabinet would be a "natural sequel" to the newly completed Japanese-Thailand alliance

The newspaper gave as the reason the fact that many of Thailand's present leaders were educated in England or America.

[A Thailand communique last Monday said the Bangkok Government had received promises Japan would respect Thailand's sovereignty.]

Dispatches from Thailand quoted Premier Luang Sipul Songgram as saying Bangkok's diplomatic relations with Britain and the United States were automatically broken by conclusion of the "defensive and offensive accord" with Japan.

Japanese Diet To Meet Today

TOKYO, Dec. 14 (Official Radio Received by AP)—The Japanese Diet prepared today to convene Monday in a special session for the second time in a month.

The cabinet approved an extraordinary military budget bill of 2,800,000,000 yen ($644,000,000 at prefreezing rate of exchange) to be submitted to the Diet.

DEC 15 1941

The Government decided to apply more stringent control to the stock exchange to prevent fluctuations.

Domei said the Government was encouraging the people to carry on normally, and that movies, plays, football and skiing events will continue as scheduled.

From Shanghai Domei news agency reported that Kokichi Kishimoto, Japanese inspector general of Chinese maritime customs who replaced the Englishman, Sir Frederick Maze, last Wednesday, had discharged 116 British and American officials in the service.

Japanese Get Last Look At U. S.-Style Football

TOKYO (Received by AP)—The Japanese sports public took probably its last look this year at the American type of football today when a postseason doubleheader was played at Korakuen Stadium.

In a regulation 11-men game the "Whites" beat the "Reds," 12-7, while in a six-man game the Kwanto "Old Boys" held the youthful Mizuho Gakuen team to a 7-7 tie.

Although the sport originated in a country with which they now are at war, a sizable crowd of Japanese cheered enthusiastically.

The President, after putting in a busy day at work in his study on problems posed by the war, was said by White House attaches to have retired around 10 P. M. They added that Knox's report was reserved for tomorrow. Meanwhile Knox was not available to interviewers.

Official Announcement

The Navy Department announced the Secretary's return with the following statement:

"Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox returned Sunday evening to Washington, D. C.

"The Secretary arrived shortly after 9 P. M.

"No statement will be made."

Mr. Roosevelt conferred during the day with Secretary of War Stimson and James V. Forrestal, acting Navy Secretary in Knox's absence, and worked on the speech he will deliver tomorrow night in connection with the anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

New Report Expected

In Congress there was general expectation that the Chief Executive would make some further statement on what had happened at Pearl Harbor once he has had time to analyze the Navy Secretary's report. Mr. Roosevelt promised in his fireside chat last week that the public would be given as full information about military developments as was consistent with safety.

Congress, having recovered from the shock of the first bad news from Hawaii, indicated little disposition to be critical now of the army and navy high command in the Pacific.

On that point, Senator Norris (Ind. Neb.) said neither the public nor Congress should try to direct the war.

"It's silly for the Senate or House to try and run the army and navy," Norris told reporters. "I think what happened at Pearl Harbor was the most humiliating thing in our naval history, but it sometimes takes a jolt on the chin to jar us into a fighting mood."

DEC 15 1941

Norris said he hoped experts were wrong in forecasting a lengthy war with the Axis powers, adding that his opinion was more optimistic.

"We apparently were sound asleep at Pearl Harbor, but I know we're awake now," he said. "This may not be as long a pull as some people say."

The White House said President Roosevelt probably would send Congress tomorrow a chronology of Japanese-American relations giving full details of the events leading up to the war.

Mr. Roosevelt also is expected to send to the Capitol this week a report on lease-lend operations. It was indicated this would go up Tuesday.

Knox Returns From Hawaii; Reports To Roosevelt Today

Navy Secretary Ends Flight To Secure First-Hand Details Of Pearl Harbor Attack

Washington, Dec. 14—Secretary of the Navy Knox returned tonight from a flying inspection trip to Hawaii with a first-hand report for President Roosevelt on the damage done by Japan's surprise attack just one week ago.

TRIO ON MIDWAY ISLAND CABLE THEY ARE SAFE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14 (AP)—Three relatives of men stationed at Midway Island recevied cablegrams today telling them all was well with the senders on that embattled American outpost in the Pacific.

Most of the messages were delivered to addresses here about 1 a. m. (P.S.T.) and evidently had been cleared through the Midway cable office only an hour or two before.

Mrs. J. Harold Leonberger, San Francisco, heard from her husband, who went to Midway last July 23 to work for Pan American.

Another Pan American employe at Midway, Fred E. Canham, 21, cabled his mother, Mrs. Pansy Canham of Oakland, there was "no damage to Pan American equipment or personnel."

"All okay. Don't worry," was cabled by Alan A. Lindsay, junior airport manager at Midway, to Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Lindsay, his parents, in San Francisco.

Manila Red Cross Asks Funds To Feed Refugees

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Philippine Red Cross reported to headquarters here today that evacuation of Manila and other areas in the island war zone was proceeding, but that feeding of refugees was becoming a major problem.

A cable from Charles Foster, manager of the Philippine Red Cross, to Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American organization, said the Red Cross there was using all resources available and needed a "substantial appropriation soon." Davis replied that all possible assistance would be given. The national Red Cross has inaugurated a campaign to raise a $50,000,000 war relief fund.

Foster reported that "our emergency services have stood the test, our staff is showing discipline, loyalty and courage."

He also said that a shipment of 1,200 tons of cracked wheat, en route to China, has been diverted to the Philippines and, with the cooperation of the army, was being used to meet some of the food problems.

His organization has ten fifty-bed first-aid stations in operation, three in Manila.

SEARCHLIGHTS GLOW IN SKY, SOME REPORT

Flares In Other Coast Areas Laid To Operations Of Enemy

San Diego Undergoes Raid Alarm But No Planes Are Sighted

[By the Associated Press]

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 —An unexploded three-inch anti-aircraft projectile, weighing fifteen pounds and measuring a foot in length, fell in the residential section last midnight and was turned over today to Fort MacArthur military authorities, who made no comment.

Albert Koons, in whose yard the missile fell, said it landed about the same time police stations in suburban Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank received numerous reports of two mysterious explosions. A guard at the Elysian Park Police Station said they sounded like anti-aircraft fire.

Dull Flash Reported

Koons said he also noticed five searchlights stabbing the sky and saw a dull red flash.

The army's Fourth Interceptor Command stated no enemy planes had been reported.

Police Chief D. L. Evans, of Redondo Beach, said a soldier, whom he did not name, had been turned over to military officers after the fatal shooting of Mrs. Adele Brandel, 52, socially prominent.

Evans said reports indicated that four soldiers were halting motorists near the municipal airport last night and ordering them to remove blue coverings from headlights and that Dr. Harry M. Brandel failed to stop and one of the soldiers fired on his car. His wife was wounded fatally.

Thought They Sought Ride

Dr. Brandel said they noticed two armed soldiers stopping cars, but he thought they were trying to get a ride and drove on, since he had no room in the coupe.

Some motorists have placed blue transparent coverings over their headlights in the belief that it would permit them to drive during blackouts.

The doctor quoted one of the sentries afterward as saying he aimed at the right rear tire and that the copper-jacketed bullet, which struck near the right taillight, must have ricocheted, penetrating Mrs. Brandel's lung.

Blackout In San Diego, Radio Stations Off Air

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 14 (AP)—Blackout of San Diego was ordered at 6.44 P. M. tonight by the Fourth Interceptor Command but it was lifted almost immediately.

All San Diego radio stations went off the air simultaneously. They resumed operation several minutes later.

The army gave no explanation.

Flares Seen In Frisco Feared Of Enemy Origin

San Francisco, Dec. 14 (AP)—The army issued a statement today that "flares were seen in the sky, apparently dropped by enemy aircraft," during the long blackout Friday night.

"The San Francisco bay region's longest blackout of the war, lasting 2 hours and 38 minutes on Friday night, was caused by verified reports of unidentified airplanes flying over the area," said the statement, issued by Major Charles H. Titus, public relations officer of the Western defense command.

"Lieut. Gen. J. L. DeWitt, Western defense commander, reiterated that no test blackouts had been, or would be, ordered in this area, and said emphatically that every blackout in San Francisco has been genuine, based on official military information indicating a definite danger of air attack by planes in the immediate vicinity."

JAPAN NEWS AGENCY WRITER SCORES ATTACK

DEC 15 1941

Clarke Kawakami Resigns From Domei—To Join U. S. Army

Denounces Pacific War As "Blackest Page" In Tokyo History

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 14—Clarke H. Kawakami, for seven years a correspondent for Domei, the official Japanese news agency, today denounced Japan's attack on the United States as "the blackest and most shameful page in Japanese history."

Kawakami, an American citizen, born in the United States and educated at Harvard University, resigned as Domei's correspondent when he received news of the Japanese attack on Hawaii.

Today he informed newspaper colleagues in a letter that he planned to enlist in the American army to do his bit toward "crushing forever" the type of "militarist rule which drugs and drags peaceful people into war, wherever it exists." This letter was made public by the State Department.

Father Is Writer

His father, K. K. Kawakami, a Japanese subject, has resided in the United States for forty years, writing for Japanese and American newspapers and magazines, and is the author of several books. Kawakami, Sr., was taken into custody for questioning and is under detention by the Immigration Service at Gloucester City, N. J. Mrs. Kawakami is an American.

The text of Kawakami's letter follows:

DEC 15 1941

"I want to thank you and the others of my friends in State Department pressroom, who were so kind as to call me up and express their sympathy, from the very bottom of my heart. The terrible suddenness of events gave me no opportunity to bid you all farewell and to tell you how much I have appreciated working with you all in friendship during the past many months. I want to do that now.

Shocked By Attack

"I cannot tell you how deeply I was shocked by Japan's action. As you know, my father spent the best part of his life working for peace between Japan and this country, and in my seven years' work for Domei, I have constantly tried to do the same. It is the deepest and most painful disappointment to us now to realize that all our efforts have been in vain.

"Until the last we thought and hoped that something might still be done to avert a conflict. Now, however, it seems clear that throughout the last two months, since Tojo became Premier, Japan's mind was already made up for war, and that she kept up the pretense of negotiating with this country only in order to gain time for the completion of her war preparations.

"That shameful double-dealing, coupled with the equally shameful manner in which she launched her attacks on Sunday, without warning, indicates how completely the militarists in Tokyo have gone over to the methods of Hitler and the Nazis. Not only I but my father, too, feel that these acts constitute the blackest and most shameful page in Japanese history.

Shame In Japan

"I have, in Japan, many good friends who must feel deeply and honestly ashamed of what their Government has done, and who would feel even more ashamed if they had been allowed to know all the facts. I can say that we, who represented Domei here in Washington, alway did our best to report the facts fully and truthfully, but in recent months I know that very little of what we reported ever came to the knowledge of the Japanese public.

"It makes me sad to think that these good Japanese friends of mine, who did not want war, will have to suffer and die in the struggle equally with those who have swallowed the murderous philosophy of Naziism and therefore welcome war with this country.

"Yet, for the sake of future Japanese generations, as well as for the sake of peoples everywhere, it is necessary that this type of militarist rule, which drugs and drags peaceful people into war, be crushed forever, wherever it exists.

DEC 15 1941

Sad Paradox

"It is a sad paradox that this can only be accomplished by using the same bloody methods as those we are fighting against, but in the end if we do not let the use of these methods warp our minds into forgetting the principles and ideals for which we fought, we shall have an opportunity to build a better world for the future—better for the peoples of both victors and vanquished.

"Knowing my background and education, you can understand why I could never subscribe to that sort of blind patriotism which says, 'my country, right or wrong.' That is the kind of patriotism, it seems to me, that one would expect from Germans, Japanese or some other regimented people. But because, in this war, I feel that America is so clearly in the right I hope that I shall be allowed to give my services in whatever capacity I may be acceptable.

Intends To Enlist

"As soon as my father, who is now being held at Gloucester City, N. J., is allowed to return home to the family, and as soon as I can straighten out my own financial affairs and the status of my wife, I plan to enlist in the army. Perhaps they will suspect me of being a fifth-columnist, but I hope—if need be, with the assistance of you and my other friends in the pressroom of the State Department—to convince them of my sincerity.

"Well, that's all I have to say, except to ask you to remember me to the people in C. I. (the State Department's division of current information) and to my friends down in the pressroom.

"I hope I shall have a chance to see you all again soon, but in the meanwhile let me join you in wishing most sincerely for victory and for peace when victory is won!

"Yours sincerely, "CLARKE."

TURKEY CONTINUES NEUTRALITY POLICY

Stand Stated in Note to U. S. —Anti-Axis Diplomatic Victory Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Turkey today notified the United States she would remain neutral in the "new conflict which has just broken out."

Turkey's stand was stated in the following note presented to the State Department today by the Turkish Ambassador, M. M. Ertegun:

"I have the honor to inform your excellency that in a telegram dated Ankara, Dec. 10, 1941, but received in Washington only this morning, I am directed by my government to notify the Government of the United States of America that the Government of the Republic has decided to extend the neutrality of Turkey to the new conflict which has just broken out.

"Please accept, Mr. Secretary of State, the assurance of my highest consideration."

Turkey has remained neutral in the European war despite diplomatic efforts by Germany and Britain to secure her as an active ally.

Great Britain in October, 1939, extended credits of £40,000,000 to the Turkish Government to stabilize Turkish currency and to provide approximately $100,000,000 for the mechanization and modernization of the Turkish Army and the strengthening of fortifications in the Dardenelles, the strategic strait between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

DEC 15 1941

Lend-Lease Aid to Turkey

The United States only recently revealed that lend-lease aid had been extended to Turkey, through the British, since May, to enable the British Government to make good its commitments under the Anglo-Turkish pact.

The Anglo-Turkish pact provided also that Turkey, in return for the assistance from Great Britain, would maintain a benevolent neutrality toward Britain, and would not permit the Germans or any other military force to utilize Turkish territory against Britain or permit the passage of troops or military equipment through Turkish territory in what might be hostile acts against Britain.

The declaration of Turkey's neutrality was interpreted here, in the light of those facts, as meaning that the delivery of United States supplies to Britain for final delivery to the Turks had made it possible for the Turkish Government to maintain its neutral stand and not be forced to join the Axis under threat of invasion by the Nazis.

For that reason, Turkey's declaration of neutrality was considered in some quarters a diplomatic victory for the nations opposed to Axis aggression.

The State Department announced today it has received formal notification from the legation in Bucharest that Rumania had declared a state of war with the United States.

The Rumanian Foreign Office, the department said, delivered the following note to the legation Friday:

"The Royal Rumanian Government has the honor to communicate to the Government of the United States of America that, in conformity with the dispositions of the Tripartite Pact and respecting the obligations of solidarity contained in this pact, as a result of the state of war which has arisen between the United States of America on the one hand and the German Reich, Italy and Japan, on the other, Rumania herself is in a state of war with the United States of America."

Rumania And Croatia Declare War On U. S.

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP) — The State Department announced today it has received formal notification from the legation in Bucharest that Rumania had declared a state of war with the United States.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—A German-language broadcast from Berlin said today that "Croatia also declared that she considers herself in a state of war" with the United States. The broadcast was heard by CBS.

CROAT WAR DECLARATION CALLED 'QUISLINGS' ACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP) — Dr. Ivan Subasic, exiled governor of Croatia, declared tonight that the declaration of war by the so-called Independent State of Croatia on the Axis side against the Allies was "the act of Quislings who do not represent the true feelings of the Croatian nation."

"It was not sufficient to have Hitler and Mussolini overrun Yugoslavia, but they are imposing on small nations of the south Slavs every day new injustices and new insults," he said.

"Yugoslavia has been divided and wiped off the map of Europe for the time being.

BULGARIANS UNHAPPY OVER WAR, EARLE SAYS

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 13 (Delayed) (AP)—George H. Earle III, United States minister to Bulgaria, said in a telephone conversation from his home in Sofia today that "no one here seems very happy" about Bulgaria's declaration of war on the United States.

"This was none of Bulgaria's doing," he added. "It is just the influence of a gangster playing with a little nation."

Bulgaria's declaration was not popular either with the people or government officials, he declared.

Earle said the declaration was delivered to him this morning immediately after Premier Bogdan Philov had made the announcement in the Bulgarian parliament.

Eire To Stay Neutral

DEC 15 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Cork, Eire, Dec. 14—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera declared today that "it would be unnatural if we did not sympathize in a special manner" with the United States now that she is involved in the war, but he added his country can only be a "friendly neutral."

"The question of how America's entry into the war will affect our state policy here we have answered in advance. The policy of this state remains unchanged," said de Valera in a speech at a parade of defense forces.

"Incompleteness of our national freedom," the Prime Minister explained, made neutrality the only possible policy for Eire. "Any other policy would have divided our people and for a divided people to enter this war should have been to commit suicide."

He said involvement of the United States in the war "brought anxiety and sorrow to every part of Eire. There scarcely is a family here which has not a member or near relation in that country. In addition to the ties of blood there has been between the nations a long association of friendship and regard."

Commons To Discuss Allied Supreme Council

Proposal Viewed In London As Matter For Urgent Debate At Next Session

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—Early formation of a supreme war council of the nations ranged against the Axis now is regarded as a matter for urgent debate at the next meeting of the House of Commons.

Parliamentary observers say that the growing enthusiasm of members of Parliament for such a council will assure that the matter will be put at the top of the agenda for an impending war debate.

Many M. P.'s say that a council representing the United States, Britain and the dominions, China, Russia and the Netherlands Empire is essential to war strategy. The studied, favorable comment on the proposal by the diplomatic correspondents of the Sunday newspapers showed such unanimity as to suggest inspiration from high places.

German Retreat Nears Napoleonic Scale, Reds Claim

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—The British radio broadcast a Moscow announcement tonight saying the entire line of communications between Moscow and Leningrad soon would be reestablished by advancing Red forces, indicating the siege of Leningrad might thereby be lifted.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Correspondent

Moscow, Monday, Dec. 15—The Red army declared today it had the Germans on the run in a retreat from Moscow approaching the scale of Napoleon's and had overtaken the Hitler legions with a campaign of extermination.

DEC 15 1941

The official Communist organ Pravda claimed the Russian armies already have destroyed an "entire generation of Nazis."

From one end of the broad, snow-crusted front to the other the Russians reported success after success: The threat to Moscow eliminated by the rout of the Nazis in the greatest debacle yet to befall Hitler, his efforts to encircle Leningrad smashed, his hopes of getting at Caucasia's rich oil fields thwarted.

Nazi Losses Put At 6,000,000

Since the start of the German invasion last June 2, the Russians reported, Hitler has lost 6,000,000 men, more than 15,000 tanks, 13,000 planes and 19,000 cannons.

Pravda attributed the German failure to encircle Moscow to insufficient forces and miscalculation of Russian strength.

The extent of the danger which hung over Moscow at the height of the Nazi campaign was disclosed today by Lieut. Gen. Leonid Govorov, Soviet commander in the sector to the southwest.

From December 1 to 4, Govorov said, in a Pravda interview, the Germans attacked the Minsk-Moscow highway threatening Golitzi, little more than twenty miles west and almost within artillery range of the capital.

Wall Of Fire Stops Nazis

A wall of fire from a long pile of straw and dry sticks, a third of a mile wide, sent flames skyward and blocked a German tank advance in this sector, he disclosed.

Then the tables turned with Red army counter-attacks which threw the Germans behind the Nara and Moscow rivers. Other counter-attacks at the same time along the arc about Moscow sent the Germans reeling in retreat which at some points turned into disordered flight.

Confusion in the Nazi ranks spread, Govorov continued, when Soviet infantry, cavalry, artillery and planes saw their chance and threw everything they had at the Germans.

Supreme Victory Urged

Coupled with the official announcement that the Nazis were being blasted back from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the army organ, Red Star, exhorted Soviet forces to a supreme victory effort with the declaration:

"It is necessary to finish the enemy and administer such a blow that he will never be able to rise again. Complete extermination of Hitler's hordes, complete extermination of every German occupant to the last man is our objective."

DEC 15 1941

Towns Recaptured

A broadcast war bulletin of the official information bureau declared the Red army had recaptured the railway station of Uzlovaya, forty miles southeast of Tula, Dubna to the west of Tula, and Verkhove, northeast of Livny, in day-long battling which raged on all fronts.

Uzlovaya and Dubna are in the sector about 100 miles south of Moscow, and Verkhove is in the Orel sector about 200 miles south of the capital, where other Soviet broadcasts declared 400 villages and towns have been taken in the Red army's sweep. Capture of Verkhove followed the announcement Saturday that the Germans had been driven out of Livny.

Black Sea Fleet Active

In addition, the Russians' Black Sea fleet was reported vigorously in action. The communique said a naval unit had sunk a huge 25,000-ton Nazi transport.

On the southern flank the Sea of Azov port of Taganrog, forty miles west of Rostov, was said to be completely surrounded by Red army forces.

In a single sector of the Moscow front, the Soviet Information Bureau claimed, the Red army destroyed twenty-four tanks, sixteen guns, seven trench mortars, fifty-four motorcycles, nine armored cars and a quantity of ammuntion.

The bureau's bulletin added that troops defending besieged Leningrad in the north had killed 400 Nazis in driving them out of a fortified position identified officially only as "N."

Drive Strongest In South

The Red army assault, which the official radio said is "giving the Germans no respite by day or night," appeared to be strongest on the southern flank. Nazi forces seeking to establish a new line along the Mius river after falling back from Rostov lost more than 200 trucks, 7 tanks and 11 guns in a Russian air attack, according to a broadcast communique.

Six German planes were shot down and about 1,000 German troops killed in these operations, the communique reported.

In the central sector before Moscow Soviet guerrilla bands were said to be contributing to the Russian successes through operations behind the German lines. One detachment was reported to have wrecked Nazi communications and destroyed supply trucks.

[Russian and German troops in the Moscow sector are fighting in temperature 56 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, according to a Vichy radio broadcast heard in New York. The broadcast said the information was received in a telegram from Berlin.]

MOSCOW INTACT AS NAZIS RETREAT

DEC 15 1941

American and British News Fly Back to Red Capital; Find Little Changed in City

(Henry C. Cassidy, chief of the Associated Press bureau in Moscow, returned to the Russian capital Saturday from Kuibyshev, alternate capital, after an absence of almost two months. Here is his first-hand account of how Moscow stood up under the German pressure and how the Russians came through the siege.)

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Correspondent

MOSCOW, Dec. 13 (Delayed)—Victorious in battle, Moscow stands today somewhat scarred but generally intact after its struggle for existence against the German offensive which the Russians report has turned into a rout.

The Russians declare that the Germans are in full retreat on all sectors of the Moscow front like their Napoleonic predecessors, but without having entered the capital.

With other American and British correspondents, I flew from Kuibyshev to Moscow.

City Little Changed

We found the city surprisingly little changed by the ordeal. Tension was relaxed and the atmosphere of confidence here is growing since last night's official announcement that the offensive which the Germans launched Nov. 16 has been turned into a wild retreat by the Russian counter-offensive.

The Reds hailed the battle of Moscow as the greatest ever fought and the Russian victory the greatest since the war began for the Soviets almost six months ago.

The Byzantine turrets of the Kremlin and the modern structures of Gorky Street stand unscathed. The Bolshoi Theatre and Moscow University suffered heavily from German raids but are still standing.

Buses, Trolleys Operating

Subways, street cars, and buses are still operating; the lights, water, gas, and other public services continue to function, and stores are doing a flourishing business.

We left Kuibyshev on a bright, crisp winter morning, taking off on a runway packed with ice and snow.

Our plane, a twin-engined Soviet troops carrier, skimmed over treetops and roof-tops and we flew for five hours over vast, snowy expanses of Russian hinterland untouched by the Germans.

Nearing the front, we encountered a snowstorm which reduced visibility almost to zero.

Watch For Raiders

While one member of the crew kept watch for enemy aircraft at his gunpost on the roof, the pilot brought the plane over Moscow and landed easily at its busy airport.

Driving through the streets, we saw many pedestrians, although the population of the capital is estimated now at less than one-quarter of its normal 4,000,000.

A skeleton staff headed by Second Secretary Llewellyn Thompson of Colorado remained at the U. E. embassy in Moscow when Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and others in the diplomatic corps left for Kuibyshev.

They said the situation had become easier since Dec. 8 soon after the start of the Russian counter-offensive.

There have been few bombings recently, perhaps because of the bad weather. However, the Germans tried to raid the city last night.

Moscow-Leningrad Line May Be Reopened

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British radio broadcast a Moscow announcement tonight saying the entire line of communications between Moscow and Leningrad soon would be re-established by advancing Red forces, indicating the siege of Leningrad might thereby be lifted.

The British radio also reported the Russians have driven the Germans from three more key points on the railroad linking Moscow with the Caucasus.

A Hungarian motorized brigade "from the central sector of the Russian front has returned to Hungary," the British radio said, quoting an official Italian news agency dispatch.

Nazis Admit They Are on Defensive

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (Official radio received by AP) — German activity against the Russians was restricted almost entirely to "defense against local enemy attacks," the German high command reported today.

Shells from German artillery screamed into shipping at the far-separated Russian harbors of Leningrad and Sevastopol, however, and the German air force was declared to have inflicted heavy damage in attacks on moving transport columns and troop barracks.

(The Berlin radio was heard in London to describe the German artillery activity at the Crimean naval base of Sevastopol as an effort to break up a heavy Soviet attack on encircling German lines. The broadcast declared the Russians were thrown back as a result of severe losses. A large ship was said to have been set afire in the harbor.)

Rome Reports Carolis Fell Leading Troops To "Another Victory"

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Rome radio said today that Brig. Gen. Ugo Carolis fell in action Friday while leading his Turin division "to another victory" on the Russian front. This broadcast was heard by CBS.

London earlier heard the Rome radio say that Carolis had fallen on the African front, the sixth of Mussolini's generals to be killed in action in this war. The report heard by CBS, however, appeared to be a rectified version.

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—A Hungarian motorized brigade "from the central sector of the Russian front has returned to Hungary," the British radio said today, quoting an official Italian news agency dispatch. The broadcast was heard here by CBS.

AXIS FORCES FIGHT IN LIBYAN RETREAT

British Report Germans And Italians In Stubborn Rearguard Actions

But Rommel's Troops Are Said To Be In Danger Of Encirclement, However

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 14—German and Italian forces stubbornly withdrawing from eastern Libya turned about and fought savage rear-guard actions southwest of Gazala, the British reported today, but their positions were said to be threatened by an encircling movement.

Military quarters said tanks and infantry were about three quarters of the way around the Axis string of defenses stretching forty miles from Gazala on the coast into the desert.

Hard fighting was said to be taking place at two main centers of resistance, at Gazala itself, which is about one hundred miles west of the Egyptian border, and southwest of Gazala.

Still Closing In

The communique still said the British were closing in on Gazala.

In fighting farther east, about 500 troops were captured, 18 guns taken and a number of Italian tanks destroyed at Bir Hacheim, forty miles southeast of Tobruk.

[A London military spokesman also reported the capture of the Axis frontier post of Ghirba in the Salum area where a few beleaguered Germans and Italians still are holding their barbed wire and trench systems despite their shortage of water. German and Italian communiques declared the British had been repulsed in their attacks "west of Tobruk."]

Admit 16 Planes Lost

The RAF admitted the loss of sixteen planes from its British, Australian and South African forces but declared eighteen Germans and Italians were shot down.

[The Italian communique said ten Italian fighters and an unstated number of Germans attacked a formation of fifty British planes, and shot down twenty-four of them. The Italians claimed ten and admitted losing three of their own. The Germans however, claimed fifteen and said they lost none.]

The British bombed Axis transports heavily along the Bomba-Derna road west of Gazala, the Derna airport, and three southwestern Greek ports, Argostoli, Methone and Navarino.

Results of the Greek raids were not observed, the communique said. (The Italians said they shot down five of the bombers at Argostoli.)

DEC 15 1941

Germans Claim Attack at Entrance to Bristol Channel

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (Official Radio Received by AP)—Probable sinking of a British destroyer at the entrance to Bristol Channel was credited by the German high command today to a Nazi dive bomber, which was said to have scored several direct hits on the vessel.

"Its loss can be reckoned with," the high command said.

Last night, the daily war bulletin declared, German air raiders successfully bombed military objectives on the British East Coast. Seven British planes were reported shot down in attempts to fly over German-occupied territory.

German Supply Ship Sunk by Dutchman

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP)—A German supply ship "blew up and disappeared" when hit three times by bombs off the Norwegian coast this morning, air ministry sources said today. The ship was attacked from mast height by a Dutchman flying a United States-built Hudson bomber.

LONDON HAS RAID ALARM

Sirens Sound First Time Since November 1

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—Air-raid sirens sounded in the London area this evening for the first time since November 1, but the all-clear followed quickly.

Said grinning Londoners: "This puts us in a class with New York," when it was reported that the alert was merely to keep the British in practice.

Army and Navy Communiques

DEC 15 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—A communique from the War Department:

(1) PHILIPPINE THEATER: Enemy air activity continues. Ground operations are confined to the Aparri, Legaspi and Vigan areas. No change in the general situation has been reported.

(2) HAWAII: No further reports have been received.

(3) WEST COAST, UNITED STATES: Extensive air reconnaissance by American Army air units is continuing.

The above is based on reports up to 4 p. m. today.

A communique from the Navy Department:

There have been two additional bombing attacks on Wake Island. The first was light; the second was undertaken in great force. Two enemy bombers were shot down. Damage was inconsequential.

The marines on Wake Island continue to resist.

Enemy submarines are known to be operating in the Hawaiian area. Vigorous attacks are being made against them.

The above is based on reports up to noon today.

MANILA, Dec. 14 (AP).—A communique from the headquarters of Lieutenant General Douglas MacArthur, commanding United States Far Eastern forces:

The situation both on the ground and in the air was well in hand as the first week of military operations came to a close.

A resume of operations during the week follows:

The enemy carried out fourteen major air raids on military objectives in the Philippines, but paid dearly in the loss of transports, planes and troops as a result of action by our air and ground forces and the damaging of two battleships.

The enemy attempted to land in the Lingayen area, but was repulsed by a Philippine Army division.

The enemy effected unopposed landings in limited numbers at Vigan, Legaspi and Aparri. There were only local activities in those areas.

Enemy naval units and troops and materiel on the ground were bombed effectively in the Vigan and Aparri areas, hampering landing operations.

Four enemy transports are known to have been sunk and three others seriously damaged by our air force off northern Luzon.

Individual deeds of heroism and bravery on the part of American and Filipino ground troops and air units marked the week's operations and accounted for the destruction of eleven enemy planes in the air and on the ground Thursday. The total enemy air losses from all causes during the week were not less than forty actually accounted for and probably many more which could not be verified.

As no reports of damage have come, it is assumed casualties and property damage were negligible. Lieutenant General MacArthur has expressed favorable comment upon the splendid morale which exists not only throughout the military forces but throughout the entire population.

He states: "The national effort is completely co-ordinated and responds promptly and efficiently to military direction."

"Every one," he is quoted as saying, "is responding not only courageously but, what is equally important, intelligently."

War Communiques

DEC 15 1941

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 14 (AP).—A British Army headquarters communique:

Fighting continues in the Kedah area (bordering Thailand in the northwest). Our forces also are in contact with the enemy at Kelantan (northeasternmost Malaya).

On both fronts fighter aircraft are supporting our troops.

A combined headquarters communique:

Dutch submarines sank an enemy supply ship and an oil tanker in addition to the four Japanese transports torpedoed Dec. 12.

Stubborn fighting continues in Kedah, where our fighters were successfully employed harassing enemy troops and communications.

CAIRO, Dec. 14 (AP).—A Middle East command communique:

Yesterday our main forces again made progress in the face of determined resistance by German and Italian troops holding rearguard positions southwest of Gazala.

Our troops are also closing in on defensive positions covering Gazala itself. Reports still incomplete show that yesterday a few Italian tanks were destroyed, while eighteen guns and about 500 German and Italian prisoners were captured northwest of Bir Hakeim.

In addition, small batches of prisoners are still being rounded up in areas over which the tide of the main battle has now passed.

Our air forces continue to bomb enemy motor transport columns, with special success on roads west and northwest of Gazala and west of Derna.

A Royal Air Force communique:

In the course of extensive and successful operations over the battle area in Libya on Friday and Saturday (Dec. 12-13), fighter aircraft of the Royal Air Force, Royal Australian Air Force and South African Air Force destroyed eighteen enemy aircraft and severely damaged a large number of others.

The enemy aircraft destroyed comprised eleven ME-109's, three MACCHI-202's, one JU-52, one JU-87 and two fighters which were not clearly identified. Our bomber aircraft were also active in raiding enemy motor transport and road communications between Bomba and Derna.

During Friday night further bombing raids were made on the landing ground at Derna and on concentrations of enemy motor transport in the Derna area. Large fires broke out on the airdrome and at least one aircraft was seen in flames.

In the central Mediterranean our aircraft took part in the successful action against enemy naval units during the night. Our aircraft sighted enemy ships which turned and were engaged by the Royal Navy. Later, enemy units again were sighted. One cruiser was completely gutted, another was on fire and the third unit was steaming in a westerly direction. Destroyers were picking up survivors.

Yesterday our bomber aircraft attacked shipping at Navarino, Methone and Argostoli. Results of the attacks could not be clearly observed. One M-109 was shot down into the sea off Argostoli after trying to intercept our bombers.

It is now learned that on Thursday our aircraft shot down a CR-42 into the sea in the central Mediterranean.

From these and other operations sixteen of our aircraft are missing.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

A Hudson aircraft of the Royal Netherlands Naval Air Service, operating with the Coastal Command, attacked an enemy supply ship off the coast of Norway this morning. The ship was hit by three bombs and blew up.

An Admiralty communique:

The Board of the Admiralty regrets to announce that His Majesty's trawlers Pineas Beard (Skipper William McRuvie, R. N. R.) and Milford Earl (Lieutenant J. S. Neate, R. N. V. R.) have been sunk. The next of kin of casualties have been informed.

Russian

MOSCOW, Dec. 14 (AP).—A Soviet Information Bureau communique:

During Dec. 14 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts. In a number of sectors of the western and southwestern fronts Soviet troops had fierce engagements with the enemy and continued to advance.

They occupied the (railroad) stations of Uzlovaya, southeast of Tula; Verkhove, northwest of

30.24 — 13549

Livny, and Dubna, west of Tula.

On Dec. 13 fifteen German planes were destroyed. We lost four planes.

Today five German planes were brought down in air combats near Moscow.

In the Black Sea our ships have sunk an enemy transport of 25,000 tons.

A Soviet Information Bureau communique broadcast by the Moscow radio:

During the night of Dec. 13-14 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

DEC 15 1941

In one sector of the western front Soviet troops destroyed twenty-four tanks, sixteen guns, seven trench mortars, fifty-four motorcycles, nine armored cars and a quantity of ammunition.

The air force, operating on the southern front, in one day's operations shot down six enemy planes, destroyed seven German tanks, over 200 trucks, eleven guns and their crews, killing in all more than 1,000 Axis soldiers.

Our troops in one sector of the Leningrad front repelled the Germans from fortified point "N," killing 400 of the enemy.

Guerilla detachments operating in the region near Moscow occupied by the Germans are scoring successes against the enemy. A detachment has wrecked the enemy's communications by daring raids and has destroyed supply trucks containing material for the front.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (Official radio received by AP).—A high command communique:

In the east, German artillery attacked enemy shipping in the port of Sevastopol and military objectives around Leningrad, with good success. Otherwise, war activity was restricted to defense against local enemy attacks.

In attacks on movements of transport columns and barracks, the German air force on the eastern front inflicted heavy losses on the enemy in both men and materials.

In the waters around England an enemy destroyer was heavily damaged by bomb hits at the entrance to Bristol Channel, and its loss can be reckoned.

During last night the air force successfully bombed military objectives on the British east coast. In attempts to approach the Channel coast, the enemy lost seven planes.

In North Africa Italian-German troops in the area west of Tobruk repelled concentrated British attacks and destroyed several batteries as well as eleven tanks.

German and Italian dive bombers inflicted heavy losses on enemy motorized columns.

Axis fighters shot down fifteen enemy planes without loss to themselves.

Further airdromes, supply depots and columns of enemy tanks and motorized vehicles in the Tobruk area were successfully bombed.

Between Dec. 6 and Dec. 12 the Bolshevik air force lost a total of 125 planes, of which eighty-eight shot down in air battles, thirty-two by anti-aircraft fire and the rest were destroyed on the ground.

During the same period seven German planes were lost on the western front.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 14 (Official radio received by AP).—A high command communique:

In the area to the west of Tobruk there have been lively enemy attacks against our positions, but these were repulsed.

On the Sollum front there has been sustained artillery fire.

Yesterday was a day of brilliant success for the Italian and German air forces, which machine-gunned and bombed enemy positions in support of land operations.

During one of numerous aerial combats ten Italian planes engaged a formation of about fifty planes. Twenty-four machines were shot down. Ten were destroyed by Italian fighters and fourteen by German fighters. We lost three planes.

In the central Mediterranean an Italian reconnaissance machine which was attacked by two enemy fighters and three bombers shot down a Spitfire and then succeeded in breaking off the engagement.

During two new air raids on Argostolion (on the Island of Cephalonia, Greece) which caused neither damage nor casualties, Italian fighters promptly intervened and destroyed five bombers at Navarino in Greece. British planes dropped a few bombs and a house was hit. Three Greeks were injured.

King George VI Marks Forty-Sixth Birthday

Celebrates With Royal Family At Country Home Somewhere In England

DEC 15 1941

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—King George VI celebrated his forty-sixth birthday today with Queen Elizabeth and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose at a country home somewhere in England amid messages of congratulations from all parts of the empire.

Messages came from President Roosevelt, Queen Mother Mary and other members of the royal family, from Prime Minister Churchill and the Governors General of the dominions.

The King and Queen attended morning church services and entertained soldiers at a rehearsal of a pantomime, "Cinderella," in which the Princesses and their friends from a near-by town are taking part.

Deanna Durbin To Aid English War Workers

Singing Star, 19, To Leave Tomorrow Or Wednesday To Entertain Britons

Hollywood, Dec. 14 (AP)—Deanna Durbin said today she would leave Tuesday or Wednesday for England to entertain service men and war workers during the Christmas season.

The 19-year-old singing star said she had accepted an invitation of Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, and that she and her producer-husband, Vaughn Paul, would be guests of the British Embassy in Washington for a few days before flying to London.

"If I can help in the war effort, even in this small way," said Miss Durbin, "then I shall feel well repaid."

Head Of Serb Patriot Army Raised To Rank Of General

Mihailovic Promoted For "Magnificent Work" In Resisting Nazi Occupation, London Reports

BY ALFRED WALL

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 14—Draja Mihailovic, a mere colonel in the Yugoslav army before the Germans overran his country, has been raised to the rank of full general in recognition of his "magnificent work" in organizing resistance to the Nazi occupation.

Several hundred thousand Axis troops appear to be tied up in Yugoslavia and Greece, opposing patriot armies waging small-scale war.

The Yugoslav Government in exile, in announcing Mihailovic's promotion today, declared that under him, Serb resistance had reached the proportions of full-blown military operations and could no longer be regarded as mere guerrilla warfare.

DEC 15 1941

[In Greece, according to the British radio as heard in New York, "eighteen German and Italian divisions are being kept busy trying to choke the revolt there." Quoting Emmanuel Tsouderos, Premier of the Greek Government in exile, the broadcast said a "regular small-scale war is on in Greece," with Greek forces inflicting heavy losses on an Italian infantry regiment in the north and sinking an Italian ship in a harbor on Corfu.]

No Details Given

Yugoslavs here said no details as to the extent of fighting in their homeland had been received recently, but that there was evidence that pressure on the German army of occupation is increasing. They refused to divulge details of their contacts with General Mihailovic or explain how Yugoslav communiques got out of the country.

The most recent was issued in Cairo last Thursday. It stated a Yugoslav force of 80,000 was holding its positions south of Belgrade.

Continuing Greek resistance was announced on November 18 by Crown Prince Paul, who told a London audience that fifteen Italian divisions (about 225,000 men) and more than 70,000 Germans were immobilized "in an ineffectual attempt to keep order."

Was Attache At Sofia

General Mihailovic, a former professor at the military academy at Belgrade, at one time was the Yugoslav military attache at Sofia.

When King Peter and the Yugoslav Government were forced to flee by the German onslaught, he pleaded with Gen. Dusan Simovich, Premier and chief of staff, for permission to organize a force.

When it was granted, he went into the mountains, where he rounded up scattered detachments of the Yugoslav army and welded them into an army which, the Yugoslavs declare, is a real menace to the Germans.

PROTEST MADE AGAINST ORDER TO EXECUTE 100

DEC 15 1941

Government Says Decree Provokes "Uneasiness Among Frenchmen"

Nine Conspiracy Suspects Reported Condemned To Die In Italy

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 14 — Swedish correspondents in Berlin reported through Stockholm today that the Germans expect the Vichy Government to sever relations with the United States as the result of the seizure of French ships in American ports.

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Dec. 14—The Petain Government in an official communique tonight stated that an order of German authorities for the execution of one hundred "Jewish communists and anarchists" in occupied France provokes "profound uneasiness among Frenchmen."

Furthermore, the communique said, the French Government has expressed its sentiment to the German authorities.

DEC 15 1941

The Germans announced yesterday that the one hundred would be shot in occupied France in sweeping reprisal executions for "recent attacks against the occupation troops." At the same time a fine of 1,000,000,000 francs ($20,000,000) was imposed on Jews in the occupied zone.

Uneasiness Provoked

Today the French Government in its communique asserted that although those sentenced to be shot were not hostages this time, but "delinquents," nevertheless the number of those condemned provokes profound uneasiness among Frenchmen.

The communique points out also that it always has affirmed its reprobation and that of the French people regarding the attacks committed, that in fact its own police had arrested several of those guilty of the attacks, and that as a result the French had sought and expected to obtain a marked reduction of the number to be shot.

Yesterday's German announcement said a large number of Jews had been deported to the East to be put to hard labor.

This was the first time since the German-Vichy armistice that Marshal Petain's Government has come out squarely against measures of the German occupation authorities.

Text Of French Protest

The text of the French communique as broadcast by Vichy and relayed by the British radio in a broadcast heard by NBC follows:

"The French Government has learned with bitter regret of a notice of reprisals just published by the German authorities, because it has always voiced its condemnation and that of the French people of the actions in question.

"It has succeeded in arresting through its own police the culprits involved in several of these attempts.

"This week, in the course of repeated and anguished representations, it requested—and thought it would be able to secure—a considerable reduction of the number to be shot.

"Although the people concerned this time are not hostages but delinquents, the very high number of those condemned nevertheless gives rise to deep uneasiness among all Frenchmen.

"The Government wishes the German authorities to know its feelings toward this mass repression."

9 Reported Sentenced To Death By Italians

DEC 15 1941

Bern, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Swiss Telegraph Agency reported from Rome tonight that nine of the sixty persons accused of conspiracy and activity against the state in the trials of Trieste were condemned to death today.

Forty-eight others were sentenced to imprisonment for terms of from three to thirty years. Three were acquitted.

The sixty had been accused of plotting to blow up Italian bridges, participating in the sabotage of Italian munitions plants, planning subversive activities with Yugoslavia and preparing a conspiracy to assassinate Premier Mussolini in 1938.

ITALY FREES 137 FRENCHMEN

All Captured By Fascists In War Returned To France

Vichy, Dec. 14 (AP)—The French announced today that the Italian Government had returned all its French prisoners of war—all 137 of them.

The prisoners, 1 officer and 136 non-commissioned officers and soldiers, already have returned to French soil.

Diplomats And Newsmen Arrive At Lake Constance To Stay Until Plans Are Completed

Bern, Dec. 14 (AP)—American diplomats and newspaper correspondents in Germany arrived at Lake Constance tonight to stay until completion of plans for their exchange with a similar German group in the United States.

According to dispatches from Rome, the six American newspapermen in the Italian capital have been established in a pension following receipt of word from New York that Italian newspapermen interned there were housed in a hotel.

American Relative Charges That His Detention Among Aliens At Ellis Island Is "Outrageous"

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—An American relative of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, of Rome, disclosed today that Federal agents had seized the 29-year-old Italian as he prepared to leave the country.

His aunt, Mrs. Charles A. Moore, of Greenwich, Conn., described as "outrageous" his arrest and internment at Ellis Island with 502 other persons the Federal Government has rounded up as "suspicious enemy aliens."

Visited Ill Mother

The Prince is the son of the late Don Marino Torlonia, Duke of Poli and Prince di Civitella Cesi, and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, of New York city. The former Elsie Moore divorced the young Prince's father in 1928 and regained American citizenship.

Prince Torlonia was permitted to fly to this country three weeks ago to visit his mother who is still critically ill in her Park avenue apartment. Warring powers cut red tape to permit his entry, and Britain assured him safe passage.

Mrs. Moore said her nephew was seized by Federal officers who "simply took him away to Ellis Island."

"He had no warning and there was no reason for it. All his papers were in order. . . . This was shameful. J. Edgar Hoover (director of the FBI) and everybody was behind it."

FBI agents declined to confirm or deny his arrest.

Declares People Of Germany And Italy Did Not Want To Fight Us

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—A plea for kind treatment of Americans of foreign origin and "good" aliens in this country was made tonight by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, National Director of Civilian Defense, who declared that the peoples of Germany and Italy did not want war with the United States.

"We are all Americans," he said in a broadcast, "regardless of the country from which our parents came. There is no difference whether our ancestors came over on the Mayflower or the Half Moon, or whether they came over in steerage. It is one country that is now facing a large part of the world—the cruel combination of mean, fanatical dictators."

Mostly "Good Folks"

Most of the subjects of foreign nations now in the United States, he asserted, were "good folk, just like a greater part of the population of those unhappy countries are good folk."

On the other hand, the Mayor said: "If there are any who for one moment believe we will brook or tolerate any untoward action or word or deed that might give aid and comfort to our enemies, they might as well know that necessary measures will be taken."

War Out Of Classroom

He urged American children to keep war out of classroom and playground, adding:

"Treat these children (of aliens) right so that when they grow up they will understand the advantage and benefit of being born and raised in a democracy, and understand what it means to be raised under the cruel dictatorships of Hitler, Mussolini and the Mikado."

The defense chief devoted most of his thirty-seven-minute talk to air-raid and blackout instructions, stressing the need for more air-raid wardens to bolster the present force of 112,000.

LAGUARDIA PLEADS FOR ALIENS IN U. S.

WAR-FUND BILL DUE FOR FINAL PASSAGE TODAY

DEC 15 1941

Congress Next Slated To Act On Measure Broadening Draft

All Ideas Of Holiday Abandoned In View Of Emergency Needs

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 14—The first war fund bill—a $10,000,000,000 item for more planes, ships, guns and other equipment for battle—is expected to get swift and final approval from both branches of Congress tomorrow.

The appropriation bill, in addition carrying funds to equip an army of 2,000,000 men and to supply essential material for another 1,200,000, also will provide more material for lease-lend aid to the nations allied against the Axis powers.

Both the Senate and House already have acted on the appropriation legislation, but because there were minor differences in the two bills both branches must approve the final, compromised version.

Draft Measure Next

Once the big-money bill is passed and on its way to the White House, the Congressional program calls for quick action on the draft broadening bill.

Both the Senate and House military committees have called meetings for tomorrow to consider the legislation, which would require registration of all men 18 to 64 years of age, inclusive, and which would make those aged 19 to 44, inclusive, liable to military service.

Congress already has passed, and the President has signed, legislation to remove the original draft law restrictions against use of men outside the Western Hemisphere.

Holiday Recess Out

Congress, abandoning any idea of a holiday recess, settled itself to the business of swiftly enacting new, and revising old, laws to fit the pattern of modern all-out war.

High up on the list is legislation authorizing President Roosevelt to use some of the wartime powers granted to Woodrow Wilson.

These powers would permit the President to centralize control of all communications and transportation systems, to put a statutory ban on trading with enemy aliens and to shift various functions of Government agencies to coordinate the war effort.

Committees At Work

Committees on both sides of Congress are at work on this legislation.

The Senate and the House naval committees have before them bills to authorize construction of 900,000 additional tons of fighting ships.

The legislation mentions no cost limit, and leaves to the Navy Department's experts the allocation of the tonnage among the various categories.

Hitler's Secret Weapon Is Japan, Says Davies

Ex-Envoy Speaks At Russian War Relief Benefit In Boston. Mme. Litvinoff Present

Boston, Dec. 14 (AP)—With Mme. Ivy Low Litvinoff, British-born wife of Russia's new Ambassador to the United States, present in her first public appearance in this country, former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies declared today that Adolf Hitler's promised secret weapon against America now could be divulged.

"Last Sunday at dawn, Hitler launched it," Davies told a Russian War Relief benefit. "It was Japan, drenched in dishonor and steeped in treachery."

Gray-haired Mme. Litvinoff appeared deeply moved at the huge turnout to aid war sufferers of her adopted country.

"I wish my husband were here to see this," she said. "I wish Mr. Stalin could be here to see it, too. And there's someone else I'd like to be here to see it, too—Adolf Hitler. It might do him some good."

ICKES REPORTS U. S. RESOURCES ARE MOBILIZED

Secretary Says Nation Is Ready To Meet Demand For War Materials

DEC 15 1941

Declares Some Were Developed Years Ahead Of Original Schedules

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 14—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, said today the nation's natural resources were mobilized and ready—some developed years ahead of original schedules—to meet unprecedented war demands for materials.

Reporting to President Roosevelt on activities of his department during the past year, Mr. Ickes said:

"The struggle abroad has opened our eyes, as never before, to the extent and the possibilities of America's resources. We have been enabled to turn to our natural heritage, and in the wealth of minerals, water power, grazing land, and timber find the vital necessities for constructing our physical defenses."

Long-Time Programs Rushed

Long-time conservation programs conceived for peacetime requirements were rushed during the year, the Secretary said, to enable the United States to fulfill its function as the arsenal of democracy and more lately to enable it to wage war against the Axis powers.

"We have hastened," Ickes said, "the development of hydroelectric power in the West. We have never lost sight of more and greater power production as an inevitable objective for a progressive age, but with the quickened tempo of defense needs, we stepped up, by years, the schedules originally set for these great projects."

He said the department also had hastened its work of locating and evaluating deposits of strategic and critical minerals.

Helium Gas Output Boosted

"Studies of the Bureau of Mines vindicate that we may in an emergency produce our own supply of ferromanganese. The production of helium gas in the world's only helium plant was increased until it soon will be producing nearly 36,000,000 cubic feet annually. The bureau's experiments in producing gasoline from coal advanced notably."

In his report on the progress of hydroelectric power, the Secretary cited:

"The initial production of power at Grand Coulee Dam was months ahead of schedule. The Bonneville power sales alone made possible the manufacture of enough aluminum pig metal to build one out of every four planes. Other plants produced additional power as the mobilization of democracy made it possible for us to compress into mere months the construction and power-installation schedules of years."

28 Power Plants Operating

At the close of the last fiscal year twenty-eight power plants were in operation at seventeen projects under the department's supervision. Ickes said these plants had a total installed capacity of 953,962 kilowatts—exceeding that of all plants on the Pacific Coast in 1912.

The report said the demand for construction of multiple-purpose projects—for power and irrigation—continued unabated. He said there was no dearth of projects.

"Estimates are that there is sufficient water available in the West to irrigate an additional 22,000,000 acres, and provide supplemental supplies for 11,700,000 acres. Potential power developments, in connection with irrigation developments, would doubtless provide as much as 30,000,000 kilowatts of electric capacity, more than three times the existing installed capacity."

Ickes said his department had provided valuable data needed in finding water supplies for defense plants and industries and military training camps. He said it also had helped provide land for military training operations.

Can Increase Fish Food

Research by the Fish and Wildlife Service indicates, he said, the possibility of increasing, under wartime emergency, fish food supplies from 4,443,000,000 to 6,200,000,000 pounds annually. The bituminous coal division, he added, had brought stability to bituminous coal markets by the establishment of minimum prices and marketing rules.

Other achievements of the department were listed as follows:

Improvement of liquid-oxygen explosives to render them virtually immune to ignition from fire or spark.

Location of a domestic source of graphite to replace that formerly imported from Madagascar.

Development of new methods for treating domestic low-grade bauxite ores.

Reshuffled means of transportaion to help meet a threatened shortage of petroleum products on the Atlantic Seaboard.

26 Passengers Arrive By Clipper From Hawaii

Group Prohibited From Making Individual Statements About War Conditions In Islands

DEC 15 1941

San Francisco, Dec. 14 (AP)—Twenty-six passengers arrived today from Hawaii by clipper plane.

They were not permitted to talk directly to newspapermen but the navy and Pan American Airways issued a joint press release quoting the passengers as saying morale was high among the people who had been under fire in the Japanese attack.

Except for a group of Pan American Airways employes brought to the mainland in an unscheduled clipper flight last week, today's arrivals were the first airplane passengers to leave Hawaii since the outbreak of war.

ARMY REASSURES OLDER AGE GROUP

Men Outside 21-35 Limit Never May Be Called, Officials Indicate

Hershey Warns Against Hysteria And Urges Attitude Of Calm

30.24 — 13551

30.24 — 13551

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 14—War Department officials made clear today that it would be a long time—perhaps never—before any men outside the 21-35 age group are drafted for the army, despite the proposal to require all aged, 18 to 64, inclusive, to register.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, warning against any "hysteria," said there was no way of telling when it might be necessary to tap the reservoir of men outside the 21-35 group.

DEC 15 1941

"We can meet the situation today and tomorrow with the present draft age limits of 21 to 35," Hershey said.

Program For Now

The program as of today, Hershey explained, calls for the induction of the remaining 1,000,000 in the 21-to-27-age brackets; then eligibles in the group from 28 to 35 will be called up and next the 1,000,000 who become 21 each year.

In the meantime, there will be a continuing reexamination of men deferred because of dependency, employment in vital defense industries and minor physical disabilities.

"We must go at this thing calmly and coolly," Hershey said. "We must not take every man regardless of his physical condition or no matter how many dependents he has."

9% DROP IN COLLEGE ROLLS LAID TO WAR

Draft And Industrial Jobs Blamed For Decrease Shown In Survey

Study By Dr. Walters, Who Predicts Further Dip In Students' Numbers

[By the Associated Press]

Cincinnati, Dec. 14—War and opportunities for work in defense industries have combined to cause a serious drop in American college and university attendance for the first time in a decade, a nation-wide survey showed today.

In 669 approved institutions are 838,715 full-time students, 9.16 per cent. below last year, and a grand total, including part-time and summer students, of 1,269,354, or 8.88 per cent. less than for 1940-41.

The figures, released by the University of Cincinnati, are from an annual survey of student attendance by Dr. Raymond Walters, president, for School and Society, weekly educational journal.

DEC 15 1941

Further Dip Predicted

The decreases, first since depression years, are ascribed by Dr. Walters "largely to the effect of the Selective Service Act and somewhat also to the attraction of defense jobs."

"And," he predicted, "it appears probable that collegiate attendance for 1942-43 will show another dip."

The drop in freshman classes, where men are below draft age, was only 4.52 per cent.

All geographical divisions reported smaller totals, ranging from a decrease of 2.07 per cent. in the South Atlantic area to a drop of 8.97 per cent. in West North Central States.

Maryland Shows Increase

Only three States showed increases: Connecticut, 3.19 per cent.; Maryland, 5.19 pe rcent., and South Carolina, 1.85 per cent., atributed to larger registrations in the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.! the Naval Academy, Annapolis and Citade Military College, Charleston, S. C.

Ohio, with 38 institutions, reported a drop of 6.9 per cent.; Kentucky, with 16, a decrease of 9.7 per cent.; West Virginia, with 5, 10.34 per cent., and Indiana, with 18 schools, down 4.97 per cent.

With 18 reporting gains, 54 independent technological institutions have totals of 97,588, a drop of 2.57 per cent. And engineering units of large universities show a similar maintenance of full-time enrollment, all "to be expected because of the deferment from military duty of engineering and certain scientific students under selective service regulations.

No changes in ranking among universities with the ten largest full-time enrollments were noted.

Representative Unable To Enter Army Or Navy

Hendricks, Of Florida, Tells Of Rejections In Letter To Secretaries Offering Services

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—Representative Hendricks (Dem., Fla.) tried in vain to enter the military or naval service last week, he said in letters to Secretaries Stimson and Knox.

He told the Cabinet members that he offered his services in accordance with a pledge he made in 1939 that if ever he voted to declare war he would enlist.

Both the army and the navy rejected him, he said. He did not disclose the reason.

"However," he wrote, "I know there are other ways in which a person can serve. I am willing and anxious to serve my country in any way possible and I trust you will place this letter in file and that you will not hesitate to call upon me to perform any task which is not inconsistent with the performance of my duties as a member of Congress."

Tore Down Nazi Flag, Sailor Would Reenlist

Bay State Recruiting Office Reports H. J. Sturtevant, Of Frisco Fame, Wants To Sign Up

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 14 (AP)—The sailor who was dismissed from the United States Navy for tearing down a Nazi swastika from the German consulate in San Francisco last January has applied for reenlistment.

Recruiting Officer Charles Mitchel said today that Harold J. Sturtevant, 20, wants to join again. Sturtevant was not given a dishonorable discharge, but left the navy on charges of misconduct.

Sturtevant, a resident of Haverhill, joined a shipmate and four youths in climbing to the ninth floor windows of the consulate in a downtown building and ripped the flag from its staff.

PACIFIST PASTOR HOLMES RESIGNS

Refuses To Use His Ministry To "Bless, Sanction Or Suppo.. War"

Civil Liberties Unionists Declares American People Are "Not Guiltless"

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—The Rev. John Haynes Holmes, noted cleric and for almost thirty-five years pastor of the Community Church, tendered his undated resignation today after telling his congregation he could not use his ministry "to bless, sanction or support war."

DEC 15

The Rev. Mr. Holmes said his resignation had been given to the church's board of trustees to be accepted "at such time in the uncertain future as my retirement may preserve this beloved church from embarrassment, odium or peril."

U. S. People "Not Guiltless"

The 62-year-old minister, a director of the American Civil Liberties Union and active in civic and philanthropic affairs, asserted that the American people were not guiltless in a war which he described as "the final outrage" to the will of God, and added:

"I thought through my pacifism more than a quarter of a century ago and have lived by it ever since. It was tried as by fire in the last war and again in the more dreadful fire of this present war. Now that the flames of this war spread to our own shores, it must be tried even more terribly again."

War "Greatest Of All Evils"

The pacifist ideal, he said, was rooted not in "accidents of circumstance" but in conformity to conscience and obedience to the high counsel of God."

"We have our share of guilt in this disaster," he declared in another part of his sermon. "Ours is a war world, to which we have consented and in which we have participated, and this is what happens in such a world. War is the quintessence of evil. It is the greatest of all evils, because it contains all other evils within itself.

"It is violence, hatred, lust, pride, enmity, falsehood, deceit, and the rest of the complete catalogue of crime. From such evil can come no good thing, but only disaster and doom immeasurable."

The Rev. Mr. Holmes predicted the war would last 15 to 20 years and exhaust the nation's wealth, wreck its economy, ruin its democracy, despoil its culture and leave it unrecognizable.

Victory "By No Means Certain"

"Even if we win this war, which is by no means certain," he continued, "we shall only reproduce that Roman victory described by St. Augustine, wherein 'the conqueror looked ever more like the conquered.' And the fairest hope of all our modern world, which was the promise of American life, will have disappeared forever."

The pastor said he would labor to help the unfortunates of war but would refuse to "dedicate this church to war activities or allow the passions of the world to intrude upon its worship and its work."

Neither as clergymen nor citizen, he said, would he participate "in the armed hostilities of this hour" but neither would he "oppose, obstruct, or interfere with officials, soldiers, or citizens in the performance of what they regard as their patriotic duty."

"I will be loyal and obedient to my Government, and loyal and obedient also to my God; and when these loyalties conflict, I will choose, as did the Apostles, to 'obey God rather than men.'"

DEFENSE PLANT BLAST SHAKES NEW YORK AREA

DEC 15 1941

1 Killed, About 40 Hurt In Jersey Explosion. 200 Homes Damaged

Idea Of Sabotage Discounted As Hydrogen Tank Blows Up

[By the Associated Press]

Edgewater, N. J., Dec. 14—A blast felt throughout the metropolitan area killed a workman at Spencer Kellogg & Sons today, injured about forty other persons, none seriously, and caused much property damage.

Archibald Sandford, 34, of Englewood, was blown to bits, police said, when a tank used for storing hydrogen gas exploded at 6.14 A. M.

Patrolman John Fitzgerald, at Edgewater Police Headquarters, said the company had defense orders for the gas, manufactured in a two-story brick building as a by-product. The company, overlooking the Hudson river, makes dyes and products.

Probe Under Way

Police Chief Frank Joret said later he was satisfied the explosion was accidental, but that no cause had been established. Naval intelligence officers and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation joined the probe.

The first floor of the building was destroyed, its four walls blown out.

A company garage, fifteen automobiles and a research laboratory of the Barrett Company, across River road from the Kellogg plant, were also wrecked. Police estimated damage at more than $100,000.

B. F Wood, Kellogg plant superintendent, said the company loss would probably rise to $250,000 if they were unable to replace machinery.

200 Homes Damaged

Some 200 homes in Edgewater, North Bergen and Cliffside Park had windows blown out or were otherwise damaged.

Englewood police said Sandford was to have become a member of the Englewood Fire Department tomorrow after six years' employment at Kellogg. He was to have quit work at 8 A. M.

William Hastrup, 35, a watchman in the plant, suffered head lacerations when he was blown through a door.

Three persons in the Joseph Litter family, including an 18-month-old baby, were hurt when the blast knocked them from their beds.

Says U. S., Britain Will Control Air

Daniels Notes Two Powers Slow at the Start

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Josephus Daniels, retiring ambassador to Mexico and 1912-20 Secretary of the Navy, said tonight that America and England had been slow in seeing the importance of airplanes as war weapons, but now were turning them out so fast it would be "only a little time before we control the air."

Daniels said in a press interview that "in the end victory will come through the people with the most resources who can last the longest."

"Do you think that's us?" he was asked.

"I know that it is us," he replied.

The "supernationalism" of Mexicans, said Daniels whose retirement becomes effective Jan. 20, would halt any infiltration of Nazis into their country.

FIRM TO BATTLE NAZI HOLD ON DRUG TRADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Economic war has been launched against Nazi control of the drug trade in Latin America by Sterling Products, Inc., its chairman, Edward S. Rogers, announced today.

A sales and advertising campaign will be the bombs and bullets of the plan, directed by an organization of foreign commerce experts which eventually will number 1,000.

"Nazi control of drug outlets in Latin America has been cited by United States officials as 'one of the most effective instruments of German influence in this hemisphere,'" Rogers said. "Our objective is to help destroy that influence."

The drive was launched today in Mexico, Rogers said, and will be carried to each of the other 20 American republics through Sterling's subsidiaries, the Sydney Ross Co. and Sterling Products International, Inc.

Recent surveys have reported Germany controlled 75 per cent of the Latin American drug business, Sterling spokesmen said, while the United States had 20 per cent. The rest was divided among Great Britain, Italy, Japan and others.

Cuba Gunboat Tows Ship After Explosions at Sea

Blasts Sound Like Cannon Shots; No Official Explanation

HAVANA, Dec. 14 (AP).—An unexplained series of heavy explosions at sea, which listeners said sounded like cannon shots, was heard here early today. Later a Cuban gunboat entered Havana Harbor with a small tanker in tow, but there was no official explanation.

[The possibility was seen that the explosions might have been from the guns of American naval units engaged in maneuvers, but the Navy Department at Washington declined to comment.]

Cubans Ready To Fight

[By the Associated Press]

Havana, Dec. 14—The National Committee for defense of Democracy advises George S. Messersmith, United States Ambassador, today it had 1,000 men ready to fight anywhere, even "in Asia or Europe."

The committee said another group would be ready within a month.

Cuba Presents Declaration

Buenos Aires, Dec. 14 (AP)—A Berlin dispatch to Argentina tonight reported the Cuban charge d'affaires, Armando Montero, presented to the Foreign Office his Government's formal declaration of war on Germany.

Nazi Air Service Ends

Buenos Aires, Dec. 14 (AP)—Sindicato Condor, Brazilian affiliate of the German Lufthansa Airline, suspended service between Argentina and Chile today after the Standard Oil Company had stopped its supply of gasoline.

Defenders Win First Round In Battle of Philippines

Struggle Likely to Increase in Intensity as Japanese Throw More Forces Into Islands

By Edward E. Bomar
Wide World War Analyst

The doughty defenders have won the first round in the fight for the Philippines, but the most elementary realism should restrain undue optimism over the course of the more decisive rounds to come.

Japanese necessities demand that additional troops and planes, at whatever cost, be hurled into the attempt to take the island bastion that must be seized or neutralized as a part of the fateful drive toward Singapore, and the East Indies oil fields.

The day's news hints a second and heavier wave of attack may be near. American bombers are credited with sinking four enemy troop ships, and damaging three others, all presumably arrivals from Formosa or Hainan where Japanese forces have been massing for months.

Geography saved the Philippines from the peril of a sudden overwhelming attack such as Hitler has employed successfully in Europe. Perhaps, however, Der Fuehrer's Far Eastern partners would have favored an initial try for a cheap victory under any circumstances. A top Chinese general who fought them for years and is now in the United States argues that is the nature of their tactics.

"The Japanese operate like a traitor or gambler who puts 90 cents on the table in the hope of winning a dollar," said he. "When they fail they raise the stakes.

"At Shanghai in 1932 they set out to run the Chinese out of the city with two divisions. Soon they had to bring on two more, and before they were through they had 20 in action."

Any hopes in Tokyo that the Philippines could be won by a vanguard expeditionary force have been punctured by bullets and bombs. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American-Filipino forces have made the first week of grim trading costly to the invaders.

In exchange for three acknowledged Japanese footholds on the key island of Luzon and damage to American air strength has been exacted thus far the price of a battleship, several troop ships, a large number of planes and uncounted lives. Immediately north of Manila, around Lingayen on the Gulf of the Lingayen, the invaders have just been hurled into the sea with heavy loss.

A number of considerations bearing directly on the Philippine struggle may have escaped due stress in the first week's turmoil.

The Luzon west coast inevitably is the principal target of the invader. From the stretch of flat coast on the open South China Sea leads the only ready avenue of approach to Manila with its supply bases, air fields, and coastal defense fortifications.

The most menacing Japanese landing thus far reported is at Vigan. At this hot and drab fishing and agricultural town of 20,000 the Japanese ashore are some 70 miles by a narrow but hard-surfaced road to San Fernando. From San Fernando other highways and the main railway line lead to Manila, 150 miles farther south down a rich level valley.

The foothold won at Aparri, in the far north beyond the central mountains, presumably was for the purpose of establishing a base for fighter planes. At Legaspi, 220 air miles southeast of Manila on the open Pacific, the invaders landed probably to head off maritime reinforcements and to create a diversion.

MacArthur's relative handful of American and Filipino divisions must face the prospect of fighting indefinitely against terrible odds. The Far Eastern commander has been credited with saying that an invader would require 1,500,000 men and three years to conquer the Philippines. but that judgment was predicated on completion of the unfinished Philippine Commonwealth defense scheme several years hence.

His existing army has been reinforced vigorously, in the last six months with some of the most modern weapons from the United States and may be considerably stronger than generally realized — in the United States as well as Tokyo.

For years, Philippine defense forces have trained for just the sort of attack now in progress. One thrust they have always anticipated is against the Zambales Peninsula across Manila Bay from the capital, and two days ago Japanese forces were reported massing off that area. Another they have made ready for is an attempted landing in Bataneas province, south of Manila.

Obviously what MacArthur needs most is aerial reinforcements and it is only logical to look for attempts to provide them, along with continuing savage onslaughts by bombers and submarines against Japanese troop carriers and warships.

West Coast's "Little Tokyo" Blitzed by U. S. Treasury

DEC 15 1941

Largest Japanese Settlement in Nation, in Los Angeles, Paralyzed by Order

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14 (Wide World)—Without a shot being fired, Uncle Sam has blitzed "Little Tokyo," largest Japanese settlement in the Nation.

Block from Civic Center

This little city within a city, only a block from Los Angeles' civic center, was paralyzed by the Treasury Department order that closed its banks, padlocked its stores and shut down its big produce terminal markets.

The freezing of Japanese nationals' funds and the "Trading With the Enemy" act deprived the entire population of 40,000 of a means of livelihood. Although the Government's war measures were aimed at the foreign-born the American-born Nisei are equally affected.

There is a money shortage, credit cannot be extended to aliens, and buying power is crippled. Three hundred stores with stocks of $5,000,000 have been idle several days, but the Treasury has relaxed restrictions to permit grocery stores with less than 10 employes and some other small businesses with no more than two employes to reopen. The effect will be, Japanese-born say, to prevent them from going on relief rolls, where they never have been.

And the fresh vegetable business, a $42,000,000 enterprise in Los Angeles county, has been taken out of the hands of Japanese brokers. Thirty-five Japanese produce houses have been closed. The Government has placed alien property custodians on Japanese ranches, which grow $28,000,000 worth of produce a year.

Vegetables Tested

A year ago the Japanese heeded a government request to increase their vegetable acreage because of the establishment of Army camps in California. Today the State Department of Agriculture is taking samples of market vegetables to subject them to chemical analysis, just to guard against possible poisoning. Sheriff's officers patrol farm areas to make sure Japanese workers stay on their jobs.

The anti-Axis committee of the Japanese-American Citizens League has gone into action, providing leadership to co-ordinate the national program in "Little Tokyo."

Nisei businessmen are young, the average age under 30, and they own little of the community's business, but they are intelligent—nearly all are college graduates with a record of high schoarship—are zealous of their American citizenship and determined that "nobody gets out of line here."

"We are dedicating our full time to the defeat of the Axis powers," says Ken Matsumoto, an artist. "Right now we are serving as interpreters for the FBI in their questioning of Japanese nationals. We have cooperated with the naval intelligence for a long time in ferreting out subversive groups."

Acid Test

The Nisei say they are reconciled to "taking a beating" at home during the war, that they expect to be misunderstood by some, that they know this is the acid test for them.

"And we'll meet it head on," volunteers Kay Sughara, a customs broker until Japanese funds were frozen. "Every person must fit into the national pattern in this fight against Japan and Germany and Italy. We Nisei will do our part. We have offered our unlimited services to the Nation, the state and the city."

Sughara says he speaks for all Nisei in saying they know the full meaning of Americanism and that they would die rather than forfeit what they have achieved in this country.

"This is no time for speeches," Sughara says, earnestly, "but I think actions will speak eloquently for the Nisei in this war and that they will write a noble page in its history. I was born in Seattle and came here as an orphan at the age of two. I have children and I would not want them reared anywhere except in America.

"We Nisei have come through the crucible of Japanese heredjty, early environment and language handicaps to understand the American way of life. We believe in you Americans of other racial stock and we think you believe in us. Many offers have come to us, proferring shelter and food in the present financial crisis. That is Christianity. I understand it for a large percentage of us are Christians."

From the Japanese-American colony here 2000 young men have gone into Uncle Sam's Army. The Navy does not accept for enlistment anyone of Japanese ancestry.

KNOX REPORTS ONE BATTLESHIP SUNK AT HAWAII, 5 OTHER CRAFT LOST, BUT MAIN FLEET IS AT SEA; PRESIDENT LAYS PERFIDY TO JAPAN'S EMPEROR

DEC 16 1941

BULK OF WARFLEET NOW HUNTING JAPS, NAVY CHIEF ASSERTS

Secretary Says President to Make Formal Investigation to Determine Who is To Blame for Fact Japanese Were Able to Make Surprise Raid

Praise Heroism of Officers and Men After Attack Began; Tells How Dying Captain Continued to Direct Forces; Foe Assisted by Fifth Column

(The text of Secretary Knox's report is printed on page 10).

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—The United States, officially listing its losses at Pearl Harbor as a battleship and five other vessels, hurled a challenge to the Japanese today by declaring its main fleet was ploughing the high seas and wanting only to come to blows with the enemy.

The treacherous Japanese attack on the Hawaiian naval base failed, Secretary of the Navy Knox said, to achieve its prime purpose— to "knock out the United States before the war began."

The fleet's wounds were grievous, he acknowledged, giving them as:

Lost: The battleship Arizona, the destroyers Cassin, Downes and Shaw, the target ship Utah, and the mine layer Oglala.

Damaged: The battleship Oklahoma and a number of other vessels.

Dead: 2,638 men and 91 officers.

Wounded: 636 men and 20 officers.

DEC 16 1941

He conceded that "the United States services were not on the alert against the surprise air attack," and announced that President Roosevelt would make a formal investigation.

After telling of the losses, Knox said in a statement given to newsmen:

"The entire balance of the Pacific fleet with its aircraft carriers, its heavy cruisers, its light cruisers, its destroyers and submarines are uninjured and are all at sea seeking contact with the enemy."

"Battleships?" a reporter asked.

Quickly, Knox replied that the great ships of the line were there, too.

Japs Used Fifth Column

When the war began, the United States had 17 battleships compared with 12 reported to be in the Japanese fleet. Japan has kept secret her naval acquisitions in recent years.

Knox unfolded an amazing story of Japanese use of a fifth column and submarines—some of them tiny two-man craft—as well as from 150 to 300 airplanes in the surprise attack. He gave no details of the fifth-column activity, but said:

"I think the most effective fifth-column work of the entire war was done in Hawaii, with the possible exception of Norway."

The secretary also told how the American forces rallied after the first bitter blow and fought heroically.

DEC 16

Hails Heroism

Once the attack began, the defense was conducted "skillfully and bravely," he said. Less than four minutes after the initial alarm, guns of the fleet were in action, and seconds later the first Japanese plane was downed, he reported.

Proudly he cited many instances of heroism including that of a dying captain of a battleship whose stomach was laid completely open by shrapnel fire but who refused to be carried to safety and continued to direct his men from a bridge which had become a blazing inferno.

He mentioned, too, an officer who leaped from a hospital bed to take his post of action and a bluejacket who single-handedly kept a five-inch anti-aircraft gun firing after his ten battery mates were shot down in a strafing attack.

Then there was the case of the sailor who acted as a human mount for a heavy machine gun. Carrying the gun, for which no mount was immediately available, he "shot the weapon from his arms, staggering under the concussion of the rapid fire."

Detailing the losses, Knox said the old battleship Oklahoma capsized, but can be repaired.

Some Already Repaired

Some of the other vessels were damaged have already been repaired, he said, but a few will take from a week to several months to put in shape.

Against this, Knox made only the claim that three Japanese submarines and 41 aircraft were destroyed.

U. S. Army losses, he stated, "were severe in aircraft and some hangars; but replacements have arrived or are on their way."

The secretary's report disclosed that casualties at Pearl Harbor were much higher than was first believed. President Roosevelt in his Fireside Chat last week spoke of 3,000, about half of them killed.

In addition to the dead and wounded listed by Knox the army reported 11 officers killed, 10 wounded and one missing; 157 enlisted men killed, 213 wounded, and 25 missing. There have been unofficial reports that 49 civilians were killed.

Total Deaths 2,946

By these figures, total casualties were 2,946 dead, 879 wounded, and 26 missing with no accounting of civilian wounded.

The high percentage of dead among the Navy's casualties was attributable, Knox told his press conference, to the fact that some ships rolled over.

Many must have burned to death, as he said the surface of the water became a "raging inferno from blazing oil."

Navy dry docks, oil storage depots, and other important base facilities were said to have escaped damage.

On the question of how the American forces were surprised, Knox said that no army or navy planes were in the air over Pearl Harbor when the attack came, although planes of the navy's usual dawn patrol were already over the horizon.

No patrols had been made at night, he said, because the navy believed they would be ineffective.

He expressed belief 300 patrol planes would have to be operating to safeguard the islands entirely from surprise attack.

Japs Used Many Planes

As for the Japanese airplanes, Knox said it was variously reported that between 150 and 300 took part in the attack, in any case too many to have come from a single carrier. All were single-engined ships, none was land-based, and so far as is known none was flown by a German.

Knox declared, in reply to a question, that there was no truth in a rumor that the navy had been warned an attack might be imminent. He estimated the Japanese preparations for the raid must have required a minimum of from three to four weeks—a period while active peace negotiations were underway.

While the navy's secretary's account was replete with incidents of heroism among the American officers and men, he declared the real story lies "in the splendid manner in which all hands did their job as long as they were able, not only under fire but while fighting the flames afterward and immediately starting salvage work and reorganization."

Prompt Action Saved Many

"Prompt action saved many lives and a vast amount of material," he continued. "Without exception, all ships and stations rose to the emergency. Less than four minutes after the first alarm, guns of the fleet went into action against enemy aircraft. Seconds later the first Japanese plane was shot down. * * *

"Men fought with the cool confidence that comes from complete indoctrination for battle. * * *

"Without doubt the whole spectacle was the greatest spontaneous exhibition of cooperation, determination and courage that the American Navy has been called upon to make . . . a continual demonstration of courage, bravery, and fearlessness of which the American nation may well be proud."

Army Reports 168 Men Killed In Jap Attack

223 Soldiers Wounded And 26 Missing After Stab-In-Back Battle

Believe List Complete

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP) — The War DeOpartment announced today that virtually complete reports indicated Army casualties in Hawaii in the surprise attack by Japanese bombing planes totalled 168 killed in action, 223 wounded and 26 missing.

Casualties reported were 11 officers killed in action or died from wounds, 10 officers wounded and one officer missing; 157 enlisted men killed in action or died from wounds, 213 enlisted men wounded, and 25 enlisted men missing.

The announcement was made in the department's eleventh communique of the war. Outlining the situation up to 5 p. m., E.S.T., today, the communique continued merely the report on casualties in Hawaii and added "there is nothing to report from other areas."

The text of the communique:

1. Hawaii: Practically complete reports indicate the following casualties were sustained by the Army in the surprise attack by Japanese bombing planes on the island of Oahu on Sunday, Dec. 7:

Officers killed in action or died from wounds	11
Wounded	10
Missing	1
Enlisted Men
Killed in action or died from wounds	157
Wounded	213
Missing	25

2. There is nothing to report from other areas.

These Ships Were Lost

DEC 16 1941

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP)—Here are the ships the Navy reported were lost at Pearl Harbor:

Battleship Arizona, 32,600-ton ship of the Pennsylvania class. Launched June 19, 1915, New York Navy Yard. Twelve 14-inch guns, 12 five-inch guns and eight five-inch anti-aircraft guns. Three aircraft. Cost, $7,425,000. Normal complement, 1,358 officers and men.

Destroyers Cassin, Shaw and Downes, 1,500 tons each. Cassin and Shaw launched Oct. 28, 1935, at Philadelphia Navy Yard. Downes Apr. 22, 1936, at Norfolk Navy Yard. Five five-inch dual purpose guns, 12 torpedo tubes. Cost $3,400,000 to $3,750,000 each. Normal complement, about 170 officers and men.

Target ship Utah, 19,800 tons. Launched Dec. 23, 1909, at New York Shipbuilding Company yards as a battleship. Overage and converted to a training ship for anti-aircraft gunnery and experimental purposes.

Mine layer Oglala, 4,200 tons. Former Fall River Line passenger ship acquired by the Navy during the World War and converted to mine layer. One five-inch gun, two three-inch anti-aircraft guns. Normal complement, 373 officers and men.

2-MAN SUBMARINES VEILED IN MYSTERY

Japanese Sea Weapon Revealed by Knox Believed to Need Mother Ship Near By SURPRISE IS UNEXPLAINED

How Tiny Craft Safely Passed Defenses to Menace Ships Is Not Revealed

DEC 16 1941

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Tiny two-man submarines, believed to be the smallest submersibles ever used in modern warfare, took part in the surprise Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, it was revealed today.

Reporting at his press conference on the Dec. 7 attack, Mr. Knox mentioned that a two-man submarine approached within a few yards of an American seaplane tender, but was disabled by gunfire and then sunk by a destroyer's depth charges.

The Secretary said such tiny submersibles had a range of probably no more than 300 miles, but parried other questions, declining to say whether the Navy had prior knowledge of their existence. He had told reporters earlier that the raid had revealed no new weapons of any kind.

The Japanese lost three submarines in the raid. Of these, one "not of normal size" was captured, Mr. Knox said. Another of "normal size" was sunk, along with a vessel he described merely as small.

To get within range of Pearl Harbor, the two-man submarines presumably would require a mother ship, just as an aircraft carrier must bring short-range planes within reach of their objective.

Mr. Knox shed no light on how the submarines had managed to slip within the bottleneck entrance to Pearl Harbor, risking entanglement in anti-submarine obstacles.

There has been no record of such small subsurface craft going into action in modern times. The Italians in the Mediterranean have used one-man surface torpedoes in attempts to blast British warships at anchor, but the smallest conventional undersea boats require crews of thirty or more men.

The Nazis have been reported building large numbers of small submarines, but those playing leading roles in the Battle of the Atlantic have been vessels capable of ranging hundreds of miles at sea.

Congressmen Call For Investigation Of Failure In Pearl Harbor Defenses

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 15—Many members of Congress said today that the damage at Pearl Harbor was less than they had feared and they expressed satisfaction over Secretary Knox's statement that much of the fleet was now at sea seeking contact with the enemy.

But Chairman Connally (Dem., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said:

"The statement . . . that neither the navy nor the army was on the alert at Hawaii when it was attacked by the Japanese is amazing. It is astounding. It is almost unbelievable.

"The navy of John Paul Jones and that of Dewey must wear crepe. The old army must carry an arm band. While the report as to destruction of naval craft is not as bad as first reports, the loss of life is staggering.

Responsibility On Commanders

"The naval commander and army general should be investigated vigorously. Theirs is the responsibility and it ought to be determined whether either or both are inefficient or criminally negligent. They must be one or the other.

"I have always been a big-navy man. I have always supported the strongest possible navy. I have always wanted the most powerful navy in the world. I am pained and grieved at its seeming failure of its high duty."

Senator Chandler (Dem., Ky.), a member of the Military Affairs Committee, said he was relieved that the losses in ships were not greater than enumerated by Knox.

"If that is all we have lost," Chandler said, "we ought to be able to take the offensive right away according to long-time plans of action."

Wants Congress To Keep Out

Senator Johnson (Dem., Col.) said that Congress "ought to keep out of this" and leave any inquiry to the President.

Senator Van Nuys (Dem., Ind.) said he was not surprised at Knox's report that there were extensive fifth-column activities, since there were so many Japanese on the islands. Van Nuys expressed satisfaction at what he said was Knox's "frank" revelation of what had happened in the Pearl Harbor attack, adding:

"A Presidential investigation should be made, not for punitive reasons but for preventive reasons—to prevent inertia of that kind some place else."

DEC 16 1941

Other Comments

Senator Hill (Dem., Ala.)—Unfortunate as it was, it wasn't as bad as we had been led to expect.

Senator McKellar (Dem., Tenn.)—It is a bad blow, but it could have been worse. The only thing for us to do now is to spit in our hands and beat the hades out of them.

Senator Gurney (Rep., S. D.)—It is a blow, but it is not as bad as some people tried to lead us to believe.

On the House floor, Representative Dingell (Dem., Mich.) said that his "deductions of dereliction" had been confirmed, but added that he was "satisfied that the navy will go to the bottom of this matter," and expressed hope that the War Department would do likewise.

Text Of Knox Naval Loss Statement

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 15—The text of Secretary Knox's statement detailing losses in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor follows:

My inspection trip to the island enables me to present the general facts covering the attack which hitherto have been unavailable.

I. The essential fact is that the Japanese purpose was to knock out the United States before the war began. This was made apparent by the deception practiced, by the preparations which had gone on for many weeks before the attack, and the attacks themselves which were made simultaneously throughout the Pacific. In this purpose the Japanese failed.

DEC 16 1941

2. The United States services were not on the alert against the surprise air attack on Hawaii. This fact calls for a formal investigation which will be initiated immediately by the President. Further action is, of course, dependent on the facts and recommendations made by this investigating board. We are all entitled to know it if (A) there was any error of judgment which contributed to the surprise, (B) if there was any dereliction of duty prior to the attack.

Gives Navy Losses

3. My investigation made clear that after the attack the defense by both services was conducted skillfully and bravely. The navy lost—

(A) The battleship Arizona which was destroyed by the explosion of first its boiler and then its forward magazine due to a bomb which was said to have literally passed down through the smokestack;

(B) The old 'arget ship Utah which has not been used as a combatant ship for many years, and which was in service as a training ship for anti-aircraft gunnery and experimental purposes;

(C) Three destroyers, the Cassin, the Downes and the Shaw;

(D) Mine layer Oglala. This was a converted merchantman formerly a passenger ship on the Fall River Line and converted into a mine layer during the World War.

The navy sustained damage to other vessels. This damage varies from ships which have been already repaired, and are ready for sea, or which have gone to sea, to a few ships which will take from a week to several months to repair.

In the last category is the older battleship Oklahoma which has capsized but can be righted and repaired. The entire balance of the Pacific fleet with its aircraft carriers, its heavy cruisers, its light cruisers, its destroyers and submarines are uninjured and are all at sea seeking contact with the enemy.

[Editor's Note—In his oral explanation Secretary Knox said that, besides the categories named, "the entire balance of the Pacific fleet" includes battleships.]

4. The known Japanese material losses were three submarines and forty-one aircraft.

5. Army losses were severe in aircraft and some hangars, but replacements have arrived or are on their way.

DEC 16 1941

6. The up-to-date figures of navy killed and wounded are: officers, 91 dead and 20 wounded; enlisted men, 2,638 dead and 636 wounded.

The Secretary told in some detail of many individual actions of outstanding courage. He said:

In the navy's gravest hour of peril, the officers and men of the fleet exhibited magnificent courage and resourcefulness during the treacherous Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor.

The real story of Pearl Harbor is not one of individual heroism, although there were many such cases. It lies in the splendid manner in which all hands did their job as long as they were able, not only under fire but while fighting the flames afterward and immediately starting salvage work and reorganization.

Prompt action saved many lives and a vast amount of material. Without exception, all ships and stations rose to the emergency. Less than four minutes after the first alarm, guns of the fleet went into action against enemy aircraft. Seconds later the first Japanese plane was shot down.

First Telling Blows

To a recruit seaman aboard a battleship probably goes the honor of striking the first telling blow in the fleet's defense. Even before general quarters sounded, this youngster single-handedly manned a machine gun and blasted an attacking torpedo plane as it leveled against his ship.

The dying captain of a battleship displayed the outstanding individual heroism of the day. As he emerged from the conning tower to the bridge, the better to fight his ship, his stomach was laid completely open by a shrapnel burst. He fell to the deck. Refusing to be carried to safety, he continued to direct the action.

When the bridge became a blazing inferno, two officers attempted to remove him. But he ordered them to abandon him and save themselves. The latter found themselves blocked by the flames.

Only the heroic efforts of a third officer enabled them to escape. He climbed through the fire to a higher level from which he passed one line to an adjoining battleship, and another to his trapped shipmates. By this frail means they made their way to safety.

Entire ships' companies showed exemplary valor and coordination. Drama was thus crowded into a few seconds on board an aircraft tender moored at the naval air station, target of the enemy's fiercest bombing and strafing.

DEC 16 1941

Crashed On Deck

With the ship already on fire from repeated high-altitude attacks, her anti-aircraft batteries downed a plane which crashed in flames on deck. At this moment her captain observed the shadow of an enemy two-man submarine approaching within a few yards of the vessel. It was placed under fire. Hits were scored immediately and the submarine exposed her conning tower.

At that instant a destroyer stood down channel, passed directly over the submarine, and sank it with depth charges. Doubtless saved from this craft's torpedoes, the tender then shot down a second plane, which fell on land near by.

Men fought with the cool confidence that comes from complete indoctrination for battle. In one case, a single bluejacket manned a 5-inch anti-aircraft gun after his ten battery mates had been shot down by a strafing attack.

He would seize a shell from the fuse pot, place it in the tray, dash to the other side of the gun, and ram it home. He would then take his position on the pointer's seat and fire. After the third such round, a terrific explosion blew him over the side of the battleship. He was rescued.

At the several naval air stations attacked, crews dashed into the flames enveloping planes set ablaze by incendiaries, stripped off free machine guns, and with them returned the enemy's fire. In at least one instance an enemy craft was shot down.

Two cruiser scouting seaplanes, their speed and maneuverability reduced by heavy pontoons, destroyed an attacking Japanese pursuit ship of thrice their speed.

DEC 16 1941

Personal Heroism

"Simultaneously throughout the navy yard examples of personal heroism developed. Several workmen of Japanese ancestry deserted their benches to help the marine defense battalion man machine gun nests. Two of them with hands blistered from hot gun barrels, required emergency treatment.

Cool as ice, the men who manned the navy yard signal tower from which flashed orders to the anchored fleet, carried out their assignment under a hail of machine-gun fire and bombs from the enemy, as well as shrapnel from their own force's anti-aircraft batteries. None left his dangerous post.

First to observe the invaders through their long glasses from their high vantage point, they sent out the astounding air-raid warning by visual signals. Then they settled into the complex business of transmitting the scores of orders to the ships that fought back at the attackers from their berths, or prepared to stand out to sea.

Men from ships out of action managed at any cost to return to the battle. There were the survivors of the capsized ship who swam through blazing oil to clamber aboard other ships and join gun crews. Crews from another disabled vessel swam into mid-channel, where they were hoisted aboard outward-bound destroyers.

Proof that getting back into battle took precedence over their own lives was the fact that the comparative safety of the shore lay only a few yards away. Lying in a hospital bed when the first air-raid alarm sounded, one officer leaped up, brushed aside nurses and ran across the navy yard to his ship. He fought with such gallantry and zeal, despite his illness, that his captain recommended him for promotion.

Rescues Hundred

There was the case of the destroyer tender which lay alongside a dock undergoing major overhaul, powerless and without armament. Unable to assume an active defense role, she concerned herself with the vital task of rescue with her available ship's boats. One naval reserve ensign volunteered as skipper of a motor launch. With four men he proceeded across Pearl Harbor's reverberating channel through a hail of enemy machine gun fire and shrapnel. They saved almost one hundred men from one battleship—men who had been injured or blown overboard into the oil-fired waters.

The attack on this vessel was at its height as these rescue operations proceeded. Suddenly the launch's propeller jammed. Coolly, the ensign directed the work of disengaging the screw as flames licked around its wooden hull, meantime also supervising the picking up of more victims from the harbor. His captain cited him for "initiative, resourcefulness, devotion to duty and personal bravery displayed."

DEC 16 1941

Account For Raider

Four motor torpedo boats had been loaded aboard a fleet tanker for shipment. Their youthful ensign-captains put their power-driven turret machine guns into immediate action, accounting for at least one enemy raider plane.

To the unsung heroes of the harbor auxiliaries must go much of the credit for helping stem the onslaught. Even the lowly garbage lighters shared the grim task. One came alongside a blazing ship which threatened momentarily to explode. Calmly the yard craft's commander led fire fighting, both aboard the warship and on the surface of the harbor. He kept his tiny vessel beside the larger one for twenty-four hours.

Men's will-to-fight was tremendous. One seaman had been confined to his battleship's brig for misconduct a few days aerlier. When an explosion tore open the door, he dashed straight to his battle station on an anti-aircraft gun. On the submarine base dock a bluejacket, carrying a heavy machine-gun for which there was no mount immediately available, shot the weapon from his arms, staggering under the concussion of the rapid fire.

Saved Many Lives

Quick thinking in the dire emergency probably saved many lives—and ships. A- aviation machinist's mate aboard one ship saw that flames from the huge vessel threatened a repair ship alongside. He ran through the blaze and singlehandedly slashed the lines holding the two ships together. Freed, the smaller craft drew clear.

Only in the final moments, when remaining aboard appeared utterly hopeless, would men leave their ships. Then they went reluctantly. Once ashore, instead of finding some dry place to recuperate from their terrific pounding, they pitched emergency quarters as near their vessels as possible.

sible. And with portable guns they continued to fight; later they stood guard at the same camps as repair operations began on their ships, setting regular shipboard watches.

Not Able To Move

Like all treacherous attacks, the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese caught certain vessels of the fleet under periodic overhaul. While in this condition of repair, such vessels were not able to utilize their offensive powers to the greatest effectiveness. These ships, therefore, turned to with a will at many useful purposes.

One ship rescued with its boats, hundreds of survivors thrown into the water by the force of explosions; meanwhile the surface of the water was becoming a raging inferno from burning oil. Other ships sent their repair parties to help the fighting ships keep afloat. Others sent ammunition parties to maintain the flow of powder and shells to the guns.

Without doubt the whole spectacle was the greatest spontaneous exhibition of cooperation, determination and courage that the American Navy has been called upon to make. The crew of one ship followed it around on its outside as it capsized, firing their guns until they were under water.

Those same men stood on the dock and cheered as one of the more fortunate ships cleared the harbor and passed by, en route after the Japanese. Of all the accounts submitted on that memorable day, the record shows a continual demonstration of courage, bravery and fearlessness of which the American nation may well be proud.

Hirohito Peace Reply Arrives Three Days After Fighting Starts

President, Assailing Record Of Tokyo's Dealings, Cites U. S. Efforts to Aid Nation

(Text of President Roosevelt's speech is printed on page 12).

DEC 16 1941

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today the documented story of the peace talks that smoke-screened Japan's sudden Sunday morning attack on Pearl Harbor to start the war.

His message characterized it as a record "for all history to read in amazement, in sorrow, in horror and in disgust."

He revealed that it was not until three days after the treacherous attacks on United States ships and men and territory that he received an answer to his eleventh hour message to Emperor Hirohito Dec. 6 asking his cooperation in further efforts to preserve peace.

This answer was to the effect that the emperor's "cherished desire" was establishment of peace in the Pacific and that "his majesty trusts that the President is fully aware of this fact."

Reviews Relations

The President summarized the history of Japanese-American relations from the time Commodore Perry "knocked on Japan's doors" in 1853.

For many years after 1853, the President recalled, during a period when Japan was weak and needed friends, the United States "used every influence it could exert to protect Japan in her transition stage."

As the island empire became stronger, the United States followed a Far Eastern policy of conciliation and good will, advocating consistently the safeguarding of China's integrity, fair play for Japan and the open door of equal opportunity for traders of all nations throughout the Far East. The nine-power pact, signed in 1921 by Japan, China, the United States and other nations, embodied these principles.

Flouts Nine-Power Pact

But 10 years later Japan embarked on a career of conquest, flouting the nine-power pact with her 1931 invasion of Manchuria, which was part of China.

"This barbaric aggression of Japan in Manchuria," said the President's message, "set the example and the pattern for the course soon to be pursued by Italy and Germany in Africa and in Europe. In 1933 Hitler assumed power in Germany. It was evident that, once rearmed, Germany would embark upon a policy of conquest in Europe. Italy—then still under the domination of Mussolini—also had resolved upon a policy of conquest in Africa and the Mediterranean."

DEC 16 1941

Axis Collaboration

Stage by stage the collaboration between these three aggressor nations grew closer. Japan in 1937 opend new large-scale military operations against China. Two years later Hitler started the war in Europe with his invasion of Poland and in September, 1940, after the defeat of France, the three Axis powers concluded a tripartite treaty of alliance "deliberately aimed at the United States."

With Japan on the rampage, the situation in the Far East became steadily more precarious and "it became clear that, unless this course of affairs in the Far East was halted, the Pacific area was doomed to experience the same horrors which have devastated Europe."

So the United States "in an endeavor to end this process by peaceful means, while there seemed to still be a chance," opened last April the discussions with Japan which were still going on when the Japanese attacked.

of State Cordell Hull by Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura, asked restoration of normal trade between the two nations; an agreement whereby the United States would supply Japan with oil, and a "hands-off" policy by the United States in China. Japan offered an undertaking to withdraw her troops from French Indo-China "upon either restoration of peace between Japan and China or the establishment of an equitable peace in the Pacific area"—in other words, no Japanese troops would be withdrawn from either Indo-China or China until conclusion of a later general agreement.

DEC 16 1941

Text of the Proposal

Text of the proposal follows:

1. Both the governments of Japan and the United States undertake not to make any armed advancement into any of the regions in the southeastern Asia and the southern Pacific area excepting the part of French Indo-China where the Japanese troops are stationed at present.

2. The Japanese government undertakes to withdraw its troops now stationed in Indo-China upon either the restoration of peace between Japan and China or the establishment of an equitable peace in the Pacific area. In the mean time the government of Japan declares it is prepared to remove its troops now stationed in the southern part of French Indo-China to the northern part of the said territory upon the conclusion of the present arrangement which shall later be embodied in the final agreement.

3. The government of Japan and the United States shall co-operate with a view to securing the acquisition of those goods and commodities which the two countries need in the Netherlands East Indies.

4. The governments of Japan and the United States mutually undertake to restore their commercial relations to those prevailing prior to the freezing of the assets. The government of the United States shall supply Japan a required quantity of oil.

5. The government of the United States undertakes to refrain from such measures and actions as will be prejudicial to the endeavors for the restoration of a general peace between Japan and China.

This proposal, referred to today by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress, was received

Japan Sought Trade Truce in Note of Nov. 20

Proposed U. S. Lift Ban on Commerce, Barred Withdrawal of Troops

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP).—The State Department issued tonight the text of a Japanese proposal last Nov. 20 for a temporary truce in the Pacific which called for the revocation of American economic restrictions in the Far East.

The proposal, handed to Secretary

ROOSEVELT LISTS JAPANESE DECEIT IN 'WHITE PAPER'

shortly before reports reached here of new Japanese troop movements southward.

Welles Asked Explanation

At the time of the reports, Mr. Roosevelt instructed Under Secretary Sumner Welles to ask the Japanese for an explanation. He said then that reinforcement of Japanese forces in Indo-China looked like preparation for further aggression and that "such aggression could conceivably be against the Philippine Islands."

The State Department also published the text of a document handed the Japanese Ambassador by Secretary Hull last Oct. 2, laying down the broad principles regarded by the United States as the "foundation upon which relations between nations should properly rest."

It enumerated four principles:

"1. Respect for the territorial integrity and the sovereignty of each and all nations.

"2. Support of the principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries.

"3. Support of the principle of the equality, including equality of commercial opportunity.

"4. Non-disturbance of the status quo in the Pacific except as the status quo may be altered by peaceful means."

Willkie, Roosevelt Discuss Japan's Attack On Hawaii

Republican Sure of U. S. Victory; Sees War of Production

Washington, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—Wendell L. Willkie received from President Roosevelt today a detailed picture of the damage done by the Japanese in Hawaii and asserted afterward that he "felt much better" because he found no basis for rumors that the damage was so serious as to impair America's ability to defeat Japan.

Willkie and the man who beat him at the polls in 1940 conferred for more than an hour over a White House luncheon.

In response to questions, Willkie said that Mr. Roosevelt had made him no offer of any position with the Government and that that was not the character of his discussion with the Chief Executive.

Rather, he said, he and the President talked over the Hawaiian attack frankly and in detail. There was considerable discussion of the way in which the war effort is being carried on, Willkie said, and of American productive capacity.

Asked how active a role he might play in the present scene, Willkie grinned and replied: "Of course, I'm not running the country. I sought to. I tried very hard and it isn't my fault that I am not."

When asked whether he would be available if the President asked him to serve in some capacity, Willkie replied that there was "no question that any American these days would give anything he had."

Even before he called on Mr. Roosevelt, the Republican leader said he had not needed any assurance that America would win.

"It's a war of production," he said, "and I think American productive capacity can outproduce any country or combination of countries."

NIPPON'S PAST POLICIES REVIEWED BY PRESIDENT

DEC 16 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 15—President Roosevelt's message to Congress reviewing Japanese-American relations follows:

To the Congress of the United States of America:

On December 8, 1941, I presented to the Congress a message in person asking for a declaration of war as an answer to the treacherous attack made by Japan the previous day upon the United States. For the information of the Congress and as a public record of the facts, I am transmitting this historical summary of the past policy of this country in relation to the Pacific area and of the more immediate events leading up to this Japanese onslaught upon our forces and territory. Attached hereto are the various documents and correspondence implementing this history.

A little over a hundred years ago, in 1833, the United States entered into its first Far Eastern treaty, a treaty with Siam. It was a treaty providing for peace and for dependable relationships.

Ten years later Caleb Cushing was sent to negotiate, and in 1844 there was concluded our first treaty with China.

In 1853, Commodore Perry knocked on Japan's doors. In the next few years those doors began to open; and Japan, which had kept itself aloof from the world, began to adopt what we call Western civilization. During those early years, the United States used every influence it could exert to protect Japan in her transition stage.

Definite U. S. Aims

With respect to the entire Pacific area, the United States had consistently urged, as it has for all other parts of the globe, the fundamental importance to world peace of fair and equal treatment among nations. Accordingly, whenever there has been a tendency on the part of any other nation to encroach upon the independence and sovereignty of countries of the Far East, the United States has tried to discourage such tendency wherever possible.

There was a period when this American attitude was especially important to Japan. At all times it has been important to China and to other countries of the Far East.

At the end of the nineteenth century the sovereignty of the Philippine Islands passed from Spain to this country. The United States pledged itself to a policy toward the Philippines designed to equip them to become a free and independent nation. That pledge and that policy we have consistently carried out.

At that time there was going on in China what has been called the "scramble for concessions." There was even talk about a possible partitioning of China. It was then that the principle of the "open door" in China was laid down. In 1900 the American Government declared that its policy was to "seek a solution which may bring about permanent safety and peace to China. . . . Protect all rights guaranteed to friendly powers by treaty and international law and safeguard for the world the principle of equal and impartial trade with all parts of the Chinese empire."

Open-Door Policy

Ever since that day we have consistently and unfailingly advocated the principles of the open-door policy throughout the Far East.

In the year 1908 the Government of the United States and the Government of Japan concluded an agreement by an exchange of notes.

In that agreement, the two governments jointly declared that they were determined to support "by all pacific means at their disposal the independence and integrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all nations in that empire"; that it was "the wish of the two governments to encourage the free and peaceful development of their commerce on the Pacific Ocean"; and that "the policy of both governments" was "directed to the maintenance of the existing status quo" in that region.

The United States has consistently practiced the principles enunciated in that agreement.

In 1921, following the close of the first World War, nine powers having interests in the Western Pacific met in conference in Washington. China, Japan and the United States were there. One great objective of this conference was the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. This was to be achieved by reduction of armament and by regulation of competition in the Pacific and Far Eastern areas. Several treaties and agreements were concluded at that conference.

One of these was the Nine-Power treaty (see Annex 1). It contained pledges to respect the sovereignty of China and the principle of equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations throughout China.

DEC 16 1941

Began 10 Years Ago

Another was a treaty between the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan providing for limitation of naval armament.

The course of events which have led directly to the present crisis began ten years ago. For it was then—in 1931—that Japan undertook on a large scale its present policy of conquest in China. It began by the invasion of Manchuria, which was part of China. The Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations, at once and during many months of continuous effort thereafter, tried to persuade Japan to stop.

The United States supported that effort. For example, the Government of the United States on January 7, 1932, specifically stated in notes sent to the Japanese and the Chinese governments that it would not recognize any situation, treaty or agreement brought about by violation of treaties.

This barbaric aggression of Japan in Manchuria set the example and the pattern for the course soon to be pursued by Italy and Germany in Africa and in Europe. In 1933 Hitler assumed power in Germany.

It was evident that, once rearmed, Germany would embark upon a policy of conquest in Europe. Italy—then still under the domination of Mussolini—also had resolved upon a policy of conquest in Africa and in the Mediterranean.

Through the years which followed, Germany, Italy and Japan reached an understanding to time their acts of aggression and their common advantage—and to bring about the ultimate enslavement of the rest of the world.

A "Friendly" Note

In 1934 the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs sent a friendly note to the United States, stating that he firmly believed that no question existed between the two governments that was "fundamentally incapable of amicable solution." He added that Japan had "no intention whatever to provoke and make trouble with any other power." Our Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, replied in kind.

But in spite of this exchange of friendly sentiments, and almost immediately thereafter, the acts and utterances of the Japanese Government began to belie these assurances—at least so far as the rights and interests of other nations in China were concerned.

Our Government thereupon expressed to Japan the view of the American people, and of the American Government, that no nation has the right thus to override the rights and legitimate interests of other sovereign states.

DEC 16 1941

Peace Fades

The structure of peace which had been founded upon the Washington conference treaties began to be discarded by Japan. Indeed, in December of 1934, the Japanese Government gave notice of its intention to terminate the naval treaty of February 6, 1922, which had limited competition in naval armament. She thereafter intensified and multiplied her rearmament program.

In 1936 the Government of Japan openly associated itself with Germany by entering the anti-Comintern pact.

This pact, as we all know, was nominally directed against the Soviet Union; but its real purpose was to form a League of Fascism against the free world, particularly against Great Britain, France and the United States.

Following this association of Germany, Italy and Japan, the stage was now set for an unlimited campaign of conquest. In July, 1937, feeling themselves ready, the armed forces of Japan opened new large-scale military operations against China.

Presently, her leaders, dropping the mask of hypocrisy, publicly declared their intention to seize and maintain for Japan a dominant position in the entire region of Eastern Asia, the western Pacific and the southern Pacific.

They thus accepted the German thesis that seventy or eighty million Germans were by race, training, ability and might, superior in every way to any other race in Europe—superior to about four hundred million other human beings in that area. And Japan, following suit, announced that seventy or eighty million Japanese people were also superior to the seven or eight hundred million other inhabitants of the Orient—nearly all of whom were infinitely older and more developed in culture and civilization than themseles.

Rights Disregarded

Their conceit would make them masters of a region containing almost one-half the population of the earth. It would give them complete control of vast sea lanes and trade routes of importance to the entire world.

The military operations which followed in China flagrantly disregarded American rights. Japanese armed forces killed Americans. They wounded or abused American men, women and children. They sank American vessels—including a naval vessel, the Panay. They bombed American hospitals, churches, schools and missions. They destroyed American property. They obstructed, and in some cases, drove out, American commerce.

In the meantime, they were inflicting incalculable damage upon China, and ghastly suffering upon the Chinese people. They were inflicting wholesale injuries upon other nations—flouting all the principles of peace and good will among men.

There are attached hereto lists of American nationals killed or wounded by Japanese forces in China since July 7, 1937; of American property in China reported to have been damaged, destroyed or seriously endangered by Japanese air bombing or air machine-gunning; of American nationals reported to have been assaulted, arbitrarily detained or subjected to indignities; of interferences with American nationals, rights and interests.

These lists are not complete. Howeevr, they are ample evidence of the flagrant Japanese disregard of American rights and civilized standards.

II

Meanwhile, brute conquest was on the rampage in Europe and the Mediterranean.

Hitler and Mussolini embarked upon a scheme of unlimited conquest. Since 1935, without provocation or excuse, they have attacked, conquered and reduced to economic and political slavery some sixteen independent nations. The machinery set up for their unlimited conquest included, and still includes, not only enormous armed forces but also huge organizations for carrying on plots, intrigue, intimidation, propaganda and sabotage.

This machine—unprecedented in size—has world-wide ramifications, and into them the Japanese plans and operations have been steadily interlocked.

DEC 16 1941

U. S. In Danger

As the forces of Germany, Italy and Japan increasingly combined their efforts over these years, I was convinced that this combination would ultimately attack the United States and the Western Hemisphere—if it were successful in the other countries.

The very existence of the United States as a great free people, and the free existence of the American family of nations in the New World, would be a standing challenge to the Axis.

The Axis dictators would choose their own time to make it clear that the United States and the New World were included in their scheme of destruction.

This they did last year, in 1940, when Hitler and Mussolini concluded a treaty of alliance with Japan deliberately aimed at the United States.

The strategy of Japan in the Pacific area was a faithful counterpart of that used by Hitler in Europe. Through infiltration, encirclement, intimidation and finally armed attack, control was extended over neighboring peoples. Each such acquisition was a new starting point for new aggression.

III

Pursuing this policy of conquest, Japan had first worked her way into and finally seized Manchuria. Next she had invaded China; and has sought for the past four and one half years to subjugate her.

Passing through the China Sea close to the Philippine Islands, she then invaded and took possession of Indo-China. Today the Japanese are extending this conquest throughout Thailand—and seeking the occupation of Malaya and Burma.

The Philippines, Borneo, Sumatra, Java come next on the Japanese timetable; and it is probable that further down the Japanese page are the names of Australia, New Zealand and all the other islands of the Pacific—including Hawaii and the great chain of the Aleutian Islands.

Violated Mandate

To the eastward of the Philippines, Japan violated the mandate under which she had received the custody of the Caroline, Marshall and Mariana islands after the World War by fortifying them and not only closing them to all commerce but her own but forbidding any foreigner even to visit them.

30.24—13559

Japanese spokesmen, after their custom, cloaked these conquests with innocent-sounding names. They talked of the "new order in Eastern Asia," and then of the "coprosperity sphere in greater East Asia."

What they really intended was the enslavement of every nation which they could bring within their power and the enrichment, not of all Asia, not even of the common people of Japan, but of the war lords who had seized control of the Japanese state. Here, too, they were following the Nazi pattern.

By this course of aggression Japan made it necessary for various countries, including our own, to keep in the Pacific in self-defense large armed forces and a vast amount of material which might otherwise have been used against Hitler.

That, of course, is exactly what Hitler wanted them to do. The diversion thus created by Hitler's Japanese ally forced the peace-loving nations to establish and maintain a huge front in the Pacific.

DEC 16 1941

IV

Throughout this course and program of Japanese aggression, the Government of the United States consistently endeavored to persuade the Government of Japan that Japan's best interests would lie in maintaining and cultivating friendly relations with the United States and with all other countries that believe in orderly and peaceful processes.

Following the outbreak of hostilities between Japan and China in 1937, this Government made known to the Japanese Government and to the Chinese Government that whenever both those Governments considered it desirable we stood ready to exercise our good offices.

During the following years of conflict that attitude on our part remained unchanged.

In October, 1937, upon invitation by which the Belgian Government made itself the host, nineteen countries which have interests in the Far East, including the United States, sent representatives to Brussels to consider the situation in the Far East in conformity with the Nine-Power Treaty and to endeavor to bring about an adjustment of the difficulties between Japan and China by peaceful means.

Japan and Germany only of all the powers invited declined to attend. Japan was itself an original signatory of the treaty. China, one of the signatories, and the Soviet Union, not a signatory, attended.

After the conference opened, the countries in attendance made further attempts to persuade Japan to participate in the conference. Japan again declined.

Conference Scorned

On November 24, 1937, the conference adopted a declaration urging that "hostilities be suspended and resort be had to peaceful [illegible]"

Japan scorned the conference and ignored the recommendation.

It became clear that, unless this course of affairs in the Far East was halted, the Pacific area was doomed to experience the same horrors which have devastated Europe.

Therefore, in this year of 1941, in an endeavor to end this process by peaceful means while there seemed still to be a chance, the United States entered into discussions with Japan.

For nine months, these conversations were carried on, for the purpose of arriving at some understanding acceptable to both countries.

Throughout all of these conversations, this Government took into account not only the legitimate interests of the United States but also those of Japan and other countries. When questions relating to the legitimate rights and interests of other countries came up, this Government kept in appropriate contact with the representatives of those countries.

In the course of these negotiations, the United States steadfastly advocated certain basic principles which should govern international relations.

Territorial Integrity

These were:

The principle of inviolability of territorial integrity and sovereignty of all nations.

The principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries.

The principle of equality—including equality of commercial opportunity and treatment.

The principle of reliance upon international cooperation and conciliation for the prevention, and pacific settlement, of controversies.

The Japanese Government, it is true, repeatedly offered qualified statements of peace intention. But it became clear, as each proposal was explored, that Japan did not intend to modify in any way her greedy designs upon the whole Pacific world.

Although she continually maintained that she was promoting only the peace and greater prosperity of East Asia, she continued her brutal assault upon the Chinese people.

DEC 16 1941

Nor did Japan show any inclination to renounce her unholy alliance with Hitlerism.

In July of this year the Japanese Government connived with Hitler to force from the Vichy Government of France permission to place Japanese armed forces in southern Indo-China; and began [illegible] troops and equipment in that area.

DEC 16 1941

The conversations between this Government and the Japanese Government were thereupon suspended.

But during the following month, at the urgent and insistent request of the Japanese Government, which again made emphatic profession of peaceful intent, the conversations were resumed.

At that time the Japanese Government made the suggestion that the responsible heads of the Japanese Government and of the Government of the United States meet personally to discuss means for bringing about an adjustment of relations between the two countries. I should have been happy to travel thousands of miles to meet the Premier of Japan for that purpose.

Basic Principles

But I felt it desirable, before so doing, to obtain some assurance that there could be some agreement on basic principles. This Government tried hard—but without success—to obtain such assurance from the Japanese Government.

The various proposals of the Japanese Government and the attitude taken by this Government are set forth in a document which the Secretary of State handed to the Japanese Ambassador on October 2, 1941.

Thereafter, several formula were offered and discussed. But the Japanese Government continued upon its course of war and conquest.

Finally, on November 20, 1941, the Japanese Government presented a new and narrow proposal which called for supplying by the United States to Japan of as much oil as Japan might require, for suspension of freezing measures, and for discontinuance by the United States of aid to China.

It contained, however, no provision for abandonment by Japan of her warlike operations or aims.

Such a proposal obviously offered no basis for a peaceful settlement or even for a temporary adjustment. The American Government, in order to clarify the issues, presented to the Japanese Government on November 26 a clear-cut plan for a broad but simple settlement.

Proposed Plan

The outline of the proposed plan for agreement between the United States and Japan was divided into two parts:

In Section [illegible] there was outlined a mutual declaration of policy containing affirmations that the national policies of the two countries were directed toward peace throughout the Pacific area, that the two countries had no territorial designs or aggressive intentions in that area, and that they would give active support to certain fundamental principles of peace upon which their relations with each other and all other nations would be based.

DEC 16 1941

There was provision for mutual pledges to support and apply in their economic relations with each other, and with other nations and peoples liberal economic principles, which were enumerated, based upon the general principle of equality of commercial opportunity and treatment.

In Section 2 there were outlined proposed steps to be taken by the two governments. These steps envisaged a situation in which there would be no Japanese or other foreign armed forces in French Indo-China or in China.

Mutual commitments were suggested along lines as follows: (a) To endeavor to conclude a multi-lateral non-aggression pact among the governments principally concerned in the Pacific area; (b) To endeavor to conclude among the principally interested governments an agreement to respect the territorial integrity of Indo-China and not to seek or accept preferential economic treatment therein; (c) Not to support any Government in China other than the National Government of the Republic of China with capital temporarily at Chungking; (d) To relinquish extraterritorial and related rights in China and to endeavor to obtain the agreement of other governments now possessing such rights to give up those rights; (e) To negotiate a trade agreement based upon reciprocal most-favored-nation treatment; (f) To remove freezing restrictions imposed by each country on the funds of the other; (g) To agree upon a plan for the stabilization of the dollar-yen rate; (h) To agree that no agreement which either had concluded with any third power or powers shall be interpreted by it in a way to conflict with the fundamental purpose of this agreement; and (i) To use their influence to cause other governments to adhere to the basic political and economic principles provided for in this suggested agreement.

DEC 16 1941

Hull Scored Moves

In the course of these conversations, we learned that new contingents of Japanese armed forces and new masses of equipment were moving into Indo-China. Toward the end of November these movements were intensified. During the first week of December new movements of Japanese forces made it clear that, under cover of the negotiations, attacks on unspecified objectives were being prepared.

I promptly asked the Japanese Government for a frank statement of the reasons for increasing its forces in Indo-China. I was given an evasive and specious reply. Simultaneously, the Japanese operations went forward with increased tempo.

We did not know then, as we know now, that they had ordered and were even then carrying out their plan for a treacherous attack upon us.

I was determined, however, to exhaust every conceivable effort for peace. With this in mind, on the evening of December 6 last, I addressed a personal message to the Emperor of Japan.

To this Government's proposal of November 26 the Japanese Government made no reply until December 7.

On that day the Japanese Ambassador here and the special representative whom the Japanese Government had sent to the United States to assist in peaceful negotiations delivered a lengthy document to our Secretary of State one hour after the Japanese had launched a vicious attack upon American territory and American citizens in the Pacific.

Hull Calls Turn

That document was a few minutes after its receipt aptly characterized by the Secretary of State as follows:

"I must say that in all my conversations with you (the Japanese Ambassador) during the last nine months I have never uttered one word of untruth. This is borne out absolutely by the record. In all my fifty years of public service I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions—infamous falsehoods on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any Government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

I concur emphatically in every word of that statement:

For the record of history, it is essential in reading this part of my message always to bear in mind that the actual air and submarine attack in the Hawaiian Islands commenced on Sunday, December 7, at 1.20 P. M., Washington time—7.50 A. M. Honolulu time of same day—Monday, December 8, 3.20 A. M., Tokyo time.

To my message of December 6 (9 P. M. Washington time—December 7, 11 A. M. Tokyo time) to the Emperor of Japan, invoking his cooperation with me in further effort to preserve peace, there has finally come to me on December 10 (6.23 A. M. Washington time—December 10, 8.23 P. M. Tokyo time) a reply, conveyed in a telegraphic report by the American Ambassador at Tokyo dated December 8, 1 P. M. (December 7, 11 P. M. Washington time).

DEC 16 1941

For The Record

The Ambassador reported that at 7 o'clock on the morning of the eighth (December 7, 5 P. M. Washington time) the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs asked him to call at his official residence; that the Foreign Minister handed the Ambassador a memorandum dated December 8 (December 7, Washington time) the text of which had been transmitted to the Japanese Ambassador in Washington to be presented to the American Government; this was the memorandum which was delivered by the Japanese Ambassador to the Secretary of State at 2.20 P. M. on Sunday, December 7 (Monday, December 8, 4.20 A. M. Tokyo time); that the Foreign Minister had been in touch with the Emperor; and that the Emperor desired that the memorandum be regarded as the Emperor's reply to my message.

Further, the Ambassador reports, the Foreign Minister made an oral statement. Textually, the oral statement began, "His Majesty has expressed his gratefulness and appreciation for the cordial message of the President."

The message further continued to the effect that, in regard to our inquiries on the subject of increase of Japanese forces in French Indo-China, his Majesty had commanded his Government to state its views to the American Government.

The message concluded, textually, with the statement:

Establishment of peace in the Pacific, and consequently of the world, has been the cherished desire of his Majesty for the realization of which he has hitherto made his Government to continue its earnest endeavors. His Majesty trusts that the President is fully aware of this fact.

Japan's real reply, however, made by Japan's war lords and evidently formulated many days before, took the form of the attack which had already been made without warning upon our territories at various points in the Pacific.

There is the record, for all history to read in amazement, in sorrow, in horror and in disgust!

DEC 16 1941

In Self-Defense

We are now at war. We are fighting in self-defense. We are fighting in defense of our national existence, of our right to be secure, of our right to enjoy the blessings of peace. We are fighting in defense of principles of law and order and justice, against an effort of unprecedented ferocity to overthrow those principles and to impose upon humanity a regime of ruthless domination by unrestricted and arbitrary force.

Other countries, too—a host of them—have declared war on Japan. Some of them were first attacked by Japan, as we have been. China has already been valiantly resisting Japan in an undeclared war forced upon her by Japan.

After four and one half years of stubborn resistance, the Chinese now and henceforth will fight with renewed confidence and confirmed assurance of victory.

Joined By British

All members of the great British commonwealth, themselves fighting heroically on many fronts against Germany and her allies, have joined with us in the battle of the Pacific as we have joined with them in the battle of the Atlantic.

All but three of the governments of nations overrun by German armies have declared war on Japan. The other three are severing relations.

In our own hemisphere many of our sister republics have declared war on Japan and the others have given firm expression of their solidarity with the United States.

The following are the countries which have to date declared war against Japan:

Australia, Canada, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, the Netherlands, Nicaragua, New Zealand, Panama, El Salvador, South Africa, United Kingdom and Poland.

These and other peace-loving countries will be fighting as are we, first, to put an end to Japan's program of aggression and, second, to make good the right of nations and of mankind to live in peace under conditions of security and justice.

The people of this country are totally united in their determination to consecrate our national strength and man power to bring conclusively to an end the pestilence of aggression and force which has long menaced the world and which now has struck deliberately and directly at the safety of the United States.

Historic Dates Listed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Historic dates set forth in President Roosevelt's message to Congress reviewing American-Japanese relations:

1833—U. S. entered into its first Far Eastern treaty—with Siam. It was a treaty providing for peace.

1844—U. S. signs first treaty with China.

1853—Commodore Perry sailed to Japan, and the Japanese began in the next few years to adopt western civilization, with the U. S. protecting them in transition stage.

1900—U. S. announced policy to "seek a solution which may bring about permanent safety and peace to China." (This was after U. S. had taken the Philippines.) This also was beginning of U. S. famous "open door" policy in China.

1908—U. S. and Japan concluded agreement to support by all pacific means the independence and integrity of China and principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all nations in China.

1921—Nine powers launch conference for reduction of armament.

1922 (Feb. 6)—U. S. and Japan sign treaty limiting naval armament.

1931—Japan invades Manchuria, which was part of China.

1932—U. S. warns it will not recognize any situation brought about by violation of treaties.

1933—Hitler assumes power in Germany.

1934—Japan sends "friendly" note to U. S., stating that there were no differences between the U. S. and Japan that could not be settled by amicable solution.

1934—Japan serves notice it is terminating naval limitation treaty of 1922.

1936—Japan signs anti-Comintern pact with Germany and Italy for what President Roosevelt says was "to form a league of Fascism against the free world."

1937 (July)—Japan begins large scale military operations in China, flagrantly disregarding American rights, killing, wounding and abusing American men, women and children, and sinking the Panay.

1937 (October)—Far Eastern peace conference opens in Brussels, Belgium. Japan scorns the conference.

1941 (January)—Latest Japanese-American talks begin.

1941 (Dec. 6)—President Roosevelt addresses note to Emperor of Japan, still seeking peace.

1941 (Dec. 7, 1:20 p. m., EST)—Japan launches air and submarine attack in the Hawaiian Islands.

1941 (Dec. 10, 6:23 a. m., EST)—President Roosevelt receives reply from Japanese Emperor, dated Dec. 8, in which Japan still insisted she wanted peace.

Week's Ship Toll Heaviest In War

Exceeded Only By Losses In Battle Of Jutland During 1916

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—The first week of the allied-Japanese war took a heavier toll of naval vessels than any other week since the present war began in 1939.

To the list which included the British capital ships Prince of Wales and Repulse were added today the names of the American battleship Arizona, the destroyers Cassin, Downes and Shaw, the target ship Utah and the minelayer Oglala, all destroyed in the surprise Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7.

In addition, Navy Secretary Frank Knox said today several American warcraft were damaged but could be repaired including the battleship Oklahoma, which capsized.

During the week the Americans also lost the minesweeper Penguin and the Brittish, gunboat Peterel.

The United States claimed officially that Japanese losses included the 29,000-ton battleship Haruna, sunk by United States Army bombers, and a vessel of the same class damaged by American Navy flyers. Three Japanese submarines were also listed as lost.

American Marine planes at Wake Island were credited with sinking a light cruiser and destroyer.

The anti-Axis forces also claimed that 10 Japanese troop transports were lost over the week-end at the hands of Dutch submarines and American bombers. Five more were said to have been badly battered by planes.

Earlier in the week, an American Army communique said United States bombers scored direct hits on three transports, one of which capsized. The Japanese later admitted losing two, while two others were damaged. Two transports and a troop-laden barge were reported hit by bombers at Malay[illegible]

Yesterday a Japanese radio summation said that 270,000 tons of American warships had been sunk or damaged, while British naval casualties were put at 87,000 tons sunk or damaged.

On the second day of the war, the Japs claimed to have captured many merchant ships in the Pacific, and yesterday they claimed seizing 225 British ships. They are known to have taken the 10,000 American President liner President Harrison in Chinese waters and the American gunboat Wake, which they have recommissioned as the Tatara.

The week's naval losses although tremendous, did not equal those suffered in the battle of Jutland in May, 1916, when more than 8,000 British and German lives were lost. In that fight, Britain lost three battle cruisers, three armored cruisers and eight destroyers, while the Germans lost a battleship, a battle cruiser, four light cruisers and five destroyers.

Midway and Wake Islands Still Hold Out

Norwegian Ship Sunk in Waters of Hawaii Area

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—News from the Pacific fighting was, on the whole, cheerful today.

Their first invasion forces shattered and driven off except at three widely-scattered points, the Japanese appeared to be carrying out only desultory operations against the Philippines, for the time being.

And the garrisons at Wake and Midway Islands still were holding out.

This was revealed late today by a Navy communique which also said cryptically that a Norwegian motorship was sunk while approaching the Hawaiian Islands. What the motorship's purpose was or how she was sunk was not disclosed.

The communique said:

"A Norwegian motorship was sunk while approaching the Hawaiian Isles. The crew was rescued by naval vessels. The Hawaiian area otherwise has been without incident. Recent enemy bombing in the Philippine theatre has resulted in no damage to naval installation or ships. Heavy weather in the North Atlantic hampers naval operations there.

"Midway and Wake Islands continue to resist.

"The above is based on reports up until noon today."

Japs Raid U. S. Naval

Nchols Field Bombed

An early afternoon War Department communique said enemy air operations in the Philippines area were continuing as were ground operations in the north and northwest sectons of Luzon and in the vicinity of Legaspi in southeastern Luzon.

As for other areas, the department said, "there is nothing to report."

Direct Manila dispatches told of a bombing attack on Nichols airfield, in the Manila area. U. S. airmen and ground forces were said to be holding Japanese invaders who gained footholds last week at three points—Aparri, Vigan and Legaspi.

But major campaigns were underway against the British strongholds in the China sea—Hongkong and Singapore. Mechanized Nipponese forces were pushing southward from Thailand toward Singapore and were acknowledged by the British to have gained ground in fierce fighting.

Tokio declared Hongkong's defenses were crumbling under siege gun shelling and incessant bombing, but London indicated cofidence that the strongly-fortified island off the China coast could hold out indefinitely.

One hope for relief of Hongkong was a Chinese offensive against the Japanese flank some 30 miles north of the Island.

Japanese Fear Attack

The American-British-Dutch allies were exacting a heavy price for every gain Japan was making. The United States forces claimed four Japanese troop transports sunk and five damaged, and the Dutch said they had sunk six enemy ships—transports or auxiliaries.

Still another source of satisfaction to the Allies was the officially-expressed apprehension in Tokio that blows might be struck at any time at the main Japanese islands.

The Imperial Army and Navy jointly warned the Japanese people that they must be on guard against "the lurking danger of enemy submarines" and must prepare for "a protracted war wherein hostile submarines and aircraft bombing will play a role."

Twelve hostile planes appeared Saturday off Formosa, Japanese island off the southeast China coast, but dropped no bombs and presumably were on reconnaissance.

Army Flyers Damage Two More Transports To Block Landings

"Lets Keep The Flag Flying," Is MacArthur's Battle Cry

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 15—NBC and CBS representatives broadcasting from Manila tonight reported Japanese flyers again were dropping leaflets on the Philippines—well printed but ungrammatical exhortations to American forces to surrender.

By R. P. CRONIN, JR.
Associated Press Correspondent

Manila, Tuesday, Dec. 16—Japanese raiders bombed the bg Olongapo naval base, fifty miles west-northwest of Manila, at dawn today, but the attack apparently was light, as Manila had no alarm.

Details of this second raid upon Olongapo were not forthcoming immediately from army headquarters. Manila itself spent a quiet night.

The raid followed another yesterday on the Nichols field area here while United States airmen and ground troops apparently were holding the Japanese invasion forces at three widely separated coastal points in Luzon.

Check Reinforcement

Army headquarters announced that its bombers heavily damaged two Japanese transports yesterday off Legaspi, 250 miles southeast of Manila, to check a Japanese reinforcement attempt.

Unofficial reports said Japanese troops who gained a foothold at Vigan, on the western Luzon coast 200 miles north of Manila, had sent out patrols during the week end. However, there was no mention of Japanese activities at Aparri in northernmost Luzon, the third foothold retained by the Japanese.

A communique said that Japanese activities today were confined entirely to the air.

Rejects Flag Suggestion

"Let's keep the flag flying," Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur told an officer who suggested that the flag atop headquarters might guide Japanese bombers.

As the Philippine population settled down to war after the first week's excitement diminished, a summary of United States official reports shows that at least forty Japanese planes have been destroyed, four Japanese transports and the 29,000-ton battleship Haruna have been sunk, and a battleship of the Kongo class and five more transports have been damaged.

A Philippine division also was credited with smashing a Japanese landing force at Lingayen, one hundred miles northwest of Manila.

5th Column Drive Pushed

nounced from Batavia yesterday that their submarines, previously reported to have sunk four Japanese transports in the Gulf of Siam, had also sunk a Japanese tanker and a freighter in the same area.

The general situation in the Philippines, which Lieut.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters yesterday described as "Well in hand both on the ground and in the air," was today officially stated to be unchanged.

TWO JAP TRANSPORTS BOMBED OFF LUZON

Toll of Troopships Hit by U. S. Flyers Raised to Nine—Enemy Tries New Landings Manila Raided Again.

By R. P. Cronin

Manila, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—United States Army bombers, resisting Japanese attempts to re-enforce the troops they landed at Legaspi, on the southeastern tip of Luzon, 250 miles from Manila, heavily damaged two Japanese transports yesterday, United States Army Headquarters reported today.

DEC 16 1941

This announcement of the new American successes followed by twenty-four hours an official bulletin declaring that during the first week of the war, army bombers sank four Japanese transports and badly damaged three more off northern Luzon, where the invaders effected landings at several places.

Four Japanese fighter planes were shot down during yesterday's action off Legaspi, a communique declared.

Manila Bombed Again.

Japanese air raiders, meanwhile, returned to the attack on Luzon, sweeping over the Manila area about noon (11 P. M. Eastern standard time) and dropping bombs which a brief communique said fell in the vicinity of Nichols Field. The communique, issued at 4 P. M. (3 A. M. Eastern standard time), said that enemy activities throughout the day were confined entirely to the air.

The picture evoked by these succeeding announcements, coupled with reports of successes achieved by Dutch submarines off Malaya, was one of heavy Japanese losses. The Dutch an-

U. S. Planes Attack at Aparri.

Unofficial reports said that the Japanese forces established around Vigan, on the west coast of Luzon, 200 miles north of Manila, had sent out patrols over the week end in an attempt to widen their foothold.

There was no mention, however, of further fighting at Lingayen, 100 miles northwest of Manila, where a Philippine Army division, Gen. MacArthur said yesterday, had smashed a Japanese landing force; nor at Aparri in northernmost Luzon, where the Japanese also have landed troops. American warplanes, however, were said to have made several attacks on the Aparri area to thwart Japanese attempts to establish an air base there.

Today's Activity Slight.

There was no indication that the Japanese had actually been able to land more troops at Legaspi. Up to yesterday, army headquarters said, only a limited number of men had been put ashore there and these were reported under sharp attack from the air.

DEC 16 1941

At least forty Japanese planes were officially reported shot down over the Philippines last week, during which time the islands were the target of fourteen major attacks.

Army spokesmen firmly reiterated that the Japanese had thus far not landed any parachute troops in the Philippines, and that unofficial reports to the contrary have been found to be false.

Today's communique disclosed that Senator-elect Manuel Roxas, a lieutenant-colonel of reserves in the Philippine Army, has been ordered to active service with American troops and has been detailed as aid-de-camp to Gen. MacArthur. Col. Roxas was formerly Secretary of Finance in the Cabinet of President Quezon.

The Philippines National Assembly, in session during the noontime air raid, went to a sheltered basement where it approved the declaration of a state of total emergency, authorized President Quezon to effect it and amended a previous resolution of support to the United States so as to include Germany and Italy as enemies of the Philippines.

Manila Is Quiet.

Manila appeared meanwhile to be adapting itself rapidly to wartime conditions. The undeniable tension and the sense of unreality which followed the first unexpected Japanese assault appeared to be giving place to a grim determination to make the best of things. Business is still going on here much as usual, although several hundred American women and children have been moved out of the city to places of greater safety.

All newspapers are publishing daily, though the number of pages in each edition has been reduced. Places of amusement are closed at night, except for the ballroom of one hotel where dancing for guests still goes on.

Thus far there has been no food shortage. Prices are rising, however, despite Government efforts at control, and there is some difficulty in obtaining gasoline for civilian purposes.

President Quezon today issued an executive order prohibiting hoarding and calling for stricter enforcement of all anti-profiteering laws.

The authorities meanwhile raided a large house at the edge of downtown Manila and captured a number of Japanese men and women who were hiding to escape internment. All the men were armed. In an unceasing drive against fifth columnists, customs agents have also seized two Japanese who, they said, were found in possession of homemade bombs and dozens of maps.

The Japanese radio continues to direct a steady barrage of propaganda at the Filipinos, urging them to lay down their arms, but this has had no noticeable effect and the Manila radio has not even attempted to jam the broadcasts.

Tokyo Premier Claims Triumph, Then Warns of War to Be Fought

TOKYO, Tuesday, Dec. 16 (From Japanese Broadcast Recorded by (AP)—Premier Hideki Tojo, addressing an extraordinary session of the Japanese Diet, today reiterated his assertions that Japan had declared war on the United States only after trying all means of peaceful settlement. He declared:

"Our fighting services have speedily broken through the enemy key positions within less than ten days. The bulk of the American Fleet which had been at Hawaii is destroyed; the main body of the British Far Eastern Fleet is crushed; the encircling front against Japan, the strength of which the enemy has exaggerated and given wide publicity in an attempt to intimidate Japan, is shattered at various places.

"The anti-Japanese encircling front already is on a fair way to collapse."

He nevertheless cautioned the Japanese that "a war remains waiting to be fought."

Japanese Imperial Headquarters reported that Japanese expeditionary forces had landed on British Borneo at dawn today despite a heavy gale.

DEC 16 1941

The headquarters also reported that Japanese Army and Navy forces completed occupation of the island of Guam last Friday.

urging Filipinos to "follow Aguinaldo; turn your arms against the Americans."

The former insurrecto declared, however, that "all insinuations that the Filipino public should follow me and recognize me as a leader in these days of grave international emergencies are unfounded."

Enemy Subs Feared

A warning against "the lurking danger of enemy submarines" off Japan's coasts and against raiding planes was sounded by a joint army and navy communique.

The people were told to prepare for a protracted war wherein hostile submarines and aircraft bombing will play a role." The communique said land and sea defenses were ready.

Advancing According To Plan, Japanese Say

TOKIO, Dec. 15 (Official Radio) (AP).—Japanese forces operating on the island of Luzon are advancing according to plan, "crushing enemy resistance at every point," the army section of imperial headquarters said today.

Bombers which attacked air bases on central Luzon Saturday destroyed 40 United States bombers and fighters on the ground and set fire to three other aircraft, it asserted. Another fighter was reported bagged at Aparri, on the northern coast of Luzon.

Barracks, the announcement continued, were destroyed in a raid on United States military headquarters at Baguio and Tarlac.

In the attacks in which United States aircraft were reported destroyed in central Luzon, the army said huge conflagrations also were caused among hangars and oil depots.

A headquarters communique said the latest naval damage inflicted on Americans forces included the sinking of a submarine by a Japanese destroyer off the Philippines on Saturday.

Promise Quick Capture.

Tokio, Dec. 15 (Official Radio Received by A. P.).—Japanese dispatches dated from Kowloon, mainland section of the British colony of Hongkong, declared today that the British defenses on Hongkong island were crumbling under heavy Japanese shelling and aerial bombardment.

Domei, a news agency, predicted that the fall of the island stronghold would be only a matter of days.

Japanese siege guns on the mainland silenced the principal British defense batteries in all-day shelling yesterday, the Japanese dispatches asserted, then opened up again today on defense works along the eastern end of the island.

The Japanese said their bombers were attacking the island incessantly.

It was asserted that the capture of Kowloon, in the mainland part of the colony, gave the Japanese forces observation posts from which they could look directly into the streets of Victoria, on the island of Hongkong.

The offensive by land and air to take Hongkong was launched at dawn yesterday after the reje tion of an ultimatum for surrender. Indian soldiers captured near Kowloon were reported in the Japanese press as estimating the number of regular British troops in Hongkong at not less than 5,000.

Domei announced that army bombers made a sudden mass raid on Manning, important Chinese air base in the southern Province of Kwangsi, and seriously damaged the field.

Tokio Communique Warns Japs Against Enemy Submarines

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 15 (Official Radio).—A joint communique of the Army and Navy sections of Imperial Headquarters warned Japanese today "against the lurking danger of enemy submarines" off Japan's island coasts and urged them to "prepare for a protracted war wherein hostile submarines and aircraft bombing will play a role."

It said land and sea defenses were prepared to meet any sudden attacks or enemy attempts to harass Japan by raiding her sea-borne commerce.

Japs Rename Captured U. S. Ship

Imperial headquarters announced that the United States gunboat Wake, which was captured by the Japanese at Shanghai on the first day of the war, had been commissioned by the Japanese Navy and renamed the Tatara.

Tatara, it was recalled, is the name of a beach on the Japanese island of Kyushu, where a Mongol invasion attempt was repelled in 1281.

Both houses of the Diet (Parliament) held brief meetings today to organize for the formal opening of their extraordinary session tomorrow, Domei reported.

BRITISH ADMIT WITHDRAWAL FROM KOWLOON

DEC 16 1941

Report Shift Of Forces From Hongkong Mainland To Bolster Island

Belittle Japanese Prediction That Fall Of Colony Is Imminent

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 15—Britain admittedly was withdrawing from Kowloon, the mainland section of Hongkong, apparently to bolster the island party of the colony against an expected assault across its mile-wide water barrier.

Advices from Hongkong said imperial forces on the peninsula, in the face of preponderant Japanese strength, had begun a methodical withdrawal which still was in progress.

Maneuver Completed

A Reuters dispatch from Singapore indicated that this maneuver had been completed, saying Kowloon unquestionably was in Japanese hands. A later Singapore communique declared there was no further news from the Hongkong front.

An earlier Singapore communique had reported a heavy artillery duel. Other British reports said light guns were hammering at the Japanese but that the colony's biggest cannon probably were mounted to resist sea attack and could not be used effectively against Kowloon.

Tokyo Claims Denied

Despite this and a hard pounding of the colony by Japanese air forces during the last two days, there was nothing in the British dispatches to support optimistic Tokyo reports that its defenses were crumbling and its fall was merely a matter of days.

Hongkong, strongly reinforced in recent months to face this threat, already had rejected a Japanese ultimatum which, according to a German broadcast today, was delivered Saturday morning and expired Saturday afternoon.

[A British broadcast, heard in New York, acknowledged that Japanese artillery probably was emplaced on Kowloon heights within four miles of Hongkong island and that civilians on the island might be evacuated, but it would be defended to the last.

[The broadcast pictured Hongkong as well protected by a honeycomb of shelters under "the peak," its steeply rising, gun-incrusted backbone, and by specially trained imperial forces ready behind barbed wire, land mines and sharp bamboo spikes to [illegible]

Chinese Movements Watched

Some British sources watched intently for development of a Chinese relief expedition attacking the rear and flanks of the Japanese, but there was no indication so far that it could divert the invaders' main forces facing Hongkong.

There was no information here beyond Chungking reports that a heavy Chinese onslaught was in full swing against the Japanese in the vicinity of Tamshui, about twenty-eight miles north of Hongkong's mainland frontier, and that many Japanese positions had been destroyed there.

Although these indicated a major operation with Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, the Cantonese general who defended Shanghai against the Japanese in 1932, as one of its commanders, some British observers suggested it was more of a guerrilla and sabotage attack.

British Leaving Kowloon.

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—The Japanese have pounded Hongkong from the land and air for the past two days as British forces on Kowloon Peninsula, the Crown colony's mainland area, fell back to defend Hongkong Island, British sources declared today. The withdrawal, it was said, was ordered according to plan and "still is going on."

Japanese dispatches said that Britain's Hongkong defenses were crumbling under the shelling of siege guns on the mainland and incessant aerial bombardment. The fall of Britain's second most vital Far Eastern stronghold was declared to be only a matter of days.

One potential source of relief for the colony was a Chinese attack on the rear and flanks of the Japanese on the mainland, but the British here said that they had no information on that operation beyong Chungking advices that a fierce assault is in full swing against the Japanese in the Tamshui area, north of Hongkong.

Heavy Guns on Island.

Hongkong Island rises steeply from the flat water front to the gun-studded heights of the Peak, overlooking the island city of Victoria and the Kowloon plains across about one mile of water. The British said that they were using their lighter guns to defend Hongkong against attack from across the narrow channel, but that [illegible] guns—some of which have been described as eighteen-inchers—probably are mounted for use against sea attack and could not be used successful aginst the Kowloon threat.

Britons followed the Chinese reports avidly, but official sources offered no hint whether they expected much help for Hongkong's defenders, even though the Chinese claimed to have destroyed many Japanese positions in the Tamshui area, only about twenty-eight miles north of Hongkong's mainland frontier. One Chinese commander was said to be Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, the Cantonese leader in the defense of Shanghai against the Japanese attack there in 1932.

In answer to Prime Minister Churchill's message telling Hongkong's defenders, "Every day of your resistance brings nearer our certain victory," Sir Mark Young, Governor of the besieged colony, replied that "We intend to do our best."

A Reuters dispatch from Singapore at almost the same time said: "There is now no doubt here that Kowloon on the Chinese mainland opposite Hongkong is in Japanese hands."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Churchill sent a message to the Hongkong defenders assuring them: "All our hearts are with you in your ordeal. Every day of your resistance brings nearer our certain victory."

Withdrawal In Malaya

In the fighting in Malaya, a British official said there had been a "slight withdrawal" of British troops as "very heavy fighting" progressed in the Kedah sector, northwest of Singapore.

Casualties on both sides may be severe, he said.

He added that the Japanese had landed on the east side of the Kra Isthmus and had crossed it to enter Burma. Their success in cutting the Malay Peninsula, he acknowledged, would affect air communication between Burma and Singapore because of air fields involved.

(The Japanese landing thus was from the Gulf of Siam above the landings directed at Singapore. At that point, the Kra Isthmus, which links Malaya with the Asiatic mainland, is only some fifty miles wide.)

Rangoon Has Raid Alarms

(The vicinity of the Japanese landings is about 500 airline miles south of Rangoon, Burma's chief port and the Indian Ocean gateway for China's supplies over the Burma road. Rangoon is around the crook of the Gulf of Martaban, however, and therefore considerably farther by land from the Japanese position.)

The British informant said he had no information about the progress of the Japanese in Burma.

(The BBC, in a broadcast heard by NBC, said that Rangoon had had several air-raid alarms, but that thus far no bombs had been dropped on the city. Yesterday, the broadcast said, British fighters warded off three attacks by Japanese bombers.)

A Japanese communique reported here claimed the capture of "an important air base in western Malaya," but there were no details to amplify this.

INVADERS PUSH STILL FARTHER INTO MALAYA

Defenders Taking Heavy Toll Of Enemy, Their Communique Says

New Landings By Nipponese Balked By RAF And Dutch Subs

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 15—Japan's mechanized troops aided by dive-bombers have smashed their way into southern Kedah, the northwestern Malayan state bordering Thailand, the British acknowledged tonight.

[This indicated a Japanese penetration of more than fifty miles on the road to Singapore, some 400 miles away.]

The British and Indian defenders fell back before the five-day-old Japanese push after taking a heavy toll of the invaders, the communique said.

Kedah is rough jungle country except for the southeastern areas adjoining the Straits Settlements of Wellesley and Penang, which are criss-crossed by small roads connecting the back country with the Malayan east coast railroad.

On the eastern side of the peninsula the British were entrenched south of Kota Bharu, and successful air sweeps by the British and submarine work by the Dutch were reported to have prevented further Japanese seaborne reinforcements.

The Japanese push began from Singora in southern Thailand, where troops were landed along with armored equipment and planes. Singora is connected with Singapore by a railway and main road stretching down the western Malayan coast.

Penang Heavily Raided

Butterworth, a coastal town opposite the rich island of Penang, is on those routes about ninety miles from the Thai border. Japanese bombers have been raiding Penang heavily. Possession of he island would give the Japanese an important base to harass British shipping in the straits of Malacca between Singapore and Rangoon, Burma.

Japanese planes skipped Penang today in their attacks and instead roared even farther south into Malaya to bomb Ipoh, a railway point some 150 miles from the Thai border.

Fighting In Kelantan

Fighting also was reported in Kelantan, the northeastern provincial area where Japanese troops landed a week ago at Kota Bharu. The province is east of Kedah on the other side of the peninsula.

A British army communique from Rangoon said the Japanese also were thrusting into lower Burma.

The war bulletin announced that "owing to pressure by Japanese forces our small garrison has withdrawn from Victoria Point according to plan after carrying out the necessary demo-litions."

Victoria Point is the southernmost tip of Burma.

Nazi Reported Shot Down

An Aneta dispatch from Batavia, capital of Dutch Java, quoted an RAF wing commander in Singapore as saying that "a pilot of a plane shot down by anti-aircraft guns near Kota Bharu was a Nazi."

The airman also asserted that British pilots inflicted heavy losses on the Japanese troops landing on the east Malayan coast in sloops lowered from Japanese cruisers and destroyers.

The Dutch commercial air lines announced a resumption of service between Batavia and Singapore, indicating confidence in the British position in Malaya.

Batavia had another brief air-raid alarm until a bomber flying toward the capital was identified.

A Netherlands communique confirmed the sinking of two Japanese ships, a freighter and a tanker, by Dutch submarines operating off the Malayan coast.

DEC 16 1941

Invaders Are Advancing in Kedah Sector Despite Heavy Casualties.

Singapore, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—British and Indian troops, falling back before a fierce Japanese push in Malaya tonight, admittedly were fighting in southern Kedah, a northwestern State 100 miles long on the western side of the peninsula. (This indicates a Japanese gain of more than fifty miles.)

The communique said that the situation in the difficult jungle country was confused and that the Japanese advance came after the defenders inflicted heavy losses on the invaders.

Some fighting was going on on the east side of the peninsula in Kelantan also, the communique said. Penang, strong island base off the west Mayalan coast, was free of bombing today, but Ipoh was said to have experienced a short warning.

The Japanese were using armored troops in their southern push.

(The BBC, quoting dispatches from the Malayan front, said that Eglish, Scottish and Indian troops were holding a defense line about twenty miles south of the Thailand frontier, but that some fighting actually was taking place on Thai territory.)

(Britain now regards Thailand as an enemy-occupied country "with all the consequences which follow," an authorized spokesman said in London today.

British Call Thailand Enemy Area

(The British Minister to Thailand has not been heard from for a day or two, but at last advices was still in Bangkok, the spokesman said.)

There was no indication that the Japanese had been able to widen the foothold they established Wednesday in landing troops at Kuantan, on the Malayan east coast, 150 miles north of Singapore.

Singapore itself had another air-raid alarm yesterday, but no bombing was reported. Japanese planes also were reported beaten off three times in attempts to bomb the west coast port of Penang.

(Australia is doing everything possible "to maintain and, if necessary, reinforce our air strength in the Malayan battle zone," Air Minister A. S. Drakeford declared at Melbourne today.

(As for land forces, however, War Minister Francis Michael Forde asserted that "there is at present no need to consider sending more militia abroad.")

The beginning of the second week of the conflict found Singapore's passive defense services fully mobilized. Nightly blackouts are being enforced strictly and firewatchers are operating on a twenty-four-hour basis.

Stringent Regulations

Stringent regulations, backed by the threat of stiff fines and prison terms, have been introduced to prevent hoarding and profiteering. The food reserve was said to be ample, but householders were permitted to accumulate only a week's normal supplies and prices were fixed at the December 6 level.

An early rush by Singapore's Asiatic population to leave the city appeared to be dying down as officials sought to discourage departure of persons having no resources. Every morning, however, thousands leave congested districts to spend the day in tree-shaded suburbs.

Refugees Sheltered

Arrangements are being made to povide housing facilities for approximately 600 European women and children being brought here from Penang, which has been a frequent target of Japanese air raiders.

Approximately 400 Japanese women and children residing in Malaya when the war broke out now are quartered in an island camp near Singapore which in peacetime served as a quarantine station.

A hunt for fifth columnists is being pressed continuously, intensified by an announcement that ten Japanese men still are at large here.

Chinese Push To Relief Of Hongkong

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Dec. 15—The Japanese have been forced to retire from some of their positions outside Canton as a result of fierce Chinese attacks, and a savage Chinese attack is in full swing in the Tamshui area north of Hongkong, the official Chinese Central News Agency reported today.

Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, hero of the Chinese-Japanese hostilities at Shanghai in 1932, is among the commanders leading the troops to the relief of Hongkong, other Chinese sources said.

Jap Works Destroyed

Tamshui is about 25 miles north of the mainland border line of Hongkong Colony and about 24 miles east of the Canton-Kowloon railway.

The Chinese said they had destroyed many Japanese defense works around Tamshui.

(Although Chungking dispatches indicated the Chinese drive was a serious effort by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's troops to relieve the pressure on the great British base, the British radio said Singapore dispatches suggested the Chinese effort was more in the nature of guerrilla and sabotage warfare. CBS heard the broadcast.)

Flyers Evacuate 275

American and Chinese pilots who braved bombs and artillery fire to land and take off at the Hongkong airport ferried 275 persons from the city during the first two nights of the Japanese siege. Among the rescued were such notable as Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic; Chinese Finance Minister H. H. Kung, and American and British members of the Chinese Currency Stabilization Board. Most of the passengers were set down 200 miles inland, but some were flown all the way to Chungking.

Eight American pilots who participated in these flights were Charles L. Sharp, Fort Worth, Texas; Hugh L. Woods, Winfield, Kan.; Harold A. Sweet, South Pasadena, Cal.; William McDonald, Birmingham, Ala.; Frank L. Higgs, Columbus, Ohio; Robert S. Angle, of California; P. W. Kessler, Chicago, and S. E. Scott, Waco, Texas.

At least three of them—Sharp, Sweet and Woods—went without sleep for 50 to 60 hours, while McDonald joined in the rescue work after making a regular flight from Rangoon to Chungking. From here he rushed to Hong Kong.

No casualties were reported among the pilots or their passengers, who included more than 30 Americans, among them four women.

Jap Ship Loss Confirmed

[By the Associated Press]

Batavia, Java, Dec. 15—A Netherlands communique declared today that the sinking of two Japanese ships, a freighter and a tanker, off the Malayan east coast had been officially confirmed.

The sinkings, reported yesterday, were credited to Dutch submarines, which, the Netherlands Navy said, sank four Japanese transports in the same waters last Saturday.

Batavia Has Raid Alarm

The communique said low-flying unidentified planes were over N. E. I. territory today, but no attacks were reported.

Batavia had its seventh air-raid alarm of the war when an unidentified bomber was sighted, but as in the previous cases no aerial attack materialized.

Aneta, Netherlands Indies news agency, reported today that it had been learned officially that German pilots took part in Japanese air attacks last week on the British airport at Kota Bharu, in northeastern Malaya.

DEC 16 1941

Aneta said a British air force officer declared that the pilot of one plane brought down by British anti-aircraft fire at Kota Bharu was a German.

Burma Garrison Retires.

Rangoon, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—British Army Headquarters in Burma announced today that "owing to pressure by Japanese forces our small garrison has withdrawn from Victoria Point," the southernmost tip of Burma, on the West Coast of the Malay peninsula. The communique said that the necessary demolitions were carried out before the British moved back to other positions.

Australia Asks Britain To Boost Orient Air Aid

Canberra, Tuesday, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Australian Government was reported today to be making strong representations to London for concerted action to strengthen immensely the air power of the empire's Malayan and Far Eastern defenses.

It was said to have been suggested that Australia could provide much additional flying personnel if Britain could send the planes, particularly high-speed fighters.

At the same time plans were shaping up for further expansion of Australia's own aircraft production.

Australians Offer More Men.

Melbourne, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—Australia is doing everything possible "to maintain and, if necessary, to re-enforce our air strength in the Malayan battle zone," Air Minister A. S. Drakeford declared today.

As for land forces, War Minister Francis Michael Forde asserted: "There is at present no need to consider sending the militia abroad."

Carniverous Beasts At Johore City Ordered Destroyed Lest Bombs Loose Them

DEC 16 1941

Singapore, Dec. 15 (AP)—Tungku Makhota, heir to Sultan Ibrahim of Johore, today had the carniverous animals in the zoo at Johore City, near Singapore, destroyed, because it was feared bombings might open the cages and free tigers, panthers and leopards.

Singapore and Johore, the Malay state just to the north, are two of the most important collection points for captive wild animals in the world.

For years the zoo has been the chief interest of the Sultan's eldest son and one of the chief attractions of southern Malaya.

Axis Maps Its Answer To 'Anglo-Saxon Camp'

Leaders Meet In Berlin To Consider Counter-Move To Allied War Council Plan

Berlin, Dec. 15 (Official Radio Received by A. P.)—Axis leaders met here today in a special session described by DNB as "a fitting answer to proposals made in the Anglo-Saxon camp to form an allied war council."

A communique said merely that German, Japanese and Italian representatives were "summoned for the purpose of discussing new and important tasks resulting from the common war against the Anglo-Saxon powers."

Those present included German Grand Admiral Erich Räder, Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command; Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Italian Ambassador Dino Alfieri and Japanese Ambassador Gen. Hiroshi Oshima.

ENVOYS OF AXIS TALK IN BERLIN

Von Ribbentrop Calls for Close Co-operation.

Berlin, Dec. 15 (Official radio received by A. P.).—Representatives of Germany, Italy and Japan met today in a special conference which a German communique said was "summoned for the purpose of discussing new and important tasks resulting from the common war against the Anglo-Saxon Powers." The German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, reviewed the situation created by the widened sphere of the war and declared that the closest cooperation between the three big Axis Powers was necessary.

Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German High Command, welcomed Japan's armed forces as new comrades in arms. The Italian Ambassador, Dino Alfieri, and the Japanese Ambassador, Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, emphasized their governments' accord with the views of the Nazi Government.

Detailed plans then were agreed upon for the continuation and extension of Axis co-operation. Also present at the conference were Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of the German Navy, and Field Marshal Gen. Erhard Milch, State Secretary of the Air Force.

Thailand Acclaims Axis.

The German radio, in a dispatch from Bangkok, capital of Thailand, said today that German, Italian and Japanese diplomats, as well as high Japanese officers, attended a Foreign Office reception yesterday at which the Thai Prime Minister, Puang Pibul Songgram, "welcomed the new alliance and new comradship in arms between Japan and Thailand."

Teiji Tsubokami, Japanese Ambassador to Bangkok, declared that Germany and Italy would carry out the new order in Europe while Japan would do the same in the Far East, the dispatch added.

Nazi Plotting in Tokio Revealed By a Reporter Out of Japan

Gen. Ott, Key Figure in Germany's Intrigue in Orient, Is Aided by Gestapo and Propaganda Experts.

DEC 16 1941

By CLARK LEE.

(The following account of Germany's manipulations behind the scenes in Japan was written by an Associated Press foreign correspondent who arrived recently in Manila after three years in the Associated Press bureaus in Tokio and Shanghai.)

Manila, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—Back of Japan's every military move in the past weeks of war and preparation for war has been the hardly hidden hand of key Nazi agents taking an increasing part in directing the correlation of Japanese and German total war efforts.

Though the very stab-first tactics of Japan's attack eight days ago on Hawaii, the Philippines and Malaya followed the pattern advocated for years by jingoist Japanese admirals, they apparently were checked over carefully with German advisers at a strategy session which assembled in Shanghai the week before Japan attacked the United States and Britain.

The key figure in the Nazi intrigue in the Orient is Major-Gen. Eugen Ott, a huge, powerful man, some 6 feet 4 inches tall, weighing nearly 250 pounds, with the saber-scars and many of the mannerisms of a Hollywood-version Prussian officer. His chief henchmen are Henrich Georg Stahmer, German Ambassador to the puppet Chinese regime at Nanking, and Dr. Ernst Wendler, Minister to Bangkok.

Other high Nazi officials are swarming throughout the Orient, aided by hundreds of underlings of many nationalities. A heavy infiltration of Japanese "tourists" in Thailand just before the latest hostilities was a familiar demonstration of Nazi methods.

A chief objective of Nazi intrigue in the Orient is a negotiated peace between Japan and the Chinese Generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek, through the medium of the Nanking "National Government of China" under Wang Ching-wei. The Germans have established firm relations with this Japanese puppet regime and likewise are promoting the spread of the Chinese Fascist movement, launched in North China by Japanese militarists at Peiping.

In on Ground Floor.

Gen. Ott, whose agents are in every strategic ministry and department in the Japanese Government, got in on the ground floor with wide and laborously-earned personal knowledge of Japan's military problems and methods. Soon after the world war, a major, he went to Tokio as a junior military attache.

He helped in the training of Japanese forces deep in the interior of Japan and followed their course of conquest step by step from the first rattle of guns in Manchukuo. His agents keep him advised of Japan's moves, in many cases before the Japanese themselves are advised.

As an illustration, Gen. Ott's wife is reported to have telephoned to her close friend, the German wife of Shigenori Togo, the information that Togo was to be made Foreign Minister, though Togo had not yet been asked to take the post. Gen. Ott and his high-powered propagandists call the tune for most Tokio newspapers—even to the extent of promoting an occasional anti-Jewish editorial in a land where there is barely a handful of Jews.

Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, Nazi economic expert who negotiated Germany's pre-war trade agreements with many nations of Europe, is shaping plans to reorganize the post-war economy of the Orient, and Gen. Ott's multifarious aids include a trained staff of economic experts and industrial technicians, as well as Gestapo agents, diplomats, military men and propagandists. Gen. Ott maintains liaison with his associates in China through an ace Gestapo official, Col. Kurt Meisinger.

Col. Meisinger, Gestapo chief in Warsaw after the German occupied the former Polish capital in 1939, makes two or three trips monthly between Tokio and Shanghai carrying highly confidential documents in locked cases which are under the ceaseless surveillance of two burly young Nazis in civilian clothes.

Stahmer, before becoming Ambassador to the Nanking Government, was associated closely with the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop and was Germany's signer of the tripartite military alliance in Tokio. His assignments in Nanking include Hans Borchers, former Consul-General in New York city, and Herr Boltze, former Minister to Japan.

Allies Dislike Each Other.

In charge of the Nazi propaganda organization in Shanghai is Baron von Puttkanner, member of a well-known German publishing family, rushed to his post with ample plans and funds only ten days before the German Army invaded Russia. His office specializes in news and propaganda broadcasts in several languages, including appeals in Hindustani directed to India in the hope of inciting revolt against British rule.

Despite, or perhaps, because of their growing close association, there is little love lost between the Germans and the Japanese as individuals. In Berlin, Nazi sources have reported that twelve Japanese police agents sent to Germany under the tripartite alliance providing for the exchange of such officials, have made a tremendous nuisance of themselves by prying into internal affairs, and in Japan, especially in Kobe, there have been numerous physical encounters between Germans and Japanese.

Reds Recapture Klin; Nazi Retreat Headlong

DEC 16 1941

Ski Troops Smash Lines; Germans Abandon Stores

MOSCOW, Dec. 16 (Tuesday) (AP) — Red troops smashing against the Winter-worn legions of Adolf Hitler have retaken the strategic railway town of Klin, 60 miles northwest of Moscow, and the gigantic Soviet counter-offensive has overrun scores of other German strong points in a series of new successes announced officially today.

North of Klin in the Kalinin area the Russians killed 8000 more Germans and destroyed or captured vast quantities of precious German equipment transported over the frozen wastes of Russia from Germany, the communique said.

The capture of Klin and the trip-hammer blows at Kalinin had the obvious purpose of restoring service on the Leningrad-Moscow railway, but the general deduction was that the Russians were not going to let the Germans dig in for the Winter anywhere along the front.

German supply lines were reported bogged down, and Hitler's soldiers were suffering from the fierce Russian blizzards and sub-zero temperatures.

Ski Troops Smash Through

Ski-shod Soviet troops penetrated German lines to blow up Nazi blockhouses; guerrillas still played havoc with extended Nazi communication lines, and the frozen approaches to Moscow were littered with Nazi dead and abandoned materiel.

Besides Klin the recapture of Yasnaya Polyana, birthplace of the great Russian novelist, Leo Tolstoi, was announced. That town is southwest of Tula on the southern anchor of the Moscow front. Dedilovo and Bogoroditsk in the same area also were retaken.

A total of 42 settlements were overrun by the Russians in the Klin sector, the Communist party organ Pravda said, and 75 German tanks were seized.

Enormous Soviet Pressure

Enormous Soviet pressure, by official accounts, was being directed at the German salient at Klin itself in an effort to seize the main Moscow-Leningrad railway at that point. Already back in Soviet control, it was added, was the Tikhvin-Volkhov branch line.

In the Klin area of the Soviet drive—which had retaken the town of Solnetschnogorski, 31 miles northeast of Moscow and just to the southeast of Klin—the Nazis were reported being driven back from one village to another in disorderly flight while their dead and wounded lay forgotten upon the frozen ground.

All this was accompanied by official accounts of other widespread Russian offensive action which had the avowed aim not merely of hurling the invader out of Russia but of destroying his last battalion before he could get out.

Reds Drive from Tula

Somewhere about Leningrad, 18 villages and towns—one of them an important point identified only as "M"—were declared back in Russian hands.

On the lower wing of the Moscow offensive, Russian forces smashing southward and southwestward from Tula, the erstwhile Nazi southern anchor, 200 miles below the capital, regained 32 more towns, said "Pravda," and the Germans were reported abandoning vast quantities of materiel in a retreat that often was headlong.

Everywhere, the picture drawn was one of Nazi forces in confusion, and sometimes in panic.

An authoritative military informant in London summed up with the declaration that the Russians in the Moscow theater now definitely held the initiative; that the Germans were thus far helpless to readjust their lines in the face of wild and unending Red assaults.

In another and reliable London quarter the prediction was made that the entire German forces in Russia would attempt to make a winter stand on a long line running from Kholm in the Valdai hills — a point nearly 300 miles northwest of Moscow — down to Kharkov in the Ukraine, some 275 miles above Rostov. Rostov itself was the area of the greatest German penetration into Southern Russia and of the greatest German disaster in the subsequent retreat.

DEC 16 1941

Nazi Losses Very Serious

But, this informant added, the Nazis were being bled heavily by the running attacks of Red cavalry and by specially-equipped snow troops.

The Germans had anticipated a halt in their own offensive as weather and supply and transport problems grew more unfavorable, he went on, "but what they didn't bargain for was the remarkable bounce and fierceness of the Russian counter-offensive.

"They did not bargain for the very serious losses in men and motor transports and equipment that the Russians are inflicting on them, and although it is too early to become unduly optimistic, it is quite possible that they (the Germans) may not be able to stop when they get to the position they had prepared for their winter front."

This informant, saying that the German invasion now had definitely failed, for this winter at least, gave these as the principal reasons:

1. The brave Russian resistance and the reinforcement of the western Red armies by troops from Siberia.
2. The Russian scorched-earth policy.
3. German losses in motor vehicles and motorized equipment exceeding the Nazis' expectations.

General Offensive By Reds Reported; 42 Towns Claimed

Russians Seek to Restore Main Moscow-Leningrad Link Through Klin

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Dec. 15.—The Red Army, snapping back from its successful defense of Moscow, Leningrad and the Caucasus, is turning to a general offensive and is now fighting especially hard to restore the main Moscow-Leningrad connection through Klin, Soviet reports said today.

DEC 16 1941

Pravda, Communist Party organ, in a broadcast report, said Soviet troops had cut the Moscow-Leningrad road at one point and taken 42 settlements and 75 tanks in a single day.

The newspaper said troops which had retaken Solnetschnogorski, 31 miles northwest of Moscow and east of Klin, were now throwing the Germans out of other localities and that the Nazi retreat was proceeding in disorder with many hundreds of dead and wounded being left behind. Yakhrona was recaptured five days ago, the account added.

The Tikhvin-Volkhov Railway southeast of Leningrad already has been cleared of the Germans, Pravda said.

Heavy German Losses.

In one village in the Klin district, Pravda said, the Russians found a report from the commander of the 239th German Infantry Regiment showing that his unit had lost half of its remaining strength of 400 men in one day.

The Russians said their purpose now is to exterminate the German armies on their soil.

Pravda said the Soviet troops driving Adolf Hitler's tired, beaten soldiers back from Moscow had destroyed "an entire generation of Nazis."

Claim 6,000,000 Toll.

The Russians claim Hitler has lost 6,000,000 men since his invasion June 22, more than 15,000 tanks, 13,000 planes and 19,000 cannon.

This is the broad picture the Russians paint in claiming the Moscow victory the greatest of the war with Germany:

1. Moscow saved.
2. German efforts to encircle Leningrad smashed.
3. The Nazi drive for vital Caucasus oil supplies hurled back along the Sea of Azov, with German forces now surrounded at Taganrog.

(In London observers speculated on the possibly desperate situation of two German salients north and south of the capital, which might be subjected to devastating flank attacks in the areas around Tikhvin on the north and Kharkov on the south.

32 More Towns Claimed.

The army organ, Red Star, thus exhorted Soviet forces:

"It is necessary to finish the enemy and administer such a blow that he will never be able to rise again. Complete extermination of Hitler's hordes, the complete extermination of every German occupant to the last man is our objective."

Specifically, Pravda said the Russians, driving southward and southwestward from Tula, had recaptured 32 more villages in that area. The newspaper said the Nazis had abandoned great quantities of materiel in a retreat there which at times was a headlong flight.

The Red Army also claims to have recaptured the railway station at Uzlovaya, 40 miles southeast of Tula—which is 100 miles south of Moscow—Dubna, west of Tula, and Verkhove, northeast of Livny, after day-long battling.

Verkhove is in the Orel sector, about 200 miles south of Moscow, where the Soviet radio has claimed the Russians took 400 towns and villages.

A 25,000-ton German troop transport ship is reported to have been sunk by a Russian naval unit in the Black Sea.

Lt. Gen. Leonid Govorov, commanding Soviet defenses in the sector southwest of Moscow, said the Germans were just about 20 miles west of the capital at one time.

Once a tank advance was halted by the desperate expedient of covering an enormous area with kindling and setting it afire.

See Winter Line Planned.

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—German armies falling back before the furious thrusts of Red cavalry and specially trained snow troops were believed by observers here to be planning to attempt a winter stand on a line from the Valdai Hills to Kharkov in the Ukraine. These sources said that from this line extending from 200 miles northwest of Moscow to the Donets basin—well back of the German's deepest penetration into Russia—the Nazis hoped to strike east again in the spring.

Well-posted informants said that the Germans, when they realized they would be stopped short of Moscow, counted on being forced merely to halt their offensive because of weather, supply and transport problems.

"But what they didn't bargain for," one source added, "was the remarkable bounce and fierceness of the Russian counteroffensive. They did not bargain for the very serious losses in men and motor transports and equipment that the Russians are inflicting on them. . . .

"They may not be able to stop when they get to the positions they prepared for their winter front."

DEC 16 1941

Supplies Run Short.

He said that the Germans also were confronted with rapidly diminishing supplies and with too few workers in factories to keep up output for a fighting force of 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 men on the Russian front.

The arrival of the Red Army's "tough guy" troops—hardened veterans from Siberia—also was said to have helped blunt the German drive. It was pointed out, too, that the "scorched earth" police policy left the Germans less booty than they had expected and forced them to undertake vast repair of railroads and other facilities before they could be converted to the use of the invaders.

Red Attacks Repulsed, Nazi Command Says

BERLIN, Dec. 15 (official radio) (AP).—The German high command said today that Russian attacks had been repulsed with heavy losses at several points.

The German airforce, it said, had made successful attacks on Russian concentrations in the Donets Basin and strongly attacked Soviet rail communications between the Don and Donets Rivers. It said the Reds suffered "particularly sharp losses in heavy weapons and rolling stock" during raids which ranged from the southern front to the Murmansk railway.

In North Africa, the high command said, German bombers dropped heavy bombs on British columns and gun emplacements southwest of Tobruk.

In the Aegean Sea German patrol planes damaged a British submarine with depth charges, the high command said.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Iran Government has approved the military alliance with Great Britain and Soviet Russia, which has been in process of consideration for several weeks, said a broadcast of the Ankara radio today. The station, heard here by NBC, said its source of information was the Teheran radio.

London, Dec. 15 (AP)—The German radio said tonight the Russians had been approached through the Turkish Government at Ankara with a proposal for exchange of German-Soviet war prisoners, but that no reply has been forthcoming from Moscow.

It said further that Russia had denied permission for German Red Cross representatives to visit prison camps in the Soviet Union.

Nazis Demand More Rumanian Troops

NEW YORK, (AP)—A British broadcast heard today by NBC said Field Marshal General Walther Von Brauchitsch, German commander in chief, was reported on his way to Bucharest to demand that Rumania furnish five more divisions for the fight in Russia. The broadcast said Rumanian chief of state, Gen. Ion Antonescu, had opposed sending more soldiers because he feared an adverse effect on public opinion.

Tension Eased, Moscow Doffs Battle Dress for Sunday Best

Soviet Capital Marks Retreat of Germans, Strollers Crowd Park, Children at Play

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

DEC 16 1941

MOSCOW, Dec. 14 (delayed).—The glistening white capital exchanged battledress for its Sunday best today as its inhabitants celebrated the retreat of Adolf Hitler's legions from their near-siege positions.

With a group of American and British correspondents flown in from Kuibyshev yesterday I viewed the city's scars and heard from men and women who stayed grimly by their posts through two bitter months of German air and land onslaughts the epic story of their struggle for existence.

Residents who underwent as many as seven air raids in a single day, and on several days four, told of hearing the heavy thud of artillery during one bad night when the Germans came closest. Nightly they saw on the horizon the flashes from the big guns reaching for their city.

No Serious Food Shortage.

There never was any serious food shortage, residents said. Bread was always available, they reported, and they also had rationed meat, potatoes, fats, kerosene and other essentials. Coffee and some other articles were obtainable without ration cards. But they went without tobacco and alcoholic beverages. Match speculators who appeared were quickly eliminated.

Only once were real fears felt for the city's resistance, residents said. That came during the dark days of October 16 and 17, when a mass exodus accompanied the peak of the first of two German offensives.

Later in October the residents got a breather, and Muscovites on November 7 quietly celebrated the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution with a Red Square parade.

The tension was renewed November 16 when the Germans launched their second offensive, but arrival of the pick of the Red Army reassured the populace, who also got tangible evidence of drooping German morale.

"We saw German prisoners here in Moscow," one resident said. "Only one that I saw had a fur cap. Twenty or 30 others wore very thin clothes, with shawls wrapped around the heads. They shivered in the cold."

Spirits then rose with the announcement that Rostov had been recaptured.

Today strollers crowded the Alexandrov Park under the walls of the Kremlin, Gorky street—Moscow's Fifth avenue—and the Arbat square on the city's west side. Handsome cavalrymen wearing tall fur hats and blue capes, their sabers gleaming, chatted with pretty girls in colorful shawls and furs. There must have been a couple of hundred thousand children playing in the streets.

In the annex of the damaged Bolshoi Theater was a matinee performance of Rimsky-Korsakov's ballet, "The Hunched Back Horse."

The Byzantine turrets of the Kremlin and the modern structures of Gorky street are standing unscathed. Subways, streetcars and buses are still operating. Lights, water, gas and other public services are still functioning. Merchants are busy.

Bad weather has prevented the Germans from making many air raids recently, but they attempted one last night. The government and Communist party newspapers Izvestia and Pravda have warned the public not to consider the danger entirely passed.

BRITISH CLOSE ON FOE IN LIBYA, BATTLE RAGES

Axis Reported Forced To Turn And Fight Fierce Delaying Action

Imperial Troops Beat Off Two Counter-Attacks, Cairo Says

DEC 16 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 15—British and Indian troops driving on the heels of withdrawing Axis forces in Libya have so narrowed the gap that Gen. Edwin Rommel has been forced to throw the bulk of his remaining tank and infantry strength into a desperate delaying action, it was reported from the front today.

The Imperial Eighth army was said to have closed with the Axis rear guard forty-eight hours ago in a major engagement.

Preliminary reports said this battle was being fought in a heavy rain on a broad front extending roughly from Gazala and Tmimi on the coast south to the desert track known as Trigh El Abd.

Counter-Attacks Fought Off

North of Trigh El Abd, the British and Indians twice fought off counter-attacks by German tanks and truck-borne infantry, according to today's headquarters communique. It claimed destruction of 16 Nazi tanks and 6 planes and capture of 7 guns, a supply dump containing 70,000 gallons of fuel, and 20 officers and 500 other prisoners in this action and another to the southwest.

DEC 16 1941

British sources here said mopping-up operations in this sector were adding constantly to the accumulation of seized Axis stores and equipment which General Rommel apparently had not had time to destroy.

Stragglers Mopped Up

Some Axis detachments, originally cut off by the British drive on Gazala, forty miles west of Tobruk, apparently managed to work their way west again in the direction of Derna. But British patrols were said to be operating far west of the battle area, presumably ready to keep these forces from joining any main body.

Other fugitives and stragglers in small numbers, the communique reported, were being mopped up between Tobruk and Salum, in the Egyptian frontier area.

Sources here conceded it would take some time to clean out Axis positions in Salum, Bardia and Halfaya, but British pressure was reported increasing at all three points.

Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, Middle East commander, sent a message of congratulation to Gen. Neil M. Ritchie, commander of the desert forces, on the success achieved so far.

"The enemy is not yet destroyed but must be given no rest," read his message. "I leave this task to you with the greatest confidence."

New Gains Reported, British Forces Seek Showdown in Libya

Two Counterattacks by Gen. Rommel's Troops Declared Repulsed

By the Associated Press.

DEC 16 1941

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 15.—Further British gains southwest of Gazala were announced by British headquarters today as the Libyan campaign apparently turned into a race by the imperial forces to compel the Axis armies to fight a decisive battle before they can fall back on new and favorable positions.

British and Indian troops twice were counter-attacked by German tanks and truck-borne infantry during the advance, the communique said, "but both attacks were repulsed, 16 German tanks being destroyed and 20 officers and 350 other ranks being captured."

It said more than 700 Axis prisoners, many of them German, were taken yesterday. Heavy new material blows dealt Gen. Erwin Rommel's forces were listed as the capture of seven guns, three tanks and a supply dump containing 70,000 gallons of fuel and the destruction of six Axis planes by British ground forces.

Gen. Rommel is employing heavy forces as a rearguard, frontline dispatches said, in a desperate effort to fend off a full-scale clash with the British 8th Army.

Despite confusion attending the German and Italian retreat along a 40-mile front, the British said Gen. Rommel still was in full control of his forces and that their westward movement was orderly.

The British said they virtually had encircled Gazala, which is some 100 miles west of the Egyptian border, but that they did not know just how many Axis troops were trapped there. The main centers of resistance were said to be there and to the southwest.

Indian Troops Reported Repulsing Nazi Forces

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP).—Indian troops, fighting with Britain's North African Army, were reported today to have repulsed two Axis counter-attacks south of Gazala and destroyed 16 of the 40 tanks participating.

The Indians captured 21 Axis officers and 350 men, advices from the Libyan war front said.

These dispatches declared the German-Italian front at Gazala, reported yesterday to be about 40 miles wide, had been narrowed to 25 miles under continued British pressure.

Mopping-up operations in the area between Gazala and the Egyptian frontier were said to be progressing, with the number of German and Italian prisoners steadily mounting. It was acknowledged, however, that Axis troops still were holding out at Bardia and Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass, which is on the Egyptian side of the border.

The barracks at Salum were reported in British hands, with part of the village being held by the Axis.

ITALIAN TROOP LINER IS SUNK BY SUBMARINE

British in Undersea Drive Get Past Convoy and Fire Torpedo.

SIX SMALLER VESSELS HIT

Two Picked Off in German-held Candia, in Crete, as Raids in Mediterranean Spread.

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—The destruction of two large Axis supply and transport ships and the sinking or damaging of half a dozen smaller vessels by submarines in the Mediterranean was reported by the Admiralty today. Informed quarters said the action indicated desperate Axis efforts to rush re-enforcements to Africa without regard to losses.

Informed quarters conceded that the re-enforcements might be intended to build up a force hundreds of miles west of the present fighting in Libya to safeguard Tripoli and prevent the British from taking up positions along France's Tunisian frontier.

A British submarine entered the German defended harbor of Candia, Crete, to sink one supply ship and a tug.

Another ship of 12,000 tons, resembling the Italian liner Virgilio and believed to be a transport, was sunk while in convoy, the Admiralty said.

"It is known that ships of this type have been used as troop transports," the bulletin added.

The foray into the harbor of Candia, the Admiralty declared, resulted in the torpedoing and sinking of a supply ship and a salvage tug.

Other Results Listed

Other results achieved in submarine attacks on Axis Mediterranean supply lines were listed as follows:

An Italian ship of the Ramb Class damaged by torpedoes.

[Lloyd's Register lists four ships in this class, all of about 3,660 tons. Seizure of one of the group, the Ramb IV, was claimed by the British last July, while another, the Ramb I, was reported sunk by the British cruiser Leander in March.]

Two supply ships of mediur size attacked while under th protection of a destroyer and on damaged by a torpedo hit.

A medium-sized supply ship, a schooner and a caique (small fishing boat) sunk by gunfire.

BIG GUNS IN FRANCE BOMBARD BRITAIN

Long-Range Artillery Fires for Three Hours.

Dover, England, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—German long-range guns on the coast of France pounded away for three hours today in the longest and heaviest bombardment of Britain's southeast coast in several weeks. Most shells landed in the Dover area.

SUBMARINE IS LOST

British Disclose Tetrarch Is Long Overdue.

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—The Admiralty announced today that the submarine Tetrarch is overdue and must be considered lost.

Jane's Fighting Ships lists the Tetrarch as one of the newest submarines in the Triton class. Launched in 1940, she carried a crew of fifty-three, was armed with one four-inch gun and two smaller guns and 10 torpedo tubes and was classified as a patrol type craft for general service.

DEC 16 1941

Italians Admit Loss Of Two Light Cruisers

ROME, Dec. 15 (Official Radio) (AP).—The Italian high command today acknowledged the loss of two light cruisers in the Central Mediterranean.

The war communique said Italians at Gazala, 40 miles west of Tobruk, were resisting vigorously against continued British pressure.

The communique said 20 British planes were shot down in the North African fighting, 13 by Italian and German fighter planes and 7 by anti-aircraft gunners. The Italians admitted losing two planes.

British raids against Derna and Cirene also were acknowledged, with two persons killed but no damage caused.

The communique said the two light cruisers were sunk by torpedos. It asserted that all crew members were saved.

(Previously the British had announced the sinking of three Italian cruisers in the Mediterranean during the week end.)

The high command also asserted that an Italian submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Dutch destroyer while a second submarine torpedoed a British cruiser in the Central Mediterranean.

NAZI WATERS MINED

R. A. F. Sows New Fields During Air War Lull.

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force mined German waters during the night, losing one plane during the operations, the Air Ministry announced today.

There was no indication of British raids on Germany or Germany-occupied territory and the Government disposed of Nazi air activity last night with a terse: "Nothing to report."

What, No Snow!

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Egyptian Government broke off diplomatic relations today with Hungary and Rumania, which have declared war on Great Britain and the United States.

De Valera Says Ireland Status 'Friendly Neutral'

Dublin, Dec. 15 (AP)—American-born Prime Minister Eamon de Valera says Eire must adhere to her policy of neutrality, despite the spread of the war to involve the United States.

"It would be unnatural if we did not sympathize in a special manner" with the United States, he said yesterday at a parade of defense forces in Cork, but he emphasized that Eire could only be a "friendly neutral."

He said "any other policy would have divided our people and for a divided people to enter this war should have been to commit suicide."

Guerrillas Immobilize 24 Axis Divisions, Greeks Report

Enemy Seeks to Starve Nation Into Submission, Spokesman Declares

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—A spokesman for the Greek government in exile declared today that 24 Axis divisions are immobilized in Greece trying to suppress guerrillas who are persisting in resistance despite near starvation and shortage of arms.

In all, he said, 326,000 men in 16 Italian divisions, 3 German divisions and 5 Bulgarian divisions are tied up in Greece along with a "considerable number" of Nazi planes.

The Greek war is being carried on by fighters who swoop down from Macedonian mountain hideouts, wiping out Axis detachments and seizing material and food, the spokesman said.

"The Germans have been unable to quell the outbreaks so they are doing their best now to starve the country into submission," he asserted.

DEC 16 1941

"Widespread famine conditions are existing now throughout the country and at least 450 persons are dying daily from starvation. The Greeks are receiving less than 250 calories of food a day. Before the war it was between 3,000 and 4,000 daily."

The Greek report of ceaseless resistance paralleled a Yugoslav report that Serb efforts have become extensive and that a former Yugoslav colonel, Draja Mhailovic, has been raised to general in recognition of magnificent work.

Petain Regime Assails Nazi Edict Dooming 100 More in France

'Profound Uneasiness' Declared Provoked By New Order

By the Associated Press.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Dec. 15.—Standing squarely against an order of the German occupation authorities for the first time since the 1940 armistice, the Petain government last night condemned a German edict for the execution of 100 alleged Jewish Communists and anarchists in Occupied France.

A Vichy communique asserted the 100 were "delinquents" instead of hostages, who have been executed by the scores this fall, but declared that the very high number of those condemned provoked "profound uneasiness among Frenchmen."

Vichy made it clear the Petain government had expressed its attitude to the Germans and indicated its representations had been unsuccessful.

The Germans announced Saturday the 100 would be shot in reprisal for "recent attacks against the occupation troops."

They also fined Jews in the occupied zone 1,000,000,000 francs (nominally $20,000,000).

German reprisal measures reached their height in October when 100 hostages were shot at Nantes and Bordeaux for the slaying of two German officers. One hundred other hostages were condemned to be shot but were reprieved.

DEC 16 1941

The Vichy communique, broadcast by Vichy and the British radio and heard in New York by National Broadcasting Co., said in part:

"The French Government has learned with bitter regret of a notice of reprisals just published by the German authorities, because it has always voiced its condemnation and that of the French people of the actions in question.

"It has succeeded in arresting through its own police the culprits involved in several of these attempts."

France to Shut Plants 2 Weeks, Lacks Materials

Dec. 21-Jan. 4 Recess, Caused by Shortages, to Affect Work on German Orders

VICHY, Dec. 15 (AP).—French factories, including those working for Germany, were ordered by the French government tonight to close from Dec. 21 through Jan. 4. The announced reason was shortage of raw materials and coal, and all except the smallest factories were affected.

The stoppage applies to factories working for Germany on several orders. During the first several days the owners may use the workers to repair machinery, but afterward must pay them during their enforced idleness.

(This dispatch did not say how small a factory must be to be exempted. The order, however, apparently goes much further than a previous announcement, which said blast furnaces and plants working on government orders probably would be exempt.)

Italy Executes Five In Anti-Fascist Plot

Buenos Aires, Dec. 15.—(AP.)—An Argentine news dispatch from Rome said five of the nine persons condemned to death for a revolutionary espionage plot at Trieste, Italy, were executed today and that the others had their sentences commuted to life in prison.

Nine Italian Plotters Sentenced to Death

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 15.—Nine of 60 persons accused of conspiring against the Italian state have been sentenced to death after a trial at Trieste, the Swiss Telegraph Agency reported last night in a dispatch from Rome.

Forty-eight others were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 3 to 30 years, while the remaining three were acquitted, the dispatch said.

The defendants had been accused of plotting to blow up bridges, participating in the sabotage of munitions plants, planning subversive acts with Yugoslav elements and conspiring to assassinate Premier Mussolini in 1938.

Polish Typhus Reported Killing Hundreds Daily

300 Burials Every 24 Hours In Warsaw Ghetto Alone, Stockholm Paper Hears

Bern, Dec. 15 (AP)—A serious epidemic of typhus in the Ostmark area of western Poland was reported today by the Kaunas correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet.

DEC 16 1941

He quoted Polish circles as saying one fourth of the population in the Polish ghettos was dying, with 300 burials a day in the Warsaw ghetto alone.

He said the disease, which is conveyed by lice, had extended into parts of White Russia and the Baltic countries and that some German troops were infected.

SPAIN POSTPONES SAILINGS OF SHIPS TO THE AMERICAS

Madrid, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—The Spanish Trans-Atlantic Company announced today that all sailings of Spanish merchantmen for the Americas had been postponed by Government order.

Specifically the company said the scheduled sailing of the liner Marques de Comillas for New York tomorrow had been postponed.

The dispatch did not explain the significance of this development, but cancellation of ship sailings has beeen a signal of an approaching change of a country's status with respect to the war—as in the case of Italy in the late spring of 1940. Spain signed the anti-Comintern pact last month and there have been rumors of German efforts to enlist her more closely in the Axis cause, perhaps to get her to permit the passage of Axis troops to northwestern Africa.

Representatives of Germany, Italy and Japan met in Berlin today in a special conference, and German spokesmen later explained that the meeting was called to take up the question of new war tasks.

DEC 16 1941

The American Export Lines recently announced suspension of their New York-Lisbon service, although Portuguese lines have announced they would continue their infrequent sailings to North and South America, the last steamship links between the European continent and the new world.

Captain Under $10,000 Bail

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—Capt. Jose Albert, of the Spanish freighter Isla de Tenerife, and Edouardo Ferrando, ship's radio operator, were held tonight in $10,000 bail each on a charge of conspiracy to violate the neutrality act provision against shipment of certain merchandise abroad without a Treasury Department export license.

The 5,115-ton vessel, scheduled to sail last Saturday, was detained after Federal officials said they found among the ship's stores numerous radio transmission parts, armored electrical copper cable, 100 50-gallon drums of lubricating oil and $36,000 worth of silk. Ship's stores are items of provision for a one-way voyage.

Customs men said the silk, found on the pier and ready to be loaded, was of a type used in airplane construction and that there were enough radio parts to build fifty transmitters.

First Since War Began

The seizures and arrests were the first in this area since the war started.

Marcelino Garcia and Manuel Diaz, ship's agents, and Jose Mayorga, shipping broker, were held in $1,500 bail each.

Leon Finnelly, the agents' lawyer, said that Garcia had been in the United States since 1902, had five grandchildren, and was a reputable businessman. Diaz, he said, has been here since 1907 and has two children here.

Both are American citizens, he said, and "could have no connection with the subject matter of this complaint."

Federal men described Mayorga as a British subject who had been here about five years. Neither Albert nor Ferrando is an American citizen. Ferrando was held as a material witness, according to Jerome Doran, United States Attorney.

SPAIN HALTS SAILINGS; WAR MOVE IS FEARED

Axis Thrust at Gibraltar, North Africa Considered Possible

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Washington kept an alert eye on Atlantic developments today. The Spanish government's order cancelling all sailings of merchantmen for the Americas raised a question whether some change of policy was in the offing. A German thrust through Spain to Gibraltar and North Africa long has been considered a possible eventual development.

POLICE RECOVER JAP RADIO

250-Watt Transmitter Taken By Mexico City Authorities

Mexico City, Dec. 15 (AP)—A 250-watt radio transmitter was recovered today by police on the city's outskirts where it was dumped by two men, apparently Japanese, from an automobile bearing diplomatic license plates.

Mexico severed diplomatic relations with Japan and then with Germany and Italy last week and the Axis legations no longer have diplomatic immunity. The legation staff are still here, however.

Toledano Suggests Half-Million Men in Latin America to Aid Democracy

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15 (AP).—Formation of people's armies of half a million men throughout Latin America to support democratic defense was proposed today by Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Workers of Latin America.

The proposal was submitted to President Manuel Avila Camacho and sent to organization branches throughout Latin America. The labor leader suggested that Mexico enlist members of the National Peasants Confederation and the Mexican Workers Confederation to form its auxiliary army.

Cuba Bans Money Shipment

Havana, Dec. 15 (AP)—Cuba announced today a prohibition on sending money to Spain.

The news came on the same day Madrid announced the postponement of sailing of all vessels for America, by "order of the government." There was no indication, however, that Cuba's action was a result of the Madrid order. Observers said trade between Cuba and Spain would be crippled, and that it might even be terminated.

La Paz, Lower California, Dec. 15 (AP). The Japanese fishing boats Ryono and Toshiro, seized by Mexican marines off Cape San Lucas Saturday, were brought here today.

Argentina Bars Axis Propaganda Against U. S.

Uruguyan Press Backs Move For Recognition Of Britain As Non-Belligerent

Buenos Aires, Dec. 15 (AP)—Acting President Ramon Castillo declared in an interview today that Argentina would not permit distribution of Axis propaganda attacking the United States.

He said his Government was seeking to carry out "with rapidity and efficiency" the Argentine recognition of the United States as a non-belligerent.

Montevideo, Dec. 15 (AP)—Uruguayan newspapers almost unanimously threw their support today to a move to have the Government recognize Britain as a non-belligerent in order to open Uruguayan ports to British warships without time limit.

United States warships already enjoy this privilege, Uruguay having joined neighboring Argentina in declaring the United States a non-belligerent.

British Not to Cut Rations

Woolton Says Japan's Attack "Did Not Catch Us Unprepared"

NOTTINGHAM, England, Dec. 15 (AP).—Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, said in a speech today that no immediate changes in rations are proposed, although some newspapers have predicted cuts because of the Pacific war.

Japan's attack "did not catch us unprepared on the food front," he said.

"The London Standard" editorially demanded stiffer rationing because "food is going to be short in this island; Japan's attack on Hawaii and her subsequent assault on British battleships was a direct attack on Britain's food stores."

BRITISH REGULATE KISSING

Soldiers and Sailors can use X's in Letters but not in Rows

London, Dec. 15—(AP)—British soldiers and sailors can send kisses home at the bottom of their letters, but not in rows.

A recent official order to the recreational personnel for British forces in the Orkney and Shetland Islands said: "We have been in touch with the censor, and kisses will be allowed at the bottom of letters so long as they are not in rows, as these can be used as code."

FROGS FOR BRITAIN CAN'T STAND HOP

London, Dec. 15 (A. P.).—Two thousand United States frogs have just been flown across the Atlantic for wartime service in Britain—the first in history to make such a hop—but 75 per cent arrived dead.

The frogs were sent by the American Red Cross in a ferry command bombers for experimental and instructional use at St. Mary's Hospital Medical School.

British scientists formerly bought frogs locally and on the the continent but the war cut off continental supplies and the blackout makes it impossible for frog catchers to use bright lights at night.

United States

DEC 16 1941

MANILA, Dec. 15 (AP)—This communique was issued today from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur:

Enemy activities today were confined to the air.

Japanese aircraft dropped bombs in the vicinity of Nichols Field about noon.

Senator-Elect Manual Roxas, a lieutenant colonel of reserves in the Philippine Army, has been ordered to active service and inducted into the United States Army forces, detailed as aide-de-camp to General MacArthur.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (U.P.)—The War Department issued this communiqué today, covering events up to 9:30 A. M.:

1. Philippine Theatre: Enemy air operations over the Island of Luzon continue. Operations on the ground are continuing in the north and northwest sections of Luzon and in the vicinity of Legaspi, in Southeastern Luzon.

2. There is nothing to report from other areas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—A commmunique of the War Department:

1. Hawaii: Practically complete reports indicate the following casualties were sustained by the Army in the surprise attack by Japanese bombing planes on the Island of Oahu on Sunday, Dec. 7:

OFFICERS

Killed in action or died from wounds	11
Wounded	10
Missing	1

ENLISTED MEN

Killed in action or died from wounds	157
Wounded	213
Missing	25

2. There is nothing to report from other areas.

The Navy Department issued this communiqué:

A Norwegian motor ship was sunk while approaching the Hawaiian Isles. The crew was rescued by naval vessels. The Hawaiian area otherwise has been without incident.

Recent enemy bombing in the Philippine theater has resulted in no damage to naval installation or ships.

Heavy weather in the North Atlantic hampers naval operations there.

Midway and Wake Islands continue to resist.

The above is based on reports up until noon today.

DEC 16 1941

British

SINGAPORE, Dec. 15 (AP)—The British issued this communiqué today:

In Kedah the enemy has pressed his attack and gained ground in spite of the heavy losses he has suffered. Severe fighting continues in South Kedah in difficult country and the situation is confused.

There were some activities in Kelantan yesterday.

Penang was free from bombing today, but Ipoh had a short warning.

There is no further news from Hong Kong.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Admiralty issued this communiqué today:

In the Mediterranean His Majesty's submarines continue to harass enemy shipping.

A medium-sized supply ship, a schooner and a caique have been sunk by shell fire. A supply ship and a salvage tug believed to be the Irene Bernicos were found in the harbor of Candia [in Crete.] Both were sunk by torpedo.

Two supply ships of medium tonnage escorted by a destroyer have been attacked. An Italian ship of the Ramb class has been attacked and hit with torpedoes. It is not known if this vessel was sunk.

A ship of some 12,000 tons, similar in appearance to the Italian steamship Virgilio, has been torpedoed and sunk. This vessel was under escort. It is known that ships of this class have been used as troop transports.

Aircraft of the Bomber Command laid mines in enemy waters last night. One of our aircraft is missing.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 15 (AP)—British Middle East Headquarters issued this communiqué today:

Despite bad weather with low clouds and rain, our main forces made still further progress from the area southwest of El Gazala.

North of the Trigh El Abd, Indian and British troops during their advance were twice counter-attacked by German tanks and lorried infantry, but both attacks were repulsed, sixteen German tanks being destroyed and twenty officers and 350 other ranks being captured.

In addition our troops shot down four enemy dive-bombers and one enemy fighter.

A little further southwest, British troops inflicted casualties on the enemy and captured about 150 prisoners. They took another seven guns and captured an enemy supply dump containing 70,000 gallons of fuel. They also shot down one enemy bomber.

In the frontier area, South African troops have captured another 200 or more prisoners, over half of whom were Germans, and three tanks. They also shelled remaining enemy positions just east of Solum.

Mopping-up operations on the coast between Tobruk and Solum, where fugitives and stragglers still are being found in small numbers, are proceeding satisfactorily throughout the area east and southeast of Tobruk.

The late battlefield is now being cleared and quantities of material capture from or abandoned by the enemy are being collected.

In spite of adverse weather conditions, our air forces still maintained constant and most effective attacks on enemy transport columns throughout the area of operations. In particular they caused severe damage to enemy motor vehicles on the road between Tmimi and Derna.

A communiqué of the Royal Air Force:

Objectives at Derna and enemy aircraft on the landing ground were raided by our bomber aircraft Saturday night. Large fires broke out on the airdrome and violent explosions occurred when bombs scored hits on the barracks. Other bombs caused further explosions and fires.

Shipping and wharves at Bengazi were also attacked.

Yesterday our fighters carried out a number of successful sweeps. In the Tmimi area a JU-87 was shot down and a CA-135 also was destroyed. Two ME-109s were shot down near El Gazala, while a JU-88 was shot down over Tobruk.

Our fighters machine-gunned motor transport moving along the Ghemines-El Agheila road. Many casualties were inflicted on enemy troops and numerous vehicles were extensively damaged.

From these and other operations five of our aircraft are missing.

Netherland

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 15 (AP)—A Netherlands Indies communiqué issued today:

No hostilities have taken place on Netherlands East Indies territory during the last twenty-four hours.

At isolated points low-flying unidentified aircraft were observed.

Yesterday's statement of the sinking of two Japanese ships by Netherland submarines can now be confirmed officially.

No further details can be given regarding the Netherlands Indies actions off the east coast of Thailand in which four Japanese troop ships were sunk, nor regarding the actions off the east coast of Malaya in which two enemy ships were sunk.

The Navy Department said that giving such details would be much too dangerous, and the whole story probably cannot be told before the end of the war, or when the Japanese attacks are completely beaten off.

Russian

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Soviet Information Bureau issued this communiqué today:

During the day of Dec. 15 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts.

In a number of sectors of the western and southwestern fronts our troops engaged the enemy in violent combat, continued their advances, and occupied the towns of Klin, Yasnaya Polyana, southwest of Tula, and Dedilevo and Bogoroditsk, southeast of Tula.

Twenty-four German planes were destroyed on Dec. 14. We lost seven planes. Six German planes were brought down in air combat near Moscow on Dec. 15.

On Dec. 14 our fliers operating on the western front destroyed or damaged forty-two German tanks, more than 1,050 trucks with troops and supplies, destroyed thirty field and anti-aircraft guns with crews, more than 300 ammunition carts, twenty-four fuel trucks and annihilated or dispersed three regiments of enemy infantry.

Our troops operating in one sector of the Kalinin direction within seven days of fighting destroyed seven German tanks, 108 trucks, thirty-three guns, fifty-one machine guns, forty-one mortars and captured three tanks, forty-four guns, thirty-five mortars, 117 machine guns, sixty-seven automatic rifles, twenty-four trucks, 4,500 shells, 250,000 cartridges, four standards and many other trophies.

During the same period the Germans lost 8,000 officers and soldiers killed and wounded.

In one day's fighting General Leliushenko's troops captured eight German tanks, six guns, sixteen machine guns, fifty-eight trucks and other trophies.

Our troops penetrated the enemy lines and blew up three blockhouses, destroyed three guns, six machine guns and annihilated about 200 German soldiers and officers.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 15 (From Italian broadcast recorded by The Associated Press)—Today's High Command communiqué:

Enemy pressure continued at El Gazala and met with vigorous Italian resistance. Italians passed to counter-attack along the whole line.

An enemy thrust on the Solum-Bardia front was repulsed. The enemy left some prisoners in our hands.

The Axis air force took an active part in the fighting. It machine-gunned enemy columns and dispersed enemy mechanized forces.

Twenty enemy planes were destroyed, thirteen by Italian-German fighters and seven by anti-aircraft defenses. Two Italian planes did not return.

During air raids over Derna and Cirene two persons were killed and one person was injured, but no damage was caused.

During operations in the Central Mediterranean two Italian light cruisers sank after they had been torpedoed. Nearly all of the crews were saved.

An enemy destroyer of the former Netherland Navy has been sunk.

A submarine commanded by Captain Torri attacked a British cruiser in the Eastern Mediterranean and hit it with a torpedo.

A submarine commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Campanella torpedoed another enemy cruiser in the Central Mediterranean.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 15 (From German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press)—The High Command issued this communiqué today:

In the east enemy attacks at several points on the front were repelled with heavy losses to the enemy.

The air force successfully attacked enemy concentrations in the Donets basin, as well as railway targets between the Don and the Donets.

Strong forces of bombers and dive bombers with fighter protection struck annihilating blows against tank positions and supply columns of the Soviet in the central sector of the front. The enemy suffered particularly sharp losses in heavy weapons and rolling stock.

In the Volkhov sector, as well as on the Murmansk railway, air force attacks were successful.

Patrol craft of the navy damaged a British submarine in the Aegean Sea with depth charges. Its loss can be reckoned with.

In North Africa renewed British attacks were repelled. German and Italian dive-bombers scored direct hits with heavy caliber bombs on enemy columns and gun emplacements southwest of Tobruk. German bombers set supply depots on fire at an enemy strong point.

Naval artillery shot down two British bombers off the Atlantic coast.

Finnish

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 15 (From Finnish broadcast recorded by The Associated Press) — The Finnish High Command issued this communiqué today:

Karelian Isthmus: Enemy artillery and trench mortars generally in action, keeping up a slow harassing of Finnish positions. Infantry fire has been active at some points. Our own trench mortars and anti-tank guns fired on enemy positions and nests and areas where fortification work was in progress and silenced an enemy anti-tank gun and two machine-gun nests.

Svir Front: Local harassing fire with artillery and trench mortars on both sides. A number of enemy patrols again tried to cross the River Svir but were repulsed. Our artillery and trench mortars scattered an enemy detachment in the act of assembling, silenced a machine-gun nest, destroyed a direct-fire gun and scored direct hits on an enemy staff building.

Eastern Front: In one of the southern sectors an enemy detachment 500 strong launched an attack, which was repulsed, the enemy losing more than 100 killed. In other sectors there is nothing worth mentioning.

Air activity over the Karelian Isthmus and the Svir front has been limited by unsuitable weather. An enemy fighter was shot down in an air fight over Merimaaselka.

Bill of Rights Will Stand, FDR Says

DEC 16 1941

Declares Nothing Can Shake U. S. Hold on Ideals

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP) — President Roosevelt told his countrymen tonight, on the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights, that they were faced now with an attempt to cancel out a "great upsurge of human liberty" embodied in that document and to impose again "absolute authority and despotic rule."

But he declared that "we will not, under any threat, or in the face of any danger, surrender the guarantees of liberty our forefathers framed for us in our Bill of Rights."

The Chief Executive spoke by radio during a program commemorating the appending to the Constitution 150 years ago of the first amendments which guaranteed, among other things, freedom of press, speech and worship.

Americans are solemnly determined, the President said, that "no power or combination of powers of this earth" shall shake their hold upon their fundamental guarantees of liberty.

WAR ISSUE CITED

"The issue of our time," he said, "the issue of the war in which we are engaged, is the issue forced upon the decent, selfrespecting peoples of the earth by the aggressive dogmas of this attempted revival of barbarism; this proposed return to tyranny; this effort to impose again upon the peoples of the world doctrines of absolute obedience, and of dictatorial rule, and of the suppression of truth, and of the oppression of conscience, which the free nations of the earth have long ago rejected.

"What we face is nothing more nor less than an attempt to overthrow and to cancel out the great upsurge of human liberty of which the American Bill of Rights is the fundamental document: To force the peoples of the earth and among them the peoples of this continent, to accept again the absolute authority and despotic rule from which the courage and the resolution and the sacrifices of their ancestors liberated them many, many years ago."

This attempt could succeed, the President declared firmly, only if those who inherited the gift of liberty "had lost the manhood to preserve it."

DETERMINED TO WIN

The determination of this generation to preserve liberty, he declared, is as fixed and certain as that of an earlier generation of Americans to win it.

"We covenant with each other before all the world," Mr. Roosevelt asserted, "that having taken up arms in the defense of liberty, we will not lay them down before liberty is once again secure in the world we live in. For that security we pray; for that security we act—now and forever more."

No date in the history of freedom means more to liberty-loving men in all liberty-loving countries than the 15th of December, 1791, the Chief Executive said. The adoption then of a declaration of human rights influenced the thinking of all mankind, he said. Even today, with the exception of Germany, Italy and Japan, probably four-fifths of the people of the world, he said, support its principles, teaching and glorious results.

MORAL TIGERS SCARED

But in 1933, Mr. Roosevelt continued, a political clique came to power in Germany and the goal of these "political and moral tigers" was the overthrow throughout the world of the human liberty of which the American Bill of Rights was "the mother charter."

Truths self-evident to Thomas Jefferson and six succeeding generations of Americans were hateful to these men, Mr. Roosevelt said. In their place, Hitler and his fellows proposed a doctrine that the individual human has no right by virtue of his humanity, no right to a soul, a mind, a tongue, or a trade of his own, or to live where he pleases, or marry the woman he loves; that his duty is one of obedience only to Adolph Hitler.

LEASE-LEND TOTAL NOW $1,202,000,000

Tanks, Planes Sent So Far Called Only Start In Fight On Fascism

President Gives Congress Cumulative Report On Aid Program

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 15—Lease-lend aid—the tanks, planes, supplies and services by America to help two-thirds of the world resist Fascism—totaled $1,202,000,000 through November 30 and that was only a start.

Submitting to Congress today a cumulative report on the program since it got under way last March, President Roosevelt said the United States must continue to supply Britain, Russia, China and some thirty more nations with weapons from "the arsenal of the democracies" even though America, too, own must fight.

"Too much is at stake in this greatest of all wars," he said, "for us to neglect peoples who are or may be attacked by our common enemies."

$12,985,000,000 Appropriated

Congress has appropriated $12,985,000,000 for lease-lend purposes and up to the end of November $9,186,000,000 was allocated and $5,243,000,000 actually obligated.

30.24— 13569

Indicating that the program had accelerated greatly in the past ninety days, the report disclosed that $715,000,000 of the total aid of $1,202,000,000 was extended in this period. The rate of assistance was stepped up from a mere $18,000,000 last March to $283,000,000 for the single month of November.

Emphasizing that the "effectiveness of the entire lease-lend program may well depend upon the ability of American shipbuilders to expedite and expand their construction," the report noted that "the greatest ship-construction program in history is rapidly taking shape."

292 Vessels Building

With lease-lend funds 292 vessels are being built, in addition to 707 under contract as part of the Maritime Commssion's emergency program.

"We are now launching two ships every week," the report said. "By the midle of 1942 we will be launching two every day."
